Created in 1939 by sculptor Dudley C. Carter, the Ram made its debut under the admiring glances of the crowds visiting the California Handicraft Exhibit of San Francisco's Golden Gate International Exposition of 1939 on Treasure Island, where it was carved.

Following the fair, the Redwood Ram was formally presented in 1940 to the late Archibald J. Cloud, then president of the college, by the late architect Timothy Pfleuger as Carter's gift to a new and expanding institution.

After an unfortunate five-year stay in the men's gymnasium, forced there by lack of a suitable place to display its beauty, the Ram was moved from place to place as new buildings came and temporary ones went. When the West Campus was abandoned to become reservoirs, it was decided that the present spot was best.

There, on January 3, 1956, at about 10 a.m., the Ram was permanently mounted on a specifically designed pedestal provided by the engineering department.

Carved from a redwood stump, the figure took about 16 eight-hour days of work to complete, and it was carved with a double-bladed axe, some chisels and lots of skill. The complete statue, which was painted Red and White, the college colors, in 1947, weighs about a ton.

Recently, because of an excess of paint that had been splattered on the Ram, his standard Red and White color has been chipped off.

The Ram is now painted brown.

The Redwood Ram.

The West Campus — 1946-1954

THESE 14 BUILDINGS, constructed with parade ground area in foreground for the US Navy Waves' separation center, were once standing on the present site of the south reservoir across from Science Hall. The college used these buildings as its West Campus from 1946 to 1954.

City College had a West Campus from 1946 to 1954.

Buildings, 14 including a gymnasium-turned-auditorium all originally constructed for Navy Waves and situated where the south reservoir across from Science Hall now stands, were used by the college.

With ex-GIs swelling enrollment past 5000, the West Campus era saw major events in college history.

Foremost was the change of name. The hated "Junior" was officially killed and on February 12, 1948, it was City College of San Francisco.

Activities were at their height. Music — Christmas concerts drawing capacity crowds in 1000-seat auditorium... drama — Shakespeare, top-drawer... Man Who Came To Dinner the same... Ramporium established ...The Guardsman published twice a week...campus-wide participation in the music-drama production of Vagabond King... 4000 total audience.

And Archibald J. Cloud, retiring as President in 1949, gave this thought in a valedictory message: "Education is not a destination — it is a journey — always, we are en route."

Rams In Defense Of Five Crowns

Domecus Hopeful That Local Nine Can Retain Title

Still savoring the glorious feats of last year's most successful Ram baseball team, baseball Coach Ernest Domecus will head his troops into what appears to be another fine season of baseball for Ram fans.

The Ram nine of last year won their first Golden Gate Conference championship in ten years, edging out San Mateo; they then captured the Northern California title by defeating Santa Rosa; but they finally succumbed to an invincible Cerritos College team for the State crown.

In conference competition, San Mateo was the only team that posed a definite threat to the Rams. The powerful Bulldogs, riding on a 15-game winning streak, were one game behind the first-place Rams when both teams closed their conference season against each other. The Rams pounded the Bulldogs, 7-3, to clinch the championship.

THE RAMS THEN went into the Northern California playoffs for a best of three series against Santa Rosa. In the first game the Rams lost a squeaker, 2-3, but bounced back with back to back victories, 3-1 and 5-4, to capture the Northern California title.

With two conference titles in their grips, the Rams then collided with the Cerritos College Falcons for the State championship. The high-flying Falcons, undefeated in 38 encounters, pounced on the Rams for 3-2 and 13-1 victories to snatch their second straight State crown.

The season total for the Rams was 27-10.

It may again be shades of '66. In the words of Domecus, "The team should do very well again this year."

Domecus has good reason for such an assertion.

THE SQUAD WILL be a veteran team, strong in most departments, with five of last season's starting nine returning.

Pitching, which carried the Rams last year, should again be strong.

Domecus believes the catching position will be the most definite weak spot on the team. However, it is hoped that veteran Bill Jones or either rookies Bill McKenna (Balboa) or Bill Mahoney (Lincoln) can fill Steve Howder's spikes as a receiver.

Defensively, the Rams will have a well-knit infield. With the one, two, three men returning—Frank Grimaud, Tom Callan and Paul Giambra.

Guardsman SPORTS
Vol. 64 Orientation Edition Page 4

WILLIE WISE, the most versatile man on the club, will be the college's big scoring threat. At Balboa Wise scored 100 points in his five varsity games.

Netters' Chances Called Excellent

The defending Golden Gate Conference champion tennis team has an excellent chance of repeating its record this spring, according to Coach Roy Diederichsen.

The team was composed mostly of freshmen last year, and Diederichsen has corraled some of the top tennis stars in San Francisco high schools.

The Ram netters have taken the conference championship four times out of the last five years. Last year they were led by Greg Shephard from Lowell High and George Ponitkoff. Shephard is returning, as are five other lettermen, Quincy Lay, Bob Kypka, Pete Klestoff, Jim Moore and Buzz Hefferman.

Among league teams that the Rams will be fearing will be last year's second-place Foothill.

3 Starters Back To Pace Cagers In Title Defense

Since Coach Sid Phelan took over as leader of City College's basketball squad in 1955, the Rams have won seven championships. This year's team has three starters returning from last season's Golden Gate Conference champions.

In 1965-66 the Rams finished second in the state to a powerful Riverside team becoming the first team in conference history to go unbeaten in league play. With a record of 14-0 in conference play and 30-3 over-all, the Rams again will be loaded this season.

All-Conference forward Willie Wise and All-Conference center Gene Williams head the list of this year's team. Wise averaged 15 points a game last year while defensive-minded Williams averaged eight blocked shots a game. Paul Batmale is the other starter returning to his guard position on last season's team.

THE 1966-67 RAMS have already won five of their first six outings. Newcomers Darling Thomas from Baton Rouge, La., and leaper Ray Hearne head the list of newcomers.

Gone are All-Conference Charlie Parks, Eddie Wilson and Willie Jones, all of whom now start on Idaho State's team.

Phelan's teams have never finished lower than third since he took over the helm. Since the beginning of the Golden Gate Conference in 1962, the Rams have captured the title three times out of four possible.

Among the past stars Phelan has coached have been Everett "Goose" Adams, Henry King, Brad Duggan, Jim Duggan, Art Adams and Elton McGriff. McGriff went on to star at Creighton while Duggan and Ev Adams attained further stardom at San Francisco State.

King is currently playing football at Utah State. Duggan is also helping assist Phelan on this year's team.

THE RAMS HAVE their work cut out for them this year if they hope to capture another conference crown and possible state championship. The Golden Gate Conference boasts many top teams with some tremendous individuals.

With Coach Phelan's habit of winning plus the presence of great talent, the 1966-67 Ram basketball team must rate as a definite favorite to repeat as champions.

In their first six outings so far, only an overtime loss to a tough California Frosh team has kept the Rams from the undefeated rankings.

DEFENSIVE SPECIALIST Gene Williams, all-city center while at Gallileo and all-Golden Gate Conference last year, returns to bolster Ram title hopes.

Linksmen Seek Encore Of 1966

This year's Ram golf team is very optimistic about winning its second Golden Gate title in a row.

The Ram linksmen, although the league title-holder last year, took fourth place in the Golden Gate Conference tournament at Fresno.

In the Fresno tournament the team total was 301 for the four-day event, 18 strokes behind the winning club, San Francisco's Ron O'Connor ranked fourth among 14 contestants.

In the links tournament the Rams golfers really came to life. They took first place by 5 strokes over second place San Jose, 393 to 398. The Rams won four of five possible trophies. Doug Nelson captured first with a 76. Gary Mialoc, second with a 77, O'Connor fourth with an 80 and Tom O'Kane finished fifth. Nelson, Mike Butler, Gary Corvi and Gerry Dorn will be returning this semester.

Tracksters Lose Heroes, Hope For Incoming Talent

The defending Golden Gate Conference track team will be boasting numerous veterans from last year's championship squad and will have many of last year's high school stars.

Coach Lou Vasquez' team went through the conference without a single loss last year, and with the potential of this year's squad, they may repeat.

However, they lost some extremely valuable men via graduation. Three-fourths of the record-setting 440 and mile relay teams are gone. They are Lee Benton, Bob Prince and O. J. Simpson. The lone returner is Adam Banks, but local sprint champion Ernie Provost, 100-yard dash record holder, should fill in the gaps left by the departed men.

ALSO GONE ARE two of the Most-Valuable-Men on the squad in Sonny Johnson and Dwight Tucker. Johnson is a top hurdler and relay man on the mile. He holds the conference record in the intermediate hurdles. Tucker holds the national record in the high jump at 6-10½, and the Golden Gate Conference triple-jump record.

In the sprints last year the Rams were led by Simpson, Prince and Banks. Simpson, who holds all rushing records in football, set the 100-yard dash record at 9.5, but later in the season broke his thumb and was out for the season.

With all these men gone it seems that the Rams would be in trouble. However, with the return of Ray Hearne to the college there is a tremendous lift to the team. In 1961 Hearne set a National high jump record of 6-8½, and the conference record of 24-7½. His presence should make up for the departed Tucker.

OTHER RETURNING veterans who should help the team are distance runners George Ferguson, Hoy Henderson and Alex Vosher. The distance running was a weakness last year, but with the experience of these men plus some preps this event could turn into a strong point for the Rams.

Vasquez has coached many stars and many of them have gone onto fame at other colleges. Just to name a few, Alex Darnes, El Bridges and Bill Miles. His teams have always been strong, and have not finished lower than fourth place in the conference.

With the big catch of the Prep champs and returnees from last year bolstering the team, Ram track fans can anticipate a successful season.

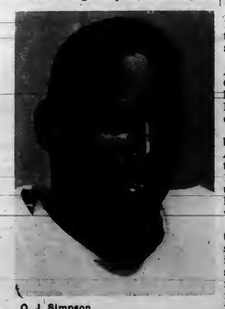
RAM BLINGS Numerous Ram Athletes Graduate To Pro Ranks

ATHLETIC competition has been pretty much of a one-sided affair at City College.

The Rams have enjoyed an athletic year unequaled in California two-year college history. Since last year at this time they have brought home titles in basketball, track, tennis, golf, soccer and football.

And they did the job with a tidy 84-7-1 won-lost-tied combined conference record.

As one might expect, it takes great athletes to achieve such impressive records. City College has been endowed with some of the greatest. Indeed, it has served as a "Farm Club" for major four-year colleges and professional teams as well.



Perhaps most renowned of Ram alumni is "old number 74," Ollie Matson, who is certainly destined to be enlisted in the National Football League Hall of Fame—if he ever quits playing.

Matson came out of Washington High, after breaking the Academic Athletic Association scoring record in 1947, to lead the Ram football team to what still must rank as their best season ever (12-0).

He went on to USF and became All-American, then to the Chicago Cardinals as an All-Pro. Since then he has been with the Los Angeles Rams and is now finishing (?) his career with Philadelphia's Eagles.

More recently, former Ram full-back-quarterback Gary Lewis, an All-American from Polytechnic, became the Big Eight's Back of the Year in 1960 while wearing a City College uniform. He is still wearing a San Francisco uniform, for the 49ers, and will probably be a starting back soon.

But perhaps the most recent—if not the most dramatic—influx of profesional material was in 1965 when cousins O. J. Simpson and Dwight Tucker started breaking football and track records by the dozens here. Both are now readying to abolish scads of four-year college records as junlors.

O. J. Simpson.

As Rams they both made All-American in 1966, Simpson as a unanimous repeater, after leading the college through its fantastic two-year football sprint (17-2-1).

On the subject of sprinting, Simpson, from Galileo, set a college record with a 9.6 century. In both track and football he always seemed to get the jump on his competition.

And on the subject of jumping, Tucker, from Wilson, was the nation's best two-year college triple jumper in 1966 with a 51-1¾ effort in 1965. That, along with his 6-10½ high jump, earned him the title of "Jumping Dwight Tucker."

In football, Simpson becamc somewhat of a legend even before the completion of his freshman year. He literally cremated every Golden Gate Conference record, to say nothing of the dozen or so national standards he set. In two years he scored 54 touchdowns and 328 points.

Baseball has had its stars, too.

Just last year from the college's most successful team ever (18-3), at least two players were drafted as freshmen. Brawny All-Golden Gate Conference catcher Steve Howder, All-City player from Lowell, will play for the Dodger organization this year and infielder Tom Callan, a three-time All-City player from Sacred Heart, will perform for a White Sox club.

All in all, City College has become noted as a stomping ground for scouts in search of good material—seldom are they disappointed.

DWIGHT TUCKER, one of the finest trackmen to perform here, holds college and conference marks of 6-10½ and 51-10½ in the high and triple jumps.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 64 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1, 1967 NUMBER 1

Lisa Hobbs On U.S. Youth Awareness

Lisa Hobbs, reporter for the San Francisco Examiner who spoke here last week, urged that "American youth must become aware of the challenge Red Chinese students present to us today."

Mrs. Hobbs is currently on leave from the Examiner and is studying advanced Asian affairs at Stanford University.

Observations which are contained in her best-selling book, I Saw Red China, were included in her discussion. (For full story see page 3.)

Rousselot To Lecture At Theater Tomorrow

John H. Rousselot, national director of public relations for The John Birch Society and former Southern California Congressman, will speak during College Hour tomorrow in the college theater, according to Edward Taylor, member of the Student-Faculty Lecture Series Committee.

Rousselot will speak on the topic, The John Birch Society—What It Has Done And Where It Is Going. The lecture will be followed by a question and answer period.

Rousselot was born in Los Angeles in 1927. He was elected to the House of Representatives from California's twenty-fifth district in 1960. While in Congress, Rousselot served on two committees, the Post Office and Civil Service Committee and the Banking and Currency Committee.

Rousselot has also served as the secretary of the California Republican Congressional Delegation. Other government positions he has held include Director of Public Information for the Federal Housing Administration and deputy to the chairman of the California State Board of Equalization.

From January 1, 1963 to July 1, 1964, Rousselot served as Western District Governor for The John Birch Society. Since July 1, 1964, he has been the director of public relations for the Birch Society and publisher of American Opinion magazine.

"We have attempted to provide our audiences with the polarities of political opinion," said David Strauss, student chairman of the lecture series as he commented on the selection of Rousselot.

"We feel that it is vital that we hear and appraise an ultra-conservative view as well as an ultra-liberal view, such as we presume Saul Alinsky's, one of the up-coming speakers, will be," he added.

Rousselot attended Principia College in Illinois where he graduated in 1949 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in political science and business administration. He and his wife and their three children reside in Arcadia, California.

JOHN ROUSSELOT, national director of public relations for the John Birch Society, will talk tomorrow here about his organization.

Rousselot's professional background includes president, John H. Rousselot and Associates, public relations consultants; director of public relations, Public Affairs Counsellors, Inc.; administrative assistant to director of public relations, Pacific Finance Corporation, and others.—J.J.

Council Studies Campus Dress 'Discrimination'

By Lorl Plttman

The Special Research Committee was asked to "investigate discrimination against female students wearing pants" by the Student Council last week.

Dean of Women Mary Golding sat in on this meeting and spoke to the council after this resolution was presented by Soph Councilman Rich Christensen.

According to Dean Golding, there is no discrimination in her office. She said that the trend for women to wear slacks on campuses is changing and "we're waiting for the fad to blow over."

She remarked, "Most of our students have good enough taste to dress appropriately." When asked by Frosh Councilman Howard Leighty what is "good taste" and what is "appropriate," she replied that that was up to the student.

PAUL SHUTTLEWORTH, a soph councilman, was finally removed from the council chambers during the second meeting on Monday of last week when he tried to block the voting for the new cabinet.

Displeased with Associated Student President Joe Parnell's choice of cabinet members, Shuttleworth's objections were overruled and council voted to remove him from the chambers until voting on the new cabinet was completed. The cabinet was accepted as chosen and sworn into office.

A resolution to appoint a committee to investigate the feasibility of forming a student book exchange was presented by Soph Councilman Christensen. The idea is to aid students in exchanging books with each other.

SINCE STUDENT COUNCIL receives a good portion of its money from the bookstore, this student exchange is not an attempt to hurt the bookstore's business but a way of helping students save money.

Soph Councilman Ron Bianco presented a resolution to the council concerned with appointment of a committee to investigate the feasibility of publishing possibly a supplement for The Guardsman or making known in some way to the entire student body the functions and accomplishments of council.

Questions arose as to how such a paper would be financed, why Student Council couldn't maintain better control of The Guardsman and how a four-page paper like The Guardsman could possibly carry more information about council without ignoring other campus activities.

Computer Reg Not Ready For Students

The computer registration which was supposed to go into effect this semester has been delayed for several reasons," Gertrude Sommerville, registrar, reported this week.

The electronic genius which was destined to terminate any fatal cases of registration paranoia just wasn't prepared for action. According to Miss Sommerville, the IBM program was just a proposed experiment which wasn't ready for pioneering without solid testing.

"We didn't start in on the program early enough," Miss Sommerville explained, "and many of the registration forms we needed did not reach us in time."

Furthermore, Miss Sommerville indicated that introducing a new program in the Spring semester is very problematic.

"The computer registration is planned to help everyone obtain the subjects he wants," Miss Sommerville added, "and we're hoping for its installation next semester."

Even so, approximately 11,099 survived the traditional registration process.

College Awarded Full Accreditation

In a letter to President Louis G. Conlan, the Accrediting Commission for Junior Colleges, Western Association of Schools and Colleges, awarded City College the maximum reaccreditation term of five years.

On January 24, 1967, the commission wound up a four-month inspection and investigation into the facilities here. A seven-man committee visited the campus last October 17-19 and made its report.

The members of the team were:

F. Parker Wilbur, president of the Los Angeles Trade-Technical College; Franklyn Johnson, dean of Instruction, Los Angeles Trade-Technical College; Oscar Edinger Jr., president of the Mt. San Antonio College; Floyd Younger, assistant superintendent-instruction at Cabrillo College; Royal Stanton, chairman, Fine Arts at Foothill-College; Lewis Mayhew, professor of education at Stanford, and Foster Davidoff, president, Compton College.

The five-year accreditation given City College is the third time the college has received the maximum term since its original evaluation.

COO Festivities Slated At The Ram Tomorrow

Council Of Organizations will be breaking a long-standing tradition when the COO Day festivities get underway during College Hour tomorrow.

For years, it was customary that COO day activities take place in the main courtyard at the flagpole, between Cloud Hall and Science Hall. However, Mike Quintero's Resolution No. 1, considered at the February 16 COO meeting, changed all of this.

The COO Representative of the Collegiate Christian Fellowship Organization resolved that, "COO day be held at the courtyard between the Ramporium and Smith Hall." After much heated debate, this resolution passed, 12-11, with COO Chairman Jim Dierkes casting the deciding vote.

Skip Archibald, COO publicity chairman, hailed Quintero's legislation as being a "great leap forward for COO day in its attempt to assist campus clubs in their membership drives and to give each student the opportunity to see all the clubs in action."

Archibald emphasized that the new location will conveniently accommodate more students because "it is a wider area."

Further, he declared, the COO day festivities conducted in the Smith Hall area will greatly eliminate the excess noise which plagued the faculty lectures in Cloud Hall during previous COO days.

This change makes life a bit easier for the participating clubs since the area surrounding the Ram has developed into a central meeting place.

Council Fight Over; Disputed Seat Filled

Paul Shuttleworth and Rich Christensen, sophomore council candidates who hailed from opposing political parties in the last Associated Student election, were installed into office recently following their tie for the seventh council seat.

According to James Wyatt, assistant dean of student activities, the tie between Shuttleworth of the United Students for Action and Christensen of Change was settled by grade point.

Chris Loo of USA who notched a sixth place position was disqualified, allowing both Shuttleworth and Christensen to step in and occupy the vacancies.

Presently there are 12 USA and 8 Change representatives in office. However, Change outnumbers USA in council, eight to six.

Marijuana: Dangerous Drug Or Harmless Stimulant?

By Viggo Petersen

In the complex world of narcotics law enforcement, there is one gigantic paradox. It is this:

Marijuana is considered neither habit-forming nor what is legally termed a "dangerous drug." On the other hand, alcohol is both addictive and, in some situations, dangerous to the user.

Most users of marijuana—the majority, but not all—when under its influence become euphoric and passive.

OVERINDULGENCE in alcohol, as any metropolitan police blotter will prove, can lead to sickness, harm to others and even death.

Yet possession of marijuana is not only a crime but also a felony—a serious crime—while possession of alcohol in most localities is not.

Why?

A law enforcement official recently commented, "If we had a definite answer to that one we would have an answer to man's unpredictability itself."

CIGARETTE SMOKING and alcohol both are more dangerous, from a health standpoint, than marijuana. The marijuana user, the average one, usually wants nothing more than to go to sleep.

Despite the paradox, and despite occasional efforts to remove the legal restrictions, marijuana has been illegal under federal law in the United States since 1937.

It has been estimated that between 65 and 80 per cent of the narcotics problem involves grass, not "hard stuff" such as heroin. Ask most police what is wrong with marijuana and he will say, "it is illegal."

However there are some basic reasons why marijuana will remain illegal as pointed out in recent research by officials concerned with the flow of the stimulant.

Manifestations of marijuana use range in some users from thirst, hunger, nausea and dizziness to delusions of grandeur, uncontrollable hilarity, depression, delirium and mental confusion.

It is almost impossible in an uncontrolled environment to predict in advance which of these reactions will occur in any given marijuana user. Although violent crimes while under the influence are the exception rather than the rule, a number of violent crimes have been attributed to its use.

Most authorities—police, educators, physicians—agree that marijuana, especially in its present illegal environment, often becomes a stepping stone to "hard stuff."

THE LATTER ARGUMENT is the one which is most emphatically voiced when discussions take place concerning marijuana use, and yet it is probably the argument with the least validity.

Many feel that once a user has had his first few experiences with marijuana, "moral breakdown" will result and he will ultimately "graduate" to a more advanced and sophisticated use of drugs such as cocaine, heroin and various stimulant pills.

What is never answered during such discussions is what causes the moral breakdown?

Perhaps not the use of marijuana itself but perhaps the restrictions and taboos which surround it ultimately would lead to the guilt feelings which would inspire use of greater stimulants.

ALTHOUGH PRICES differ in localities throughout the state, the average price for say a pound of marijuana is about $1000. The price varies with the degree of police pressure against its transport and sale.

Little recent research has been done on marijuana; little, that is, compared to LSD. Little has been done within the past 25 years.

More consideration of marijuana and its actual effects on one who uses the product may be quite beneficial to society as a whole.

Parnell Proposes 'Plan For Action'

By Ed Holmes

The Associated Students have been promised action, and this semester's student administration intends to insure they get it, Joe Parnell, AS president, asserted today.

The following five projects were cited as examples of their ambitious program:

- Extending the hours of operation for Statler Wing.
- Reduction of overt policing in Smith Hall.
- Procurement of a live mascot to more properly show support for championship athletic teams.
- Changes in the AS constitution to safeguard against a repetition of last semester's election problems.
- Talks with the directors of San Francisco's Municipal Railway for increased service to the college.

Parnell also stated, "Close inspection reveals little difference between the goals of Change and those of the United Students for Action. Only our methods were dissimilar. In my appointments to various chairmanships I have been careful to insure bi-partisan committees with fair representation for all.

"Of the four subcommittees in Student Council, Supplementary Appropriations and Recommendations are headed by Pat Fiuren and Ken Jones, respectively, both members of the USA. The Resolutions and the Special Research committees are headed respectively by Ron Mellander and Rich Christensen, both members of Change.

Elaborating on their Action Program, Parnell and AS Vice President Helen Ferentinos stressed that these points were just the beginning.

The president declared: "The Parnell administration feels that Smith Hall is operated solely for the benefit of the students.

"After careful consideration it is apparent that we need an extension of the hours Statler Wing can be used. Talks with Chief Leo Dunn of the Campus Police lead me to believe we'll have a satisfactory solution to the problem of policing Smith Hall in the near future."

Parnell added, "Our athletic teams are the best in the nation. They deserve all the support we can give them. We propose obtaining a live mascot to appear at each outdoor event City College participates in.

"We have been guaranteed that in future elections we will use voting machines exclusively.

"Many of us are painfully aware of the problems involved with Muni transportation to the college for an 8 o'clock class. We have planned meetings with Muni authorities and hope to receive their cooperation in obtaining better service."

The president emphasized, "Your votes showed you wanted an Action Program. The Parnell Administration is determined to give it to you."

JOE PARNELL, Associated Student president, outlined his plans for improving the campus, centering around a five-point program.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

Vol. 64, No. 1 | WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1, 1967 | Page 2

City College Accredited For It's 'Top Notch' Curriculum

CITY COLLEGE of San Francisco has been awarded the full five-year accreditation by the Accreditation Committee for Junior Colleges in the Western Association of Schools and Colleges.

This is the third consecutive time that the college has been accredited for five years, the highest grade that a college can be given.

The rating expires on June 30, 1972.

THIS AWARD SHOULD DISPELL RUMORS, circulated at the end of last year after the accreditation team was at the college, that this college would not receive a top rating. The rumors, reported by the uptown press, began in November, two months before the date set for the commission officially to release its results.

The importance of the WASC's report is that it insures the student that he is given a high standard of education, a well-balanced college curriculum, and aids in the acceptance of credits when transferring to out-of-state colleges.

It also aids in the recognition by the federal government for the granting of scholarships.

PERHAPS WITHIN THE INCREASING NUMBER of students attending the college, because of the freeze on student admissions to state colleges, the few who feel that they might have been "forced" to compromise and attend this college should count their blessings (or credits).

While some students may still feel that the college is not their ideal of a collegiate campus, whatever that may be, and whose opinion could not be shaken by any commission's report, should be relieved that their credits are acceptable at any college.

The Guardsman is not saying that the college is better than any other college, but the WASC is in the business of rating colleges, and professionals command respect.

IT SHOULD BE EMPHASIZED that they evaluate colleges and not high schools, or glorified high schools, a tired antonym for a top-rate college.

The Policy Of The Ram's Horn

THE RAM'S HORN, The Guardsman form of "Letters-to-the-Editor" in the dailies, although irregularly utilized, will be, as in the past, regulated by certain rules, since the Editor In Chief is responsible for the content of the paper.

No restrictions will be placed on the content of letters except when libel is concerned or when a letter is in obvious bad taste.

The Guardsman also reserves the right to edit letters for space.

Letters to the Ram's Horn may be left in the "on-campus" mail box in the telephone switchboard office in Science Hall or in The Guardsman office, S-304. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. If so desired, the writer's name will be withheld, but the identity of the writer must be known to the editor.

This College Not Involved In Present NSA-CIA Inquiry

By Lori Pittman

A time bomb has been set off by the highly controversial Ramparts Magazine that will probably be echoing throughout the United States for years to come.

The simple fact that the Central Intelligence Agency helped to finance one of the largest student organizations, the National Students Association, could have been viewed as a very worthy cause. However, claims that the money was not given without strings, that instead students were used to "spy" on each other, has caused a howl of protest.

Truths in the matter are yet to be revealed, but students of this college can view the developing situation without shame; theyhave never been affiliated with the NSA.

Back in the early fifties, the NSA invited this college to join. At that time, said Ralph Hillsman, dean of students, the two-year colleges in California had agreed not to join any national organization. They felt that the organization would take too much time out of the school day.

"California is the center of the two-year college world," commented Dean Hillsman. "This college did not feel the need to join NSA. It would only duplicate the programs already available."

Economics seemed to have been another guiding factor in this college's refusal, according to both Dean Hillsman and Dean of Women Mary Golding. Besides the cost of admission, the expense of sending delegates throughout the country to conventions would have been extensive.

"Every year we have students who go abroad with NSA," said Dean Golding, "but they have to pay their own membership fees."

At the time of membership solicitation, Dean Hillsman remarked, the NSA was considered "not stable." Others might well be willing to agree with him now.

The best test of truth is the power to get itself accepted in the competition of the market.

—Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1967

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 246.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF.....RICHARD HEINTZ
Managing Editor.....Connie Skiplitares
Staff Editor.....Marty Arbuckle
News Editor.....Steven Hara
Sports Editor.....Mike Duggan
Contributing Writers...William G. Pates, Peter Dorn, Bea Takeuchi

Editorial Assistants: John Janigian, John LeTourneau, Viggo Petersen.

Reporters: Doug Boston, Diana Brand, Marc Clarkson, Timothy Duncan, John Hammack, Doreen Ng, Phillip Planezzi, Lori Pittman, Ron Wong.

Cub Reporters: Carol Brett, Berry Brown, Albert Chi, Dan Coughlin, Darryl Cox, Bob Ferrando, Rebecca Garcia, Jeffrey Hoffhine, Ed Holmes, Ron Lent, George Ostrander, Glynn Petrie, Lani Silver, Lee Smith, Charles Stevenson, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf.

Photographers: Bob Briscoe, chief; John C. Renz, Truman Tong, Jose Fireside, Richard Sandino, Mac F. Goding, Rich Spitaleri, Ron O'Brien, Chris Rozales, Chip Stevens, Jim Isaac.

Faculty Adviser.....Joan Nourse

Member Associated Collegiate Press 1966-1967

Grand Prix Excitement

Toshiro Mifune Makes American Film Debut As Japanese Industrialist

By Steve Hara

Grand Prix, now at the Golden Gate theater, provides some of the most exciting action sequences of any movie made in 1966. It is certainly the biggest and best automobile racing movie ever made.

Filmed during the 1966 Grand Prix season and incorporating many new and ingenious photographic techniques, the movie imparts racing thrills and the feeling of speed that normally only the car driver feels.

The most effective scenes were those actually taken behind the wheel by cameras strapped onto the drivers' helmets and braced onto the hood of a Ford GT.

GRAND PRIX STARS James Garner, Yves Montand, Eva Marie Saint and Toshiro Mifune, who makes his American motion picture debut.

The real stars, however, are without a doubt the formula-one racers which Garner, Montand and some 20 other men drive throughout the picture. And it is well publicized by now that these actors actually drove their own cars—seeing some of the footage taken, that's quite an accomplishment.

The picture itself tells the story of four drivers who desperately want to win the Grand Prix world championship. Garner, playing an American named Pete Aron wants to win.

MONTAND PUTS IN a good performance as Jean-Pierre Sarti, a Corsican driver who sometimes speaks unintelligible English. Sarti is an individualist not given to team racing. He follows all the rules but is lately losing favor with his bosses at the Ferrari Company who object to his behavior and his driving, which is showing signs of deterioration.

The last two are newcomers to the American screen. Brian Bedford portrays an Englishman who is considered washed up after a serious crash but who pushes himself in order to beat Garner whom he blames for his accident. Bedford drives an English Jordan-BRM.

A happy-go-lucky Sicilian driver named Nino Barlini is played by Antonio Sabato with zest. Barlini just plainly enjoys the thrills and glory that come from racing. He is Sarti's back-up man.

MILFUNE PLAYS A Japanese (of course) industrialist, a parallel of Shoichi Honda of motorbike fame, who wants to try his hand at making a successful formula-one car in order to extend his fame and publicize his products.

Miss Saint plays a women's magazine journalist covering the circuit who starts her own small scandal with Sarti, a married man.

If Director John Frankenheimer wanted to improve his movie, there is one thing he should have done—made the seats more like cars with steering wheels and passing lights.

A person is in danger of his life when he leaves the theater and tries to drive home. The photography in the picture is so real and in some cases it is speeds of at least 150 mph, that the viewer will lose sense of speed and will tend to push the accelerator of his car too far. And you'd better believe it.

Campus Police Adds Six Coeds To Department

By John Janigian

City College has, for years, been respected for its fine Campus Police department which patrols parking areas, the cafeteria and all campus functions.

But unknown to most students, the college also has policewomen in training who are trained in the same manner as their male counterparts.

This semester six coeds are enrolled in the criminology department. They are commanded by Kathie McCartney, sergeant of the secretaries.

Miss McCartney summarized her girls' jobs as typing, filing, issuing parking permits and writing up the night security and incident reports which are sent to the San Francisco Police Department.

Detective techniques are taught to the women. Recently, stereo tapes were being stolen from cars parked in the reservoir, Miss McCartney said. She and a plain clothes campus police officer observed the culprit and made the arrest.

The coeds are taught self defense as part of their training into law enforcement. One such class taught them is akito-judo, which is offered to criminology majors and is held in the men's gymnasium. Such courses teach all phases of control and agility.

Detective work is a favorite with the secretaries. Two of them are presently employed as store detectives in a downtown store. Their job is to keep crowds under surveillance and watch for shoplifting, a crime which is continually increasing.

The secretaries also participate in weapons classes. Most of the coeds take some pistol courses. These courses include instruction and practical use of pistols from 22 to 45 caliber.

Jobs in related fields which women hope to enter are as juvenile probation officers and security officers.

When asked about being meter maids, Miss McCartney replied, "That's low class, we're training for real law enforcement."

The six secretaries this semester are Miss McCartney, Mary Anne De Guire, Donna Manbretti, Mary Green, Carol Cox and Marshalen Taylor.

The secretaries wear uniforms when on duty the same as the officers. They consist of blue blouses, blue skirts, an arm patch saying "CCSF Police Department" and a badge.

Publishers In The Red

High-Priced Texts Cause Student Dissatisfaction

ACP—Why are textbooks so expensive, asks Western Michigan University's Western Herald? Is it the fault of the university-owned "non-profit" bookstore whose prices are as high as those of the profit-making bookstores? Is the publishing industry to blame?

Both contribute to the situation, the Western Herald concluded, but the greater culprit, without a doubt, is the publishing industry.

Time magazine recently revealed that the book industry relies on textbooks and children's books to support gambling losses on adult grade books. All the major publishers, Time said, "print text and reference books, as well as children's books, which are dependable money-makers. Their profitable textbook and paperback operations enable them to gamble on adult trade books—which as a rule lose money."

One publisher estimated that "60 per cent of adult trade books end up in the red, another 35 per cent break even, and only 4 per cent turn a decent profit."

Should students be forced to bear the brunt of the industry's losses and nonprofits? Publishers are fully aware that they have the students over a barrel since students must buy particular required textbooks.

There are two possible solutions to the dilemma. On a local level, student government could promote some type of competitive selling of new texts. We can buy everything from groceries to automobiles on a discounted basis; this opportunity should also be provided for students in the purchase of required books.

On a wider level, the National Student Association could make the public and the publishing industry aware of the abuse students face in textbook prices. If housewives can demand fairer prices for food, a nationally supported student effort to acquire more realistic prices is also feasible. It is no doubt true that profits from texts help to support great publications that otherwise never would be printed, but a 96 per cent support is entirely unrealistic.

On The RAMpage

Fallacies—The Bane Of City College

By Connie Skipitares

THERE IS probably an infinite variety of reasons why students choose to attend college, but usually only one of about four major criteria is responsible in one case or another for compelling the neophyte student to enter the "higher ranks" of education at San Francisco's humble abode atop Hill No. 29.

Probably first and foremost, rendering a consistency with any thoughts a student might possess about more extensive vocational preparation or intellectual stimulation for a useful and productive later life, is this student's fear of facing the world on his own. He needs a crutch.

Thrust into a temporary intellectual void after graduation from high school, a student may realize he is ill-prepared to meet the standards of our society with a mere high school diploma, and additionally, mounting pressure from parents and friends in most cases emphasizes the worth of an ambition-oriented person.

THE FEAR of not producing or perhaps appearing useless in the eye of elders and peers plays an important role in the decision a potential college student will eventually make about continuing his education. For some students, then, unfortunately, college offers the best excuse for occupying their abundant time.

A second alternative, manifesting itself in the student's well-endowed power to strike back at anything that elders "shovel-out" to him, is roused by general parental pressures dictating the worth and practicality of two-year college attendance prior to transfer to upper division studies at a four-year institution.

Yet, a great many students heed this advice. Many fixed-goal-oriented students, some with exceptionally high scholastic averages and others with merely average but qualifying intellectual ability, fear the grind of the four-year college, so they turn to the less-pressured measures offered by the two-year college.

A THIRD REASON for possible attendance at this college lies within the realm of the abundant and diverse financial cases, those students who possibly qualify for the four-year institution, but who maintain a borderline scholastic stance, making it almost impossible to acquire scholarships to sustain their existence at a state college or university.

Perhaps the most frequently-exploited misconception that exists in this student community is the feeling that this college is a "port of last resort." Of course for some, like the draft dodger, it is obviously a last resort.

But for the new entrant who, thanks to previously-conceived rumors, usually visualizes City College as a haven "for all those who lack placement elsewhere," it should not be considered as such.

MANY STUDENTS feel that just because the only requirements this college stipulates is a diploma from an accredited high school, City College is compelled to accept anyone and everyone. Well, that is the function of every two-year college, but quality in the student population DOES exist here, even though quantity may appear to be the overpowering factor. For although admission is wide open, continued attendance depends on proved quality of performance.

ON THE RAMPAGE is taking a stand to dispel the conception of City College's "worthlessness" in the eyes of those students who are perhaps seeking the traditional cluster of ivy-covered buildings and the sorority and fraternity houses lining the outskirts of the campus—a great illusion, no doubt, on any two-year campus.

We wish the dissatisfied student would think what or where he would be in the absence of such an institution as the two-year college.

The highest average in a baseball career is .367 by Tyrus Raymond Cobb.

The Observer

By William G. Pates

Red China—Ambition And Sacrifice The Chief Challenges To Americans

REMEMBER what it was like when California used to have a Governor? Few do. In fact it was so long ago that hardly any one remembers his name.

Of course this state is quite a different place now. Today Californians have been endowed with a very narrow, shallow man with little in depth knowledge of the state and its problems that has emanated from his own brain and who lacks the strength of his own convictions which are open to constant and drastic changes as chief executive.

THE EXTREMITES to which the shallowness of the Governor's convictions extend can be seen in the fact that the man has evolved from a left-wing type New Deal Democrat into a right-wing Goldwater type conservative and from there into a Spencer-Roberts citizen-politician, with no apparent qualms or intrepidations at any time.

This citizen-politician, as has been indicated, even with the help of his brain trust doesn't perceive or grasp the philosophical aspects of policy or their long range affect on the state. In fact, matters are in such a state of flux that it has been conveyed to the masses in the bureaucracy that today's policy may not be yesterday's policy and may not be tomorrow's policy.

Originally, this citizen-politician turned citizen-governor professed certain anti-government views which were somewhat detrimental to the best interests of the state. However, he was brought around by his Spencer-Roberts developers to expounding the more conventional thoughts of economy in government operations, streamlining the government bureaucracy, reforming welfare and taxation programs and honest budgeting.

THE GREAT MAINSTAY of the Governor's entire "program" is economy—economy at all levels at all cost. He fails to realize that economy and a balanced budget do not necessarily imply "good" government. Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover no doubt had balanced budgets and economy in government and it certainly came to a glorious result.

Government was not established as a profit making organization and most have been running with deficits for years. The system perpetuates itself, and although absolute, unconstrained spending is certainly undesirable, so are drastic economy moves which tend to sacrifice, unnecessarily, numerous policies and programs of importance.

Charges were made by the citizen-Governor that the state had been looted and drained and that his administration was heir to the most serious fiscal dilemma facing California in half a century. Yet despite this, a government still stands.

THE BELIEF that every segment of government must share in economies as drastic as those imposed on others is uninformed, especially in regard to the Governor's use of blanket cuts. Obviously, various governmental bureaus cannot afford such broad cuts in funds without sacrificing their programs. Economies must be selective to be effective.

Already economies have harmed substantially the programs being put forth by the state university and college systems and the department of parks and beaches. A great many people do not comprehend the brilliance in the Governor's blanket cut policy.

PEOPLE SHOULD be discovering that Ronnie doesn't know how to be Governor just as Edmund G. Brown didn't know how to be Governor. For the most part, EGB had the right ideas; he just went about them in the wrong ways. Just like all the movies in which he played a Confederate officer, the present Governor is not on the side of right for the future of the state and the alleviation of many crucial social problems.

Despite all this, if this citizen-Governor can achieve reorganization of the bureaucracy and economy in government operations it might all be worth it. Unfortunately, the little Hoover Commission's budget has been cut ten per cent. . . .

Californians will eventually come to believe that Ronnie is a plastic Governor. A citizen-politician can't expect to be a real Governor and so California has a plastic one. Of course, maybe we can get somebody to volunteer to come in on weekends and holidays to be Governor for the next four years.

Chinese Students Versatile, Tough In Youth Action

By Bea Takeuchi

That American youth must become aware of the challenge Red Chinese students present to us today was the topic emphasized in a lecture given by Lisa Hobbs, journalist for the San Francisco Examiner, in the theater last Thursday.

Mrs. Hobbs said that the challenge is in the capability of Chinese students to endure rigorous schedules for developing the intellect, their physical fitness and for sacraficing marriage, self and "La Dolce Vita."

She told of her impressions of China; of the tidy villages, friendly people, the constant reminders of Mao Tse Tung's ideas, the hard-working people and their striving for a better China.

"UNIVERSITY STUDENTS are not subect to the draft at all," she said, noting that faculty and students work together in factories. "The high man on the factory table may be the low man in the classroom, and vice-versa," she added. Students in China must be versatile in technological matters. They must be able to build.

Although opportunities are limited, and all activity depends on approval of the state, the Chinese students seem to be resigned to this life. They have no choice and there are no questions. "They seem abysmally ignorant, or I should say, dangerously ignorant of the West," Mrs. Hobbs said.

"I deeply believe that they are well on the way of forming a deep, sincere, almost explosive social conscience for their society," she added.

SPEAKING OF THE Red Guards, Mrs. Hobbs said that "the great proletarian social revolution is all coming off wall posters. There is an enormous upheaval and a power struggle in China, but it is rather significant that tourist groups and international airlines still operate there."

Mrs. Hobbs believes that it is "the young who crave the experience of revolt."

"When China squeaks, the whole world takes notice. There is an involvement of the whole people. They are aroused. There is a debate, it is boiling, there is a mess and ferment. Who has control?

"It is a question of who will win in the ideological field, Capitalism or Communism. We cannot close our eyes to Communism and Chinese propaganda," Mrs. Hobbs emphasized.

She said that people were constantly reminded by posters, slogans and billboards, of Mao's sayings and of the "American aggressor."

"THE YOUNG PEOPLE of China are tough. The system in which they live would be untenable to any of you here. But you must be aware of it." She added, "Those who don't make it in college are sent to do agricultural work!"

Mrs. Hobbs is the author of the best seller I Saw Red China, and is currently writing a book on India. She is presently on a fellowship at Stanford studying Asian affairs.

CHILDREN ARE CHILDREN even inside Red China. Here Lisa Hobbs, mother of two sons herself, holds an infant as the boy's grandmother tells him just what a grandmother would, anywhere: to "smile for the birdie" while his picture is being taken.

Anderson Retirement Causes Shifts In Administration

Dr. Oscar Anderson's retirement caused a three-man shift in the offices of administration on January 1, 1967.

Dr. Harry Buttimer replaced Dr. Anderson as the coordinator of educational management leaving his office as Dean of Instruction to Thomas Nesbitt. Fred Humiston, counselor, replaced Nesbitt as director of testing, research and guidance.

In 1960, after working his way up from an instructor in business in 1947 to head of the department, Buttimer left this college to work at the State College of Hayward. He returned in 1964 and became Dean of Instruction. He has a B.A. and an M.A. from the University of California at Berkeley and a Ph.D. from Stanford.

"A great new job with new challenges," were Dr. Buttimer's words for his appointment as Coordinator of Educational Management. "It's a great place," he said in reference to this college, "it's function, purpose and people. The role of a college like this is becoming increasingly important to the community."

Right now, Buttimer is being kept busy by the construction of the two new buildings and the prospect of relandscaping the campus.

"This is the place to be," said Nesbitt who has been with this college since 1948. He has a B.A. and an M.A. from the University of California at Berkeley and worked his way up from counseling to become the Director of Testing, Research and Guidance and now Dean of Instruction.

Humiston had great praise for Nesbitt since taking over the position of Director of Testing, Research and Guidance. "Nesbitt developed a very efficient and modern testing system. He established a type of service that is unique."

Having been with this college since 1954, Humiston has an A.A. from Santa Ana Junior College, a B.A., M.A. and an Ed.D. from Stanford University.

He feels that his new job is one of service . . . "service to the students, the faculty and administration." Humiston referred to himself as "a firm believer in the two-year college system and educational idea."—L.P.

Campus Notes: IRC Sponsors Folk Concert Friday

The International Relations Club will sponsor a show starring Travis Edmonson, formally of Bud and Travis, starting at 8 p.m. Friday in the college theater.

Edmonson, who is currently performing at the El Matador, will be accompanied by other performers in the concert, said Jacobsen, International Relations club adviser.

The IRC, whose main function is to give foreign students an outlet and to add international knowledge to the campus, meets Tuesdays and Thursdays during College Hour in C-258.

"THE newly elected officers are President Marilyn Whiting, Vice President Terry Dwyer, Secretary Sylvia Wong.

Jacobsen invited all students interested in Foreign Relations to join the club. He also extended an invitation for all students to attend the Travis Edmonson concert.

• NEWMAN CLUB: Father Gerard Krapf, C.P.P.S., gave the first of his series of lectures entitled Personality Dynamics and Religion in S-204 last Tuesday.

Father Krapf's first lecture dealt with the shaping of personality within social environment and how maturity and values are related to its development. He stressed the possible ways a person might better his personality. The lecture was followed by a question and answer period in which student and faculty members were able to discuss material related to the general topic.

Last Fall, Father Krapf took part in a very successful lecture series entitled, Is God Dead? This semester he was requested, by popular demand, to conduct his own lecture series. Father Krapf is a sponsor of the Newman Club, a Catholic campus organization, and a consultant to all students on this campus concerned with religious and personal matters.

Like his first lecture, the rest of the series will be held every Tuesday at 11 a.m. in S-204. All students and faculty members are invited to attend.

• INTER-SORORITY COUNCIL'S semiannual Rushing Tea will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, March 12, at the Newman Center, announced Dean Mary Golding.

On Tuesday, March 14, Phi Beta Rho will also give a fireside and Theta Tau will hold its fireside on the following evening. Both firesides will be held in the homes of sorority members.

The Rushing Tea and the firesides will afford the women students interested in joining a sorority, an opportunity to get acquainted with the members of the two campus sororities, Phi Beta Rho and Theta Tau.

All interested students are welcome to register for the rushing on Council Of Organizations Day, during College Hour tomorrow.

Interested students may sign up in S-150 or Statler Wing, Dean Golding said.

AMS Basketball Petitions Due

Petitions for entry in the Associated Men Student-sponsored intramural basketball tournament are due today in the Associated Student office, according to AMS president Ron Lent.

Lent is hoping for two eight-team leagues; composed of the Club division and Independent division. He also would like to continue to have one practice round.

All men students interested must be registered students of the college, and members of the Associated Students. Lent added that all games will be played Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

Many of the top teams of last semester are already entered in the league, headed by defending champion Irish. Runner-up Phi Delta will be back to try to dethrone the Irish.

Other squads that will be in contention for the title will be The Guardsman, Campus Police, the Red Mountaineers and The Knobs.

Construction Of Building Hinders Student Parking

By Jeffrey Hoffhine

Loss of special student parking permits as a result of reduced parking area and strict observance of placing permits on the vehicle's windshield, are the new parking regulations which go into effect here today.

Construction for the new educational services building on the west side of Smith Hall, has caused a reduction of parking stalls in A lot and H&R lot. Campus Police Chief Leo Dunn said, "With the construction we are loosing about 200 parking spaces. For this reason no special student permits will be issued."

Furthermore, with the increase of students last semester and this semester, a corresponding increase of faculty members has left even less room for the student driver. It seems the same reasons for new buildings would relate to a need for new parking spaces, yet the second half of the reservoir has not been acquisitioned for student use.

THOSE HOPING to find an easy way out of a citation because they lost their permit by not fastening it securely to their windshield or neglected to get their permits, are going to be badly disappointed.

It would in fact, with the new ruling, be hopeless to try any such tactics, since little consideration will be given to those without permits on their windshields, Dunn warned.

The motorcycle enthusiast has been affected too, hence all motorcyclists must give up A lot, and move to the reservoir adjacent to Phelan avenue. Those driving the two wheelers were warned that no nonsense will be permitted. "This includes driving on top of the rsservoir walls and also climbing up the sides of them," Chief Dunn stipulated.

ALTHOUGH THE parking space is crowded, the number of cars is expected to slacken since only Associated Student card holders may get a permit, and only 1460 students have been issued permits out of 8495 registered day students. A permit is required for parking in all lots.

The major problem for the Campus Police is car theft, but the number of cars stolen during a semester is decreasing. The Campus Police are required to question anyone loitering in the parking lots. Chief Dunn feels however, "We are here to serve the college and the students. We hope we can get the cooperation of all in solving the problems we are going to face this semester."

Tryouts Begin For Best-Dressed Coed Title Tomorrow

The initial tryouts for the Best-Dressed Coed contest are scheduled to get underway tomorrow during College Hour in C-258, according to Associated Women Student President Linnette Wong.

All interested coeds were urged to participate but were reminded that each student must submit a brief application to the Dean of Women.

Eligibility for application is based upon grade-point average and the status of a full-time student.

Thirty coeds will be selected at the first tryout tomorrow. On Thursday, March 9, the number will be reduced to 14, with the third and final contest scheduled for April 6 when the coeds will act as models at the AWS spring fashion show and tea.

Criteria for selection of the coeds will be based upon general appearance, grooming, walking, poise and smile, Miss Wong said.

Elimination among tomorrow's participants will be achieved through a devised point system used by the judging committee of men and women faculty members and former Best-Dressed Contest winners.

The coed awarded the Best-Dressed title from this college will receive a trophy in her name and the chance to compete for the nationwide contest of the same name sponsored by Glamour fashion magazine.

Each spring Glamour screens hundreds of coeds from college campuses all across the nation in its search for the ten coeds who best exemplify college America through the fashions and ideas they reflect.

Undefeated Rams Nab Cage Crown

Williams Hits In Clutch; Cagers Squeak By Merritt

By Mike Duggan

All-Conference star Gene Williams banged in a 10-foot jumper with only one minute remaining to give the Rams a hard-fought, come-from-behind 59-53 victory over Merritt, Saturday night on the winner's court, and in so doing wrap up their second straight Golden Gate Conference title.

Out in front, 53-51, at the time, Williams' fielder clinched the win and gave Sid Phelan's squad its 29th consecutive league victory. It also upped the Rams' record to 28-2 and marked number 22 in a row for the year going back to an early preseason loss to Hamilton Air Force Base.

Merritt stayed in the contest all the way, mainly on the fine outside shooting of Ed Travis, who accounted for a game high of 27 points.

Willie Wise led the Ram scoring with 18, most of which came in the second half, following a 26-26 halftime deadlock. For Wise, also an All-Conference selection last year, the game marked the 21st straight in which he has been in double figures. Forward Darling Thomas added 17 digits, while Williams finished with 11.

Wise scored 23 points and Thomas added 19 in pacing the Rams by San Jose City College, February 21 on the loser's court.

The champs put this game out of reach early by taking a commanding halftime lead of 36-26.

Wise displayed his all-around abilities by playing most of the second half at center after Williams was ejected from the game for elbowing.

The Rams now have a week to prepare for the state tournament, and will try to improve on their runner-up finish of last season.

CCSF 92 - Chabot 44

The Rams ran their league record to three wins without a defeat as they ran up a conference record for largest margin of victory (48) in trouncing Chabot, 92-44. Sid Phelan's cagers broke the game wide open early by outscoring the Gladiators, 46-21, in the first half.

Center Gene Williams paced the balanced Ram scoring attack with 20 points as reserve Girard Chatman followed with 15 while Willie Wise, Darling Thomas and Larry Gray added 10 apiece.

CCSF 57 - Foothill 55

Willie Wise came through with two clutch free throws to give the Rams a thrilling come-from-behind win over the Foothill Owls. Gene Williams put in 18 points for the winners as Wise finished with 15 and Darling Thomas added 13. The home court Owls led most of the way as the Rams managed to hit on only 18 of 27 free throws.

CCSF 68 - Contra Costa 62

Larry Gray came off the bench in the first half to help spark the Rams past a rugged Contra Costa club on the loser's court. Gray scored eight quick points in one stretch as the Rams built up a lead of 10 digits just before the half and were able to hold on in the second half for their fifth win without a loss in conference play.

Forward Willie Wise led the scoring parade with 24 markers while Darling Thomas had 14 and Gray finished with 12.

CCSF 67 - San Jose 45

Returning to their home court, the Rams made it look easy in registering a 67-45 win over San Jose City College. The Rams started slowly and led only 25-16 at the half. Willie Wise had 14 points, Gene Williams 13, Ray Hearne and Darling Thomas 12 each.

CCSF 64 - Merritt 51

The Rams completed the first half of league play with a perfect seven wins and no losses by rolling over Merritt 64-51, behind Willie Wise's 28 points.

Wise sank shot after shot from all angles and wound up with 13 field goals. Gene Williams played his usual brilliant defensive game and also contributed 10 points to the Ram cause.

CCSF 65 - San Mateo 47

Trailing by four points at the half, the Rams, paced by the all-around play of Willie Wise, stormed back in the second half to hand College of San Mateo a convincing 65-47 loss. Gene Williams came through with five second-half fielders and Darling Thomas hit well in addition to holding the league's leading scorer, Owney Williams, to but four baskets.

Clutch field goals by guards Paul Batmale and Larry Gray also contributed as the Rams outscored the Bulldogs, 40-18, in the second half.

CCSF 71 - Diablo Valley 56

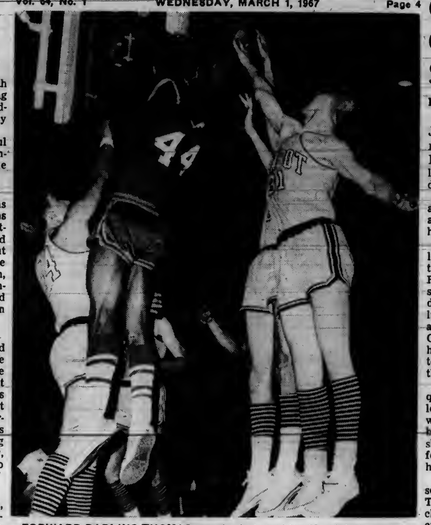
Ray Hearne and Gene Williams combined talents to lead the Rams over Diablo Valley, 71-56. Hearne, hitting mostly on long jumpers, finished with 23 points. Williams scored but six points, but his defense was more than adequate. He held Bob Johnson, a 20.3 scorer and third in the conference, to no points. Willie Wise and Darling Thomas followed Hearne in scoring with 13 each.

CCSF 55 - Chabot 41

Second-place Chabot again proved no match for the Rams as they made it 10-0 on the season by whipping the Gladiators, 55-41. After an even first half, Willie Wise and Gene Williams paced the Rams to their 25th straight conference victory. Wise led all scorers with 20 points while Williams picked up 13 in addition to holding Boris Pesa, Chabot's leading scorer, to nothing. Darling Thomas also helped out with 12 points.

CCSF 65 - Foothill 43

For the third consecutive game, Gene Williams held his opposing center scoreless in pacing the Rams to an easy win over Foothill. This time it was Howard Burford, a 10-point-a-game scorer for the Owls, who went up against the defensive ace of the Rams and came out with nothing to show except four personal fouls.



Williams also collected 22 rebounds and blocked numerous shots in addition to scoring 14 points of which six came by way of his patented "stuffers." Darling Thomas led all pointmakers with 20 while Willie Wise added 10. The Ram front line of Williams, Wise and Thomas was too much for the smaller Owls to handle.

CCSF 78 - Contra Costa 64

The Rams, behind the outstanding play of Darling Thomas and Gene Williams, raced to their second straight Golden Gate Conference championship by downing Contra Costa, 78-64.

Thomas played his best game of the year, scoring 23 points and was a big factor in helping the Rams dominate the backboards. Williams blocked down 13 shots and gathered in 10 rebounds along with adding eight points in a great all-around performance. Willie Wise, Paul Batmale, Bill Locke, Ray Hearne and Larry Gray scored well and also helped a fine team effort that shut out the Comets' scoring star, Don Lyons.

Vol. 64, No. 1 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1, 1967 Page 4

FORWARD DARLING THOMAS muscles in two of the 12 points he scored in helping the Rams to a recent win over Chabot, 55-41. Thomas, a fine rebounder and scorer, hasn't been under 10 points since the league opener. —Guardsman photo by Chris Rozales

Cagers Represent Conference In State Tourney

By Bob Ferrando

This year's California State Junior College basketball tournament will be held at Santa Maria, where a host of top college talent will meet for the three-day classic starting March 8.

This year's tourney shapes up to be a well-balanced three days of action, as any of the eight teams involved has a good shot at winning the title.

NUMBER ONE RANKED City College of San Francisco will represent the Golden Gate Conference. The Rams of Coach Sid Phelan have the state's top defensive team, and will display one of the best balanced clubs in two-year college ranks. The Rams are led by their jumping-jack center Gene Williams who so far this season has caused each opposing team's centers to wish they had never heard of the name Williams.

In the Valley Conference, San Joaquin Delta College will again be the league's top club. The Mustangs, a well-coached, fast-breaking team, will be a definite threat, as their run and shoot type offense will be a tough defensive problem for most teams to handle.

The Coast Conference this year will send Laney College Eagles of Oakland. The Eagles dethroned defending champion Solano College for the crown. They are paced by star guard Murphy Ward who is one of the top scorers in the ranks.

LONG BEACH City College looks like the best team in the rough Metropolitan league. Long Beach so far this season, has been fighting it out with San Francisco for the top ranking in the state, and is figured to be one of the top-rated clubs in the tourney.

The Pacific Southwest Conference title has not been decided as yet, but Imperial Valley College is figured to have the upper hand for the league crown. The Central Conference, like the Pacific Southwest league, has a two-way fight between Allan Hancock and Merced.

Hancock, a well-disciplined team, appears to be the better of the two clubs, but Merced has been improving since the opening of league play and could upset Santa Maria the host college.

Champion Trackmen In Chabot Meet; Swimmers At San Jose

The 1967 City College track team will defend its Golden Gate Conference title beginning with the Conference Relays Satudray at Chabot, while the swimming team will be making its conference debut at San Jose City College Friday.

Track Coach Lou Vasquez is optimistic, despite the loss of almost his entire team from last year. Gone from the 1966 squad are sprinters O. J. Simpson, Chris Davis, Bob Prince, Lee Benton, and hurdler Sonny Johnson. The greatest loss is Dwight Tucker, who competed in the high jump, triple jump, and long jump with record-breaking authority.

Heading the squad will be Ernie Provost, who will compete in the 100 and 220-yard dashes as well as the 440 and mile relays. Speedster David Jones will run the 220, 440, and both relays. Freshmen Greg Jackson, Floyd Banks and Tom Caserta lead the hurdler list.

Ray Hearne, a former 6-8 high jumper and 24-5 long jumper will try to fill Tucker's shoes in those events.

New swim coach Curt Decker is also optimistic about the swim team whose members are fresh from a college record in the medley relay, at 3:58.6, against San Francisco State.

Combining for the record were John O'Connor (freestyle), Bill Pasquiletti (backstroke), Bruno Van Rign (breaststroke), and Frank Cercos (butterfly). O'Connor set another record in the 100-yard freestyle.

Plagued last year by limited competition, the Rams were also hindered by the lack of divers. This year James Lippitt, Ed Johnson and David Detert head a promising group of divers. J.J.

Golfers Win Two Preseason Tilts, Face Hard Schedule

The City College golf team began its preseason schedule in fine fashion be defeating a team from Hamilton Air Force Base, 13-5, in a nonconference match February 10 at Sonoma.

Doug Boston was medalist for the Rams with a 78.

The team traveled to Silverado Country Club February 17 and played a three-way match against Napa and Stockton. Ken Sundert was low man for City College with a fine 76.

Coach Grover Klemmer indicated that this year's team lacks the ability and depth of last year's Golden Gate Conference Champion Rams. This year, the golf team has a tough season ahead, partly due to the fact that no varsity players from last year have returned.

At the present time, the five leading varsity players are Bob Blazer, Bob Rama, Mike Leonardini, Boston, and Kundert.

Coach Klemmer, in reviewing the outlook of the other teams, stated that based on past performance and ability, he expects strong competition from College of San Mateo, San Jose City College and Diablo Valley.

Klemmer also reported that the team has received an invitation to attend the Western Junior College Championships at Fresno during Easter Vacation. Last year's varsity golfers took fourth place among 30 two-year colleges attending the Fresno event.

This year's golf schedule will consist of 14 Golden Gate Conference matches and two practice matches against the University of San Francisco.

Junior Varsity Squad Standing In Shadows

RAM BLINGS

By Mike Duggan

Decker's Cagers Vie With Rugged Preps

WHILE THE Golden Gate Conference Champion Ram basketball team is getting all the recognition due them, not much has been said of Curt Decker's Junior Varsity squad.

In past seasons, it has been very easy for the city high schools to play City College JV's and come away with an easy victory. Such is not the case this year.

Decker has found time off from his jobs as Block SF adviser and head swimming coach to get together a team that has beaten all of the top high school clubs in the city.

MANY OF THE team's members are former high school stars who just couldn't stand up to the likes of Willie Wise, Gene Williams and Darling Thomas and therefore were cut off the varsity.

Some players joined to keep in shape for other sports, and others joined just because they like the game of basketball. No other sport at the college offers a junior varsity, but since only 12 men make the varsity, Decker feels it is needed.

After 20 starts, the team showed 13 wins, five losses and two ties. That's right, two ties! They both occurred in a doubleheader before the recent Contra Costa game on the Ram court.

First, the Rams met Wilson High, and tied them at 30-30 on a field goal by Adam Banks in the last seconds. Next, Washington High stepped on the court to face the JV's, and the Rams came from behind to tie it up on a clutch free throw by Les Giley.

BANKS IS A TOP sprinter for the track team who consistently runs the 100-yard dash under 10 seconds flat and was a former guard and teammate of Wise at Balboa High two years ago. Giley, a real basketball veteran, also helps out Sid Phelan by being varsity statistician.

The team used to practice every day at the beginning of the season, but now work out about twice a week, and usually play their games right before the varsity home games. Once, they did accompany the varsity to Sacramento and lost by a point to the Sacramento City College JV's.

The backcourt is usually made up of Jeff Barker and Steve Bell. Barker, also a baseball star, led the AAA lightweights in scoring last year while at Lincoln High. Bell, who along with Barker is a fine ball handler and shooter, played his high school ball under John McGrath at Washington.

Lem Wynne, Gil Gordon and Sam Holmes were high school teammates of Bell, and have helped out all year for the JV's. Holmes a three-sport high school star has a high game of 15 so far this season.

The scoring is usually balanced because of the equal abilities of most of the men. High game for the season came from forward John Casey, who hit 30 in a win over Poly. Casey also scored 21 against his former high school, Sacred Heart.

Ray Belcher and James Smith are two members who dropped off at the end of the fall semester. Belcher, a good center, was the most consistent of the Rams while he played. Smith, a flashy guard, now devotes his basketball time to coaching a local grade school team.

OTHER MEMBERS include Wendell Blake, Philip Adams and Bill Berger. Berger played for a year and a half on the varsity, before injuries and other difficulties forced him off. He helped the Rams varsity clinch the conference crown last year by hitting two free throws in the final 10 seconds to beat contra Costa, 71-69.

He also filled in very capably after Williams was forced out of the lineup with a knee injury. In Berger's first JV action, he popped in 20 points to pace a win against his old high school, Lowell.

Council Studies Birth Control

By Lori Pitman

Everything from birth control to street car fares was attacked by Student Council last week.

Amid feminine giggles and blushing males, Student Council passed a resolution to investigate and determine this college's need for a birth control program.

Soph Councilman Paul Shuttleworth presented the resolution to council as an additional duty for the Special Research committee. The committee will work in conjunction with the Planned Parent Association to determine the feasibility of such a program.

RESENTMENT SHOWN by some students last semester concerning the idea of having campus police stationed in the cafeteria revealed itself in a resolution presented by Soph Councilman Rich Christensen.

It was resolved that instead of having campus police patrolling the cafeteria, two would be placed in the office of the cafeteria for the "protection" rather than the "supervision" of students.

Because of class schedules, many students are still on campus after 3 p.m. Frosh Councilwoman Pat Fiuren proposed a resolution to amend Statler Wing's hours to benefit these late-class students. It was passed and provided that Statler Wing would remain open until 5 p.m. and if needed that these hours be extended accordingly.

A STEP TOWARD better student-faculty communication came in the form of a resolution to set up a Student-Faculty Lounge in the room at the southwest corner of Statler Wing. Soph Councilman Marty Watten submitted this with an additional clause to appoint a special committee to "set up, govern and supervise the establishment and use of the room."

ANOTHER PROBLEM THAT touches much of the student body (that of just getting to classes on time) was presented to council by Councilman Shuttleworth. Anyone who rides the K streetcar to and from campus during the rush hours has recognized the "cattle car" resemblance.

Shuttleworth, as a committee of one, upon the recommendation of council will ask the San Francisco Municipal Railway to re-evaluate its service to this college with hopes of getting additional buses or streetcars to relieve the overflow and eliminate student tardiness because of congestion.

Another recommendation to be submitted to the S. F. Municipal Railway is that of providing reduced rates for all registered students, regardless of age. Associated Student President Joe Parnell will undertake this task.

THE RIGHT OF AN individual to publish an independent paper on campus was approved by a 12-0-1 vote. Lawrence Lazore, editor of City College Critic, had asked for the council's approval, not of his paper but of a student's right to publish independently on campus.

Sid Phelan, varsity basketball coach, and Faculty Adviser Arthur Samuels attended the meeting February 27 to present their separate requests for budget allocations. Council voted the recommended $941.50 for the basketball team and $1127.50 for the pep band, song girls, yell leaders and faculty adviser to attend the State Basketball Tournament.

The tournament will be held in Santa Maria, California, March 9, 10 and 11. Any money not used will be returned to the Student-Council fund.

Another budget request was presented and passed which totaled $387.27 to be used to purchase equipment for the taping of Student Council meetings. This equipment will also be used for "certain vitally important council meetings" which will be held outdoors or in the college theater for the benefit of any interested students.

STUDENT COUNCIL resolved to consider boycotting the California Junior College Student Government Association State Convention this semester and has sent copies of the resolution to member colleges.

The reason for the boycott is that workshop chairmen for the convention are being chosen only from Southern California colleges. Council felt that this was unfair treatment and that all colleges should have the right to compete for workshop chairmanships.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 64 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1967 NUMBER 2

Draft 'Inequities' Subject Of KQED Panel Discussion

By Viggo Petersen

Does the present draft system serve in the national interest?

This was the subject of a provocative and somewhat firey discussion on the draft which appeared last Wednesday on National Educational Television, carried locally by KQED.

The discussion was made up of a group of five speakers which included General Lewis B. Hershey, director of the Selective Service.

Eugene Groves of the National Student Association, two eastern educators and Bruce Chapman, former editorial writer, made up the program.

THE DISCUSSION BEGAN with talk of deficiencies in the present draft system. Chapman, who wrote for the New York Herald Tribune, had few inhibitions as to how he felt about the entire setup. He said:

"I think the congress should conduct an immediate investigation into the present draft system. The fact is, the draft as it exists today, is a terribly inefficient, incapable, inept system of servitude and for the most part can offer a young man absolutely nothing in the way of training him for a career which will be useful to him in later life.

"Never in the history of this country," Chapman declared, "have young people so vehemently opposed military service.

"Congress has been extremely derelict in conducting investigations into the draft."

Hershey, during the course of the program, either denied or ignored many of Chapman's accusations but did admit to certain inefficiencies within the service. He said, however, that he felt the service was not any more inefficient than many other public institutions "such as our schools."

"We must preserve the country!" said the general, adding that the draft must exist because "recruitment drives since 1939 have been a total failure."

THE SUBJECT OF establishing a professional army with increased incentives was then brought up, but Hershey said he did not approve of such a program because the army would be made up of nothing more than hired mercenaries.

"Each man must serve his country," the general said. "I have four children at home. Many times arguments erupt as to who is going to take out the garbage. Nobody wants to do it, everybody tried to avoid the uncomfortable task, but the garbage must be taken out, and someone, whether he likes it or not, is going to have to do it.

IN DISCUSSING THE military as a potential training ground for individuals having difficulty elsewhere, Chapman voiced considerable dissatisfaction with military training programs.

"The army takes a man into the service and trains him to be a baker, for example. He is not trained to be a baker because he wants to be, or because his aptitude is suited for it, but because there is a vacancy in that particular field and the man is handy.

"After he leaves the service, the man goes back to welding sheet metal or whatever else he was doing before being in the service.

"Why don't we attempt to set up an adequate system of civilian training schools?" he asked.

Statler Adds Hours As Police Leave

By Ed Holmes

The hours of Statler Wing "have been extended and the police patrols have been removed from Smith Hall," as of today, according to Associated Student President Joe Parnell.

"In accordance with the proposals outlined here last week, we have more than doubled the hours of Statler Wing," he added. "It will now be open from 11 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., a total of eight and one half hours as opposed to the original four hours. Further, we have caused the police to be withdrawn from Smith Hall.

"From personal experience, I can tell you this last move will be as much of a relief to the police as it will be to the other students. However," Parnell cautioned, "there has been opposition to this, and there are some persons concerned that the cafeteria will now become a riot-torn battleground.

"The responsible person is angered by this lack of faith but must realize that we, the students, are the only ones who can change their pessimistic attitude. I'm certain that the relief of being able to eat lunch without being watched will be more than enough reward for maintaining order."

Spring Enrollment Up; 8500 Daytime Students

Although not an adolescent, this college seems to be growing like one.

Springtime usually shows a falling off of student enrollment, according to Gertrude Somerville, registrar. This semester, though the figures aren't all in, isn't showing the too-much-of-a-slack.

The 7886 total day-time enrollment for last spring has been topped by the incomplete 8500 figure of this semester's day-time enrollment. Even the last two fall semesters don't have this large a gap.

Miss Somerville indicated that some students might have returned because of the draft, the G.I. Bill or because other colleges might be tightening admissions.

Whatever the reason, population is on the up-grade on this campus.

The Dime Image Sparks Generosity

NO, IT'S NOT RAINING dimes from heaven—nor pennies either—although Guardsman photographer Chip Stevens makes it look that way in his shot of the March of Dimes rally 'round the Ram February 23. Note student in foreground determining his donation.

Mile Of Dimes Reaches Goal, Raises Over $400

Another successful Mile of Dimes drive was undertaken here February 23, by Phi Beta Delta fraternity with help from Phi Beta Rho sorority and the Big Brother and the Holding Company, acknowledged Robert Quigley, the fraternity's faculty sponsor.

Twenty-five members of Phi Beta Delta, bolstered by the cooperation of ten members of Phi Beta Rho, did their best to raise money on campus from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. that day, and their pains were not in vain.

An all-time high of more than $400 was collected as compared with an amount under $400 last semester. As a result, some observers speculated that this indicates that with more participation by the sororities in conjunction with the fraternities, more effective service projects would result.

Fortunately, the drive was held on the same day which College Hour is scheduled to entertain and it did. With the sole financing of the Phi Beta Delta fraternity, Big Brother and the Holding Company drew hundreds of spectators —and unsuspecting donors to the Mile of Dimes fund—with their wild music.

During the drive, a strip of masking tape was laid the whole length of the hill between Smith Hall and Science Hall and dimes from the collection were placed on their back, side by side, to signify reaching a mile in length as the title of the drive indicated.

All the money collected was turned over to the March of Dimes Foundation.—J.H.

John Rousselot Explains Bircher Aims

By Glynn Petrie

More "individual responsibility" and "less governmental control" is one of the main aims of the John Birch Society, according to John Rousselot, national director of public relations for the society, who spoke before a capacity audience at the theater March 2.

Rousselot emphatically reiterated that, "We (the society) are as much opposed to the Ku Klux Klan and the Nazi Party as we are to Communism" and disavowed any knowledge of membership of such elements in his organization.

The former Southern Californian Congressman also stated that, contrary to popular belief, the John Birch Society is not a political organization but essentially an educational one. He pointed out that the society does not advocate any particular candidate or party and recommends that members vote only as they feel they should.

THE BIRCH SOCIETY, membership in which is open to all groups, races and social levels, attempts to "...combat the forces of collectivism in this country," meaning increased governmental control. The society also seeks to counteract the effects of 'apathy" and "non-involvement" which characterize a large segment of the American population.

"THE COMMUNISTS basically operate under a program of deceit," said Rousselot, and in so doing have perpetrated a grossly distorted attack on the Birch Society whom they consider a threat. Rousselot cited editorials in The Worker, the American Communist news organ.

Noting that the Communists have attempted to destroy family unity in such places as Cuba and Red China, Rousselot stated that to the Communists, the state is God, and that the Birch Society "...has tried to restore loyalty to God, country and family," through its efforts since its founding in 1958.

Counteracting arguments that the Birch Society is secretive or an underground organization, Rousselot said that there have been several invited congressional investigations of the society, none of which has found any evidence to substantiate these claims.

Rousselot stated that the John Birch Society believes that President Kennedy was assassinated by a Communist conspiracy and that he feels the facts will bear out that the Communists use any person, group or organization to further their aims even though these groups may be unaware of their contribution to the Communists growth.

Discounting the belief that Communism is the wave of the future, Rousselot stated, "We feel that the world is ready to throw off the tyranny and terror of Communism," but education is necessary to accomplish this and it is this education toward which the Birchers direct their efforts.

DURING THE QUESTION and answer period, Rousselot was asked why the emerging African nations had, for the most part, chosen a socialistic form of government rather than one based on free enterprise and capitalism.

He replied that democracy and parliamentary procedure is dependent on education of the people in order to work, whereas socialism and governmental control is not, and that, therefore, these nations had chosen socialism as the most workable form of government, for the time being at least.

The statement was made by one of the audience that the removal of Chief Justice Earl Warren from the Supreme Court, which the Birch Society advocates, by the Senate, as is the procedure, would be a political move rather than an educational one.

Rousselot replied that this could be true, but that if it were, there should certainly be an improvement in the members of the Senate—to which there was large applause.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students
City College of San Francisco

ACP Associated Collegiate Press

Vol. 64, No. 2 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1967 Page 2

Two Sides Of Coin: Removal(?) Of Campus Police From Cafe

STUDENT COUNCIL last week passed a resolution stating that "the Campus Police no longer patrol the cafeteria" and that "two members of the Campus Police be stationed in the . . . cafeteria for the protection but not the supervision of students."

Although the resolution was passed, it still awaits a final O.K. from the college president, Louis G. Conlan, which, according to Joe Parnell, Associated Student president, will hopefully be given today.

COUNCIL PASSED THE RESOLUTION with the arguments: ". . . the members of this institution resent the police in the cafe . . . the students have proved themselves (during registration, finals, etc.) and the campus police can better serve the students by directing traffic, patrolling parking lots, etc."

The resolution, as stated, is worth merit, and it is generally agreed that it will be on a trial basis (even though this is not stated in the resolution) and is based upon a solid argument. Even the police, as stated, would be glad to comply.

BUT THERE ARE THOSE WHO DISAGREE with the resolution and who are also on solid ground.

John Dunn, faculty member in charge of the cafeteria, while not planning to block Student Council's resolution, still believes that we should "Thank God we have the police in the cafeteria."

Dunn feels that the campus police provide a much-needed service for the cafeteria.

Dunn has said that the main reason for having uniformed police in the cafeteria is purely economic. The tables in the cafeteria are usually cleaned and ready for the custodians by 2 p.m., but if the campus police do not ask students to close off sections of the cafeteria earlier, then extra help will have to be hired (probably resulting in a rise in prices).

SOME "SUPERVISION" IS NEEDED, and various methods have been tried in the past which were ineffective (faculty have tried, civil service employees, and students have tried, but it appears that students listen to a uniform more readily).

It would also appear that the word "supervision" has acquired unnecessary connotations.

Student council is right in feeling that students have a right at least to be able to test their theory. It will be interesting to observe the final verdict.

A Common Trail

CONGESTION IN THE EARLY MORNING often stacks up traffic on the freeway off-ramp to City College, as courageous 8 a.m. student drivers know. THIS SEMESTER AT THE COLLEGE, the number of parking permits issued as of now is lower than last semester's. Only 1460 students out of 8495 students have been issued parking permits. The number issued will probably increase since the campus police have started to give parking citations to all students who do not have permits, yet use the student parking lots.
EVEN THOUGH THE TOTAL number of permits issued is less than last semester's, parking space in the early morning is never "abundant," and one wonders if perhaps the sign in the picture above would be more beneficial to drivers if it faced the other way.
—Guardsman photo by Richard Sandino

Labelled And Recorded

'Neath The Cloak Of Pop Shrills

By Marty Arbunich

NOW IS THE TIME for all poetically inclined instructors of literature to seal the hatch to poetic antiquity, and bend an ear to the lyrical excellence of the new generation.

Today's novel breed of pop lyricists, adored by teenagers and generally abhorred by adults, is ordinarily more than just a cluster of weird-beard musicians grinding out a conglomeration of ear-piercing vibrations.

In addition, contemporary pop songs strive to express the feelings, pleasures, regrets and ways of life of today's people, and there seems to be no better place than the classroom for the analysis of this popular prosody.

THE PROJECT, already initiated in many schools, has a way of captivating the interest of the student since part of his own life is under observation.

Paul Simon, the song-writing half of the famous Simon and Garfunkel team, is one of the leaders of the pack on the pop scene.

Simon's excellent Sounds Of Silence, I Am A Rock and 7 o'Clock News/Silent Night are among his many works suitable for classroom analysis.

THE LATTER SELECTION transmits a most unusual inter-sensation when heard from the disc.

San Francisco's own Jefferson Airplane, a rock group headed by song writer Marty Balin, has produced some very thought-provoking material.

Their latest album, Surrealistic Pillow, features three pieces well worth scrutinizing—Plastic Fantastic Lover, White Rabbit and 3/5 Of A Mile In 10 Seconds.

A RELATIVELY UNKNOWN psychedelic group, The Mothers Of Invention, a far-out, grotesque-looking bunch of hippies, not only has a distinct 'freak out' sound, but the lyrics actually have crude meaning concealed beneath all the shrieking of their LSD chants.

The Mothers' first album, entitled Freak Out! has one out, Who Are The Brain Police?, which studies the psychological experiences of a person who has just undergone facial surgery.

Bizarre? Yes, but what imagery!

JUST A FEW other selections appropriate for classroom study are Eleanor Rigby by the Beatles; Donovan's Sunshine Superman and Epistle To Dippy; Mother's Little Helper, by the Rolling Stones; Mr. Tambourine Man, Eight Miles High and Fifth Dimension by the Byrds, and Dylan's Like A Rolling Stone.

An easy way of diagnosing such pop tunes is through published folios.

In many cases, though, the inspiration of a poem is lost on the printed page, and can only be retained between the grooves of the recording.

THE POP CHARTS have been filled with superbly poetic songs since the beginning of the 'long hair' generation a few years ago, but, for the most part, their significant lines are veiled under the turbulent frequencies of guitar and drum action.

However, teenagers continue to listen to this form of musical poetry 10 to 20 hours a week and perpetually fail to catch its lyrical beauty.

Here's a job for an instructor.

THE POEMS of Frost, Longfellow and Cummings are of a forgotten world; it's Simon, Lennon-McCartney and Sebastian, among other poets flying high in today's jet age, who communicate messages capable of bonding the link between poetry and reality.

Since the works of these passe artists appear to be somewhat incompatible with the literary thinking of students today, shouldn't any improved medium of communication between instructor and student be worthy of consideration?

American Foreign Policies Draw Fire In Sand Pebbles

By Steve Hara

"Action, emotionally charged and controversial" well describe The Sand Pebbles.

An American gunboat patrols Chinese rivers during the Chinese national revolution of 1926. The USS San Pablo represents the pox of foreign domination and corruption and the men, who call themselves "sand pebbles" are the exploiters.

For years, white power enjoyed superiority over the weaker Chinese republic, but now the "slope-heads," as the Chinese were called, intended to change all that.

THIS IS the setting and the audience is introduced early in the film and quite frankly with the slothful and arrogant attitudes of the American sailors aboard the ship. It is plain that the sympathies are to lie with the Chinese, for even though some of their actions are morally wrong they are the oppressed.

Producer-director Robert Wise makes it clear that the Americans are the heavies with the motif, "How would you feel if Chinese gunboats patrolled the Mississippi?" Inspecting the corruption and bigotry of the "pebbles," the question presents a biting and unpleasant speculation into whether Americans have changed since '26.

The set designers and builders have bolstered the story with effective backdrops that provide some insight into the misery of the Chinese and the reasons behind their hate. The realism and enormity of scenes depicting marketplaces and crowded streets, brothels and the squalor of everyday living create the feeling of depression for it is made so easy for the audience to identify with the situation.

WITH THE SITUATION formed, enter the major character, Jake Holman, played by Steve McQueen. Holman is a peaceful man, living only to operate the ship's steam engines, who is sucked into the vortex of war and brutality and who must fight to stay alive while trying to justify his actions to give them meaning.

He is impulsive, insecure and introverted; he is brave but not stupid. His simple manner leaves no room for politics or protocol.

Other characters are introduced, but the only one of any consequence is Richard Crenna who plays Collins, the captain.

Collins is the living advertisement of American ideals and morals. He knows very well what goes on during shore leave but chooses to ignore it —his country can do no wrong, especially to the Chinese. He also knows better than to try to stop what goes on for he knows his men; "You (speaking to his exec) and I have authority only as long as we don't try to exercise it."

HE AND HOLMAN are almost immediate enemies, for Holman knows what the status quo is but keeps violating it. Collins isn't about to muddy the American reputation, flag or his ship because one man can't control himself. The problem is he wishes he could be the same as Holman, but his position of responsibility prevents it.

So the story moves on, and director Wise handles his movie with a serious and intentive tone.

South Vietnam Enters Tourist Trade Market

By John Janigian

Tourism is an important industry to many nations in the world. We often take note of posters advertising the leisurely life of Rio de Janiero or tempting us to bask in the sun on the Italian Riviera.

New nations continually join the ranks of the tourist spots. The most recent addition to the list of spots to visit is South Vietnam. It is the country's hope to attract tourists, other than North Vietnamese or Chinese it would seem, to spend money and buy their products.

On a recent program aired by radio station KNEW, announcer Van Amburg read excerpts from a brochure sent out by the government of South Vietnam. The brochure claimed that only $3 million was spent by tourists last year because of the war but it was hoped that an increase was to be gained this year.

The country is beautiful but goes wasted, for the most part. Some of this wasted splendor is in the villages of the Central Highlands which, although they switch hands from the allies by day to the Viet Cong by night, grow the world's best fruits and vegetables.

South Vietnam, as most of Southeast Asia, is famous for its fine tiger and elephant hunting, but since the escalation of the war, guides have become difficult to locate. This suspension of hunting has led to an increase in the tiger population, which in turn has led the beasts to maneating.

The brochure continues with a description of the Paris of the East, Saigon. Its beauty is incomparable throughout the world.

The city has many interesting sights and a delightful nightlife which includes two luxurious hotels with rooftop bars, one on the north side of the city and the other on the south side.

Patrons can sip drinks at the large view windows and watch American helicopters strafing Viet Cong positions in the jungle across the Saigon River or watch the splendor of the surface-to-surface rockets battling the same elusive enemy.

South Vietnam's plea to tourists is sincere, and the country is one of magnificent sights, but the little country's hopes of becoming a tourist spot will just have to wait. The trend for vacations is to find peaceful spots for relaxation.

Vietnam offers excitement and risk, just the thing for retired mercenaries.

On The RAMpage

Grades And Draft Pose Moral Strife

By Connie Skipitares

A COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY professor, proposing that all male students receive an A in courses in order to beat the draft, has urged all faculty members to intensify their teaching efforts to "permit" students to "earn" the A grades, citing the illegal nature of the war in Vietnam as justification for refusing to comply with Selective Service policies.

The professor's statement was soundly rebuffed by other faculty members at the college who reasoned that "any institution of learning, foremostly a college or university should not foul up its educational system to elude government orders," which would seem to be a common reaction in any academic community (although the idea might register some merit for some of us).

Realistically speaking, however, a letter grade, in both war and peace, should be earned rather than given away. A grade that is not earned hurts the school, the teacher, the public and, most of all, the student himself.

THE SCHOOL is hurt when a graduate applies for a job and is turned down because he isn't qualified, despite an impressive academic record.

The teacher's integrity suffers when he gives out the grade; his ability to evaluate a student's work is questioned.

Society suffers when an institution turns out a student who has floated through college without any effort.

BUT THE STUDENT suffers the most; he has spent his money (or his parents' money) on an education he never received.

Yet, regardless of attitudes toward the war, the Pentagon's recent lowering of mental standards for the draft does bring undue pressure upon every member of the academic community.

(Being a woman, this columnist is automatically exempt from the draft, but by merely attending a coeducational college my grade average would unjustifiably be affected by less-stringent measures on men students.)

BY DEFENSE SECRETARY Robert McNamara's announeement of his plans to take 40,000 men by June 30 this year and 100,000 next year, the terror of grades has been escalated to the point where it has brought unnecessary pressure in a student's attempt to receive a college education.

The draft is obviously causing a distortion of the educational process by forcing students to be more concerned with grades than with real educational achievement.

Grades were never and can never be an adequate measure of the knowledge and academic worth of a student, and the assumption that grades determine human quality and that quality is exempt from destruction is unjust.

AT ANY RATE, the escalation of the grading standard might mean that this year we save students who have averaged better, the following year those with B or better until there is none left except an elite.

Just as it is, college life provides enough pressures without the help of any undue outside forces.

Either way you look at it, the dilemma still exists: Surrender to the "whims of the state," or try to beat the questionable demands at the expense of education.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1967

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 246.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... RICHARD HEINTZ
Managing Editor ..... Connie Skipitares
Staff Editor ..... Marty Arbunich
News Editor ..... Steven Hara
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan
Contributing Writers ..... William G. Pates, Peter Dorn, Bea Takeuchi
Editorial Assistants: John Janigian, John LeTourneau, Viggo Petersen.
Reporters: Doug Boston, Diana Brand, Marc Clarkson, Timothy Duncan, John Hannach, Doreen Ng, Philip Pianezzi, Lori Pittman, Ron Wong.
Cub Reporters: Carol Brett, Berry Brown, Albert Chi, Dan Coughlin, Darryl Cox, Bob Ferrando, Rebecca Garcia, Jeffrey Hoffhine, Ed Holmes, Ron Lent, George Ostrander, Glynn Petrie, Lani Silver, Lee Smith, Charles Stevenson, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf, Franklin Gadson, George Kannengieser.
Photographers: Bob Briscoe, chief; John C. Renz, Truman Tong, Jose Firestie, Richard Sandino, Mac F. Gosling, Rich Spitalteri, Ron O'Brien, Chris Rozales, Chip Stevens, Jim Tseng.
Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse
Member Associated Collegiate Press 1966-1967

The Observer

By William G. Pates

PERHAPS the greatest hypocricy of America's democratic society is that it is decidedly undemocratic. It would appear that the system of government in this country constructed by the Founding Fathers is just too idealistic to operate effectively in anything other than an absolute idealistic society.

The present state of affairs in regard to the misconduct of members of the Congress, represents just one aspect of the deteriorating processes underway in the nation's purest representative democratic government. Even more destructive are the obstructionist elements entrenched in positions of power in the chairmanships of House and Senate committees who are able to block the will of the majority and suppress attempts to get meaningful legislation to the floor of the House and Senate chambers.

OBVIOUSLY, THE JEFFERSONS, Madisons and the rest who conceived the particulars of the legislative structure and procedure had great faith in the integrity, responsibility, idealism and ability of their descendants in government to carry on in the same spirit of service they had initiated.

Conceivably they would be greatly disappointed today if they knew to time how representative democracy had become.

The trouble with our politics in America is that there are too much politics involved in our politics. This is especially relevant concerning the four hundred and thirty-five members of the House of Representatives.

BECAUSE OF THE short term of office of Congressmen, and the initiation of appropriations bills in the House, they are greatly susceptible to committee chairmen of various powerful committees.

Individual Representatives' votes on legislation on the floor of the House and in committee are open to the temptations of lobbyists and constituent business firm offers for financial and other means of support in upcoming campaigns for re-election or gifts of cash or property. Some use their positions to advance their own financial interests or those of their family or friends through government contracts, amendments to legislation, which affect specialized industries, and influencing others to take steps which would carry out the conflict.

LETHARGIC OLD TYRANTS like "Judge" Howard W. Smith, former chairman of the House Rules committee, and Wilbur Mills, chairman of Ways and Means and the Senate's Post Office and Public Works committees are the best conceivable reasons for procedural and administrative reform of the Congress.

Rules and Ways and Means are the heartland of the obstructionist elements concerning legislation while the Post Office and Public Works committees are the mainstay of the election pork barrel. Proeedure is essential to justice in legislation. Members must regard committee chairs not as personal prereauisites but as opportunites to administer for the public good. Their arbitrary actions thwart the efforts of all the rest.

PETTY CHISELING, use of funds for private pleasure, relatives on the payroll, is tolerated by the Congress. It will be controlled only when expense accounts come under public scrutiny and that's not about to happen.

Congress can't condone corruption within itself—only by purging itself can Congress convince the public that it is capable of governing in the interests of society. However, members haven't demanded investigations of alleged fraud and corruption on the part of other members, thereby perpetuating their tainted public image.

The first stone has been cast time and again over the years and it has been cast again with the censuring of Adam Clayton Powell. Yet members are guilty of flagrant inaction, inconsistency and derelection of responsibility in censuring members. Only six have been ousted since 1789, and Powell is the first since Socialist Vincent Berger was ousted in 1921.

Unwillingness by Congress to face the dangers inherent in political corruption helps destroy the spirit and essence of democracy which makes this country great.

Red Chinese Mission Provokes Demand For Communication

By Connie Skipitares

In the summer of 1965, Australian-born San Francisco journalist Lisa Hobbs completed a remarkable 21-day journey into "forbidden" Red China.

Inscribing her name in the annals of journalism history, she was the first newspaperwoman on the staff of an American paper to enter the Chinese mainland since the Communist victory in 1949—a feat praised by political figures both here and abroad for its staunch courage and conviction.

"I wanted to see with my own eyes the face of the new China and I wanted to come back and tell my own readers what I, and no one else, thought of this most thrusting and populous nation on earth, which rates less press coverage than a grade B movie in my own country," she reflected in a recent interview here describing the brief sojourn.

FOR THE DETERMINED Mrs. Hobbs, the inception of the Red Chinese undertaking early in 1963 marked the beginning of a lengthy two-year correspondence with "some hon-existant firms" and even pleas to Premier Chou En-lai in a desperate attempt to establish "some kind of communication" within the Red territory.

Mrs. Hobbs revealed how the "occupational hazard" of being employed as a journalist for an American newspaper (despite the fact that she is not an American citizen but a resident alien of Australia) was in grave danger of jeopardizing her chances for obtaining a visa to enter the Red mainland.

Consequently, she found it necessary to claim her occupation as that of a mere "writer," not a journalist, a "free-lancer," unemployed and a permanent resident of Sydney, Australia.

"BY THIS TIME" she conceded, "I decided that if I couldn't get into China legally, I'd have to get in illegally!"

Finally two years and much red tape later, Mrs. Hobbs crossed the Red border at Lo Wu-Schumchun as an "Australian tourist," accompanied by a party of seven other persons of similar declaration. "Australian citizens who pose as mere tourists," she explained, "have no difficulty getting visas good for three to four weeks' travel in China."

According to Mrs. Hobbs, these tourists, with the possible exception of a handful of Japanese correspondents, are the only foreigners allowed within the confines of the Red Chinese border today.

Once past the stringent inspection of the Red border guards, Mrs. Hobbs travelled 4000 miles deep into the heart of "forbidden" Red territory. From the moment she walked across the Lo Wu-Schumchun bridge into another world, until her recrossing of that bridge into the safety of Hong Kong, she had the opportunity to record what she saw and heard and experienced.

Amidst a land of teeming millions, a land smeared with alien distrust and saturated with blaring anti-American imperialism propaganda, Mrs. Hobbs lived and breathed the rhythm of the throbbing Red republic through the eyes of a reporter.

She was delightfully impressed by many facets of the Chinese culture and gruesomely stirred by others.

"THE CRUDEST AWAKENING" which she experienced was the realization that the most dangerous element in today's world is the state of mutual ignorance which exists between the peoples of the United States and mainland China.

"The lives and welfare of Americans are influenced to a surprising extent by events and circumstances within this giant nation which has set up its own special Chinese wall against 'American imperialists.'

"The silence between us is total, the means of communication nonexistent. Any possible enlightment in our darkness must be eagerly welcomed," she philosophized.

TWENTY YEARS AGO Americans thought of China exclusively as a recipient of the:r missionary efforts, but today, a land swelling with the world's largest population, she has captured our every channel of attention. It has been pointed out that even if China were to lose one half of her present population, she would still retain a population greater than all of the western powers combined.

"Now, when she stirs, the whole world takes notice."

Perhaps the greatest single pressure imposed upon the Chinese citizen at the present time can be witnesed within the framework of the proletarian cultural revolution, a commonly-labeled "wall-poster" revolution roused by Party Chairman-Leader Mao Tse-tung.

Chinese husbands and wives are being told to abandon love as a "petty bourgeois prejudice: a defect of capitalism," and build themselves up ideologically by battering one another with criticism.

"Love is a psychopathic occupation which wastes time and energy."

"We must stop wasting time on dreams and sentimental talk, but use it for learning Chairman Mao's works."

"Personal life is a typical bourgeois notion . . . it should give way to political needs."

ALL THESE ARE familiar excerpts from Maoist writings.

It was also suggested that old-fashioned wedding parties be replaced by sing-songs of Mao's slogans. Wedding guests should give a picture of Mao, Mao buttons and collections of his writings to the bride and groom before they "go off," to improve one another with mutual criticism.

When not channeling their energies into criticizing, loving Mao or stepping up production, the Chinese may use leisure time to attend a popular Friday night movie of the U.S. aggression in Vietnam. Sundays are usually reserved for picnics to the "Great Wall."

Tutorial Program To Support City's Underprivileged Areas

The tutorial program at City College, which has received great support, according to Frank Borden, head of the tutorial program, has begun its first semester of functioning independently of San Francisco State College.

Last semester, the tutorial program worked in accordance with the policies introduced by the San Francisco State College Tutorial Program. The aim of the City College Tutorial Program is essentially to aid some children in the poverty areas of the city educationally. The program stresses the importance of assisting those children who lack the real desire to learn.

Borden explained that recruiting of new tutors has been highly successful and the program is still taking more applicants. At present, the tutorial program has initiated some 40 tutors, ten more than last semester's total.

On February 27, the tutors made the first trip to the centers where they have been assigned. Four of the centers where the tutors have been assigned are Haight-Ashbury, Fillmore, and two Mission district centers. These centers serve as the meeting place for the tutors and children of the various communities.

Parents who wish to meet the tutors may assemble at the local center of their district, Borden said. Any tutoring problems that arise are discussed during meetings at the centers, he added.

The job of the tutors involves a time commitment. Each tutor is on the job approximately six hours a week minimum. This includes four hours of actual tutoring and two hours time getting to know the persons involved in the program.—D.B.

Soletti Chosen 'Man Of Year'

Former Associated Student President Jim Soletti was chosen the Area 6 winner of the Bank of America "Junior College Man Of The Year" award February 28.

On February 14, Soletti and current Associated Student Vice President Helen Ferentinos were chosen by a six-member faculty panel to represent this college in the area competition for the "Junior College Man And Woman Of The Year," held at the College of San Mateo.

As a result of his victory, Soletti will advance into the statewide competition to be held at a later date.

As of now, Soletti and Miss Ferentinos are the reeipients of $50 each. State winners receive $1000 each.

According to James Wyatt, assistant dean of student activities, contestants for the award are chosen on the basis of their contributions both to the college and the community and their scholastic reeord.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

● Religion Is Human

Editor:

Just because he is a Catholic priest and the chaplain of the local Newman Club, one might expect Father Krapf's lecture series, Personality Dynamics and Religion, an attempt to lead everyone to the One True Faith.

Many of us who attended his first lecture were pleasantly surprised to learn that it's not! Religion turns out to be a vaguely theistic humanism compatible with almost any form of religion or nonreligion.

Personality Dynamics is a blend of Erich Fromm, group therapy and orthodox psychology. It comes off well both because the subjects are of general interest and because Father Krapf is an excellent teacher.

Maurine Ness

Best-Dressed Coeds Compete Tomorrow

Tryouts for the Best-Dressed Coed will be in its second round during College Hour tomorrow, when 22 semifinalists will compete for an opportunity to model at the Associated Woman Student Fashion Show and Tea.

The semifinalists will be selected from 40 coeds who participated in the preliminary tryouts last week.

The Best-Dressed Coed on campus will be chosen from the finalists who model at the Fashion Show.

Ability to manage a clothes budget, individuality in use of colors and accessories, a suitable campus "look," appropriate use of makeup, poise, good figure, good posture and good grooming are the criteria for selection of the best-dressed coed, Miss Wong said.

Work-Study Jobs Available For 100 Qualified Students

Fifty students have been processed and are now participating in a college work-study program that was made available by the college placement center. According to Joseph A. Amori, placement director, there are still 100 new jobs left for students who can qualify.

The qualifications for these jobs are four-fold, Amori said. The applicant must be an American citizen, be enrolled in 12 units of study, possess a 2.0 grade point average, and show proof of economic need. Job openings exist both on and off the campus.

The kinds of persons especially needed for the work-study program are typists, stenographers, recreation workers, general clerks, teacher aids, and physical and biological science majors, Amori emphasized.

Many off-campus, part-time jobs are open too, he stated. The classification for these jobs includes service station attendants, delivery drivers, stock clerks, typists, stenographers, accountants, gardeners, cooks and special subjects tutors. Experience is preferred for these jobs, but outstanding applicants are usually given consideration by employers.

Summer jobs have begun to trickle into the office, Amori said.

Students interested in resort work, public and private camp work, engineering, touring, hotel and restaurant specialties, sales and clerical positions and recreation were advised to file their applications immediately in S-188.

Salinas Conclave Discusses Reagan Tuition Proposal

The Area 6 conference, scheduled for Saturday, has formed a special discussion group to consider Governor Ronald Reagan's proposed tuition plan.

Area 6, comprising the two-year colleges in the Bay Area and the coast to Monterey, gathers together each semester to discuss and form resolutions to be taken up at the statewide convention.

These resolutions are presented and voted upon there and represent the general opinion of all the two-year colleges in the state.

"THIS YEAR, besides the standing discussion groups, tuition and the problems it presents will be discussed in a speeial group and promises to be the big issue of the conference," Helen Ferentinos, Associated Student vice president, said.

About 20 colleges are in Area 6 and, the conference handles a speeial problem every semester. Last semester it was the draft. Standing workshops include the President's workshop; student activities; judiciary and philosophy and function of student government.

This year's meeting is to be held at Hartnell College in Salinas. City College will be represented by a delegation of 20 headed by AS President Joe Parnell and Miss Ferentinos.

ANY RESOLUTIONS passed in the general assembly of the one-day conference will be taken to the California Junior College Student Government Association conference to be held in Los Angeles later in April.

If the state conference passes any resolutions, they are taken to Sacramento where a lobbist lets the opinions of these colleges be known to the State legislators.

"We want the activities of the conference known to the whole student body at large, but a surprisingly large number of students don't even know such a conference even takes place," Miss Ferentinos said.

"ANY STUDENT who wants to participate would be very welcome to sign up for the conference, although it's too late to do so now. The delegates are chosen on a first-come, first-served basis and are student government representatives by virtue of the fact that they are the only ones, as a rule, who apply," she explained.

"We hope to see a change. There's only one student outside of student government going and we would like to see more in the future," she stated optimistically.

The one student is Guardsman reporter Ed Holmes. —S.H.

Fichten Trio In C-Hour Concert Debut Tomorrow

The recently formed Fichten String Trio will make its debut in College Hour tomorrow at the college theater. The program will include selections by Beethoven and Dittersdorf, and Serenade by Dohnanyi.

The trio was formed approximately three months ago and has brought together three talented musicians, Eugenis Fichten Newman, violinist; Ed Bogas, violist, and Richard Fenner, cellist.

Mrs. Newman is a graduate of the German Academy of Music and Dramatic Arts in Prague. She has played with the Cleveland Symphony under the direction of George Szell and is currently a member of the San Francisco Symphony.

Bogas is presently a member of the Oakland Symphony. He has performed with the Oakland Chamber Orchestra and the San Francisco Ballet Orchestra.

Fenner, third member of the trio, received his music training in composition in New York and Boston. As a faculty member in the music department at City College, Fenner contributes to the growth of interest in the music field, and is working to arrange an interesting, varied music program in the College Hour series that will appeal to all.

Ram Cagers Go For Title

Hancock College Hosts Statewide Hoop Competition

This year's State Junior College basketball tournament will be held at Santa Maria, where Allan Hancock College will host the three-day classic starting tomorrow.

Teams which have already secured tournament bids are Imperial Valley of the Pacific Southwest Conference, San Joaquin Delta College who will represent the Valley Conference, Long Beach City College from the Metropolitan Conference, Pasadena City College of the Western State league and City College of San Francisco from the Golden Gate Conference, along with Allan Hancock, Central Conference champions.

FIVE OF THESE teams, represented their leagues at the State tourney last year.

The Golden Valley Conference championship was settled last week, as Sierra College defeated Santa Rosa, 70-53, and crushed College of Marin, 95-86 for the championship.

The Wolverines will challenge Laney College of Oakland for the final tournament bid sometime this week. The Wolverines are led by 6-4 forward Bill Penaluma, and 6-8 center Gary Harness.

The Eastern Conference has proved to be one of the most interesting of all, as both Orange Coast College (17-5) and defending State Champion Riverside (18-6) have staged an interesting battle for the league crown. The Pirates of Orange Coast are currently holding a slim one-game lead over Riverside.

BOTH CLUBS WOULD be fine teams to display their talents in the finals, but only one club can attend, so look for Riverside to tie Orange Coast for the title and take the Pirates in a one-game playoff; they always say, stick with the defending champ.

Pasadena City College has walked away with the Western State Conference title. The Southern California team is currently ranked as one of the top three in the state. Pasadena is led by John Trapp and Sam Robinson, both of whom have continually scored in double figures over the season.

With the State tourney just around the corner, March 9-11, a tourney favorite has not been decided as of yet, as any of the teams could grab all the marbles. With previous performances, City College of San Francisco, along with Long Beach and Pasadena, should rate considerable consideration for the title.

Vol. 64, No. 2 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1967 Page 4

GENE WILLIAMS (LEFT) GOES UP for a "stuffer" in helping the Rams to their final season victory over Merritt, 59,53. Willie Wise gets free for a dunker in cagers' win over Foothill, 65-43. Wise has scored 474 points in 30 games so far this year. —Guardsman photo by Chris Rozales

Golfers Surprised By Chabot Squad In Opener, 26-4

In the Golden Gate Conference opener for both teams, the Ram golfers ran into a stronger Chabot team than expected, and were dumped by the Gladiators, 26-4, in the wind and rain at Harding Park.

The Gladiators were led by Rod Velasquez, who fired a 37-35 even par 72 over the slightly wet City College home course to gain low scoring hohors. Following Velasquez were Pat Ozene (75), Bob Storm (77), Doug Brooke (78) and Larry Pessagno (79).

The Rams were led by Ken Kundert's 77, the only player on the team to break 80. Other City College scores included Mike Leonardini (80), Bob Fama (81), Doug Boston (82) and Kevin Donohue (83). Only Leonardini, paired against Brooke, and Boston, playing against Pessagno, were able to pick up any points for the Rams.

Coach Grover Klemmer emphasized that there are a great number of matches left and that the team should not be discouraged by an opening loss.

As a result of the Chabot match, Kundert has moved into the number one position on the City College team, followed by Leonardini, Fama, Boston and Donohue. Klemmer also feels that a few players who have not been playing have a chance to break into the top five.

In their next encounter, the Ram golfers will be competing against Contra Costa Friday at Richmond.

Champion Nine Defeats Marin, Stanford JV's, Splits Two With Yuba

The varsity baseball team started its preseason schedule with a 5-5 tie against the University of California February 23, and showed definite signs of developing into another conference-winning squad.

The next action saw the Rams pick up their first victory of the 1967 season by taking the opener of a doubleheader from Yuba College, 8-4. Yuba came back to take the second half of the twin bill by shutting out Ernie Domecus' Rams by a score of 2-0.

The team then clobbered Stanford JV's by 13-2. Ace pitcher Bill Kirkpatrick went all the way for the victory.

THE COLLEGE OF MARIN was no match for the Rams as City College walked away with an easy 22-4 win.

The Ram nine of last year won its first Golden Gate Conference championship in ten years by edging out College of San Mateo. The Rams then beat Santa Rosa to capture the Northern California title only to succumb to Cerritos College for the State crown.

It may again be shades of 1966. In the words of Domecus, "The team should do very well again this year."

Domecus has good reason for such an assertion. The squad is a veteran team, strong in most departments, with five of last season's starting nine returning.

PITCHING, WHICH CARRIED the team last year, should again be strong. Kirkpatrick is back. The All-Conference hurler, who compiled an 8-1 record and a 2.04 earned-run average in 86 innings last year, will head the mound corps this season. But gone is Greg Sinclair.

Together with Kirkpatrick, they formed the best one-two punch in the conference, accounting for 15 of the Rams' 18 league wins.

The squad will greatly miss the services of Sinclair, but, hopefully, the slack left by his leaving will be taken up by the fine pitchers who saw limited action on the team last year, and a talented crop of high schools hopefuls led by Larry Micheluccci (Sacred Heart) and Dave Parsons (Lowell).

THE SQUAD WILL also lament the loss of first string catcher Steve Howder. Howder, the only other Ram to make All-Conference, was not only a fine team player and battery mate, but also one of the most productive batters on the team.

Domecus believes the catching position will be the most definite weak spot on the team. However, it is hoped that veteran Bill Jones or either rookies Bill McKenna (Balboa) or Bill Mahoney (Lincoln) can fill Howder's spikes as a receiver.

FROM YAST YEAR'S infield, only Tom Callan and Frank Grimaud are back. However, their vacant positions should be amply filled by sophomore Frank King and Jeff Barker, an All-City Lincoln graduate.

In the outfield, only Al Pasions remains. Fortunately, Domecus has many talented players to fill the vacated positions, among them Ron Dillender and Henry Harris.

Netters, Minus 2, Lose To Menlo, Face Chabot Friday

Playing without the services of its two top players, Bob Kypta and John Cervantes, City College tennis team was defeated by Menlo, 5-4, February 27 on the winners' court.

In the three feature matches, Menlo's Bill Talmadge downed John Wong, 6-4, 6-4. The next match ,the Owls' Len Stafford beat George Zoul, 7-5, 6-3. In the final singles match, the Rams' Pete Kiestoff edged Brian Goldie, 6-1, 6-4.

Coach Roy Diederichsen had praise for Wong and Zoul who upset Menlo's Talmadge and Pete Tuck. "In the conference, Merritt, San Mateo and Foothill are all favorites to take first, and I think we will be the dark horse," Diederichsen commented.

Wong and Zoul edged their opponen, 6-4 and 7-5. However, that was the only doubles victory for the Rams that day as Menlo swept the last two sets to come out in front, 5-4.

Diederichsen has a bright outlook on this year's team despite losing his two top men, Greg Shepard and George Pontikoff from last year's championship squad.

Some men who should help out the five netters are Dennis Del Seco, Jim Moore, Bill Henderson, Greg Peters and Buzz Heffernon.

Friday the Rams travel to Chabot for the first conference match of the year.

Block SF Elects New Officers, Plans Future

Block SF Society officers for the spring semester are John Morello, president; Rich Cuadra, vice president, and Calvin Booth, secretary-treasurer.

Major plan to be undertaken by the society is the construction of a portable refreshment booth for all sports events held on the campus. Block SF sponsor Curt Decker believes it should provide the fans with greatly improved food service.

Plans are also being made for the semiannual awards banquet to be held near the end of the semester. The Block SF sponsors this event and honors athletes and most valuable players participating in any of the spring sports including members of the Golden Gate Conference championship basketball squad.

Tracksters Whip Modesto, 84-58, Face T-Birds Friday

Ernie Provost registered a double sprint victory to pace the City College track team to an easy 84-58 win over Modesto, February 28, on the losers' oval.

The Rams completely dominated the sprints and picked up valuable points in the distance races to chalk up enough points for the win. Provost won the 100-yard dash at 9.6 and the 220-yard run in 22.1. To back up Provost in the sprints were David Jones, Adam Banks and Robbie Brinkley.

Jones edged Banks in the 440 with a fine time of 49.9, and he also helped the 440 and mile relay teams. Banks gained valuable points as he took a second in both the 220 and 440 and ran a strong leg in the 440-yard relay. Brinkley pressed Provost in the 100 for a second, and ran in the 440-yard relay victory.

COACH LOU VASQUEZ said that he was surprised the Rams looked so well, so early in the season. "Provost and Jones looked fine, and I was surprised with the showing of the weight men," Vasquez commented.

The Rams ran away with hurdle events also, as Craig Johnson took a first in the 120 high hurdles, and Don Jordan topped the intermediate hurdles with the fine time of 40.3.

In the distance races, Hoy Henderson took the 880 with the time of 2:00.1 to be the only man for the Rams to cop a first. However, Bob Aanestad and Fred Forsberg picked up additional points in the mile and two-mile, respectively. They were both overtaken by the great performance of Jim Wray who took the mile and two mile.

THE FIELD EVENTS were split by Modesto and the Rams. Ray Hearne just jumped once, but it was enough to win the high jump at 6-2. Gil Griffin leaped the same height, but lost on more misses.

The pole vault was swept by Modesto, when the Pirates placed the first four men in the event. Lew Duckworth took a first in the discus and a second in the shot put to give the Rams additional strength.

Coach Vasquez by this meet thinks the cindermen will be in the thick of the conference championship, but he also predicts that San Mateo and San Jose will battle for the title. "Contra Costa and San Francisco will be tough also, but we lack depth in the field events," Vasquez commented.

Friday the Rams take on Merritt in the season opener on the Ram track. Vasquez believes the T-Birds are a question mark in the conference, because they lack any balance to make them a contender.

Powerful Mermen Start First Season

Leading the Ram mermen in their first Golden Gate Conference season will be the powerful medley relay team of John O'Connor (freestyle), Bill Pasquinelli (backstroke), Bruno Van Rijn (breaststroke) and Frank Cereos (butterfly).

Plagued last year by the absence of divers, the Rams this year have hopefuls David Detert, Ed Johnson and James Lippitt.

Although the swim team seems to have found its answer to the problem of divers, Coach Curtis Decker reported a lack of swimmers in the 500 and 1000-yard distances.

Promising Outlook On Speedy Sprinters

RAMBLINGS

By Mike Duggan

THE 1967 City College track team will be headed by a fine group of sprinters, and possibly the fastest man ever to attend the college.

Ernie Provost, Robbie Brinkley, David Jones, and Adam Banks are four of the fastest track men around on the two-year college level.

PROVOST HEADS the talented list of speedsters. During his junior year at Washington High, he raced to a third-place finish in the 100-yard dash and second in the 220-yard sprint with times of 9.6 and 21.2, respectively, against excellent competition in the State Track Championships.

For the past two years, Provost has tied the high school city record for the 100 with times of 9.7 in the All-City track meet. Also, he won the All-City 220-yard run during both his junior and senior years.

Last year in the State Championships, Provost, running with an injured leg, failed to qualify for the finals in either sprint race. He is healed completely now, and Ram track coach Lou Vasquez reports that Provost has been running some good times in practice so far this season.

Provost will have to fill the shoes of last year's top sprinter, O. J. Simpson, who is now attending the University of Southern California.

Simpson recorded a best of 9.5 for the 100 last season. Recently, Simpson returned to San Francisco and clocked a 6.1 for the 60-yard dash during the Golden Gate Invitational.

Before leaving for USC, Simpson, running for City College, twice beat out Tommie Smith of San Jose State in the 60. Smith holds five different world records in events ranging from the 200-meter run to the indoor 440-yard run.

BRINKLEY IS A GOOD starter who is mainly fast over the shorter dash distances. Last year at Wilson High he ran up a string of sub-10-second, 100-yard-dash victories, but failed to make the All-City finals because he was disqualified in his qualifying heat for two false starts.

Jones, a high school teammate of Brinkley's last year, is probably the best all-around sprinter on the squad. He has clocked under 10 flat for the 100, finished third in the All-City 220, and took a first place in the 440 during that same All-City meet. His 440 time was a fast 49.1.

DURING HIS JUNIOR YEAR, Jones set AAA lightweight records for both the 150 and 330-yard sprints. He will concentrate mainly on the 440 this season for the Rams.

Banks is the only sprinter returning from last year's dual meet Golden Gate Conference champs. Usually running behind Simpson, Adam's best clocking was a 9.7 in the 100.

Banks teamed with Bob Prince, Lee Benton and Simpson to set a conference meet record of 41.1 for the 440-yard relay last year.

The relay is probably the most exciting event of a track meet, and if Provost, Brinkley, Jones and Banks can get together, no one can tell what kind of times they may be able to come up with.

Provost, Jones Pace Roster Of Trackmen

Boycott Reply To 'South' Snub

By Ed Holmes

The southern members of the California Junior College Student Government Association have refused to allow the northern members to hold chairmanships at the April convention in Los Angeles, Joe Parnell, Associated Student president, declared last week.

"These semiannual conventions are very important to Student Government," Parnell said. "Problems are presented and the collective experience of all member colleges is used to iron them out. If northern colleges are denied their share of chairmanships, we'll end up trying to use solutions from Los Angeles for our own problems.

"They got away with this last year when they refused to invite our football team, which was number one in the nation, to the Junior Rose Bowl. It's time we stood up; we can't let them get away with it again," Parnell added.

In a resoluion presented to Student Council, Parnell said, ". . . this is a State convention and we believe every member . . . should be given an equal opportunity . . . City College, which hosted the last convention, allowed all members to apply for chairmanships . . . therefore . . . unless action is taken to correct this unfair policy, City College will give serious consideration to boycotting the convention."

Louis Batmale, coordinator of technical terminal programs and former student government adviser, was asked to comment on Parnell's resolution.

"I think it shows initiative," he said. "It is a good trump card and should be played for all it's worth. However, if the situation is not resolved to City College's satisfaction before the convention, it might be more effective to attend and voice the objections in person.

"It is not a new situation," he continued. "Traditional rivalry has existed both athletically and politically for many years. Unfortunately, Southern California has a majority of member schools."

Asked if he had any solution to this rivalry, Batmale queried in return, "You mean other than making California two states?"

Paul Shuttleworth, outspoken sophomore councilman, had the following comments on the snub: "I'm quite bitter about it. I think it's unjust, stupid and demeaning. It's a tragedy; a real shame. Of course a boycott is the answer."

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 64 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, 1967 NUMBER 3

Hotel & Restaurant Sponsors Benefit Premiere Of Movie Tomorrow At St. Francis

A benefit premiere of the new Warner Bros. movie, Hotel, will be presented tomorrow night by the Hotel and Restaurant department which has reserved the St. Francis theater for the showing.

Tickets are on sale to students for $5 or $7.50 at the St. Francis box office, or they can be purchased from members of the H&R department.

The movie, a film version of Arthur Hailey's best selling novel, is part of "Operation Hotel," and is expected to raise three to four thousand dollars for the department's scholarship fund, according to Larry Wong, chairman of the project.

A champagne reception is planned after the showing, affording the audience a chance to meet the author, Wong said.

TO KICK OFF THE "official" beginning of ticket sales, a controlled happening took place at Union Square last Wednesday.

H&R served the waitresses from the Fairmont's Crown Room and the St. Francis Hotel's Terrace Room, along with many hotel dignitaris a to a large variety of sumptuous hors d'oeuvres.

Enough canapes to feed 200 were distributed in short order.

"We are proud of California's claim to free public education for all, and wish to keep it that way."

"ALTHOUGH THE TUITION problem does not directly affect City College," said Helen Ferentinos, vice president of the Associated Students, "many students who plan to transfer to a state college or university are concerned over the tuition proposal."

There were 2001 students who were "concerned enough" to sign the petition that was sent to Sacramento, she added.

Most of the signatures were obtained during the spring registration, and a few students circulated the petition in their classes in search of more signatures.

If the Governor's proposed budget cuts are passed, the tuition will be applied to students attending state colleges and universities this fall.

The subject was dure for further discussion at the Area 6 conference.

CITY COLLEGE IS not alone in expressing disapproval of the proposed tuition, as 4000 signatures have been applied to a petition that San Francisco State College is circulating at present.

Through an interview with one of the staff of the Associated Students at San Francisco State, it was learned that the college has a full research staff gathering information on the possible effects if the tuition bill goes into operation this fall.

The staff plans to start speaking engagements in the San Francisco Bay area in three weeks and hope to be mobile enough to reach other areas of the state in a month's time. "There is definitely an angry group of students at State over this tuition plan," said Karen Duncan of the Associated Students at State.

Student Petition Protests Reagan Tuition Proposal

By Carol Brett

The Associated Students of City College submitted a petition on March 6 to Governor Ronald Reagan in protest of his tuition plan.

The petition, entitled "Petition for Better California Education to Governor Reagan," read:

"We, the undersigned teachers and students of City College of San Francisco, do hereby protest your threatened cut-back in funds for higher education and the imposition of tuition at college and university campuses.

"We are proud of California's claim to free public education for all, and wish to keep it that way."

"ALTHOUGH THE TUITION problem does not directly affect City College," said Helen Ferentinos, vice president of the Associated Students, "many students who plan to transfer to a state college or university are concerned over the tuition proposal."

There were 2001 students who were "concerned enough" to sign the petition that was sent to Sacramento, she added.

Most of the signatures were obtained during the spring registration, and a few students circulated the petition in their classes in search of more signatures.

If the Governor's proposed budget cuts are passed, the tuition will be applied to students attending state colleges and universities this fall.

The subject was dure for further discussion at the Area 6 conference.

CITY COLLEGE IS not alone in expressing disapproval of the proposed tuition, as 4000 signatures have been applied to a petition that San Francisco State College is circulating at present.

Through an interview with one of the staff of the Associated Students at San Francisco State, it was learned that the college has a full research staff gathering information on the possible effects if the tuition bill goes into operation this fall.

The staff plans to start speaking engagements in the San Francisco Bay area in three weeks and hope to be mobile enough to reach other areas of the state in a month's time. "There is definitely an angry group of students at State over this tuition plan," said Karen Duncan of the Associated Students at State.

Willie Brown To Discuss City Ghetto Problems

Willie Lewis Brown, Jr., San Francisco assemblyman from the 18th district and representative of minority groups, will give a lecture on the ghetto's causes, problems and cures in the college theatre during College Hour tomorrow, according to Edward Taylor, member of the Lecture Series committee.

The first Negro elected to public office in San Francisco and one of five Negroes representing the state in a political office, Brown has supported the minority groups under his jurisdiction through educational, health and other committees.

A liberal Democrat, Brown is an outspoken critic on government aid to minority groups in employment, education and housing development. His district, one of four in San Francisco, covers a large area including the Western Addition, Haight-Ashbury and Noe Valley.

WITHIN THIS DISTRICT he contends with two ghettos of minority groups and has successfully quieted any severe riots, as well as taken interest in outside flare-ups such as the recent one in Hunters Point.

Brown has been active in controversies such as the recent House refusal to seat Adam Clayton Powell and the current John Muir School problem.

Brown was born in Mineola, a small Texas town southeast of Dallas in 1934, and attended elementary and senior high schools there. In 1951 he entered San Francisco State College and received his Bachelor of Arts in 1955. He then registered in the University of California and obtained a Bachelor of Laws degree in 1958.

BROWN WAS ADMITTED to the State Bar of California in 1959 and to practice before the United States Supreme Court in 1964.

Brown has been employed as a teaching assistant in the Hastings College of Law, at the University of California and as instructor of law at Lincoln University. He is presently engaged in the private law firm of Brown and Dearman in San Francisco.

In 1957, Brown was married to Blanche Vitero, and they are now living in San Francisco with their two daughters and son.

Brown is a member of numerous organizations such as CORE, NAACP, California Tomorrow and other committees, fraternities and clubs.

TWO EVENTS ARE scheduled for College Hour on March 30. The Theatre Flamenco will appear in a program which will include classic and folk dances and music and readings of Spanish poetry in the college theater.

A lecture will be given by Claudie Tchekhov on the Parisian Literary Scene during College Hour on that same day in S-100. Madame Tchekhov is a graduate of Bryn Mawr, Yale and the Sorbonne. She is also associated with a French publishing house.

Statler Wing Hours Extended, But Campus Police Stay On Patrol

Statler wing has officially extended its operating hours as of Monday, but, said John Dunn, manager of the cafeteria facilities, "The Campus Police have been here and here they will remain."

The hours of Statler wing have been extended from 11 a.m. to 7:15 p.m. in the hope that evening class students will utilize it.

However, Dunn stressed, "If the wing is not used, we will revert back to the old hours. The change is strictly for the benefit of hotel and restaurant students who will receive increased training.

"In conjunction with this, we plan to provide cafeteria service from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. beginning next semester," he added, explaining that this increase in hours will allow an additional 25 students to enter the department.

"ANY CHANGE IS acceptable providing education is served," Dunn claimed. "The Student Council has no authority to change our hours," he said. "As for the police problem, we have had a talented faculty for over 10 years, and we are capable of running the department."

"If," he added, "Student Council can come up with a better solution to the problem of supervision, I invite them to approach us."

Dunn's statement partially confirmed a promise which Joe Parnell, Associated Student president, made last week when he announced an extension of Statler wing hours.

HOWEVER DUNN'S statement retaining the Campus Police patrols in the cafeteria and Statler wing negates the second half of Parnell's promise to have the police "withdrawn from Smith Hall."

The Campus Police first began patrolling Smith Hall in the spring of 1963 because of the student congestion problem developing at that time.

At first, when Statler wing opened, the students were on the honor system, which lasted approximately one week because of a threatened price hike. After a week, the Campus Police were assigned to patrol the wing.

LOUIS G. CONLAN, president of the college, is in charge of the situation and is the only person who has authority to make any changes.

The administration listed a set of rules in 1963 concerning cafeteria conduct:

1. Do not congregate in aisles or doorways.
2. Use the proper entrances and exits.
3. Do not move or "share' chairs.
4. Do not sit on radiators or bookshelves.
5. Do not smoke in service areas or away from receptacles provided for this purpose.
6. Please eat and leave promptly so that we may serve as many as possible during the time allotted.
7. Read and comply with all directional signs."

Council Advised: Send Resolutions Through Channels

By Lori Pittman

James Wyatt, assistant dean of student activities, advised Student Council last week that resolutions passed would go unheeded unless carried through to the proper authority.

Wyatt's warning came as a result of Sophomore Councilman Ron Bianco's query in regard to last semester's passed resolution which stated that veterans would get priority in registration.

SINCE THE RESOLUTION was not taken to the administration last semester, it did not go into effect. However, Joe Parnell and Helen Ferentinos, AS president and vice president, and Wyatt have been discussing the situation with Louis G. Conlan, president of the college.

In other action, Student Council has started the ball rolling for the erection of a student center here on campus. Last week council resolved to set up a special committee to formulate and initiate the necessary action to be taken to create such a center.

The student center, when realized, will be a self-supporting and profit-making function of the AS. Parnell indicated that larger campuses have such centers, and "this college needs it," he said.

OTHER RESOLUTIONS passed by the council were concerned mainly with finances. One submitted by Councilman Paul Shuttleworth provided that the first $180 of profits made by the Jazz Concert of Bola Sete, which will be sponsored by this college, be allotted to the support of the Vietnamese orphan, Vu Van Thanh, "adopted" last year by the AS.

Remaining profits, if there are any, from this concert will go into the general AS fund.

Secrecy over the current standing of AS funds has left the organization with the problem of not knowing their financial standing. A resolution to correct this error by removing this cloak of secrecy from elected members was passed by council.

It's The Water That...

. . . makes a swimming pool? A couple of weeks ago a large water main blew its top next to the men's gymnasium and sprayed water across the southern freeway, snarling traffic at the college turnoff. It reached a height of more than 100 feet and spewed water for more than two hours until the water department came.

IT COULD HAVE BEEN A DREAM come true for Curt Decker, coach of the swimming team.

But obviously, 'tisn't just the water.

—Guardsman photo by Mac Goding

Fire-Fighting In The Classroom

FIRE SCIENCE STUDENTS, in picture at left, got a first-hand look at fire-fighting equipment last week when a fire department truck was wheeled into Arts Hall parking lot. Students scaling aerial ladder are Bob Strachan, Frank Lowe, John Petkovick, John Erasmy, supervised by Lt. John Flaherty.
—Guardsman photo by Jose Fireside

The Fire Science department is the newest of the semiprofessional curricula offered by the college. The program was instituted last semester after it was revealed that new requirements would be demanded of men seeking professions as firemen.

As in most fields, the San Francisco Fire Department is looking for more educated men trained in all the technical aspects of fire science. This includes instruction not only in use of equipment but also in mathematics dealing with the properties fundamental in fire fighting.

The department is different from some semiprofessional departments in that it does not perform the role of the fireman on campus as does the Campus Police department or the Hotel and Restaurant department.

COURSES OFFERED by the fire science department presently include only introductory subjects dealing with basic principles, but plans are already underway to expand the department into a complete area which will ultimately lead to employment in any of the country's fire department systems.

Firemen are a dedicated group of men who serve the public in all emergencies. The San Francisco Fire Department is a highly trained organization with a high esprit de corps. Men who one minute are sipping coffee jump to an alarm, always prepared to save a life and save property.

The elaborate alarm systems and the intricate sprinkler systems which are taken for granted by the public have taken years of work to develop in an effort to modernize the department.

IT IS THE HOPE of the fire science program here to train an even better department to work as a team in the event of an emergency.

Captain Alex Potter of the San Francisco Fire Deartment is in charge of the program which also teaches new concepts to men already in the service. It is a new program and considered by the fire department a big step forward in instruction in this particular field.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students
City College of San Francisco

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS

Vol. 64, No. 3 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, 1967 Page 2

Tutorial Program Helpful In Educating Underprivileged

IT IS GRATIFYING to hear that the tutorial program at this college has received "great!" support in its first semester as an independent project at the college.

The tutorial program is unique in that it offers a student a chance to accomplish something of value in the world around him; the tutor is working with a problem which faces not just a college campus, or a city but the entire country—equal education for all through the tutoring of underprivileged minority group children (similar to Operation Head Start).

IT IS OFTEN THE EXCEPTION rather than the rule that a student can accomplish something worthwhile outside of his college community.

Usually, a student gains abilities in campus organizations which he may not realize until later in life.

But the tutorial program deserves credit, not just for its worthwhile aims, but also for the refreshing approach to the problem of educating these children.

THE OBJECT OF THE TUTORIAL PROGRAM is to meet the youngsters at their own level, rather than to try to make them conform to standards foreign to them.

In an average school, as the program points out, these children would probably be given a book about a middle-class boy named Dick and his middle-class sister named Jane with their middle-class dog named Spot. They would probably live in a nice house in a clean yard, surrounded by a white picket fence.

The tutorial program, however, does not introduce stories to the children concerning things that are lacking in personal experience to them. Rather, the student-tutors have the child tell a story to his tutor who then has the child learn to read his own story.

THIS MAKES IT AN EXERCISE in creativity and reading.

Homework is not limited to the children. The tutors themselves have a book list from which they have certain required readings so that they can better understand their pupils.

These are only a few of the innovations which the tutorial program uses.

It's an excellent program, and the persons involved deserve commendation.

For information about becoming a tutor, students may consult Frank Borden in Bungalow 4.

Informal 'Paper Bag' Lunches

STUDENT COUNCIL passed a worthwhile resolution two weeks ago which provides for establishment of a student-faculty lounge in the room at the southwest corner of Statler wing.

The resolution is aimed at establishing better student-faculty communication. The idea has merit since much should be done to remove the "white tower" image which often separates students and faculty.

ONE OF THE SECRETS of Roger Heyns' successes as chancellor at the University of California, Berkeley campus, as evidenced in his handling of the student protests last fall, is his use of ties between the administration, faculty and students of UC.

While it may be argued that Heyns is in a different position from that of the students at this college, it should be stressed that Heyns' success lies in the fact that he makes use of informal ties as well as formal ties.

THIS IS ILLUSTRATED by his weekly "paperbag" lunch with student leaders on the campus.

A special committee here has been founded to supervise the establishment and use of the room in Statler wing.

The Guardsman hopes that the example set by Chancellor Heyns will be followed by council, and that the committee will encourage, more than supervise, the use of the room.

On The RAMpage

Students On Experimental College Kick

By Connie Skiplares

WHEN THE DUST finally settled on the student takeover at Berkeley in December, 1964, one thing was painfully obvious—students were dissatisfied with the mechanical, impersonal education they were receiving.

The growing academic ferment was not confined to the Sproul Hall activists, however, because students all over the country are demanding a less-structured, more individualized means of obtaining superior education.

They want group discussion to replace the crowded lecture hall, work-study programs to replace meaningless tests, the pass-fail system to replace grade and, most important, a voice in curriculum formation.

To this end they have been taking to their [illegible] and creating free universities and parallel structures. At San Francisco State College, for example, a free university initially offered 23 student-organized courses. Sixty-six of the 350 participants received credit through arrangements with professors and administrators during the registration period.

THE PROGRAM was set up by a core of 25 students, but decisions are not limited to them. A campus circular explained that "anyone can organize a course on anything, but he must accurately describe what he is trying to do."

Courses included black culture and the arts, communication and the arts, urban community and change, and arts and letters. Classes met regularly for a semester, usually at night and employed extensive reading lists as well as independent research. As of last fall 70 courses were being offered.

At the University of Washington in Seattle, a program began when six honors English students requested a contemporary Russian literature course but substituted "existential literature" at the request of the professor. The course lasted an entire year with discussion centering on assigned readings. No grades or credit were given.

A SIMILAR structure was formed at the University of New Mexico, consisting of three hours a week for four weeks. Enrollment was limited to 15 per class. Instructors could choose from a list courses they would be interested in teaching, or they could create their own courses.

Private institutions are also getting on the free university bandwagon. At the University of Pennsylvania Women's College, a parallel structure was set up last year under the auspices of Students for a Democratic Society. Courses ranged from Marxist philosophy to the ontology of art. Discussion groups met once a week for a semester.

But not all free universities are college-based. Trudy Schutz, a former San Francisan and a Goucher graduate who had taught at Toronto's free university and felt the need to question existing academic structures, was one of the organizers of a program in Baltimore last summer.

COURSES RANGING from folk-singing to art to Vietnam objectives were offered to about 100 persons. In the past fall semester, 15 courses were offered through funds from donations and a nominal registration fee on topics from Negro problems in Baltimore to a drama seminar led by professors from area colleges and high schools.

Gayle Smith, director of the University of Maryland's general education has commented that parallel structures such as those described above "are not a panacea, but they will make a good university into a great one," a reasonably plausible theory.

Probably the basic resistance to any program of this type would be from the professionally oriented departments. Any department is going to be skeptical of a course which students design themselves because they are afraid it will turn into a "Mickey Mouse" kind of thing.

However, all too obviously, an institution cannot be made better by NOT trying something either!

Paul Anderson back lifted 6000 pounds (3 tons) on June 12, 1957.

Caveman Flick A Real 'Dog'

The new color remake of One Million B.C. wasn't worth the trouble.

It is a completely silly farce with neither appeal nor direction for any age group save retarded 5-year-olds. It seems amazing that a large studio such as Twentieth Century-Fox would admit having anything to do with this bomb.

It's a common story. A boy finds a girl, loses her and gets her back—[illegible] style. This is the way it was!"—baloney.

There is no dialogue in the film of which to speak. All "words" consist of nonsense syllables. This makes it impossible, except by inference, to figure out what's going on, but then the story is so simple, well . . .

Raquel Welch plays the girl, Loana, and is an example of the good guys with her blonde hair, blue eyes, fair skin and clean, well-developed body. (The bad guys, with which the boy is at first a member, of course are dark featured, hairy, dirty, ugly and worst of all, uncivilized!) She wears only two pieces of doe-skin and how she keeps them on is a wonder.

Perhaps the movie wouldn't seem as corny if it were less pretentious, but even the pre-teenieboppers won't fall for this dog—unless they don't mind wasting the price of admission.

Labelled And Recorded

'Airplane' Soars, Byrds Grounded

By Marty Arbunich

DISAPPOINTING is probably the best single word to describe The Byrds' latest LP release, Younger Than Yesterday (Columbia). Compared to their three preceding albums, this one belongs at the base of the totem pole.

The Byrds are known for their exceptional vocal and guitar handiwork, but whoever provided them with scripting pens to write ten of the eleven cuts on 'Yesterday' made one very erroneous blunder.

To add to these depressing tidings, the sole tune nonpenned by The Byrds, Mr. Back Pages, was the finest sounding piece of music on the entire disc. But then even The Byrds aren't expected to out-do Bob Dylan. Dylan's Pages, which is played up in the album title, by the way, even surpasses The Byrds' LP opener, So You Want To Be A Rock 'n' Roll Star, in general quality.

Aside from Rock 'n' Roll Star, their recent ear-catching, chart-climber, the only other Byrd written selection worthy of praise is C.T.A.—102, another electronic exploration—this time an attempt to converse with those aliens "out there."

However, it's the unearthly sounds which make the C.T.A. cut passable.

One particular ditty on the album, Mind Gardens, written by 'Byrd' Dave Crosby, was the track which impels one to crave for a pair of corks for audio purposes.

Granted, The Byrds penned Eight Miles High and Fifth Dimension, a pair of meritorious, low-flying releases, but 'Yesterday' demonstrates audibly that an ALL-Byrd-written album is kind of a drag.

THE MOST POPULAR album around—at least in the Bay Area—is The Jefferson Airplane's second release, Surrealistic Pillow (RCA), a splendid collection of 11 high-flying classics. An excellent example of the LP's hard-driving 'Airplane' sound is the heart-pounding Somebody To Love, an energetically meaningful Grace Slick-vocalized song, which is also their latest single release.

Miss Slick's voice, which somehow enkindles the listener with a burning sensual arousal, dynamically appears again in White Rabbit, a speed-shifting vocal also written by her.

My Best Friend, the song that put 'The Airplane' on the national charts is included as are 3/5 Of A Mile In 10 Seconds, another of their hard-drivers and the slow-paced, expressive Today. The latter two are vocalist Marty Balin originals.

OFF THE RECORD . . . Grateful Dead's Warner Bros. LP out any day . . . Baytovens' release, Such A Fool/Waiting For You, available on Belfast label . . . Spencer Davis Group —caucasians with soul . . . Airplane's My Best Friend made number two on San Jose charts—only number two at home . . . Strawberry Fields—Lennon's favorite girls' reformatory in Liverpool . . . More la-la-la 'Camel' talk from Kama Sutra—this time Postcard From Jamaica, a lively hitbound sound—flipside Little Orphan Annie has potential, too.

'TIS A HAPPENING. The Grateful Dead and Chuck Berry, along with Johnny Talbot, headline this weekend's dance-concert at Winterland . . . Avalon Ballroom's dance-concert has Big Brother and the Holding Company, Sir Douglas Quintet and Charles Lloyd this week . . . The Civic Auditorium and the Oakland Coliseum are sites of concerts featuring Eric Burdon and the (new) Animals and other groups on March 21 and 25, respectively.

FINAL NOTE . . . While evading the $4.50 overhead, The Reef's Turtle show was a gas, peering through a window crevice.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1967

EDITOR IN CHIEF.....RICHARD HEINTZ
Managing Editor.....Connie Skiplitares
Staff Editor.....Marty Arbunich
News Editor.....Steven Hare
Sports Editor.....Mike Duggan
Contributing Writers...William G. Pates, Peter Dorn, Bea Takeuchi
Editorial Assistants: John Janigian, John LeTourneau, Viggo Petersen.
Reporters: Doug Boston, Diana Brand, Marc Clarkson, Timothy Duncan, John Hammack, Doreen Ng, Phillip Pianezzi, Lori Pittman, Ron Wong.
Cub Reporters: Carol Brett, Berry Brown, Albert Chi, Dan Coughlin, Derryl Cox, Bob Ferrando, Rebecca Garcia, Jeffrey Hoffhine, Ed Holmes, Ron Lent, George Ostrander, Glynn Petrie, Leni Silver, Lee Smith, Charles Stevenson, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf, Franklin Gadson, George Kannengieser.
Photographers: Bob Briscoe, chief; John C. Benz, Truman Tong, Jose Fireside, Richard Sandino, Mac F. Goding, Rich Spitaleri, Ron O'Brien, Chris Rozales, Chip Stevens, Jim Tsang.
Faculty Adviser.....Joan Nourse
Member Associated Collegiate Press 1966-1967

The Observer

By William G. Pates

NOW WE ARE engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation or any nation . . . can long endure.

The poignant words of Abraham Lincoln at Gettysburg, are equally applicable today in Vietnam, which has become one universal Gettysburg. More important, it is the assertion that we are involved in a great civil war. For we were then and we are now, 100 years later. Only this time it is someone else's civil war, and the President doesn't realize it.

OUR LEADER has said, "No part of our foreign policy is so sacred that it remains beyond review," and "We shall be flexible where conditions in the world change—and where man's efforts can change them for the better." Yet, in regard to Vietnam, policy is beyond review, is inflexible, and garnished in sacredness.

It is said by those who are supposed to know, that we are in Vietnam because the people of South Vietnam, this country and our allies are committed to the SEATO treaty to "act to meet the common danger," that the South Vietnamese [illegible] much a right to remain non-Communist as the North has to remain Communist and because we have chosen to fight a limited war to prevent a greater one.

All this entails is the old American adage of suppressing the international conspiracy. It is obvious that our allies are not committed as we are, that there will not be a greater war and even more importantly it is up to the Vietnamese to decide whether they want to be Communist or not, not the United States, and that the war isn't limited.

FAILURE to heed these discrepancies has been disastrous. "In the final analysis," as President Kennedy construed the situation, "it is their war. They are the ones who have to win or lose it. We can help them, we can give them equipment, we can send our men as advisers, but they have to win it, the people of Vietnam."

Lyndon Johnson has made Vietnam an American war, thereby fanning the flames of that greater war he is supposedly seeking to prevent.

Limited or unlimited war is the question today, for with the massive troop buildups and air offensive, the war has been taken from the Vietnamese. Some believe the war would be shortened by escalation and that our limited actions are the reasons the war is doing poorly. Limited war would be one in which the civilian populations and economy of the North would be immune from attack—a war in which American troops would not be committed to the occupation of the South or the suppression of the rebellion.

Presently, LBJ is being confronted with the fact that limited war hasn't worked, mainly because limited war is effective only for limited goals, and the objective has been escalated to an unlimited decree. In escalating the objectives, Johnson runs the risk of having to authorize unlimited escalation and the unlimited expenditure of American lives and resources to create a society which never existed before.

If Johnson goes along this path there is every reason to believe that the United States will find itself isolated in a hostile world.

TIME AND AGAIN over recent months, experts such as Ambassador Reichauer have warned the country to minimize military involvement and commitment because our military power isn't effective in guerilla wars and our vital interests aren't likely to be threatened, and avoid sponsoring political, social and economic change, for this draws the nation into assuming responsibility for the existence or nature of a regime. Unfortunately, this is where we are headed in Vietnam, with ever-increasing speed.

Searching, wishing, hoping for peace is our present course, but we require certain reciprocal actions. Because of this we are still hoping, still wishing. It would be advisable to remind the seekers to "Let us never negotiate out of fear but let us never fear to negotiate."

Peace is the strangest of all interludes to the present world. It seems that everybody is smoking the pipe of peace but nobody seems to be inhaling.

A man closely acquainted with the tragedy of war, Franklin D. Roosevelt, has provided man with the ultimatum that "Peace can endure only as long as humanity insists upon it, and is willing to work for it and sacrifice for it . . ".

Grades Poor Measure

By Viggo Petersen

In 1964 at the University of Utah a survey was taken of doctors as to how their medical career performance compared with the grades they received at college.

The conclusion reached by the survey seemed to indicate that there is no relationship between the grades a student receives in college and his competence in his work after he leaves.

The survey had found that medical students who had done well scholastically usually did not measure up to their academic performance after graduation.

AT COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY a similar survey found that a number of graduates from there who had won fellowships, graduated with honors, and won scholastic medals were in the lower professional levels than in the top levels.

Many feel that the reason for all this is that since most parents and teachers have placed such overemphasis on grades and getting good marks that education itself has actually been harmed by neglect.

One teacher turned author, after [illegible] said:

"CURRENT SCHOOL methods destroy the love of learning by encouraging students to work for petty rewards—gold stars, or papers marked 100 pinned on the wall, or A's on report cards or names on honor rolls and dean's lists.

"The pressure to achieve in this manner has presented an almost unbearable burden on students."

Student suicides are not uncommon. The New Jersey Department of Education discovered that in the 1967-63 period a total of 41 students killed themselves, 738 tried to do so and thousands threatened to kill themselves.

STUDENTS WHO have analyzed the situation have convinced themselves of the silliness of the grade mania and have, to a greater extent, decided to take matters into their own hands.

Student cheating has recently reached alarming proportions. Recent newspaper articles have disclosed that not just a few but actually a majority of college students have found that the only way to "make it" through school is to cheat their way through.

Usually the cheating is confined to the general education area where the students may [illegible] obtaining high grades.

The result is that the student study something he is probably not interested in rather than concentrate on his major.

THIS IS NOT attributed to a moral decay among prospective graduates but rather it is more likely due to an awareness on their part of the futility of attempting to achieve what amounts to be no more than a letter grade.

A number of alternatives have been offered to present grading systems such as the pass-fail system where a student is given either a passing grade or a failing one, or eliminating midterm exams altogether, but none of the proposals has been adopted on a grand scale. Most are in experimental stages.

The ultimate paradox with the present grading system, which is receiving increased attack, is that even though the present system may not measure accurately a student's ability, the grade requirements for major universities are continually rising.

It would seem that if the education mania continues sweeping the nation the graduates turned out will probably resemble scholastic robots trained for one thing—

RA Gymnasts, 3 Fencers Score High In Recent Tourneys

Members of the Recreation Association here placed high in intercollegiate fencing and gymnastics tournaments held in the Bay Area recently.

In the Western Intercollegiate Fencing Tournament held at Stanford on March 4, the City College team came out in fourth place against the "top-notch and stiff competition of 14 other colleges and universities, including UCLA, UC Berkeley and the Air Force Academy," said Frances Galloway, fencing coach.

Team members included George Pens, captain; Herb Hambarzumian, and Wai Tom. The men were entered in the foils event, and each won 8 of 13 matches.

"A foil is the classic thin French-type rapier with a four-sided point and bell-shaped hand guard. Each match consists of four touches against one opponent and the whole meet often runs 12 to 14 hours," Miss Galloway said.

"It takes more stamina and coordination to fence than most people realize, and I think our team shows promise of being top-flight competition in future matches," she commented.

The team's next match will be at San Francisco State College on April 8 in the Northern California Intercollegiate Men's Team Tournament. The women's fencing team will compete against Northern California teams on April 15 here.

In the Invitational Women's Gymnastics Meet, held on March 4 at State, Bobbie Guadagni and Carol Cavanagh placed first and second, respectively, in the beginning college trampoline event.

The college competed against the other Area 6 two-year colleges. Each college was allowed two representatives in each event.

City College has no gymnastic equipment other than the trampoline and therefore entered none of the other events.

Chinese Students To Sponsor Ball

The Chinese Students Club of the college will sponsor its 22nd annual Sweetheart Ball Friday in the Grand Ballroom of the Empress of China restaurant.

The ball will begin at 9 p.m. and end at 1 a.m. Bids are priced at $5 a couple and may be purchased at the Silver Pole, in Smith Hall, or at the door on the night of the ball, according to Linnette Wong, club president.

The queen and her court will be chosen at the ball. Those in contention for the honor of Sweetheart Queen are Katy Lum, Aurelia Cacapit, Lorraine Yung, Darlene Owyoung, Darlene Hung and Susan Leong.

Miss Wong stated that the ball is open to all members of City College and not just to members of the club. The club is expecting and hoping for a good turnout for the ball.

Building Under Construction Ready For Students In '68

The current construction work going on west of Smith Hall will soon give rise to the new educational services building, to be in use by the fall of 1968, Harry R. Buttimer, coordinator of educational management, said today.

The building will house the campus book store and the administration offices including the president's office; Buttimer's office; the offices of John Brady, coordinator of student welfare; Ralph Hillsman, dean of students; Mary Golding, dean of women, and the counseling department.

In addition to housing all the student services, there will be a large testing and lecture hall which will extend out to Phelan avenue. According to Buttimer, the building provides "good access for visitors." The site is one of the last level areas available on the campus.

ABOUT ONE-HALF of the trees were destroyed to make room for the project. The ones still standing will be left intact. According to Art Snieder, superintendent for Carl Olsen, the contractor, the building will be two stories high with a partial basement.

It will be connected to Smith Hall by a concrete pathway running from its east exit. Between the two buildings will be cement pathways and planting areas. The entire structure will be of precast cement panels of colored texture, with a sandblasted finish.

Another building, identified as the graphic arts building, is to be erected next to the Arts Hall. The new building will be up for bids by contractors in four to six weeks, and should be completed about four or five months after the educational services building, Buttimer said.

THIS STRUCTURE will contain a room with food and beverage vending machines for student and faculty use, eight general classrooms, 14 instructional laboratories and shops, necessary service areas for teaching facilities and faculty offices and related service and maintenance facilities.

Buttimer commented, "The new buildings will cost 'slightly in excess' of one million dollars each."

Three Grads Start VISTA Careers

Three students from this college were among 46 trainees recently graduated from the VISTA training program at the University of Utah.

Each volunteer has been assigned to a different project. Toni A. Johns will spend a year working with an urban project sponsored by the Houston, Texas, Council on Human Relations. Miss Johns, 19, of 2008 Cabrillo, attended George Washington High School and during the 1965-66 school year was a drama major.

Phyllis Corcoleotes, 39 Mercury street, will also be involved in an urban project called the Community Action Program of Rapid City, South Dakota. After graduating from Presentation High School, Miss Corcoleotes, also 19, enrolled here as a student of social welfare. She was active in the Junior Red Cross and has worked as a nurses aid.

The third volunteer, Jewel Burton, 126 Alma, will spend his year on an Indian project for the Ft. Beknap Community Council in Harlem, Montana. Burton, who is 20, graduated from Polytechnic High School and started on a sociology major here.

Bill Proposed For Overseas Studies

A bill concerning "studies abroad" was presented to the State legislature on February 20.

The proposed bill calls for a designation of one two-year college in California to conduct a pilot program and make overseas study a permanent feature of any interested two-year college. The choice will rest with the State Board of Education.

If the measure is approved and signed by Governor Reagan, the project may begin as early as next fall.

Traditionally the University of California and the State colleges were the only ones allowed to conduct any kind of overseas study.

The measure was inspired by a study which was conducted by Chaffey College in overseas education.

Coed In 'Glamour' Contest

CYNTHIA GEORGE will compete against the nation's Best-Dressed College Coeds.

Fall's Best-Dressed Represents College

Cynthia George was selected to represent this college in Glamour Magazine's Ten Best-Dressed College Coed Contest for 1967 now being held in New York.

Last semester's winner of the Best-Dressed Coed Contest, sponsored by the Associated Women Students of this campus, Miss George is in her fourth semester here.

The Glamour Magazine contest is nationwide. Winners are selected annually from the entries submitted to the contest by member colleges. According to Mary Golding, dean of women, this college has been a member for approximately four years.

Winners of Glamour's contest will receive national recognition in the August college issue of Glamour magazine. In addition, they will be given an all-expense paid visit to New York.

This semester's winner of the campus Best-Dressed Coed Contest will be eligible for selection for next year's Glamour contest, Dean Golding explained.

Captain Speaks Of Combat Routine Aboard Warship

By John Janigian

More than 350,000 missiles have been recently delivered to Ho Chi Minh "with best regards" of the USS Coral Sea, according to Captain Frank Ault, commanding officer of the aircraft carrier, who spoke here last Thursday during College Hour in S-100.

Captain Ault's lecture was not the Vietnamese war, but about the operation of his aircraft carrier under battle conditions.

The Coral Sea is 973 feet long and has more than 4000 men serving aboard with a monthly payroll of $990,000. The average age of her crew is 26 but more than 1600 men are under 20.

THE SHIP STAYS out at sea for more than 40 days at a time with 36 of these days in combat position.

In order to stay at sea, the ship replenishes its stores daily from cargo vessels. Every three days the Coral Sea refuels, taking on more than one [illegible] gallons of aviation fuel and oil; 2000 gallons per minute are pumped into the ship.

Daily combat missions last more than 16 hours a day, starting well before dawn with maintenance of planes.

"IT IS INTERESTING to note," Captain Ault said, "that over 50 per cent of the combat sorties flown against the north are from carrier-based planes. Most of the missions take between one to two hours, but briefings take four hours or more while pilots determine their course of action from reports of flak sites and weather reports."

A pilot must have his plans completely worked out in his head. "When you're flying at twice the speed of sound, you have no time to make decisions," Ault said.

The captain said that planes taking off from the catapult go from zero to 190 miles per hour in a space of 120 feet.

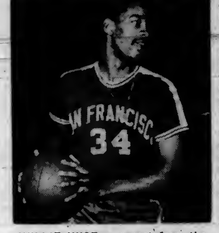
"After taking off it takes another 90 seconds to reach 40,000 feet and a speed twice that of sound," Ault added.

Easter Vacation Begins Friday

Classes will end this Friday for Easter vacation and will not be resumed until March 27, according to the college catalogue. No Guardsman will be out over vacation or the week immediately following. The next issue of The Guardsman will be available on April 5.

Though the G-staff is taking the break, the library staff will still be around. From March 20 to 23, the library will be open for those hard-working studious types from noon to 7 p.m. It, too, will be closed on March 24.

Midterm exams begin on March 31, and the last day to drop a class is April 12.



Rams Place Third In State Tourney

Pasadena Wins Championship; Williams Named All-Tourney

By Mike Duggan

City College defeated Imperial Valley, 84-73, to finish in third place in the state two-year college basketball championship tournament which concluded at Allan Hancock College in Santa Maria last Saturday night.

The Rams pulled in front 42-30, at halftime, and with 24 points apiece from Gene Williams and Darling Thomas walked away with an easy win. Willie Wise added 19 points to the cause as Sid Phelan's cagers finished the year with an identical won-lost record as last year, 30-3.

WILLIE WISE, a repeat from the 1966 All-Conference team, captured Player-of-the-Year honors with his 17.6 average and fine all-around play.

Pasadena (35-1), led by the tourney's most valuable player, John Trapp, defeated Long Beach, 89-79, to capture the title and dethrone three-time champion Riverside. Trapp was joined on the All-Tournament team by teammate Sam Robinson, Carey Bailey of Long Beach and Ram center Williams.

LONG BEACH (28-2) reached the finals by beating the Rams, 83-66, in semifinal action on Friday. Bailey, who was last year's tourney scoring leader (83 points), controlled both backboards while Long Beach steadily stretched a 37-29 halftime lead out of reach of the Rams. Williams was high man for City College with 20 points, while Thomas added 15, Larry Gray 11 and Wise 9.

Opening round action saw Phelan's squad break four records in trouncing defending champ Riverside, 119-101. The marks set were: most points (119), most field goals (51), best field goal percentage (63), and most points scored by two teams in a single game (220).

THESE MARKS LASTED only one day as San Joaquin Delta came back the following afternoon to beat Riverside in a record-shattering game, 150-120.

In the Ram's game against Riverside, a rematch of last year's championship game, Thomas hit on 17 fielders to finish with a seasonal high of 37 points. Wise, also hitting on a personal high, put through 34 markers as the usually defensive-minded Rams topped the century mark in scoring for the only time on the year.

BATMALE MISSED the final game with a sprained ankle, but his spot was capably filled by the Ram's other three backcourt men: Ray Hearne, Bill Locke and Gray.

Thomas finished as the team's top scorer for the three-day tournament with 76 points. All-Conference stars Wise and Williams followed Thomas with 52 and 50 points respectively.

San Joaquin, who after losing to Long Beach and scoring their big win over Riverside, took the consolation championship by defeating Laney, 115-93.

Wise, Williams Again Named To All-Conference

Ram forward Willie Wise was named Player-of-the-Year on the 1967 All-Golden Gate Conference basketball team announced last week.

Wise's teammate, shot-blocking center Gene Williams, was also named on the first team while Ram forward Darling Thomas received second team honors. Both Wise and Williams are repeaters from last year's all-star five.

1967 All-Conference

FIRST TEAM
Willie Wise	San Francisco
Gene Williams	San Francisco
Owney Williams	San Mateo
Don Lyons	Contra Costa
McKinley Reynolds	Contra Costa
SECOND TEAM
Don Crensbaw	Chabot
Steve Blaser	San Jose
Ed Tavis	Merritt
Darling Thomas	San Francisco
Boris Pesa	Chabot

RAMBLINGS — Tennis Coach—A Man With A Sporting Life

By Mike Duggan

TENNIS Coach Roy Diederichsen feels it very unlikely that his squad will come anywhere near the second place finish in the state achieved last year.

The main reason for such belief is the loss of Greg Shephard, now at San Jose State. Shephard was second in singles during the state championships last season, and teamed with George Pontikoff to finish second in doubles and gain enough points for the Rams to finish in the runner-up spot.

DIEDERICHSEN'S TENNIS teams of the past few seasons have had a knack of finishing high in the state. During the 1965 season, they came in fifth, after finishing third the previous year. The 1962 season saw City College take its first state championship in tennis. The netmen were led that year by Bob Siska, whom Diederichsen calls "the best tennis player I have ever coached."

Siska, a former Jr. Davis Cup member, proceeded the following year to pace Diederichsen's team to a first-even Golden Gate Conference crown. Until 1962, City College was a member of the Big Eight Conference.

Diederichsen was quite an athlete in his day, also. Following his high school career at Mission, where he twice led the city league in scoring while making the All-City basketball team both years, Diederichsen attended San Jose State College.

AT SAN JOSE, Diederichsen earned 13 letters in athletics ranging from basketball, boxing, soccer, tennis and baseball. Named to the All-Far West basketball squad, he also was four years All-Conference in soccer. In boxing, Diederichsen fought his way to runner-up Pacific Coast intercollegiate.

After his college career, Diederichsen went into officiating. A basketball referee from 1947-64, Diederichsen also officiated intercollegiate football from 1952-62. In addition, he had the honor of being named president of the Officials League. Diederichsen retired from officiating in 1964, but hasn't stopped coaching yet.

Diederichsen coached the boxing squad while it was a college sport, and instructed 20 Golden Gloves champions and 11 fighters who have since turned professional.

AS A SOCCER COACH, Diederichsen's teams have accumulated an almost unbelievable record, against two-year college competition, of 97 wins, one tie and no losses. Included in this achievement are four straight state championships, all at the expense of Victor Valley, and by the impressive scores of 4-0, 8-0, 14-0 and 12-0.

With such a record behind its coach, it is hoped that this season's tennis team will indeed by heard from, although Diederichsen calls it "a building year."

Sprinters Take Three Firsts

GERRY BOSCH, a former All-City outfielder, shows hitting form in recent game against Napa won by the Rams, 4-1.
—Guardsman photo by Rich Sandino

Trackmen Finish Fourth Place In League Relays

By John LeTourneau

The City College track team finished in a somewhat disappointing fourth place in the Golden Gate Conference Relays, March 4, at Foothill.

Contra Costa, San Jose and San Mateo finished in order ahead of the Rams. Diablo Valley finished two points behind the Rams for fifth place.

THE SPRINT RELAYS were the only bright spot for the Red and White, as they took first place in the 440, sprint medley and the 880-yard relays. The 880 time tied the meet record of 1:27.5 set in 1963. The relay, composed of Ernie Provost, Adam Banks, David Jones and Greg Jackson was very impressive since it was the only record of the meet.

Provost, Jones, Banks and Robbie Brinkley teamed up to take the 440-yard relay in the time of 41.9. Again it was Provost, Banks and Jones teaming up to pace the winning sprint medley to add to Hoy Henderson's final leg.

The distance relays and the field events were disasters for the Rams as they didn't place a single man in either division.

Saturday the Rams travel to Diablo Valley for a dual meet with the Gladiators. Coach Lou Vasquez of the Rams thinks this meet will be a toss-up, as a result of Diablo's fine showing in the conference relays. The following Saturday the Rams meet San Mateo and are underdogs because of the Bulldogs' power in the field events.

VASQUEZ WAS NOT surprised at the result of the conference relays. "I knew that we were weak in the field events, and consequently Contra Costa, San Jose and San Mateo would beat us if we didn't get superior performances," he said.

Vasquez also commented that the Rams are hurting in the mile and two mile as well as the weight events.

The high jump, broad jump and triple jump are not strong at the present time, but the acquisition of some basketball players should help. The cagers expected to help are Ray Hearne, who is the top high jumper, Darling Thomas and Larry Gray, who are long and triple jumpers. This should add depth in the field events and boost the entire team.

A 'Fight To The Finish' In Store For Ram Baseballers

By Bob Ferrando

The 1967 Golden Gate Conference baseball race should offer a well-balanced league, in which at least four teams should wage an interesting triple round robin league schedule.

Defending champion City College of San Francisco, along with Foothill, San Mateo and Chabot, appear to have the best chances of capturing this year's title.

The Rams recently ran their record to 6-1 by defeating Napa Valley College 4-1, on March 3 and walked away with a 16-2 romp over Santa Rosa March 7.

Tony Maganini and Larry Johnson combined efforts pitching a three-hit shoutout over Napa. Maganini struck out 13 during his six innings, and Johnson hurled the remaining three, striking out six.

PITCHING BY Bill Kirkpatrick and the hitting of Al Pasion highlighted the 16-2 clobbering of Santa Rosa. "Kirk" held the Cubs scoreless during the first seven innings while his teammates provided him with a 15-run lead. Pasion drove in five runs and scored three.

The Owls of Foothill College have six returning lettermen and some outstanding freshmen to build for the upcoming conference struggle.

The Los Altos Hills outfit will field a strong pitching staff with veterans Mike Noonan, Rich Lambson and Ben Bodding slated to do the major share of the pitching load.

COLLEGE OF SAN MATEO'S Bulldogs will put forth a predominantly freshman team as Coach John Noce lost almost all his entire starting nine from last year. The Bulldogs are blessed to have back some outstanding pitchers, headed by the league's top hurler last year, Norm Angleino.

The former Serra High School ace posted a great (10-1) with an earned-run-average of 1.64. Mike Young and T. J. Delbex, both heavy-duty hurlers last season, return along with freshmen Corky Phelps and Al Paganucchi.

CHABOT COLLEGE will put forth one of its best teams to represent them in the league race. The Gladiators have already won one title so far this season, the Santa Rosa baseball tournament crown, to show they will be contenders to watch out for.

The remaining four clubs, Diablo Valley, Merritt, Contra Costa and San Jose, could cause considerable trouble as most teams in preleague play are experimenting to find out who will be the best to mold into a starting nine.

—D.B.

San Jose 'Sinks' Ram Swimmers

City College swimmers, in their first Golden Gate Conference meet, were defeated by the San Jose City College team, 63-41, at San Jose.

The mermen were able to grab six of twelve first-place honors. The firsts came in the 400-yard medley relay, 50-yard freestyle, diving, 200-yard butterfly, 100-yard freestyle, and the 200-yard backstroke.

John O'Connor, Bill Pasquinelli, Frank Cercos and Bruno Van Rijn chopped a tenth of a second off their previous best in the 400-yard medley relay and swam away with the first-place honors in a City College record time of 3:58.5.

O'Connor also bagged firsts in the 50 and 100-yard freestyle events. Pasquinelli took honors in the backstroke with Cercos and David Detert helping with firsts in the butterfly and diving events.

16 Cage Squads In AMS League Competition

The Associated Men Student Intramural basketball competition will get underway this season with 16 teams doing battle on a two-nights-a-week basis.

Alpha Sigma Delta, Newman, Tamaraws, Hillel, Alpha Phi Epsilon, Alpha Kappa Rho, Phi Beta Delta and the Chinese Students make up the eight teams in the Club and Fraternity League which will play games on Tuesday nights, beginning March 28.

Tamaraws Babes, The Guardsman, Red Mountaineers, Knobs, Revisables, Felony Squad, Ram Ski and the Black Students Association make up the Independent League, which will play games on Wednesday nights beginning March 29.

The official game schedule will be made available to interested students through AMS President Ron Lent.

Chabot Duffers Club Rams For Second Defeat

The Ram golf team last week lost its second conference match in a row to a lowly-rated Chabot team, 26-9, at Castlewood Country Club.

Ken Kundert and Bob Fama tied for the low Ram score with 77, far behind the pace set by Chabot. Next in line for City College was Doug Boston with an 80, followed by Mike Leonardini (82) and Bob Blazer (88).

Coach Grover Klemmer emphasized that the Ram five may be on its way to improvement.

On Monday, March 6, the Rams defeated the University of San Francisco in a practice match at Sharp Park, and scored their lowest total all season. The team's first man, Kundert, fired a two-over par 74, and second man, Leonardini, had a 76. They were followed by Boston (74) and Fama (76).

The Rams won the match by a large margin, making the nonconference record two wins and one loss.

The golf team also played a practice match against the Olympic Club at Lakeside. Gary Corvi, of the Olympic Club, and Boston tied for low score with 77.

Contra Costa is scheduled as the Rams' next opponent in a re-match slated for Harding Park. Coach Klemmer stated that the team is planning to attend the Western Junior College Championships next week in Fresno.

—D.B.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 44 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, APRIL 5, 1967 NUMBER 4

Willie Brown Tells Of Negro Plight

Willie L. Brown Jr., San Francisco assemblyman who lectured on Negro problems here recently, pointed out that "The Negro is more American than anybody else."

Brown's discussion, based around race relations and the nature of discrimination, defended American Negroes and their effort to gain power because "good conduct" civil rights movements lack effectiveness.

A full report on Brown's talk can be found on page 3.

Police Harrassing Students?

By Viggo Petersen

The removal of the Campus Police from the Statler wing area may be the start of improved relations between City College students and enforcement officers on the campus, which, up until this point, has not been very favorable, according to a recent survey of students.

In an interview conducted on the campus, it was revealed that of the overwhelming majority of those interviewed, some strong dissension existed between themselves and what was sometimes referred to as Campus Police harassment.

TWO PREDOMINANT FACTORS loomed high among student feelings toward Campus Police officials—that of what they felt were overly strict parking regulations and the "belligerent attitudes" of the members of the force.

A coed revealed her feeling by saying, "I don't mind the presence of Campus Police in the cafeteria, and I am not going to complain if I am dutifully made aware of the fact that I am violating the prescribed laws of this campus. If I violate a college regulation, I am fully prepared to face the consequences."

"WHAT I DON'T UNDERSTAND," the coed continued, "is why the Campus Police officers must be quite so ornery. Why must they take on this tough guy attitude? It's really very unbecoming of them and I don't think at all a very good reflection on the college."

One student, given to profanities, said he was appalled at the way the Campus Police comb the campus area on patrols conducting "extensive examinations" of automobiles and giving out tickets for what he described as "petty violations."

The student complained bitterly of the fact that he was a full-time student at the college and working part time and said he felt he "had enough to worry about without putting up with harrassment in the form of traffic tickets."

Another student was of the opinion that the parking regulations become increasingly strict around midterm and finals period as a form of what he called harrassment.

"LET ME TELL YOU," the student said, "it's quite a thing to sit through a couple of midterm examinations after you've been up half the night studying, get out to your car, dump your books on your seat and start to relax and light up and look up to find a five-buck tag staring you in the face. Believe me sometimes it's just the final touch to make you really flip out.

"That happened to me once," the student said, "for not having my wheels at a proper degree of inches curbed to the left. The car was sitting on a grade that was so slight that the car probably wouldn't have rolled even if I didn't have my emergency brake set and the gears in park."

Other students, in describing police practices, complained of discourtesy, general lack of patience and receiving back talk. Many times the students said it was not for a legitimate reason.

LARRY LAWSON, head of the criminology department and supervisor of the Campus Police, refutted most of the charges saying that if there is any student-police dissension on the campus he is unaware of it.

He suggested that if there are strong feelings among students regarding police behavior the students should let the police department know about it, indicating that proper disciplinary action would be taken against any officer who has a "justifiable" complaint lodged against him.

Lawson agreed that it was somewhat "unfair" for an officer to seemingly go out of his way to look for minor parking violations and said he could understand a person being irritated at such action, but indicated that students could let their feelings be known by either appearing at the Campus Police office in person, in room 119 of Cloud Hall, or writing to the office.

The main duties of the Campus Police are to direct traffic as a safeguard to pedestrians and cite cars illegally parked.

Complaints or compliments can also be addressed to the Ram's Horn.

College Administration OK's Police-Free Cafeteria

By Michael Wise

Removal of the Campus Police from the cafeteria is to become effective beginning today.

The police will be replaced by a set of guidelines to the present rules of conduct governing the cafeteria, Dean Ralph Hillsman said. Each student using the cafeteria will be asked to enforce these regulations in order to keep the police patrols out of the cafeteria.

THE FOLLOWING is the text of the new guidelines, as approved by City College President Louis Conlan and Dean Hillsman:

"As mature college students, you are placed in a position of responsibility in regard to the use of your cafeteria. To help you keep your cafeteria running smoothly and safely, the following guidelines should be observed by all:

"1. Please keep the aisles open enough so that traffic may pass through easily.

"2. Please aid the cafeteria workers in keeping your cafeteria clean and pleasant.

"3. Please cooperate with the cafeteria staff, so that they may be able to serve you more efficiently and make your use of the cafeteria more enjoyable."

These new regulations were drawn up by two Sophomore Councilmen, Rich Christensen and Ron Melander, last week. The regulations were then submitted to President Conlan for approval on March 28.

THE POLICE-CAFETERIA controversy has been brewing in the Student Council ever since the beginning of the semester, when elected Change party candidates finally had the opportunity to fulfill campaign promises to remove the Campus Police from Smith Hall and Statler wing.

This issue came to a boil at a special meeting on March 16, composed of representatives from the Student Council, the Administration, the Hotel and Restaurant department and the Police and Criminology department.

According to James Wyatt, assistant dean of student activities, the meeting didn't significantly change the situation. He added, "The cafeteria problems were not solved. The meeting was bogged down with oratory, and many persons were there who should not have been there."

Major outcome of the meeting, reported to be for consideration of alternatives to Campus Police responsibilities, was development of guidelines.

AFTER THE MEETING, President Conlan agreed that as soon as guidelines to the rules in the cafeteria were presented to and approved by him, and then printed and distributed to the students, the police would be removed.

Campus Police Deputy Chief Mike McLucas felt that if police were removed from the cafeteria, they could be instantly notified of any trouble. He also emphasized, "The cafeteria staff has a phone to contact us with. We're only a minute away."

When asked about his reaction to the then possible removal of police from Smith Hall and Statler wing, McLucas quickly replied, "We would be grateful if we could leave."

This marks the first time since 1946 that the cafeteria has not been under supervision of a special authoritative group. The Campus Police have been in the cafeteria since October of 1963.

Reading Techniques Program To Be Held Saturday

Good Teaching Techniques In Reading, a program of interest to teachers, teachers-to-be and parents will be held at City College all day Saturday, April 8, announced Lester Tarnpol, program coordinator and instructor here.

The keynote speaker, Dr. Barbara Bateman, is "one of the most respected workers in the field of teaching children with learning disorders," according to Tarnopol.

The program will include closed-circuit TV demonstrations of methods used in actual classrooms, and workshops will be conducted by experienced personnel concerning a wide variety of related subjects.

Displays of new teaching materials and an arts and crafts exhibit by educationally handicapped children will be featured.

The program runs from 8:30 a.m. through 3:30 p.m. Registration, including lunch, is $4.50 and tickets are available from Mrs. William Zemanek, 2012 Sloat Blvd., San Francisco 94116. Information is available by calling 681-0410.

Council Considers Distributing Birth Control Literature

By Lori Pittman

Councilman Paul Shuttleworth has been visiting with the Planned Parenthood Association concerning his proposal before Student Council for a birth control program on campus.

Last Wednesday he submitted a supplementary budget request, which was accepted, for $180 to purchase 4500 pamphlets entitled Modern Methods Of Birth Control.

These pamphlets are to be distributed during orientation next semester to all incoming students who are interested. As Shuttleworth put it, the cost for all of these pamphlets is only "about one-third the rate for an abortion."

Meanwhile, Council, after much debate, voted to approve the right of any and all student political parties to be in full active existence on campus. This resolution, submitted by Councilman Rich Christensen, gives student political parties the right to continue their activities throughout the year instead of only during elections.

The issue had been brought before and defeated previously by COO.

James Dierke, Council Of Organizations chairman, brought in two pieces of legislation to council and both passed. One was a recommendation to open the library on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The other was a resolution to install a coke machine in the student government bungalow.

A resolution from last semester that evidently had not reached the administration concerning first-day registration for veterans was resubmitted by Councilman Ron Bianco. It was passed by acclamation and later followed by a resolution that all recommendations and resolutions would be forwarded to the administrative offices.

Council will be holding special elections for a new councilman on April 10 to fill the vacancy left by Councilman Jerry Vanger who joined the Navy. Anyone wishing to run must submit his petition to Bungalow 5 by today. Bruce Lieberman was voted in as Publicity Chairman after Skip Archibald joined the Marines.

Three representatives for the California Junior College Student Government State Convention were selected by the council and cabinet after each candidate gave a short speech. Those selected to attend are Councilwoman Pat Fiuren and Councilmen Christensen and Ron Melander.

Slum Combatant Alinsky To Lecture On Poverty Pitfalls During C-Hour Tomorrow

By Glynn Petrie

Saul David Alinsky, sociologist and controversial protagonist of slum alleviation, will speak on the failings of poverty programs, in the college theater during College Hour tomorrow, according to Warren White, head of the Student-Faculty Concert and Lecture Series.

Alinsky is the executive director of the Industrial Areas Foundation, a nonprofit organization in Chicago which attempts to organize leadership in slums in order to enable the underprivileged to force improvement to existing conditions. The organization pursues a policy of agitation to achieve these aims.

A FUROR RAGED last semester over whether Alinsky should be asked to speak on campus. The opposition, headed by Councilman Paul Shuttleworth, proposed a resolution that the college should not give "a professional revolutionist," as he termed Alinsky, the "cloak of respectability" by inviting him to lecture and paying him out of the Associated Student fund.

Council defeated the proposed resolution by a vote of 5-8-1, and Alinsky was subsequently invited to appear by Concert and Lecture Series members.

Opposing the method of implementation of the federal war on poverty, Alinsky has termed the program "the greatest boondoggle and feeding trough that's come along for the welfare industry in years" and "a prize piece of political pornography."

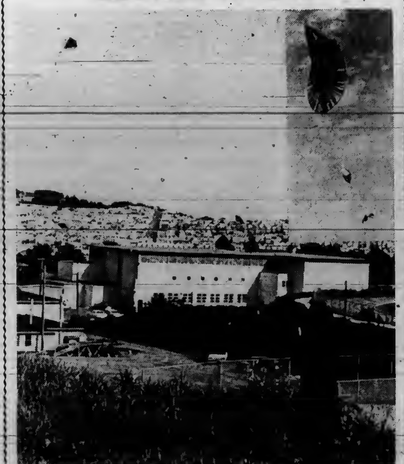
Denounced as a Communist, a fascist, a segregationist, an integrationist, a pawn of the Catholic church and an anti-Catholic, Alinsky has stated that he desires opposition for it enables him to more easily marshall slum forces against those he considers responsible for bad conditions.

Believing that the underprivileged must fight to get what they need and training his efforts in this direction, Alinsky has said, "American society will fulfill its historical destiny only if it feeds on dissonance and controversy."

Alinsky has been the chief founder of Negro community organizations in Rochester, New York (FIGHT—Freedom, Integration, God, Honor, Today) and in Woodlawn, Illinois (TWO—The Woodlawn Organization). He usually comes to a community at the behest of local clergymen concerned with easing slum problems.

The Industrial Areas Foundation, created in 1940, offers training courses for clergymen in the organizing of slum dwellers in order to obtain improvements in community welfare.

ALINSKY IS CURRENTLY contemplating starting a similarly oriented training center in San Francisco's Mission District.



Born in 1909, Alinsky studied sociology and criminology at the University of Chicago. Working as a sociologist, he had contact with members of the Al Capone gang and was engaged in the criminology field.

In 1939 Alinsky embarked on his present career of social work. He has not confined his activities to Negro slums but has applied his energies to Mexican-American slums also and is interested in clearance of all types of ghetto-slums.

Alinsky has written several articles and books. His books include Reveille For Radicals (written while in jail) and John L. Lewis (an unauthorized biography).

Alinsky currently resides in Chicago but has a summer home in Carmel, California. He has lately considered moving to Oakland permanently.

Homework

THERE ARE MANY WAYS to spend a break. Some students spend their time in intellectual pursuit in the library, others in pursuit of intellectuals in the cafeteria, or others in just plain pursuit.

AT FIRST GLANCE IT WOULD appear that the coed above, Ann Nordstrom, might have taken some advice just a little too literally. But, in reality, she is only following instructions.

MISS NORDSTROM'S INSTRUCTOR, Paul Crowley, must be some kind of idol for the faculty at the college. In essence, Crowley told his sculpture class to go fly a kite. However the sentiment which is usually associated with this statement was missing since it was a straight assignment to "design and fly" a kite as a project.

AND FROM ITS FANCY DESIGN, Miss Nordstrom indeed took her assignment seriously. —Guardsman photo by Bob Briscoe

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

ACP Associated Collegiate Press

Vol. 64, No. 4 WEDNESDAY, APRIL 5, 1967 Page 2

Council Given Chance: Prove Students Responsible In Cafe

THE ADMINISTRATION deserves credit for a smart decision regarding the removal of the police from the cafeteria.

Louis Conlan, president of the college, has made a smooth move.

Student Council has made a big issue of the Campus Police supervision in the cafeteria, feeling that college students should be allowed, and are responsible enough, to govern their own actions in the cafeteria. The issue is old and well known by the students on campus.

What is new, is the fact that council has received an answer to their pleas. In essence, council has been told to put their responsibility where their resolution is.

President Conlan has stated that the Campus Police will be removed from the cafeteria when council has drawn up a set of rules for the students which are acceptable to him.

If the rules which have been accepted by Conlan are not successfully followed by the students, then Conlan will have to go back to some other alternative which does not necessarily mean the police would return.

The rules sent to Conlan by council requested students to (1) keep aisles clear, (2)*keep litter to a minimum, (3) and to cooperate with the cafeteria staff.

The proof will be in the students. Council can ask for nothing more than this—a chance. If the rules are followed, it will mean that the times and students have changed—since the honor system in the past had failed after one week.

Labelled And Recorded

Frisco's Dead Finally Born

By Marty Arbunich

THE GRATEFUL DEAD certainly don't live up to their name; they're far from being dead.

Two weeks ago the Grateful Dead, San Francisco's finest contribution to the rock scene since the Jefferson Airplane, gained national exposure by releasing their initial Warner Brothers' album entitled simply The Grateful Dead.

Verdict: the LP is an unusual and intriguing collection of sounds typical of the San Francisco ballroom style and is organized in an appealing arrangement of musical variety.

THE DEAD, as their followers term them, have a unique sound which draws from almost every popular musical expression of today. Their music ranges freely from popular and Berry rock to rhythm and blues, among other idioms.

Their idiomatic shift is apparent even within the span of a single song. Viola Lee Blues, as an example, a ten-minute cut from the album, originates as a blues vocal, winds into a fast-moving instrumental and eventually opens up into a wild instrumental which literally grinds itself to death at the ultimate clash of organ, drums and guitars. At this point the original blues vocal picks up again to complete a cycle and the track.

This is a fine example of the Dead's versatility in expression which they somehow have also molded into compatible idiomatic fusion.

JERRY GARCIA, the Dead's lead guitarist and undoubtedly an admirer of the renowned Chuck Berry, recreates the noted Berry twangs periodically throughout the disc.

Beat It On Down The Line and Sittin' On Top Of The World, a pair of cuts very reminiscent of the famous Berry guitar and vocal presentations are superbly conducted by the group. The only thing really missing is Berry himself, but that's minor!

The Dead's Ron McKernan, better known as Pig Pen to his fans, injects his heart and soul into Tim Rose's popular Morning Dew (this one's five minutes long, though) and the result is dazzling. The Dead's version is a bit slower than Rose's and their lyrics are much clearer—definite advantages to listening who pursue lunacy.

THE DEAD'S first single release, The Golden Road, is also included on the album. It's an interesting selection, but definitely not the most outstanding song on the disc. 'Dew' and Cold Rain and Snow easily overshadow it.

The Dead's chances of pulling through nationally are promising even though they haven't recorded any single tune capable of really 'turning on' the entire nation. But their album as a whole definitely has capabilities.

BITS & PIECES . . . Watch out for Neil Diamond's fifth single, Girl, You'll Be A Woman Soon, on Bang. It's bound to hit hard; possibly his best yet . . . Give them two weeks and Eric Burdon and the Animals should head the charts with When I Was Young . . . Hangup the Spencer Davis Group now that lead singer Steve Winwood is gone. I'm A Man, their latest, though, has Winwood and his soul sound . . . Keith of 98.6 has abandoned his solo career and has gone combo with his newly formed Wild Kingdom . . . Why are dee jays bypassing the talent of Richard and the Young Lions (Phillips) and their Open Up Your Door?

'TIS A HAPPENING . . . The Jefferson Airplane and the Buffalo Springfield headling a concert for the Saint Ignatius Building Fund Friday night at USF gymnasium . . . The Charlatans, the Sparrow and Canned Heat are at the Avalon this week . . . The Fillmore hosts the Chambers Brothers, the Quicksilver Messenger Service and Sandy Bull for the coming weekend . . . UC's Jazz Festival '67 open to the public, is set for this weekend. 'Big Mama' Thornton, John Handy and others will perform.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

(Letters to the Ram's Horn may be left with the telephone operator in Science Hall or in The Guardsman office, S-304. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. The Guardsman reserves the right to edit letters in the interests of brevity and rhetoric. If so desired the writer's name will be withheld, but the identity of the writer must be known to the editor.)

• Conjested Sidewalks

Editor:

Between class periods, there is extreme pedestrian congestion on the narrow sidewalks between the Science Hall-Cloud Hall area and the arts building and cafeteria areas. This congestion forces students to walk on the grass. Some of the students slip and fall, particularly when the grass is wet.

To reduce the congestion and, as a safety feature, the sidewalks should be widened. Might not this be done by the construction men now on campus?

Ray F. Beitz

A Dog And Her Man

AFTER BEING PUSHED around by the photographer in search of the right position, Belle retreated to her master's side for protection . . . and alas, pleased the photographer too.

Collegiate Canine Faithful Eyes Of Student Jim Stasch

By Lori Pittman

Ah yes, it's a dog's life . . . or so Belle must think as she sits and groans through her tri-weekly philosophy class.

Groaning is pretty normal for some students in certain classes, and Belle seems to have picked philosophy as her "groaning class" though she isn't a normal student. She's a dog.

Unlike most, Belle doesn't live the regular dog's carefree life. She has a job to do . . . and it isn't learning philosophy. She is a seeing-eye dog for a young man who is interested in philosophy, psychology and education in general.

JIM STASCH, Belle's master, explained that Belle really doesn't seem too intrigued by any of her classes. Instead, he said, she seems to be majoring in eating.

Another of her habits, a sort of replacement for the nervous doodling of some students, is that of licking the floor. (Custodians beware! That spot may be overwashed by now.) Of course, it could be that she gets thirsty. Stasch explained that she has a preference for her own drinking dish at home.

While Belle doodles in her own private way, Stasch is busy taking notes in braille. It's slow," he said. "I try to use only the key words."

UNDECIDED OF HIS MAJOR, Stasch is interested mainly in knowledge. After high school he started out as a concert pianist. He gave some concerts but, according to him, "nothing big." Deciding that he would never make it he switched to pop music.

Until returning to college he has played and sung in a variety of night clubs, restaurants and things like that. He worked for awhile at notorious Sally Stanford's The Ballahalla and later at Veneto's restaurant here in the city.

Seeking something "more rewarding, challenging and creative," Stasch became a student here with Belle as his guide and companion. Belle has a remarkable memory for the rooms she has been in, Stasch explained, but at home without her harness on she is just a dog.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1967

EDITOR IN CHIEF.....RICHARD HEINTZ
Managing and Feature Editor.....Connie Skipitares
Staff Editor.....Marty Arbunich
News Editor.....Steven Hara
Sports Editor.....Mike Duggan
Contributing Writers..William C. Fates, Bea Takeuchi
Editorial Assistants: John Janigian, John LeTourneau.
Reporters: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, John Hannack, Doreen Ng, Phillip Pianezzi, Lori Pittman, Ron Wong, Carol Brett, Ed Holmes, Glynn Petrie.
Cub Reporters: Berry Brown, Ron Lent, Leni Silver, Lee Smith, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf, Franklin Jackson.
Photographers: Bob Briscoe, chief; John C. Renz, Truman Tong, Jose Fireside, Richard Sandino, Mac F. Goding, Rich Spitaleri, Ron O'Brien, Chris Rozales, Chip Stevens, Jim Tsang.
Faculty Adviser.....Joan Nourse

Member Associated Collegiate Press
1966-1967

On The RAMpage

Soviet Schools Want Cultural 'Refinement'

By Connie Skipitares

A GROUP of Soviet educators has recently expressed concern about what they consider the weakness of Russian schools in art and music classes.

At a surprising round-table discussion last month, a major breakthrough in education was achieved when the educators began endorsing such "fine arts" classes for all 10 grades of Soviet grammar and high schools. This would affect the crux of the Russian pupil population—a group ranging in age from 7 to 17.

Singing and drawing are now taught only to smaller children. The teachers often are not specialists in these subjects, and participants in the round-table discussion fervently supported training specialists, an obvious reversal from previous educational trends in this area.

THE DISCUSSION was organized and reported by Sovetskaya Kultura, the newspaper of the ministry of culture. Taking part were school principals and teachers, representatives of the ministry of education, members of the academy of pedagogical sciences and the scientific research institute of artistic education, and others interested in "esthetic education."

The newspaper itself assailed the practice of leaving cultural education to scattered "enthusiasts," those who because of their own love of art and music take these up with their pupils. Instead, the journal widely supported a total training program for instructors in liberal arts.

As Soviet schools are known to stress technical and practical subjects as part of the Union's struggle to advance materially, such things as music and art tend to be considered unimportant and are given little attention.

THE CULTURAL EXPERTS argue that "esthetic education" would make better citizens.

V. Beloworodova, of the Research Institute of Artistic Development, took the line that esthetic education helps morality, something in which the state is very interested.

Teachers occasionally chime in with stories of difficult children who become model pupils through the influence of culture.

COMMENT WAS also included about the prevalent male-female relations that existed. "Look at the way our boys treat girls," the experts stammer. "Sometimes their behavior is quite crude. But if they are educated in the music of Tchaikovsky, Grieg and other great composers, they will feel the beauty of life. They will become spiritually richer."

Kinda makes one take a closer look at how students who have been "fortunate" enough to be exposed to the humanities react to life and the way in which they relate to persons of the opposite sex.

Is education in this field a necessary determinant in insuring success in life and in male-female relationships?

Jazz Combo To Aid Cause Of AS Parenthood

By Ed Holmes

Members of the Associated Students have quite a lot in common with Senator Robert Kennedy and Tallulah Bankhead—also Conrad Hilton, Raymond Burr and Henry Cabot Lodge.

Would you believe it's the responsibility for the education and welfare of a foster child; it's true. The AS legally adopted Van Vahn Thanh, an 8-year-old Vietnamese boy, almost a year ago.

So you're a father. Or mother. Sound incredible? Don't panic, you have lots of company and there will be no diapers to change. The AS, along with the celebrities mentioned and several thousand other individuals and groups, have joined Foster Parents Plan, Inc. to support needy children overseas.

It works this way. The individual or group sends $180 a year to Foster Parents headquarters in New York and they insure that the child and his family receive a monthly allowance in native currency plus useful gifts.

Doesn't sound like much? Thanh and his parents and four brothers and sisters were living on 83 cents a day until the AS stepped in. Through Foster Parents the monthly income has been increased by more than 25 per cent, medical care is available, clothing has been distributed and Thanh is able to go to school.

One report placed him second in his class last semester. Paul Shuttleworth, soph councilman, sums it up this way:

"It's a good program and the child is getting a lot of benefit from it. The money is definitely not going to waste; it's keeping at least one person in Vietnam healthy."

Well and good, but where's the money coming from? Each year an allotment is made from student funds. This year, to add a little flavor, the money will come from the proceeds of a jazz concert.

On May 10, the Bola Sete combo will appear on a college-sponsored program. The first $180 off the top goes to Thanh and his family.

Friendliness Ups Student Pressure

When the going seems to be getting real rough and the pressure is at a boiling point, the college student is often helped out by a "friendly" instructor.

He is the instructor who decides to give his midterm early so that the student will have one less exam to study for during midterm week.

Although may persons might think this very considerate of the "friendly" instructor, it can present many problems. What would happen if a student has five or six "friendly" instructors? This lucky student would have to finish his studying a week or more in advance of the regular schedule.

There is a week designated at the end of each of the first two periods in which midterm examinations are supposed to be given.

Last week was the first midterm week for this semester. This was good scheduling for most students, because March 18 to 27 was Easter vacation, and students had plenty of time to study.

Not so. For those who have "friendly" instructors Easter vacation was spent egg coloring, kite flying—and Be-Ining.—T. D.

The Observer

By William G. Pates

UNITED STATES troops roll through the Iron Triangle and elsewhere in the name of freedom and democracy "liberating" the Vietnamese from the Communist tyranny—razing their villages, removing them from their ancestral homes, bulldozing and burning their crops and homes, and the people do not understand.

And there is going to be more of the same; much more.

MORE BOMBING of North and South and shelling of the North from the sea and across the demilitarized zone against military targets and an occasional village, more mining of land and rivers, more troop offensives in the Mekong Delta and the highlands, more incendiary and biological chemical drops to defoliate the countryside, more troops, more military appropriations, more risk of a greater war, more accidental strafings and bombing of American troops and South Vietnamese village—wiping them off the face of the earth—more widows and orphans, more transports winging into Travis Air Force Base burdened with more reusable aluminum cases containing the bodies of the Vietnam dead and more new rows of white grave markers in Golden Gate National Cemetery and elsewhere.

The purpose of all this is to force the enemy from his lair and make it permanently uninhabitable. Scorch the enemy's earth. But then when it is all over, if that day should ever come, what will there be to come back to for the Vietnamese? A primitive country—devastated.

IN DEFENSE of Vietnam, Vice President Hubert Humphrey states that "We have nothing to apologize for," while President Johnson declares that his policy had helped ". . . lay the cornerstone for a diverse and independent Asia, full of promise and resolute in the cause of peaceful economic development." LBJ and HHH are apparently fighting a different war in a different Vietnam in a different world.

Risk exists in any course we take if we seek to make the future days secure. Yet the one the President has embarked upon, that of a military victory involving a steadily increasing military effort, is certainly the riskiest of all.

Johnson contends that the United States will not reduce activities until there is some reduction on the other side and that the country is committed to the defense of South Vietnam until an honorable peace can be negotiated. An honorable peace in the President's language means absolute surrender by the various Communist forces, nothing less.

It is the President's duty to lead, to challenge and to inspire. He can set the mood of a nation if he wants to and if he knows how. This President has succeeded in leading the people down the road to high expectations of an imminent settlement of this war only to have them crushed on the rocks of escalation.

Every time the Commander-in-Chief says that this will be a long, drawn-out war it is a signal that escalation of some phase of the conflict is in order and that then the war will be longer and more drawn out than before. We face more cost, more loss and more agony, for the end is not in sight.

OUR EFFORTS in the field, it is said, have frustrated the enemy's main forces depriving them of victory. But although they cannot win the United States has not obtained victory. Viet Cong guerillas are capable of fighting on for years, as they have for the last twenty-two.

Our greatest test is to bring to the villages an effective government that they can respect and rely on—giving them a stake in that government. Unless a natural non-Communist political base can be nurtured the American bloodletting will have been fruitless and the struggle against organized Communism lost.

AT ISSUE as well is the question as to whether it is worth more American lives to deny the Communists a political stake in their own country.

In restitution for the devastation the President will have to bring the Great Society to Vietnam; there is no other way. We will build roads, bridges, homes, schools, clinics, dams and another TVA. "We will bring them the good life," as Senator Fulbright sarcastically put it, "at vast cost to this country," but "It will not result in an acceptable society from the point of view of the Asians."

A tremendous, costly, long enduring task in peace is still ahead of us.

Hotel Flick Draws Scholarship Cash

By Ed Holmes

The benefit, premier of Hotel held in the St. Francis theater March 16 was an outstanding success, according to Louis Batmale, coordinator of technical terminal programs.

"We made more than $3000 for the Hotel and Restaurant scholarship fund and, equally important, we gained considerable good will toward the college," Batmale said.

Hotel, a fast-paced, smoothly-flowing film now showing at the St. Francis and the Geneva Drive-In, is well worth seeing.

The action centers in a fine old New Orleans hotel, and the story concerns the interweaving of the lives and fortunes of people temporarily brought together under the umbrella of courteous hospitality that is the trademark of this particular house.

There is a duke (Michael Rennie) trapped in a malfunctioning elevator with an incorrigible thief (Karl Malden), while a duchess (Merle Oberon) is consorting with a crooked house dick (Richard Conte) to suppress a fatal hit-and-run.

Rod Taylor, the cool-headed manager, finds Catherine Spaak, Parisian traveling companion of a rival hotel chain owner, undressing in his apartment, but the viewer is left with the impression that they overcome this and live happily ever after in the best of Hollywood tradition.

The setting and photography capture the flavor of New Orleans nicely, but anyone familiar with that city will know photography alone would miss an important element. Johnny Keating's original musical score fills in the last gap, however; and with Carmen McRae's fine vocalizing, the movie looks, feels and sounds like New Orleans.

Hotel's script does stray at times from Arthur Hailey's novel of the same name, but as the author has said, "books and movies are different forms of entertainment." Hailey felt the changes produced a good movie and this reviewer sees no reason to disagree.

Eleventh Annual Blood Drive Offers Benefits To Donors

One of the college's "most worthwhile activities," the City College Blood Drive, will be held April 27 and 28, according to Ralph O. Hillsman, dean of students.

For the past five years the Blood Drive here has been unmatched by any other college on the entire Pacific Coast, said Hillsman. No other college blood fund makes such generous provisions for donators. A donor may make one withdrawal from the Blood Bank during the year of donation.

A donor is allowed an unlimited amount for himself or his immediate family. (Immediate family is defined as a mother, father, brother, sister, wife, husband or child.) Or a donor may withdraw a maximum of eight pints for any person of his choosing who needs blood.

IT IS WISE for all students to donate for their own benefit; one never knows when they or a family member will need it, Hillsman surmised.

The drive is open to all students over 18 years, faculty, civil service employees of the college and college alumni.

Special commendation has been received by the college for its fine work on the Blood Drive from the City and County of San Francisco through the mayor's office and from the State of California through the governor's office.

THE BALANCE of unused blood from the fund is contributed to the Veterans' Hospitals and to the San Francisco Disaster Fund. Approximately 750 pints have thus far been donated.

The 11th annual Blood Drive is sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council, of which Jim Firth is the student chairman. A Blood Drive rally will be held on April 27 in the men's gymnasium to kick off the affair with big-name talent as in past years. Previous drives have met with overwhelming success and the same is expected again, Hillsman said.

Area Six Opposes Reagan Policies

Five resolutions opposing Governor Ronald Reagan's public education policies and a reprimand to the parent organization were passed in a stormy session of the Area Six conference.

In a day-long convention March 11, action ranged from recommending a standard system for numbering courses at all state-supported schools to writing a letter informing Governor Reagan that he is mistaken in assuming the state junior college system is merely an extension of high school and a large baby-sitting organization.

Through a resolution proposed by City College and authored by Associated Student President Joe Parnell, the assembly demanded equal representation at all state conventions of student government leaders.

"In an up-coming convention to be held in Los Angeles, Southern California has pre-empted all the workshop chairmanships," Parnell said. "We intend to see that it doesn't happen again."

Only two proposals brought to the general assembly met defeat. The first was designed to allow anyone with the time to audit all "hobby" courses on a free, no-grade no-credit basis. The second proposed substituting VISTA and Peace Corps service for military service.

Hawaiian Atmosphere To Set Mood For Spring AWS Fashion Show-Tea

Smith Hall will be "unrecognizable" tomorrow as palm leaves, silhouettes and leis set the pace for Springtime Hawaiian Style, the Associated Women Student Fashion Show and Tea, beginning at 3 p.m. and lasting until 5 p.m. The 12 Best-Dressed Coeds will model the newest spring fashions.

Dean Mary Golding announced that the fashions, from Livingston's, will be shown to an anticipated group of 1000 women students. Spectators will be able to wear mumu's or springtime dresses, to get into the mood.

While munching on one of the 400 brownies, or 400 petit fours, among other delicacies, the women can observe the commentator, Carolyn Wolmuth, fashion coordinator for Livingston's, present the colorful fashions.

THE 12 CONTESTANTS of Glamour's Best-Dressed Coed contest will be the models along with the Queen of the Sweetheart Ball, and the President of the Sophomore class. The attractive models will be:

Sharon Anglin, Sharon Pong, Jackie Garrett, Judy Guild, Cynthia Howard, Diane Lattimer, Dixie Ludomer, Darlene Owyoung, Sandy Reynolds, Patricia Smith, Kristie Thallanger, Varia Tyree and Colleen Williams.

The alternates will be Joannie Lung, Judy Lyon, Patricia Plumber, Bobbie Scheurer, Ann Wynn and Lorraine Yung.

HAWAIIAN MUSIC will set the mood for the presentation of the awards. Laurel Glass, a member of the Board of Education of San Francisco, will announce the Best-Dressed Coed and the freshman coed who achieved the highest grade-point average for the first midterm period.

Hawaiian entertainment, a steel guitar, and hostesses in mumu's will help to make Springtime Hawaiian Style, "a most enjoyable Fashion Show and Tea," Dean Golding commented.

Six faculty members will act as judges in selecting this college's Best-Dressed Coed. This semester's judges will be Madison Devlin, Lene Johnson, Marcelline McDermott, John O'Brien, Edna Pope and Wallace E. Wells.

LINETTE WONG, AWS president (top), Joyce Collins, fashion co-ordinator and Nadia Dughman, set-up chairman.
—Guardsman photo by Bob Briscoe

IFC Pledge Week Starts April 10

Inter-Fraternity Council's Pledge week officially gets underway next Monday, April 10.

Jim Firth, current IFC chairman, along with Bob Jones, rushing chairman, will be in charge of making the new pledges from the six fraternities feel "special" for one week.

Dean James Wyatt, IFC adviser, stated that Pledge Week games would begin next Tuesday in Ram stadium. Pledges will engage in events including egg-throwing and three-legged races. Only fraternity pledges will participate, however, the general student body is invited to observe, safely, from the stands, Dean Wyatt said.

On Thursday, April 13, IFC will sponsor a pledge rally at the Ram during College Hour.

Climax of the week's activities will be an IFC couple dance held in Smith Hall from 9 p.m. to midnight.

Fil-Am Sponsors Musical Variety In Theater Friday

The Philippine-American club will be holding its third annual musical variety, The Philippine Scene, Friday in the college theater.

The show, which includes an art exhibit in the theater lobby prior to curtain time, features The Maligayan Dance Troupe who performed recently at the Jack Tar hotel.

Cesar Del Rosario speaking for the club, said that the troupe will perform 20 authentic Philippine folk dances. They include Tinikling, performed with bamboo poles requiring great dexterity; Pandago Sa Ilaw, the candle dance and Binasuan, the wine dance.

Guest star Fei Scott will do a Samoan fire dance using razor-sharp, flaming knives. Music will be provided by the club's combo.

Lucas C. Madamba, president of the club, wrote the script and will narrate the program as well as perform in various skits portraying the history of the 7000 islands that are the Philippines.

Madamba, who uses the name Ben Quick, was formerly a child star before coming to the United States.

The club's faculty adviser, Joe Thorn, will put the proceeds from the performance into the club's scholarship fund. Admission is $1.50 with an Associated Student card. Curtain time for the performance is 8 p.m.

As they say in the Philippines, "Magsaya tayong lahat"—let's all have fun!

Willie Brown Advocates Negro Equality By Militancy

By Glynn Petrie

The American Negro's life can best be described as "a living hell," according to Willie L. Brown Jr., assemblyman from San Francisco's 18th district, who spoke at the theater during College Hour March 16.

The subject of the lecture, which was supposed to be Ghettos—Causes, Problems And Cures, turned out to be What It's Like To Be A Negro In Urban Society. Brown spoke primarily on race relations and the nature of discrimination.

Slavery, which Brown termed "an episode in American history almost as shameful as Vietnam today," entailed a "constant brainwashing" and "a deliberate effort to instill in blacks the idea that they were less than human." This effort continues even today.

DESPITE THIS, the flicker of freedom and desire for equality remained in the Negro and erupted in several slave revolts before slavery was abolished. But even after emancipation, legislatures and courts convinced the Negro that he was still not free, Brown said.

"The Negroes are the only ones who believe in the Constitution," Brown declared. "The whites use it to exploit and the Negro goes to court to try to get the whites to live up to it." Brown also stated that Negroes are trying to keep Thomas Jefferson and the others who wrote the Constitution from being liars.

He remarked that it was not surprising that Negroes strike out in frustration against a discrimination which he characterized as not overt but nonetheless there. Brown cited the reluctance of whites to sit with Negroes on the city's buses as an example of this type of frustrating discrimination.

CHALLENGING THE IDEA that Negroes should "earn" their equality, the San Francisco assemblyman pointed out that the most educated and cultured Negro is subject to the same discriminatory practices as the Negro on the lowest level of the social scale.

"To be a black man in America is to be in a rage," said Brown, quoting James Baldwin. This is because the peaceful attempts to "prick America's moral conscience" through the civil rights movements has been to no avail.

Brown perceived the lack of effectiveness of the "good conduct" civil rights demonstrations in achieving Negro equality as an indication that whites will afford rights to Negroes only when Negroes bring enough power to bear on the situation to force the whites to do so.

THE OUSTER of Adam Clayton Powell from Congress is seen by Brown as an act of discrimination that indicates whites become angry when a Negro so completely masters politics and "the system" for personal gain which has heretofore been the white man's domain. He did not defend Powell but evidenced the ouster as a further attempt to subordinate the Negro.

Encompassing his idea of the general attitude of white Americans in one statement, Brown said, "It is totally American to be bigoted and equally American to deny it."

During the question and answer period, Brown was asked if he thought there was equal discrimination toward Orientals as toward Negroes.

HE REPLIED THAT there was certainly discrimination against all non-whites but that this discrimination was not as intolerable as that experienced by Negroes since Orientals, Mexican-Americans and other non-whites have a heritage or subculture to identify with whereas Negroes do not.

It is because he has no heritage or cultural ties other than those developed since his arrival in America that "the Negro is more American than anybody else," Brown said.

Ram Nine Blasts Cabrillo, Complete Preseason Play With Ten Wins, Two Losses

By Marc Clarkson

The Ram baseball squad closed its preseason play in fine fashion by winning five of the last six games, compiling a total record of ten wins, two defeats and one tie.

THE RAM NINE suffered their second and last defeat of the preseason losing to a tough Solano College, 7-3. Solano, playing host, did all the scoring off starting and losing pitcher Larry Johnson.

They picked up one run in the first inning; two in the third; and four in the fourth before Tony Maganini came in to shut them out the rest of the way. Unfortunately, his effort was in vain since his teammates couldn't make up their four-run deficit.

A clutch single by catcher Larry Sozzi in the bottom of the eighth inning drove home two runs to cap a 4-3 come-from-behind Ram victory over University of San Francisco's Frosh.

Trailing the Dons, 3-2, Ram second baseman Tom Callen led off the eighth with a walk and advanced to second on a passed ball. First baseman Paul Clayton followed with a single. Clayton then stole second, Callen holding at third. The next two batters, though, struck ont before Sozzi came through with his hit. Pitcher Bill Kunzig went the distance for the Rams.

PITCHERS MAGANINI and Johnson combined talents, giving up a total of two runs on four hits, as the Rams won a 3-2 squeaker at Santa Rosa. Both of Santa Rosa's runs were off Maganini.

The game was in the balance until the sixth inning when Sozzi broke a 2-2 tie with a base hit to complete all the scoring for the day.

Bill Kirkpatrick pitched seven scoreless innings against a powerful Laney College before the game was stopped by rain. The rain didn't bother the ace righthander's control. "Kirk" had all his stuff, giving up only two hits and striking out seven on way to a 1-0 Ram victory.

The only run of the contest came in the first inning when Ram lead-off batter Gerry Bosch walked and Al Paison tripled him home.

CABRILLO COLLEGE proved no match for the Rams as they were walloped on their own ground, 13-1. Cabrillo trailed from the beginning. The Rams scored once in the first and put the game out of reach in the second with a five-run rally.

Starting pitcher Johnson gained the victory.

The Rams wound up their preseason play on a winning note with a 6-1 victory over hapless Cabrillo College at Balboa field. The victory was the fifth in a row for the locals and the ninth out of their last ten games. Mike Sorini drove in three runs and scored two. Paison added insurance with two more runs batted in.

Baseballers Whip Jags; 'Kirk' Stars

The Ram baseball team opened its conference season with an impressive 7-1 victory over San Jose College here last week, a game highlighted by the pitching mastery of Bill Kirkpatrick, who held the Jaguars in check as his teammates exploded for four runs in the sixth inning.

The Jaguars' lone run came in the first inning on a base hit, a balk and another single. After that they were to collect only two more hits for the contest, none after the fifth inning. Kirkpatrick walked no batters and struck out ten in going the route.

The Rams broke a 1-1 pitchers' battle in the sixth inning when they got to Jaguar starting pitcher Steve Russell for four runs. The Rams pounded out five hits off the losing hurler before he was relieved after retiring only one batter. They added two more runs in the eighth to provide added insurance.

Gerry Bosch collected three hits for the victors. Henry Harris and Larry Sozzi came in two apiece. The runs batted in were provided by Al Pasion with two and Tom Callen, Maris Pantels, Mike Sorini and Sozzi, each driving in one.—M. C.

RAMBLINGS

Phelan 'Owns' League With 135-25 Record

By Mike Duggan

THE GOLDEN GATE Conference, although considered a fine balanced league, has literally been "owned" by Sid Phelan's cagers since its origin in 1933.

In five years of competition in the conference, Phelan's basketball teams have achieved a remarkable record of 62 wins and nine losses. During that same period, the Rams have been 135-25 overall.

IN 12 YEARS of coaching at the college, Phelan's squads have taken eight conference championships, three runner-up positions and one third place. Phelan's record for this time has been 276-70.

The 1962 season, the last for the Rams in the old Big Eight Conference, saw City College take their only state championship. Brad Duggan and Elton McGriff won All-Tournament honors for the Rams with Duggan also being voted the tourney's most valuable player.

The following year, the Ram cagers took the first Golden Gate Conference basketball crown with a playoff win over Oakland (now Merritt). Both teams finished league play with 11-3 marks. The Rams' little guard, 5-11 Everett (Goose) Adams, was named first team All-Conference while both Art Adams and McGriff earned second team. Everett Adams then led the Rams to a third-place finish in the state.

MC GRIFF WENT ON to star at Creighton University, while Everett concluded his college career last year at San Francisco State averaging 25 points a game and scoring an individual high of 58 in one game.

Phelan's 1964 team took the conference with a 13-1 mark and finished sixth in the state. Art Adams and Jerry Chandler made All-Conference with scoring averages of 21.6 and 21.0 respectively. Chandler also earned All-Tourney at the state championships.

Contra Costa, behind McKinley Reynolds, edged the Rams for the title in 1965 with Phelan's squad third at 9-5. Reynolds just completed a great career at Contra Costa with All-Conference honors in both basketball and football this season.

Mike Cahill and Henry (T-Bone) King placed on the second team All-League for the Rams that year. King later earned All-American recognition as a defensive back at Utah State and was recently picked in the third round of the Pro Football draft by the Boston Patriots.

PHELAN'S CAGERS returned the title to City College last year as they became the first team to go through the league unbeaten (14-0) and proceeded to end up second in the state. Charlie Parks, Willie Wise and Gene Williams were chosen All-Conference with Parks also being named to the state tournament team. Parks, along with Ram teammates Ed Wilson and Willie Jones, went on to star at Idaho State this past season.

Wise and Williams, along with Darling Thomas led this year's team to another perfect 14-0 mark in conference play and third-place finish in the state. Wise and Williams repeated their All-Conference selections of a year ago while Thomas made second team. Williams also made All-Tournament at the state championships, while Wise became the first Ram to win Player-of-the-Year in the conference. Only three have been picked for top honors, with Billy Robinson of Merritt in 1966 and Dennis O'Brien of San Mateo in 1965 preceding Wise.

The 1967 team extended the Rams' league winning string to 29 and finished the entire season with 30 wins and three losses. In 33 games, Wise led all scorers with 526 points followed by Thomas with 463, Williams 369, Ray Hearne 258, Larry Gray 176, Girard Chatman 169, and Paul Batmale with 148.

Injuries Hamper Spikers

San Mateo Loss Sees Tracksters Drop To Cellar

HIGH HURDLER CRAIG JOHNSON works out in recent practice. Johnson, an All-Conference defensive back in football, has placed in every meet so far this year. He teams with Greg Jackson to give the trackmen a fine one-two punch in the hurdles. —Guardsman photo by Chris Rozales

By John LeTourneau

The injury-plagued City College track team finds itself in the cellar of the Golden Gate Conference after losing to Merritt March 10, Diablo Valley March 18, and College of San Mateo March 25, all on the winners' tracks.

San Mateo edged the Rams, 69-67, as two top sprinters, Ernie Provost and Adam Banks, were out of action with injured legs. Provost was out with a strained ligament, and Banks has a pulled hamstring muscle.

COACH LOU VASQUEZ said that the injury to the two sprinters was costly, but added, "We had good individual performances, but they piled up the third and fourth places."

Vasquez says his men are fast improving in all the events and with the acquisition of high jumper Ray Hearne the Rams may be tough when the big meets come later in the season. The Ram mentor had praise for David Jones, Floyd Banks and Greg Jackson, who all did well in the Bulldog meet.

Jones ran a valuable leg in the winning 440-yard relay and placed high in the 100-yard dash, 220-yard run and the long jump. Banks took the intermediate hurdles, and ran a valuable leg in the victorious mile relay. Jackson finished first in the 120 high hurdles, second in the intermediate hurdles, and anchored the 440-yard relay victory.

THE RAMS WERE clobbered against Diablo Valley by the score of 92-43. This drubbing was again without the services of Banks and Hearne. Also out of action was top long and triple jumper Scott Heyman.

Provost tested his leg in the 100 and finished second at 10.1 just ahead of teammate Robbie Brinkley, but didn't compete in any other events.

The Gladiators swept the distance and weight events except for Hoy Henderson's first-place finish in the 880. The only bright spots for the Rams were the performances turned in by Henderson, Jones, Jackson and Craig Johnson.

Henderson broke the meet record with the time of 1:56.3, bettering the time of 1:57.7 set last year. Jones tied the meet record for the 220 with his 22.2 clocking.

IT WAS A GREAT individual performance by Merritt's Mike Goldberg that paced the 68-67 win over the Rams. Goldberg placed in six events while competing in the decathlon. He won the 220, pole vault and discus.

The T-Bird star took a second and third in the 100 and 120-yard hurdles respectively, and anchored the winning mile relay team. That mile relay win for Merritt was the margin of victory as the two teams came up with identical times of 3:28.4.

Friday the Rams are at home for the first time against Foothill. With the addition of Banks, Provost and Hearne the Rams should give the Owls trouble in all events.

With these three men competing, the Rams will be at full strength for the first time this season.

Two Teams Disqualified In Intramural Basketball Action

The first round of the Intramural Basketball league got off to a good start last week, according to Associated Men Student President Ron Lent.

Lent said that there were three forfeits, and two teams, Hillel and Alpha Sigma Delta, are disqualified from the league. The other team, Black Students Association, was not disqualified since the team had a valid reason for missing the game. As a result of the two disqualifications, Lent put the Irish and Avengers in the Club league.

IN THE INDEPENDENT LEAGUE, The Guardsman, Knobs, Tamaraws Babes and the Felony Squad picked up wins.

Mike Duggan paced a balanced attack of journalists with 24 points in leading a 63-23 victory over the Ram Ski Club. After Duggan, The Guardsman were bunched as John Casey and John LeTourneau scored 10 and seven points, respectively.

Tom Graham, Charley Bouey, and John Francecevich scored six, five and four points in that order. They were followed by Tom Caserta with four digits while Editor-In-Chief Rich Heintz and Frank Cooney added two each. Marty Arbunich played a fine defensive game, despite being held scoreless.

CALVIN BOOTH and James Smith paced the Felony Squad to a 41-38 win over the Red Mountaineers. Booth took scoring honors with 10. In a real cliff-hanger, the Knobs squeaked by the Revisables, 49-47, in double overtime. Ralph Bayard led the victors with 14 points.

In the only forfeit in the Independent division, Tamaraws Babes picked up a win over the Black Student Association.

In the Club league, Phi Delta clobbered the Chinese Club, 47-11, as Brian Wiklow and Dale Sutton led the scoring for the winners with 10 points each. Big 'Bill Berger followed with nine markers.

The Newman Club won by forfeit over Alpha Sigma Delta, then played the Irish and lost, 78-40. Tom Kuhn and veteran Rich Rolandson scored 20 apiece to pace the victory. In the standings both teams pick up wins.

The Newman Club is 1-0 as a result of their win over Alpha Sigma Delta, but their loss to the Irish does not count in the standings because their game was not officially scheduled.

The same situation occurred when Tamaraws defeated Hillel by forfeit then lost to the Avengers, 50-48.

IN THE REMAINING GAME, Alpha Kappa Rho defeated Alpha Phi Epsilon, 30-20.

In tonight's action in the Independent league, the big game of the night is the Guardsman-Knob game.

In other contests, the Felony Squad will be favored to defeat the Ram Ski Club. The remaining two contests will pit the Red Mountaineers against Tamaraws Babes, and the Revisables meet the Black Students Association. —J. L.

Weekend Results

BASEBALL
FRIDAY
CCSF at Chabot, postponed, rain, and rescheduled for today at Chabot.

GOLF
FRIDAY
CCSF at San Jose, postponed, rain, and rescheduled for today at San Jose.

TRACK
SATURDAY
CCSF 47 — San Jose 89
440 Relay—SJ (Ishizaki, Harris, Romero, McCalebb), 42.6. Mile — Henderson (SF), Kerns (SJ), Henry (SJ), 4:26.0. 440—Gallegullos (SJ), Caselli (SJ), Gary (SJ), 50.2. 120 HH — Carruthers (SJ), Johnson (SF), Banks (SF), 14.9. 100—Harris (SJ), Provost (SF), Jones (SF), 9.9. 880—McCalebb (SJ), Henderson (SF), Rocca (SJ), 1:58.4. 330 IH — Carruthers (SJ), Jordan (SF), Ishizaki (SJ), 39.6. 220—Harris (SJ), Jones (SF), Provost (SF), 22.1. Two Mile—Foreseberg (SF), Kerns (SJ), Henry (SJ), 10:04.6. Mile Relay —SJ (Gallegullos, Caselli, Harris, McCalebb), 3:22.1. Shot Put—Carlin (SJ), Bueno (SJ), Baggetta (SJ), 48.8. High Jump — Carter (SF), Hearne (SF), Blazer (SJ), 6-2. Pole Vault—Carruthers (SJ), Kanat (SJ), Roach (SJ), 12-0. Long Jump—Hearne (SF), Harris (SJ), Ishizaki (SJ), 22-6. Discus — Carlin (SJ), Johnson (SJ), Duckworth (SF), 131-4. Triple Jump—Jackson (SJ), Heyman (SF), Hearne (SF), 48-1.

Linksmen Even Record At 2-2

The Ram golf team, seeking its first conference win, found Contra Costa very much to its liking as they demolished the Eagles twice, to even their Golden Gate Conference record at 2-2.

In the first match, the Ram five trounced Contra Costa 25½ to 1½ at Richmond Country Club. Doug Boston was low man for City College with a 38-38—76. Following Boston for the Rams were Ken Kundert (79), Mike Leonardini (81), Bob Fama (86), and Kevin Donohue (95).

The rematch of these two teams produced almost the same results as the Rams dumped the Eagles, 35-1, at Harding Park.

Leonardini led the way for the Rams by firing a 73, only one over par for the distance. The team total for the Rams was the lowest yet in the four conference matches.

For the second time in a row, four of the five Rams picked up the entire six points possible. Kundert is still the first man for the Rams, followed by Boston, Leonardini, Fama and Blazer.

The golfers also traveled to the Western Junior College Championships in Fresno during Easter.

The Rams will play their next conference match tomorrow at Harding Park against a very good San Jose City College team.—D. B.

Rams Drop Two Swim Clashes

City College swim team, hindered badly by lack of sufficient personnel, was swamped by College of San Mateo and Foothill College swim teams on successive Fridays.

College of San Mateo first sighted in the Rams and then torpedoed them, taking 10 of 12 first-place awards and outscoring them, 79-25. John O'Connor was the only bright spot for the Ram team, grabbing firsts in the 100 and 200-yard freestyle events.

The Rams were then beaten by a powerful Foothill team on March 17. The Owls added insult to injury by sweeping firsts in all 12 events and clobbering the Rams, 74-27. Foothill set new school records in the diving and 200-yard butterfly events.

The swim team will meet Chabot, the second-place conference team, in their next league outing. Ram swim coach Curt Decker, although hopeful, said again that the lack of swimmers in the 500 and 1000-yard freestyle events will hurt the team's showing.

Students Tread Where Decent Paths Fail To Veer

TERRACED PATHS and paved short cuts are in the college's future, even though this coed probably wouldn't believe it.
INFERIOR PATHS and the wind will be under attack when the college puts into effect its landscaping program which is presently out to bid.
IMPROVEMENTS WILL probably eliminate injury of late students who may have forgotten not only the time but that it had rained that day.
(For editorial comment on improvements, see Page 2.)
—Guardsman photo by Jimmy Tsang

Authentic Hippies Likely To Suffer Most From Invasion Of Tourists, Immitation Hippies

By Viggo Petersen

Probably the most significant thing to come out of this summer's mass influx of local and out-of-state hippies is that the artisans who now reside in the Jashberry will probably be run out of town.

Among those participating in the supposed migration, tentatively scheduled to happen any time between the middle of June until the end of July, will probably be ex-Sunset Strip rioters, juvenile delinquents, ex-surfers and an unlimited variation of troublemakers destined to give the area a bad name.

THE LEGITIMATE ARTISTS, writers, poets and those concerned with bringing meaningful social change to the area will probably suffer most from such an invasion.

There will be those venturing into the neighborhood because the Hashberry is "where the action is." Civil rights, the war in Vietnam, love and various causes which were basically responsible for the establishment of the community will be used by these people as a tool by which they will be able to infiltrate into the local happenings.

If, however, the tools can be converted into meaningful experience, then perhaps it will not be a total waste.

These individuals will be those not interested in contributing to a new subculture or bringing about better community relations, or presenting new ideas to the formation of social change.

Rather they will be ones interested in growing long hair and sprouting beards for the sake of getting in on some sort of happening that they are vaguely aware of.

Perhaps the element destined to come here next summer will be comprised of many who one or two years ago stood by on street corners and hurled eggs and heckled demonstrators opposing American policy in Vietnam and who now are perhaps older (draft age), or have been reclassified (1-A) and the reality of the war has finally sunk in.

A YOUNG RESIDENT of the community, recently interviewed on the news, commented that he didn't feel that love could exist within a congested, overpopulated area.

The idea obviously has merit. It is overcrowding, substandard living conditions and the resulting frustration which often-time has been responsible for community unrest and despondency which ultimately has led to violence. Residents of the area now are those who have either grown up in this form of environment or else those who have totally rejected middle-class standards.

They have been willing to accept the environment because of a deep rooted belief in their purposes and are basically certain of their goals and their direction.

AN INDIVIDUAL interested in "making the scene," who has been brought up in fairly favorable living conditions, may be unwilling or unable to accept his new environment, and violence may be the result.

• • •

Charles McCabe, San Francisco's unpredictable columnist, last week surprisingly lauded the current movement saying that the Hashberry would probably loom as the greatest tourist attraction next to the Grand Canyon.

MCCABE, WHOSE attitudes have noticeably changed recently toward hippie culture, said he felt the kids in the area were "anything but bums" and said the hippie is "determined to create a vital subculture, saying they are "going somewhere, instead of away from somewhere."

His column was indicative of the somewhat changing attitudes toward the community which has been coming about lately.

Raisin In The Sun Upcoming Major College Drama Production

By Art Rodriguez

"I am writing about people who happen to be Negroes, not Negro plays."

In this statement lies the key to the successful effect achieved by the late author Lorraine Hansberry, in her prize-winning play, Raisin In The Sun, scheduled to be presented April 26 through 29 by the City College drama department.

The play, which centers on a family whose dreams and ambitions are stifled in Chicago's South Side ghetto, achieves dramatic importance in its treatment of the family's struggle in "human" terms that get through to people of all races.

Thus, the author is successful in her attempt to "break down the racial stereotype of the Negro," which she considers "bad art."

Included in the City College cast are several veteran performers. Anthony Williams, fresh from a recent run in the Fine Plays Company production of Emperor Jones, will portray Walter Lee.

Williams has his work cut out for him as he steps into the role made famous on both Broadway and film by Sidney Poitier. The latter has gone on to be recognized as the finest Negro actor of the times.

Another veteran in the cast is Gail Ross, known to City College drama enthusiasts for her work in The American Dream and Blood Wedding.

Also included in the cast are: Cynthia, Nichols, Gale Johnson, Gene Simms, Darrell Belcher, Art Clemon, Gene Hanna and Reginald Harvey.

The production is directed by James Haran, and Vann Mitchell, with setting by Terrence McDermott.

This production is a separate venture from the student-directed play scheduled tomorrow.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 64 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, APRIL 12, 1967 NUMBER 5

Delayed Computer Reg To Be Used For Classes Of Summer Instruction

By Ed Holmes

As surely as the proverbial death and taxes, computer registration is approaching City College. It will be tried and evaluated for summer session and if then deemed feasable, it will be in effect next fall.

"We're still having problems," Gertrude Somerville, college registrar admitted, "but a small operation like this summer will help us to find the bugs."

Lloyd Luckmann, coordinator of instruction, is optimistic. "Computer registration will be more honest than any system yet devised," he said.

Line-jumpers, the fleet of foot, and other manipulators will be effectively neutralized. Priorities will be based entirely on grade-point averages, according to Luckmann.

"The first run-through will give us a chance to re-adjust the program if we have miscalculated," he continued.

"Under the present method of registration, that is an absolute impossibility. To my way of thinking, this is the greatest benefit by the computer. Emphasis will be on the student's first choice."

Many objections to the new system have been raised since its proposal. One most frequently heard concerns the ability of students to choose their instructors.

Luckmann answers this by saying, "Students will have free choice of instructors. Assignments will be made as requested in all possible cases. If it is impossible to meet all the requests, grade point averages will make the final determination. This will be the student's final grades, not midterm," Luckmann emphasized.

MANY SHORT SCHEDULES have been feared as a possible result of computer registration, but the machine will make more than 50 separate attempts to meet each request. "You can't do that well by standing in line," Miss Somerville said.

If programs can't be met in the time limits specified, the computer will make proposals outside those limits for acceptance or rejection.

In a prepared statement, Luckmann said:

"In general the purpose of the new procedure is to provide programs reasonable both in time and content to as great a number of our students as possible, together with a reduction in both the long waits and in the inefficient paper work and useless labor that are a constant danger when one deals with ever-increasing numbers of people, and in particular it is intended to maintain both the spirit and practice of fairness and evenhandedness, with any advantage going to those students who have proven their academic worth."

ASKED ABOUT THE LENGTH of time taken to implement the program, Miss Somerville replied, "It's not a bit unusual for a project of this size. We're making definite strides forward. It's worth much rather do it right the first time."

The traditional "drop and add" period has not been done away with, Luckmann noted. "This first time it will probably be wild," he said.

Programming has already begun by the counseling staff, and filing of forms is expected to start soon.

Last semester the anticipated arrival of computer registration by February was dashed less than a month before the scheduled dates of registration.

New Data-Mailer Key To Efficient Grade Mailing

Fuzzy tongues will be eliminated this semester by a machine called the Data-Mailer, Gertrude Somerville, college registrar, announced today.

The registrar's staff spent 224 man-hours stuffing yellow slips into envelopes last semester in the process of mailing final grades to the students. The Data-Mailer will record the grades, insert them in envelopes, and the entire job will be done in about five hours.

Mailing of grades will preclude 10,000 anxious students standing in line at the registrar's window. The program worked well last semester," . . . the first time I know of its being tried. And that goes back 19 years, Miss Somerville said.

One of the reasons for the Data-Mailer's efficiency is that it won't take time out to listen to the stories of students who have neglected to keep a current address on file in the registrar's office.

May 17 is the deadline for students to submit their proper addresses. "The deadline cannot be extended," Miss Somerville emphasized. "The grades will be sent to the address on file at that time."

Alinsky Cites Poverty War's Rigor Mortis

By Glynn Petrie

The federal war on poverty is in a "state of rigor mortis," according to the controversial sociologist, Saul Alinsky, who held an informal discussion with students at the theater during College Hour last week.

Alinsky was scheduled to give a lecture, entitled Why Poverty Programs Flounder, but instead left it up to the students whether to conduct a 50-minute discussion or give a lecture. The audience favored discussion.

STATING THAT he would entertain all questions except those regarding his relationship with Stokely Carmichael and Black Power, Alinsky began with questions from the theater's left which he called "my natural proctivity."

First asked to give a rundown on his method of picketing slum landlords in order to force reform, Alinsky emphasized his employment of the principle that many right things come about for the wrong reasons. His method is supposed to use the landlord's actual prejudice to obtain better conditions for those whom his prejudice is directed against.

"The blackest Negroes" of a slum are sent with picket signs of "the usual jazz" into a "lily white neighborhood" to protest. The slumlord's neighbors traditionally respond by demanding, "Get them niggers out of here or get out yourself!" Thus, the slumlord is forced to improve conditions in order to pacify his prejudiced neighbors.

ALINSKY WAS then asked whether he thought the rioting in Watts had been effective. He replied, "No rioting is effective excepting the 'riot of '76' because it is purposeless and has no representatives . . . nothing good came out of Watts" because the outbreaks had no direction and were a mere violent expression of frustration.

Alinsky added that our democratic system is the best man has devised.

A lengthy question was asked about what control Alinsky and the Industrial Areas Foundation, of which he is executive director, exert over communities it attempts to organize.

Alinsky answered that his organization only attempts to organize communities and that the communities must determine what course they are to follow. He added that financial independence is necessary to insure directional independence for, "If someone else is picking up the tab, they're going to be calling the tune."

Stressing organization repeatedly, Alinsky also warned of the "penalties of success" of slum organizations which become so powerful and successful that they actually join the "establishment" they have set out to fight. This is because "have-nots" who become "haves" begin acting like them.

WITH REGARD to the war on poverty Alinsky said that it has promoted the formation of independent action organizations which are feared by local administrations as being too powerful. Thus, these administrations attempt to "buy off" the civil rights workers involved, and nothing is accomplished.

Alinsky believes that in order for the poor to be successful they must organize, but since they represent a minority they must also form alliances with other elements. This is where the Black Power movement lacks strength since its philosophy precludes such alliances.

The question of how much Alinsky is paid as an organizer of the poor was asked, and Alinsky replied that his salary as head of the non-profit Industrial Areas Foundation was $25,000 to which there were several whistles of surprise. Alinsky qualified this figure by saying, "I could have gone for a quarter of a million—tax free," and that he was in this field not for financial reward but because he didn't know what else to do with his life.

Greek Freakout, Rally Climax IFC Pledge Week

Fraternity activities this week will reach their apex as the Inter-Fraternity Council sponsors its semiannual rally and dance tomorrow and Friday, respectively.

The rally, scheduled for College Hour at the Ram tomorrow, will publicize the dance with the live entertainment of the VIP's, a pop singing group.

On Friday, the IFC dance, Greek Freakout, will commence in Smith Hall at 8 p.m., again to the music of the VIP's. Jim Firth, IFC president, stressed that this dance is open to all students of the college and not limited only to fraternity members.

Dress for the dance is "neat, casual"; the price is $2 a couple and $1.25 for singles. Tickets will be sold only at the door, Firth said.

During the week, the pledges have been subjected to the varying practices of their respective fraternities in Statler wing from 7 to 11 a.m.

Most are required to obey orders from tenured members. Those hopefuls who survive the initiations will be accepted into one of the six fraternities on campus at a later date.

Florists Prepare For Spring Garden Show

THE ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURE department's "front line" inspects some plants which may be used in the future as part of the landscaping plans. From the left: Gary Kuruma, Lin Houston, Sim Irwyn, Larry Baptiste, Jim Crabtree and Bob Maron. —Guardsman photo by Bob Briscoe

Department To Hold Two Open Houses Next Week

By John Janiglan

The ornamental horticulture department, which encompasses the entire realm of plants and flowers, is another of the college's semi-professional departments which trains students for professions as florists, gardeners, landscape contractors and many other jobs in related fields.

Aside from class work the Horticulture Society of the department enters the California Spring Garden Show which is held annually. The location for the event this year will be the new Oakland Coliseum and the dates are May 5 through 14.

As has occurred in previous years the society competes not only against other colleges but also against professional florists and gardeners. The event is sponsored by the Agriculture Association of California, according to Harry Nelson, head of the horticulture department.

THIS YEAR'S THEME is Floralia, a festival dedicated to Flora, the Roman goddess of flowers. The college's outside exhibit will have a statue of Flora as the center of attraction. She will be surrounded by a bower of flowers, according to Jane Davies, chairman of the exhibit. A subfeature will include a reflecting pool with a temple behind it. The exhibit will stress masses of colors, Miss Davies commented.

Preceding the garden show, the department will host two open houses. The yearly event will be held April 18 and 19. The retail floristry class will have displays designed and set up by the students which will be judged by florists.

THE AFFAIR will host alumni and professional florists on April 18, when the day will be highlighted by a dinner in Smith Hall for the Alumni Committee. On April 19 the Open House will be opened to everyone.

The courses offered by the department teach the student about plants, soils and equipment.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 64, No. 5 WEDNESDAY, APRIL 12, 1967 Page 2

The Campus That Knows How When There Is Time, Money

LANDSCAPING does INDEED have an effect upon the atmosphere at a college. At most colleges, it has a positive effect—at most colleges.

Since grammar school, students of the San Francisco Unified School District have been taught the value of cleanliness and its asthetic importance. ("Keep those desks, books, clean.")

This is not to say that the campus is not kept neat. But the lousy foliage around the campus is evident to anyone—the picture on page 1 shows just one part of many which support this.

THERE IS NO ONE to blame for the unattractive campus appearance since any improvements depend upon money, which has been used for buildings and other educational necessities on campus.

The horticulture department cannot be blamed because a union ruling does not allow students to work on campus grounds.

But it appears that City College is at last going to get a facelifting. Money has been designated specifically for landscaping and the plans have been sent out for bids and if the estimates are within the amount of money available, City College will have an "asthetic" improvement.

THE PLAN WILL consist of improved paths (they'll be terraced), the addition of pathways and general beautification with the placing of trees so that wind will be counteracted somewhat.

Students in the past probably have wondered why the administration took so long to do something about the problem. Well, even administrators have administrators.

Dean James Wyatt, head of student activities, relates the situation with a similar one at Lincoln High School, where he once taught. Lincoln had been attempting to acquire a football field since 1948, but because of the shortage of money which could be spent in a more important aspect, the field was not built until 1962.

"San Francisco, the city that knows how"—when it has the money and about 15 years.

Tonsil Squabble Dies Over Ice Cream Debt

It was kind of like Bedtime For Bonzo all over again when two Guardsman staff members, Editor Richard (I see you under the covers) Heintz and Staff Editor Marty (The Ice Cream Man) Arbunich discoyered they had shared a hospital room, nurse and maybe even a bed 13 years ago when they both had their tonsils removed.

Tempers flared when Arbunich accused Heintz of having bad bed pan manners, but Heintz countered saying that his companion was notorious for stealing his ice cream.

The Guardsman office has resembled a battleground for the past week. Negotiations between the two disputing parties were deadlocked until Arbunich decided to settle things and took Heintz to a near-by ice cream shop to let bygones be bygones.—J. J.

On The RAMpage

New Benefits: Polygamy Plan For Aged

By Connie Skipitares

MAN versus woman, the age-old question of who really wears the pants in the family, is currently being challenged from a new angle, somewhat departing from the up-til-now conventional "who came first, Adam or Eve?" argument.

Ever since Utah physician, Dr. Victor Kassel claimed "a guy ought to have more than one wife after age 60 —to ease frustrations and keep people happy"—the elderly male ego has received a boost as big as that of the adolescent male who daydreams about an idealized harem.

Kassel, an expert in medical care of the aged, also included women in his optimistic plan of polygamy legalization in the U.S., arguing that widows who subsist on inadequate diets and live in a state of sexual frustration are thrust into such a position because partners of their own age are hard to find.

STUDIES AT VARIOUS geriatric centers have disproved the misconception that older people are not interested in sexual activity. So who's to deprive this country's enthusiastic sexagenerians from partaking in polyandrous (more than one husband) and polygynous (more than one wife) marriage?!!

Other cultures indulge in such arrangements with an unflinching nonchalance which to Americans is beyond belief.

In Liberia, for instance, no man of standing has fewer than three wives —each paid for at the standard price of $40. The philosophy here is that wives are a good investment—they produce valuable children and care for a man's house and land without expecting to be paid.

Under the opposite circumstances in Tibet, however, several brothers may share one wife to keep their own family heritage intact.

AT ANY RATE, the concern and perhaps pity in any polygamous state would lie predominantly with the male in the final analysis, for the woman if married to several men has only to fear male-dominance. But the man who has a majority of wives not only is henpecked and stands a chance of injustice through underprivileged minority status—he's gotta be wealthy enough to provide support for each of his wives whether he be a party of a polygynous or polyandrous arrangement!

The ratio of 130 females to every 100 males over age 65 just may prove to be as crucial a controversy in coming months as the war in Vietnam. However, contrary to its aggression policy, in dealing with the sexagenerians, the administration in Washington has refused to interfere in any possible way by taking up a stand on the issue of polygamy.

Ram Ski Club Activities Defy Sunshine

Summer is coming on fast and with it goes the snow on the mountains. Skiing season is almost over for the Ram Ski Club, but the season hasn't slipped by unnoticed.

The Ram Ski Club is "the most active club on campus," according to its president, George Riser, but it is off campus that it really swings.

Every Tuesday the club holds its regularly scheduled meetings which are its main "on-campus" function along with its basketball team. They have speakers from other skiing associations and movies.

"Off campus" the club goes by the name of the Ram Ski Club of San Francisco and this is where the action is. So far this semester the club has taken two trips to Heavenly Valley; one to Squaw Valley; to Mammoth Mountain; Incline Village and one to Aspen, Colorado. Riser explained that it even has an unofficial racing team.

The final skiing trip of the semester will be a three-day weekend at Mount Shasta, April 21 through 23. Cost, including transportation, meals, lodging and ski-lifts is $31 for members, $33 for non-members, and the reservation deadline is Friday.

Yet, the club activities do not end with the snow season, according to Riser.

Besides the skiing trips, the club has had a scavenger hunt, a barbecue and other parties. Every weekend, Riser said, something is happening. Last Friday club members went roller skating and this Sunday they have a bike ride and picnic scheduled.

Approximately 90 students are members of the club and, according to Riser, it is still growing.

Other officers are John Hill, vice president; Peggy Donovan, treasurer; Shirley Short, recording secretary; Kristie Throllander, correspondence secretary; Stephanie Show, historian; Linda Lloyd, society chairman; Mark Prescott, business manager, and Council Of Organizations Representative Jim Pappas, with Jim McIntire as racing chairman.

Even the warmth of summer doesn't seem to upset the Ram Ski Club's rampage of activities. Plans for May include hayrides, ice skating, a beach party, canoeing at Russian River and a dinner party to close out the semester.

Labelled And Recorded

Hey, Listen Before 'Knocking' The Doors

By Marty Arbunich

SAN FRANCISCO'S sister-city has reason to shine through its hazy stratum of nauseating smog. The Doors are that reason.

New rock groups are as numerous as the stars in the sky, but novel musicians like Los Angeles' Doors are stars with a special glow.

Fresh out of the Los Angeles area, the Doors released their first single recording, Break On Through (To The Other Side), just a few weeks ago on Elektra along with a very impressive album, The Doors, on the same label.

THE DOORS ARE not total strangers to San Francisco. They have appeared at a few dance-concerts in the area where they've put on some very striking performances. (They're returning to the Avalon this weekend, by the way.) However, the scant publicity they have received hasn't imprinted anything even bordering upon an illustrious impression on San Franciscans.

After listening to their album a few times, though, one begins to wonder why there's no local publicity and enthusiastic response.

Unlike most groups the Doors have a remarkable scope of flexibility. They're not a solid rock group like the Stones or the Raiders, but solid rock definitely isn't outside their range. If the Doors had to be defined they could very well be termed as simply 'versatile' rock.

THE GROUP RELIES heavily upon Ron Mazarek's organ and Jim Morrison's vocals as dies for their style.

Mazarek's mastery of the organ really adds to the flavor of the Doors' sound and, in reality, his organ seems to detach the group from being stereotype.

Those who don't appreciate the diversification of the organ might criticize Mazarek's extensive utilization of it throughout the LP (it's used on 10 of the 11 tracks). Mazarek's style, however, is as flexible as the group's, and each of his pieces is as unique as the preceding.

MORRISON IS a vocalist on the Eric Burdon line — not in vocal tone so much as in his stern emotional inflection. Morrison's vocals, like Burdon's, are packed with meaning, and he's also one vocalist who is able to sustain meaning even after musical accompaniment has ceased.

The Doors' album is quite a masterpiece. Break On Through, Alabama Song, Light My Fire and Take It As It Comes are particularly good—but then so are the others.

OFF THE RECORD... The dispersion of the famous Beau Brummels a few months ago which was partially caused by a couple of Uncle Sam's invitations, was termed as only "a temporary disbandment" by the group's Ron Meagher. He indicated that the Brummels would continue recording as a group but would discontinue public appearances.

However, from latest developments one might conclude that the Brummels, as a group, are all washed up.

John Peterson, the group's outstanding drummer, is now playing for Harpers Bizarre, and the Brummels' name has not yet reappeared in the rock circle.

'TIS A HAPPENING... Both the Fillmore and the Avalon dance-concerts appear to have good shows scheduled for the weekend. The Fillmore will have Country Joe and the Fish, Howlin' Wolf and the Loading Zone; the Steve Miller Blues Band, Haji Baba along with the Doors will set the stage for the Avalon... Martha and the Vandellas are in town and will open tomorrow night for a stay at Basin Street West... The Turtles are scheduled for an appearance at USF this Friday night.

'Floating Campus' Provides New Vistas

By Frank Wolf

While his former fellow students are receiving their education behind the closed doors of City College, Kenneth Yee is traveling half way around the world aboard the Chapman College Division of International Education's "floating campus."

The unique 107-day voyage is taking Yee and 434 other students to 17 ports including Caracas, the island of Trinidad, Salvador (Bahia), Buenos Aires, Montevideo, Rio de Janeiro, Lagos, Dakar, Casablanca, Cadiz, Lisbon, Rotterdam, Copenhagen, London and Dublin before returning to New York, May 25.

Chapman, one of California's oldest colleges, is located in the city of Orange, approximately 32 miles southeast of Los Angeles. The floating campus offers coursework designed to meet the needs of most undergraduate and graduate liberal arts students in modern classrooms and laboratories.

Facilities include 14 classrooms, a science laboratory, an oceanography laboratory, 280-seat theater and modern audio-visual equipment.

Each semester, visiting lecturers and educators are invited to board the ship to establish an international classroom and to further the relationship of study courses to subsequent port visits included in the tour.

Yee, three-quarters of his way through his seven seas tour, attended the closed doors of City College, Kenneth Yee is traveling half way around the world aboard the Chapman College Division of International Education's "floating campus."

The unique 107-day voyage is taking Yee and 434 other students to 17 ports including Caracas, the island of Trinidad, Salvador (Bahia), Buenos Aires, Montevideo, Rio de Janeiro, Lagos, Dakar, Casablanca, Cadiz, Lisbon, Rotterdam, Copenhagen, London and Dublin before returning to New York, May 25.

Chapman, one of California's oldest colleges, is located in the city of Orange, approximately 32 miles southeast of Los Angeles. The floating campus offers coursework designed to meet the needs of most undergraduate and graduate liberal arts students in modern classrooms and laboratories.

Facilities include 14 classrooms, a science laboratory, an oceanography laboratory, 280-seat theater and modern audio-visual equipment.

Each semester, visiting lecturers and educators are invited to board the ship to establish an international classroom and to further the relationship of study courses to subsequent

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1967

EDITOR IN CHIEF.....RICHARD HEINTZ
Managing and Feature Editor.....Connie Skipitares
Staff Editor.....Marty Arbunich
News Editor.....Steven Hara
Sports Editor.....Mike Duggan
Contributing Writers..William C. Pates, Ben Takeuchi
Editorial Writers: John Janiglan, John LeTourneau, Art Rodriguez, Viggo Petersen.
Reporters: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, John Hammack, Doreen Ng, Phillip Planerzi, Lori Pittman, Ron Wong, Ed Holmes, Glynn Petris, Tim Duncan, Jeffrey Hofhine.
Cub Reporters: Berry Brown, Ron Lent, Lani Silver, Lee Smith, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf, Franklin Gadson.
Photographers: Bob Briscoe, chief; Jose Fireside, Richard Sandino, Mac F. Gooding, Rich Spitaleri, Ron O'Brien, Chris Rozales, Chip Stevens, Jim Tsang.
Faculty Adviser.....Joan Nourse
Member Associated Collegiate Press 1966-1967

The Observer

By William G. Pates

VETERAN members look upon the Congress as somewhat of a mutual protection association based upon the concept that what the public doesn't know doesn't hurt them.

Far too many people, therefore, seem ready to believe that's the rule rather than the exception that Congressmen cheat on their expense accounts, misappropriate staff payrolls, accept valuable gratuities in various forms from lobbyists and special interests for services rendered, pocket campaign contributions, and so forth whenever misconduct is uncovered, such as in the present Powell and Dodd cases.

Most disappointing of all is the Congress's lack of enthusiasm in alleviating this belief through self-policing. Perhaps the majority of members are proponents of Maryland Representative Charles Mathias, Jr.'s theory that "Most of us are honest all the time, and all of us are honest most of the time," and apparently those guilty of payroll padding, influence peddling, profligate junketeering and conflict of interest should not be punished, since everybody isn't doing it.

PRINCIPLES AND IDEALS are squandered in this condonement as well as in the actual performance of these misconduct activities. It is a betrayal of the constituents' trust and a disservice to the public interest as a whole. But members of the House would have condoned Powell's actions if, as Congressman Sam Gibbons put it, "Adam had just once come in and said 'I made a mistake' things might have turned out differently." Which means no loss of his seat.

Politics pure and simple is imbedded at the grass roots of this entire question. Adam Clayton Powell and Thomas J. Dodd are the sacrifical lambs offered up by the House and Senate to the public on the altar of retribution, to allow the Congress to continue in its present manner.

The issue at stake is whether enough pressure will be brought to bear to force the Senate and the House to demand of themselves what they demand of others in the executive branch—a disclosure of all income and all valuable gratuities. Perhaps this would help to quell the influence peddling and conflict of interests so prevalent in the actions taken on legislation in committee and floor discussions.

OBVIOUSLY, LEGISLATION is not introduced by a member, or amended by others or passed or not passed for the ideal reasons that the Congress would have the public believe.

Congressmen are in an unusual position to benefit privately from the exercise of their public functions. There are far too many ambiguous situations in which conscience is the Congressman's only guide as to what will be his final course. Private business interests, that are large enough and powerful enough in a member's constituency, may impinge on matters relating to them that the legislator may deal with in the course of duty.

Sometimes temptation is just too great.

It comes down then to a matter of survival. If they want help in being reelected, they will go along and a snowballing effect evolves. Some fail to recognize the dilemma in allowing lobbyists to arrange such "pay-offs" on the basis of services rendered. Few follow the advice of Thomas Jefferson that "Where the private interests of a member are concerned in a bill or question, he is to withdraw." Why, that's idealistic.

FAILURE TO VOTE in the interests of one's constituents or those who helped elect you can cost a Congressman his future. Whose man are you? Edmund Burke put it that "Your representative owes you not only his industry, but his judgment; and he betrays instead of serving you, if he sacrifices it to your opinion." Don't give them what they want, give them what they ought to have, give them what is in their best interests no matter how loud they denounce you.

It would be best to heed James Monroe's thoughts, "There was danger in standing still or moving forward. I thought it was the wisest policy to risk that which was incident to the latter course."

You can fool some of he people all of the time and all of the people some of the time but you can't fool all of the people all of the time.

Far-reaching reform is the answer to the problems of the Congress. This generation will not live to see it, nor perhaps will any other.

Student Council Supports Vietnam Week, Favors Ending Of The War

By Lori Pittman

The subject of Vietnam entered Student Council last week when Councilman Rich Christensen proposed a resolution requesting council to go on record in favor and support of "Vietnam Week" and the end of the war.

He remarked that council should take a stand on this issue because so many students have been affected by the war.

Councilman Paul Shuttleworth opposed the resolution, saying, "We are selling out a people." He said the act "bordered on treason," but the resolution was passed by a 7-2-4 vote.

THIS WEEK through Sunday is Vietnam Week, according to Councilman Marty Watten. He indicated that there will be a march and rally this Saturday, April 15, in which the Associated Students of this college will be represented.

Councilman Ron Bianco submitted a resolution that was laughed at and voted out of council. It was concerned with the "discrimination" and "inequality" shown to students by the "faculty versus student restrooms." He claimed that there should be no such separation.

THIS RESOLUTION had been endorsed by several faculty members, according to Councilman Shuttleworth who indicated that James Wyatt, assistant dean of student activities, had used student facilities a few times. When questioned Dean Wyatt laughed and replied, "I must admit it has happened."

The question then arose regarding the separation of facilities for men and women. Councilman Bianco admitted that this was also a part of the inequality but stated that he wasn't concerned with that problem at the moment.

COUNCILMAN BILL McQUAID submitted a recommendation urging the hiring of AS members in the Ramporium next semester. Councilman Ron Mellander stated that he had approached president of the college, Dr. Louis G. Conlan concerning the matter and that Dr. Conlan seemed to be "riding the fence." The recommendation passed council unanimously.

Council also passed a recommendation for gum to be sold on campus in the various vending machines.

MEETINGS ARE NOW being taped by the recording equipment purchased this semester. The speakers are spaced along the tables in easy reach of all the members.

In hopes of restoring quiet and removing the "merry makers" from the Bungalow 5 offices, Councilman Christensen proposed a resolution that the offices of B-5 be used only by students involved with student activities.

Bald Soprano Drama Set For C-Hour Staging

The Bald Soprano, a play by Eugene Ionesco and directed by Ron Bianco, will be performed in the college theater at 11 a.m. tomorrow.

The drama department is handling the cost of the production, while Director Bianco and the students in the cast are in charge of presenting the play.

The main characters in Ionesco's plays are portrayed by Ellen Caster, Cathy Wright of The Importance Of Being Earnest, Terry McDermott of Caligula, Herman Eberitzch and Nancy Jane Kandal.

Ann Crichton is heading technical direction. The set has been designed by Paul Crowley, art department instructor. The scenery is still under construction, although the entire cast has pitched in to complete the set.

The story is very complicated. The setting is of a Utopian atmosphere, based in England. "The idea," Bianco said, "with the set and costumes is to give the feeling that everyone in the audience is involved in the plot."

There are no problems in Utopia, so Ionesco made it impossible for the characters to communicate, because communication causes problems. Perplexities are thus created in the act of trying to communicate.

Candidates Vie For UMOC Title Starting Monday

Alpha Phi Omega, the campus service fraternity, will once again do service for the college by determining which of the men students is the ugliest.

The fraternity sponsors the Ugly Man On Campus contest annually with this semester's festivities beginning next Monday and lasting through April 21.

Any recognized club on campus is eligible to participate in the contest. Each is allowed to enter one contestant. Each candidate then uses the week to compile votes by collecting as many pennies as possible.

At the end of the week the money is turned in to the sponsoring fraternity who then determines the winner by the amount of pennies turned in by each candidate.

A rally will be held on Thursday, April 20, during College Hour at which time the candidates will be introduced to the student body. There will be a pie auction during the rally. The highest bidders for the pies will be allowed to throw them at the candidates.

The winner will be announced at the International Relations Club dance on the night of April 21. The money collected from the contest will go toward a scholarship fund.

Applications for UMOC may be obtained from either James Wyatt, assistant dean of student activities, or Skip Jones, president of Alpha Phi Omega. They may be contacted in either B-5 or on Tuesdays in S-255 during College Hour.

Journalism allows its readers to witness history; fiction gives . . . an opportunity to live it.—John Hersey

AS Spends $2475 On Lecture Series

By John Janiglan

The Student-Faculty Lecture Series started four years ago out of interest shown by students and faculty alike, Warren White, faculty chairman, revealed in a recent interview.

The program was started as a concert series and has since been broadened to include lectures.

Speakers for the series are selected by a joint faculty-student committee together with a list of names submitted by students. The California Association of Public Events, a two-year college organization, which has listings of speakers, is used as a means of selecting the speakers. The association lists speaker and their fees so that the colleges may contact them. The fee charged by the speakers is flexible, White said.

The lecture series is sponsored by the Associated Students (from whom the speakers receive their funds) and the Faculty Association. The lecture series is allocated a budget of $1485 and the concert series has a separate budget of $990, a total of $2475 this semester. From this allocation each committee must select speakers and negotiate with them.

Fees paid so far this semester for speakers include $135 for John Rousselot, $100 for Willie Brown, $300 for Lisa Hobbs.

Saul Alinsky, who spoke on campus last week, was also paid $300, but he donated it to the Industrial Areas Foundation of Chicago of which he is the executive director.

Cyril Magnin, who will speak May 11, has requested that his fee be given to charity.

Lecturers for this semester's program were contacted last semester through the efforts of Edward Taylor and Joseph Thorn, last semester's faculty chairmen.

"With the tight schedules of Joan Baez and Ira Sandperl they have had to cancel their appearance at the college," according to Dave Straus, student chairman. "It is the first time a speaker has cancelled."

Correspondence between Thorn and Mrs. Sandperl, secretary to Miss Baez and Sandperl, indicated that they would be glad to come, but that a later date would have to be negotiated. Miss Baez's standard fee is $200.

It is hoped that the college will be able to have higher-paid speakers in the future, because there is a good chance that part of the expenses will be handled by the school district, according to White.

Students on the lecture series committee are selected by the AS president, Joe Parnell. Faculty members are selected by the Faculty Association which was instrumental in organizing the series. Taylor, who was the faculty chairman for the past year and a half, "is responsible for the fine list of speakers we have this semester," White commented.

White took over leadership of the series in February.

He is also President of the Faculty Association.

Membership In Scholastic Honor Society Hits New Peak

Approximately 90 of the 300 eligible students have enrolled in the Omega Chapter of Alpha Gamma Sigma this semester, according to Wallace E. Wells, sponsor and state vice president of the Advisory Board.

AGS, or what might better be termed the Honor Society, is made up of students having a scholastic average of 3.0 or better of a full program of 12 units.

"This is an unusually good response of students to join," remarked Wells recently. Membership usually does not exceed 40 or 50 students but this semester letters were sent out to eligible students inviting them to join. Wells indicated that the letters seem to be an encouraging factor.

Membership in the society has a variety of advantages, according to Wells, mainly as a point of record. A student's membership to the Honor Society speaks for itself on an application for a scholarship or for employment.

If a student can remain a member through three of his four semesters at this college, he will automatically become a permanent member. He will also be awarded a gold pin and certificate by the president of the college, Wells explained.

Student tutoring service is a part of the society's down-to-earth work. Any student in need of a tutor is invited by Wells to see him in his office, S-140.

AMS To Sponsor Big Brothers Of America

The Associated Men Students recently inaugurated sponsorship of an off-campus organization on campus. The Big Brothers of America, a nationwide program, will enable a man student over 21 years to act as a father to some deprived youngster.

Men students interested in this program can contact Ron Lent, president of the AMS, in B-5 for a free brochure containing further details.

Another first-time event in recent years is that the AMS is going to circulate a questionnaire to men students. In it will be written the question, "What ideas do you have to improve the AMS program?"

Lent's reason for doing this is to create an interest in men students and to encourage the students "to participate in their program and in their organization."

Council Refuses Consideration Of COO Condemnation

By Ron Lent

Climaxing a week of heated debate concerning Student Council's passage of a resolution previously defeated within Council Of Organizations permitting year-round political party campaigning, COO presented a recommendation to Student Council last week condemning it for action on this issue.

However, when this recommendation was presented to Student Council by COO Chairman Jim Dierke, Soph Councilman Rich Christensen objected to consideration on the grounds that the recommendation was tactless and insulting.

Christensen objected to the second "Be It Further Recommended" clause, which stated that "Student Council members (should) uphold the Constitution of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco and conduct themselves in a manner of an officer of the Associated Students."

COUNCIL UPHELD Christensen's objection, and the unconsidered recommendation was returned to COO. The following day, Dierke revealed that he was tabling this recommendation which was co-authored by COO representatives Ron Appel of the Masonic Club and Buzz Kribs of the Sophomore Class.

Meanwhile, COO Vice Chairman Judy Good announced that the March 30 deadline for campus clubs to sign up for booths in COO's annual fund-raising Spring Festival had been extended to April 11.

According to Dierke, this deadline was extended because only seven campus clubs out of 37 had signed up for this event. The COO chairman explained that "this shows apathy on the part of these people." Dierke asserted that he is "talking to club sponsors and club presidents in order to stir up interest and participation in this annual fund-raising festival."

THE FORMER COO treasurer emphasized, "This event offers each club its only opportunity to raise funds on campus during the year."

Dierke emphasized, "We've arranged for all the prizes for the April 28 Spring Carnival, and we are completely geared to start the wheels in motion for this Smith Hall engagement when and if campus clubs show sufficient interest."

Included among the list of club participants in this 7:30 p.m. to midnight event is the International Relations Club.

COO Adds Five Clubs, Boosts Members To 37

Five new clubs have been added to the Council Of Organizations this semester, Counell Chairman Jim Dierke reported recently, boosting the total membership of COO to 37.

The recent additions to COO are the Campus Police Club, the Pistol Team Club, the Masonic Club, the Marketing Club and the Student Band Club.

The basic purpose of each club is to assume an active part in Associated Student government, Dierke said.

The Campus Police Club already has 48 members, with Lawrence Lawson as the sponsor. Timothy Foley sponsors the newly formed Pistol Team Club, which is an extension of the already formed Pistol Team as an on-campus organization. The president of both new clubs is Leo Dunn, who is also the Captain of the Campus Police.

The Masonic Club plans to coordinate the activities of all the Masonic groups on campus, such as De Molay and Job's Daughters. This club of 55 members is headed by Ron Appel and is sponsored by Donald Bryant.

The Marketing Club is designed to appeal to those students who have an interest in advertising arts. The club president is Frank Schwarz. Joseph Lasky sponsors the club.

Any member of the band is eligible for membership in the Student Band Club. The club is sponsored by Meyer Cahn. John Cook, as president, will organize the functions of the band, in its first semester as a club.

As COO chairman, Dierke said, "The increase in the number of clubs means that interest in the affairs of campus government by the students has been aroused."

Kirkpatrick Shines In No-Hit Game

San Jose Crushes Ram Tracksters In 89-47 Defeat

Behind its fine all-around team performance, the San Jose trackmen rolled over City College, 89-47, April 1 at Foothill.

Coach Lou Vasquez said that the Jags were just too powerful for the Rams. In most events San Jose placed one, two or three men. Vasquez said that Adam Banks is still out with an injured leg, but Ernie Provost came off the injury list and placed in the 100-yard dash and the 220-yard run, although unable to go at full speed.

David Jones also placed in the 100 and 220 and ran in both relays. However, the top runner was distance man Hoy Henderson who won the mile and was edged in the 880. This enabled Fred Forsberg to concentrate on the two mile which he won.

RAY HEARNE was the star of the field events as he finished first in the long jump, second in the high jump behind teammate Mike Carter, and third in the triple jump.

The pole vault and the weight events were a disaster for the Red and White as they were only able to place two men in the three events.

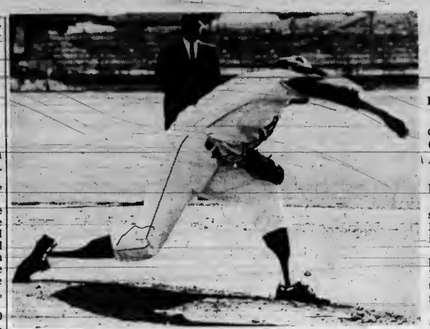
Vasquez believes that the Jags are as strong as any team in the conference. "They are strong in every event, and barring injuries they should go undefeated," he commented.

SAN JOSE'S POWERFUL mile relay team beat out the Rams in a fast 3:22.1. Sprinter Earl Harris ran a valuable leg in that race for the Jags in addition to winning the 100, 220 and also placing in the long jump. Harris was a member of the winning 440 relay team as they clocked a fine 42.6 in upsetting the Rams in that event.

Harris took the 100 in 9.9 running ahead of Provost and Jones in that order. His 220 time was 22.1 as Jones beat out teammate Provost for second place.

Forsberg's winning two-mile time was 10:04.6. Henderson took the mile in 4:26.0 and finished second in the 880 behind the winning time of 1:58.4. The Ram trackmen lack depth in the distances races as they have no one to back up Henderson and Forsberg.

San Jose's Sam Caruthers was victorious in both hurdles. He took the 120 highs in 14.9, beating out Rams Craig Johnson and Floyd Banks in that order. Caruthers' 39.6 was good enough for first place in the 330 intermediate hurdles with Don Jordan of City College coming in second.



CARUTHERS BROKE a Jaguar school record in the pole vault with a leap of 15-0 to cap a great all-around performance by the San Jose star.

Carter jumped 6-2 for his first in the high jump, as Hearne, usually a great high jumper, concentrated on picking up points for the Rams and went only 6-0 for his runner-up spot.

The meet was held on the neutral Foothill track because the San Jose oval was not in running condition. Foothill's track is an all-weather oval.

City College takes on Chabot on the Ram track at 3 p.m. Friday.

—M. D. & J. L.

ACE HURLER BILL (NO-HIT) KIRKPATRICK is shown releasing a pitch in a recent game against San Jose, won by the Rams, 7-1. Kirkpatrick allowed the Jaguars four hits in fanning 10 and followed up that performance with his no-hitter against Merritt. All-Conference last season, "Kirk" looks like a repeater if he can continue his great pitching.
—Guardsman photo by Rich Sandino

Six Unbeaten Squads Pace Intra Play; Felony, Guardsman Clash

The second week on Intramural Basketball action was highlighted by no forfeits, and Associated Men Student President Ron Lent said he expects no further cancellations for the remainder of the league.

In Club division action four teams ran their marks to two wins without any losses as Phi Delta, Tamaraws, Newman Club and the Irish all were victorious for the second straight time.

Phi Delta defeated Alpha Phi Epsilon, 35-29. Bill Berger led the scoring for the winners with 12 points, and Dale Sutton backed him up with nine in the low-scoring affair. The loss was the second without a win for Epsilon.

TAMARAWS BEAT out winless Chinese Students, 40-24, behind a balanced attack led by Danny Cayabyab's 13 digits.

In a real close one, Newman Club beat Alpha Kappa Rho, 54-48. Don Carmody hit 16 and Baron Miller added 15 to the winning cause. Rudy Pidillila scored 21 points for the losers, and the loss evened their record at one win and one loss.

A strong Irish team took care of the Avengers, 66-55. Tom Kuhn and Tom Teague paced the attack for the Irish with 19 and 18 points respectively.

Only two teams in the Independent division remain undefeated and sole possession of first place will be decided tonight when the Felony Squad tangles with The Guardsman.

The Felony Squad made it two in a row with an easy 54-23 win over the Ram Ski Club. Mike Carter paced the attack for the winners with 15 points. Ram Ski now finds itself in the cellar with no wins and two losses.

THE GUARDSMAN rolled over the Knobs in fine fashion by the score of 60-46. Mike Duggan led the way for the journalists with 22 points while Tom Graham and John Casey followed with 14 each. The boardwork of Casey and Graham, and Duggan's shooting, were too much for the Knobs, who now stand with one win and one defeat. Sam Holmes and Ralph Bayard hit for 10 each in the losing cause for the Knobs.

In other Independent action, the Black Students Association won its first game with a 53-47 victory over the Revisables. Tom Crenshaw hit 15 for the winners as the Revisables lost their second straight close one.

Red Mountaineers evened their record with win number one over Tamaraws Babes by an 82-45 score. Carlos Ramirez paced the Mountaineer attack with 26 points.

Other contests scheduled for tonight besides the Guardsman-Felony Squad game, pit Red Mountaineers against Revisables while Tamaraws Babes take on Ram Ski and the Knobs meet Black Students Association.

Eleven Strikeouts Highlight Hurler's 5-0 Performance

By Marc Clarkson

Pitching ace Bill Kirkpatrick hurled the best game of his young career with a sparkling no-hit, no-run performance over Merritt College, as the Rams whipped the T-Birds, 5-0, at Balboa Field, April 3. It is the first no-hitter in Ram history.

Kirkpatrick added to his masterpiece by fanning 11 T-Bird batters. Three bases on balls marred a perfect effort.

The hard-throwing righthander got stronger as the game progressed. He allowed only two balls out of the infield after the fifth inning.

THE ALL-CONFERENCE hurler knew he had a no-hitter going. "When I retired the three, four and five batters in the seventh inning, I definitely felt I was pitching no-hit ball."

This is the second no-hit performance for Kirkpatrick. After his graduation from Lincoln, the then All-City slinger pitched a no-hitter against a semi-pro club. He felt that this was a better achievement. "Merritt is a much better team and should be a contender for the conference championship," he said.

FIELDING PLAYED a significant part in securing Kirkpatrick's no-hitter, especially in the seventh inning when two balls were softly hit near third base. After one out, a bounder was hit to the left of third baseman Maris Pantels, who raced in, stabbed the ball barehanded, and rifled a low throw to first base where Chuck Gretton made a fantastic scoop of the ball for the put out.

The next batter hit one almost in the same spot; this time Pantels fired a strike to first.

In the hitting department, the Rams scored their runs in bunches, picking up two in the third inning and three in the fifth. In the third, Gretton drove in both runs with a double, Gerry Bosch and Mike Sorini whacked in two more in the fifth with base hits.

The Rams collected eight hits. Bosch and Pantels shared hitting honors with two singles each. Pantels scored two runs, Tom Callan, Sorini and Gretton following with one each.

THE RAMS' VICTORY increased their league mark to two wins and no defeats and a good start in an effort to repeat as Golden Gate Conference champs. Last year the Ram baseballers took the conference at 18-3.

Kirkpatrick now ends with both wins as he tries to near his great year of last season when he finished with a 9-1 mark.

The Ram nine will play host to Foothill College on Friday. It promises to be an interesting game since the Owls are a contending team and boast the league's top strikout artist in Mike Noonan. In the season opener against Merritt, Noonan struck out 17 batters.

Weekend Results

BASEBALL

WEDNESDAY

CCSF at Chabot, ortginally scheduled for March 31, was again postponed because of rain. Game was played Saturday at Chabot.

CCSF 1—Chabot 6

The Rams were looking for their third straight conference victory, but Chabot's Mike Bahler pulpthed Ram ace Bill Kirkpatrick (2-1).

THURSDAY

CCSF at Contra Costa, postponed, rain.

TRACK

FRIDAY

CCSF vs. Foothill was postponed because of the poor running condition of the Ram track. The Ram trackmen are still looking for their first dual meet win in conference action and the Foothill meet will be held at a later date on the City College track.

GOLF

FRIDAY

CCSF 33 - San Jose 2

The Ram duffers evened their league mark at 3-3 with this win over San Jose held at Harding Park.

Medalist—Ken Kundert (SF) 72.

Other scores—Boston (SF) 76, Aton (SJ) 78, Fama (SF) 79, Leonardini (SF) 79, Blazer (SF) 80.

TENNIS

FRIDAY

CCSF vs. CSM was not held because of the rain.

Golf Team Falls To San Jose; Mateo Next Foe

The Ram golf team dropped its third conference match of the season, 25-11, to San Jose City College at Riverside Country Club in San Jose last week.

The Rams were again led by Ken Kundert, who was medalist with 76, followed by Doug Boston (78). Mike Leonardini, who was low man for the Rams against Contra Costa with a 73, skied to an 87. Bob Fama, third man for the Rams, had an 80, followed by Bob Blazer with 84.

Kundert, who won all six points possible, defeated Wayne Aton by five shots. Boston defeated San Jose's Mike Freeze by four shots, while gaining four points. Fama and Leonardini dropped 1½ points, as both San Jose golfers had 79. Bob Blazer only managed to win a half point while losing by five shots.

The Rams lost the total five-man score by four shots, while losing 19 to 11 in match play. San Jose had three scores of 79, followed by an 81 and an 83 over their home course.

In their next match, the Ram golfers will battle College of San Mateo Friday at Harding Park. San Mateo is currently undefeated and appears to be the strongest club in the conference. San Mateo has already displayed its strength as the Bulldogs ran away with the Western Junior College Chamionships at Fresno, defeating the nearest team by 33 strokes. San Mateo is led by Len Studinger, Mike Ray, Warren Richter and Steve Mountain, all capable of breaking par.—D. B.

Ram Netters Duel San Jose Friday

With the wettest spring in memory hampering all spring sports, Roy Diederichsen's tennis team is no expection.

The Rams' crucial match with Foothill was rained out and will have to be rescheduled. The constant rain has been plaguing the team since the season began, and as a result, Diederichsen's squad has been finding it quite rough to have practice sessions.

The Rams hold their practices in Golden Gate Park, and if ground is the least bit wet, they can't practice.

Friday the Rams host San Jose at Golden Gate Park. Diederichsen said that this will be a very hard-fought match since the two teams are very evenly matched. The Jags will be trying to upset the Rams as they haven't beaten their opponents in the last six years.

'Dunk' Ban Destroys Hoop Game Thrill

THE NEW "no dunking" change installed into the college and high school rules beginning with the 1967 basketball season is definitely going to make the game more difficult for the officials and less interesting for the fan.

Almost everyone agrees that barring the "stuffer" is trying to prevent UCLA's Lew Alcindor from dominating the game. It will now be harder for the 7-1 Bruin sophomore to make baskets because he can no longer slam the ball through the netting, but will be forced to drop it through with his hands no closer than 10 inches from the rim.

The referee will have to judge whether the man's hand is eight, nine, 10 or 12 inches away! Good luck!

THE DUNK SHOT is without a doubt the most exciting single play of a basketball game. When Ram center Gene Williams used to make a jump shot, some faithful City College rooters applauded. When Williams slammed through a stuff shot, the whole gymnasium came alive.

Since 1957, when rules were made to prevent Bill Russell of USF from goal-tending, every change has been going against the big man. The key area, which used to be in the shape of a key, is now so wide that a player can barely walk across it without being called for three seconds.

Now, just because a 7-1 individual, who will be 20 years old next week, comes along with all the ability and coordination of a smaller man, the crowd-pleasing dunk shot is being abolished.

THERE WERE OVER 50 seven-footers who played college basketball this past season, yet Alcindor was the only one good enough to be known throughout the country.

Also, the new rules are trying to help the little man get back into the game of basketball and steal some of the limelight from the big man. A few examples will show that there is no need to bring the smaller player back into the limelight, but that he already is there.

Calvin Murphy, a 5-10 freshman at Niagara University, finished his first college season with an average of 48.8 points a game for the Niagara frosh.

The University of California's little Russ Critchfield (5-10) completed his junior year with over 20 points per game and just missed being named Northern California player-of-the-year.

Telvis Jones of Lincoln High in San Francisco recently won the AAA scoring title and also holds the single game mark of 45 points despite standing only 5-10.

RAMBLINGS

By Mike Duggan

Big Lew Scapegoat In 'Stuffer' Scuffle

The Golden Gate Conference scoring crown for this year was won by Owney Williams of San Mateo, who at 6-1 hit for better than 22 points a game. The league record for a single season is held by Jimmy Tolliver of Oakland who hit for a 29.4 average and was less than six feet tall.

In the professional ranks, where Wilt Chamberlain (7-0) and Russell (6-10) dominate the play, the number two and three scorers were back-court men. Oscar Robertson (Cincinnati) and Jerry West (Los Angeles) were able to use their talents to score 30 points a game despite the ever presence of the big men.

ONE SOUND REASON did support the rule change. It was figured that eliminating the dunk will prevent any more backboards from being broken during the course of game action.

In the state championship game for two-year colleges between Pasadena and Long Beach, the game was stopped to repair one of the baskets that broke. The logical reason for the mishap was the constant dunking in warm-ups and games for the previous three days of play by all teams in the tournament (including City College).

Gus Johnson (6-6) of the Baltimore Bullets on more than one occasion has ripped the rim from the backboard with his ferocious stuffs during games.

Swimmers Vie For Friday Win

Ram swimmers, still hungry for their first conference win, journey to Diablo Valley Friday for a dual conference meet.

After suffering losses at the hands of San Jose City College, San Mateo and Foothill, the team hopes to topple Diablo Valley for its first victory.

April 21 and 22 the swimmers compete in the Golden Gate Conference championships at San Mateo. Although the team is winless thus far, Coach Curt Decker is optimistic.

"The team is working hard, and we should do well in the conference championships," Decker predicted.

In the conference meet the Rams have a good chance of picking up valuable points in the individual events, where they wouldn't count in the dual meets. Leading the attack for the Rams will be John O'Connor, Bruno Van Rign, Frank Cercos and All-America Bill Pasquinelli.

Labor Market Begs College For Employees

The labor market is begging City College for trained, skilled employees, according to Joseph A. Amori, director of personnel placement services.

Several critical areas exist in the Bay Area labor market, Amori claims. "They include accounting, electronics, sales, shorthand and typing, chemical technicians and general clerical. For an example," he went on, "I hold in my office one order for 65 electronic technicians from a single firm on the Peninsula. Each job starts at $600 per month but we will graduate only 35 students in this field next June."

While announcing the 12th Annual Engineering-Business Recruitment Day, to be held May 17 in Smith Hall, Amori said, "Sixty employer recruiting teams from California, Nevada, Washington, New Mexico and New York will be on campus to conduct interviews."

Last year's recruitment day showed the greatest demand was for graduates in the secretarial field, second in the accounting field.

To date, over 250 students from 25 different programs are signed up for placement interviews. While the program is labeled Engineering-Business, Liberal Arts and General Education students are welcome to participate. "Students interested in being considered for full-time jobs in any field are requested to report to the Placement Service Office (S-187) immediately for processing," Amori stressed.

The program gets underway at 8 a.m. on Wednesday, May 17, with a breakfast in Statler wing. A short program outlining the day's activities will feature a welcome to all guests by City College President, Dr. Louis G. Conlan.—E. H.

Out-Of-Town Students May Lose Reg Rights

City College students who reside outside the city and county of San Francisco may not be able to re-register this summer or next fall, warned Registrar Gertrude Somerville.

"Non-resident students must obtain a release from their home districts and this release expires June 30 of each year," Miss Somerville explained. "Any student attending City College with a release this semester must renew that release before registering for a new semester. Summer registration ends May 1 this year and that doesn't leave much time.

"The renewal can be obtained at the same place you obtained the original release," Miss Somerville stated. "Generally, that would be the two-year college in your district of residence."

Vietnam Veto Widens Council Rift

By Lori Pittman

The growing rift between members of the Change party and the United Students for Action widened somewhat last week when Associated Student President Joe Parnell vetoed the "Vietnam Week" resolution that had been passed by Student Council two weeks ago.

Reasons for Parnell's veto ranged from the ideals behind the fight in Vietnam to the valuelessness of a United States commitment should this country withdraw now. He also stated in his veto, "It has not been established that the majority of the students here are opposed to our commitment."

Change councilmen opposed the veto but could not muster up a two-thirds majority vote to overrule it. Bart Wechsler, Parnell's old opponent for the Presidency, resigned his position as Parnell's assistant after the veto.

A special election will be held by Student Council next Monday, April 24, to fill three vacant council seats.

Change party, which had held the majority on the council, is now tied with U.S.A. Of the three seats vacated, two had belonged to the Change party, while the third was a U.S.A. member's.

JERRY VANGER (U.S.A.) created the first vacancy when he joined the Navy.

The two Change seats were vacated by Brenda Brooks, who is no longer enrolled in the 12 units required, and Marty Watten, whose grade-point average fell below the 2.0 required for council membership.

Students interested in running for these posts can file petitions in B-5, and Friday, April 21 is the last day petitions will be accepted.

Council and cabinet members will be the only ones voting in this election.

While the campus flags flew at half-mast for the late William Y. Bell, a sociology instructor who died April 9, council resolved to allocate $150 for a William Y. Bell Memorial Scholarship for the fall semester of 1967.

The scholarship, according to the resolution, will go to a Negro student majoring in one of the social sciences and chosen by members of the Social Science department. Council went on record favoring the perpetuation of the scholarship.

COUNCILMAN KEN JONES proposed a recommendation for the widening of the sidewalks between the Science-Cloud Hall area and the Arts Hall and cafeteria area. It passed with little debate.

Two moments of silence were observed by various members of the council and its audience last Wednesday. One was observed for Aaron C. Mitchell, the convict executed that day at San Quentin; the other was for the Sacramento policeman he murdered.

Glen Butler was sworn in as the new Frosh Class President.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 44 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, APRIL 19, 1967 NUMBER 6

Education Ruling Stymies Pass-Fail Grading System

California's Department of Education has turned back a two-year college attempt to utilize the pass-fail grading system for certain courses toward graduation credits, James Billwiller, dean of instruction, announced this week.

The "certain" courses which Billwiller pointed out included such classes as chorus, orchestra, band drama rehearsal and production, speech correction, debate and Forum magazine staff among others.

Some of California's two-year colleges utilized the pass-fail system for effect, Billwiller indicated. "However," he said, "the ruling did not conflict with this college's curriculum since we did not go through with the system as planned."

The pass-fail system may continue in many of the two-year colleges of the state but will not count toward graduation units.

"It is apparent that the sections already tentatively written in the college's 1967-68 catalogue dealing with pass-fail courses must be held in abeyance.

"Unless the State Board revises the relevant sections, we must assume that the various courses intended as pass-fail in 1967-68 will be graded as in the past on the five-point scale," Billwiller stated.—M. A.

Culture Of Hippies Fad At New Experimental College

By Viggo Petersen

An experimental college, the Bay Area's latest fad in education, has recently been formed at the College of Marin in Kentfield. It is probably the first of its kind to be established at a two-year college.

Patterned after other experimental colleges in the Bay Area, at University of California at Berkeley and San Francisco State, the experimental college at Marin is designed and conducted entirely by students.

Classes are formed by anyone on any subject. A student must merely present an idea of a class to the college and if enough students like his idea and enroll in the class, it becomes part of the curriculum.

THUS FAR SEVEN classes have been formed which include a discussion on humor and America's finest comedians, which undertakes to define humor and to study the styles and techniques of the early comedians in American film such as Laurel and Hardy, W. C. Fields and the Marx Brothers.

Two classes on poetry are offered —one an attempt to define poetry, the other a discussion on the subject regarding interpretation and writing of poetry.

A class on Utopian society will undertake a survey and study of the establishment of an idealistic society and how one might be established and maintained.

A SELF-TAUGHT communications class, made up only of students will discuss the arts, poetry, language and the theater.

Average enrollment in each of the classes has ranged from three students to as high as 71.

The most popular class in the curriculum, however, is one entitled The Culture Of The Hippie, which brought on an influx of 71 students at its first meeting and had to be broken down to two segments.

Ranking second is a class on United States involvement in Vietnam, its historical background and implications.

The first discussion on the hippie culture undertook to define what a hippie is. Unfortunately, no ultimate or meaningful conclusion was reached during this discussion.

AS PART OF the program on hippie culture, the Diggers were brought to the Kentfield campus for an interview. Their presence was accompanied by two plain-clothes policemen who were on hand to take pictures of the group "for their files" and to check any subversive statements made by speakers.

During the interview, the Diggers discussed their basic philosophy. When asked about the war in Vietnam, the use of drugs, love and related subjects, the Diggers replied by indicating that any man should be free to act according to how he wants.

"If it's his thing, let him do it," was their reply to almost every question hurled at them.

Plans for the experimental college at this point are uncertain. Student participation in the program has ranged from very mediocre and apathetic to very enthusiastic. Expansion of the program will depend entirely on student involvement and participation.

'Loose Structure' For New Honors Humanities Class

By Glynn Petrie

A new special honors class in Humanities is to be offered here on a trial basis next semester for specially qualified students, according to Lloyd D. Luckmann, coordinator of instruction.

The new class, which is designated Humanities 41A, will be concerned with the same subject material and will employ the same text, slides, movies and records used by the regular Humanities 41A but will differ in several primary aspects.

IT WILL AIM at a more informal relationship between instructor and students and will make use of more open class discussion and fewer lecture presentations than the regular section. The daily quizzes and the three midterm examinations in use in the regular humanities class will be eliminated.

Students will be graded instead on participation in group discussion and activities, short library research essay papers based on individual interests and a final objective examination in order to retain some objectivity for grade evaluation.

The size of the class will be limited to an enrollment of 17 students but it is desired that no more than 15 be enrolled so that the objectives of the class can be more easily attained.

Luckmann explained that, while a student will not receive any extra credit or recognition on his records for having taken the honor course, he would have more opportunity to air personal ideas and opinions in class discussions and would receive more individual attention.

THE INCORPORATION of the new class into the college curriculum was made definite recently when the division of instruction of the college agreed to its implementation. Either Sidney Ancker or Egbert Brix, the two faculty members who originally proposed the class, will be its instructor for the fall semester.

In order to enroll in the course, a student must have passed English 1A with a grade of C or higher, have an overall 3.0 grade-point average in 10 units of university parallel subjects and/or obtain consent of the chairman of the English department.

A similarly constituted Humanities 41B is planned for the Spring of 1968. If the classes prove workable and worthwhile, they may be continued indefinitely.

Shootin' The Rapids

FINDING A PARKING PLACE could have been a problem last week when the reservoir decided to "die hard" and the rains backed the water in its southwest corner resembling a mini Grand Canyon. HOWEVER, SOME STUDENTS made the best of the situation, racing their cars, getting their brakes wet, and scaring the fish away.
—Guardsman photo by Rich Sandino

Joan Baez Cancels Lecture To Make United States Tour

Joan Baez, well-known folk singer and codirector of the School for Non-Violent Action in the Carmel Valley, has cancelled her lecture engagement here, Warren White, chairman of the Student-Faculty Concert and Lecture Series, announced last week.

Miss Baez's lecture, the time of which had not been determined, was to take place on a date mutually convenient for her and the college. She and codirector of the school, Ira Sandperl, were to speak on the subject of nonviolence in a violent age.

White explained that Miss Baez, recently returned from a tour of the Orient and scheduled to begin a tour of the United States this month, was unable to find time to speak here at a date agreeable with the schedule of the college.

The possibility of Miss Baez being engaged to speak here at some future time, such as next semester, still exists, White said, if the students on the Student-Faculty Lecture and Concert Series Committee show interest in inviting her again.

However, he did not want to promise an appearance of the politically oriented folk-singer which might lead to a second disappointment. It is up to the members of the committee, whether further arrangements for her to speak on campus will be attempted.

Miss Baez gave concerts in the Bay Area Sunday and last night.

Deadline Set For Contributions To Forum Magazine

Donald Cunningham, an English instructor at the college, has been selected to be the new adviser of Forum, the campus literary magazine, advised by Catharine Connelly.

Forum, which is published during each Spring semester, offers an outlet for all students interested in writing. The tentative deadline for submitting material for this semester is Friday, April 28 in Cloud 333A or Arts 221, Cunningham said.

Cunningham was a student at the college majoring in journalism and a columnist for The Guardsman before transferring to San Francisco State College to earn his Bachelor's degree.

As a student at State, he majored in creative writing and was one of the five founders of the first literary magazine of that college, Transfer. He went on to earn his Master's degree at the University of California, Berkeley, and became an English instructor at City College in 1962.

As the adviser to Forum, Cunningham will also be the instructor of English G14, which is composed of the editorial board of the magazine.

Members of the editorial board this semester are Michael Commins, Rudy Espinoza, Tom Gamez, Cheryl Grantano, Dennis Mundt, Craig Root, Bill Bernini and Wayne Jeffcoat.

Short stories, poetry, one-act plays, short essays, criticisms, photography and art works which are contributed for publication are judged and graded by the board. Cunningham emphasized that by doing this, the manuscripts published are chosen by the students alone.

The Forum, which was founded in 1936 under the sponsorship of the late Dorothy Mercer, was previously

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students
City College of San Francisco

ACP PRESS

Vol. 64, No. 6 | WEDNESDAY, APRIL 19, 1967 | Page 2

Success Of Forum Publication Dependent On Contributions

FORUM MAGAZINE'S deadline for manuscripts this semester is April 28 in Cloud-333A or Arts-221.

The manuscripts should be submitted on 8½ by 11 paper.

Material can be either short stories, poetry, one-act plays, short essays, criticisms, photography or art works. These are graded and edited by the editorial board of the magazine which decides what material will be printed.

THE MAGAZINE, which is supported by Associated Student funds and has been in existence since 1936, is free to students with AS cards. It costs 50 cents to students without cards and is usually published in June.

The Guardsman is aware that there is a need for an outlet for student writing, and contrary to popular belief, Forum Magazine is this outlet.

Popular belief is that The Guardsman should perhaps carry poetry, short stories and essays by students. However, The Guardsman is a newspaper and by this definition reports the news on campus whether it has impact or is meager.

IN THE PAST, The Guardsman has attempted to encourage comment from students with its letters-to-the-editor department, which, unfortunately, does not include poetry or short stories.

However, The Guardsman's Ram's Horn and Forum have something in common, both being dependent upon student interest—a suspenseful premise to say the least. Also, students who turn in material receive no credit other than their own personal satisfaction.

Many times a student feels that his writing ability is hampered by limitations placed upon him by English instructors, as far as selection of topics is concerned, but do not have the time to enroll in Journalism or Creative Writing courses.

DONALD CUNNINGHAM, an English instructor at the college, is the adviser to Forum this semester, and he has made it clear that, as in the past, the editorial board, composed of students, will make the selection of manuscripts which will be printed.

This leaves the field wide open for some responsible Oracleism, Barbarism or, for the more conservative types, literature.

The Guardsman hopes that Forum receives an abundance of material so that its editorial board can effectively make selections.

At any rate, contributing to Forum is a good way to support one's college literary magazine or ego.

Legendary Mascot

SAM THE RAM, infamous City College live mascot, made his debut at the traditional rival football game with the San Mateo Bulldogs in 1954. Students' love for the mascot was quickly converted to disapproval when the animal began butting everything in sight.

Sam The Ram Booster Of Football, Morale In 1954

By Marc Clarkson

Barbara Eden, Ollie Matson, Burl Toler, Lee Meriwether. These are a few of the many distinguished figures that were denizens of this college. But no figure here stirred up such a fuss as the legendary Sam the Ram who roamed the hills of this campus in 1954.

Sam was inhuman. That is, he was an animal—a 300-plus pound, heavily-fleeced Merino ram.

The ram was procured by students here from a Napa rancher to become the college's mascot. In no time he set himself up as a "stalwart pillar of college spirit."

SAM MADE HIS college social debut at a football game midway through the season. It was quite a spot for him. The situation: The college football team hadn't won a game. Spirit was at an all-time low. But Sam was there to raise spirit. Enter Sam. Pound, pound, pound.

The football team, inspired by its new morale booster, won a resounding 32-13 victory and eventually went on to capture the conference title. Legend goes that the opposing team scored only when Sam left the field.

Sam made his home on campus. Besides participating in social events, he helped earn his keep by trimming the grass where the horticulture buildings now stand. Thus, food was no problem, for he virtually lived off the land.

SAM ALSO FUNCTIONED as general guardian of the campus, roaming about at will; it was here that his life made a turn for the worse.

One day he wandered into a volley of arrows being shot by the archery team. That incident marked the beginning of a behavior change which plagued the campus and eventually caused the doom of Sam.

Sam's disposition gradually transformed from gentle nudges to out-and-out butts. His action finally developed into a series of attacks on students and faculty members.

AS A RESULT, attitudes changed concerning Sam. Many people were fed up with the wooly beast who was, by now, notorious for attacking all who came near him.

Against strong protest, the Associated Student President persuaded the college that the ram should stay. However, when the President became the ram's next target, he reconsidered the practicality of keeping it.

What was to become of Sam's life was decided at the next Student Council meeting. The then dean of men summed up the popular feeling of Sam's behavior with this statement, "This unprovoked and spontaneous pressure has not cemented good student-faculty relations, and I feel that our aggressive companion should be placed in a position where there will be no repetition of unmerited assault."

IN OTHER WORDS, this was the end of Sam's campus life, and, as it turned out, his entire existence.

It was decided that he would be handled in the most feasible way. He would be sent off to market to be made into Ramchops.

So ended the tragic life of Sam the Ram who litterally butted his way out of existence.

Labelled And Recorded

Hermits' Double-Hit Comeback

By Marty Arbunich

HERMAN'S HERMITS, the English rock group which is presently riding atop the charts with a double hitter, has launched one of the best LP's of the year in the name of There's A Kind Of Hush All Over The World on MGM.

The Hermits have recently regained their American popularity in the past month after an absence—not from the recording field but the top ten charts—which accounted for a string of about a half dozen mediocre hits. And it was not until No Milk Today/There's A Kind Of Hush came along that the group reestablished its hold on the American market.

The group's last four successful singles (Dandy, East-West, 'Milk' and 'Hush') headline the album, one of their best thus far.

THE FASCINATION of the LP lies in the group's smooth flow of musical rhythm blended with Peter (Herman) Noone's English-accented vocals. It's more of a soothing sound to the car, a comforting easy-going cadence, rather than the customary tension-building rhythm exemplified by most rock groups.

Jezebel, a Spanish-slanted song, and the Monkee's Saturday's Child, both superbly done, add additional spice to the album and really make the five Hermits' latest an audible ravishment well worth the tab.

OFF THE RECORD... The Turtles have struck again. Their follow-up to Happy Together is She'd Rather Be With Me. Their third album, Happy Together, is out and, according to White Whale records, "is one of the most carefully produced albums ever made." The group has also recorded the title song for 20th Century Fox's movie Guide For The Married Man, which is on the album, and are semi-regulars on the Smothers Brothers Show.

Apparently the Beau Brummels aren't all washed up. Two Days Till Tomorrow, their only single in quite some time, was released last week. The group, however, is minus drummer John Peterson (now with Harpers Bizarre) and possibly others.

New LP's by Harpers Bizarre, the Peanut Butter Conspiracy, the Yardbirds (greatest hits), Bob Dylan (greatest hits), the Blues Magoos and the Freak Scene debuted this week. MGM has at least three new fine sounding albums aside from the Hermits' latest—The Best Of The Lovin' Spoonful, Spyder Turner (Stand By Me) and the Lively Ones (Bugalu Party), with the latter two full of soul.

Ray Stevens of Monument records might have himself a smash with Answer Me, My Love, a slow, beautiful vocal available shortly.

THOSE WHO purchased the Buffalo Springfield (Atco) album of the same name when it was initially distributed (this was before For What It's Worth was popular) should have held off until now to buy it.

The original version of the album did not include For What It's Worth, but now a second version of the same LP has thrown out a trivial cut, rearranged a few tracks and included the hit single. Ingenious, yes, but what a letdown to those impatient shoppers.

Also, potential purchasers beware, for the initial Springfield version is still on the loose and is repeatedly mingled with its identical-looking revision—nothing more than just a bit of clever capitalistic deception.

* * *

'TIS A HAPPENING... The Fugs, a most unusual rock group, are coming Saturday night to the Berkeley Community Theatre... Dance-concerts for the weekend feature the Quicksilver Messenger Service, Charles Lloyd and John Hammond at the Avalon, while Big Brother and the Holding Company, the Harbinger Complex and Howlin' Wolf entertain at the Fillmore.

Food For Thought

More Than Just Chow To Chew In Cafe, Statler

The main purpose of a cafeteria is to provide good food for the students who wish to indulge in a meal or snack while on campus.

The cafeteria at City College has that philosophy, but the students seem to think the cafeteria is for another reason. Many of them, perhaps 50 per cent, go to the cafeteria to meet and talk with friends, or relax after undergoing a tough day of classes.

Some students, deeply dedicated to education, even attempt homework while listening to the college's number one radio station, KCSF announces the daily activities on campus as well as playing the top record hits. Beginning at 8:30 a.m., KCSF also announces the sports events of the day along with any scores of recent contests.

The "cafe" is still an outstanding place for people who wish to obtain a "bite to eat." Unknown to many students, the cafeteria has an excellent choice of dishes, very reasonably priced.

Early morning finds the cafeteria already "jumping" as tired students force down cups of coffee. Pancakes and waffles are often the most popular purchases in the morning, with eggs a close second, followed by donuts and sweet rolls.

Coffee and hot chocolate along with orange juice are the beverages most often sold, and even a few cokes disappear from the machines at 8 o'clock in the morning.

The big rush for the cafeteria seems to be at 11 a.m. when seats become as rare as A's in English 1A. If a student doesn't locate his friend before the "invasion," there is little hope afterward.

The lunch seekers usually indulge in various dishes with hamburgers, hot dogs and sandwiches from Statler wing playing an important role. Many tricky students smuggle their own lunches into the cafeteria. Then everyone settles down and listens to KCSF broadcasts which are barely heard over the roar of the "masses."
—D. B.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1967

EDITOR IN CHIEF.....RICHARD HEINTZ
Managing and Feature Editor.....Connie Skipitares
Staff Editor.....Marty Arbunich
News Editor.....Steven Hara
Sports Editor.....Mike Duggan
Contributing Writers..William G. Pates, Boo Takeuchi
Editorial Writers: John Janigian, John LeTourneau, Art Rodriguez, Viggo Petersen.
Reporters: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, John Hammack, Doreen Ng, Phillip Pianezzi, Lori Pittman, Ron Wong, Ed Holmes, Glynn Petrie, Tim Duncan, Jeffrey Hoffhines.
Cub Reporters: Berry Brown, Ron Lent, Lani Silver, Leo Smith, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf, Franklin Gadson.
Photographers: Bob Briscoe, chief; Jose Fireside, Richard Sandino, Mac F. Goding, Rich Spitalieri, Ron O'Brien, Chris Rozales, Chip Stevens, Jim Tsang.
Faculty Adviser.....Joan Nourse
Member Associated Collegiate Press
1966 - 1967

On The RAMpage

After 50 Years U.S. Woman Is The Same

By Connie Skipitares

NEVER BEFORE in the history of our society has the traditional role of the American woman been challenged with such momentum as has readily become apparent within the last decade or so.

Never before have we focused so much attention upon the undeclared conspiracy to abolish the sacred "double standard"—which we have so thoroughly assimilated into and designated as a basis for the prescription of much of our thinking—as now.

Yet according to a recent study to determine the attitudes of college men and women on the issue of women's roles (where attitudes towards goals, careers, marriages, the ideal position of women in society and similar topics were explored), results indicate that apparently no overwhelming change has affected our view of the American female as we saw her almost half a century ago—her traditional role still seems prevalent and no profound changes appear to be in the offing.

THE STUDY POINTED up an awareness that we are not using the abilities of our young women to the fullest extent, that we are still deterred from doing so by the young women themselves and more particularly by the attitudes of both parents and peers regarding the roles of women.

Young men and parents still exert the most powerful influence on the career choice and the role situation of young women, it was claimed.

Among major findings that resulted in answer to the question, What Is Your Goal In Life?, 40 percent of the men and 58 percent of the women referred to home, marriage and family life, which indicates that a major portion of the students aspire to marriage. At the same time, however, the predominant male response indicates primary interest in a successful career, the acquisition of a good education and the self-satisfaction that comes from material success and happiness.

WHEN ASKED WHAT constituted the proper role for a woman in our society, nearly 70 percent of both the men and women replied, "wife and mother," which indicates that the traditional pattern still holds true.

When asked what qualities women should have, the answers were essentially the same for both men and women. Those qualities most frequently mentioned by men were intelligence, good looks, understanding, pleasant personality, good grooming, high moral standards, dependability and empathy. In that order. Women listed understanding, intelligence, feminity, empathy, dependability, good grooming, honesty, kindness and consideration and high moral standards or integrity, in that order.

In response to the qualities criticized in a woman, men replied poor grooming (which includes excessive use of make-up, untidiness, poor choice of clothes), loudness, hardness, forwardness, woman's attempt to be the equal of man, shallow unattractive personality bordering on pseudo sophistication and lack of intelligence or common sense.

IN THE TOTAL OUTLOOK, most students seem content with the current status of women in the U.S. However, they do foresee change, a change in which women will assume more responsibility and have greater equality with men.

The dilemma appears to be that many of the attitudes of both college men and women are preventing them from grasping the challenge of the future . . . that many still see each other as "necessary adversaries" in the biological evolution of mankind . . . that each fears the strength and competition of the other and struggles to "keep what we have" rather than to fulfill or to complement each other to attain more for all.

The passive subservient role of the woman is the child of antiquity. It was born (perhaps) with the Victorians, nurtured by the "Puritans" and is now at work with those philosophical advocates. It must therefore be those "Puritans" who will take the initiative in recognizing the new attitudes for what they are and the boundaries in which they can legitimately be applied.

The Observer

By William G. Pates

THIS NATION has come a long way over the years since the incident on the Lexington green where was fired the shot heard 'round the world that set the spark for the beginning of the Revolutionary War which started it all one hundred ninety-two years ago today.

We still have a long way to go, for far too many Americans are living under the false illusion that we have achieved an ideal society in this country, a completed society which has achieved all its purposes and has no further challenges around which the people can unite.

Until we have achieved what was set forth in the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, it cannot be said that the business of this nation has been completed. We have not achieved those self-evident truths, unalienable rights, established justice, insured domestic tranquility, promoted the general welfare, provided for the common defense or secured the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity. Therefore, we have not only obligations to fulfill, we have great opportunities to realize.

THE AMERICAN DREAM—the liberation of humanity, the freedom of man and mind is what we seek.

Freedom is never an accomplished fact. It is always a process. The political philosophy of the Constitution was not perfect in every respect, nor was it expected to remain unchanged through the ages in scope or interpretation.

Equality, humanitarianism, individualism, progress, majority rule and freedom of dissent are some of the basics at the core of the American philosophy of democracy. Yet great intolerance of other people's views and philosophy exists in our society.

FREEDOM and equality have been preached in the United States from the start, and prejudice and discrimination against these have existed since the beginning. Witness the case of Anne Hutchinson of Boston in 1636 not yet thirty years after the founding of the first settlement who tested her conscience and courage of conviction against the rigidity of the new society. She sought honor, justice, freedom and tolerance of her religious theories. Instead she was excommunicated from her church and exiled into the wilderness where she was eventually left along with all but one of her children near Hells Gate on Long Island Sound.

A statue of her is Massachusetts' monument to religious freedom of conscience today.

Most Americans came to this country to achieve those liberties that were lacking in their own country, but too often they end up depriving later immigrants of these same liberties. Most disquieting are the inconsistent attitudes of Americans toward the specific problems of democracy. Apparently this nation's citizens do not realize what they have.

Although everyone enforses free speech, a majority would deny socialists and atheists that right. Americans favor a free press, but many would prohibit papers from criticizing our form of government. They fail to realize that what they are making are anti-socialist and anti-atheist statements without realizing that they are anti-democratic as well.

Our individual rights and personal liberties carry with them corresponding responsibilities and obligations, and our democratic philosophy depends on the intelligence, the conscience, the common sense and the moral character of its people. This is our weakness, for sometimes we exploit the Bill of Rights. As a result we have a House Un-American Activities Committee, loyalty oaths and the Ku Klux Klan. We are free to say what we want and think—at a risk of loss of life, job home, respect, rights, responsibility and the rest.

IT IS SAD that America is great, but is it great enough and is it great in the right way? This nation's present state indicates that it is lacking in this regard. The strong pursuit of private selfish interests can override the vital interests of others. Social evils pile up when private interests determine the pattern of society.

"... As governments are made and moved by men," said William Penn, "so by them they can be ruined too." We must prevent the latter if we hope to achieve full greatness.

"We have made a beginning—but we have only begun..." as President Kennedy put it; "This is a great country. It can be greater. We cannot be satisfied to rest here."

'Raisin' Opens Next Week With All-Negro Leads

By Art Rodriguez

When Lorraine Hansberry's A Raisin In The Sun opened on Broadway (March '59) it marked a high point in the Negro struggle for equal rights. The play itself was the first Negro-authored play ever to reach Broadway.

Its director, Lloyd Richards, was the first director of his race to leave his mark on Broadway in more than a decade. The play became an overnight success.

City College's production of A Raisin In The Sun, opening a four-day run Wednesday, April 26 in the college theater, will mark a landmark in its drama presentations.

A RAISIN IN THE SUN will be the college's first production to include all-Negro talent cast in major roles. (The cast fails to be an all-Negro cast by one minor character.)

Gail Ross in the role of Mother, and Tony Williams as Walter Lee, head the cast. Cynthia Nicholas, a new face in the campus theater, will play the role of Ruth Younger.

Gene Sims, Darrell Belcher, Art Clemon, Gene Hanna and Reginald Harvey complete the cast.

A Raisin In The Sun portrays the story of a Negro family attempting to escape the "stifling atmosphere innately a part of ghetto life."

After having lived in a constant struggle against the environment of Chicago's South Side tenement life, the Lee family collects a high insurance premium which suddenly makes their dreams and aspiration a definite possibility.

DETERMINED TO "GET OUT," the family purchases an urban home in a white neighborhood. The bigotry that is manifested with this action gives an emotional backbone to a stirring drama.

One of the reasons A Raisin In The Sun comes across to the viewer with a hard impact can be attributed to the fact that the play was probably inspired by actual experiences suffered by its late author.

Lorraine Hansberry was born and attended "Jim Crow" schools on Chicago's South Side. When she was eight, her father, a wealthy Chicago real estate man, bought a home in what Miss Hansberry called, "to put it mildly, a very hostile neighborhood."

As she relates it, "I was on my porch one day with my sister swinging my legs," when suddenly, "a mob gathered; we went inside . . . and a brick came through the window with such force it embedded itself in the opposite wall."

Out of this type of experience, Miss Hansberry wrote a play of such quality that it won the New York Critics Circle Award in 1959 over entries by such playwrights as Eugene O'Neill, Tennessee Williams and Archibald MacLeish.

Mobilization Committee Reps Defy War At April 11 Vietnam Week Rally

Rain apparently failed to dampen the spirits of a handful of determined Vietnam Week rally enthusiasts April 11 when sudden showers plagued the crowd which had gathered to hear proponents of the Spring Mobilization Committee offer alternatives to the war in Vietnam.

Quick action by Contemporary Affairs Forum organizers facilitated the removal of the mini-rally at the Speaker's Platform to the indoor shelter of Statler wing.

CLIMAXING THE RALLY were two highly-explosive speeches by Student Mobilization Committeeman Bob Davis and Oakland City Council Candidate Elisha Turner.

The essence of Davis' message questioned the justification of revolution. Quoting political columnist James Reston, Davis upheld his theory that revolution is roused by "Communist subversion and fornication," however, as to which activity causes the other, he was undecided.

To clarify a case of possible mistaken identity, Davis then justified himself by claiming, "I do not identify with the handful of capitalists and corporation magnates of this land—I DO identify with the underprivileged and oppressed."

THE STUDENT committeeman concluded his vast condemnation of war by terming the crisis in Vietnam "a dirty little imperialist war," to which he added that capitalists should keep their "dirty, bloody, dollar-crooked hands out of there!"

In support of Davis' views, Turner then captured podium rights to enter his condemnations. "I am opposed to anyone fighting in this war, but I am triply opposed to a Negro fighting in it!"

TURNER SOMEHOW attempted to correlate the ills of East Asia with the treatment of the Negro in America as cause and effect criteria.

The Oakland Council candidate also offered an alternative form of draft in his plan for peace and equality for the Negro—that of sending all those citizens out on the battlefield who would be gaining the most by this war: the "big corporation men."

"Then," he claimed, "the ghetto-citizens could stay behind to fight their own war!"—C. S.

Art Students In Contest For El Greco Movie

Advanced art students of the college are spending this week participating in a stunt to publicize the opening of a new movie, El Greco.

Having volunteered their services, the student artists were given a special showing of the movie at the Empire theater last week. This week is being spent putting impressions of scenes onto canvas and paper.

This Friday, a panel of faculty members from the art department will judge the entries and the resulting winner will have his picture exhibited in the theater lobby. There will also be a prize, but as yet it is unannounced.

The movie itself takes place in Spain during the Inquisition when El Greco, translated The Greek, arrives in Toledo to paint an altarpiece called in Santa Domingo el Antiguo.

The picture was filmed on location, using actual sites where El Greco's story was lived. It stars Mel Ferrer, who also produced the film, and Italian actress Rosanna Schiaffino. The movie opens at the Empire next Wednesday.

Ailing Alibies Campus Specialty

By Doreen Ng

Behind every excused absence there is an excuse which may or may not be excusable.

Sooner or later one is apt to have skipped class and is confronted with the problem of what to use as a valid excuse. The common cold is the most often used reason for not attending class.

But then there is the student who didn't make it as the spelling bee champ and it's no wonder why. For he's the one who stayed home for three days due to a "flew." Other illnesses that the spelling bee rejects come in contact with include troubles with "science" (sinuses), upset "stomicks," and "headeights."

Dental appointments are also frequently offered as excuses. One poor fellow came in to fill out his reason for absence which later revealed that he had had his "tooth pooled."

The most pitiable reason for absence so far this semester developed when an archery student shot himself with his own arrow, according to Dean of Students Ralph Hillsman. He (the student) apparently pulled the string too hard, thus putting the arrow behind the bow, then shot the arrow through his hand.

A typical day's collection of reasons for absence includes quite a variety such as an eye doctor appointment, kidney infection, fever, throat infection, knee injury, asthma attack, stomach flu, German measles, the mumps, an injured back and a black eye.

Ski injuries are declining in number this semester, Dean Hillsman revealed.

As the snow slowly melts away from the ski slopes, however, the warm weather will bring in a new illness, spring fever. This is when the student is tempted to forget about class and head out to worship Mr. Sunshine.

City College RA Brings Home Five Sports Day Awards

Four first-place titles were captured by the Recreation Association at the college in the Sports Day Tournament on April 8, when 350 students from 12 two-year colleges competed for titles in six sports.

First place badminton men's singles were taken by David Ng. Ng's cousin, Ronald Ng, and Phyllis Hanway took the first place position in the badminton mixed doubles.

The high series award in bowling was given to Mae Tarlton, who scored the highest in the three-game series.

The college also placed first in the volleyball competition.

San Jose and Hartnell Colleges shared the first-place title in archery. Top place in folk dance competition was taken by Monterey.

City College placed third in the Northern California Men's division of the Intercollegiate Fencing Tournament, held at San Francisco State College on the same day.

The college's fencing team captain George Rena and team members Heik Habarzumian and Wai Tom were awarded a bronze medal. University of California at Berkeley and San Francisco State College won first and second places, respectively.

Other colleges competing in the fencing tournament were Stanford, Sacramento State, Humboldt State, Napa, College and San Jose State.

Coeds Varita Tyree, Glory Chaw Take High Honors At AWS Fashion Show-Tea

Chosen from a field of 60 women students, Varita Tyree walked away with the honor of being the college's Best-Dressed Coed. The 5-5 beauty, along with the 12 final contestants had been judged on her grooming, walk, poise, smile and over-all appearance. The original 60 contestants were narrowed to 24 women, and then down to the 12 finalists.

Other finalists were Sharon Anglin, Sharon Fong, Jackie Garrett, Judy Guild, Cynthia Howard, Dixie Ludomer, Darlene Owyoung, Sandy Reynolds, Patricia Smith, Kristie Thallanger and Colleen Williams.

DR. LAUREL GLASS presents Best-Dressed Coed Varita Tyree with traditional trophy representative of the coveted title.

Miss Tyree received the traditional honors and will receive a trophy award at the Awards and Recognition banquet in May.

Honors were presented April 6 at the Associated Women Student Fashion Show and Tea by Dr. Laurel Glass, member of the San Francisco Board of Education.

Six faculty members acted as judges in selecting Miss Tyree.

The Best-Dressed Coeds modeled the newest spring fashions from Livingston's with Carolyn Wolmuth, fashion coordinator for Livingston's, acting as the commentator.

A graduate of Lincoln, Miss Tyree is now in her second semester at City College, majoring in teaching assisting with home economics as a minor. Upon graduation she hopes to attend dress designing school. She has many hobbies and interests which include being a teen-columnist for the Sun-Reporter newspaper.

She is currently President of the Home Economics Club, Assistant Girl-Scout leader and a model for the Elegant Teen Modeling Club.

One woman student a year is to represent City College in the Glamour Magazine Best-Dressed Coed Contest. Miss Tyree will compete with fall's Best-Dressed Coed to determine which one will be the representative.

Colleges from all over the country will enter and ten finalists will be selected. They will be rewarded with a trip to New York.

Sharing the stage with Miss Tyree was Glory Chaw, the first-semester woman student with the highest grade point average, presented by the Inter-Sorority Council. Miss Chaw graduated from Galileo High School with a B-plus average and proceeded to do equally well at City College. She is an accounting major planning to go into business upon her graduation from here.

For being such an outstanding student, Miss Chaw received a bracelet and scholarship. Her name goes on the permanent trophy.

Undefeated Felony Squad, Irish, Phi Delta Pace Third Week Of Intra Cage Action

By Mike Duggan

The third week of intramural basketball action again resulted in no forfeits and left only three teams with unbeaten records, and Associated Men Student President Ron Lent said the league is rolling along very smoothly.

In the game for first place in the Independent division, the Felony Squad edged The Guardsman, 54-47. Calvin Booth and Larry Monti paced the Felony Squad to their third win with 18 and 16 points, respectively. Board work by Allan Cowlings and Mike Carter plus the fine play of James Smith also helped the winning cause.

The Guardsman stayed up close throughout the contest, mainly on the shooting of John Franceveich, who finished with game high-point honors of 23.

THE RED MOUNTAINEERS, Knobs Tamaraws Babes and Guardsman are all deadlocked in second place, one game behind the Felony Squad, with identical 2-1 marks.

The Knobs picked up their second win with a 49-35 victory over the Black Students Association. Sam Holmes paced the winning attack with 14 digits.

The Red Mountaineers scored another impressive win, downing the Revisables by 72-43. Carlos Ramirez had 23 points, and Roger Saunders added 20 to lead the Mountaineer attack.

In a real cliff-hanger, Tamaraws Babes nosed out Ram Ski, 32-31.

CLUB LEAGUE ACTION saw Phi Delta and Irish win again for the third consecutive time and they now stand alone in first place with 3-0 records.

The high-scoring Irish easily took care of Alpha Kappa Rho, 70-42. Bob Williams had 19 for the Irish, while Rich Rolandson chipped in 15 and Tom Teague had 13. The loss was the second for Alpha Kappa Rho who were once again led by Rudy Padilla, this time with 25 points.

Phi Delta, who makes a habit of low-scoring games, defeated Newman Club, 37-26. Again Bill Berger paced Delta's attack with 18 points. Newman's Don Carmody was a one-man gang in a losing effort with 18 digits.

ALPHA PHI EPSILON picked up their first win by knocking off Tamaraws, 52-44. Waymon Simmons scored 15 for Epsilon while Eural Smothers and Ed Soriano hit 16 apiece for Tamaraws.

The Avengers handed Chinese Students their third loss in a row by trouncing them, 50-19.

In tonight's Independent action, the Knobs will attempt to move into a first-place tie when they take on the Felony Squad. Other contests pit the Red Mountaineers against Black Students Association and Revisables go against Ram Ski while Tamaraws Babes tangle with The Guardsman.

San Jose Next For Ram Nine After 6-1 Loss To Chabot

Some days you have it and some days you don't.

Ram pitcher Bill Kirkpatrick did not have, nor did his teammates, as they suffered their first defeat of the conference season, 6-1, against the Chabot Gladiators April 9.

The loss put the Rams' record at 2-1.

The Gladiators simply outplayed the Rams. They exhibited fine pitching, hitting and fielding, while the Rams played poorly in all departments.

Kirkpatrick wasn't pitching up to par. The right-handed hurler wasn't as effective as he was in his two previous outings. Kirk, coming off a no-hit, no-run performance, had pitched 17 consecutive scoreless innings before the Gladiators tallied for one in the first. He had allowed only four hits prior to this meeting and struck out a total of 21 batters. However, in this game he allowed 10 hits and struck out only three.

The big blow came in the second inning when Chabot third baseman Bill Gardner hit a two-run homer to left field. The victors collected four hits in that frame.

The only run for the losers came in the seventh inning when Mike Sorini scored on a sacrifice fly by Kirkpatrick. The Gladiators promptly came back with a run of their own in the bottom of that inning to complete all the scoring for the game.

Bad fielding didn't help the Rams' cause any. The Rams committed three errors, two of them developing into runs. The Gladiators handled all their fielding attempts flawlessly.

Gerry Bosch had the Rams' only extra-base hit with a triple to open the ball game. The Ram lead-off batter has the highest batting average on the team. He is hitting at a .429 clip in 14 at-bats. He also has the most hits on the club with 6.

The Rams will play at San Jose City College Friday for their second and last game against the Jaguars. The locals won the first outing, 7-1, behind a fine pitching performance by Kirkpatrick.

Wednesday, April 19, 1967 Page 4

Weekend Results

BASEBALL
WEDNESDAY
CCSF 3 - Diablo Valley 5
FRIDAY
CCSF 3 - Foothill 5

TENNIS
FRIDAY
CCSF 3 - San Jose 4
No. 1 Singles—Wong (SF) d. Naster (SJ); 6-2, 6-3. No. 1 Doubles—Wong & Zoni (SF) d. Naster & Altamarino (SJ); 1-6, 6-1, 6-2.

SWIMMING
FRIDAY
CCSF 39 - Diablo Valley 72

GgolF
FRIDAY
CCSF 11¼ - San Mateo 23½
Medalist—Kembert (SF), 71.

Winless Swim Team Now Aims At Championships

City College's swim team dropped its fourth straight conference meet, succumbing to Chabot, 84-20, April 7 at the winners' pool.

Second-ranked Chabot's 84-20 drubbing was the worst defeat of the season for the winless Rams. Chabot repeated Foothill's insult, and for the second week in a row the swimmers were unable to grab any first-place awards.

The Rams, however, were able to latch on to seven of the second-place awards. All swimmers have improved for the season and a notable performance was turned in by David Detert in diving. Also Bill Pasquinelli, Bruno Van Rijn, Frank Cercos and John O'Connor swam their best-ever time in 400-yard medley relay with a 3:58 clocking.

With the regular conference season drawing to a close, all teams are pointing for the Conference Championships to be held at the San Mateo pool this weekend. Foothill, the conference powerhouse and defending champion, rests as a favorite to repeat.

Coach Decker looks for the Rams to hold their own and with good performances knock off a few of the leaders.

Golfers Rout Jags, Fall To Bulldogs

The Ram golf team split two matches last week, defeating San Jose City College, 23-2, at Harding Park, but losing to College of San Mateo by the same score at Peninsula Country Club.

In the Jaguar match Ken Kundert fired an even-par 72 to lead the Rams to an important win, thus evening the team's record at 3-3. Other scores for City College included Doug Boston (76), Mike Leonardini (79), Bob Fama (79) and Bob Blazer (80).

Four of the five Rams picked up the entire six points, while City College won the team total by 29 shots. San Jose scores, not as good as in the first match between these two teams, were Amon (78), Lytle (80), Pera (83), Edick (84) and Freese (90).

In their next match, the Ram golfers were dumped by College of San Mateo on the Bulldogs' home course. The Bulldogs were led by Mike Ray and Warren Richter, both of whom fired 74's. Following Ray and Richter for San Mateo were Steve Mountain and Pete Nadell with 78's.

The Rams totaled their worst score in conference play this year as City College had no men under eighty.

The Rams will host Diablo Valley at Harding Park this Friday. Diablo is led by Marv Tillotson and Bill Trask, both of whom are having excellent seasons.

Trackmen Nip Chabot, 72-65, For First Conference Win; Shute Sets New Vault Mark

By John LeTourneau

Forest Shute set a school and meet record with a 13-8½ pole vault to highlight City College's first conference track win, a 72-65 victory over Chabot, last Friday, on the Ram track.

The strong point in the Ram victory was its sprinting, headed by Ernie Provost and David Jones. Provost took the 100 (10.2) and 220-yard dashes (22.8), and Jones finished first in the 440 (49.9) second in the 220 (23.0).

THE SPRINTING overshadowed a great individual performance by the Gladiators' Gary Kerr, who won the 120 high hurdles (14.8), intermediate hurdles (39.5), triple jump (44.8), and finished second in the discus (127-7). This performance almost was too much to overcome for the Rams, but they came through with a second and a third in the triple jump by Scott Heyman and Ray Hearne to win the meet.

Coach Lou Vasquez said the win was very good to have, and praised all his men and Kerr. "Kerr is one of the best track men in the state for a decathlon man," Vasquez said.

In the distance races the Rams fared well as Hoy Henderson set a meet record in the mile of 4:28.8, edging Chabot's Jim Bailey at the finish. Also in the two mile, Fred Forsberg finished second behind Chabot's Bob Smith.

THE RAMS had some bright spots in the field events also, as Mike Carter captured the high jump with an all-time best of 6-3. Also Heyman (22-0) and Hearne (21-11) teamed up for a first and a second in the long jump to add valuable points to the winning cause.

In the weight events, Chabot's John Lynn won both the shot put and discus. However, the Rams' Mike Streich finished third in the discus, and Rich Bagetta and Lou Duckworth finished second and third respectively in the shot put.

The Rams split the relays as they won the 440 with the time of 42.3, but lost the mile relay.

Spikers Challenge Strong First-Place Comets Friday

The City College track team will take on a very strong Contra Costa squad Friday on the Comets' home track.

Coach Lou Vasquez feels that the Comets are the team to beat in the Golden Gate Conference with their fine depth in all events. "They are strong in every event and have two to three men capable to place in them," Vasquez commented.

In the conference relays, Contra Costa came in first by edging San Mateo. At the present time the Comets are tied with San Jose for the conference lead with identical 3-0 marks. The field events will be the strong point for the Comets when they meet the Rams.

In the long jump they are led by Marion Anderson who has the best leap in the conference with 24-2¾. In the high jump they are led by Anderson and ex-cager Lou Wright who have jumped 6-6, and Tyson Osborne who has gone 6-3¼, all ahead of any Ram jumpers.

All-Conference basketballer Don Lyons and Wright team up to give the Comets a potent one-two punch in the triple jump.

Despite losing sprint and hurdle stars, Bob Griffin and Ricky Rogers, the Comets are still very strong. The top runner is 440 man Grant Greer, who finished third in the finals last year and has the best time in the event while doubling in the 220. Charles Gaines has a best of 9.9 in the 100-yard dash and 22.5 in the 220.

The two who should give Ernie Provost, David Jones, Robbie Brinkley and Alan Banks plenty of solid competition in the sprints. In the hurdles Greg McKinney will battle Craig Johnson, Don Jordan, Floyd Banks and Greg Jackson.

In the distance races the Rams seem to have a solid edge behind Hoy Henderson and Fred Forsberg. Henderson has the best time in the 880 and eighth best time in the mile, while Forsberg is in the top ten in the two mile.

RAMBLINGS Spartans' Tommie Smith Greatest Sprinter In Track History

By Mike Duggan

AS A high school senior at Lemoore High (Fresno), he won the 440-yard dash in 47.3 in the State Track Championships, and since then Tommie Smith has proceeded to become the greatest all-around sprinter in track and field history.

Smith chose San Jose State for his college education, and besides, track coach Bud Winter had a habit of turning out world record holders.

As a freshman, Tommie earned recognition as a basketball star by being named to the second team All-Northern California. Smith was nosed off the first club by some pretty good frosh stars including Keith Swagerty (UOP), Bob Krulish (UOP) and Mike Gervasoni (Santa Clara).

THE NEXT YEAR brought Smith national prominence when he tied the record for a 220-yard straight-away run with a 20.0 timing. A late-season injury prevented Smith from running in the NCAA Championships and ended his sophomore year on rather a dismal note.

His junior year started off with a bang when he showed the world just what he could do, in an All-Comers meet at San Jose, by sprinting 100 meters in 10.1 and coming back to run 200 meters and 220 yards in 20.3. Both times were only .1 off world records, and after that day people expected miracles every time Smith ran. Smith almost did just that!

The 1966 Easter Relays, held in Santa Barbara, saw Tommie unanimously win "outstanding athlete" of the meet. That day Tommie anchored his Spartan team to victory in the 440, 880 and mile relays. The 440 and mile relays were easy going for Smith, as he took off near the leaders and won going away. Bad baton passing by his teammates left Tommie in fourth place as he took off for his furlong leg in the 880 relay.

Larry Questad (Stanford), Dwight Middleton (USC) and Norm Jackson (UCLA) all had a good eight yards on anchor man Smith of San Jose. Tommie had to go outside to get around them, and he did just that to bring home an unbelievable come-from-behind win with a 20.7 anchor.

A FEW WEEKS AFTER, Smith followed up this performance by breaking two world records on a sunshiney day at San Jose. He clocked a tremendous 19.5 time in the 220 straightaway, breaking the old mark of 20.0 formerly held by Frank Budd, Dave Sime and Smith. His second world mark for that afternoon came in the same race when he was again timed in 19.5 for the 200-meter distance. To cap off the day, Smith took the 100 in 9.3.

Less than a month passed before Smith set out in a Sacramento meet and ran the 220 yards and 200 meters on a curve in 20.0, bettering the former world record of 20.2 set in 1964 by Henry Carr.

When Southern University (Harvey Nairn, Grundy Harris, Webster Johnson and George Anderson) set the 440-yard relay mark of 39.6 last year in Modesto, it still wasn't enough to outshine Smith. In that race, when Smith got the baton he was 15 yards behind Anderson, who was running a world-record pace. Smith more than cut the distance in half on his 110-yard anchor leg for a third-place finish. That same meet saw Tommie win the 440 in meet record time of 45.7 against a strong field which included Jim Kemp and Bob Frey.

SMITH CONTINUED TO turn in outstanding performances leading up to the NCAA Championships. In qualifying heats, Tommie placed third in the long jump, took his 100 section (9.3) and ran an NCAA record in the 220 with a 20.2 timing. A slight wind advantage took the record away from Smith. In the finals, Smith placed second in the 100 behind Charlie Greene of Nebraska (9.3). Then, while running in the 440-yard relay, Smith pulled up lame at the finish and had to be scratched from the 220.

Expected to be out until his senior year came around, Tommie went on a crash program to get ready for the Russia-USA meet to be held a month later in Los Angeles. Russia eventually didn't come, and two All-American meets were set up to be held in Berkeley and Los Angeles.

Nobody expected Smith to be in shape, but with his leg heavily taped, Tommie won the Berkeley 200 meters in 20.7.

One week later in Los Angeles, Tommie removed the tape and won the 200 in 20.5. Smith then teamed with Frey, Lee Evans and Theron Lewis to run the 1600-meter relay in an amazing 2:59.6 (first time ever run under three minutes). Tommie's 400-meter leg was run in 43.8, fastest-time-ever record and more than a full second under the world record for that distance.

Always a hard worker, Smith spent last summer running in Europe. He ran a 32.7 in a 300-meter race, only .2 off the world standard. In London, Tommie sprinted to a 45.3 400-meter win for a new United Kingdom record.

1967 HAS ALREADY seen one world record fall at the feet of Smith. Tommie clipped almost a full second off the indoor 440 mark with a clocking of 46.2 in a Louisville meet.

An Oakland indoor meet saw Smith come from 15 yards behind and overtake Trinidad's Olympian Ed Roberts to score a mile relay victory.

This year's Easter Relays saw Tommie pick up 12 yards on USC's Fred Kuller only to lose to the powerful Trojans by .1 in the 880-yard relay. Smith ran his anchor furlong in 19.5.

Taking note of his success of track stars Bob Hayes and Carr in professional football, the Los Angeles Rams recently drafted Tommie on the ninth round of the pro football draft. Smith hasn't played football since his days at Lemoore, and if he does choose to join the Rams it probably won't be until after the 1968 Olympics.

SMITH HAS BEEN able to run in only two dual outdoor meets so far this year, largely due to the rain which has cancelled three San Jose meets. In one, he zipped to a 20.6 win over a soggy San Jose oval in the 220. Most recently, he took a narrow 220 win from teammate Evans with a 21.0 timing. That same day, Smith took the 100 in 9.6 and anchored a 440 relay win with a 9.3 clocking for his 110-yard leg.

Smith, holder of five world marks, also holds nine individual school records including a 25-11 long jump, although he rarely participates in that event.

Without a doubt the Bay Area will never see another one like Smith, who is really something to watch run. One of his last local appearances for the regular dual meet season will be on Saturday when San Jose takes on California at Berkeley.

Blood Drive Starts Here Tomorrow

Donors Urged: Avoid Illness And Eat Well

By John Janigian

The 11th annual Blood Drive, sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council, gets underway tomorrow with an expected record turnout, according to James Wyatt, assistant dean of student activities.

The drive, which works in conjunction with the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank, will run from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. tomorrow and Friday in C-249. It is open to all students 18 and over, all faculty, all Civil Service employees, and all members of the college Alumni Association. Students under 21 must receive parental consent to donate. A simple note is all that is necessary, Wyatt emphasized.

REWARDS OFFERED to contributors are eligibility to withdraw once during the year an unlimited supply of blood for the donor, a member of the donor's immediate family or eight pints to a friend. These rewards are considered to be the most generous of any drive.

Procedure for donating is simple. It all begins with a complete medical history report by each potential contributor. Then a preliminary test is administered to insure their physical acceptability. The next step is the quick and painless blood donation.

Students who are interested in donating are urged to eat a regular meal prior to contributing. "Avoid fats, but eat," Wyatt said, explaining that last year a great many persons had to be turned away because they had neglected to do so.

STATISTICS FOR THE past two years show that in 1965, 389 persons donated, 41 attempted to donate but were denied, for a total of 430. Pledges made during the drive saw an additional 78 persons donate during the year.

Statistics for 1966 show that 346 donated, 71 attempted but were denied, which makes a total of 417 considered. An additional 82 persons donated during the year. The goal this year is 500 pints.

The high number of students turned down was because in many cases they had skipped a meal or were suffering from a cold.

THE BLOOD DRIVE here is acclaimed as the most successful of any college drive on the entire Pacific Coast. In previous years the days of the Blood Drive have been termed Blood Days in San Francisco by the mayor. The drive has also received special commendation from the Governor's office in Sacramento.

All students are invited to participate in this "very worthwhile project," Wyatt said. Students who are ineligible because of age or illness may sign up now to donate any time during the year and still be eligible for the program's benefits.

The current Blood Drive has as its slogan, "Happiness is sharing a pint with someone."

HEADING THE entertainment will be Toni Lee Scott.

Toni Lee Scott In Tomorrow's Rally

Toni Lee Scott and the Harlekuins will headline tomorrow's Blood Drive rally, which is scheduled during College Hour in the men's gymnasium.

As in previous years, big name talent always kicks off the Inter-Fraternity Council's Blood Drive. Miss Scott, a local singer, is considered by music critics one of the nation's outstanding musical entertainers.

At the age of 19, Miss Scott was in an accident which cost her her left leg. She spent two years in the hospital during which time 30 operations were performed on the leg.

Miss Scott was named as the Chicago Heart Association Woman-of-the-Year and the Cerebral Palsy Entertainer-of-the-Year because of her work for others and was featured on a This Is Your Life program. It was judged the most popular of the series that year and was later re-run.

Together with Miss Scott, the Harlekuins, a rock-and-roll group from San Diego, will also appear.

This cast together with a last-minute act will launch the 11th Annual City College Blood Drive, still rated the best on the entire Pacific Coast.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 44 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26, 1967 NUMBER 7

A Raisin In The Sun Opens Tonight

Williams, Ross, Nichols Star In Drama Production

By Art Rodriguez

A Raisin In The Sun, this semester's first major drama production, will open a four-night stand starting at 8 p.m. tonight in the college theater.

Centered around the struggle of a Negro family's attempt to escape the asphyxiating atmosphere of a South Side Chicago ghetto, Lorraine Hansberry's social-drama makes some vital points on human rights, and the influence environment has on man.

Heading tonight's cast are Gail Ross as the mother, Tony Williams as Walter and Cynthia Nichols as his wife. Miss Ross is a veteran of City College performances, having been seen in American Dream, Blood Wedding and Caligula. Williams and Miss Nichols are both newcomers to the City College stage.

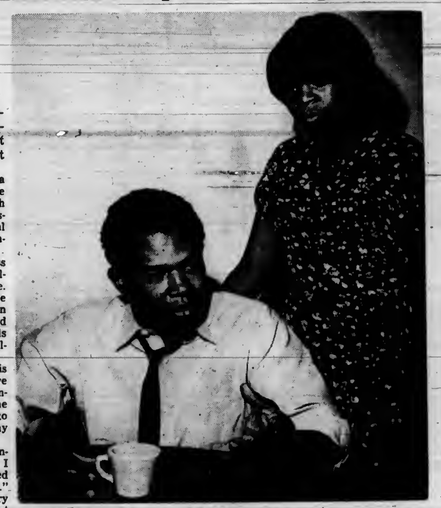
"I HAVE AN intense drive for this part," Williams stated. "You see, I've always wanted to do Walter. I remember having seen Sidney Poitier in the part when I was younger. I said to myself then, someday I would play Walter.

"A while back I was with a company that presented 'Raisin' but I played another part. This just served to increase my appetite for the role."

Williams comes across as a very serious-minded actor. He initially got started while in high school. Recently he played the fascinating part of Brutus Jones in the Fine Plays Company's production of the Emperor Jones. Presently Williams is rehearsing for a small role in an off-campus production of Julius Ceasar.

On Walter Lee, Williams explained, "The hardest part of the role is trying to achieve the right emotions behind Walter's words. There is one part in the play when Walter goes from a care-free, jovial state to one of sudden panic, because the money is lost. The whole transition has to be made in about two minutes!

"A Raisin In The Sun is the great play that it is because it portrays some very realistic situations. As an actor you are constantly told that you must identify with the character. 'Raisin' makes this very easy to do.



"I grew up in West Oakland which can be considered a slum area, and if some action in the play is not a part of my personal experience, it happened to people I knew!"

WILLIAMS IS REALLY encouraged with the way the play has been going. "I sense a certain bond developing in the whole cast. It's like . . . well, as if we were really a family. We all sort of wish that the play could go on an unlimited run, rather than just the four days it's scheduled for."

Somehow, in these words, Williams made it evident that he meant what he said.

Williams sees education and experience as his basic goals for the next few years. In addition to classes at City College, he is in an evening class. In the same class is Miss Nichols, whom he considers "just a beautiful actress."

Gale Johnson, Gene Simms, Darrell Belcher, Art Clemon, Gene Hanna and Reginald Harvey complete the cast. The production is directed by James Haran and Van Mitchell with setting by Terrance McDermott.

TONY WILLIAMS AND GAIL ROSS depicting a scene from the play in which they have the lead roles, Raisin in The Sun.
—Guardsman photo by Chris Rozales

"I Will Be The Same Person Even If I Am Called A Nigger!"

(Editor's Note: This is a letter submitted by William Delaney to The Guardsman. The Guardsman stresses the fact that although this is a letter, because of its quality and topical appeal it is placed here rather than under Ram's Horn on page 2.)

What I am about to say is not to contradict any group; it is a plea to the Negro. I am writing this because I, as a Negro, American to the bone and as proud of my race as any white man is of his, feel something must be done.

Often I find myself in a debate with other Negroes concerning the name Negro. Many argue that they would rather be called Black, because Negro is a term developed by the white man for the purpose of placing us in a group and holding us back.

I FAIL TO see the difference, since Negro and black relate to the same race. The word black is just as English (white) as Negro. We must stop fighting meaningless words! The word Negro does not remove anything from one's being, nor does the word Black add anything to one's being.

I will be the same person even if I am called a Nigger!

I can think of worse things I could be called. I have never heard an Italian create a big issue over being called a wop; nor have I heard a Jew get outrageously flustered over being called a kike. Who has taken more punishment than the Jews? The Germans alone killed six million; yet they have continued to exist and to build equity. The Negro can do likewise.

The fight for the "natural" hairdo is another useless fight. The natural is a way of associating the Negro with Africa: at least this is what I hear!

Sometimes I think that hairdo is the truth unobscured by a blond or red wig. The Negro is not African! His ancestry has been defiled, abused and misused.

Ask any African; he will quickly make you aware that he is different from the American Negro. The natural, in my estimation, is no better for the Negro in America than the process. I strongly suggest that the Negro look to himself for an identity.

CONTRADICTING THE belief that blending into American society creates a lesser breed of Negroes are Wilt Chamberlain, Willie Mays, Bob Hayes, Muhammed Ali, Jimmy Brown, Edward Brooke, Thurgood Marshal, Ralph Bunche, James Baldwin and many others.

I would like the Negro to face up to a few more facts:

1. In the past, man progressed by borrowing from other cultures those things which he had not yet discovered and he will continue to do so in the future to save time, lives and money. I see no fault in our utilizing part of a culture which we helped to establish.

Items as trivial as a comb or brush would not amount to one-one hundredth of our contributions. Combing and brushing the hair not only adds to one's personal appearance, but also brings out natural oils which protect one's scalp.

2. THE NEGRO HAS NO REASON to be hesitant about calling himself American. He has as much right to this country as the German, Italian and every other immigrant who has decided to reside here.

If anyone should leave it is the people who refuse to abide by the Constitution which is the heart of our great republic.

I refuse to flatter myself, as some racist groups do, by saying we are the backbone of this country; but we have been instrumental in its progress and could have done much more had we not been hindered by pseudo-Americans.

3. I spent three years in Europe, during which I attempted numerous times to enter a friendly conversation with an African; any African! I failed nine out of ten times!

A Muslim friend once stated, "If you were to go to Africa, not being a Muslim, you would almost have to take up arms!" When an African comes to America, his association is not with Negroes.

He goes to colleges which are predominantly white. His girl friend and most of his associates are usually white. He has more freedom in America than the American Negro. I see no reason why I must be anyone other than myself to be accepted as a human being.

For Negro men, I suggest the quo-vadis hair style, since it is a product of the American Negro. For the Negro women, since many of them are so unhappy with American hair styles, I suggest a little experimentation.

There is an old saying among Negroes that has always disgusted me: "Once a Negro reaches middle-class status he forgets all about the lower-class Negro!"

Let's face it. If one Negro spends all his time attempting to pull himself out of the gutter, he has no time to look back. Why should he? I am not saying that the Negro should not help his brother; I am saying that each person should strive as an individual in a group, not as a group depending on an individual. Many of us have decided the types of jobs we will work at long before we start to work.

I AM CONTINUALLY CRITICIZED about my job as a policeman, not because I have done anything wrong, but because I am a cop. Once a Negro gets into that uniform he turns bad; just as bad as that damn white cop!

Stereotyping has held the Negro down for four hundred years; so he of all races should be aware of stereotyping. The Negro had best accept jobs he doesn't like as a means to an end.

Let me conclude by saying that the Negro sticks together as well as any other race. Our differences as individuals are no different from those of individuals in other races. I see nothing to justify a belief that the Jews all got together and decided to come to the United States. Nor can I remember any similar evidence associated with the Irish, Puerto Ricans, Germans or any of the other peoples who have settled in this country.

I find it easier to believe that the white man would start a rumor about us not sticking together, to create distrust among us, than that he would create a single meaningless word with the ulterior motive that one day we would automatically get an inferiority complex from it.

The Negro is in the midst of a sea of disgusting events, but his head is still above water. I would suggest that he get his thoughts together and learn to swim before the tide comes in.

Can you dig it!

William A. Delaney, S.F.P.D. No. 1004

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 64, No. 7 WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26, 1967 Page 2

Happiness Is Sharing A Pint; Bloody Courage Comes In Handy

THIS IS the week of the College Blood Drive, and, in the words of James Wyatt, dean of student activities, "It is the most important single event in the year at this college."

To some students it probably is not as important as the entertainment which will be at the rally tomorrow, or as important as a cup of coffee, a candy bar and a "thou." Unfortunately, it seems that the Blood Drive will take a second to more than some.

In the past, the record for the number of donors was 400. This college has a day-time enrollment of approximately 9000. It is not so much that these students are apathetic (a description of which most are proud) as that they are stupid.

IF THESE STUDENTS HAPPEN to take the time to read the pamphlets which have been circulated around campus by the so-called fraternity Freddies (but, it is sometimes forgotten, also responsible fraternity Freddies) they will realize the benefits which are offered to the donors.

For a period of a year, the donors receive access to the blood bank for an unlimited supply for themselves and relatives. They may also turn over their benefits, for eight pints, to a friend.

IT'S JUST GOOD SENSE to take out insurance when the payment is so small—a little time and, for some, a lot of courage.

The time factor involved in donating is minimal, especially since the room will be open from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. tomorrow and Friday, giving access to most students. For those who may be delayed in special cases, the dean may issue a pass to students for their classes.

However, the courage (perhaps a strong word for such a small task but for the "some" it is appropriate) factor is often at the root of the problem. No matter how you look at it (it may help if you don't), a pint of blood AIN'T a goin' to kill ya.

AFTER A PERSON HAS DONATED, he must rest for awhile on the cots provided, and then he is released. It is only when a student decides to jump up and show what a man he is that the complications arise which amount to a little dizziness which is somewhat less than experienced with one's first cigarette.

But, if after all this encouragement, a person still is apprehensive, there is no rule which says he cannot take a friend along to hold his hand through the really "harrowing" event.

The donation is helping a worthy cause—fellow students—and, as the tongue-in-cheek slogan says, "Happiness is sharing a pint with someone."

Labelled And Recorded

New Turtles Shed Old Style

By Marty Arbunich

IT ALL STARTED back in 1965 when a band of six minstrels got together, called themselves the Turtles and recorded It Ain't Me, Babe, a song which granted them a national breakthrough.

Most groups who survive the dreaded pitfall of extinction undergo at least one sound transition during their lifetime. The Turtles, like others, are not without change.

Their first LP on the White Whale label, It Ain't Me, Babe, was characteristic of the 1965 sound. Writers Bob Dylan and P. F. Sloan were 'hot' at the time, and the Turtles, who had an easiness with their music and lyrics, recorded six of their works.

THE 'PROTEST' SOUND was evident in the group's early style. Dylan and Sloan, as well as the Turtles' Howard Kaylan, whose lyrical contributions were mainly comprised of protest songs, were the Turtles' chief influences at the beginning.

Songs like Sloan's Let Me Be and Eve of Destruction, Dylan's Like A Rolling Stone and Kaylan's Let The Cold Winds Blow are examples of such musical protests.

The sound produced had a tempo much swifter than the traditional turtle's pace. Both Kaylan, lead vocalist, with his vibrant voice and Don Murray, drummer, were outstanding features of the group's youth.

ALBUM NUMBER THREE brought with it a new Turtle sound, a turn from the power to the beauty of rock music with tunes like Happy Together, The Walking Song and Guide For The Married Man.

Kaylan's vocals have also changed somewhat. The beauty which the group is now displaying is especially apparent in his long, modal passages. The Turtles' background vocals, which underlie Kaylan's and the special musical accompaniment coming from studio musicians are both novel additions to the group's new style.

"It Ain't Me, Babe is primitive musically compared to their recent classics," White Whale records explained recently.

Their statement is legitimate if the terminology of the word "primitive" is used to show the progressive transition of the Turtles and not a lack of quality in their original style.

IT SHOULD BE kept in mind that the Turtles' early material is as good as their contemporary recordings; and, in some cases, it is even better.

Another possible explanation accountable for the change in the Turtles' style could be as a result of the group's two new members.

Sometime after their second LP, the Turtles lost bass guitarist Chuck Portz and drummer Murray. In lieu of the pair, Jim Pons, formerly with the Leaves, and John Barbata joined the fold.

Murray is a drummer with a fast pace while Barbata, the replacement, has a moderate style, more dependent on slow and easy beats.

NO MATTER WHAT brought about the Turtles' new sound, there's one thing certain—it's here to stay for a long stretch of time.

"We had two hits (referring to It Ain't Me, Babe and You Baby), then a lean period followed. We're always running scared," were the startling words of spokesman Kaylan before Happy Together came along.

Now, with a new album and single, She'd Rather Be With Me, the group won't be running scared any more—in fact, the dire limbo-land of extinction isn't even much of a threat to the six Turtles any longer.

• • •

'TIS A HAPPENING . . . The Doors are back at the Avalon this weekend with the Chambers Brothers and the Sir Douglas Quintet; the Buffalo Springfield, the Freedom Highway and Steve Miller are at the Fillmore.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• Veto Approval

Editor:

. . . an open letter . . .

Dear Mr. Parnell:

Thank you for vetoing Resolution No. 19 concerning Vietnam Week and thereby reserving for every student at the City College of San Francisco the right to answer for himself the question: "Which side are you on?"

Most of the students that voted for Resolution No. 19 probably believe that they have a genuine respect for the opinions of their fellow students. Indeed they loudly proclaim this. But do they actually believe in the doctrine of self determination of moral judgments?

Their actions show that they value the personal convictions of the student body so little that they need not bother to ask for it. I realize that they sincerely believe that they represent the consensus of opinion on campus, but do they?

Is it possible? Yes, it is possible that their vote was based on their own private persuasion of righteousness and not on the general consensus of opinion on campus?

Your action did not destroy "student power, the right of the students to dominate their own political and social spheres." It destroyed a naked power grab to exploit the student body of the City College of San Francisco for private political persuasions. Thank you for putting a stop to it.

Thomas A. Velasquez

• Signs Of High School

Editor:

Although City College comes under the jurisdiction of the San Francisco Board of Education, it is, without a doubt, a college and not a high school. In the past, and to some extent, even now, it was operated as a high school.

Unfortunately, some of the symbols of that past are still present on campus today. Specifically, there are signs on the entrance doors of college buildings informing visitors that they "should report to the principal's office before visiting any classrooms." Whoever heard of a college with a principal?

If City College is truly a college, all signs implying otherwise should be removed.

Ray F. Bletz

• Clubs Get The Axe

Editor:

In City College's great atmosphere for equality among students and student groups, I question the policy that for many semesters has been slowly developing unnoticed. Why do many campus clubs receive no support for their efforts in bringing an educational, cultural and often religious background to the students they serve?

Is a social fraternity which receives support for sponsoring an Ugly Man On The Campus contest or paints our garbage cans "Red" any more deserving in financial, moral and administrative support than the less fortunate social, but more important educational ones?

Is service to the college based upon how much money can be raised for the king and queen contest, or is it based upon what each club can offer to its members in relationship to "living a better educational life"? I do not deny the use of socialization on this campus, but I do question the unfair and deliberate attempt to relegate to second class clubs, the on-campus nonspecifically socially organized clubs.

Should the Associated Students be the only group to receive so much attention from the administration, just because they are associated with the administration?

Is equality on this campus called tearing down one group's posters—which had been approved by Mr. Wyatt, Dean of Students (sic), with no apparent reason only to be replaced with fraternity and sorority propaganda for pledge week? Are the minds of this campus so bigoted and childish to allow this to happen?

Is equality the fact that clubs on campus cannot be supported financially from City College because they don't sponsor an UMOC or work on orientation? I think a look into the structure of clubs on campus and how they serve the people or interests in the specific clubs, not particularly whether they serve City College totally (even the fraternities do not serve all of City College) should be undertaken in an attempt to reason out why the administration of the college has a barrier to growth of clubs on campus.

Nathan David Levin

On The RAMpage

College Swell Means More Specialization

By Connie Skipitares

A TWENTY-FIRST CENTURY look at higher education predicts that by 1975 a majority of all undergraduates will be enrolled in two-year colleges at the point of entry into higher education and that most four-year institutions will have a three-year program leading toward a masters degree.

Yet other equally-supported projections (these stemming from the "twentieth century" school) reflect that the larger proportion of undergraduates will continue to attend the large universities (75 per cent of today's enrollees are registered at fewer than 25 per cent of all the institutions of higher education), asserting that small colleges will get bigger and large universities will become enormous.

Speculation on enrollments and institutional expansion in the next decades is based on the fact that though college enrollments have doubled since 1950, they will do so again by 1980.

TURNING TO THE composition of today's undergraduate student body, we find that it is far different from that of a few years ago, and it is likely that the entering students of the future will have an even greater diversity of backgrounds, abilities and interests.

A number of writers point out that the expanding enrollments will increasingly include more urban, nonwhite, older and married students, many of them from the lower socio-economic strata, and that this group and their "typical" classmates will be better prepared academically, more serious about curricular responsibilities and the achievement of good grades and less concerned with traditional cocurricular activities than their counterparts of the last decade.

New information about students and their purposes, attitudes and values will be increasingly available as research on student characteristics continues to be refined and developed, along with studies of the efficacy and "mix" of a particular institution, its student body and its educational program.

WITH THESE FACTS, it seems as if a reorganization of the structure of higher education seems inevitable. A study of anticipated changes for higher education and a review of student personnel literature on the 1960's indicate that traditional orientation programs for entering collegiate undergraduates will undergo major revision in the years ahead.

Experimentation and revision of existing patterns of organization within institutions might help us cope more effectively with the rapidly growing and varied group of young people seeking higher education. The revised academic calendar permitting year-round study which allows students to earn a bachelor's degree in a period well short of the traditional four years is a first step.

Several large universities are attempting to combat their nearly inevitable impersonal bureaucratic atmosphere by organizing small units within the larger institution. Others, in efforts to improve the quality of academic offerings while at the same time attempting to keep costs down, are developing programs that encourage faculty and students to take advantage of special courses and facilities offered at nearby colleges, universities and the "experimental" institutions.

IN THE DECADES AHEAD the reorganization and expansion of higher education, combined with the enormous numbers and diverse types of undergraduates, will require those who plan and operate the new student orientation programs to scrutinize carefully their motives for conducting such activities and to seek and develop new foci, content and methodology.

It must be realized, in creating a significant educational force on campus, that undergraduates are becoming increasingly less interested in campus activity and more concerned about academic obligations, national and international issues, student rights and responsibilities, curricular offerings and evaluation and faculty competence and tenure in their quest for knowledge and a gratifying educational experience.

Women Need Education For Modern Shopping

Despite the modernization of supermarkets and department stores today, the American housewife still cannot say that shopping is the easiest of her chores.

Sure there are escalators, elevators, doors that open by themselves, carts for groceries and shopping bags, but what about the knowledge of mathematics that the modern shopper must have?

Nowadays a degree in calculus is needed if one is to make sure he is not cheated on what he purchases. For a coat might cost $100.98, a transistor radio $18.88, a camera for $33.95, a bar of soap 19 cents, and a car might cost $3999.99.

NOW, WOULDN'T IT be easier if these figures were rounded off to the nearest tenth so that $100.99 would become $200 and so on? If one were to buy something for that price, a whole penny's difference wouldn't make it all that bad.

Then there are those bargains that say four bars of soap for 60 cents but it's 1 cent off! So the shopper (thinking that she's really got a bargain) struggles to put aside her 30 pounds of groceries to put that saved penny into her wallet.

Those shoppers with myopia (near-sightedness) are the least fortunate of all. A coat costing $59.99 on the sign above might turn out to cost $159.99 instead. This is because the tiny words "and up" cannot be seen unless the myopian has her glasses on.

A BEAUTIFULLY advertised three-piece suit selling at $30 seems to be a nice bargain. But when the careless shopper goes downtown the saleslady says it's $30 for each piece of the suit.

So she (the careless shopper) argues and goes home to read the ad again with her magnifying glass and sure enough the words "each piece" appear on the lower right hand corner of the page.

Coupons are printed so that the shopper can save a few pennies at times. They are cut out and brought to the store when she decides to buy her groceries. She picks what she wants, but the clerk says she must purchase two boxes instead of one before the coupon is valid.

IT'S NO WONDER men are so reluctant to accompany their wives on shopping trips.

Of course there are devices made to help the poor shoppers, such as a tiny tabber like a miniature adding machine. To be safe, glasses shouldn't be taken off and the shopper should have a magnifying glass handy in her purse.

She should also read the advertisements thoroughly, including all little dots which might make the biggest difference.

And many still wonder why more women students appear on college campuses today than in the past.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1967

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 248.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF.....RICHARD HEINTZ
Managing and Feature Editor.....Connie Skipitares
Staff Editor.....Marty Arbunich
News Editor.....Steven Hara
Sports Editor.....Mike Duggan
Contributing Writers..William G. Pates, Bea Takeuchi
Editorial Writers: John Jantgian, John LeTourneau, Art Rodriguez, Viggo Petersen, Giuseppe Greco.
Reporters: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, John Hemmack, Doreen Ng, Phillip Planerz, Lod Pittman, Ron Wong, Ed Holmes, Glynn Petsis, Tim Duncan, Jeffrey Hoffmine.
Cub Reporters: Barry Brown, Ron Lent, Lani Silver, Lee Smith, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf, Franklin Godson.
Photographers: Bob Briscoe, chief; Jose Fireside, Richard Sandino, Mac F. Goding, Rich Spitaleri, Ron O'Brien, Chris Rozales, Chip Stevens, Jim Tsang.
Faculty Adviser.....Joan Rourse

Member Associated Collegiate Press
1966 - 1967

The Observer

By William G. Pates

THE RIGHT of dissent, the freedom of speech and expression is one of the most cherished elements of American democracy. And it is the one freedom this nation is in the greatest danger of stifling.

In part, this is because Americans fear Communism too much. A person who does not conform to the prevailing philosophy may be regarded as disloyal and therefore is suspect. In times of crisis these persons are labeled Communist conspirators and subject to abuse whether justified or not. Our loyalty must be the loyalty of free men.

TOO OFTEN this nation's people equate loyalty and patriotism with passive acquiescence to the status quo. Henry Steele Commager has remarked that "Every effort to confine Americanism to a single pattern, to constrain it to a single formula, is disloyalty to everything that is valid in Americanism." This country should reject any concept of loyalty that would limit Americanism to a particular creed or philosophy, for as Commager further stated ". . . America was born of revolt, flourished on dissent and became great through experimentation."

Politically we have preserved our freedom by cherishing the essentials of democratic government. It is the right of every citizen to make his opinions heard, and it is his obligation to hear the opinions of others—especially those who dissent from his own. This is the greatness of the principle of free thought—not free thought for those who agree with us, but freedom for the thought we hate. This is the genuine spirit of this nation, the ideal of our democracy.

DO THE PEOPLE enjoy freedom of dissent? If minorities are free to agitate, organize and propagandize for the peaceful overthrow of the ruling party without fear of punishment, they are "free" in the democratic sense. But if dissenting minorities are punished for demonstrating their opposition to the ruling party, they are "unfree."

We must keep our minds open, to criticism, to new ideas, to dissent, to alternatives and to reconsideration and reflection. No individual or group has a monopoly on truth. From this viewpoint the only way we can approach truth is through the free flow of ideas, through the process of give-and-take by which a wide variety of special "truths" are compromised. Every man must be free to follow the dictates of his conscience.

THE INDIVIDUAL WHO is determined to exercise his right—and his responsibility—to form his own opinions and to influence public opinion must do so today under tremendous handicaps. For many citizens are unswerving in their devotion to the hallowed concept of—My Country Right or Wrong, instead of reveling in Senator Carl Schurz's belief—"Our Country . . . when right, to be kept right; when wrong to be put right."

This nation believes that God is on its side. It would be better to be on the side of right. Dissent is an action in search of right.

Today in the United States, both the government and the citizens themselves are involved in a deliberate course to demean the importance and respectability of the dissension against the Vietnam conflict. A continual thread which runs through all renunciations of protest is that the marches and the rest will serve to prolong the bloodshed as well as the belief that they have extensive Communist backing and therefore are evil, and are giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

IT IS TRUE that Communists, Socialists and New Leftists marched, but their sincerity should not be questions or their intentions. As one marcher put it, "We are not part of a Communist conspiracy; we love our country, we believe in democracy . . ."

It is said that these protests will be misunderstood elsewhere as the majority view and thereby prolong the war. Conversely however, we misunderstand Ho Chi Minh's intentions. For the Vietnamese have a long history of withstanding invasion, in this case the Chinese for some one thousand years.

Yet physical actions of dissent are condemned. Were it not for such actions, this nation would not be governed in such a unique democratic way. Hubert Humphrey says ". . . We need to be known as a nation of peacemakers, not just peace-marchers." If we had the first, we wouldn't need the latter.

Carmack In C-Hour Concert

Unique voice quality and the notes of the dulcimer, a two-stringed instrument and ancestor of the piano, will highlight Martha Carmack's campus concert appearance scheduled for tomorrow during College Hour in the college theater.

Miss Carmack, coming to campus for the college's Concert Series, has appeared in concert at several Bay Area locations.

Combining the dulcimer with a well-cultivated voice, Miss Carmack will present a well-rounded program with pop recordings such as Romance, Matchmaker and Scarlet Ribbons.

She will then switch to musical comedy, like Coloring Book, and introduce Mountains Of Morns and Whistling Gypsy, Irish-derived folk tunes.

"I would prefer to be referred to as a songstress, rather than a folk singer," Miss Carmack emphasized.

Although the dulcimer, which has three octaves, is usually played with the use of feathered sticks or small hammer-like implements, Miss Carmack prefers a more harpsichord type style plucking.

In her first booking in the Bay Area, Miss Carmack performed in the Kaleidoscope Lounge at the San Francisco Hilton Hotel, and continued there for 12 weeks. Other performances were given at the Pandora Restaurant in San Anselmo, a televised luncheon starring Steve Allen, and on daily televised shows such as those of Gypsy Rose Lee and Dick Stewart.

MARTHA CARMACK, who will appear tomorrow in the college theater.

In addition to giving performances of song accompanied by the dulcimer, Miss Carmack has taken part in such plays as Under The Yum Yum Tree at the On Broadway Theater, Private Lives and The Sound Of Music.

Miss Carmack, who was born in Louisville, Kentucky, attended the University of Kentucky at Lexington, and favors college concerts to circuit performances because of the more intellectual atmosphere.

While in Arizona for a short time, Miss Carmack organized The Arizona School Of Speech And Drama. The school enrolled students from the ages of 6 to 30, and taught all phases of acting as a career. "I am really more interested in my dramatic inclinations than those of voice," she stated.

Applications For Summer Session Due Next Week

The deadline for applications and transcripts for summer session is May 1, less than a week away, Gertrude Somerville, registrar, warned today.

Applications and transcripts may be filed either in the registrar's office, S-121, or in S-117.

The summer session, scheduled for June 26 through August 4, will be a daily program limited to a maximum of 6½ units per student.

The program, which will utilize the long-awaited computer registration, is open to students of the college, high school graduates and selected high school students.

"We're expecting between 2200 and 2300 students this summer," Miss Somerville said, "and we can't take much more."

A printed sheet with specific information concerning the summer session can be obtained in the registrar's office.

COO Festival To Take Place Friday In Smith Hall

The annual fund-raising Spring Festival will be held Friday in Smith Hall, Council Of Organizations Vice Chairman Judy Good revealed that 22 of the 37 campus clubs will participate in this event.

Miss Good further stated, "Club participation in this year's COO-sponsored carnival will greatly exceed that shown in previous Spring Festivals."

According to COO Chairman Jim Dierke, the event, which begins at 7 p.m. and ends at 12 midnight, will be open to all students, their families and friends. Dierke pointed out that admission fee is 25 cents, and each participating club will charge 10 cents for booth admittance.

THE COO CHAIRMAN stated that "stuffed animals will head the list of prizes offered to the winning contestants." However, Dierke stressed that the booths "will be in operation between 7 and 10 p.m. only."

Immediately following the booth portion of the program, KCSF disc jockeys will present a dance highlighted by the campus radio department's extensive record collection.

Other clubs and organizations participating in the Spring Festival include Beta Tau Fraternity, Theta Tau Sorority, Campus Police, Ram Ski Newman and the Masonic Club.

OF THESE GROUPS, the Masonic Club is faced with the most "serious" problem of all. It seems that this club is sponsoring a kissing booth. However, the club's president, Ron Appel, is admittedly having difficulty in rounding up coeds to man the booth.

Meanwhile, Theta Tau sorority is sponsoring a ring-toss game. Participants attempt to throw a ring around a shapely pair of legs belonging to a Theta Tau coed.

Newman, a religious club adhering to the Roman Catholic faith, will present a car demolition booth. According to the club's COO representative, Steve Delehanty, "Contestants are awarded prizes on the basis of who inflicts the greatest amount of damage to the car."

IT WAS NOTED by Miss Good that the Campus Police and Beta Tau fraternity had intentions of sponsoring identical dunking booths. But this conflict was averted when Beta Tau informed COO that the fraternity would run a popcorn concession booth.

High School Juniors To Get Chance At City College Life

By Ed Holmes

In an unprecedented move, City College is offering San Francisco high school juniors as many as 6½ units of college credit during summer session this year, Thomas Nesbitt, director of testing and research, announced today.

The purpose of this program is to inform high school students of the vocational-technical offerings at City College and to give them up-to-date information on the local job market. Except for two group-counseling courses, the program is made up entirely from the technical curriculum.

The courses offered range from fire science to medical and dental careers and include visual arts, business, ornamental horticulture, criminology, engineering, teaching assistance and hotel and restaurant operation.

EACH OF THESE courses introduces a two-year program that can be completed right here at City College. Once established in a program, there are more than 35 different occupational fields for which a student can qualify.

"Orientation is the most important part of the project," Nesbitt stressed. "Not every student belongs in a four-year program. Many persons embark on such a course only to find that it is so difficult and/or so vague that their interest and motivation fail and they drop out completely.

"The purpose of our orientation is to enable such a person to select a two-year objective that will be desirable, beneficial and obtainable."

AN ADDITIONAL AND perhaps even more far-reaching aspect of the program, according to Nesbitt, is the provision for counselor work shops. In this part of the program, 30 high school counselors will work with the students under the direct supervision of City College counselors and administrators.

"Their purpose will be to upgrade themselves in counseling techniques and to learn more up-to-date material on the local labor market and on the vocational instruction available at City College," he said.

This part of the project is being sponsored by industrial foundations. The amount of $15,000 has been made available by the Hebrew Technical Institute and the Miranda Lux Foundation.

A COMPLETE BATTERY of tests will be administered to all students involved. In addition to the SCAT-STEP series, familiar to all entering freshmen, a thorough survey of their aptitudes, interests and achievements will be made.

In cases where the individuals will benefit, they will be additionally tested in various other fields such as art, math, clerical skills or musical abilities.

"The most desirable goal," Nesbitt said, "would be to discover the right program for each student. But even if the results for a particular student are negative; that is, if he only learns that he does not want a certain course, we will have accomplished quite a bit.

IT WAS NOTED by Miss Good that the Campus Police and Beta Tau fraternity had intentions of sponsoring identical dunking booths. But this conflict was averted when Beta Tau informed COO that the fraternity would run a popcorn concession booth.

Soph Ball May 6 At SF Hilton Hotel

A king and queen chosen from couples who collect money for the Sophomore Class Scholarship Fund will be crowned at the Soph spring ball to be held at the Plaza Room of the San Francisco Hilton Saturday, May 6.

The ball, hours for which are 9 p.m. to midnight, is free to those holding Associated Student cards. Tickets for those without Associated Student memberships are $2.50. Dress is semiformal.

Diane Lattimer, president of the Sophomore Class and organizer of the ball, said that the theme this year is Happy Together.

Certain college clubs have picked a couple to represent them as fund raisers. The couples from each club will try to out-do one another in raising money for the scholarship fund. The goal is $2000. Last year's ball raised $1600.

The couple that raises the most money will be crowned king and queen of the ball, however, each couple will receive a prize, Miss Lattimer said, adding that she is writing to various organizations for donations that will be used as prizes.

Clubs which would like to elect a couple to represent them and participate in the fund-raising effort can contact Miss Lattimer or Penny Birdman, vice president of the Sophomore Class, in Bungalow 5.

Student Actions Now A Council Responsibility

By Lori Pittman

Removal of the Campus Police from the cafeteria and Statler wing was an important accomplishment by Student Council this semester, but now the results of student self-discipline are beginning to trickle back to their source.

Dr. Lloyd D. Luckmann, coordinator of instruction, visited last Wednesday's council meeting representing Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, to report to the council some of the incidents that have occurred since the student honor system was initiated in the cafeteria and Statler wing area.

The raw-egg-throwing by a student that had taken place that morning in the cafeteria was the main incident brought up by Dr. Luckmann. He stated that other "juvenile and unbecoming conduct" had also been observed.

"Things must improve," he told Student Council, "I have no concern except to alert you. I understand it is now your responsibility."

When questioned by council members as to what other incidents had taken place, Dr. Luckmann relinquished the floor to Ralph O. Hillsman, dean of students.

"Generally speaking, I've been pleased," stated Dean Hillsman, "concerning the conduct of most students in the cafeteria area." He then proceeded to list a number of incidents that had occurred. Those he named were theft in the snack bar, littering and an attempted assault by a male student involving a female student.

THE INCIDENT of a young girl throwing a paper bag into the waste can and accidentally hitting a civil service employee, and students putting their feet on the tables were also described.

A further problem mentioned by Dean Hillsman was that of a loitering group who "just sit." He seemed doubtful that all of these were actually on-campus students. "I'm afraid they will take over the rightful students' privileges," he remarked.

Councilman Ron Bianco gave his opinion when he said, "I think it would be naive of us to think the students would be used to this freedom and responsibility." He called the incidents "just a wearing off affect."

DR. LUCKMANN and Dean Hillsman each indicated that whatever the problems, the responsibility now lies with the Student Council.

After the two administrators had left the meeting, Councilman Tom Crenshaw solved the issue momentarily by suggesting it be turned over to the Special Research Committee for a week of investigation.

Council approved his resolution by acclamation.

Due to his work, James Wyatt, dean of student activities, procured the Associated Student Financial Summary for the Spring and Fall of 1966. Council now has a chance to review its past budget and figure out how much money is left to spend.

College Under Observation During Bus-Ed Day Program

Approximately 50 representatives of various San Francisco business organizations will visit City College tomorrow to familiarize themselves with instructional and administrative methods, according to Warren White, coordinator of the Business-Education Day program.

Business-Education Day, which is part of the Public Schools Week Program, grew out of a plan for faculty members of various schools to visit business concerns and become acquainted with their production, disposition, distribution and marketing techniques and related problems.

This idea has since been expanded to include a reciprocal effort on the part of the schools to allow businessmen to observe educational procedures and be introduced to the internal workings of the schools and colleges.

The activities on tomorrow's schedule, which lasts from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., will include an informal meeting between the guests and members of the administration, faculty and student government in Smith Hall, following short introductory speeches by Coordinator of Instruction Lloyd D. Luckmann and Louis F. Batmale, coordinator of the technical-terminal instruction.

There will then be a tour of various instructional departments of the college to include the criminology, business, architecture, H & R, dental and radio-TV departments and others under the technical-terminal program, according to the interests of the individual businessmen.

White explained that the visitors will be primarily interested in business and industry-oriented courses rather than academic ones since these subjects would be more related to their respective fields.

Organizations scheduled to be represented here include Sears Roebuck & Co., Santa Fe Railway, KCBS Radio, Standard Oil, Macy's, the General Educational Development department of the 8th Army, PG&E and Levi Strauss & Co.

Jaguars' Yim, Nastor Decide Rams' Defeat, 4-3, In Tennis Match

The City College tennis team was edged by San Jose City College, 4-3, April 14 on the losers' court.

The deciding point came when the Jaguars' Ben Yim and George Nastor defeated the Rams' John Cervantes and Dennis Del Seco, 6-1, 6-3. Before the final doubles match, the score had been even, as both teams exchanged victories in the singles matches.

THE FIRST MATCH was won by the Rams' John Wong, 6-2, 6-4, over Tony Nastor. The Jags evened it when Angel Altamarino nipped George Zoul, 3-6, 6-4, 7-5.

In the third match, the Red and White went out in front again with Dennis Del Seco whipping George Nastor, 6-4, 6-4. However, the Jags came back behind Yim as he beat Cervantes, 6-4, 6-2. Wong and Zoul took the first doubles match for the Rams, but it wasn't enough.

Coach Roy Diederichsen reported that the squad is looking up despite its 1-3 record. "We are steadily improving, and with some fine play by our men we possibly could win the rest of our games," Diederichsen.

IN CONFERENCE PLAY the team has only beaten Contra Costa while losing to Merritt and San Jose. "Merritt is a very strong team, as the 6-1 score shows, said Diederichsen. Also the Rams were clobbered by Stanford Frosh, 9-0, in a practice match.

The Rams have three conference matches left before the conference finals May 5 and 6. Two were rained out and will be made up today and tomorrow. They are with Foothill and San Mateo, hoth of whom have strong squads. Friday the Red and White take on Chabot for the conference finale.

The Rams will travel to Contra Costa for the Golden Gate conference finals.—J. L.

Weekend Results

SWIMMING
FRIDAY AND SATURDAY
Golden Gate Conference Championships at College of San Mateo. Final Standings: Foothill 515, Chabot 367, San Mateo 339, San Jose 239, Diablo Valley 208, CCSF 87.

BASEBALL
THURSDAY

CCSF	2	0	0	3	0	0	0	3	5	1
Contra Costa	0	0	0	2	0	0	0	0	2	4	3

Kirkpatrick (W), Harrison (L).

GOLF
FRIDAY
CCSF 12¼ - Diablo Valley 22¼
Medalist—Clinker (DV) and Boston (SF) 76. Other scores: Fama (SF) 77, Trask (DV) 79, Chapman (DV) 81, Tillston (DV) 81, Kundert (SF) 86, Leonardini (SF) 87.

Women Fencers Take Second In Recent Tourney

The Recreation Association's women's fencing team captured second place in the recent Northern California Intercollegiate Fencing Tournament. The tourney, for women, was held here at City College on April 15.

Frances Galloway, sponsor for the fencing team, stated that "The competition was keen all through the tournament." She also said that it was the first time City College women fencers had done so well.

Three coeds represented the Ram team. Captain Margo Reynolds, Tanya Konstantinos and Janet Wong won the first rounds of competition and went on to finish in second place, just behind the University of California at Berkeley.

San Jose State came in behind City College for a third place, and the lower division Stanfordites finished in fourth place. Napa College nailed down the fifth spot with San Francisco State coming in sixth. Mills of Oakland ended up in last place.

The next Sports Day is scheduled for May 6 at Foothill College in Los Altos Hills. Again, students from Bay Area colleges will compete, with such sports as bowling, badminton, archery, volleyball, tennis, swimming and dancing being offered on the program.

Ram Nine Slumps To Third Straight Diamond Defeat

After starting the conference season in fine fashion with a pair of victories, the Ram baseball team has slumped off by losing three consecutive games, the last two against Diablo Valley and Foothill Colleges by identical scores of 5-3.

Against Diablo Valley, the Rams were ahead, 2-0, going into the fifth inning. In that inning the Vikings exploded for four runs. They picked up another run in the sixth for their last score.

The Vikings' four-run sixth inning was highlighted by back-to-back home runs off the hats of Tom Barlettani and Scott Sulprizio. Barlettani's blast came with one runner on. The Vikings scored their final run when their pitcher Mike Henson doubled in a runner who had walked to open the inning.

The Rams had eleven hits to nine for the Vikes. They produced fewer runs because they were unable to bunch their hits.

The Vikings collected four hits in their big fourth inning. Of their nine hits, five were for extra bases. The Rams only had one hit for extra bases, a triple in the eighth by Jeff Barker.

In the Foothill game, the Rams looked as if they would finally pull out of their losing slump when they scored three times in the fourth inning off Owl pitcher Rick Lambson to take a 3-1 lead. But the Owls tied up the game with two runs in the sixth inning and jumped ahead to stay with another one in the following inning.

Lambson hurled a strong game for the Owls. In the eight innings he pitched, he gave up only four hits while striking out nine. Three of the hits off him came in the Rams' three-run fourth inning.

The Ram baseballers will again play Merritt College on April 28, this time at Merritt.

The Rams will have only four more games remaining in the season after this game.—M. C.

CATCHER LARRY SOZZI APPLIES the tag on San Jose runner attempting to score in league opener. The Ram nine has now lost three in a row and Sozzi's bat will be a big factor if City College is to repeat as Golden Gate Conference champions. —Guardsman photo by Chris Rozales

Kuhn's 37 Leads Irish Past The Chinese, 101-48

The undefeated Irish scored an impressive 101-48 win over the winless Chinese Students to highlight the fourth round of intramural basketball action. Once again all teams showed fine cooperation as no forfeits marred the schedule, according to Associated Men Student President Ron Lent.

Tom Kuhn paced the Irish (4-0) rout over the Chinese (0-4) with 37 points while Tom Teague hit for 24 and Boh O'Conner added 20.

PHI DELTA (4-0) remained in a first-place tie with the Irish in the Club division by beating Alpha Kappa Rho (1-3), 61-52. Again Bill Berger led the attack for Delta with 24 digits. Jeff Barker added 16 to back up Berger, while Rudy Pidilla hit for 35 in pacing Rho's attack.

Arnold Ellis hit 21 points to lead the Aztecs (3-1) to a close win over Alpha Epsilon (1-3), 48-47.

Tamaraws (3-1) pulled a minor upset by whipping the Newman Club (2-2), 75-48. Quitoriano led the scoring for Tamaraws with 19 markers, while Maris Pantels scored 18 for the losers.

INDEPENDENT LEAGUE action saw Felony Squad (4-0) win another one, this time 41-29 over the Knobs (2-2). Calvin Booth led the winners with 11 points, as Dave Meshiry was high man for the Knobs with nine.

The second-place Guardsman (3-1) rolled over Tamaraws Babes (2-2), 64-47. John Casey scored 24 to lead the G'man attack with Mike Duggan adding 20 to the winning cause. Also, Marty Arbunich broke his scoring draught, adding six digits for the winners. Rey Magno had 15 for the Babes.

Red Mountaineers (3-1) edged Black Students Association (1-3) 47-44, and remain in a tie for second place, one game behind front-running Felony Squad. Carlos Ramirez had 14 points and Ken Jones added 10 to lead the Mountaineer attack. Wally Little had 15 for the losers.

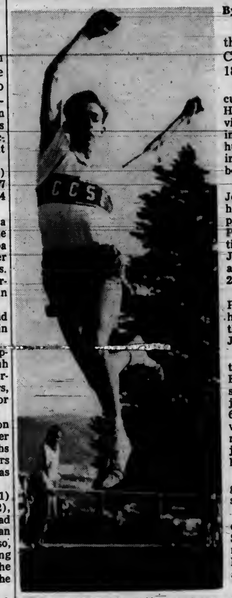
THE RAM SKI CLUB (1-3) scored its first victory by nipping the Revisables (0-4), 39-33, in a real cliff-hanger before an overflow crowd in the women's gymnasium. Bob Greyson was the hero for the Ram Skiers, hitting 17 points, while Fong and Hayashi scored 10 apiece for the Revisables.

The Ram Skiers have a tradition to keep up in intramural basketball. The 1964 Ram Skiers had quite a team. On successive weeks they lost games by scores of 46-5, 31-5, 53-6, and 74-15. The last of these was to The Guardsman, and ended the longest losing streak in intra history, four years without a win for The Guardsman.

Tonight's action pits The Guardsman against the Revisables, Knobs against Red Mountaineers, while Felony Squad meets Tamaraws Babes and Ram Ski takes on the Black Students Association.—M. D.

Swimmers Drop To Cellar With Loss To Vikings

In a battle of cellar mates, the Ram swim team dropped its fifth straight conference meet, 73-30, to Diablo Valley College at the winners' pool.



The meet was the last regular conference match for the Rams as they finished with five losses and no wins. City College, without the services of Bill Pasquinelli, was able to take only three of twelve first-place awards.

Frank Cercos, John O'Connor and Bruno Van Rijn turned in winning performances in the 100-yard butterfly, 100-yard freestyle and 100-yard breaststroke, respectively. David Detert came through with his usual good showing and his fourth consecutive second in the diving event.

The Rams also managed to grab seconds in the 400-yard medley relay, 1000-yard freestyle (Vida), 400-yard freestyle (Vida), and the 200-yard relay (McIntire, Schiller, Cercos and O'Connor).—J. H.

Bob Hayes was timed to cover a flying 100 yards in 7.8 seconds, running an anchor leg of a 440-yard relay in L.A. on May 18, 1962.

Provost, Jones Impressive In Narrow Loss To Foothill; League Championships Near

LONG JUMPER Scott Heyman leaps 22-0 for a first place in Chabot meet.

By John LeTourneau

Foothill got a clutch sweep in the triple jump to edge the City College track team, 68-67, April 18 on the winners' oval.

Coach Lou Vasquez made no excuses, but said the absence of Ray Hearne hurt the Rams' chances of a victory as he was counted on to place in the three jumping events. Also hurting the Ram chances was the injury to Adam Banks, not running because of a pulled hamstring muscle.

PACING THE RAMS were David Jones and Ernie Provost who combined for three firsts, a second and paced the winning 440-yard relay. Provost took the 100 and 220 with times of 9.9 and 22.6 respectively. Jones won the 440 with a time of 50.8 and finished behind Provost in the 220.

In the hurdles, Foothill's Gary Pensinger took both the 120 high hurdles and intermediates to beat out the Rams' Craig Johnson and Don Jordan, respectively.

The Rams fared somewhat well in the field events as Mike Carter and Forrest Shute finished first for the second week in a row in the high jump and pole vault. Carter leaped 6-3, while Shute finished the pole vault at an even 11-0. Also Scott Heyman repeated with a first in the long jump and added a second in the high jump.

IN THE WEIGHT events, Rich Bagetta and Lew Duckworth came in second and third in the shot put.

In the distance races, a great individual performance by the Owls' Steve McLennegan helped the winning cause. In the mile he edged Hoy Henderson with the time of 4:29.6 and won the two-mile easily.

May 3 the Rams begin the conference trials at Chabot, and will conclude with the championships May 6.

Golfers Lose Second Straight Match

The City College golf team dropped its second consecutive match to first-place College of San Mateo at Harding Park and now owns a 3-5 conference record.

College of San Mateo won the match, 23½-11½, despite the sparkling one-under-par 71 fired by Ramace Ken Kundert. Kundert had front and back nines of 35-36, and won all six points from the Bulldogs' first man, Mike Ray, who had an 81.

Doug Boston won five points from Steve Mountain, defeating his opponent by one shot. Boston had 78 and Mountain slipped to a 79. Mike Leonardini (82) and Bob Fama (81) of the Rams lost to Warren Richter (74) and Tom Jensen (77). The Bulldogs' fifth man, Pete Nadell (75), coasted to an easy win over Bob Blazer (86).

The Rams will host Merritt this Friday, hoping to even their conference record.

RAMBLINGS

Ex-Ram 'No Neck' Is Chisox Baseballer

By Mike Duggan

FORMER RAM gridiron standout Ollie Matson made quite a name for himself in professional football, but no ex-Ram has been able to make it big in major league baseball. Walt (No Neck) Williams would like to put an end to the preceding statement.

Williams first started making a name for himself at Galileo High School in 1961. While there, he earned All-City recognition in baseball, basketball and football.

The following year, Williams attended City College. In the 1962 football opener against Los Angeles Valley College, Williams teamed with All-American Ron Coleman to spark a second-half comehack for a 22-6 Ram win. Williams scored once on a 48-yard run as he helped make Dutch Elston's debut as head football coach a success.

Although not a starter, Williams was a member of the cage squad that year which finished third in the state. He left the basketball team early to get ready for the upcoming baseball season.

GET READY he did! In one preseason game against San Francisco State Frosh, he led an 11-1 rout with six hits in seven trips to the plate. His .337 average earned him an outfield spot on the All-Conference team. Williams' six homers also helped out, as the Ram nine finished in second.

Before his second year at the college came around, he was signed by the Houston Colt .45's (now Astros). Many clubs said he was too small for the majors, but Houston figured his speed, hustle and strength would make up for his size. By the way, he stands 5-6 and weighs 190 pounds. None of this is fat, and his powerful torso is what earned him the "No Neck" nickname.

NO NECK broke in with Modesto in 1963 and batted .381. A .313 average at Winnipeg the following year earned him a shot as a Houston rookie in 1965. Williams wasn't ready for the likes of Sandy Koufax and Bob Gibson, and he was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals.

As a Cardinal farmhand at Tulsa, he batted .330 two years in a row. Last year also saw Williams steal 25 bases, score 107 runs, have 193 hits, 54 doubles and 17 outfield assists. All were league-leading totals. Not a home-run hitter, he rarely strikes out, and the White Sox gave up a former All-Star in catcher John Romano to get Williams from the Cardinals.

Manager Eddie Stanky of the White Sox figures Williams is now ready for major league pitching and is giving the former City College star a shot at the starting left field position. This year will tell if another former Ram will make it in the big time of professional sports.

* * *

RAM FORWARD Willie Wise, the 1967 Golden Gate Conference Player-of-the-Year, finished two points shy of becoming the highest City College scorer in the league's history. Wise finished his second year with 471 points in conference action, while Art Adams totaled 473 during his two years as a Ram (1962-64).

On The Boardwalk

A FEW WEEKS BACK The Guardsman ran a picture depicting the lack of landscaping on the campus. It showed a coed finding her way down one of the unpaved paths on the campus, mud and all.

Last semester, Student Council passed a resolution by which the "mud puddles" could be filled so that during the rainy season, students would not have so difficult a time reaching the gyms.

As anyone who still has to fulfill his two units of physical education knows, last semester nothing was done.

It wasn't until the monsoons hit the college that council rose to the swelling tide—with the ensuing improvements. Now, instead of the customary two boards spanning the gap there are 22.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 44 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, MAY 3, 1967 NUMBER 8

'Awareness Program' Buries Yesteryear's Youth Hangups

By Viggo Petersen

WHATEVER HAPPENED to the typical hangups which used to plague the youth of America and their parents only a few years ago?

Underage drinking, teenage smoking, going steady, petting, pre-marital relations, false I.D.'s, employment, military service and academic success all used to be among the more popular younger generation hangups of yesteryear and could easily be spotted most any day in Ann Lander's column.

During those times marijuana was generally equated with drug addiction, and anyone who smoked it was considered to be sort of unmentionable, which people read about only in the papers or saw in movies concerned with juvenile delinquency or crime.

He was usually regarded as a sick individual who desperately needed psychiatric care and rehabilitation and should be institutionalized.

ALTHOUGH THERE may be marijuana users today who may well fit that description, nevertheless, doing up a joint now is about as commonplace as is distorted news from the White House.

It is not unusual to learn of someone not yet old enough even to consume alcohol (or even old enough to smoke in some cases) smoking the weed without so much as an afterthought.

Even a mainliner (addict), although still regarded as a sort of unmentionable and outsider in head society, sees his problem generally more accepted now than it used to be.

Military service used to hid high on the list of young people's problems. Which service to join and whether to join before or after college were the predominant qustions usually facing high school graduates.

However, when the war in Vietnam began to come under fire from critics around the world (right after it started), many draft eligibles began to question seriously whether their allegiance was to their country or to their conscience. To serve or not to serve became the question.

NOW IT SEEMS the question is not whether to serve, but which is the best way to beat the draft permanently? Alternatives being either to fake the physical, leave the country or join the reserves.

Fake I.D.'s used to provide headaches for law enforcement officers in the North Beach area on the weekends. Night club owners in the neighborhood generally had their hands full hiring experts to weed out the underagers who swarmed into the area constantly.

Although that problem may still exist somewhat, it seems trivial now compared to the headaches the SFPD has now incurred attempting to maintain order on Haight street on Sunday afternoons.

Preoccupation about success in school and work has pretty well been cast off by the dropped-out generation. Education now is made up of the type of mind stimuli the persons happens to be using at the time. His awareness program may begin with smoking marijuana. From there, some may graduate on to banana peels while others may go on to speed and bennies or LSD, and on to religion.

As for such old-time hangups as premarital relations, free love, petting, going steady (?), are concerned,

Mrs. Kandel, would you care to comment?

Ex-Coed Now Playmate

There have been many City College pitchers with outstanding 'curves' and trackmen with record-breaking measurements, hut, to be honest, none of the college's historic figures have drawn more speculation than those of Anne Randall.

Miss Randall, 22, is neither a diamond hurler nor a track marvel, but a former student of the college, a blue-eyed, golden-haired specimen of feminine pulchritude, possessing all those qualities which she delightfully displayed in the center spread of the May issue of Playboy.

Queen Anne, as she is now known, attended this college as Barbara Randall for the Fall semester of 1961 and the Spring semester of 1962 before transferring to Fresno City College.

A graduate of George Washington High School of San Francisco, Miss Randall specialized in drama during her two-year stay here.

Currently, aside from capturing many a glance from her gentlemen readers, Miss Randall is a budding young actress ready to unleash her diversified talents upon the silver screen.—M. A.

Stage Jazz Band To Give Concert During C-Hour

The Stage Jazz Band will present a jazz concert in the theater during College Hour tomorrow.

This concert is the first student offering of the Spring Concert-Lecture series.

The jazz band will perform big hand jazz arrangements, including those of Count Basie and Woody Herman. It will also break up into smaller groups to perform selected combo jazz arrangements.

The hand of 17 members will appear under the direction of Arthur Samuels, band instructor and conductor. Because of the success that the hand enjoyed performing a College Hour jazz concert last semester, Samuels decided to bring the hand back to the college theater for a one-performance "return engagement" this semester.

A majority of the members in the hand are professional musicians and have performed in night clubs around the Bay Area.

The jazz hand will be sharing the stage with Bola Sete, when the latter presents a concert for the college next Wednesday night, May 10. Tickets for the Bola Sete concert will be on sale in the lohhy of the college theater, immediately after the jazz concert tomorrow.

Cyril Magnin, who was scheduled to lecture here during College Hour on May 11, was forced to cancel his engagement. Taking his place will be Paul B. Fay, Jr., author of the book The Pleasure Of His Company. Fay's topic will be John Kennedy: Book Subject And Friend.

AMS Safety Check Prepare To Handle 1600 Cars May 10

The Associated Men Students are sponsoring an auto safety-check next Wednesday, May 10, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the reservoir parking lot.

Ron Appel, coordinator for the safety-check program, said that five check lanes will be open and will be prepared to process 1600 autos.

The check will be conducted by mechanics from Motor Car Dealers Association of Auto Row, Van Ness avenue.

Appel said items to be checked include all lights, tires, exhaust, glass, wipers and washers, mirrors, horn and seat belts.

The safety check is free to all students of the college and O.K. stickers will be given to those autos that check out on all points.

Appel, seeking help for the safety check, went to the San Francisco Police Department and told them what he wanted to do. They replied in effect, that it's a good idea, and were all for it, but we can't help.

The safety check is part of the annual National Vehicle Safety-Check for Communities sponsored by Auto Industries Highway Safety Committee and Look magazine with the cooperation of the Association of State and Provincial Safety Coordinators. It will be the first safety check on campus.

Three Independents Fill Council Vacancies As Members Propose Six-Point Student Bill Of Rights

By Lori Pittman

Student Council is back in business now with a full house. Elections were held a week ago Monday as scheduled and the council and cabinet voted to fill the three previously vacated seats.

Chris Loo took over the one empty sophomore seat while the two new freshman councilmen are Roy Beitz and Ron Merenbach. Beitz and Ross Klutke tied for the second freshman seat which forced the deciding vote to be made by Joe Parnell, Associated Student president.

All three of the new councilmen are independents, leaving an even distribution of six members each for the Change and USA parties.

Others in the running were Sheila Brown, Glen Butler, Jim Dierke, Laurence Rodriquez, Frank Trigueiro and Percy Jones.

With elections over, business came back with a bang in the form of a constitutional addition entitled Student Bill Of Rights. Councilman Rich Christensen submitted the hill saying that it was merely a "series of guidelines and a set of goals" which students can work toward.

The six points of the hill are:

1. The right to a press free from censorship.
2. The right of students to take public stands on issues directly or indirectly pertinent to the campus.
3. The right to form an organization around any particular interest.
4. The right of the student body to be informed of all matters concerning the college.
5. The right of students to participate in a democratic fashion with their administrators in decisions which affect the student body.
6. The right of students or student organizations to speak on any subject or to hear speakers on any subject on campus.

Discussions that developed around the hill were mainly concerned with the ambiguous working and the legality of all that it contained. Questioning members of the council tried to postpone the hill until further adequate research could be done, but each motion failed.

The Student Bill Of Rights passed with a 14-4-1 vote and will not go into affect until it has been approved by the student body at large.

The $150 William Y. Bell Memorial Scholarship which was set up by Student Council a few weeks ago was increased to $200. This move was made to enable students who will receive the scholarship to be eligible also for federal aid.

As Mary Golding, dean of women, stated, "Any $200 may be matched by federal funds if the student has the need for additional money."

Spring Election Petitions Due In S-121 May 10

The deadline for filing petitions to run in the Associated Student elections for the Fall 1967 semester is 1 p.m. Wednesday, May 10, acording to James Wyatt, dean of student activities.

Petitions may be obtained from the Election Commissioner in Bungalow 5 and should be turned in to the Registrar's Office, S-121, after the requirements (15 student signatures, verification of payment of campaign fee and approval by the candidate's counselor) for filing the petition have been met.

Petitions are available for the following offices: AS President and Vice President, Associated Men Student President, Associated Women Student President, the Soph and Frosh Presidencies and the seven Soph and seven Frosh seats in the Student Council.

Rules governing campaigns and elections are also available in B-5. The kick-off for campaigns is set for May 10 with the actual election presently scheduled for May 24 and 25.

Wyatt explained that the college is trying to obtain use of eight of the city's election machines.

However, if paper hallots are used and if there is a controversy over the election results similar to last semester's furor, additional measures will be taken to insure that the ballots are not stolen again, Wyatt emphasized.

Besides the two established political parties, Change and USA, the upcoming election will mark the appearance of an additional party in the campus political arena. The new party is VOTES, which stands for Voiced Opinion of The Entire Student-body.

The party is composed of members of the various clubs on campus, but, as all political parties must be, its membership is open to all members of the Associated Students.—G. P.

Student Antics In Cafeteria Force Council Investigation

By Darryl Cox

Frank Scully, on the subject of risk, once said, "Why not go out on a limb? Isn't that where the fruit is?" And in search of this fruit, members of Student Council decided to go out on a limb despite the objections of those who felt that the cafeteria minus the Campus Police would degenerate into a state of perpetual confusion and disorder.

For a week and a half, it appeared as though the members of council had found the fruit they were looking for in the students of City College. Roland Young, one of the leaders of Change Party which agitated for the removal of the Campus Police from the cafeteria, stated that he was pleased with the situation in the cafeteria. "Sure there might be a little congestion in the aisles," Young said, "but so what? It's their (the students) school."

Even the Campus Police seemed quite satisfied with the new situation; no longer having to patrol the cafeteria, they now had two men to release for duty elsewhere on the campus. "Also," Assistant Chief Mike Aimola mentioned, "our men were constantly harassed by students in the cafeteria who just plain hated us!"

It looked as though John Dunn, cafeteria manager, would be proved wrong this time. Once before students had been granted the privilege of disciplining themselves, and the plan worked less than a week.

But to everyone's dismay, the wall of goodwill built during this period began to crumble. Hell Week, when fraternities were accepting pledges and when a great deal of razzing goes on, came upon the scene and the cafeteria was never again the same. The "fun and games" became so hectic at one point that Dunn found it necessary to call in the Campus Police to quell a near riot in the cafeteria.

By then, this carefree spirit had spread to other students. There were reports by reliable sources of raw egg throwing; two women students engaged in fisticuffs, and the assault of a female student by a male student.

Finally the matter was referred back to council for reconsideration. Council referred the matter hack to a special research committee headed by Ron Mellander that, as of April 26, hadn't had a meeting.

Faculty-Student Meet For First 'Lunch-In'

The Student-Faculty Relations committee will sponsor a "lunch-in" from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the back of Statler wing one week from today.

The "lunch-in," as described by committee chairman Chris Loo, is designed to facilitate communication between students and the faculty at City College. An informal program, it will offer a chance for person-to-person discussion. "Bring your lunch, air your views, or just listen to your neighbor. If that isn't enough of an inducement, free coffee will be served," Loo said.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students
City College of San Francisco

ACP Press

Vol. 64, No. 8 | WEDNESDAY, MAY 3, 1967 | Page 2

'Administration Vs. Students' Clouds Real Campus Issues

TIME HAS PASSED and the issues have changed. What were the most vital issues a few months ago are now forgotten and replaced by the major issues of today.

In December of last year, Student Council passed a resolution which requested that the dress regulations be changed, enabling students to decide what was "appropriate." After discussions between the administration and students, the dress code was changed.

At the time there appeared to be doubts on the part of students and faculty concerning the regulation; students wanted the administration to eliminate the codes but the administration appeared reluctant, feeling they had a responsibility to keep up the appearances at the college.

NOW APPROXIMATELY four months have passed with the new dress code in affect and both students and administration appear to be happy. Students have shown that, like most people (which is sometimes forgotten), they vary; slackening of the dress regulations did not mean that all students would change their dress habits radically.

(The only change made amounted to the approval of sandals and capris, which is hardly drastic to anyone who has ever ventured around the corner—any corner.)

What appeared to be the opposition to the dress code changes was that sloppiness was thought of as being synonymous with the changes. This is not so. A slob is a slob whether in an Alpaca or a bear skin.

THE POINT?

Just a few months back these were major issues.

Now that time has passed, are these (or were they ever really) such major issues?

The question of change appears to be the real issue—want of and dislike of. Many times the administration is accused of being reluctant to changes demanded by the students and sometimes this is so.

A CHANGE which Student Council is having difficulty with on the campus is the removal of the police from the cafeteria. Now that the police have left, students have not been as responsible in some instances as it had been hoped.

Is the administration too reluctant against changes for stability's sake? Are students too anxious to make changes just to buck authority?

What is needed, on the part of both, is some realistic thinking.

The administration should have realized that the students are going to vary the dress just as any community would—and changed the dress code without any hesitation.

STUDENT COUNCIL should have realized that in any community of adults, police are present and they are not necessarily an accusation against one's responsibility. (Even though the police are not present in every community's cafeteria, the college cafeteria does not command the respect a private company gets from its patrons, Mel's notwithstanding.)

The change which should be made: Let the issues dictate the arguments rather than the tired "administration versus the students" theme cloud the issues.

Cyclers' Haven

VANDALS WERE RESPONSIBLE for the recent theft of two signs marking the four stalls reserved for motorcycle parking on the Phelan avenue side of the reservoir, Assistant Chief of the Campus Police, Mike Aimola, revealed today.

THE SIGNS WERE TEMPORARY markers provided for motorcycles by the Campus Police at the beginning of this semester. The Campus Police are presently awaiting permanent signs.

UNTIL THE NEW SIGNS ARRIVE, motorcycles will be permitted to park in the triangular-shaped areas at the base of the ramp into the reservoir.

Thundering Two-Wheelers Zip Their Way To Popularity

By Glynn Petrie

Motorcycles are becoming increasingly popular with the younger set these days and a lot of City College students are examples of this trend. Every day enthusiasts can be seen zipping in and out between the parked cars on Phelan avenue and thundering or putt-putting, as the case may be, down the street.

While most motorcyclists will agree that they are subject to a certain amount of "type-casting" in the Hells Angels tradition, they are actually a very diverse group as can be seen by observing the various "bikes" and their owners who attend the college.

The size and types of bikes seen on Phelan and in the reservoir during the day range from the unimposing little red or white motorbikes of the Honda 50 genre through the mid-size sport and scrambler models to the iridescent purple or maroon Harley-Davidson "hogs" of the terror-of-highway-101 category that occasionally put in an appearance.

THE RIDERS themselves vary from the careful helmet-glasses-and-gloves types, who are hardly noticeable, all the way to the long-hair-and-shirttail-in-the-backwash variety who cast off noise and safety with equal abandon and always appear to be in hot pursuit of something they may yet overtake.

The advantages a motorcycle offers the college student in the market for transportation are many. A bike is cheaper than a car, ridiculously economical and cuts through traffic snarl-ups like the proverbial knife through butter, irate drivers notwithstanding.

Of course, a bike may get a bit "uncomfy" during a cloudburst but motorcyclers are generally a stout-hearted lot, capable of withstanding all manner of hardships and inconveniences. Undaunted by wind or rain or sleet, the intrepid cyclist-student will defy the raging heavens and forge his perilous way through concrete canyons and cross roaring rivulets in his quest of education.

WITH WHAT DISDAIN and contempt such a lad must view the "summer-cyclers" who persuade Mom or Dad to drive them to school or take their cars when inclement weather threatens. He knows no one may question his valor and holds his white head-container high.

Actually, most riders do seem to be of the fair-weather-only species, at this college anyway. Rainy days see a marked decrease in two-wheeler activity outside the college. The number of bikes parked on Phelan during bad weather averages between 25 and 30 with four or five in the reservoir.

But when the sun makes one of its infrequent showings over the city, the number leaps to about 70 on the street and 25 in the parking lot, indicating that wet weather is certainly a consideration though not a complete deterrent to bike-riders.

WITH REGARD to the non-users of crash helmets or "skid-lids," there seems to be a variety of reasons for maintaining a naked head. When asked why he wore no helmet, one young roughrider, about to mount his coughing and throbbing steed, replied, "Outta my way, buddy."

Another said, "I wore a steel pot for three years in the Army and now I'd like to come up for a little air." Another answer was simply, "I'm broke." Among the hell-bent-for-rubber people the predominant attitude toward helmets is that it detracts from one's "cool" which is extremely undesirable and to be avoided at ALL costs.

Tales of the road can be told only by those who have scampered along winding trails and over rugged hills, sped down highways and byways and threaded their way through streets and traffic jams on their trusty machines and are still in the land of the living.

Labelled And Recorded

S.F.'s Absurd Dance Ordinance

By Marty Arbunich

SAN FRANCISCO'S 58-year-old ordinance, which made it unlawful for pre-18-year-olds to attend public dances, was recently replaced by a new ordinance, allowing all those as young as 16 to attend dances until 2 a.m.

The 9-2 decision in favor of the ordinance reflects nothing more than the legislative deficiencies of certain members of the Board of Supervisors.

The Board—save Kevin O'Shea and Peter Tamaras—has overlooked a menacing threat underlying the revised law—the moral problem.

IN REALITY, the original law, unlike the new, served teenagers, their parents and the general public effectively with legislation that discouraged any mismatched relations, the mixing of 16 and 17-year-olds (and younger?) and much older persons under the same roof.

The emotions of a 16-year-old, though flexible within the age group, tend to be immature and "the great changes in morality" which Tamaras recently cited are characteristic of immature individuals. True, there are older persons who share in immaturity, but, for the most part, age and maturity progress hand in hand.

Aware of variation in youth maturity, Supervisor Leo McCarthy, a strong supporter of the updated law, indicated that the ". . . parents are in the best position to say when their offspring should be in at night."

MOST PARENTS, who probably haven't been to a public dance in ages, aren't aware of the age fluctuation at these dances and are only concerned with their child's hour of homecoming.

McCarthy is attacking the problem from the wrong angle; this still doesn't solve the moral problem.

Another supervisor in favor of the new ordinance, Terry Francois, informed the board that those who supported the old law would actually get less than the ordinance called for, since it has been enforced but seldom.

APPARENTLY, Francois doesn't think very highly of the law enforcement capabilities of the San Francisco police force. Also, since the enforcement of the old law was so poor, how will those youngsters under 16 be barred from admittance under the new law?

The board should make an extensive reappraisal of the entire matter and realize that immature youths don't mingle well with older persons socially.

The ordinance was recently referred to the Fire Safety and Police Committee before the board could make a final voting enactment. Since voting is required on two successive weeks to legalize an ordinance, there is still hope.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1967

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... RICHARD HEINTZ
Managing and Feature Editor ..... Connie Skiptares
Staff Editor ..... Marty Arbunich
News Editor ..... Steven Hara
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan
Coordinating Writers ..... William G. Pates, Bea Takeuchi

Editorial Writers: John Janigian, John LeTourneau, Art Rodriguez, Viggo Petersen, Giuseppe Greco.
Reporters: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, John Hammack, Doreen Ng, Phillip Planezzi, Lori Pittman, Ron Wong, Ed Holmes, Glynn Petrie, Tim Duncan, Jeffrey Hofhine.
Cub Reporters: Berry Brown, Ron Lent, Lani Sliver, Lee Smith, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf, Franklin Cadson.
Photographers: Bob Briscoe, chief; Jose Fireside, Richard Sandino, Mac Y. Coding, Rich Spitaleri, Ron O'Brien, Chris Rozales, Chip Stevens, Jim Tseng.
Faculty Advisor ..... Joan Nourse

Member Associated Collegiate Press
1966 - 1967

On The RAMpage

People Live, Not Talk Fashions

By Connie Skipitares

BACK IN 1945 B.B. (Before the Bikini), even the most daring of women would have considered the topless bathing suit a sartorial impossibility, and certainly no "grown-up" woman would have thought of wearing her dress four inches above the knee, a la Courreges.

Contemporary style-setters like Rudi Gernreich, Emanuel Ungaro and Yves Saint Laurent, have yet to step into the fashion spotlight, and nobody dreamed the day might come when women would be advised to go without bras, corsets, girdles and high heels, which some now say are "old-fashioned and restricting."

Then, as now, fashion reflected the temper of the times. So it was that designs of two decades ago were influenced by "L-85," the wartime regulation controlling the amount of cloth yardage allowed in any one garment. In order to camouflage a monotonously skimpy look in clothes, designers offered the "rounded look."

THE TREND TOWARD femininity, halted by the masculine-looking suits of the war years, soon came into full expression. Paris decreed that shoulders, back and a handsome part of the bosom should be exposed—but in a gentle, not flamboyant way. Mid-calf skirts for afternoon and long skirts for evening began to dip in back, sway to one side or fall into jagged petals in memory of the 1913 "uneven hemline," and shoes—sensible and down-to-earth during the war—began to emphasize the ankles and the curve of an arch or a slender high heel.

In 1947, Christian Dior opened his dressmaking house and rocked the fashion world with his "New Look." Day skirts fell and evening skirts rose. Suit skirts dipped to 12 inches from the floor. But though the leg was greatly concealed, other curves of the female figure were accented.

A foreign prelude to the bikini came from the French Riviera with news of "shocking bathing suits" which reduced beachwear to a minimum—a tiny brassiere and a diaper drape tied at either hip. But at home, bathing beauties stuck to old-time beach fashion—the one-piece maillot.

BY THE LATE FIFTIES, Korea, Eisenhower and "McCarthy-ism" were household words, as the trend shifted to suburban living and easy-but-elegant at-home clothes.

Then came the New Frontier of the early sixties and amazing strides in science. The space suit had its impact on fashion, manifest in coats and dresses that followed the body line, but seemed to touch it only at the shoulders, while barely skimming the hips. Shorter skirts (17½ to 19 inches from the floor), imparted an effect of casual "leggy" youthfulness when worn with low-heeled shoes.

Three years ago, the bosom, which for several seasons had been deemphasized, returned as a fashion focus, and the waist area was once again marked—by belt, sash or inset band.

BY 1963, three distinct images of the contemporary woman had emerged: the "hardy, outdoor girl," wearing sophisticated versions of classic sports or work clothes; the "pampered, languidly decorative femme," openly using every artifice, from false eyelashes to wigs; and the "young Bohemian," who blended the casual cut of the jumper, turtle neck sweater and trench coat, with the "kookiness" of mixed patterns, lank hair and startling eye makeup.

The fads have come and gone, some lingering to influence today's styles, and now, 20 years later, Paris has settled down to visions and revisions. Looking to the future, Pierre Cardin is "in" with flesh exposed through circular cutouts on dresses and gaiters. Feather hoods, kerchief hats, boots and one-shouldered, softly draped dresses are seen everywhere. And then, of course, there is the infinite variety of mini-gear, which has taken us to a saturation point.

If the past is any indication, the "devil-may-care" spirit of the twenties, the glamourous movie star image of the thirties, the round look of the forties, the slim silhouette of the fifties and the space spirit of the sixties can only lead to the "progressive, personal and permissive" pattern of the seventies. As one designer put it, "People are living fashion, not talking about it!"

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

(Letters to the Ram's Horn may be left with the telephone operator in Science Hall or in The Guardsman office, S-306. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. The Guardsman reserves the right to edit letters in the interests of brevity and rhetoric. If so desired the writer's name will be withheld, but the identity of the writer must be known to the editor.)

● Word Choice Decision

Editor:

Whether I agree with Mr. William Delaney's views is immaterial. Yet I cannot help expressing my discontent with his choice of word in his second fact that he felt the Negro must face up to. (The Guardsman—April 19.)

Mr. Delaney said: "He (the Negro) has as much right to this country as the German, Italian and every other immigrant who has decided to reside here." I believe the Negro, Black person if you like, no more "decided" to reside here than people in slum areas "decided" to reside in poverty.

I think the Negro was forced to come here, and once here he had to stay because of socio-economic reasons. Many Negroes, past and present, didn't have the money to go back to the "old country." If they did have the finances to go back to the old country, they probably would be discriminated against by their African brother—which is probably more discouraging than being discriminated against by the Negro's White brother.

No, Mr. Delaney, I cannot dig your choice of verb (decided), can you dig it?

Arnold C. Ellis

The Observer

By William G. Pates

YESTERDAY marked a day of days in the annals of capital punishment in California.

At 10:03 and 15 seconds seven years ago yesterday morning, a dull metallic clink signaled the pulling of a lever releasing 16 one-ounce sodium cyanide pellets into a two-foot-deep earthern tank containing a sulphuric acide solution thereby producing hydrocyanic gas underneath one of two perforated steel chairs in an apple-green octagonal, peak roofed, glass windowed chamber at the Department of Corrections, California State Prison at San Quentin, and the execution of Caryl Chessman had begun, after 12 years and eight stays of execution, the 168th man executed.

WITHOUT A DOUBT Chessman's execution was the most controversial ever carried out in this state as an example of the righteousness or injustice of capital punishment, but nothing has changed.

On April 11, 1967, the state of California swept the cobwebs off the smokehouse after a four-year moratorium and conducted its 501st execution, the 195th by lethal gas, and the capital punishment controversy flamed anew. In 1960 when Chessman was executed, a total of 56 executions was carried out in the nation. This year in California alone, the total number of executions in all of the 50 states for 1966, an electrocution in Oklahoma, has been equaled. But the question is no closer to being resolved than when Chessman walked the last mile to the little green room.

THERE ARE MANY interesting parallels, comparisons and contrasts between the executions and the lives of Caryl Chessman and Aaron Mitchell. Both men spent more than 20 years of their brief lives in jail, beginning at an early age. They were literally the same age. Each was executed a few minutes after ten in the morning, there were viglis at the San Quentin gates for both events and pickets at the State Capitol building and the Governor's Mansion. Chessman was denied clemency by a Governor who opposed capital punishment while Mitchell was denied it by a Governor who is a proponent of the death penalty.

As well, while Chessman was an agnostic, Mitchell cried out for Jesus Christ to make his peace with God. Chessman was defiant, almost angry to the end, while Mitchell suffered an emotional collapse and had to be held up from the holding cell to the chamber. And finally a distinction which many feel is binding as to who is given the death penalty and who isn't, Chessman was white and Mitchell was a Negro.

Two utterly different personalities going to the same fate, from the same holding cell, wearing the same type of clothes, in the same apple-green octagonal chamber, entering at the same time, 10:02, sitting in the same chair, chair "B," both hearing the same dull metallic sound and yet neither was deterred from committing his crimes.

There was no moratorium on death when these two men carried out their criminal act. For the essential question before society and the state is will the continuance of capital punishment be a deterrent to crime? Underneath the emotional aspects of both sides of the issue, this is the essence of the problem. At the present there are 60 men on Death Row at San Quentin awaiting execution; four have death dates during the next two months. In fact, one is tentatively scheduled for next Tuesday.

"JUSTICE has been done under the existing law," as Attorney-General Stanley Mosk said following Chessman's death. "but the fact that no Californian feels more secure today should give impetus to demands that the law be changed. A civilized society cannot tolerate the ritual of death as a method punishment." These conclusions are just as true now.

Court reversals, judicial stays and gubernatorial commutations brought a death moratorium to California in 1963 following the execution of James Bentley. Things were no worse during the moratorium than under the death penalty.

Electrocution, lethal gas and hanging deaths await 404 condemned men in the prisons of the 37 states that still have the death penalty. In Utah you have a choice—hanging or shooting.

Bells tolled for the passing of Aaron C. Mitchell. Hopefully, bells will toll not only the end of capital punishment itself but the end of the need for it in our society.

It will be a long time coming.

Spring Dropout Rate Reaches 600, Climbing

After the hang-ups and headaches of registration, the struggle and frustrations of trying to get the right classes at the right time with the preferred instructors and then the great hassle in class of getting a good seat—who would have the heart to just quit?

Usually 13 to 14 per cent of the students who enroll here for day classes take leaves of absence before the semester is out, according to Gertrude Somerville, registrar.

Approximately 500 day students have already "dropped out" this semester. The largest drop to date took place in the week ending on April 17. In that week alone City College lost a total of 91 day students.

Compared with the approximate 8502 enrollment, though, 600 doesn't seem like too great a loss. In the spring of 1966, there were 845 leaves of absence from a total day enrollment of 7886.

It is much worse in the evening classes, Miss Somerville indicated. Between 35 and 40 per cent of the students enrolled in evening classes "drop out."

Students over 21 and clear with the college (owing the college no money for library expenses, and the like), are not required to give any reason for their leaves of absence, but counselors do receive a variety of excuses.

The "honest reason" behind most leaves of absence, according to Counselor Helen Huffman, is poor grades. Counselor Ken K. Meitz agreed with this when he said, "I don't have too many who take leave who do have good grades."

Counselor William Schoon stated that the most common statement he hears from students is, "I didn't know it was going to be this hard." Those are mainly students who try to take on a full load of studies and hold down a job too, he said.

Financial problems, entering military service, illness, the need to return home and marital problems also run high on the list of excuses. Meitz mentioned the problem of "unhappy wives" as one of the excuses he has received from married husbands, but so far he's had no problem with "unhappy husbands."—L. P.

Ad-Art Students Receive Awards For El Greco Art

By Art Rodriguez

In conjunction with the opening of his new release, El Greco, movie actor Mel Ferrer made a personal appearance April 26 at the Empire Theatre to present three City College advertising art students with awards for their artistic interpretations of the movie's essence.

The students, Michael Zak, Tim Lambert and Amy Victoria, were awarded prizes as winners of a contest sponsored by the Empire Theatre and conducted in the movie's opening. Contestants attended the theater for a special showing and then were asked to put their impressions of scenes onto canvas and paper.

Zak was awarded a $25 first prize check for a painting in black, white and red showing El Greco, near the end of his life, drawing asylum inmates.

The second prize award was given to Lambert for a round, colored paper collage symbolizing religious painting. He received season passes for two theaters.

Miss Victorio was awarded a dinner for two at the Chuck Wagon Restaurant (West Portal) as a third prize award for her acrylic and collage painting showing a death's head against the symbol of a red cross.

Upon entering the theater Ferrer is reported to have noticed Zak's painting and to have commented very favorably before being aware that it was the first prize winner. The picture also received positive comments from 20th Century Fox officials attending the showing.

Zak's painting showed the aged El Greco seated drawing in front of a background of white and red with a portion of a priest (wearing a beaded cross) signifying the ever-present church domination.

El Greco is a picture about the life of the famous Greek painter, Domenico Theotocopolis.

Semipro Grad Income Increases Five Per Cent

Students graduating from the semiprofessional curricula at City College this year will be offered starting salaries that will average five per cent more than those offered last semester and the jobs offered will be located closer to home.

These encouraging economic facts were brought out by Director of Placement Joseph A. Amori as he elaborated on plans for the 12th Annual Recruitment day to be held Wednesday, May 10, in Smith Hall.

"The demand for skilled workers far outstrips the supply in many fields," Amori said. "Local shortages are most acute in the fields of accounting and electronics, with sales, secretarial and drafting close behind.

"Sample starting salaries for this year's graduates will be: secretarial, $350-500; accounting, $450-600, and engineering, $500-700. In the engineering, secretarial and electronics fields we have more job openings than we have applicants."

Today's graduating student, according to Amori, is not interested in traveling very far afield in his search for employment. "The modern graduate wants to stay close to home," he claims. As a result of this new trend most of the firms represented at Recruitment day will be from the five Bay Area counties."

Boeing Aircraft of Seattle, Washington, and the Atomic Energy Commission (New Mexico) are the two participating firms located furthest from City College.

Sixty employers will be represented on campus and the program is not limited to engineering-business students. Any student interested in full-time employment, regardless of the field he chooses, is encouraged to register for consideration at the Placement Service Office (S-187).—E. H.

Nine Colleges To Compete In Sports Tourney

Competition in six sports events is scheduled for the Sports Day Tournament Saturday, May 6 when the Recreation Association on campus will compete for titles with nine other two-year colleges, according to Sharon Harris, president of the RA.

Approximateiy 50 participants will seek titles in volleyball, badminton, bowling, tennis, swimming, track and other field events.

"We expect to bring home winners," Miss Harris added.

Other colleges participating in the Sports Day Tournament are Cabrillo, Monterey Peninsula, San Jose, West Valley, Foothill, Merritt, Diablo Valley, San Mateo and Hartnell.

The RA tennis team participated in a tennis tournament at Modesto on April 22.

Although the team did not do very well, Miss Harris remarked that they did get a lot of practicing done.

Education is a controlling grace to the young, consolaion to the old, wealth to the poor, and ornament to the rich.—Diogenes

Students Employ Skill, Give Free Dental X-Rays

Dental X-ray students are now ready to practice their skills, according to Dr. Catherine Geissler, instructor in dental assisting here.

Students interested in this program can write their names, addresses, phone numbers, and the hours they are available on a piece of paper and turn it in to S-222. The X-rays are given on Mondays and Wednesdays from 8 to 10 a.m.

"Dental X-rays given by a dentist usually cost about $20, so you save that money," Dr. Geissler said.

The process is a painless one; films are simply put into the mouth by the second semester dental X-ray student under the supervision of Dr. Geissler. When the process is completed, the patient can keep the films or give them to his own dentist.

Dr. Geissler emphasized that there are many pretty coeds giving the X-rays. Unfortunately, she added, no men students are practicing.

Photo 'Bests' In Cloud Hall Gallery

The best photographs from a selection of 40,000 make up the 10th semi-annual display being presented in a two-part exhibit in Cloud Hall.

Emmett Smith, a member of the photography department, who has full responsibility for the exhibit, stated, "The purpose of the gallery is to give the photography students an opportunity to present their own work and to share it with the college.

"It also contains outside work which is inspirational to them."

The first phase is a display entitled, The Best Of Last Semester. Since all of the photographs from last spring's semiannual show could not be displayed due to the tremendous number and limited space, this spring's showing will be a continuation of last spring's. It will include the best three hundred photographs from the department's stock.

The display will be entitled Retrospective, and will show the best 3000 photographs chosen from the collection of the department, which started 20 years ago in the spring of 1947.

Smith likes "to keep the gallery alive," and changes the photographs every so often to keep it from becoming uninteresting.

The current display will end soon to make way for the Retrospective phase. Either one can be interrupted by a special show. Such special shows would contain the private work of an individual student or outside professional photographer, Smith said.

25 Disc Jockeys Man KCSF

By Mike Wise

"Music hath charms to sooth the savage beast."

When James Bransten wrote that line he inadvertently coined an appropriate slogan for the campus radio station, KCSF.

Indeed, KCSF has the job, from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. five days a week, of soothing the nerves of both the beauties and the beasts who use Smith Hall's facilities during their breaks.

A staff of 25 disc jockeys provides a constant stream of music and news "solely for the enjoyment of the students," stated Joe Twyman, station manager and KCSF Broadcasters' President.

THE STATION'S disc jockeys work in half-hour shifts while the newsmen work in hour shifts. A member of the staff may be employed as either a disc jockey or a newsman, and quite frequently staff members are used in both capacities.

KCSF has a strict policy regarding the music it plays. No vocals are played after 10:30 a.m. During each half hour program, the station plays one classical or semi-classical record, one jazz record, one popular hit, and no more than four rock and roll selections.

Preferably no two records of the same type are played in succession. The selection of records to be played is left up to the individual disc jockey, subject to the approval of the program director, Dick Kimball or the faculty adviser, Phillip Brown.

RECENTLY, KCSF conducted a survey to determine how students feel the station can improve its programming. The survey asked how long KCSF should broadcast each day, what kind of music the students would like to hear, and what type of news should be reported by KCSF.

The survey was given out to all of the clubs on campus, and also to students in the cafeteria. The results of the survey are now being compiled, and are expected to be instrumental in future program planning.

The TV and Radio 25 class is used as a screening process for up-and-coming announcers. However, a person desiring a position on the radio staff and not enrolled in this class, may simply volunteer.

KCSF OPERATES like a big public address system, and has its main speakers in Smith Hall. The speakers in the classrooms are used by the Campus Carriers, a group of campus news announcers, who are on the air at 10:07 a.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and at 8:07 a.m. on Tuesday and Thursdays.

The station also hopes to receive approval from the administration to install speakers in Statler wing in the near future. If this works out, speakers may be placed in other convenient locations around campus, to add to the enjoyment of KCSF's listeners.

Sophs To Host Annual Ball This Weekend

The Sophomore Class Ball will be held Saturday at the San Francisco Hilton's Plaza Room from 9 p.m. to midnight.

The ball is free to those holding Associated Student cards. Tickets for those without Associated Student memberships are $2.50. Dress is semi-formal.

Diane Lattimer, president of the Sophomore Class and organizer of the ball, said that the theme this year is Happy Together. The highlight of the dance will be the crowning of the class king and queen.

College clubs picked a couple to represent them as fund raisers for the Sophomore Class Scholarship fund. The couple raising the most money will be crowned the king and queen of the ball and will win the grand prix of a trip to Disneyland for two.

Miss Lattimer said that she wrote to various organizations for donations to be used as prizes. The following establishments are some of the contributors: Lew Lehr's Steaks, hungry i, L&L Castle Lanes, Broadway-Van Ness Lanes, Captain's Galley, Circle Star Theater, The Hippo, Caesar's Restaurant, The Francisan, the Orpheum Theater and the Westlake Travel Service.

Dean James Wyatt stated that a minimal amount of contributions had to be collected to win the prizes as some couples weren't trying as hard as they should.

The goal of this year's drive is $2000, the most ambitious yet. Last year, a highiy exceptional $1600 was taken in and the year before brought in $707. The most successful drive compared to last year was a relatively "mere" $800.

Summer Session Deadline May 12

The summer session application dealing for in-coming students has passed and continuing students will have to hurry if they hope to make the fast-approaching May 12 deadline for filing programs.

Registration has been running heavy, and Registrar Gertrude Somerville reported that students who wait until the last moment may find the waiting lines long, and counselors scarce at convenient times.

To register, students are expected to consult their advisers as soon as possible. The registrar's office will also provide students with a printed sheet giving all the information needed to register. Specific classes offered in the program are contained in this sheet.

Students are allowed a maximum of 6½ units during the session running from June 26 through August 4. A special feature of this year's summer program will be the computerized registration utilized for the first time at City College.

Applications must be filed either in the registrar's office in S-121 or S-117.

Rams Sweep Comets

Tracksters Rout Contra Costa In 83-53 Win

By John LeTourneau

Led by sprinters David Jones and Ernie Provost, the City College track team easily defeated Contra Costa, 83-53, April 25, on the Ram track.

The win might not have been so easy, for the Comets' three stars, Marion Anderson, Charles Gaines and Grant Greer did not compete in the meet.

However, the great individual performances of Jones and Provost were a definite factor in the victory. Jones won the 440-yard dash (50.3), finished second in the 220, and was a valuable leg in both winning relays. Provost took the 100 (9.9) and 220 (22.4), and ran in the 440-yard relay.

COACH LOU VASQUEZ said, "Provost has been looking good and the versatility of Jones has been a big lift to the entire squad." He also had praise for Greg Jackson and Robbie Brinkley who finished second and third in the 100 and completed the foursome in the 440 relay.

The Rams' Don Jordan took the intermediate hurdles ahead of Jackson and Floyd Banks for a sweep.

In the distance races the Rams fared well as they swept the 880 with Hoy Henderson winning with the time of 1:59.2. Contra Costa's John Prosack came from behind twice to win the mile and two mile ahead of the Rams' Fred Forsberg.

THE FIELD EVENTS were the only bright spot for the Comets as Tyson Osborne and Lou Wright leaped 6-6½ in the high jump. Mike Carter jumped an all-time best at 6-4 for third place. The Comets were definitely missing Anderson, the top long jumper in the conference, as Ray Hearne (22-6) and Scott Heyman finished one-two.

Forrest Shute finished second in the pole vault at 13-0.

Contra Costa took the first two places in the shot put and discus as Rich Bagetta threw the shot 43-2 for third and Lew Duckworth finished third in the discus with a toss of 121-11.

Today and Saturday the Rams will go for the title in the Golden Gate Conference Championships.

ALL-AROUND SPRINT STAR DAVID JONES has clocked a 49.9 (440), 22.2 (220) and 9.8 (100) already this year. For three straight meets Jones has won the 440, placed second to teammate Ernie Provost in the 220 and helped the Rams to four relay wins.—Guardsman photo by Chris Rozales

Phi Delta Beats Irish, 72-53, Takes Lead In Club Division

Phi Delta (5-0) took over sole possession of first place in the Club division of intramural basketball by whipping the Irish (4-1), 72-53. Delta's Bill Berger and Jeff Barker tallied 25 apiece to lead the attack for the winners. Brian Wicklow's 13 digits and fine all-around floor play also helped out as Delta completely outplayed the Irish. Tom Kuhn had 23 points for the Irish.

FOR THE FIRST time since the opening round of action more than a month ago, forfeits occurred. Club league's Avengers (4-1) won over Newman Club (2-3) and Independent action saw Ram Ski Club (2-3) win their second straight game as Black Students Association (1-4) failed to show up.

Other Club division games saw Alpha Phi Epsilon (2-3) easily win over Chinese Students (0-5), 58-15. Summans had 19 points and Henderson added 13 to pace Epsilon's attack.

Tamaraws (4-1) moved into a second-place tie with the Irish by defeating Alpha Kappa Rho (1-4), 62-52. Ed Soriano hit for 28 markers to lead the way for Tamaraws. John Gutierez scored 21 for the losers.

INDEPENDENT LEAGUE action again saw Felony Squad (5-0) pick up another win, beating Tamaraws Babes (2-3), 56-40. Calvin Booth and Mike Carter again led the way to victory, hitting 15 and 13 points respectively. Luke Madamba and Rey Magno scored 13 apiece for the losers.

Mike Duggan's 37 points kept The Guardsman (4-1) only one game behind the Felony Squad as the G'men rolled over the Revisables (0-5), 66-37. Chief Rich Heintz scored four points and passed off brilliantly to help the winning cause. Cliff Hayashi hit for 12 digits to lead the Revisables in that department, while G'man Marty Arbunich got back into his old grove, being held scoreless.

THE RED MOUNTAINEERS (4-1) won a tough one, edging the Knobs (2-3), 57-55. Sam Holmes hit for 23 and Ralph Baynard 16, but it was not enough to overcome a balanced Mountaineer attack led with 13 points apiece, by Ken Jones and Tony Rodriquez. The Mountaineers remain in a second place tie with The Guardsman.

In tonight's action, the Mountaineers meet red hot Ram Ski while The Guardsman tangles with the Black Students; both games start at 7 p.m. Following these games, league-leading Felony Squad meets winless Revisables, and the Knobs go against Tamaraws Babes.—M. D.

Bulldogs Wallop Ram Netters, 5-2

College of San Mateo downed the City College tennis squad, 5-2, April 25 at the Golden Gate Park courts.

In the first match the Rams' John Wong defeated Paul Van Dillen, 6-4, 6-0, in the feature match of the day. In the second match, the Bulldogs' Woody Woodruff knocked over the Rams' George Zoui, 6-3, 7-5. In the third match San Mateo's Ron Zimmerman whipped Dennis Del Secco, 6-1, 6-2.

In doubles play the Red and White's Wong and Zoui upset Van Dillon and Woodruff. The final doubles match was won by the Bulldogs' Zimmerman and Stein as they beat Del Secco and Servantes, 6-0, 6-3.

Saturday the netters will compete in the conference finals at Contra Costa.

RAMBLINGS

Southern California Lauds Trojan O. J.

By Mike Duggan

MIKE GARRETT, the former Heisman trophy winner and now a star halfback on the Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League says, "He is out of this world."

"He" is O. J. Simpson, former City College All-American halfback, and now track star and future gridiron performer at the University of Southern California. Garrett is assisting USC's head coach, Johnny McKay, with spring football practice.

After a recent practice session, Garrett commented further by saying, "Simpson reminds me a lot of Gale Sayers of the Chicago Bears and Lenny Moore of the Baltimore Colts. O. J. can outrun anyone, and yet he is a football player first and a track-man second."

THE PAPERS down in Los Angeles are building Simpson up quite a bit. Ever since he indicated that he would possibly attend USC, they have been watching his every move. Although many Southern Californians have not seen O. J. in action, they know well of his 54 touchdowns and over 2500 yards rushing he accomplished during the past two years at City College.

Garrett said Simpson's only fault is in his blocking. Yet, for two years at City College, Simpson was too busy scoring touchdowns to have to worry about his blocking.

In his 20 games as a Ram, Simpson tallied two or more touchdowns in 17 of those games. Once he scored six touchdowns in a single game, once tallied for five scores, twice went for four six-pointers, and eight times reached paydirt three times during a single contest.

Before leaving for USC in February, Simpson put his name in the two-year college record book one more time, this time for track. Running against the world's best, Tommie Smith of San Jose and Charlie Greene of Nebraska, Simpson clocked 6.2 in the 60-yard dash at a Cow Palace meet. This time tied the two-year college record (also taken in 6.0 by Mike Fray of Community College).

SIMPSON SPENDS Monday through Friday on the football field, and then he runs for the Trojan track squad on Saturdays. To say the least, Simpson has been quite an addition to an already loaded group of trackmen.

USC took the NCAA indoor track championships, with Simpson placing in the 60s and is favored to cop the outdoor title also.

Simpson opened the outdoor season by leading the Trojans past Arizona State, winning the 100 in 9.5, placing second in the 220 and helping the 440-relay victory. Two weeks ago the unbeaten trackmen from USC walloped Stanford as Simpson took third in the 100 and 220 and also helped the relay team clock a fast 40.0 win.

Until this year, the USC 440-relay record was 40.5. With Earl McCullough, Fred Kuller, Simpson and Lennox Miller runfing in that order, the Trojan foursome has clocked 40.0 three times already.

SIMPSON IS ALREADY well known on campus. Reports have it that an autograph seeker approached Mike Garrett with this question, "Are you O. J. Simpson?" Garrett answered, "No, I'm Mike Garrett." The defeated individual then walked away with his paper unsigned.

Coach McKay would like the press to take it easy on publicity about Simpson, because even he will have to wait until next season's opener to see just what O. J. can accomplish.

Kirkpatrick Hurls Team Into League Contention

By Marc Clarkson

The Ram baseball team, boosted by a pair of fine pitching performances from Bill Kirkpatrick, ended a three-game losing slump and climbed back into the race for the conference championship with 5-2 and 3-2 victories over Contra Costa and Chabot Colleges respectively. The two wins put the Rams' record at 4-3.

Kirkpatrick pitched one of his better efforts against hosting Contra Costa. He held the Comets to four hits, walked only one batter and struck out 13.

The Rams produced two runs in the first inning and three in the fifth. All five runs were off starting and losing pitcher Harrison. He lasted just 4-2/3 innings before being replaced by Foster, who blanked the Rams on no hits the rest of the way.

THE RAMS wasted no time in getting to Harrison. Gerry Bosch opened the game with a walk, advanced to second on a sacrifice bunt by Henry Harris and came home on an Al Pasion single. Pasion then stole second base, scooted to third when the Comet catcher overthrew second trying to nab the fleet runner and came home on a sacrifice fly by Maris Pantels.

Three more runs were picked up by the Rams in the fifth inning when singles by Jeff Barker, Tom Callen and a walk by Larry Sozzi loaded the bases. Then—the bases were quickly unloaded when the Comets committed a variety of errors to score all three baserunners.

The Rams stretched their victory string to two games when they edged the Gladiators of Chabot, 3-2, at Balboa Field.

A two-out single by Henry Harris in the bottom of the eighth inning broke a 2-2 pitchers' battle between the Gladiators' Dick Tidrow and Kirkpatrick.

Kirkpatrick again pitched in fine fashion. He allowed only five hits, yielded just three walks and struck out six batters.

TOM CALLEN, shortstop for the Rams, played outstanding defense, ranging far and wide to make nine put outs. He handled six of the last seven Comet outs.

Both Ram wins were extremely important, for a loss would virtually eliminate them from any hopes of a shot at the conference crown.

For the Rams, there are only three games left in the conference schedule including next Friday's game against Diablo College. Foothill College, which leads the pack, is still undefeated. The Owls are a well-balanced team and it would be highly unlikely for them to lose more than three of their remaining games.

Pitcher Kirkpatrick, 4-2, has now started six of the Rams' seven games, finishing five of them. He has completed more games and has more innings pitched to his credit than any other conference hurler, working a total of 58 innings.

Weekend Results

TRACK
SATURDAY

Nor-Cal Relays at Sacramento. Top 20 teams: Hancock 78, American River 35, Fresno 34, Laney 31, CCSF 32, San Mateo 17, Merritt 16, Foothill 15, Sacramento 14, Reedley 12, Sequoias 11, Modesto 11, Diablo Valley 9, San Jose 8, Chabot 8, San Joaquin 6, Contra Costa 5½, West Valley 3½, Solano 1, and Hartnell ½.

GOLF
FRIDAY

CCSF 30 - Merritt 5

Medalist—Boston (SF) 77. Other scores: Leonardini (SF) 78, Kundert (SF) 79, Gannon (M) 81, Fama (SF) 81, Gal (M) 82, Blazer (SF) 84 and Fuhrig (M) 85.

BASEBALL
FRIDAY

CCSF	0	0	3	1	0	0	0	2	6	11	1
Merritt	2	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	3	7	4

Johnson (W) and Sozzi; Sherrat (L), Quinlan (9) and Devita.
Home run—Callen (SF).

Rams Sink To Last In League Swim Finals

By John Hammack

The undermanned City College swimming team finished a disappointing last place in a record-shattering Golden Gate Conference Swimming and Diving Championships at College of San Mateo, April 21 and 22.

Defending champions and Golden Gate Conference winner, Foothill College swept through all competition by winning 11 of 13 events. The Owls would have been given credit for yet another first place award but were disqualified for having a man leave too soon in the 400-yard freestyle relay.

THE RAMS' 400-yard medley relay team turned in another sterling performance with a 4:01.0 clocking and a fourth-place finish. Bruno Van Rijn, Frank Cercos, John O'Connor and Bill Pasquinelli composed the foursome for the Rams.

All-American Pasquinelli also swam to a fourth-place in both the 100 and 200-yard backstroke events. In the 100-yard event, John Lutz of Chabot swam to a pool record of 57.8. Pasquinelli had a 1:00.0 clocking.

David Detert, who has done an outstanding job the whole season, came through with another fine showing with a seventh place in the one-meter diving and a fourth in the three-meter diving events.

THE STANDINGS for the meet were as follows: Foothill 518, Chabot 367, San Mateo 339, San Jose 230.5, Diablo Valley 208.5, San Francisco 87. Points were awarded for the top 12 events with 16 points ganging down to one point for 12th place.

Final standings for the 1967 Golden Gate Conference swim teams were Foothill (5-0), Chabot (4-1), San Mateo (3-2), San Jose (2-3), Diablo Valley (1-4), San Francisco (0-5).

Merritt Pitcher Befuddles Foes With Lone Arm

By G. Frank Cooney

Be not deceived by his appearance; Merritt pitcher Jack Quinlan can indeed win a game single handed.

A reliever, Quinlan throws and bats left handed. He has no choice. Quinlan was born without a right arm.

When he first showed up for practice in January, Coach Stan Korich cut him from the squad. "It wasn't that he didn't have the ability," explains Korich, "I was afraid he'd get hurt. But he insisted he could do the job so I gave him a second chance.

"Quinlan worked hard in practice and I knew he'd do okay, but he still surprised me," Korich added.

"I have to prove to people that I'm their equal," Quinlan says. And against San Jose City College earlier this season he did even better than that—he proved to be superior.

He limited the Jaguars to four hits in 7⅓ innings while his teammates came from behind for a 9-8 victory.

Perhaps his unique mound tactics befuddled San Jose. He held his glove under his chin while throwing to the plate, then quickly slipped it over his only hand.

When fielding, Quinlan snags the ball with his glove, stuffs the glove back under his chin, takes the ball from the glove and pegs perfectly.

Duffer Comeback Clobbers Merritt

The Ram golf team continued its inconsistent plays as Diablo Valley defeated City College, 22½-12½, while the team bounced back three days later to defeat Merritt, 25½-9½.

In the Diablo match, only two Rams were able to break 80. Doug Boston had the low score for City College with a 76. Bob Fama was next with a 77, followed by Donohue (84), Mike Leonardini (86) and Ken Kundert (86).

At Lake Chabot, it was a different story, as the Rams defeated Merritt easily when Kundert and Boston both fired two-under-par 70's. Fama had a 76 for City College and Leonardini had 79. Fifth man Bob Blazer had an 88, and lost all six points to his opponent, who had an 82.

The Rams won the team total by 14 shots, and picked up 21½ points in match play. The Rams' record is now 4-6.

The next match will be played this Friday as City College will host Foothill at Harding Park.

Guitarist Bola Sete, Combo Join Campus Band For Jazz Concert Tonight At Riordan

Bole Sete, acclaimed jazz guitarist, will appear in concert tonight at 8:30 p.m. in the Riordan High School auditorium.

The concert will also feature Arthur Samuel's jazz band and will be MC'd by Dick McGarvin of KSFO, Ron Burk, parliamentarian of the student council, explained.

Bola Sete, whose name means "seven ball," was born and raised in Brazil where he early learned to play the guitar.

JAZZ GUITARIST Bola Sete will appear tonight at Riordan auditorium.

Sete's real name is Djalma de Andrade. "Bola Sete" (seven ball) is the only black ball in Brazillian billiards. The nickname was acquired while he was traveling with an all-white South American band and he has used it as a stage name ever since.

Spending much time studying music at various conservatories in Brazil, Sete became an accomplished guitarist adept at jazz, pop, flamenco and classical guitar.

After playing for a time in Brazil with both a band and a quartet, Sete formed his own combo and toured most of South America until he came to the conclusion that, "It was a good life, but even if you are famous in Brazil, you make no money."

Sete subsequently contracted to tour Europe after which he decided to set his sights on a career in the United States. He played a long engagement at San Francisco's Sheraton-Palace Hotel where he was spotted by Dizzy Gillespie.

Gillespie requested that Sete record with him on his album, New Wave, and gave him a spot in the "Relatives of Jazz" program he produced for the Monterey Jazz Festival's Saturday afternoon performance.

After this, Sete played at New York's Park-Sheraton Hotel for four months and then came back to San Francisco for a nine-month return engagement at the Sheraton-Palace. During this time he cut his first album with the Vince Guaraldi Trio.

Sete has since recorded several albums for Fantasy Records with Vince Guaraldi and has made appearances at the Monterey Jazz Festival, the Village Gate in New York City, the Showboat in Washington, D.C. and on the National Educational Television network.

Named the best new guitarist by Downbeat magazine, Sete currently makes his home in Sausalito between club, college and concert engagements. No longer with Vince Guaraldi, Sete now has his own trio composed of himself, a bassist and a percussionist. Sete will appear in trio for this concert.

Admission to the concert, which is open to the public, is $1 for students and $1.50 for non-students. Tickets may be purchased in Bungalow 5.

The first $180 of the profits from the concert will be used to help support Vu Vanh Thanh, the young Vietnamese boy adopted by the Associated Students last year, and his family.

Paul 'Red' Fay To Discuss JFK Book C-Hour Tomorrow

Paul Burgess Fay, Jr., will discuss the approach of his book, The Pleasure Of His Company and the late President John Fitzgerald Kennedy as a 'subject and friend' in the theater during College Hour tomorrow.

"Redhead" Fay's book was written to reveal the personality aspect of the twenty-one years he had known Kennedy.

Kennedy himself said, "You've had an exposure to the Presidency that few people have had. You've got an obligation to write it."

FAY ATTENDED St. Vincent de Paul Parochial School and St. Joseph Parochial School, both in San Francisco. He also was enrolled at Bella Armie Prep, Thatcher School and Stanford University, where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree.

While in the service, Fay built his rank from a midshipman to a lieutenant, took part in motor torpedo boat action during World War II, and was a Seaman Instructor. He also took part in Flight Training. Fay received the Bronze Star Medal.

Fay is currently Vice President of the Fay Improvement Co. of San Francisco.

HE IS REPLACING Cyril Magnin, Chairman of the San Francisco Port Authority, who had to cancel his engagement at the last minute.

Magnin was unable to meet the schedule because of an International Association of Ports and Harbors conference to be held in Tokyo, Japan, from May 9 to 13.

Fay, who had already lectured at other colleges, said that he would be available to lecture here.

On Tuesday, May 16, David Brower, the Executive Director of the Sierra Club, will appear in the college theater at 11 a.m. Brower's topic will be California's Population Growth And Its Effect On Natural Resources.

The Sierra Club is currently fighting lumber interests in California to preserve the famed redwood forests which the club claims are being destroyed with no conservation program in sight.

Car Safety Check Set For Reservoir Today

The Associated Men Students are sponsoring a vehicle safety check today from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the reservoir.

The check, a free service to all students, will not include any penalty for violations found.

Mayor John Shelley supported the project by proclaiming the week of May 8-13 "Vehicle Safety Check Week," AMS Vice President Ron Appel disclosed.

Appel also revealed that a letter to Governor Reagan's office requesting the same action from the state, met with a reply that "the action would have to come from the state legislature."

Afro-American Class And The Critic Resolutions Discussed In Council

By Lori Pittman

A barrage of legislation was hammered through Student Council last week. The variety of resolutions and recommendations debated ranged from the establishment of an "Afro-American History Class" to "irresponsible journalism."

The administration is already considering establishment of a class on Afro-American history, according to Councilman Tom Crenshaw. The main points of the council resolutions are listing the class in the college catalogue as "Afro-American History Class" to avoid something like "Negro History" and to recommend to the administration that the instructor of said class "be Black."

Some councilmen argued with the recommendation that the instructor of the class "be Black," calling the measure discriminatory," but the roll-call vote brought in a 9-1-3 victory.

THOUGH THE GUARDSMAN has long been a sore spot to various members of Student Council, the publication entitled City College Critic has reached a hot-water point with some council members also. Last week's edition of the Critic (Vol. I, No. 10), was blasted in a resolution submitted by Councilman Ray Bietz.

The resolution states that council is very much in favor of "a press free from censorship" but this press should also be "responsible." It declared that the statement concerning James Wyatt, dean of student activities, and Student Council was "both erroneous and unsubstantiated in fact."

Finally, it resolved that council go on record as being opposed to "this form of irresponsible journalism."

VARIOUS COUNCIL members defended the Critic; hot debate followed until the meeting was adjourned. Council has yet to vote upon the resolution.

A number of bills have been passed this semester and some forwarded to committees for appropriate action, but often little more is heard about the bills once they are in a committee. Councilman Chris Loo submitted a resolution to set time limits on legislation entering committees.

The time limits will designate when reports concerning each bill will be made back to council and, thus, insure that the proper reports are made. The resolution met with little debate and passed with a 7-0-6 vote.

TO PREVENT such things as "stuffing the ballot boxes" and other incidents that sometimes occur around election time, council voted to use voting machines for elections at every poll if possible, when the machines are not in use for the city elections. Hopefully, they will be used in the coming election.

Councilman Bietz introduced a recommendation to help rid the college of its "high-schoolish" signs. The signs mentioned are those on the entrance doors of several of the college buildings which read "visitors report to the principal's office."

Council voted to recommend removal of the signs entirely.

COUNCILMAN BILL McQUAID attempted to change the method now used by Student Council in filling its own vacancies whereby the body and cabinet members vote in the new members. The resolution he submitted would enable the outgoing council member to appoint his own replacement. The proposal was defeated.

State Conference Draws Disfavor

Poor programming and over-stressed social obligations were responsible for the lack of action that pervaded the recent Los Angeles convention of the California Junior College Student Government Association, according to City College delegates.

"Northern colleges were excluded from the planning of this convention," claims AS President Joe Parneil, "and as a result, we found ourselves at the end of the program with only hour hours left to discuss proposals that took two days to bring up."

Only resolutions and recommendations that could be passed by acclamation went through, according to Parnell and Councilwoman Pat Fiuren. The latter stated, "Anything with any 'meat' in it just didn't get discussed. Too much emphasis was placed on the social aspects of the convention.

"There were two dances and it was only a three-day program. One event offered was an eight-hour tour of Universal Studios, a pleasant thing, but hardly necessary. Less than half the City College delegates went on it."

Miss Fiuren and Parnell agreed that "Nothing of importance was passed. Anything with the slightest amount of controversy was tabled due to lack of time. When City College hosted the convention last semester, nothing was brought up that didn't get full discussion and a vote."—E. H.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 64 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, MAY 10, 1967 NUMBER 9

Sons And Daughters Good Photography But Mild Account Of Vietnam War Brutality

By Viggo Petersen

Sons and Daughters, the first full-length documentary on the Vietnam war and the anti-war movement here at home, is an outstanding example of photography but...

The movie is made up of a number of scenes of events which took place in Berkeley during preparation for the city's first mass demonstration against the war in October of 1965.

Although many people depict Sons and Daughters as an expose of uncensored film footage from Vietnam of American atrocities, it hardly fits the description of news accounts of what goes on.

HOWEVER THERE ARE a few scenes in the movie which are gory enough, showing Viet Cong suspects being pushed around and bullied, and although brutal, the scenes are relatively mild compared to some of the descriptions of what goes on in the war-torn country.

One scene shows a Viet Cong suspect being kicked repeatedly by a Vietnamese soldier and when he refuses to talk the soldier begins striking him on the collarbone with the butt of his rifle.

There are many new all-too-familiar scenes of broken families separated by American bombing raids and Vietnamese and American attacks.

ANOTHER SCENE displays a long row of Viet Cong bodies gathered from around the countryside and presumably awaiting a bulldozer burial. This particular scene is reminiscent of scenes from German gas chambers and the preparations of corpses for mass burial.

Probably the goriest scene in the entire movie is one which shows two soldiers walking through a stream of water pulling a seemingly innocent canoe.

When the canoe is finally dragged onto dry land, the camera raises to expose the contents. Inside lay two Viet Cong bodies, one of which has had the top of his head peeled off, presumably from a machine gun, leaving the insides of his mutilated head exposed.

DOCUMENTATION and film editing leave something to be desired in Sons and Daughters. Many of the scenes from Berkeley consist of speech-making and often times the speeches, as depicted in the movie, are long and drawn out and overly contrived. The speeches often override battle scenes from Vietnam and many times the effect is quite poor.

There are other contrived scenes in the movie, such as the obviously phony newscasts and some scenes from the Watts and San Francisco riots arbitrarily thrown into the movie.

Perhaps parallels can be drawn, in various ways, between the war in Vietnam and race riots at home, but in the movie scenes from the riots are rather clumsily thrown in.

ALSO DETRIMENTAL to the movie are scenes showing American soldiers racing into the thick of battle, and the scene suddenly flashing back to Berkeley.

The effect is bad, because, although the speeches and the students at the time were actively concerned with the war, there is too much of a contrast in the movie between the frightful conditions of combat and the casual, relaxed sort of atmosphere of the students.

However, the movie is well worth seeing for all concerned about the war. It is playing at the Palace Theater.

Table Emotion

EVER WONDER what a dean does with his spare time?

SOME, NO DOUBT, spend their spare time reading to better themselves, do some book work, perhaps take a trip, or even play ping pong.

FOR THOSE who don't know him this is James Wyatt, assistant dean of student activities, better known for his participation in college functions than for his ping pong ability.

ON CAMPUS, Wyatt is often faced with many problems, but he is renowned for his high boiling point which is rarely reached.

BUT IT APPEARS that the dean is about to blow that unreachable "cool" in a hot ping pong game he played a couple weeks ago at the COO Festival.

WERE YOU LOSING, Dean?

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students
City College of San Francisco

ACP Pacemaker Collegiate Press

Vol. 64, No. 9 | WEDNESDAY, MAY 10, 1967 | Page 2

Student Government A Chance For 'Lazies' To Get 'Red Hot'

TODAY is the deadline for filing petitions for AS office next semester. The deadline is this semester and not next semester.

The time element is emphasized because of a common human trait—laziness.

Many times students will be unhappy with the people running for office, declaring there is a lack of selection available.

AND OFTEN STUDENTS complain after the elections that the people in office are just a bunch of "red hots" and whatever happens in student government really isn't worth anything anyway.

This is entirely true if one has never run for office or never pays any attention to student government.

If one wants some valuable experience working with people, all types ("red hots," slow burners, nice people), student government is one of the best places to gain it.

All that is required to run for office is units (depending upon the office) and 15 signatures on a petition with a one dollar fee.

FOR THOSE STUDENTS who were around last semester and are worried that the same mess will happen, there is nothing to worry about. Dean James Wyatt has assured everyone that the complete and accurate results (win or lose) will remain untouched by employing the use of city ballot machines and special precautions taken in paper balloting.

Perhaps the only reason that can be given for not running for office would be that one is afraid of being labelled a "red hot," a slow burner, or he just doesn't have 15 friends to sign the petition.

Or maybe he's lazy.

Labelled And Recorded

Magoos: An Electric Storm

By Marty Arbunich

THEY'RE kind of an electrical storm, the start of a new musical revolution, one step ahead of everyone else in the music game.

The storm is an East Coast rock group, the Blues Magoos, and their electrical rage is the psychedelic sound which comes forth from echo boxes, fuzz tones, electronic fields, feed back—heaven knows what other futuristic instruments—and formulates their so-called "total recreation" of rock music.

"Some groups have started copying our style and that certainly says a lot for what we're doing," Magoos' organist Ralph Scala recently pointed out.

"WHAT'RE THEY DOIN'?" one might ask. The Blues Magoos are putting all the latest inventions in electrical instrumentation to use, producing an unrestrained variation of unconventional rock sounds.

Originating in New York but getting their start as an underground combo in the Midwest, the five Magoos, though only together for a little more than a year, have recorded two albums and four single discs.

The Magoos are the kind of guys disc jockeys try to ignore because their very best material is too lengthy for commercial purposes.

THEIR FIRST SINGLE, Tobacco Road, was trimmed to half its intended length, shaving off a great portion of the group's frenetic electronic work and was still too long for radio purposes.

"We've all sound nuts," Scala said, "and the psychedelic sound we have just evolves out of our heads."

Many of these eerie sounds that "just evolve" are contrived through the Magoos' prying curiosity and experimentation. For example, when lead guitarist Mike Esposito bangs his guitar into one of its amplifiers, he establishes an effective sound distortion suitable as background music.

THE MAGOOS' two LP's (Psychedelic Lollipop and Electric Comic Book) contain 90 per cent their own written material, including their two hits (We Ain't Got) Nothin' Yet and Pipe Dream. Even the electronics which the Magoos inject into other groups' songs like Tobacco Road and Gloria are so abnormal that they easily avert rehashing the original version.

The musical freedom of electronics which the Magoos have helped to pioneer has only begun, but, as time passes, will be followed up by even more ingenious methods of sound. In the words of the Magoos, "To stay on top you have to be ahead of the game."

• • •

OFF THE RECORD . . . Both Big Brother and the Holding Company and the Sons of Champlin, two local groups, have singles out that should rate high. Big Brother's single is Down On Me and the "Sons" have just risen to the local charts with Sing Me A Rainbow.

Childhood seems to be second nature to Bill Cosby. Cosby's latest album, Revenge, is his fifth hilarious projection, focusing mainly on his amazing youthful pranks and adventures. Needless to say, it's quite funny!

Rock music is slowly taking over local FM radio stations. At present, there are three stations—KMPX (106.9), KGO (103.7) and KOIT (93.3)—which have made the transition to popular music.

KMPX IS A PARTICULARLY interesting station. Rather than concentrating on songs which are riding the disc survey, KMPX airs tunes by artists like Bob Dylan, Janis Ian and Tim Buckley and groups like the Fugs, Country Joe and the Fish, the Doors —even Somebody To Love by Grace Slick and her now-defunct Great Society.

Latest reports indicate that Sal Valentino (lead singer of the Beau Brummels) has formed his own combo, Smokey the Bear. "Beau Brummels" is now only a recording name used for infrequent disc releases by the Brummels' dispersed members.

No one could possibly expect much from a guy with a name like Engelbert Humperdinck, but, believe it or not, the unlikely has occurred. Release Me, Humperdinck's smash single, has already reached the number one spots in both England and the eastern United States. Locally, it's on the rise.

• • •

'TIS A HAPPENING . . . There's a fine set of dance-concerts set for the weekend with the Doors and the Sparrow at the Avalon while the Jefferson Airplane and the Paupers perform at the Fillmore . . . the Four Tops open tomorrow night at Basin Street West.

Bits And Pieces

'Funnies' On Student Forms Make Applications Swing

By Doreen Ng

Official records of all students registered at the college are kept on file at the registrar's office. Most of these written accounts are just general information concerning the students, but many are more than just general information.

Bits and pieces of "oddities" are kept in a neat brown folder in the registrar's files.

Filling out the college application forms are a real menace to many students.

ONE STUDENT filled out his application form concerning his father: Living, "no"; Present Occupation, "angel."

A health inventory form revealed that one student had a "flue" and "clack in his libs" when he was 17. On another health inventory sheet a woman student wrote that "sowing" was her form of recreation.

Many types of students decide to go on to college. One was an ace speller who wanted to "abtain intrance to the collage." Another was the top student in his graduating class who acted as "Valid Victorian" during the graduation ceremony.

HIGH SCHOOL seniors are often interested in what college life is all about. One curious senior wrote "Dear Sirs: Would you please send me entrance requirements and information about the college and prices of your car rear window stickers?"

Mothers are known to be very emotional concerning problems their youngsters encounter. One mother called into the registrar's office almost in tears. The message read: "My son filled out all the formulas and now he will be drafted unless he gets a letter from you."

Many ambitious students apply at the college. Perhaps the most ambitious one is the one who's studying to be a "millionaire-in-chief."

SOME OF THE reasons for absences registered at the office include quite a variety. One student had "sore mussels" while another one came back from the clinic for "trouble with the behind."

Then there are always the numerous odd names that parents decide to give their children. There are some that rhyme such as Shirley Curley, Dwain Swain, and Feretti Etemati. There are some that are a bit long such as Arbella Anthonitta Stigger.

Other unique names include Holiday Gamble, Argentine Tweedle, Buriel Clay, Pebble Stone, Orville Dromgool, Rufus Raspberry and Melody Song. One student revealed that he had just returned from Dr. Itchinose's office.

Similar last names are not an uncommon thing in the college. Two students share an unusual one, Upthegrove.

FOREIGN STUDENTS are sometimes confused by the procedures of the college. One student from Korea who failed a course wrote, "I am appreciated that if you could put a Final credit of C rather than the F or D. It is more suitable for me."

Perhaps the most pitiable problem that former registrar Mary Jane Leonard encountered was with a student from India who wanted her to change his name for him. Campus policy states that what is on the college application stands.

After a period of worthless argument the Indian student pointed out that the surname and first name on the application were his, but that the maiden name was not. He continued to explain that he was betrothed to a maiden, but then they broke up and he did not want her name with his.

City College's Underground World Of TV

Deep in the catacombs of Arts Hall lies a technological complex known as radio-television broadcasting. This seldom publicized department has been serving with news, music, lectures, plays, special events and that dubious wonder called television registration.

However, the department serves in yet another way; perhaps a far more exciting way. The creative experimentation being done by the students of the department is under the supervision of Henry Leff, director of Radio-TV Broadcasting.

Robert Berke and the other members of the Radio and Television department have their own ideas of what creativity is. They must be good ones too, because Berke, a teaching assistant with the department, has been doing some outstanding work with the creative and artistic side of television, a side of television seldom seen on commercial stations.

Berke has combined the talents of TV broadcasting and students from other departments to form an efficient team of enthusiastic experimenters. This is not a class and no credit is given.

Berke said the students are doing about one production a semester. "Every part of that production is original work and the results are unique and have creative value."

The 'Illusion Cast,' an effort produced last spring was shown on a continuous basis at the Arts and Science Festival in the theater last year. William Davis of the Advertising Art department has been using 'Illusion Cast' as a tool for instruction in some of his classes.

"Illusion Cast' employs an original script and some revolutionary ideas in television technique developed by Berke and his team.

The production underway at this time is one in which the students will attempt to portray and magnify the emotions of a tormented man. This will be done using lighting and electronic techniques. The script consists of an original one-act play written by a member of the team.

What the neophyte-technicians have been trying to do with underground television is make it more than just a means of mass communication and entertainment. They are trying to make it a form of artistic expression.

The students involved with this work are doing it for their own pleasure and for what they may learn—a labor of love. This is not a class and no credit is given.

Berke stated that the students are putting particular emphasis on the intrinsic value of the medium, thus opening to all a new means of artistic expression.—G. K.

Another Drawback To Romantic Smooching

For the troubled party who fears that "too much necking" will eventually lead to mononucleosis, the self-appointed physician's diagnosis of the "kissing" disease, here is but another worry to add to the list of consequences resulting from what 75 per cent of the American population labels "harmless smooching."

Kissing causes cavities!

According to an experiment conducted by Florida dentist Dr. Doran D. Zimmer, and backed by the United States Health Service, "Kissing can cause cavities!"

Dr. Zimmer's study found that cavities have an infectious element, and that one means of transmission was through 'kissing.'

When this finding was made known, one high school class volunteered to test the theory.

As reported in Medical World News, those in the "non-kissing" group were found to have 25 per cent fewer cavities!—C. S.

On The RAMpage

Student Aid Undergoes A Full Circle

By Connie Skipitares

ADOLESCENCE is a time of indecision and ambivalence. It is a time of living between youthful dependence and adult independence. It is a time to try out new freedoms, to test old customs and mores, to stretch for adult freedoms and recoil to youthful protection."

Although the history of helping students financially dates back to the earliest institution of higher education in America, in view of what is to come in the future, it is fair to say that financial aid is now in its adolescence.

Financial aid began with the first grant of money given to Harvard University to help "poor boys" pay for their education. From this earliest attempt to help students who were in need, financial aid has passed through a typical childhood development period when students worked long, arduous hours for only board and room or for their tuition. Students have been errand boys for presidents, bellringers for the college, janitors for local institutions, and, in some cases, have started private enterprises to help defray the cost of their education.

FROM THIS SELF-HELP concept, we have come to the point of "buying" students to enhance the institution and its programs. We have "bought" top talent in academics, athletics, performing arts and as prospective teachers. We have had indirect aid to students from government through the subsidization of the institution and certain of its programs and also by the expense of faculty salaries and plant improvement.

It is no secret that on both large and small campuses the faculty has for many decades subsidized students by accepting low salaries. This "indirect" aid passed on to the student as low-cost education has, in some cases, meant low-standard education.

From these "dark ages" of student financial aid, the cycle has now returned to focus on the needy student himself. With the coming of World War II the federal government began to realize that education was too precious to be limited only to those who could pay for it, especially since many institutions were actually subsidized by state and federal programs at that time.

MORE DIRECT student aid programs have developed since 1945 than in the whole previous history of financial aid. The lead taken by the federal government can be seen in a succession of major student financial aid legislation: 1945, the G.I. Bill; 1957, the National Defense Education Act; 1963, the Higher Education Act.

This legislation has allowed the emphasis to swing back to the educational program offered by the institution rather than the "buying" of talent. As Dr. Edward Sanders, dean of students at Pomona College, has remarked: "It is the affirmed policy of the college to work toward a situation which will permit the college to choose its freshman class without regard to the financial condition of the students' families."

Financial aid is now seen as an important part of the student's learning experience and it has spread to more than the top 10 percent of a high school class. Charles D. O'Connell remarked in 1963 that all of us need an occasional paying guest in our colleges, but we must develop aid policies that will permit helping "risks" as well as those more favored students in the top quarter or top third of our classes.

THUS THE FULL CYCLE has been completed and financial aid is now viewed more appropriately as an adjunct to education, a necessary aid to the educational program of the student, not as an adjunct to the aims of the college.

The prediction can probably be made without the use of a crystal ball that student financial aids will continue to grow. It is quite certain that the federal support will continue and experts predict that corporate support will also be expanded together with individual contributions to student welfare.

Let us hope that financial aids as a field of student personnel matures into adulthood worthy of this expansion and that the profession's growth is not just in size and amount, but also in maturity.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1967

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 246.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF.....RICHARD HEINTZ
Managing and Feature Editor.....Connie Skipitares
Staff Editor.....Marty Arbunich
News Editor.....Steven Hara
Sports Editor.....Mike Ouggen
Contributing Writers..William G. Pates, Bea Takeuchi

Editorial Writers: John Janiglan, John LaTourneau, Art Rodriguez, Viggo Petersen, Giuseppe Greco.

Reporters: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, John Hammack, Doreen Ng, Phillip Pianezzi, Lori Pittman, Ron Wong, Ed Holmes, Glynn Petrie, Tim Duncan, Jeffrey Hoffhine.

Cub Reporters: Barry Brown, Ron Lent, Lani Silver, Lee Smith, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf, Franklin Gadson.

Photographers: Bob Briscoe, chief; Jose Fireside, Richard Sandino, Mac F. Godino, Rich Spitaleri, Rea O'Brien, Chris Rozales, Chip Stevens, Jim Tsang.

Faculty Adviser.....Joan Nourse

Member Associated Collegiate Press
1966 - 1967

The Observer

By William G. Pates

MARCHING into the past with Confederate flags waving, George C. Wallace has sent out the word to the bigoted, illiterate teeming, swelling masses of the dissatisfied factions outside that foreign country he represents—the South —to "Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free, (give me) the wretched refuse of your teeming shore . . ." and they respond and follow.

The wretched refuse respond and follow more than the tired, the poor, the huddled masses and the dissatisfied factions. This movement is a people's movement in the worst sense of the word. It appeals to the worst people in the worst possible way. Its followers are for the most small farmers, manual workers under fifty with no more than a grade school education. This is democracy.

Since the end of the second world war, there has been a growing disaffection with the national parties' leadership. The thorny issue is the two-headed one of civil rights and states rights, with many Southerners embittered by what they view as unwarranted Federal interference and intrusion into the life and customs of the South.

THESE CUSTOMS include segregation which the Federal government has sought to destroy through persuasion, legislation, Supreme Court decisions and troops, as well as illiteracy and poverty.

The people of the South have been unhappy ever since they lost the War Between The States 102 years ago and it is because of their deep resentment that the Confederate flag still flies over many a Southern state capitol.

It would have been for the betterment of all perhaps, if the Northern victors had allowed the Southern states to secede after they had lost the war.

TRADITIONALLY, third party presidential bids, as well as third party movements for any means, evoke strong, deep emotional feelings, a radical doctrine, vulnerable candidates, poor organization, difficulty in acquiring campaign funds and are continually tottering on the abyss of destruction.

Even with financial backing and broad appeal of program and leadership, third parties lack thorough organization throughout the states. You must have all three of these to attain success. As well, even those third party movements that develop a popular program run the risk of having it usurped by the major parties. This has happened to every "major" third party—the Populists and Progressives.

This is not about to happen to the Wallace movement.

If the Democrat Goldwater runs in 1968, as he says he will "If these national parties continue on their present trend of liberalism and me-tooism and don't offer the American people a choice," there is the chance that no one will have an electoral vote majority and the election will have to be decided in the House.

Currently Wallace gets a higher vote as a third party candidate than any such aspirant since Senator Robert M. LaFollette received the greatest popular vote by a third party, 4,822,000 in 1924. He could win the South today, thereby costing any Republican victory.

Since the nation's founding there have been numerous elections in which either the "winner" lost or the "loser" won or the outcome might have been different if there had been but two candidates. George Washington, John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, John Quincy Adams, Abraham Lincoln, Rutherford B. Hayes, Woodrow Wilson, Zachery Taylor and John Buchanan would conceivably not been elected if there had not been three or more candidates. In 1948 there were five party candidates and they came close in many states to upsetting the electoral count and bequething to the nation a President the majority didn't want.

Even when losing elections however, third parties can and have exerted visible influence on the course of politics. It is hoped that such will be the case with the Wallace Freedom movement.

However, if present trends continue, the Democratic candidate under LBJ and Humphrey is not a messiah [illegible] to deliver the American people from their plights, and none [illegible] appear to be, and Wallace [illegible] likely to be an abundant [illegible] ready for President" pins.

Former Student VISTA Worker In West Virginia

Sandra Lee Moses, a recent graduate from the college has completed training in the VISTA Training Program and will spend one year working with the West Virginia Department of Mental Health in Jackson County.

Miss Moses, 20, has had extensive experience in counseling, having been a counselor at the Jewish Community Center and a tutor at Woodrow Wilson High School. She was graduated from Abraham Lincoln High School in 1964.

VISTA (Volunteers In Service To America) fights poverty by living with poverty. Volunteers fight against poverty in city slums, in the Appalachians, on Indian reservations, in Job Corps Centers, in migrant farm camps and in mental institutions.

A VISTA volunteer goes through a six-week training program where he undergoes classroom study involving the cause and nature of poverty to gain field experience near the poverty pocket where he will spend his next year.

The term of service is one year, although it may be extended at the end of each year. Students over 18 are eligible.

Community action groups are organized by VISTA in many poverty-stricken communities which ask for the help. Volunteers serve as tutors and counselors and guides for the sick in health services. They help the unemployed and in short, help the people to help themselves.

EVERY YEAR a recruitment drive is launched to draft volunteers. The drive is focused on the college and university campuses throughout the nation.

So far, 5000 persons have served in VISTA. Three-fourths of them are college-trained students. Although VISTA applicants are carefully evaluated, there is no entrance examination or minimal educational requirement.

The University of California at Berkeley leads the nation in per capita contribution of VISTA volunteers. The next four campuses in descending order are the University of Oregon, the University of Minnesota, San Jose State College and the University of Wisconsin.

VOLUNTEERS IN SERVICE To America receive very small wages consisting of $50 a month plus medical care and a small allowance for incidental needs.

The VISTA Voice states, "Despite the disappointments and setbacks that volunteers face, VISTA offers a challenge, tremendous responsibility and an opportunity to make a real and practical contribution."

Floating Campus' Former Students C-Hour Speakers

Four former students who boarded the floating campus of the Chapman College Seven Seas Division last semester will tell of their experiences abroad next Tuesday, May 16 in S-204 during College Hour, according to Mary Golding, dean of women.

The students, who are now all back at the college are Lois Frediani, a sophomore English major; Jaylayne McCune, a sophomore sociology major; Kenneth McKaye, a sophomore majoring in biochemistry and Diana Zora Smith, a major in pre-law.

The discussion, which is being sponsored by the Associated Women Students is open to all who are interested in learning about college abroad on the Chapman floating campus.

Each semester Chapman College offers a $1200 scholarship to a qualified student at City College. Applicants must carry 12 units with a B average to qualify for the scholarship.

The "floating campus" offers courses parallel to other colleges to undergraduate and graduate liberal arts students. Special lectures on topics such as religion and economics are taught by international experts during the 107-day curriculum.

Fourteen classrooms, a modern science laboratory, an oceanography laboratory, a 280-seat theater, modern audio-visual equipment, an expanding library plus a fully-staffed hospital completes the "college on ground" feeling.

Representing City College aboard the "floating campus" this semester is Kenneth Yee.

Successful Blood Drive Sets Record

STUDENT JUDY GOOD represents one of the 420 volunteers who found happiness by donating a pint of blood to the college's annual drive held last April 27 and 28.

Although this year's blood drive fell a little short of its intended goal, it did top last year's mark, breaking the record by two donors and bringing the total number of volunteers to 420.

The two-day blood drive, sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council had a turnout of 202 donors on the first day with 169 actually giving blood, and 218 on the second day with an actual 188 pints turned in.

Surprisingly enough, out of last year's 417 volunteers, 63 were denied donation because of deficiencies in their blood; but this year out of the 420, only 17 were denied.

As with every blood drive, there were donors with reactions of dizziness after the withdrawal of blood. The Irwin Memorial Blood Bank has proven figures that 90 per cent of the reactions are psychological due to apprehension on the part of the volunteers, leaving only 10 per cent as purely physical.

ACP Gives Guardsman First Class Award For Fall '66

The college's official publication, The Guardsman, received a rating of First Class by the Associated Collegiate Press for the Fall semester of 1966.

The ACP, a board composed of critical judges who evaluate college publications "by their relative standing in specific groups" each semester, rated The Guardsman with a 3580-point score, only 120 points shy of being an All-American newspaper.

THE GUARDSMAN was complimented by the ACP for its "excellence in news coverage," particularly of student government. However, follow-ups to campus events were stressed by the service as "lacking."

The Guardsman's outstanding sports and feature sections were strongly praised by the board, both receiving perfect scores.

Connie Skipitares, The Guardsman's feature editor, was pointed out for her interesting social commentary in her column, On The RAMpage.

THE OTHER GUARDSMAN columnists were termed as "perspective," and their writing, along with Miss Skipitares', offset the lack of stimulating news-features in the paper, the board further indicated.

The First Class rating has been given to The Guardsman for seven consecutive semesters, with the last All-American score awarded in the Spring of 1963.

The Guardsman has now received 32 All-American ratings, 19 First Class ratings and nothing lower in its 51 semesters of evaluation.

'RA Stampede' To Be Held Tuesday

RA Stampede" is the theme of the Recreation Association's semiannual awards and recognition night to be held next Tuesday, May 16, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the activities room of the women's gymnasium, according to Sharon Harris, RA president.

During this time, awards will be presented to the students who were active in the RA during this semester. First semester members will receive a small shield bearing the Recreation Association initials.

A block SF will be given for second semester activities, while participation after second semester will be recognized by a star.

Highlighting the evening will be the installation of the new fall officers.

Invitation to RA Stampede is open to all RA members, Miss Harris added.

ISC Night Here Friday

New pledges from Theta Tau and Phi Beta Rho, the two sororities on campus, will be formally presented at the traditional Inter-Sorority Collation which will be held from 9 p.m. to midnight on Friday in Smith Hall.

"Music for the festive occasion will be supplied by Maury Wollohan's band after the presentation of the pledges at nine o'clock," Dean Golding said.

Theta Tau's president, Gladys Doyle, also president of the ISC, and Phi Beta Rho's president, Judy Steward, will present their pledges to anyone wishing to attend the presents. Tickets are on sale for $1.50.

Parents are invited to join in the festivities and to sample the punch and cookies that will be offered.

After walking through an arch, pledges will receive a diploma tied with the ribbon of her sorority. The women from Theta Tau will receive a red carnation and those from Phi Beta Rho, a yellow rose.

Support Needed To Keep Tutorial Program Alive

Student coordinators, funds and general support are needed to carry on and expand the college's tutorial program, Frank Borden, program coordinator said this week.

The tutorial program here at the college, which began this semester, is presently endeavoring to raise the standard of living at four elementary schools: Dudley Stone, Golden Gate, Bryant and Hawthorne elementary.

This is a proposition that will take time, funds and student interest if the program is to succeed, Borden said.

THERE ARE basically two needs: students who are willing to donate six hours of their time a week to tutor an elementary school pupil here in San Francisco and a desire by the student body to participate either as tutors or active supporters in raising funds for field trips and other affairs.

The only qualification required of a tutor, Borden emphasized, is that he maintain a satisfactory grade point average.

Presently there are 64 active members in this program, 50 tutors and 14 staff members. The purpose of the staff is to maintain the four regional centers which are Hamilton Methodist, located in the Haight-Ashbury district; Fillmore center, located in the Missionary Temple Church; Hospitality House, in the Mission district and the Valancia Gardens housing project.

THROUGH THESE offices communication is maintained between the schools in that area and the central tutorial program office located in Bungalow No. 4.

Prior to this semester, the tutorial program at City College and San Francisco State College worked together; however, this semester City College initiated its own program.

As a result of this split many of the organizers within the organization expressed doubts of its success.

BORDEN, coordinator of program, said, "There were fears in the minds of some of the leaders within the organization that our program would not be as effective as that of S.F. State's because students are only here for two years, as opposed to four at State. Those fears have failed to be born out."

The tutorial program is now operating on funds allocated to them by the Associated Student Council. The amount was $1400 at the beginning of this semester.

"This type of program," Borden said, "cannot be restricted to an exact budget, because it's under expansion. As a result he feels it is better to have an excess of funds rather than a deficit source.—F.G.

Writing Contest Open To Students

A $100 prize is being offered by the San Diego State College Fine Arts Festival for the best original one-act play submitted in the Norman Corwin One-Act Playwriting Contest.

All graduate and undergraduate students enrolled in a California university, four-year or junior college, are eligible.

Accompanying the $100 prize will be the guaranteed production of the selected play in San Diego State's new $2.5 million theatre during the 1967 Fine Arts Festival.

Also, the play will be taped for television by KEBS, San Diego State, aired on Channel 15, and submitted for subsequent release to ETS, the Educational Television Service. The author will be invited to attend the performances.

The plays will be screened and narrowed down to the five best entrees which in turn will be submitted to Norman Corwin, renowned playwright, director, poet and author, who will select the winning play. He will also give a professional critique of the play.

Students interested in furthur information and rules for the contest should contact San Diego State College, Public Information Office, San Diego, California.

The deadline for entries is midnight, August 1, 1967.

A writer is congenitally unable to tell the truth and that is why we call what he writes fiction.—W. Faulkner

'Long Gene' On All-State

Ram center Gene Williams added more honors to an already great year when he was named last week to the first string 1967 All-California basketball team.

Willie Wise, Player-of-the-Year in the Golden Gate Conference this season, was named to the second team All-State and his Ram teammate Darling Thomas was picked on Honorable Mention.

Williams and Wise were both Honorable Mention choices last year on the All-State team.

The four-team All-State, selected by the vote of sports writers and coaches of California, also named Imperial Valley's George Reynolds as 1967 Player-of-the-Year.

Besides Reynolds and Williams, Pasadena's Sam Robinson, Carey Bailey of Long Beach, Mel Mason of Monterey Peninsula and Louie Small of San Joaquin Delta rounded out the first team.

ALL-STATE CAGER Gene Williams.

John Trapp of Pasadena, Mack Calvin of Long Beach, Bob Baker of Hancock and Ron Knight of L.A. Harbor joined Wise on the second team.

San Mateo's Owney Williams made the third unit while Don Lyons and Mac Reynolds of Contra Costa were other conference members picked; they both made Honorable Mention.

An All-Northern California team was also selected, with Williams and Wise both making first team. Rounding out the team were Baker, Mason and Small. Wise made second team last year.

All-Conference during their two years at the college, Williams and Wise led the Rams to a fantastic 60-6 record.

Local Nine's Victory Skein Unbroken; Owls Stay On Top

By Marc Clarkson

Two victories—a 6-3 whipping over Merritt College and a 7-3 rout over Contra Costa—enabled the Ram baseball team to keep pace with front-running Foothill College and increased the local nine's winning streak to four games.

Larry Johnson, making his first mound appearance in league play, hurled against the Merritt T-Birds and came up with a dandy pitching performance.

Behind Johnson's fine effort, the Rams scored a 6-3 victory over Merritt. The win put the Rams' record at 5-3, three games behind the invincible Foothill College Owls.

THE T-BIRDS were only able to score three runs off Johnson. The Ram pitcher gave up six hits, walked five and struck out thirteen. Two of the runs came in the bottom of the first inning when the T-Birds gathered two hits and a walk.

It didn't take Johnson long to get the feel of the mound. After giving up the first two runs, he settled down and allowed only one more, in the fifth inning, and only four more hits in doing so. The last two hits came in the ninth inning when Johnson, throwing hard throughout the game, finally showed the effects of not pitching for so long.

THE RAMS, as in their last outings, faired well at the plate, collecting six runs on twelve hits. They scored their second highest run total (they had a 7-1 victory in the season's opener against San Jose), and Tom Callan produced the Rams' first home run, a solo blast leading off the fifth inning. Chuck Gretton whacked three singles, and Gerry Bosch and Henry Harris contributed two each to the Rams' cause.

The Rams added another win to their record when Bill Kirkpatrick pitched them to a 7-3 rout over the Contra Costa Comets. The victory was the second for the Rams against the Comets and "Kirk" won them both.

THE ALL-CONFERENCE hurler, although yielding to ten Comet hits, allowed only three runs, all coming in the bottom of the eighth inning after the Rams had established a six-run lead.

The Ram baseballers will wind up their Conference season play when they face San Mateo College at Balboa Park on Friday.

Chabot, Diablo Nip Tennis Team

John Wong upset Chabot's Don McPherson, one of the conference's top players, but it wasn't enough as the Gladiators defeated the Ram tennis squad, 5-2, April 28, at Golden Gate Park.

In a make-up match, Diablo Valley edged the Rams, 4-3, on the victors' court. Again it was Wong who pulled the team together with victory in the top singles match of the afternoon.

Friday and Saturday the Rams will be in the Northern California championships at College of San Mateo. If any Rams advance they will be in the State finals the following week.

Golfers Slam Merritt In 30-5 Win At Harding

The Ram golf team kept alive chances for a winning season as City College defeated Merritt for the second time, 30-5, at Harding Park.

Doug Boston was low man for City College with a 77, one stroke ahead of Mike Leonardini and two ahead of Ken Kundert.

Four days later, the Rams dropped a match to Foothill, 24½-10½, at Los Altos Country Club.

City College scores included Kundert (79), Leonardini (81), Fama (82), Ordonez (84), Wilkerson (95).

The Rams now have a record of 5 wins and 7 losses. The next match will be a makeup of one postponed against Diablo Valley. College of San Mateo wrapped up first place in the Golden Gate Conference last week by swamping Diablo Valley, 35-0, at Peninsula Country Club.

Delts, Felony Stay Unbeaten; Playoffs Begin Next Week

With only one week of intramural basketball action remaining, only Phi Delta (Club league) and Felony Squad (Independent league) remain undefeated. However, a runner-up playoff will be held between second place teams in each league on May 16, according to Associated Men Student President Ron Lent.

Club league leader Phi Delta (6-0) won a close one over Tamaraws (4-2), 57-50. Bill Berger almost single-handedly led the way for Delta, hitting 32 points.

The Irish (5-1) stayed a game behind Delta with an easy 73-58 win over Alpha Phi Epsilon (2-4). Tom Kuhn led the way for the winners with 25 points while Simmons and McCoy hit 17 and 13 respectively for Epsilon.

The Avengers (5-1) remained in a second place tie with the Irish by routing Alpha Kappa Rho (1-5), 67-47. Arnold Ellis had 27 points and Mike Cotton added 16 for the Avengers. For the losers, Rudy Pidilla had 30 digits.

Newman Club (3-3) evened its record with a 73-43 victory over the Chinese Club (0-6). Newman's Maris Pantelis hit 21 points to lead both teams in that department.

Independent leader Felony Squad (6-0) barely beat the winless Revisables (0-6), 65-56. Allan Cowlings had 20 and Calvin Booth 18 for the winners. Merwin Fong and Cliff Hayashi hit 20 and 14 respectively in the losing cause for the Revisables.

Ken Jones hit 24 points and Carlos Ramirez added 14 to lead second place Red Mountaineers (5-1) over Ram Ski (2-4), 57-42. Bob Greyson had 20 to pace the Skiers' attack.

Black Students (1-5) forfeited to The Guardsman (5-1), keeping the G'men a game behind front-running Felony Squad.

The Knobs (3-3) took care of Tamaraws Babes (2-4), 77-50, behind Sam Holmes' 33 points.

Tonight The Guardsman meets the Mountaineers for second place while Felony Squad should win the title as they meet Black Students and Tamaraws Babes take on Revisables and Ram Ski meets the Knobs.—M. D.

San Jose Wins Conference Track Title; Hoy Henderson Paces Rams To Fourth Place

By John LeTourneau

Paced by Sam Caruthers and Earl Harris, San Jose City College won the Golden Gate Conference track championship by compiling 101½ points last Saturday at Chabot. San Mateo finished second ahead of Contra Costa and City College.

Harris beat the Rams' Ernie Provost in the 100-yard dash with a time of 9.8, and the 220 at 21.9. Provost took two seconds with times of 9.9 and 22.2 respectively. Greg Jackson and David Jones added valuable points with fourth place finishes in the 100 and 220. Caruthers pole vaulted 15-0 and placed high in both hurdle events.

THE TEAM of Provost, Jones Jackson and Robbie Brinkley combined to win the 440-yard relay.

However, the most outstanding man on the squad was Hoy Henderson. Henderson ran away from the field to win the 880-yard dash by 15 yards. Also while teaming with Jones, Jackson and Don Jordan, Henderson anchored the mile relay team to victory with a fantastic 49.0 final leg to edge out San Jose's Howard McCalleb, who finished second in the 440 earlier in the day.

Coach Lou Vasquez said that all the trackmen did well. "I was very pleased with Henderson's performance; I was hoping Jones could have done better in the 440, and Banks in the 100," Vasquez said.

THE ONLY OTHER double victory was registered by Chabot's Gary Kerr as he broke the Conference record in the 330-intermediates, with a time of 38.0, breaking Contra Costa's Rickey Rogers' mark. Also he won the 120 high hurdles at 14.5.

In the high jump, Contra Costa's Jesse Redd pulled the surprise of the afternoon by leaping 6-7¼ to break the Conference record set by the Rams' Dwight Tucker. The Comets had four of the first five in the high jump as Marion Anderson, Louis Wright and Tyson Osborne finished second, fourth and fifth. Also Anderson easily won the long jump by jumping only once at 23-11. San Jose's Jerry Jackson edged Wright in the triple jump with a leap of 46-6.

Merritt's Sam Goldberg put on a final burst at the finish to edge the Jaguars' McCalleb in the 440. Goldberg finished with a time of 49.4 as to McCalleb's 49.6. The Rams' Jones finished a disappointing seventh.

IN THE DISTANCE races San Mateo's Ted Lydon emerged as the star as he won the two mile with a time of 9:40.2, and was edged in the mile by a tenth of a second by Merritt's Don Graeber at 4:18.4. In the two mile, Lydon beat out Diablo Valley's Kurt Schroers by a full two seconds.

Next Wednesday all who qualified with a sixth place or better will meet in the Northern California trials at Modesto. The first three qualifiers will meet in the Northern California championships at San Mateo May 27.

Spikers Finish Fifth In North Track Relays

The City College track team, behind its three relay teams, finished a strong fifth place in the Northern California Relays, April 28, on the American River track.

THE RAMS finished with 23½ points, the top amount notched for any Golden Gate Conference entry. Leading the attack for the spikers was once again Ernie Provost and David Jones. With this pair in all three relays, the sprint medley, 880 and 440, the Rams found themselves in contention with the top teams.

They finished second in the sprint medley with Provost and Jones running the 100, Don Jordan running the 440, and Hoy Henderson anchoring with a strong 880. A bad exchange of the baton prevented the Red and White from winning the 880-yard relay, but the strong finish of Jones and Provost, combining with the opening quarter mile of Greg Jackson and Ismel Relampagos saw them come in third.

THE 440-YARD relay team also finished third as Jones, Provost, Jackson and Robbie Brinkley combined for the strong finish.

Coach Lou Vasquez would have liked to enter Provost in the 100 and 200 and Jones in the 220 and 440, but said they were too busy with the three relay teams. "I was very pleased with our three teams, but this does not mean that we are the top conference team because we finished ahead of them in the relays," Vasquez said.

SCOTT HEYMAN, the only entry for the Rams in the open events, finished fourth in the long jump. Vasquez also would have liked to use Henderson in the open 880, but he ran one in the sprint medley.

Saturday the three relay teams will compete in the West Coast Relays at Fresno. The 41st annual event has such world record holders as Bob Seagren, Dennis Smith, Randy Matson and Ralph Boston entered but the Rams will be in the two-year college division. Also entered will be Provost in the long jump and possibly Jones in the 440.

Pasquinelli, O'Connor Standouts As Swimmers Nab 8th In NorCal Meet

By John Hammack

A strong City College swim team finished an amazing eighth place in the Northern California Junior College Swimming Championships, April 28 and 29 at Chabot.

The swim team for the championships was composed of the best ever 400-yard medley relay quartet at City College and diver David Detert. The medley relay team is All-American Bill Pasquinelli (backstroke), John O'Connor (breaststroke), Bruno Van Rijn (breaststroke) and Frank Cercos (butterfly).

THE RELAY TEAM turned in a sterling performance with a City College record time of 3:39.4, their season best (3:58.1) by seconds and finishing fourth.

Bill Pasquinelli starred in the 100- and 200-yard backstroke events with season best clockings of 1:00.0 and 2:11.6 respectively. Both were good for thirds.

O'Connor had a 23.7 clocking for 50 (10th) and 4:51.0 times in the individual medley (5th).

IN THE 100-YARD butterfly Cercos flew to a fifth place 56.7, David Detert added a sixth place award in one meter diving with 234 points and a tenth in three meter diving with 281.03.

The Rams' eighth place finish of 75½ followed Foothill's first place total of 277, San Mateo 186, Merritt 162, Diablo Valley 141, College of Sequoias 125½, and Contra Costa Delta 96.

ALL-AMERICAN SWIMMER Bill Pasquinelli did a fine job in the Northern California Championships, getting two third-place finishes.

Contra Costa's Lyons Ace On Court, Track

CONTRA COSTA'S Don Lyons, one of the top athletes in the conference, does it all despite quite a handicap. Lyons, who helped lead both the Comet basketball and track squads to second place finishes in the league this year, is deaf.

As a prep at California School for the Deaf (CSD) in Oakland, Lyons established himself as one of the area's finest cagers. In addition to basketball, Lyons was an end on the football team, and played the game like former 49er R. C. Owens, using his jumping ability and 6-5 frame to catch passes "alley-opp" style.

A member of the Bay Counties League, CSD wasn't much for sports until the arrival of Lyons. In basketball during 1963, his junior year, Lyons totaled 619 points for a 24.9 average. These totals were good enough to beat out Bishop O'Dowd's Mike Gervasoni for the Northern California scoring championship.

His senior year saw Lyons put his name down in prep record books with some outstanding accomplishments.

In 27 games Lyons hit for 918 points, an average of 34.3 points a game. A member of the All-Northern California basketball team that year, Lyons had a single game high of 69.

Lyons hit for 2,072 points in his prep career of 91 games; a record which should stand for a long time! His overall average for four years of varsity action was 22.7 points per game.

A year after graduation from CSD, Lyons made the tough choice of attending Contra Costa much to the delight of Comet cage mentor Rudy Hansen. The selection was not an easy one, for unlike high school, Lyons would not be around people who have the same problem as him.

Although not always involved in the team's patterns, Lyons usually finds a way to put the ball in the basket once he gets his hands on it.

His greatness showed last year when he led Contra Costa to a 22-7 overall record and 9-5 league mark. Number four scorer in the conference, Lyons averaged 17.9 as the Comets finished behind City College and San Mateo in that order. For his efforts, Lyons was named to the All-Golden Gate Conference second team.

Lyons made first team All-Conference this year as his 15.1 average helped the Comets finish with 22-6 and 10-4 marks, good enough to beat out every team in the league except City College.

As a track performer, Lyons runs in both hurdle events and is the Comets' top triple jumper (44-4). Three weeks ago against City College, Lyons placed in both the high hurdles and triple jump.

In the high hurdle race, Lyons came trotting out of the blocks apparently thinking it was a false start, but after being waved on by the starter, made up enough ground on the pack to finish third in the race.

Hats should go off to this individual, who despite his handicap has proven to be one of the best all-around athletes in the conference.

RAMBLINGS

Deaf Conference Star Former Prep Marvel

By Mike Duggan

Cost Of 'Love' Action In Haight-Ashbury Soars As Summer Arrives

In the Ashbury-Haight district the word "love" seems to be preached easily, but is getting increasingly expensive and, as some will testify, hard to find.

A mass invasion of businessmen into the area has taken place in an effort to grab the tourist buck this summer.

According to recent articles in the Berkeley Barb, a total of 15 store fronts have changed names or changed hands in recent months. Vacated store fronts in the area are going for $40,000.

"LOVE DOGS" and "love burgers" are being peddled in various establishments which have opened recently. Coffee shops, pizza parlors, bars and restaurants are allegedly doing a landslide business, while leases, permits and rental arrangements are being drawn up and concluded as quickly as possible in preparation for the "summer influx."

Establishments catering to permanent residents of the area such as furniture stores and the like, are quickly folding and leaving town, making way for the "buy and run" tourist trade.

AS FOR THE CURRENT 'boy meets girl' scene, the pickings of late have not been too good, according to another article in the Barb.

A survey conducted by the underground paper revealed that for every four full-time residents in the area, there is only one female. Of this percentage, only 20 per cent of the fairer sex can be classified as "eligible," as compared to 80 per cent of the males. This brings total ratio of boys and girls in the area to a staggering 16-to-1.

A number of reasons were offered in the Barb for the large difference in population, none of which may be printed here. Anyone who read the article will know why.

HOWEVER, it was revealed that an overabundance of male migrators into the area from out-of state is partly responsible. It was also pointed out that family ties are not as tight with males as they are with females. So a "split" from home by a male is much easier than it is with a female.

If the current trend continues, as it probably will this summer, the ratio count by summer's end could double or go as high as 25-to-1. A number of female hips, disturbed by the potentially explosive situation, have decided to bug out of the community.

Males in the area are highly concerned about the prospects during the coming months.

IN AN EFFORT to make the coming summer meaningful and productive Barb columnist Ed Donson has suggested that since Haight Street at the present time "represents the Bowery," an influx of another 30,000 will cause the area to resemble India with masses of starving beggers lying around the sidewalks and begging for money and food.

The columnist suggests that the parks be opened to all comers, free food and sanitary conditions be provided at the city's expense and that jobs be provided for the newcomers in exchange for the city's services.

Jobs, he suggests, could include revamping old living establishments in the city, painting the city, and cleaning up much of San Francisco's filthy areas.

AMS Safety Check Smashing Success

THE ASSOCIATED MEN STUDENTS of City College held a safety check last week and in the eyes of many it was a "smashing success." Ron Appel, AMS vice president (far left), appears to be giving some directions to the students above but it is dubious as to whether the car will survive. Actually, this car was an entry at the COO Spring Festival a few weeks back, students being allowed to take a whack at it for 10 cents a swing. At the car check, 200 cars underwent a safety test last Wednesday with the event being praised by Mayor Shelley and covered by KGO TV.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 64 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MAY 17, 1967 NUMBER 10

Increase To $1800 Proposed For KCSF Expanded Service Requirements

By George Kannengieser

Student Council met in closed session last week with the station manager and faculty advisor to KCSF to discuss an increase in the KCSF budget for next fall to include the expense of a proposed affiliation with FM station KALW, owned and operated by the San Francisco Unified School District.

Joe Twyman, president and station manager for KCSF presented a proposal to the council that would call for an increase of $300 in the station's operating costs next semester. This is over the $1500 voted for KCSF this semester and will be used to purchase and rent equipment for a proposed link with KALW-FM.

THE HOOK-UP with KALW will be made over telephone lines rented from Pacific Telephone. Twyman said that if final permission for the project is granted KCSF broadcasters will have one hour a day of broadcast time extending over a five-day-a-week period.

The purpose for adding this new service Twyman stated is two-fold; the first being to allot broadcasting students more experience and a greater chance to achieve professional quality and status. The second and perhaps most important reason for the new service is the opportunity that will be afforded departments and organizations of the college for communicating with the public.

THE AIR TIME granted to us by KALW will allow the college to have city-wide coverage for publicity and advertisement of special events.

Twyman went on to say that while KCSF will continue to operate on a regular basis, he is hopeful that these plans will materialize.

B-E Day Job Fair In Statler Wing

The twelfth annual Engineering-Business Recruitment Day, an opportunity for employers to meet City College students and vice versa, got underway in Statler wing at 8:00 a.m. this morning.

Labelled a Job Fair by Joseph A. Amori, City College placement director, the affair will feature the traditional breakfast during which standard Oil Company of California will receive the City College Service Award.

Fifty-one employers from Alberton Realty to Xerox and including three banks, two utilities, three laboratories and nine department stores will have recruiting teams on campus to interview graduating students.

According to Amori, this year's graduate "has the edge" because there are many more jobs being offered than there are applicants.

A wide variety of employers will be represented including Boeing Aircraft, Del Monte Foods, Metropolitan Life Insurance and the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory.—E. H.

Computer Given 'Green Light' For Registration

All systems are go, and students must now fold their hands and wait patiently for the results of computerized registration when they will receive their program slips for the Fall semester.

Dr. Lloyd Luckmann, the primary figure responsible for this breakthrough stipulated that, "As opposed to our being unable to use the computer last semester because of unforseen problems, everything is now well in hand and geared to go."

According to Luckmann, the registration by computer has every reason to be successful as all systems are on schedule. The only present delay, he mentioned, was that students after receiving a program from their counselors waste time and stall before filing it on the computer program sheet.

When registration for next semester begins, all 9500 entering students should be through the process in one day, taking approximately twenty minutes each.

Students will be given two weeks to change their schedules with their counselors after registration.

With the computer registration plan, it will be possible to add more sections in the popular subjects and drop sections in those not as popular.

The main fear that students have of computer registration is the scheduling of time that might interfere with other important matters, such as work.—J. H.

Council Passes New Election Rules, Meets With Faculty At Luncheon

By Lori Pittman

With the new elections coming up soon (May 24-25), Student Council spent a good deal of time last week in debating this semester's election rules.

Election Commissioner Marshalen Taylor submitted the new rules to council two weeks ago for their acceptance. At that time, many council members felt that they had not had sufficient time to review them, and council voted on Councilman Ron Bianco's move to extend voting on the rules until last week.

After five changes were voted in by council, the rules were accepted by acclamation. Campaigning that began last Wednesday will continue through the last day of the elections which is May 25.

A STUDENT-FACULTY Luncheon was held last Wednesday in the small back room of Statler wing. These student-faculty meetings are an objective that council has fought to initiate this semester. Therefore, at Councilman Chris Lee's suggestion, council voted to adjourn its Wednesday meeting in order to free council members to attend.

The tiny room was filled with people. Coffee was served, and individual discussions took place throughout the room. Students and faculty, both, seemed intent in debating problems that face this campus as a whole.

Nominations were made for the outstanding student and teacher awards which will be made at the Student Council banquet scheduled for May 31. The nominators gave short speeches for their nominees and council and cabinet voted to select one student and one instructor to receive the award.

COUNCILMAN PAUL SHUTTLEworth who has been a member of council for the past semester and a half resigned from his seat. He read aloud his letter of resignation to all those assembled at the council meeting, stating that his grades were suffering from an overloaded schedule. He indicated that he would "no longer take part in campus politics."

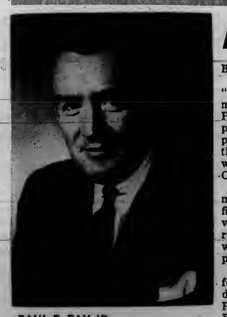
As is Shuttleworth's way, his speech was filled with famous quotations. His remarks to the other council members were concerned with the fact of their representation of the student body.

"People on council have been isolating themselves from the student body," he said, and went on to remind them that "the issue of birth control literature is up to you."

He received wide applause as he took his seat in the audience leaving has old council seat vacant. Later, council voted to hold another special election to fill it.

THOUGH THE RESOLUTION concerned with "irresponsible journalism" is still pending a vote, the "high schoolish" signs have been removed from the main entrances of the college.

The signs now welcome visitors to the "campus," explaining that there are rules to obey. They are signed by Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president.



Paul Fay Reminisces About JFK: The Pleasure Of His Company

By Glynn Petrie

John F. Kennedy's firm belief in "dynamic democracy" is one of the most important legacies that the President has left for the American people according to Paul B. Fay Jr., personal friend of Kennedy and author of The Pleasure Of His Company, who spoke here last Thursday during College Hour.

Describing Kennedy as "a very humorous, a very funny man," Fay confined his talk primarily to relating various anecdotes of his informal relationship with Kennedy and the writing of his book concerning the personal side of the late President.

Fay was a fast friend of Kennedy's for over 20 years, having met him during his Navy tour in the South Pacific in the second World War. From this friendship, The Pleasure Of His Company has evolved, said Fay.

PAUL B. FAY JR.

Fay emphasized Kennedy's ability to find humor in almost every situation he was confronted with including the Catholic faith which, according to the former Under-Secretary of the Navy, Kennedy was not an ardent follower of but rather "had some questions about its practices."

The story was told of Fay and Kennedy attending a Catholic service here in the Bay Area when Kennedy was Senator at which a Japanese-American was giving the sermon in a noticeable accent. Kennedy turned to Fay during the sermon and remarked, "I thought we won the war."

While remarking that, "my rapport with the Kennedy family is not what I'd like it to be," Fay continued to say that Mrs. Jaqueline Kennedy was a tremendous help to him in writing his book and had encouraged him to write about the President shortly after his assassination while the memory of his friendship with the President was still fresh.

During the question-and-answer period Fay was asked what was his opinion of the Warren Report regarding the assassination of the President. He answered that though he wasn't a student of the subject he would accept the Warren Commission's findings until something concrete was revealed in opposition to it.

The question was also raised as to what Kennedy's policy in Vietnam would be today if he were alive. Fay stated that though an answer to such a question would be "only supposition" on his part, he felt that Kennedy would not have found it necessary to escalate U.S. involvement in the conflict partly because he might have been more successful in bringing North Vietnam to the conference table.

Describing Kennedy's political life, Fay noted that the President's policy toward his opponents was "to forgive but not to forget." Kennedy had also said, "I wish we had the British form of democracy," as it would allow Congress a more subjective view of the proposed legislation that it turned down and would increase their own involvement in it.

Fay concluded that contrary to what has been said, Kennedy's relationship to his friends did not change when he was elected Chief Executive, but rather his friends changed and this accounted for more differences than anything else.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

ACP Associated Collegiate Press

Vol. 64, No. 10 | WEDNESDAY, MAY 17, 1967 | Page 2

'Free Speech'—Not A Release From Responsibility, Accuracy

THE RIGHT of free speech has been misused on this campus long enough.

Since when has free speech given a person the right to print irresponsible statements, to be inaccurate or to rely upon hearsay as the 'Gospel' truth?

The reference here is made to the Critic and its editor, Larry Lazore. Everyone loves a rumor and this has been the reason for his success in the eyes of some at this college.

THE GUARDSMAN is a responsible newspaper. We attempt to report accurately what has happened in straight news stories and limit opinion for the paper in the editorial section and personal opinion in the columns. Many students feel the paper is boring, but ask these same students what they think of newspapers in general and they give the same reply.

The Guardsman is staffed by students who have been through journalism classes at the college. The students start with news reporting and work their way up to columnists or staff editors.

In this manner The Guardsman insures accuracy and responsibility in reporting. But it appears that Lazore has mistaken responsibility for passiveness. It is true that the paper limits itself to reporting events on campus, but this is the job of a newspaper and as long as The Guardsman is a newspaper, this is the manner in which it will operate.

THE GUARDSMAN could be improved immensely by the use of a wire service which most other colleges use on their papers but this is quite expensive for a college this size to subscribe to.

However, color would be added this way since news from other campuses would be used, which is perfectly legitimate. What is not legitimate is for a paper to sacrifice accuracy and responsibility to add color to the paper.

As it now stands, Lazore's type of writing would never appear in The Guardsman (except in the Ram's Horn), not because of administrative pressure but because the staff on The Guardsman would not allow it.

A TYPICAL EXAMPLE of Lazore's method is the manner in which he has "uncovered" faculty pressure exerted on The Guardsman staff. Not once has Lazore approached a member of the editorial board but rather relies on his "spies" who come around for about five minutes and size up the situation enough to claim themselves "authorities."

And contrary to some people's beliefs, The Guardsman is not written by Dr. Louis Conlan. As a matter of fact, the last three issues of The Guardsman are being completely put together by the staff since Joan Nourse, faculty advisor, is in the hospital for the remainder of the semester.

Do not let it be said that The Guardsman wants to suppress the Critic or any other form of "free speech" on the campus. Lazore does a good job in his field but don't let the fields be confused.

Labelled And Recorded

...Then Along Came The Fish

By Marty Arbunich

WITH the stage set for many Bay Area groups to board the recording bandwagon in the months to come, locals Country Joe and the Fish have just joined both the Jefferson Airplane and the Grateful Dead with an album of their own.

Like the Airplane and the Dead, the Fish's best sound isn't captured accurately on recordings; and when heard in person their material has a much better sound than on the disc.

The Fish's first attempt (Country Joe and the Fish—Vanguard), however, is a fine display of the group's capabilities. All the material is original and Joe McDonald, head vocalist, has put together some nice music and lyrics, with samplings of folk-rock, blues and even a bit of political satire.

THE LP'S JACKET reads "Electric Music For The Mind And Body," and though the album has some good beats throughout, most of the songs trigger arousals of thought, something that could easily be called mind music.

Bass Strings and Grace are the two best examples of mind music on the LP. Both are slow and beautiful and their passages are quite drawn out; the resultant is a projection of feeling aimed at the listener.

McDonald does a good job of mowing down the man in the White House in his political satire on the disc, Superbird: ("Look up yonder in the sky, now what is that I pray—it's a bird, it's a plane, it's a man insane—it's my president LBJ . . .").

DESPITE THE ALBUM being a little inconsistent and the group hasn't established its style completely, the Fish still have the potential quality of becoming a first-rate national group.

Instrumentally they're equipped with three fine guitarists, Chicken Hirsch is a competent drummer and McDonald's talents are also a great asset.

• • •

'TIS A HAPPENING . . . Martha and Vandellas are in town to entertain with the Paupers at the Fillmore this weekend while Country Joe and the Fish and the Quicksilver Messenger Service drop in and tune on at the Avalon.

Two of the biggest West Coast happenings of the year will take place next month. KFRC's Fantasy Fair And Magic Fountain Music Festival will be presented on June 3 and 4 (10 a.m.-6 p.m.) at Tamalpais Mountain Theater. The festival, a benefit, will feature at least 24 acts (with the Airplane, the Byrds, the Doors and the Miracles leading the way), and the donation is $2.

ALSO IN JUNE the Monterey International Festival of Pop Music, a three-day set (16, 17 and 18), will be staged at the Monterey State Fairgrounds. Approximately the same number of performers will appear with standouts like the Mamas & Papas, Simon and Garfunkel, the Association and Ravi Shankar heading the program.

Men Or Machines

'Scary' Aspects Attributed To Assembly Line Education

The many new computer devices designed to improve the public education system are turning the student into a product off an assembly line.

Student-teacher relationships rarely exist in this mass education system. It tends to treat students as objects to be shaped, manipulated.

THESE AND OTHER fears are commonly voiced on many of today's college campuses.

Lecturing is perhaps the oldest concept leading toward mass education. Here the student sits in class to absorb the content of the course and leaves the class without so much as saying a word. The instructor is a mere robot.

The student attends classes day after day sitting through lectures at designated times, no different from an assembly line.

Television has now become a popular, mass educated device of lecturing where the instructor is not supposed to be needed. The student simply views the television set to absorb his lesson for the day.

But this technique is inadequate since the instructor must supplement the lecture by answering questions students may have.

Computer devices for correcting examinations are widely used today. This method of correcting exams is rather at a disadvantage since the student does not find out what he has missed on the test. The only mark the computer places on the answer sheet is the score.

MANY PEOPLE FEEL that computer registration turns the student into a number. These numbers are fed into machines to be programmed.

Through mass education, a student is no longer a human being. He has merely become a small part of machinery going through an assembly line to have parts added to him. When he comes off the line, he is supposed to be complete and ready to survive in society. How successful he becomes depends on where he drops off from the line.

A common fear is that all sense of individuality will be lost when the student is mass produced. The stereotyped graduate can always be replaced, like machine parts.

AN EDUCATION should actually be an individual and personal experience to every student.

If the present system of mass education furthers itself, common fear dictates that it may not be long before the American society becomes Aldous Huxley's foreseen Brave New World. Or has it already?

Library Fines Only Complicate 'Books'

Fines obviously don't make up the life blood of the City College library. In fact, they are almost a waste of time.

A few pennies are taken in each day for over-due books which, in the long run, amount to about $18 a week. However, there's a catch in the story, in that this money really doesn't help the library.

Actually, the library isn't even allowed to keep that money. As Harold Korf, head librarian, stated recently, "All fines go directly to the general fund of the City of San Francisco."

He remarked further that, "The philosophy of fines is not to punish the students but to encourage the return of books so other students can have access to them. The money doesn't help us in any way. It just adds to our bookkeeping."

Even more confusing than the lack of money the library actually makes from fines are the excuses some of the students give for having over-due books.

One excuse not uncommon is, "My dog chewed it up." As Korf laughingly added, "There must be a very large population of book-eating dogs in this city."

Disappearing books also provide a semester "happening" at the library. Last semester about 50 books walked away. But what is more strange is that most of them walk back again, turning up anonymously in the book slot. Korf reasoned that probably once a student has read a book he no longer wants it lying around.

Theft in the library really isn't an amusing matter. Because of the lack of student responsibility in the past and the great number of thefts that have taken place, the library here has all but lost its real purpose.

Students are no longer allowed to meander among the books, to browse and select at their will. The stacks are closed and the students are left with only a dull card catalogue to cope with.

Korf is trying to change this. He hopes to reopen the stacks to students, but pennies do count here and books are expensive. "It will be up to the students to prove that they are adult enough to accept the responsibility."

Frustrations On Campus

College life with all of its frustrations and scholastic pressures can and does bring out emotional problems in many students. Some colleges and universities provide psychiastrists to aid these students. This college, however, does not.

The plan here is one of referral, according to Ralph Hillsman, dean of students. The deans, counselors and members of the Student Health Service are counseled by a visiting psychiatrist. They in turn advise and aid students seeking help.

However, if the problems are too deeply seeded and the student is in need of a professional psychiatrist, explained Counselor Walter McCloud, he will be referred to one of the many city agencies that are at the disposal of the college.

Students who exploit this referral plan, indicated Dean Hillsman, often return to the college to finish their work here. He went on to explain that this is a strictly confidential matter between the student and counselor.

Many students will not need this referral plan but some will. For those who do, it is available.

Protest 'Dregs' Now Respectable

(ACP)—A significant change in American youth's approach to the Vietnam war has steadily matured to the point where it is now "respectable" to speak out against U.S. involvement.

In October 1965, several daily newspapers categorized demonstrators as "pacifists, beatniks, dedicated Communists, screwballs, and some simply mis-guided youths." Those "dregs of society" were said to have "exceeded the bounds of free speech and dissent" because they dared to question the administration's party line.

But times have changed. Now it's the "mainstream" of American students who are questioning. The petition signed by student leaders at 200 colleges and universities and the 2-1 opposition by the nation's college editors are indicative of the new "respectability" of protest.

The so-called "dregs" are on the fringes of the political spectrum where they are ignored because they fail to fit the mold of middle class America.

Representative Abraham Lincoln, speaking of the politically-motivated Mexican War, told Congress in 1847 that when the war began he thought those who "could not conscientiously approve the conduct of the President" should "remain silent" but that he had since concluded that "the whole of the issue is . . . the sheerest deception . . ."

American college students have, like Lincoln, waited—time has come to ask questions and to get answers.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1967

EDITOR IN CHIEF.....RICHARD HEINTZ
Managing and Feature Editor.....Connie Skipitares
Staff Editor.....Marty Arbunich
News Editor.....Steven Hara
Sports Editor.....Mike Duggan
Contributing Writers.William G. Pates, Ben Takeuchi
Editorial Writers: John Janigian, John LeTourneau, Art Rodriguez, Viggo Petersen, Giuseppe Greco.
Reporters: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, John Hammack, Doreen Ng, Phillip Planerzi, Lori Pittman, Ron Wong, Ed Holmes, Glynn Petrie, Tim Duncan, Jeffrey Hoffhine.
Cub Reporters: Berry Brown, Ron Lent, Lani Silver, Lee Smith, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf, Franklin Gadsyn.
Photographers: Bob Briscoe, chief; Jose Fireside, Richard Sandino, Mac T. Goding, Rich Spitzleri, Ron O'Brien, Chris Rozales, Chip Stevens, Jim Tsang.
Faculty Adviser.....Joan Nourse
Member Associated Collegiate Press
1966 - 1967

On The RAMpage

Red Chinese Spurn All For Love Of Mao

By Connie Skipitares

THE WOMEN of Red China have been described as serious, sexless and shapeless. Their energies are channeled into loving Mao Tse-tung and stepping up production.

Admittedly, this appraisal by recent travelers and the press is a generalization. It could be influenced by the fact that Chinese women no longer resemble those of the past.

Dressed in baggy, ill-fitting tunics and pantaloons, their hair cut short, China's 350 million women nowadays often look like men.

No longer do they wear the body-clinging cheongsams of the past, with the slits high up the sides. Paint, powder and lipstick work no miracles for the proletarian plain or ugly.

The few who held out for femininity, and kept an occasional beauty parlor in business, have all but disappeared in the Red Guard surge. The youthful Red Guards made a prime target of women still clinging to such Western beauty aids as lipstick, permanent waves and spike heels. (How did they survive after that?)

Emancipated, given the vote, put beside their husbands in the factory or on the farm, Chinese women now play as large a part in production as the menfolk. They run steam rollers, operate bulidozers, mine coal, drive automobiles, deliver the mail—on bicycle—sit in congress, are members of the ruling Communist Party.

Official publications say women make up 30 to 40 per cent of those in the rice and wheat fields bringing in the harvest. In the cotton fields, 70 per cent of the workers are women.

There are 542 women deputies in the National People's Congress, somewhat less than half of the total membership. And 1.43 million women serve as deputies in local congress.

Teng Ying-chan, wife of Premier Chou En-lai and Tsai Chang, wife of Vice Premier Li Fu-chun, as leaders of the All-China Federation of Women sit on the Communist Central Committee. Another woman who has shot into prominence is Mao's wife, former movie star Chiang Ching. She is the new deputy to Chen Po-ta, head of the cultural purge.

No woman has yet reached the paraded heights of the powerful party political bureau.

In today's China, the accent is less on femininity and love, more on production. Women are expected to work as hard as men, and in some cases work even harder.

Theoretically, women are free from the old go-between marriages of the past and may choose their own mates. Divorce now is given without question on application from either party unless the wife is pregnant or her husband is an old revolutionary.

Marriages, on paper, are as simply arranged. However, the old go-betweens of the past have been replaced in many instances by the party local committee if either of the lovers is a Communist. The committee frowns on a girl's choice if he lacks enthusiasm in work or is politically questionable.

Economic crises and an already frightening birth rate have touched off a birth control campaign in which early marriages are discouraged. Though the legal age is 20 for boys and 18 for girls in practice marriage is put off to the mid or late 20s.

Once married, women get 56 days off at full pay for maternity leave; their children are looked after in community creches and kindergartens.

All this gives more time for more work, more study of the thoughts of Mao.

The Observer

By William G. Pates

THE HAIGHT-ASHBURY is dying.

That citadel, that hub of psychedelic, surrealistic euphoria in this country is suffering the final, fatal death throes of a sub-culture which has been exploited. The pure essence of what the Hashberry scene is all about has been tainted, contaminated, condemned and defiled.

Like the Beat generation of the 1950's in North Beach, this movement is seeking a vision of the totally free life. Unlike the negativistic withdrawal of the beats, the hips are dropping out of the negative states into a life-affirming existence. The hippie esthetic emphasizes total spiritualistic, visionary, sensory involvement in the search for truth, reality, justice, peace of mind, and a sense of honesty in society.

LOVE is the key.

Two years ago, the Haight-Ashbury was just a quiet old neighborhood of quiet old decaying Victorians nestled between the Panhandle and the Mount Sutro hills with an underground hippie movement. And finally an eruption this last year. And now the decay of the movement itself.

Many of the symbols, sights and sounds of this sub-culture are being appropriated by the Madison Avenue trendmaker establishment. But the real destructive elements are the harrassment by the "Irish Pop" morality city government officials in regard to psychedelic drugs, obscene posters, health regulations, and the officials' distaste or misunderstanding of the hip cultures' attitudes toward sex and love, as well as the overt publicity from this harrassment which has brought in plastic hippies and teenie boppers, fourists and profits.

ALL THIS is serving to drive out the true believers—the founders, just as the beats were driven out of North Beach finally in 1962. Both groups—the beatniks and the hippies—met the same end.

The style of the North Beach Beat generation was worldly and secular. That of the Love generation religious and ethereal, at least to the true believers. The rest are fellow travelers of a sort. The more introspective hippies are seeking religion—of a spiritualistic, personal, immediate bent—based on revelation through drugs. In seeking revelation, vision or just simply some kind of a high, everything from conventional LSD and pot to bananas, hydranga leaves, morning-glory seeds, nutmeg, and rotten green peppers are used. Of course, given a receptive mind, it is possible to tune on with practically anything or virtually nothing.

WHILE THE BEATS were involved in art, poetry and other literature, there is no literary colony within the Haight-Ashbury society. Instead, their cultural impact has been with their music, abstract light shows, experimental movies and painting. The music has spread throughout the nation. It has arrived. It is probably the one and only aspect of the movement that has been generally accepted as "good." In all other respects simply because the movement's philosophy and all of its physical properties are different they are considered "bad."

San Francisco Police Chief Tom Cahill condemns the hippies for seeking escape from society through drugs, saying they lack the courage to stand up to the realities of today. But after seeing what the "realities" are, he can't really blame them for seeking escape and solace. There is a sense among them of the nonrecognition of individuality—the sense too that no one is listening.

IN TOTAL, more people, more publicity, more tourists, more profits and harrassment of sorts has spoiled the Haight-Ashbury. It has all turned into some sort of a circus, and all too soon.

The Hashberry "is a place where peace and love prevail—a place to cleanse the soul," says Episcopal Priest Leon Harris of the All-Saints Episcopal Church. "But now . . . well, it would have been good."

A be-in doesn't succeed or fail, it just "is." Hopefully, if things had gone right the Haight-Ashbury culture could have obtained a position in which it neither succeeded or failed but just "was." But that is not to be.

Since it is apparent that the Love generation state of euphoria is bound for extinction, it is hoped that when its members return to the "other" culture that they will bring with them spontaneity, honesty and an appreciation for the wonder of life.

Votes-USA Political Party Emerges At Pre-Election Convention Merger

VOTES and USA, two of the campus's three political parties, merged and adopted VOTES—USA as the official party name at the VOTES nominating convention held last Tuesday night, party spokesman Mike Quintero announced today.

According to the merger agreement, USA would select its own candidates for Associated Student vice president, sophomore class president and Associated Women Student president. USA would also secure freshman and sophomore Student Council nominations.

The merger agreement further stipulated that VOTES would be permitted to nominate candidates for the offices of Associated Men Student president, freshman president, four sophomore and five freshman seats on Student Council.

THE AS PRESIDENTIAL nomination would be decided by the votes cast by the VOTES convention delegates.

With 25 student organizations represented, each organization carrying two votes, Ron Lent, Associated Men Student president, won the joint party nomination over sophomore councilman Chris Loo.

As part of the merger agreement, USA was allowed to select its own candidates for the offices of AS vice president, Associated Women Student president and Sophomore president. The party nominated Diane Lattimer, Nancy Luscia and Pat Fiuren, respectively. Miss Lattimer, former AWS president, is currently Sophomore class president.

Nancy Luscia secured a frosh seat on Student Council this semester and Pat Fiuren is now serving on Student Council for her second consecutive semester.

During this nominating convention, Tel Cosgrove, a member of Phi Beta Delta fraternity, was nominated for AMS president, and Glen Butler was selected as the party's frosh presidential nominee. Both candidates ran unopposed in the convention.

IN REGARDS to party breakdown for the seven frosh and seven sophomore council seats, USA chose Chris Loo, Sheila Brown and Bill McQuaid as its nominees. Sheila Brown was a song girl last semester, and Bill McQuaid is now a member of Student Council.

The VOTES delegates selected Bernice Macias, who held a freshman council seat last semester, and Dave Levin, former Hillel president, as the party's nominees for sophomore seats on Student Council.

USA nominations for frosh council went to Ray Beitz, president of Alpha Gamma Sigma honor society, and Len Ribeiro. VOTES selected Norm Jung, Market Club member; Fred Chang, a member of Newman Club; Alita Freedman, a member of Forensics, and Cecilia Young, a member of the Black Students Association.

THIS MERGER, which has been in the talking stage in recent weeks, came to the fore when it became apparent to both parties that "they would cut badly into each other's voting strengths" and, by doing so, "swing the election to Change," according to USA party spokesman Chris Loo.

When Loo was informed that Change had candidates for every elective office on the May 24 and 25 election ballot, he brought this news to the VOTES convention, and a USA merger proposal was discussed, voted upon, and accepted unanimously by the VOTES delegation.

City College Choir To Present Vocal Concert Tomorrow

A choral concert will be presented by the College Choir, the Women's Choir and the Chamber Choir during College Hour in the theater tomorrow.

The Women's Choir will sing folk song arrangements by Brahms, Britten and Bartok. The choir will be directed by Madeline Mueller.

Conducting the Chamber Choir and the College Choir will be William Grothkopp, Jr., head of the Music department. The Chamber Choir will sing a selection of madrigals by Wilbye, Despres and Weelkes. A selection of Mozart's will also be featured.

The works of Brahms, Stravinsky and Bach will be highlighted by the College Choir.

The three choirs will be accompanied by Robert Sheldon on the piano. Sheldon is a teacher at the Conservatory of Music.

"We want to give the listener a wide range of music," Grothkopp explained. "We will perform varied composers' works, from Despres of the sixteenth century to Igor Stravinsky, a contemporary artist.

This College Hour concert will be a shortened version of the concerts that the choirs are presenting tonight at 8 p.m. in the College Theater and Sunday night at St. John's Episcopal Church, at 15th and Julian streets, also at 8 p.m. Both concerts will be free to the public.

RA Nabs Thirteen Sporting Awards

Thirteen awards titles were brought home by the Recreation Association representing the college at the Sports Day tournament on May 6 at Foothill College, Sharon Harris, RA president, revealed last week.

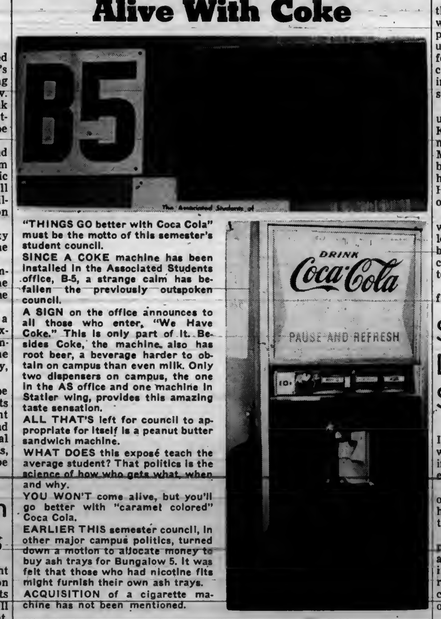
Tantiana Konstantino captured third place in the mixed fencing match.

In an innertube swim relay, Linda Ostress brought home first place.

The college placed second in the volleyball competition.

In tennis, City College captured all three titles. Wilma Lee placed first, Kathy Bauer took second place and her sister Kristin won third.

Ray Sven placed third in the archery contest and Miss Harris placed third in the bowling high-series tiff.



Five third place titles were captured by Shirley Brown in the ping pong tournament, the 25-yard free-style, backstroke, butterfly and breast-stroke swimming competitions.

Nine other two-year colleges competed for titles at the tournament with approximately 50 participants.

The other colleges which participated were Cabrillo, Monterey, San Jose, West Valley, Foothill, Merritt, Diablo Valley, San Mateo and Hartnell.

Since it is apparent that the Love generation state of euphoria is bound for extinction, it is hoped that when its members return to the "other" culture that they will bring with them spontaneity, honesty and an appreciation for the wonder of life.

Student Council Comes Alive With Coke

"THINGS GO better with Coca Cola" must be the motto of this semester's student council.

SINCE A COKE machine has been installed in the Associated Students office, B-5, a strange calm has befallen the previously outspoken council.

A SIGN on the office announces to all those who enter, "We Have Coke." This is only part of it. Besides Coke, the machine also has root beer, a beverage harder to obtain on campus than even milk. Only two dispensers on campus, the one in the AS office and one machine in Statler wing, provides this amazing taste sensation.

ALL THAT'S left for council to appropriate for itself is a peanut butter sandwich machine.

WHAT DOES this expose teach the average student? That politics is the science of how who gets what, when and why.

YOU WON'T come alive, but you'll go better with "caramel colored" Coca Cola.

EARLIER THIS semester council, in other major campus politics, turned down a motion to allocate money to buy ash trays for Bungalow 5. It was felt that those who had nicotine fits might furnish their own ash trays.

ACQUISITION of a cigarette machine has not been mentioned.

Army Recruiting Travel Team Brings Its Wagon To Campus

By Lori Pittman

While most young men expect to receive a draft notice some day, many ignore the situation as long as possible.

A harmless-looking, little white panel wagon bearing the red, white and blue signs of the U.S. Army Recruiting Services stationed a week ago Monday in the free speech area of this campus, brought the pending proposition back to mind for many students.

Three young lieutenants manned the small wagon which, when opened and set to use, turned out to be a tiny traveling office of information. With pamphlets in easy range, the uniformed officers waited for questioning students to arrive.

Lt. Harold Elliott, Lt. Glen Ruley and Lt. William Chapman had been invited by the Veterans Club of this campus.

The officers work as a "counseling service" to explain what a person can enlist for and can or cannot do "in terms of career opportunities and military obligations." Their purpose primarily on campus was "to explain the Officers Candidate School college program to interested students."

Women were not being overlooked, however. The young officers also carried information about the Women's Army Corps and the Army Nurse Corps.

When one curious student asked if the team had ever been picketed, Lt. Ruley replied that they had but, so far, had encountered no opposition that day on this campus. In fact, he remarked that they had been getting a "good response."

Anyone missing the little white wagon need not be dismayed. According to Lt. Ruley, they will be back again next semester.

Shakespeare's As You Like It Weekend Play

As You Like It, William Shakespeare's romantic comedy will be presented for two nights only, Friday and Saturday, May 19 and 20 in the College Theater.

As the last drama production of the Spring semester, As You Like It is a project of the theater laboratory, a concept which provides opportunity for experimentation. Actors, directors, designers and technicians can test original ideas and launch unusual ventures using the facilities of the college stage.

"One advantage of the Theatre Lab is that it allows us to wait until the semester is already underway. We don't have to select the production until we are able to relate our students to the play, then we can cast the play best suited for our actors," explains director Walter Krumm.

IN AS YOU LIKE IT, students of drama staging technique will witness unveiling of Instructor Paul Crowley and cadet instructor Dennis Caine's ingeniously Changeable Forest Of Arden. Lighting of the forest, combined in the joint venture, will provide some unique lighting effects.

"The play takes place primarily in the Forest of Aden. The production will feature a forest made out of plastic. There will be lighting from underneath the stage. The actual tree foliage will be balloons. Lighting and color effects should be very interesting," explained Krumm. "One might say they will be psychedelic."

The popular comedy will feature an unusually large cast. Ellen Caster and Kathy Wright play the high-spirited maidens who frolic in the forest; Bill McCall and Gene Hanna portray the brothers who woo them. Margaret Calhoun, Tony Williams, Gail Ross and Herm Eberitzsch make up other pairs of lovers.

NEWCOMER MARVIN CAMPBELL will make his debut on the City College stage in an unusual way. Campbell will play three different comic characters. Terry McDermott will interpret the melancholy Jacques.

Admission for the performance is free. Curtain time is 8:00 p.m.

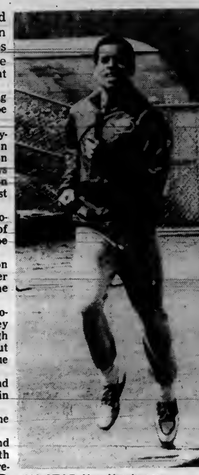
Student-Faculty Lunch-In 'Great Success'—Loo

The first Student-Faculty "Lunch-In" held last Friday in Statler wing, was "an outstanding success" according to Chris Loo, chairman of the event.

"I didn't think the event would turn out quite so well," said Loo. "We'll have to locate a larger room for future meetings."

At 12:40, the high point of the program was reached, as 45 students and faculty members were jammed into room SW-155. The fact that the room was originally designed to accommodate 18 was noticed by most of those present.

Topics under discussion included student government, voting machines for campus student body elections, problems of computer registration, the need for more classroom seminars, "tennyboppers," a Student Union and the problems of small classrooms.



Lawrence Lazore, editor of the City College Critic, debated newspaper ethics and editorial policy with Lori Pittman and Ed Holmes, Guardsman staff writers.

One student-participant suggested that "parallel courses here at the college are not as hard as they are at the university level, however, she was refutted by faculty member Roberta Lumb, who said, "Our parallel courses are tougher than San Francisco State's or those at the first two years of U.C. English 1-A is much harder here than at UC. Our parallel courses are purposely designed this way for the benefit of the transfer student."

Other faculty members present at some time during the proceedings included Edward Taylor, Maurice Power, Richard Bloomer and Stephen Levinson.

Ten pots of coffee supplied by the Hotel and Restaurant operation department were consumed during the program.

Nine Ram Tracksters In Today's NorCal Trials

All the trackmen that placed among the first six in the Golden Gate Conference Championships last week will compete in the Northern California trials today at Modesto.

There will be nine men competing for City College, five of them will be running in two or more events.

COACH LOU VASQUEZ gives everyone an equal chance of placing in Saturday's finals, to be held at San Mateo. "Both the 440 and mile relays along with 880 man Hoy Henderson have excellent chances of taking first places," added Vasquez.

Henderson and sprinter Ernie Provost should have good chances of making it to the state finals, to be held in Modesto on May 27.

In the conference finals, Henderson set a stadium record by running over Chabot's track in 1:56.5 to win the 880 going away.

THE 440-YARD relay team of Provost, David Jones, Robbie Brinkley and Greg Jackson should place high in the NorCal meet for they beat out some of the best in winning the league meet in 42.4.

Provost will also go in the 100 and 200 with teammates Jackson going in the 100 and Jones in the 220.

Don Jordan will compete in the 330 intermediate hurdles.

Long jumper Scott Heyman and high jumper Mike Carter along with pole vaulter Forrest Shute will represent the Rams in field events.—M. D.

880 STAR Hoy Henderson.

Golfers Lose Last Match Of Season, Finish Fourth In Tournament Play

By Doug Boston

The Ram golfers dropped their last match of the season to Foothill, 19½-15½, at Harding Park, but managed to finish a strong fourth place in the conference tournament at Castlewood Country Club.

In the Foothill match, City College was leading until the final twosome finished play, with the difference in the match being a mere two shots. The Owls were led by Bill Miller, who fired a 73.

DOUG BOSTON was low man for the Rams with a 75, followed closely by Ken Kundert's 77. Bob Fama and Mike Leonardini both had 79's, while Kevin Donohue had an 85. The Rams were ahead 15½ to 14½ in match play, before the 5 points for low team total gave the match to Foothill. The golf team finished the year with a 5-8 record.

In the conference tournament held at the Castlewood Country Club, City College improved its standing as the team finished fourth among eight teams. Chabot's Gladiators egded College of San Mateo for first place, with Diablo Valley finishing third, four shots ahead of the Rams. The outstanding play of the Rams' third man, Bob Fama, was the major contributing factor to success of the team. Fama had a two-round total of 151, good enough for an individual fifth place, which qualified him for the State Tournament.

KUNDERT, the team's first man all year, had a fine 155, three shots better than teammate Doug Boston. Mike Leonardini finished at 164.

Coach Grover Klemmer congratulated the team on a fairly good year, considering the fact that four of the five varsity golfers were freshmen. He also expressed expectations of a good season next year.

Phi Delta Meets Felony For Title

Phi Delta of the Club league and the Felony Squad of the Independent division finished the intramural basketball season unbeaten, and will meet next Tuesday at 7 p.m. for the title during Sports Night. Tonight, runner-up Irish will meet Independent league runner-up Red Mountaineers at 7 p.m. and Chinese Students will play the Revisables in the battle of the "cellar dwellers" from the respective divisions, according to Associated Men Student President Ron Lent.

In last week's results, Phi Delta (7-0) won over the Avengers (5-2), 61-42. Bill Berger led Delta's attack with 24 points while Arnold Ellis had 22 for the losers.

THE IRISH (6-1) romped over Tamaraws (4-3), 85-65, behind 24 points each by Tom Kuhn and Bob Williams. Ed Soriano had 28 and Eural Smothers 20 for Tamaraws.

The Chinese (0-7) finished the league winless, as Alpha Kappa Rho (2-5) defeated them, 51-43.

Alpha Phi Epsilon (3-4) won over the Newman Club (3-4), 79-63, behind 40 points by Art Johnsen.

Independent action saw Felony Squad (7-0) win the league by picking up a forfeit victory over Black Students (1-6).

RED MOUNTAINEERS (6-1) won second place by downing The Guardsman (5-2), 58-42. Dennis Conway and Tony Rodriquez paced the win with 13 points apiece. Mike Duggan's 15 and John Franceivich's 11 along with two digits by Ed Holmes kept the G'men in the contest for about three quarters before the Mountaineers pulled away to put the game on ice.

Bob Greyson's 54 points was not enough as the Knobs (4-3) won over the Ram Ski Club (2-5), 79-67. Sam Holmes paced the balanced Knob attack with 27 points.

The Revisables (1-6) got into the victory column with a 43-39 win over Tamaraws Babes (2-5). High scoring Merwin Fong led the winning attack with 20 points. The Babes' Jose Fabian hit 13 points.

Swim Team In Fine Showing At Bakersfield

The Ram swim team climaxed a long season May 4, 5 and 6 with a fine showing and outstanding performance at the California State Two-Year College Swimming and Diving Championships in Bakersfield.

Hindered throughout the Golden Gate Conference season by lack of personnel the swim team praeticed both in the morning and afternoon. The team finished in last place in a tough conference with an 0-5 record but were able to improve on times in all of the events.

The Rams then moved into the conference championships, and finished in the last place slot again but not before the medley relay team and diver David Detert had qualified for the regionals, the Northern California Relays. The relay team was composed of All-American Bill Pasquinelli (backstroke), Frank Cercos (butterfly), John O'Connor (freestyle), and Bruno Van Rijn (breaststroke).

The small but talented contingent swept to an eighth place finish, ahead of 9 other teams. The other five Golden Gate Conference teams finished one through five.

At the Bakersfield State Championships the City College team met California's best. They finished 21st out of the 33 colleges that competed.

The medley relay team took 11th place with a 3:56.5 clocking to climax a great season. Bill Pasquinelli grabbed 7th and 10th place awards in the 100 and 200-yard backstroke events. Frank Cercos took honors with a season best in the 100-yard butterfly.

Coach Curt Decker was pleased at the fine showing and over all season team performance. Decker mentioned that Pasquinelli and Cercos were in the running for All-American honors. —J. H.

Eight Nominees Vie For Hall Of Fame Spots

Eight former great athletes are on the ballot for selection as 1967 members of the City College Hall of Fame.

Two will be elected by a committee of four judges; Ralph Hillsman, dean of men, Jack Gaddy, athletic director, Tom Wilson, health department, and counselor Bill Fischer.

The nominations must have been out of athletic competition at City College for at least two years in order to be eligible for selection.

Those nominated were: Everett Adams (basketball 1962-63), Art Adams (basketball, 1963-64), Jerry Chandler (basketball 1964), Walt Williams (baseball 1963), Bob Farber (baseball 1959-60), Bob Siska (tennis 1962-63), Henry King (basketball and football 1964-65), and Jim Lynch (soccer 1959-60).

The judges select their top three picks on a three, two, one scoring basis. Last year's selections were Rich Nold (baseball 1962-63) and Gary DeLong (soccer 1962-63).—M. D.

AMS Sport Night Coming May 23

The semiannual Sports Night will be highlighted by the intramural basketball championship and numerous boxing matches, May 23, in the Men's gymnasium, according to Associated Men Student President Ron Lent.

The championship game will be between the Felony Squad of the Independent league and the Club league champion, Phi Delta. This should be a close game as both squads went through their respective divisions undefeated.

The boxing matches will be supervised and coached by Roy Diederichsen and Norm Travis. All men Physical Education instructors will be judges for the matches.

The featured heavyweight match will pit footballers Allan Cowlings against Kevin Shea. The others will be in weight divisions, beginning with 130 pounds and going up to the 160-pound class.

The boxers are in Diederichsen's and Travis' boxing classes.

All boxers will be awarded trophies for their merits, win or lose.

Banquet To Honor All-Spring '67 Athletes

Dr. Louis G. Batmale, Golden Gate Conference Commissioner, will be the guest speaker at the semiannual Block SF sports banquet to be held Monday, May 29 at Smith Hall.

The banquet will honor all athletes in Spring sports and basketball. Also on hand for the gala event will be all of the San Francisco high school coaches as guests of the Block SF Society.

Each Ram coach will describe his team and announce his most valuable athlete, who will be presented with a trophy. The outstanding sophomore athlete will also receive a trophy.

Cost of the awards is budgeted by the Associated Students treasury. The dinner will be prepared and served by the Hotel and Restaurant department.

College Nine Routs Diablo, Then Drops Pair; Foothill Nears League Championship

By John LeTourneau

Extra inning homers in the San Mateo and Foothill encounters led to the downfall of City College's baseball team. The Rams lost to the Bulldogs, 5-4, in 12 innings and to the Owls, 4-3, in 10 innings. The Rams scored in the top of the 10th, but Foothill came back with two runs in their half to win the contest. Bill Kirkpatrick went all the way, and was charged with the defeat.

The Foothill loss dropped the Rams from all contention, as now they are mathematically eliminated from repeating as conference champions.

THE SAN MATEO victory over the Rams kept them two games behind Foothill, with two games remaining.

Steve Borelli smashed his second home run in the 12th frame, to give the Bulidogs a 5-4 victory. The Rams could only collect five hits against the tough Bulldog pitching. The Red and White went ahead after they scored their fourth run of the contest in the top of the 12th inning. However, relief pitcher Chuck Collins had two out before succumbing to Borelli's blast.

The Bulldogs drew first blood when they tallied two runs off starting pitcher Larry Johnson in the third inning. The Rams came back in the next inning when Tommy Callen's walk forced in Odell Williams.

In the sixth frame, Borelli struck first with a solo homer, making the score 3-1.

THE RAMS tied the score when they erupted in the eighth with a double, two singles, and a stolen base to account for two runs.

May 6 the Rams were limited to a measily two hits by Diablo Valley, but turned some shaky Viking pitching and fielding for a 12-2 rout. All the runs were accumulated in the third inning when the Rams were held hitless. Eighteen Ram batters came to the plate and a total of three Viking hurlers combined to allow 12 bases on balls and three wild pitches.

Starting pitcher Tony Maganini got credit for the wild victory, as Bing Kunzig worked the seventh frame to preserve the victory.

The win was the first time in conference history that as many as 12 runs were scored in one inning without a hit. The Vikings hit Maganini and Kunzig for a total of 10 hits.

Netters 4th In Finals

The City College tennis team finished fourth in the Golden Gate Conference tennis championships, May 6, at Contra Costa.

The Rams' John Wong advanced to the semifinals before being edged by Merritt's John Haak, the eventual champion, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2. With a few breaks Wong could have been the champion as Haak easily defeated Foothill's Dick Sbedman, 6-4, 6-2, in the deciding match.

Behind the fine play of Haak and Less Handson, the T-Birds emerged as champions by nipping Foothill, 17-16. Chabot finished third with 10 points, one ahead of San Francisco's nine.

Coach Roy Diederichsen was very pleased with the squad. They finished ahead of San Mateo, San Jose and Diablo Valley, all of which beat the Rams in dual matches. Only Contra Costa finished below the Rams in dual match season.

Diederichsen said that only Foothill and Merritt were too tough for the team in the championship match. "Chabot only had one point more than us and with a break or two, we could have forged ahead of them," he commented.

Wong and George Zoul made it to the semifinals, also, but were overpowered by the T-Bird pair of Haak and Hanson, 6-1, 6-1. Additional points for the Red and White were delivered by John Servantes who won his first match in the quarter finals before being downed by Foothill's Bob Herdman. All the other players were eliminated after the first match.—J. L.

RAMblings

New Merritt Cage Mentor Phelan Rival

By Mike Duggan

BEGINNING next season, Merritt College of Oakland will have one of the most successful prep cage coaches of all time as its head basketball mentor.

Paul Harless, who led McClymonds High to six straight titles in the Tournament of Champions, was appointed to the Golden Gate Conference school when present coach Earl Robinson accepted a coaching job at Laney.

Harless' record at McClymonds would make the record of Ram coach Sid Phelan blush. Phelan owns a mark of 276-70 in 12 years' work at City College. Harless' teams at one time won 110 of 111 contests. A winning streak of 68 was finally stopped, and a new one of 42 promptly followed.

Among the stars he coached are: Joe Ellis, Eddie Thomas, Paul Silas, Jim Hadnot and Jimmy Tolliver. Ellis is the present Warrior who gained All-American honors at USF while Thomas was a star forward of the USF "Ollie Johnson era" of a few years back. Thomas once hit 57 in one game for the Mackmen. Silas was a great rebounding center for Creighton University and is now a member of the St. Louis Hawks. Hadnot made All-American while at Providence while Tolliver is the Golden Gate Conference all-time single season scorer; 412 points for a 29.4 average.

* * *

A FEW NOTES about some of the All-State cagers of 1967. The leading scorer was Mel Mason of Monterey Peninsula. The 6-2 guard scored at 31.0 and also averaged better than 14 rebounds a game. He was Coast Conference's top player in 1961 and then served a stint in the Army before returning this season. Mason hit 59 in one game this year.

Carey Bailey of Long Beach was the only repeater from last season's first team. Bailey averaged 17.0 points and 15.6 rebounds a game.

First teamer Louie Small and third team choice George White both averaged 22.7 for San Joaquin Delta. Delta was the top offensive team in the state with a 102.1 scoring clip.

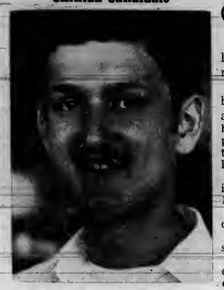
The Rams' Gene Williams rebounded at a 13.9 clip in leading City College to the number one spot in team defense (56.1 average).

Pasadena's 6-7 Sam Robinson is the only freshman on the first unit. Sixseven John Trapp of Pasadena earned second team selection while his teammate, 6-5 Willie Betts, made the fourth team. It marked the first time an entire front line from the same team were so honored. Betts, a transfer from Bradley University, played only the second semester.

Freshman Ron Knight of L.A. Harbor, a second team choice, scored 48 points and had 25 rebounds in his final game of the season.

One State Tournament reporter said of Willie Wise of City College, a second team member, "With five guys like him, you could beat the Knicks."

* * *



THE PREPS are really moving. Montgomery's High's Mel Gray and El Cerritto's Dave Masters have both clocked 9.5 and 20.9 respectively for the 100 and 220 already this year. They are two of Northern California's all-time best sprinters.

But, down south, there is more of the same. Howard Williams, a sophomore from Muir High has done 9.5, as has Wayne Collett of Gardena. However, Collett has also done the 220 in 20.9 and his specialty, the 440, in 47.3.

Still, one guy outshines them all. Jerry Proetor, greatest long jumper in high school history, has clocked 13.9 and 18.6 respectively for the 120 high hurdles and 180 lows. No prep in the state can come near these times, or near his 25-8¾ long jump.

Three Parties Vie In Today's Elections

CHANGE Candidate

Rich Christensen — Change Presidential candidate: The time for playing games in student leadership is over. For the first time in years, there is a need for no-nonsense real student government. City College is faced with erucial issue (birth control information, dress code, student rights and responsibilities, etc.), which need more than an "I'll try harder" president or a juvenile status-seeker.

I want to transform the AS Presidency into an office of legislative leadership. My experience and qualifications as a student councilman are a matter of public record, of which I am proud. I will work towards the enactment of the Change Party platform, while securing the welfare and rights of all City College students.

CHANGE Party Platform

"If City College is going to be the kind of college we can all be proud to attend, certain changes must be made."

Last semester Change campaigned on that belief. You, the students, supported and elected a Change majority to Student Council. Changes have been made. We've kept our promises—we've got a lot done, but the "Big Job" of reworking this college community has just started.

It's time for a change . . . specifically in these areas:

1. Student Rights
   a. Support for Bill of Rights introduced by Change members of Council.
   b. Increased student responsibility in selecting curriculum and instructors.
   c. Creation of the position of Student Advocate to represent the interests of the individual student, to defend individual rights against unfair suppression.
   d. Support for any student in the exercise of free expression as guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution.
2. Cultural and Educational
   a. Expanded concert and lecture series.
   b. Expanded film series.
   c. More Jazz-Blues-Rock-Classical music concerts.
   d. Increased opportunity to hear controversial and interesting speakers on campus.
3. The Student and the College
   a. Improved student-faculty relations through closer dialogue.
   b. The establishment of separate Student Union Building.
   c. Better food at lower prices in the cafeteria.
   d. More student jobs on campus—in the bookstore, in the cafeteria and wherever possible in place of outside people.
   e. Opposition to the continuing computerization and de-personalization of the students of this college.

USA

1. An improved cultural atmosphere at CCSF through an expanded Concert-Lecture Program.
2. Have better bus and trolley service to CCSF.
3. Improve our image to the city through various news media.
4. More humane treatment of students by employment counselors.
5. Better communications between the students and faculty.

VOTES Party Platform

V.O.T.E.S. was formed in protest against apathy in student participation in campus activities. We appeal to you, the responsible student, to cast your vote for V.O.T.E.S. . . . Vote against apathy —Go V.O.T.E.S.

Student Political Parties:

a. We propose holding a political convention where any prospective candidate can be nominated by ALL of the student interest groups existing on campus.

b. We propose to establish on-campus political parties where political forces can organize during the year.

Lecture series:

We propose to have a student lecture series which will be highlighted by a greater diversification of stimulating speakers such as: Melvin Belli, Joan Baez, Margaret Mead, Betina Aptheker, Ashley Montague and Ravi Shanker.

Student-Faculty Relations:

a. We propose to establish the student-faculty lounge. With this established students and professors can continue class discussions, thus helping the students understand their course curriculum better.

b. We propose to establish a semesterly meeting where the faculty and interested students can meet, discuss, suggest, or critieize ideas dealing with additional course curriculum and improvements.

Student Government and Legislation:

a. We propose to move Student Council chambers to the little theater, thus accommodating a greater number of students.

b. We propose to have student government legislation which deals with important student issues, not wasteful, petty, time-consuming matters.

We propose to establish a free speech area around the Ram where any City College of San Francisco student can stand up and speak without having to obtain administrative or faculty consent.

VOTES Candidate

Ron Lent—VOTES and USA Presidential candidate: I seek this office with the attitude that student views must be heard and action taken in accordance with these views.

This was the goal I strived for when I introduced the revised dress code and the petition against Governor Reagan's tuition proposal.

This was the same goal I fought for when I organized a nominating convention open to the entire student body this semester.

However, students in Bungalow 5 apparently do not want to "represent the students" because horseplay and toilet integration legislation were their main accomplishments this semester. If this is the type of change you want, then re-elect these people. But if you want improvement, vote Lent.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 64 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, MAY 24, 1967 NUMBER 11

Ron Lent, Rich Christensen In Contention For AS Presidency

By Glynn Petrie

Ron Lent of VOTES and USA and Rich Christensen of Change are the two candidates for the office of President of the Associated Students of City College for the Fall semester 1967, Marshalen Taylor, student election commissioner, announced last week.

While Lent is the choice for AS President of both USA and VOTES, the two parties are supporting different slates of candidates for other offices so that in many instances it is a race for one office between nominees from Change, USA and VOTES.

The elections, which are to be held today and tomorrow, will be conducted through nine preeincts located in various parts of the campus, Miss Taylor explained. Voting machines here been provided there.

The other candidates up for election are as follows: for AS Vice President—James Cole (Change), Larry Henry (Independent) and Diane Lattimer (USA). Craig Noonan of VOTES is in an uncontested bid for President of the Associated Men Students.

Joyce Collins (Change) and Nancy Luscia (USA) are the candidates for Associated Women Students President with Pat Fiuren (USA) running alone for Sophomore Class President.

Change Party has submitted seven candidates for Soph Council, Mathys Bendel, Chuck Bonner, May Kalavoras, Fred Garfield, Howard Leighty, Bob Padlinelli and Damian Strobel.

USA has four candidates running for the same seats: Sheila Brown, Chris Loo, Bill McQuaid and Len Ribeiro. There are two VOTES Party members up for election to the council, Jesse Figueroa and Dave Levin.

Glen Butler (VOTES) and Larry Rodriguez (Change) are the nominees for President of the Frosh Class. Change nominees for Frosh Council are Stuart Dieker, Rupert Flemming, Carl Griffith, Ron Henkler, James Morgeson and Andy Sobieski. USA has only one candidate running for Frosh Council, Ray Bietz and VOTES has six, Calvin Booth, Vie Franeisco, Aleta Friedman, Norm Jung, John Lazarieh and Ceeilia Young.

Dragging Vietnamese Conflict Draws Anger, Draft Defiance

By Viggo Petersen

And the war . . . drags . . . on . . .

Two years, three months, and nineteen days ago, mass escalation of the Vietnam war began.

It was on February 5, 1965, that President Johnson, reportedly in a fit of rage over recent Viet Cong bombing attacks on American barracks, ordered air strikes in Vietnam which were to prove to be the first full scale American participation in the war.

On February 5th tempers were still flaring over the Gulf of Tonkin incident in which Viet Cong PT boats attacked American patrol boats.

The air strikes which began on the 5th were later to set the precedent for the landing of a contingent of 3500 Marines approximately one month later to set up "defensive positions" around Da Nang airbase.

First reaction to the air strikes and the Marine invasion was one of worldwide fear of the consequences.

Fear later gave way to anger as universities and colleges across the nation outraged at U.S. violations of the Geneva Convention, began conducting what later was referred to as "teach-ins"—gatherings of students and professors on campus lawns for the sake of speaking out against American participation in Vietnam.

First protest movements began in Berkeley shortly after the war began. The first protest rally to gain significant publicity was the demonstration against trains arriving in Oakland loaded with troops getting ready for shipment overseas.

In the fall of the same year publicity was centered in Berkeley as thousands of demonstrators massed on the Oakland-Berkeley border in an attempt to reach the Oakland Army base. It was the vanguard of a host of demonstrations just like it.

Countless demonstrations, billions of dollars and ten thousand lives later the war still drags on with no letup and no indication that anything significant has been accomplished.

The only prospect that seems to loom on the horizon seems to be further escalation of the war, more loss of life, more expenditures and possibly World War III.

Public and even governmental opposition to the war has proved to be absolutely futile. As if acting out of spite, the only reaction any protest movement in the United States seems to draw is further escalation.

Immediately following the biggest protest demonstrations in U.S. history in New York and San Francisco recently, the newspapers were soon filled with details of all the "glories" of the United States Marine Corps as they charged up Hill 881 and suffered heavy casualties for reasons probably unclear to the Marines and possibly unclear to our own government.

It would seem that if the present trend continues, defiance of the draft, and defiance of the war is going to have to take on a mueh grander scale than it already has. Already there are advocates of violence as opposed to non-violence, to protest the war.

As opposition to the draft increases, it will probably become neeessary for masses of Americans of draft age to defy the draft on a grand scale.

Perhaps rallying stations around the country could be established by anti-draft committees. They could be established as gathering points where those receiving draft notices could defy draft laws en masse. There is always strength in numbers.

It would be a safe assumption to say that a majority of the American people are opposed to the war in Vietnam the way the war is now being waged. It would be safe to say that a majority of the people in the U.S. either favor total withdrawl from Vietnam or else favor bombing Hanoi and "getting the whole thing over with."

In a situation such as this, in which the government refuses to recognize the will of the majority, it would seem that public indignation must be brought to the attention of those who refuse the public one of the basic rights of the constitution, namely, representation of the people.

The Critic, The Guardsman, And Election Rules Panned By Council

By Lori Pittman

The Critic, The Guardsman, and election regulations were high on the Student Council agenda last week.

The resolution concerning the publication of the City College Critic which sighted parts of one issue (Vol. I, No. 10) of the Critic as "erroneous and unsubstantiated in fact" was finally passed by council with the close vote of 6-5-0.

Councilman Ron Bianco tried to amend the resolution to cover "all forms of irresponsible journalism" rather than naming the Critic but his amendment failed.

Student Council did not stop with the Critic. A resolution was submitted by Councilman Ron Merenbach asking council to go on record "as strongly disapproving . . . unfair and seemingly one-sided journalism" in which The Guardsman was named for an article printed in last week's issue mentioning USA and VOTES candidates.

An amendment to the constitution entitled "Guardsman Policy and Receiving Board" was submitted by Councilman Marvin Campbell. It is concerned with setting up a "receiving board" for The Guardsman and taking over 30 per cent of the paper for non-journalist publication.

This board would have the power to "make all decisions relative to Guardsman policy with the approval of Student Council." It has not yet come up for vote.

Two motions involving the election rules were debated. One made by Councilman Ray Bietz forbids any individual or party to use school material or equipment, or to receive aid from faculty members for campaign purposes. The issue eame up after it was discovered that one candidate had done so. The motion passed 10-1-0.

Councilman Chris Loo brought up the next motion involving the election rules. His was a question of interpretation in which he asked council to rule whether a person could change the office he was running for after his petitions were submitted.

His motion failed with a 12-2-0 vote. Loo moved that "rules as loose as these be elarified in future election rules." This motion passed by acclamation.

Jobs No Problem; Recruitment Day Places Most Grads

Jobs are readily available for students graduating from any of the Technical-Terminal programs offered at City College.

This fact was made clear by Director of Placement Joseph A. Amori when he announced the results of last week's twelfth annual Business-Engineering Recruitment Day. One hundred and seventy students were interviewed by prospective employes.

"We could have placed 500 graduates if we had them," stated Amori. "Industry is erying for technieally trained people and City College has 36 different programs for today's student to choose from. Anyone who really wants to train for a well-paying position should have no trouble finding the best eurrieulum."

Half of the students interviewed have already secured jobs and at least half of those remaining will very shortly be employed, according to Amori.

Summer Registration June 3

Registration for summer session will take place on Saturday, June 3, from 9 to 12 a.m. at Smith Hall, according to Gertrude Somerville, registrar.

Registration closes Monday, June 26, which is the last day to change programs. However, programs may not be changed prior to this day.

Applicants are to have already filled in class request forms at S-117.

Six units plus physieal education is the maximum program permitted.

Instruetion begins on Monday, June 26. The last day to drop a course is Friday, July 7. Deadline for filing a Leave of Absence is Friday, July 14.

Non-residents will be charged a tuition fee of $11 per unit, which must be paid no later than tomorrow.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

ACP Pacemaker Collegiate Press

Vol. 64, No. 11 WEDNESDAY, MAY 24, 1967 Page 2

As Usual, Guardsman Neutral In Today's Campus Elections

ELECTIONS are here today and The Guardsman hopes that everyone gets in a "Rah Rah" spirit and votes for the people who will represent the college next semester.

The Guardsman does not support any candidate or party, but the election coverage in this issue contains enough information so that a student can make an intelligent choice between the candidates.

The primary reason that The Guardsman does not take a stand on the political issues on campus is because The Guardsman is an official publication of the student body. Also because the members of the different parties are both deserving of equal coverage which they have equally paid for (one student, one AS card).

Another reason for non-partisan support by The Guardsman is because the present staff on The Guardsman will not be the same for next semester and the present staff has no right to dictate to future editors as to how the paper should stand in political elections.

Most college papers do not take stands on the elections for the same reasons.

However, since the paper does not take a stand on any elections the students should not feel lost at the ballots. It's like an election anywhere, if people had followed the members of the parties (perhaps limited to coverage of those only involved in student government already) and the issues on the campus, it would guarantee a good decision.

But perhaps too much is placed upon what the candidates have said in the past. The best way is to know what a person represents or is against on the campus (and most students are sure of that) and compare one's wants with what is promised by the candidates.

This semester there appears to be a legitimate choice between the party platform and candidates—their objectives are different.

No one in any election can be sure of his vote since people change, including candidates. What someone can be sure of is his wants and if no candidate represents a person's objectives, it's the person's fault anyway that he is so indecisive.

Labelled And Recorded

Summer Invasion Rock Boom

By Marty Arbunich

LOCAL RESIDENTS may be forced to accommodate congested households and ration their oxygen supply once the invaders strike this summer; reports have it, though, that the invasion on San Francisco won't be all that bad.

While the traditional straight-tourists make their annual visit to this city, thousands of devoted hippies will also be enroute in a pilgrimage of their own—mass mobilization number one—to 'Mecca' by the bay.

The whole happening should be quite interesting and, as a result, the entire local rock scene should benefit handsomely from its exposure to the thousands of curious outsiders.

THE SOUNDS of San Francisco in recent months have become as much of an attraction as its sights (TV specials and the press have drawn much speculation from their reports), and when the summer comes visitors will be pouring in to see not only the city of love and its sanctuary for hippies, but also the happening spots where the Jefferson Airplane and others perform.

Bill Graham and Chet Helms of the Fillmore and Avalon night spots are anticipating the invasion and accordingly are respectively planning to provide both outsiders and regulars with six and four nights of entertainment weekly for the summer beginning in June.

Presently there are better than ten local rock groups who have issued recordings, but only two of them—the Airplane and the Grateful Dead—have begun to spread. It is hoped that by the end of the summer the Bay Area will be the center of popular music in America and many of its groups will be recognized nationally for their talent.

AND WHEN THE SUMMER visitors make their retreat home, word of mouth could very well develop a vast demand for the music of San Francisco.

Groups like Moby Grape, the Quicksilver Messenger Service, Big Brother and the Holding Company and others are expected to come on strong in months to come and many LP's are currently in the works for local groups.

• • •

'TIS A HAPPENING . . . The Avalon will host the Charlatans, Blue Cheer and the New Salvation Army for the weekend while the Fillmore's line-up of groups for the weekend features Big Brother and the Steve Miller Blues Band.

The Dead and Quicksilver are at Rio Nido this weekend.

Opening tomorrow night for a two-week stay at Basin Street West are Smokey Robinson and the Miracles . . . Ravi Shankar, famed sitarist, is in town Friday night at the Civic Auditorium.

The Airplane will sing White Rabbit when they make a return engagement to the Smothers Brothers Show shortly.

Chet Helms' four nights of entertainment begins June 1 with the Miller Blues Band appearing on all four dates. The Daily Flash will appear with them on June 1 and 2 while the Doors come in to finish off the four-day bill. The following week (June 8-11) Big Brother, Canned Heat and the Congress of Wonders will perform. The Fillmore kicks off their six nights per week June 20 with the Airplane.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1967

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 246.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... RICHARD HEINTZ
Managing and Feature Editor ..... Connie Skipitares
Staff Editor ..... Marty Arbunich
News Editor ..... Steven Hara
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan
Contributing Writers ..... William G. Pates, Bea Takeuchi

Editorial Writers: John Langlan, John LaCorreaou, Art Rodriguez, Viggo Petersen, Giuseppe Greco.

Reporters: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, John Hammack, Doreen Ng, Phillip Planerzi, Lori Pittman, Ron Wong, Ed Holmes, Glynn Petrie, Tim Duncan, Jeffrey Hofhine.

Cub Reporters: Berry Brown, Ron Lent, Lani Silver, Lee Smith, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf, Franklin Gadson.

Photographers: Bob Briscoe, chief; Jose Fireside, Richard Sandino, Mac F. Gooding, Rich Spitaleri, Ron O'Brien, Chris Rozales, Chip Stevens, Jim Tsang.

Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Member Associated Collegiate Press 1966 - 1967

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

● Pride And Negroes

Editor:

I would like to apologize to Miss Young, all the Jewish and Italian students on campus. I used a fallacy to attempt to instill an amount of pride in the Negroes on campus. The average Negro has accepted as a fact the fallacy that all Jews are rich and powerful. I used the example of the Italian to strengthen my argument.

Pride is the answer to the majority of the Negroes' problems. Hitler proved what pride can accomplish.

To my Negro (or Black, whichever you prefer) Brother: If you will recheck your history you will find that England was sending her criminals to the colonies until the Colonials threatened to send their criminals to England if the practice did not halt. Also you will find Whites were sent here to do slave labor. I am not condoning these acts, but the ancestors of these White slaves and criminals are doing fine (even though they did not decide to come here). At no time did I say that the Negro decided himself to come to America.

At least my article started some of you thinking: that is what college is supposed to be about.

Once again my apologies to the Jewish and Italian students.

William Delaney

P.S.

My Black Brother, one argument is that the White man has categorized us to hold us back: are we not categorizing ourselves? I suggest we get together and decide what we all want to be called, unless you have made up your mind. Together we stand, divided we fall! Let us unite for one purpose—preservation of our race.

● Racial Relationships

Editor:

There are three important relationships between the white man and the black man that I would like to depict: (1) the necessity for both races to live together; (2) the economic relationship; and (3) the educational relationship. Firstly, men like John F. Kennedy and James Baldwin have seen the necessity for a good harmonious relationship between the white man and the black man. Secondly, to paraphrase James Baldwin, as the black man prospers, so prospers America. The Black Muslims demand that several southern states be turned over to the black man in return for the labor black labor performed during slavery.

I am opposed to this demand, because America cannot stand divided.

Thirdly, the conventional gap between the black man and the white man should be closed. The Negro is handicapped because his energy is like that of a horse without a jockey.

The black man was in a desultory manner; but with the guidance of education the black man can run more efficiently.

Joe Osborne

Texas Coeds Skirt Mini Issue Started By East, West Coasts

(ACP)—A small but increasing number of University of Texas coeds have decided to get in step with the "What's Happening" centers of the world and to leave men they pass twisted like pretzels, straining for a good, long, lasting look, Peter Heyne writes in the Daily Texas.

These are the coeds who have the courage—but often not the proportions—to wear mini skirts and dresses.

Essentially, a "mini" is a garment whose hemline ranges from three (mini-mini) to seven inches (maxi-mini) above the knee. It gained popularity two years ago on London's Carnaby Street where the Mod look still reigns.

In Eastern cities and in California, the mini look is not only in but is also fairly well established. However, in the South, including Texas, Austin, and consequently the university, women are suffering from a hemline gap that is being closed not much faster than grandma can thread rope through a needle's eye.

Mrs. Binnie Briggs, owner of Pizzazz Inc., which stocks lots of mini clothing, says, "Whenever anyone is leaving town they come in here to buy a short dress—they say they have to have one for where they are going, which is usually out of state."

Why do coeds wear minis? Other than strictly for fashion—"Simply to attract attention," says a former coed. "A lot of girls are husband-hunting and want to be noticed by the opposite sex," adds an economics professor.

Noticed they are. "There's not a moment's doubt that you are looked at; people practically hang out windows and wreck cars to get a good look," says Mrs. Briggs, recalling the time she wore her zebra-stripped fur mini down the Drag.

Most mini-wearers say they wear them primarily to parties, picnics, and "just generally messing around." Few wear them to class, since even dresses an inch above the knee can ride up embarrassingly. Teachers, at times, find short skirts in class a little rattling. "We may be teachers, but we are still men," a sociology teaching assistant says. Professors agree, however, that after a while "it all becomes part of the scenery."

Like all innovations, minis have their hazards. Wearers say chief among them are bending over and sitting down "in a way as not to be lurid." Most of them avoid difficulty by slipping into light tights or textured stocking which preyent overexposure while still keeping the subject interesting.

Why haven't more coeds joined the mini crowd? First, the South is one to three years behind other parts of the world in fashion, say clothing buyers on the Drag. Second, while university males enjoy mini-watching, they are not yet ready to see their own girls outfitted in one. Third, in at least one frosh dorm, advisers tell girls not to wear them. In sororities, group standards prevail. Fourth, not every coed can suitably wear one. It takes a special figure—preferably long, slender legs, a small waistline, and small bustline. And fifth, many people consider the mini downright indecent.

Peace Corps Draws Volunteers To Expand Its Worldwide Aid

Helping an interested country to solve its domestic problems to promote understanding, peace, good will and prosperity through the trained manpower and educational skill imparted by the willing volunteer, perhaps, sums up the objectives of the Peace Corps Program.

Since the late president, John F. Kennedy, issued the executive order for the Peace Corps Program on September 22, 1961, thousands of volunteers have donated two years of their lives to fulfill the objective.

In 1966 Latin America alone had 4689 volunteers working to conquer the countries' problems and to fulfill the needs of the people.

WHEN VOLUNTEERS were first stationed at Ghana, the people shouted "Yankee Go Home." But today the people shout "Bring More."

The Peace Corps Program is continually expanding, as more countries become interested in getting help.

Last year 350 students from City College volunteered their time for Peace Corps. They are now distributed throughout the world teaching, working in health programs, agricultural extention and family planning.

SINCE THE BEGINNING of this year nine volunteers from this campus have been accepted into the Peace Corps. The volunteers are Ralph F. Pujolar, history teaching; Emil Labataille, pre-med; Brian S. Katcher, prepharmacy; Albert Jacobsmeyer, letters and science; John Jaspar, teaching; John Balestrerri, letters and science; Rich L. Tradewell, teaching; Bruce E. Gow, business merchandising; and Thomas G. Dunn, liberal arts major.

To qualify as a Peace Corps volunteer the applicant must be at least 18 years old. A college education is not a prerequisite, but having a skill or trade is important.

The volunteers go through a training period to learn a foreign language and about the culture and problems of the countries to which they may be assigned.

PEACE CORPS TRAINEES are now getting out of the classrooms more and are training in the big-city slums, Puerto Rican rain forests, Indian reservations and Israeli kibbutzim.

Jack Vaughn, director of the Corps, states "The Peace Corps seeks to assist mankind in the struggle against the oppressions of disease, hunger and lack of education. It seeks to promote peace through the improvement of cross-cultural communication."

On The RAMpage

Study Time Bought By Pill-Poppers

By Connie Skipitares

FOR THE PRICE of a quarter at the University of Redlands (California) students are reportedly purchasing extra study time during final exams.

How? By using "pep pills."

The university has never been noted for extensive use of benzedrine or dexedrene, it was revealed, but in recent months "pill-popping" has quietly 'come into style.' The dominant reason appears to be the need for extra study time and powers of concentration during exam periods.

SAYS ONE STUDENT: "I just didn't have enough time. When I was offered the chance to try the pills I jumped at it. As far as I could tell, they had no harmful effect on me and helped improve my studying during a crucial period." Users at Redlands are conservatively estimated at 75 to 100.

College students and administrators have long recognized the increasing use of stimulants on campuses. These compounds, commonly derivatives of ephedrine, such as benzedrine and dexedrine, are generally used either in large quantities for their narcotic-like effect or in smaller doses for their ability to extend awareness and decrease the need for sleep.

According to the university physician, they are not habit-forming but can cause extreme after-effects if used for a long time. "They cause an increase in the activity of the cerebral cortex (the center of conscious thought)," he said. "In addition, they can alleviate fatigue and aid dietary programs, which is their common medical usage."

DESPITE FEDERAL legislation against possession without a prescription, it appears that the pills are readily available to students. Major sources are contacts with pharmaceutical outlets and illegal smuggling from Mexico.

One sophomore had a close friend working in a drug store; a junior listed his sister's diet-pill prescription as his source. An upper classman claimed he received pills from the infirmary to increase his awareness.

"After a severe cold," the upperclassman said, "I complained about not being able to study because of lingering after-effects. I was given a supply of benzedrine tablets."

FOR MOST STUDENTS, the pills are not obtained cheaply. The average for a small tablet is 25 cents, while more powerful doses may cost as much as three times that amount. One enterprising senior admitted selling pills for $1 apiece during the last days of finals, when the pill supply was apparently diminishing.

A recent Wall Street Journal article reported that "pill-popping" is getting to be a common practice on the college scene. "Aside from the purely physical dangers," the Journal said, "pep pills don't always keep students alert. One Northwestern student, who emerged from an exam convinced he had scored extremely well, discovered to his horror that he had written over and over on his first page—which he had neglected to turn."

The Observer

By William G. Pates

THE HOME-FRONT WAR, the battle for the hearts and minds and ultimately the votes of the American people painfully divided over the nation's course in Vietnam has begun in earnest.

The issues: public confidence in Johnson and his Vietnam policy.

The tactics: to quash, demean, discredit the respectability, sincerity and importance of dissent; to gag the voices of the opposition by impugning their patriotism by professing the Administration prophecy that dissent is prolonging the war and costing the lives of young Americans; promote the newest Administration view that it is the duty of the United States to fight wars and be the world's policeman, foster a climate of "Our Country, right or wrong," and finally to escalate the war.

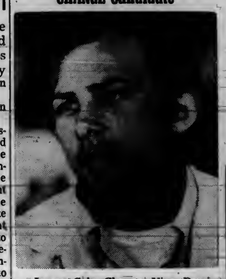
PACIFISM is apparently an unknown quantity to Mister Johnson. As a result he is resigned to the prospect that Vietnam will be no closer to peace a year and a half from now as it is today. He is preparing a campaign based on the assumption that the war will be the major issue. He has decided to begin an educational process designed to accustom this nation to accepting the probability that the war may go on for an indefinite period.

An anguishing depression and a sense of futility are haunting many millions of Americans who believe they see the Vietnam war steadily escalating along a path to disaster. These Americans see a new crisis arising not only from the widening of the war but equally from the fear that freedom of dissent will be narrowed.

It is said that never before has the United States been so tolerant of dissent—especially in wartime. This fact is all the more impressive when measured against history. It also points out more than ever the hyprocracy programs, which is their common medical usage."

DESPITE FEDERAL legislation against possession without a prescription, it appears that the pills are readily available to students. Major sources are contacts with pharmaceutical outlets and illegal smuggling from Mexico.

One sophomore had a close friend working in a drug store; a junior listed his sister's diet-pill prescription as his source. An upper classman claimed he received pills from the infirmary to increase his awareness.



"After a severe cold," the upperclassman said, "I complained about not being able to study because of lingering after-effects. I was given a supply of benzedrine tablets."

FOR MOST STUDENTS, the pills are not obtained cheaply. The average for a small tablet is 25 cents, while more powerful doses may cost as much as three times that amount. One enterprising senior admitted selling pills for $1 apiece during the last days of finals, when the pill supply was apparently diminishing.

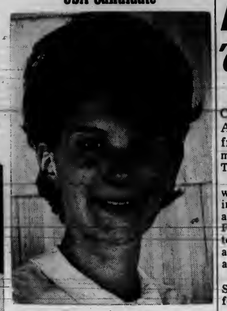
A recent Wall Street Journal article reported that "pill-popping" is getting to be a common practice on the college scene. "Aside from the purely physical dangers," the Journal said, "pep pills don't always keep students alert. One Northwestern student, who emerged from an exam convinced he had scored extremely well, discovered to his horror that he had written over and over on his first page—which he had neglected to turn."

Three Candidates Clash In VP Race

CHANGE Candidate

James Cole—Change Vice Presidential candidate: City College should not be a high school with a pseudonym. We need and deserve independence of thought and action. But this calls for radical change and a new departure from the lukewarm policies of the present government.

Last semester we saw Change and a change. This semester we must unite and solidify our stand with a strong and active government. To accomplish this I need your support and vote. Vote Jim Cole for Vice President. Vote Change.



Independent Candidate

Larry Henry—Independent Vice Presidential candidate: I propose to create on-campus activities to interest the student; to set up monthly roundtable student, faculty and administration discussions, and to open to students a wider choice of teachers, classes and alternates in computer registration.

I'm running independently because USA does not have the ideas and Change uses the wrong methods.

USA Candidate

Diane Lattimer—USA Vice Presidential candidate: Having served as President of the Associated Women Students and currently serving as President of the Sophomore Class, I feel I have the necessary qualifications for the office of Associated Students Vice President.

Due to the fact that the Vice President serves as a hostess and organizes social events, my previous experience will be of great benefit. I will work for the general improvement of the student body.

New Techniques, Colored Lights In RA Dance Program

A variety of modern dance technique studies and compositions will be performed at the Modern Dance Program on Thursday, June 1, at 2 p.m. in the college theater, Lene Johnson, sponsor of the program, announced yesterday.

The Modern Dance Program, sponsored by the Recreation Association, will feature selected dancers from intermediate and composition classes and outstanding compositions by students from beginning classes.

All of the compositions are choreographic; they are created by the performers themselves.

Mrs. Johnson remarked that there will be a tremendous variety of themes ranging from technique studies to dances evolved through the use of different colored lightings.

Accompaniment for the program will be performed by Gwendolyn Watson. Background music will be both live and recorded.

Large dance groups as well as solos will show their skills.

"We haven't had such an outstanding group of dancers at the college for a long time," Mrs. Johnson added.

Modern Dance is a free, expressive style of dancing. It is not based on set patterns or basic steps. The aim of modern dance is to express the true, inner being of the performer and to appeal to the innermost feelings of the beholders.

Modern Dance has influenced much of the traditional ballet.

Photo Exhibit Of Turkey Begins Here Next Week

The exhibition of one hundred photographs showing Turkey's culture, folklore, historic and ethnic appearance, will be held at the college in C-207 starting May 29 through June 9.

The show will be open to the public from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Angelo Castrillon is the author of all of the photographs and Charles Adelson has written the captions which accompany the pictures. Both have lived in Turkey for nearly ten years.

CASTRILLON, whose real name is Enrique Angulo, was born in 1923 in Lima, Peru, where he attended the Colegio Salesiano. He also attended City College of San Francisco from 1952 to 1954, where he majored in floriculture and basic design.

Adelson was born in San Francisco in 1927. He studied at Citadel College in South Carolina and at Santa Monica Junior College before transferring to this college where, during the spring of 1954 he took courses in creative writing, floriculture and basic design.

At present Adelson is a writer for the New York Times and the Bosporous Beacon, an English written publication published in Istanbul.

THE EXHIBITION is divided into five sections: "From the fourth millenium B.C. to 1967"; the new tourism and the land; the people; the way of faith, and among the Turks.

The show is sponsored by W. Merle Weidman, instructor here, affiliated with the Architecture department of the college.

X-Ray Program Response Good

A response of 25 students for the free dental X-ray given by Dr. Catherine Geissler's Dental X-ray class this semester represents a great improvement over last year which only had a turnout of about seven people, Dr. Geissler said.

The applicants have been mainly men and of the seven which have been processed so far, half had bad teeth, the other half being in fairly good condition.

The X-ray process takes about one hour and consists of taking 20 pictures which covers the whole mouth. The students giving the X-rays are all girls and their work is supervised by Dr. Geissler.

The patients are given their X-rays back after they have been studied by the dental students and graded by Dr. Geissler. This process takes about two weeks. Dr. Geissler said, however, if the patient has an immediate need for the X-ray it can be returned sooner.

Edna Pope Resigns RA Sponsorship After Three Years

After three years as sponsor of the Recreation Association, Edna Pope has resigned from her position and will be replaced by Phyllis Vasquez, a physical education instructor here, Shirley Brown, incoming president of RA, announced last week.

Miss Pope was presented with a special plaque for her service at the Awards Dinner last Tuesday.

The new officers of RA, who were installed into office at the dinner, are Miss Brown, president; Sal Asaro, vice president; Hattie Knox, secretary; Tatiana Konstantinow, treasurer, and Delila Garcia as an honorary officer.

Awards were also presented to active RA members during the dinner.

Managers of each sport who were awarded medals were Shirley Brown, tennis; Janet Mizuha, bowling; Phyllis Boni, Modern Dance; Tatiana Konstantinow, fencing; Deliia Garcia and Larry Pascal, manager and assistant manager, respectively, of volleyball; Terry Lee, archery, and Linda Garcia, Folk Dance.

Twenty-eight other awards were given to students who represented the college in various sports competitions against other campuses.

A loving cup was presented to Gloria Dunn by the tennis team in acknowledgement of her work with the team.

Gourmet Gala To Be Presented In Statler Friday

The traditional Awards and Recognition gathering will be presented as a Gourmet Gala, May 26, 3 to 5 p.m. in Statler wing. This will be the last get-together of the women students, sponsored by the Associated Women Students, Inter-Sorority Council, and the Recreation Association.

THIS FINAL gathering will contain singing and dancing with an international flavor. There will be a demonstration by one of the executive chefs on how to prepare elegant hors d'oeurves. Following the demonstration the women will sample these delicacies.

One of the highlights of the afternoon will be the performance of the Hilltop Singers, from the University of San Francisco. In addition to the Hilltop Singers, the Folk Dancing group from the Recreation Association will be on hand as part of the entertainment.

THE PRESIDENTS of the three associations, AWS, RA and ISC, Linette Wong, Shirley Brown and Gladys Doyle, respectively, will be on hand to present the gavels to the new presidents who will preside in the Fall semester.

Three awards will be presented at the conclusion of this festive occasion: the Outstanding Service award (AWS), the Athletic award (RA), and the Dougherty Cup (ISC), to the sorority with the highest grade point average.

Lessons, Games For Bridge Buffs

Bridge is big business in the world today. This month sixteen pairs of college bridge players meet to determine the International Inter-Collegiate championships, while in Miami Beach, the best bridge players from all over the world are gathering to vie for the World Championship.

On a smaller scale, bridge enthusiasts here at City College meet each Tuesday and Thursday in A-209 at 11 a.m. Mrs. Rosemary Murray, club adviser, states, "We have as many as four tables playing at once, ranging from good players to beginners who receive instruction as they play.

"Students, faculty members and kibitzers are always welcome, but they find it hard not to get drawn into the game."

"Interest is growing in the club and we hope in the future to conduct duplicate games and challenge matches with other Bay Area colleges.

"We hope to be able to conduct more extensive lessons next semester," Mrs. Murray said. "With an active group like this, the members decide on their own program and everybody benefits."

Commencement Honors Spring '67 Graduates

The thirty-second annual Commencement Observance and Awards Assembly will be held from 10 to 12:30 on Thursday morning, May 25 in the Little Theater.

Following the assembly, a reception will be held in the horticulture building for the honor students, the scholarship awardees and their parents. Faculty members are invited to attend. President Conlan has excused all of these students from their ten and eleven o'clock classes on May 25.

Diane Lattimer, president of the Sophomore Class, Spring 1967, will formally greet the Class of 1967.

FOLLOWING THE welcome, the chamber choir, under the direction of William Grothkopp, and the accompaniment of Robert Sheldon, will sing.

The Lloyd Luckmann, Dr. [illegible] Golding, Dean Ralph Hillsman, and Dean Thomas Nesbitt will present the awards for the memorial scholarships.

Ronald Felsenstein and Marjorie Wilson are to be awarded the Archibald J. Cloud scholarships.

THE MARGARET DOUGHERTY scholarship will be presented to Joyce Carey.

John P. Smith will receive the William Mayo scholarship.

The Flossita Badger scholarship will be presented to Marion Ricker.

WILLIAM F. BORDEN will be the recipient of the William Bell scholarship award.

Patricia Allen and Mary Denison will be awarded the James Denman scholarships.

The Alice Eastwood scholarship will be presented to Earl Baly, Barry Cohen, Kenneth Himes, Gerald Bosch, John Cunningham, Gary Kurma, Daniel Shea and Michael Zaki.

Edward Wong will be the recipient of the Fred Fitzgerald scholarship.

THE FRED FOULTZ scholarship will be awarded to Douglas E. Gillis.

The Michael Griffin scholarship will be received by Gail Ross.

The Florence Louis scholarship will be presented to Mary Ontiveras.

ROY HORNSBY WILL receive the Eugene and Fanchon Mead scholarship.

The Edith Pence award will be received by Eleanor Quesada and Marie Gonzalez.

Barbara Charmiak and Pamela Lee will receive the Mary Roberts Scott scholarship.

THE UNIVERSITY of California will award 10 scholarships.

Eois Frediani, Jaylane McCune, Kenneth McKaye, Diana Smith and Kenneth Yee will receive scholarships from the University of the Seven Seas.

The Bank of America scholarships will be given to Linda Bill, accounting; and Lina Silverstri, secretarial award.

PICKETT SLIDE RULE scholarship will be presented to Donald Brodzik, Jane Chun, Steve Jeremias, Sherman Low, John Messmer, Leonard Pasdera and Sing Yui Wong.

Robert M. Jessen will receive the Wall Street Journal award.

Eight California Scottish Rite Foundation scholarships will be presented.

The Parent-Teachers' Nursing Program scholarship will be received by Sharon Augustiny.

KENGO HAMAI and Jerry Tokugawa will receive the Academy of Art scholarship.

Laurel Ashworth and Kevin Hom will receive the biological science scholarship.

The Dental Assistant's Association scholarships go to Barbara Consiglieri and Maureen Meeham.

DWANE COWELL, James Bass and Russ Truss Taukimura will receive the Dental Laboratory Technology scholarships.

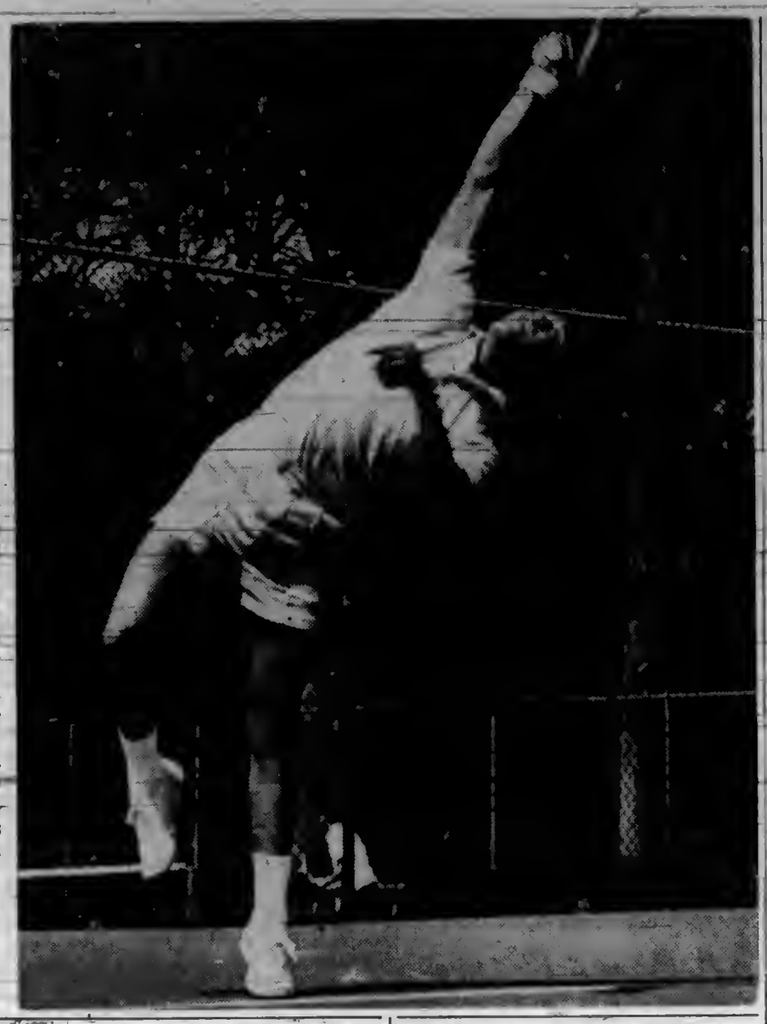
The Executive Secretaries scholarships will go to Mildred Canning, Janis Grimm, Suzanne Halstead, Carol Neal, and Judy Weinshenk.

The Hotel and Restaurant department will award 31 scholarships.

THE PRESIDENT'S CUP for Highest Scholarship will be presented to Linda M. Krause, a biological science major, with a 3.85 and to Robert Jessen, a business major with a 3.9.

The President's plaque for Outstanding Service will be given to Virginia L. Eberlin, a retail floristry major, and to James Van Soletti.

Wong Loses In North State Quarter Finals



John Wong and George Zoul qualified for the state doubles championship by winning in the Northern California finals May 13, at San Mateo.

Wong and Zoul qualified by winning their only match in the Nor-Cal finals and will be the only men on the team that will make the trip south for the State matches.

Roy Diederichsen, coach of the team, praised Wong and Zoul as being a fine pair of hustlers, who never give up. "These two deserve the trip to the College of Sequoias and I believe they will perform very well against the state's finest," Diederichsen commented.

John Wong lost in the quarter finals to top-seeded Roy Orlando of San Joaquin Delta, 6-4, 6-3. Orlando eventually won the Northern California singles title.

The Ram netters finished the conference in fourth place, three notches ahead of the place they finished in the dual match season.

RAM NET STAR John Wong had a fine season leading the tennis squad to a fourth place finish in the conference finals. Wong reached the semi-finals before being elimnated by eventual champ John Haak, Merritt.

Season Closes For Ram Nine With San Jose, San Mateo Wins; Finale Secures Second Place

By Marc Clarkson

For the Ram nine, the baseball season has come to a close.

But the Rams closed the season in fine fashion by winning their last two games, the first by outscoring San Jose, 6-5, and the second win a 14-5 clobbering of College of San Mateo.

In the San Mateo game, the Rams scored 14 times for their biggest run total of the season. They massed together 10 hits in massacring the Bulldogs.

The victory was important to the Rams since they were battling the Bulldogs for a second place conference finish behind Foothill College. In winning, the Rams upped their record to 9-5, securing the second place berth.

PITCHER CHUCK COLLINS, making his first start for the Rams, got credit for the victory. Collins, used mostly as a relief pitcher by Coach Ernie Domecus, pitched the first five innings and Tony Magaganini hurled the remaining four.

Of the Rams' ten-hit attack, five were for extra basis. Chief contributors to the attack were Larry Sozzi and Al Pasion with homers, Maris Pantels and Bill Sorini both had three-baggers. Pantels collected another extra bagger with a double in the third inning.

In the first inning, Larry Sozzi clouted a three-run homer to cap a five-run rally.

The Rams added to their five-run outburst with two more in the fourth inning, four in the sixth, and three in the ninth for their total of 14 runs.

THE SAN JOSE game saw the Rams edge the Jaguars 6-5 behind the pitching of Bing Kunzig, who went the distance. He allowed eight hits in picking up his first win.

1967 CONFERENCE STATISTICS

Player	ab	r	h	rbi	bb	avg
Kunzig (1-0)	4	1	2	0	0	.500
Bosch	49	11	16	3	17	.327
Pantels	59	12	16	10	8	.296
Barker	1	2	5	1	0	.294
Gretton	38	4	11	5	2	.289
Pasion	51	11	13	10	12	.258
Williams	20	4	5	4	3	.250
Harvey	4	0	1	0	0	.250
Clayton	17	4	4	3	5	.235
Harris	26	1	6	2	3	.231
Callen	45	7	10	10	7	.222
Sorini	36	6	7	4	9	.218
Sozzi	49	7	9	9	10	.183
Kirkpatrick (5-3)	25	3	4	2	1	.160
Johnson (1-1)	7	1	1	1	0	.143
Herman	9	0	1	0	0	.110
Szander	5	1	0	0	0	.000
Magagnini (1-1)	5	3	0	0	3	.000
Mahoney	3	0	0	0	0	.000
Kitchner	2	0	0	0	1	.000
Collins (1-0)	2	1	0	0	0	.000

Linkers Finish Season In Fifth

By Doug Boston

The 1967 golf season for most two-year colleges ended last week with College of the Sequoias capturing the California Junior College golf championship played over the Monterey Peninsula Country Club in Monterey.

One of the two teams representing the Golden Gate Conference in the tournament, College of San Mateo, finished second, only two shots behind College of the Sequoias, with the score being 770-772. Mike Ray, who played second man for College of San Mateo most of the year, won a sudden death playoff with Jim Jensen of Foothill and Paul Bayhouse of West Valley to grab the individual title with a score of 149 for two rounds.

City College finished fifth in the Golden Gate Conference this year, establishing a 5-8 record. The Rams will be looking for a fifth man, which was a spot where the team hurt all season. The first four varsity players are eligible for golf next season, and, if the team can find that fifth man, the Rams should be contenders next year.

First man Ken Kundert finished the season the way he began, leading City College throughout the schedule. Kundert was the most consistent member of the golf team, failing only three times in 14 matches to break 80. He finished the year with a 76.5 average for conference play, this including two below-par rounds against Merritt and San Jose.

Doug Boston finished the season with a 77 average for conference play.

Mountaineers Win Runner-Up Game With Irish

The Red Mountaineers edged the Irish, 46-44, to capture the intramural basketball playoff game between the runner-up teams of the two respective divisions last Tuesday night in the Men's gymnasium. In the battle of the "cellar dwellers" the Revisables easily defeated Chinese Students by 37-24.

Carlos Ramirez hit 13 and Ken Jones 12 to lead the Mountaineer attack. Rich Rolandson had 16 points for the Irish.

The Revisables were led by Norm Jung with 13 points. The Chinese, unable to win a game all season, were led by Cho with five digits.

Hancock Easily Wins NorCal Title; Rams In Ninth Place

By John LeTourneau

Behind the trio of Neil Duggan, Jim Hatcher and Tyrone Brown, powerful Allan Hancock ran away with the Northern California track championship last Saturday at San Mateo.

City College finished a strong ninth out of 30 teams participating, as Ernie Provost, Hoy Henderson and Scott Heyman accounted for most of the points. Also the Rams took a third in the 440-yard relay with Provost, David Jones, Adam Banks and Greg Jackson carrying the baton at a 41.8 clip. A great anchor leg by Hancock's Hatcher enabled the champs to win at 41.3.

RUNNER-UP Fresno's Sam Davis won the 100-yard dash over Laney's Mickey Mathews at 9.4. There was a photo finish at the tape as the third, fourth and fifth runners hit the tape at the same time. As it turned out Marion Sims of Laney and Hancock's Bob Brown finished third and fourth ahead of Provost (9.6).

The 220 and 440 were taken by Hatcher as he ran away from the field both times. He took the 220 at 21.2 with Davis, Mathews and Provost coming in with times of 21.5, 21.6 and 21.7 respectively. Hatcher set a new NorCal meet record in the 440 with a time of 47.4, breaking Lee Evans' 1966 record of 47.8.

THE DISTANCE RACES were dominated by Hancock's Duggan as he won the 880, mile and two mile. In the 880, the Rams' Henderson added valuable points by taking third with an all-time best of 1:54.9.

In the field events only Heyman competed for City College and took a fourth in the long jump with a leap of 24-2½.

Both hurdle races were won by Hancock's Brown as he edged Chabot's Gary Kerr in the 120 highs at 14.4, and then won the 330 intermediates at 37.6.

Spikers Score Low At Fresno

Led by the Tommie Smith and Lee Evans paced San Jose State world record setting 880 relay, the West Coast Relays were very exciting, but there was very little excitement for the City College track team; the 880, 440 and mile relay teams eame in fifth, seventh and tenth places respectively, May 13 at the meet held at Fresno's Ratcliffe Stadium.

The Rams competed against the top two-year college relay teams in the nation, and were simply outclassed in the three events but still recorded good times. The 440 and 880 relays were composed of David Jones, Ernie Provost, Robbie Brinkley and Greg Jackson. In the mile Jones, Jackson, Hoy Henderson and Don Jordan carried the baton.

Coach Lou Vasquez commented that the three relay squads were doing well considering the top flight competition of all two-year colleges.

For the Ram efforts they came in 30th place with a measily three points, as they did not have anyone in the open events. Vasquez added that Henderson could have added a few more points in the 880.—J. L.

Soccer, Football Signups Begin In Gym This Week

Signups for next year's City College soccer team will be held tomorrow in the Men's gymnasium according to soccer coach Roy Diederichsen.

Diederichsen is optimistic about the signups as many players are eager to go out for the team, as we have had success in the past.

In the past, the Ram soccer team has won the state championship the last four years, and Diederichsen has never lost to a two-year college since he took over as coach in 1948.

Some returning players that are expected to be back are All-American Roger Sarria, All-Conference Henry Mejia, Jessie Figueroa, Mickey Duzdevich, Sal Carona and Marshall Granger.

Football signups were held yesterday and will be held for the remainder of the week. All interested men who want to go out for next fall's team should contact Coach Dutch Elston.

No Neck Williams, Jim Lynch Make City College's Sports Hall Of Fame

Two more former City College sports greats were added to the college's Hall of Fame last week. Walter Williams, star of the 1962 baseball team and Jim Lynch, soccer star from the 1959-60 were the two honored.

Williams, better known as No Neck, also played halfback on the Ram football team that year in addition to playing back-up guard on the City College number three cage team in the state.

No Neck batted .370 with six homers and earned an All-Conference outfield spot. One game he went six for seven against San Francisco State.

Currently playing for the Chicago White Sox of the American League, Williams starred as a prep at Galileo High by earning All-City in football, basketball and baseball.

Back in 1959, it was Lynch who started a great Ram dynasty under coach Roy Diederichsen by leading City College to the first of many titles to come. Lynch scored two goals in helping the Rams end a USF 38-game winning streak, and the next week scored both goals in helping lead a 2-0 win over Stanford.

Lynch was named to the 1960 Northern California Intercollegate Conference team.

Williams was a unanimous selection of the judges while Lynch barely beat out Henry King for the other position.

The two join such other standout athletes as Ollie Matson, Gary Lewis, Tom Piggee, Kevin Duggan, Burl Toler, Ralph Hillsman, Louis G. Conlan, Bob Tealer, Alex Darnes and Cleo Cofield in City College's Hall of Fame. —M. D.

RAMBLINGS

By Mike Duggan

'67 Basketball Title Lone Sporting Crown

SPORTSWISE, the spring semester has come to an end at City College with only one Golden Gate Conference title to show for it. The 1966 spring saw the Ram basketball, track, baseball, golf and tennis teams all capture league crowns, but this year only Sid Phelan's cagers could repeat.

The basketballers were loaded with talent, and swept to their second straight unbeaten league title mainly on the work of three frontliners—Willie Wise, Gene Williams and Darling Thomas. The three tall men were backed up by four fine guards—Ray Hearne, Paul Batmale, Larry Gray and Bill Locke.

ERNIE DOMECUS' Ram nine ended their season in second place behind a strong Foothill team. Bill Kirkpatrick's no-hitter against Merritt highlighted the season. Third baseman Maris Pantels, the club's top hitter, enjoyed a fine year both in the field and at the plate.

Roy Diederichsen's tennis team, with last year's star Greg Shephard now at San Jose State, managed to finish fourth in the league championships. Number one man John Wong enjoyed a good year, as did number two man George Zoul.

The Ram golfers also finished fourth, with Coach Grover Klemmer getting good performances all year from Ken Kundert and Doug Boston. Both these men will be back next year to help see if the duffers can regain the crown they won in 1966.

Lou Vasquez, head track coach, also saw his team finish fourth in the conference finals. Track, however, is more of an individual sport, and the Rams had some fine track stars. Distance man Hoy Henderson took the league 880 and anchored the mile relay win in the league meet. Sprinter Ernie Provost started fast by running a 9.6 100-yard dash in the opening meet of the year, then had some leg injuries, but came on strong to finish second in both sprints in the conference meet. David Jones was consistent all year in the 100, 220 and 440 and he also helped the 440 and mile relay teams take firsts in the league meet. Greg Jackson turned from hurdler to sprinter when star Adams Banks got hurt, and did a great job. Provost, Jones and Jackson all are freshmen.

The Ram swim team, without its own pool, did not win a meet in the tough conference, but got some fine performances from backstroke specialist Bill Pasquinelli, freestyler John O'Conner and diver Dave Detert. Also, Frank Cercos and Bruno Van Rijn joined Pasquinelli and O'Conner to complete the medley relay team which did well all year long.

COME SEPTEMBER and football coach Dutch Elston and soccer mentor Diederichsen will try to repeat the championships they won this year. Diederichsen has a record of 97 wins, one tie and no losses against two-year colleges to keep up, while Elston's footballers will be seeking a third straight conference title.

McConico Prospect As 2nd College OJ

But just how will Elston accomplish this without the great O. J. Simpson? Some may think the Rams had better get Johnny Unitas to do the quarterbacking since there will be no running attack without Simpson. The solution in replacing Simpson isn't easy, but Elston can't be too worried!

After all, there is one individual on campus who made the same All-City backfield as Simpson; then attended Cal Poly State College for a year where he set all frosh scoring and rushing records and in one game against San Jose State Frosh went for five touchdowns.

HIS NAME is Wayne McConico, and and he is really looking forward to next season. Incidently, while at Lincoln High, McConico established himself as one of the greatest break-away threats in San Francisco prep history while averaging over 15 yards per carry.

Also, hard-running Calvin Booth, who played behind Simpson and Milt Frank this year, should move into a starting backfield spot. All-City Jon Dyson, who led the AAA in scoring despite playing for a very poor Galileo team, will add still more backfield punch.

Of course, no runner gets far without a line, and with the possibility of such men as Allan Cowlings, Ralph Hodge, Tony Gaetani, Mike Carter, John Monroe, Mike Streich and Mike Deschler being back next fall, Elston's job doesn't really seem so hard after all.

SCHOOL YEAR

1967 — 1968

Guardsman, Critic In Settlement

Council Grants AS Funds, Axes G'man Format

Student Council last week passed a resolution releasing necessary funds for the publication of The Guardsman under a new format.

This has been the first positive action concerning a paper since last semester's council voted to withhold funds pending a restructuring of The Guardsman.

The interim has been filled with proposals and counter-proposals which included a split front page and a two-page insert. Personalities, party affiliations, and journalistic standards have finally yielded to the following compromises:

The student-financed publication will be called The Guardsman/Free Critic.

Page one, and two others, shall remain under the dominion of the students of the journalism department.

One page will be under the authority of Lawrence Lazore whose appointed goal is to express more non-journalistic student opinion.

Under the present set-up, the editors of The Guardsman and of the Free Critic are solely responsible for material contained in their respective publications. This responsibility includes collection, preparation and editing of material; layout of pages, and submission of copy to the contracted printer.

Open this page to behold the results.

The Guardsman / Free Critic

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 65 — SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1967 — NUMBER 1

Christensen Gets Changes From Administration

Associated Student President Rich Christensen, reviewing his six-week-old administration, notes some headway and some hangups in the realization of Change party goals.

Christensen believes that his administration's major achievement was psychological rather than concrete.

"The college's administration treats student government more like equals instead of children," he noted. "The administration's attitude is different now than even last term. We've brought up the level of student government."

He cited his three greatest achievements as the start of gaining more student rights, the Mime Troupe's appearance on campus September 27th and the Student Council's October fourth resolution condemning United States involvement in the Vietnam war.

"I know this resolution will put both me and Change on the spot. But it will also put the college's name on the map, as it were," he said.

Christensen said he plans to bring antiwar and antidraft speakers and literature to the campus.

"We may well get an administrative decision forbidding this activity," he admitted, "but we'll resort to civil disobedience if we have to.

"Many people believe in what we're doing, but nobody wants to get busted for it," he said, flashing a smile. "That's one of the problems.

"It's about time somebody started really providing a choice for students and not just a 'wish-washy-please-everybody' platform," he said.

He claimed victory "in the closest thing to a power play we've had with the administration," the Mime Troupe performance. But he admitted that the antimilitary issue will probably meet more resistance.

He explained Change's primary goal is to overcome the "mundane and mediocre traditions" built up over the years. He said that he wants to get students a greater voice in their own educations.

"But Change is in danger of becoming purely political instead of activist, as it should be," he confided.

Christensen denied that Larry Lazore's Free Critic is a Change production, even though he felt it was one of the best improvements on campus.

He also hopes to extend muni railway car tickets privileges to all City College students.

Victory Bell

LORRAINE BELL, a self-taught baton virtuoso, became the college's first majorette when she appeared during the Ram football team's initial 1967 home game.

Miss Bell is a former head majorette of Galileo High School. Although she now appears solo during games, she urges coeds interested in joining her to meet her in the Associated Student office, B-6, on Tuesdays at 11 a.m.

'All Desires Must Be Fulfilled,' Says Beatles' Prophet

By Viggo Petersen

Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, recently noted prophet and philosopher of transcendental meditation made an appearance recently in Berkeley, spoke on modern living and expounded on the merits of his philosophy of transcendental meditation.

Transcendental meditation is the latest method gaining popular support for those seeking greater degrees of self-awareness.

"If the material gains of an affluent society are responsible for excessive stress and strain on the individual," Maharishi said, "then the gains derived from a materialistic society are not worth the effort.

"If the standard of living on any society is so high as to make people live in despair for want of meaning to life, then the standard of living should be lowered," he said with a gentle lowering of his arm. This suggestion at first drew mild laughter, then cheers of approval.

MAHARISHI, speaking in a very slow, careful, somewhat eerie tone of voice, continued:

"The basis of life is to fulfill desires, both physical and emotional. People can only lead productive, worry-free and happy lives when all their desires are fulfilled."

More cheers.

"Transcendental meditation enables the mind to experience the source of thought. When one experiences source of thought, through transcendental meditation, one is able to develop creative intelligence which enables the mind to develop its full potentiality."

THE SEER HAD few kind words for anything contemporary. On education he said:

"Colleges only fill one's head with facts." In doing so, he said, the individual becomes frustrated. By having his head filled with nothing more than facts, he only thrives for more facts; he becomes more aware of what he doesn't know, and therefore his ignorance increases.

"This is one advantage of not being 'educated'," he said.

More cheers came from the many Cal students in the audience.

On the use of drugs:

"Drugs destroy the body physically and have a tendency to create moods rather than productive means of achieving self awareness. They have little to do with helping a person gain insight into his character and are only a means of temporary escape from reality and can serve no useful purpose in the long run."

DURING A question and answer period many in the audience argued his point about fulfilling desires.

"The essence of life is having desires unfulfilled thereby giving the person something to strive for and adding meaning to his life," was the essence of their argument.

Maharishi had some trouble dealing with some of the quick-witted members of the audience because of his broken English, but finally got across the idea that transcendental meditation helps one to achieve a state of bliss—a state of mind where an individual learns to be satisfied with what he has—thereby his desires are fulfilled."

"How do you feel about the war in Vietnam?" someone hollered.

IN ESSENCE Maharishi replied, "It is more important to concern himself with the state of his internal affairs than to concern himself with the external world of political complications."

This reply set off the biggest round of cheering approval.

Maharishi's appearance in the Bay Area was prominent enough to earn a story on page 2 of The Chronicle.

He has appeared in Time magazine and was recently photographed with the Beatles who have announced strict allegiance to his teachings.

Editorial Comment

Neutrality Charge Shows Councilman's Inconsistency

A FEW WEEKS AGO, a Student Council member attempted to criticize The Guardsman publicly and in his own way paid this paper and its staff the highest compliment any newspaper can receive.

The crux of the councilman's attack was that The Guardsman is "too neutral" and at the same time not "objective."

WE TAKE THE neutrality attack with open arms for it vindicates our intentions and goals. We definitely try to be neutral in issues on campus because past experience has shown this to be the best policy.

The Guardsman is the official publication of the Associated Students of City College. In all student issues there is more than one side and it is impossible to favor one side without, in fact, disfavoring the other.

The Guardsman could not effectively side with one student faction without being grossly unfair to all the others and the others, as students, have every right to expect their opinions to be heard.

On objectivity, the issue becomes strictly a game of semantics. We won't play this game, we will simply ask this councilman a question. "How can one be objective without first taking a neutral position?"

IF WE ARE already neutral, we are halfway to the goal of being the ideal newspaper—an objective one. We agree that it is difficult to be objective, but this is true wherever men have more than one opinion no matter what the situation is among the principals involved.

And just because the councilman deems it impossible to be entirely objective doesn't mean that we should stop trying. We deem it impossible to get by in life without telling a lie, but what would life be like if everyone advocated deception?

Contributions Still Taken

WITH THE REAPPEARANCE of The Guardsman on campus this fall, student readers should be aware of the changes which have been made since last semester.

On this page the student will notice the change in name. The change signifies only that there are two papers herein. The Guardsman still is, in its abbreviated form, a student service.

The Guardsman staff is not responsible for the content of the Free Critic and in no way can be associated with the Free Critic except for the obvious physical juxtaposition.

It should be understood that despite the space already allotted student contributions in the Critic, The Guardsman's letters-to-the editor policy still stands. Letters from students will be honored providing the editor is informed of the student's name.

It is automatically agreed upon reception of the letter that the contents can be edited for space and good taste. Any other changes will be made with the consent of the writer.

The deadline for letters is 10 a.m. on Wednesday, the week preceding the actual publication date of the paper.

Frosh President Suggests Change In Present COO

Freshman President Larry Rodriguez of Change is currently initiating a program to remodel Council of Organizations through Student Council.

"Something must be done, and I'm going to do something to change COO," Rodriquez asserted.

The Frosh president admitted that COO does unite club activities but added that these activities "are not much of anything anyway."

It is Rodriguez's opinion that the various campus clubs should work together in sponsoring activities.

Rodriguez added that a club can come before COO asking for help but receives nothing more than "a pat on the head."

"Thus," Rodriguez continued, "the clubs have nobody to turn to for help."

Rodriguez cited four proposals in revamping the COO through Student Council action.

First, "Council could 'freeze' COO's officers—not impeach them but supervise their activities," Rodriguez noted.

Second, "Council could remove the present officers and have COO elect new ones," Rodriguez offered.

Third, "Student Council can abolish the officers altogether and appoint new ones," the frosh president further suggested.

Rodriguez's final proposal called for the removal of the officers and appointing COO adviser William O'Keefe to work directly with the club representatives.

However, Rodriguez noted that whatever course of action Student Council takes with COO is strictly council's decision.

Rodriguez emphasized that "COO would not be disbanded, but new officers, new ideas and a new constitution will be instituted into a reorganized Council Of Organizations."

Trouble Brews Over Unauthorized Student Literature

A sheath of antidraft literature was confiscated by a Campus Police officer from a cafeteria table last Friday morning.

According to Ross Klutke, Associated Student finance chairman, the literature was his personal property and the officer was not acting within legal bounds.

The confiscating officer declared he was acting in accordance with an established policy which requires the administration's stamp of approval on any literature to be distributed on campus.

Officer Mike Aimola said the literature was prominently displayed on a table at the entrance to the cafeteria and was being taken by entering students.

Dean Ralph Hillsman said that although the officer was not specifically instructed to seize the material, he was acting as directed.

He also stated that the presence of unauthorized material on campus, both in and out of classrooms, was a problem constantly battled by administrative leaders.

The General Regulations as printed in the College Catalogue state, "Only students . . . authorized to do so by the administrative staff of the college may distribute or display on campus any literature . . ."

In order to enforce this regulation, the Campus Police have been instructed to confiscate any literature found without the administration stamp.

The Free Critic

Vol. 1, No. 1 WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1967 Page 1

"These are the days when men of all social disciplines and all political faiths seek the comfortable and the accepted; when the man of controversy is looked upon as a distrubing influence; when originality is taken to be a mark of instability; and when, in minor modification of the scriptural parable, the bland lead the bland."
J. K. Galbraith in The Affluent Society

Recently you read a broadside which asked the question, "Why is there no campus newspaper?", and then answered that question from the point of view of one side of a current debate. We do not intend to enter that debate here, but merely to ask a similar question in order to illustrate a point. The point you will see soon enough, first the question.

Why should there be a campus newspaper? Most of us would agree that the primary purpose of a newspaper is to inform the public. Assuming that is the general purpose; the specific objective is to see that the students of City College know of all events, policies and decisions which affect them as students. You are probably thinking this objective is obviously worthwhile. You are right, and this brings us to another question.

How well is your present paper, The Guardsman, accomplishing the purpose? The Guardsman is under attack. Numerous concerned students have voiced disparagement, notable among them; a majority of the Student Council. Assuming, if you don't agree with this disparagement, you will agree that in human endeavor there is always a chance for improvement; that no matter how fast the race is run, it can and will be run faster; that no matter how precise a watch movement, it can and should be made better. Let us examine The Guardsman to see how it is, and how, if at all, it can be changed.

With the exception of one course (Fundamentals of Public Relations) the Journalism Department and The Guardsman are unified. Everyone taking Journalism works for The Guardsman and vice versa. We can best delineate The Guardsman and the department with the Journalistic inverted pyramid approach; that is, the important facts or functionaries first. If we define important to mean the amount of work done we find the editor in chief and the department head sharing the point (bottom) of the pyramid.

This is how it works. The cub reporters write news stories which are assigned and evaluated by the editors. The ace reporters (one semester or more) write columns, feature stories, etc., similarly assigned and evaluated. The editors decide which stories go into the paper and the copy desk writes headlines and corrects spelling. The editor in chief oversees the operation. All of these persons are enrolled in one or more journalism classes, one of which meets formally and is lectured to by the head of the department. The other classes are conveniences to award college credit to The Guardsman staff. And there you have it.

There is only one rule. Don't rock the boat. It's an unnecessary rule though, everyone is much too happy to do any rocking. The cub reporters are happy because they get four units to write for the paper; something they wanted to do anyway. The editors are happy because they run the paper as they see fit and are also paid with units. The ace reporters, likewise paid, are happy because they will be editors soon. The editor in chief is happy because he is the editor in chief. The department head, whose job is done by the lower editors who evaluate student copy, is happiest of all. The rule needs no enforcement.

If then, The Guardsman needs improving; as all things do, how do we do it? They will resist change. They are resisting right now, but can you blame them.

SF MIME TROUPE PLAYS AT CCSF

Mr. Mead of the Sociology Department, lecturing on the theme of Academic Freedom at a Student-Faculty Symposium, stated "that one of the roles of the CCSF Administration is to serve as a buffer between pressure group influences and the faculty to insure maximum academic freedom in the classrooms." He assured his audience that this facit of administrative duty was well recognized at CCSF. Mr. Mead's words were rather prophetic two semesters later.

Mr. Mead invited George Lincoln Rockwell, head of the American Nazi Party, to lecture before two Sociology classes permitting his students to study a man whose attitudes and behavior can only be construed as deviant to our culture.

Mr. Rockwell lectured and the students were allowed a question-and-answer period. There was no publicity about Rockwell's appearance and few had any knowledge of his presence on the campus. The atmosphere about the lecture was said to be disciplined and orderly, and no students were seen wearing swastikas or goose-stepping as a result of their encounter with Mr. Rockwell. However, members of the Jewish community somehow heard of the lecture and raised hell with the administration over his appearance on the campus. It is said that the office of instruction took a shellacking protecting Mr. Mead's position, but they acted as that all-important buffer insuring the instructor's academic freedom.

This semester, Student Council voted funds for a performance of the sometimes controversial SF Mime Troupe, which was to be given at a suitable College Hour. The administration had reservations about the Mime Troupe's appearance, but allowed arrangements to be made for the presentation. The production was scheduled for September 26th at the Little Theater.

On September 20th, the administration reversed its decision and refused to allow the performance. The chairman of Cultural Affairs Lawrence Lazore requested information on the refusal. It was based primarily on the fear that some outside pressure group might take offense and cause problems for the administration. The administration admitted that the play titled "Olive Pits" was relatively non-controversial and that neither nudity, nor depicted fornication took place, but felt it was not quite the right time for such a performance. Possibly, it could be presented at a later date after it had been previewed at other colleges. Acting President Dr. Luckmann expressed his regrets.

Student Council later that day debated the problem: If the play itself was relatively innocuous and free of erotic material, what right had the administration to refuse its presentation? Dean Wyatt testified that many people in the administration and faculty felt distressed about possible repercussions. Dr. Luckmann had not mentioned faculty opposition to the play.

After the Council meeting, AS President Rich Christensen and Cultural Affairs Chairman Lazore conferred. If the administration acted as a buffer against outside pressures for the faculty, and admittedly stated that the content of the play was not the question, why should the administration be responsible to the students permitting a freer cultural and social atmosphere; if not the administration, who would?

Don Davis, director of the SF Mime Troupe was contacted and the situation explained. He agreed to perform with his own portable stage outdoors on the campus. Student members of council pledged to collect the money by voluntary donation from the students and sympathetic faculty for the performance. Rich Christensen, Lazore and other members of council further pledged to escort the Mime Troupe personally onto the campus.

On September 21st, the administration reversed its decision and granted asylum to the Mime Troupe. It is not known whether the administration was aware of council members' decision for official ratification of the Student Council activity was not voted upon until the following day.

The Mime Troupe played as scheduled, and by all appearances, the audience was delighted and appreciative. Even Dean Wyatt admitted the Troupe was funny.

WHY THERE WAS NO CAMPUS NEWSPAPER

The Guardsman staff has always assured me that honest journalism and objective reporting were values that ranked highest among their pursuits. However, sometimes the finest of our endeavors fail short amid the rivalry and interactions of people and situations. We've all noticed this semester that the campus has lacked news media. On Wednesday, September 27th, The Guardsman editorial board released a two-page sheet titled "Why There Is No Campus Newspaper" which, in the typical Guardsman quest for objectivity and honesty, omitted some pertinent data and in many areas, distorted reality.

Last semester influential members of The Guardsman staff and Change Party met to discuss the problems blocking improvement of the campus news media. Ed Holmes and Glynn Petrie representing The Guardsman assured Change members Ron Melander and AS President Rich Christensen that they held decision-making power over The Guardsman's future policies, and further, that Ed Holmes by virtue of his present position would be the next editor in chief. The meeting focused on such topics as student values, journalistic objectivity, campus needs, etc. The Change people were impressed with Mr. Holmes' journalistic honesty and integrity and his liberal persuasions, and proposed that he be the co-editor of a new paper that would use the talents of The Guardsman staff and reporters and non-journalism class students. Mr. Holmes declined for a variety of reasons, but the largest which loomed central in the minds of the Change people was Mr. Holmes' statements about loosing his Journalism units, and further discussion brought into focus his fears that employment references from Miss Nourse might be lost. "If I do the work of editing a newspaper, I damn well better be paid for it," stated Mr. Holmes. Mr. Holmes countered with the proposal that The Guardsman publication be left just as it is and that the Change members entrust the responsibility for important newspaper changes to him. There was even some discussion that due to the new liberality of The Guerdsman, there was the possibility that a weekly column written by Mr. Lazore might be allowed. The room was getting smokey. I left.

This semester, I arrived at an early Student Council meeting and found members of The Guardsman staff urgently requesting that the needed funds for publication be allocated so that the campus would have a much-needed newspaper. President Rich Christensen promised that the campus would not be deprived of a newspaper. I approached Christensen and council member Bendel with the idea that two newspapers be created with separate staffs, but jointly printed. The Guardsman with its usual production methods, and another with a council-appointed editor and staff. They liked the idea, and working with Miss Bendel, we drew up a council resolution. Miss Bendel presented the resolution on September 18th.

The resolution called for two campus newspapers, with separate staffs, jointly printed and sharing the front page—The Guardsman would occupy half of the front page and all of pages three and four; the new newspaper titled "New Critic" would have the remaining portion. The council block voted on the resolution—Change pro, USA and Independents con. It passed and the allocations were released under those specifications.

On September 20th members of The Guardsman staff appeared at council and stated that the resolution was technically impossible from the standpoint of printing and production and felt that the Council had not debated the issue at any length, nor had they any understanding of the problems of printing such a joint enterprise. The Guardsman submitted an alternative proposal that a six-page paper be created with the "New Critic" occupying a two-page insert. A great deal of debate arose of such differing attitudes and proportions that it was decided that The Guardsman policy board be reactivated to handle the situation. The board consisted of six members—three Guardsman staff, President Christensen, Finance Chairman Ross Klutke, and I was appointed to served as the sixth member. The board was constitutionally created two semesters ago after another council/Guardsman controversy for the purpose of handling Guardsman modifications. The chairing of the board was granted to the editor of The Guardsman, however, he may only preside over the meeting —voting power was weighted to the council's interests.

The policy board met on Thursday, September 21st, however Rich Christensen was not present due to a speech he was making at a rally. As we waited, The Guardsman member of the board beamed to me that The G-man could block any proposal because they have an equal number of votes. I replied that they were in error; the chairman could only vote in case of a tie. They replied that it doesn't say that in the constitution. Ross Klutke arrived. I asked some questions: What is your proposal (to The Guardsman staff)—Answer: a six-page paper. Q. What's wrong with the council's specifications? A: Technilogically impossible. Q: What is technilogically impossible? A: Split front page. Q: Why? A: Format unfeasible. Q: If the format is the decision of the respective editors, why should you concern yourself with what appears on the half page on which you have no authority? A: Editorial responsibility. Q: For both papers? A: (Hera) Yes. Q: But you are not the editor in chief of the proposed New Critic. He didn't answer. I told the board that I would go out and find Rich Christensen.

I met with Christensen after his speechmaking and told him to prepare for a long hassle with The Guardsman staff. I told him that The Guardsman staff was taking a stand on voting policy which necessitated a constitutional interpretation which would take a few days. I related that The Guardsman arguments were of a circular nature beginning with impossibilities and ending with such illogic that even Hera was silenced. They had given us no concrete data for their refusal of council's original specifications. We said that there was going to be an impasse for the next few days.

The following is data that I collected from sources from within The Guardsman office and the administration: 1) Miss Nourse, instructor and advisor to The Guardsman had issued an ultimatum to the administration and the journalism classes that if the specifications to the council resolution were met, she would resign from the class and paper. 2) The Guardsman staff had told members of the journalism class that there would be no Guardsman paper published under council's resolution. 3) An administrator had dangled the prospect that funds might be available from other sources. 4) Miss Nourse and The Guardsman staff decided that no information pertinent to the publishing of a newspaper be released to Lazore until after an agreement had been reached.

On Monday, September 25, council met and listened to The Guardsman complain about the urgency of funds, the possible loss of their printer due to the delay, and the impossibility of meeting the specifications of council's resolution. I replied: The Guardsman people were not negotiating, they were presenting an ultimatum—no data was given to the board to alter the resolution. The council left the problem to the policy board.

On Tuesday, September 26th the policy board met. I was not present due to the Mime Troupe appearance and was unaware of the time of the meeting. Rich Christensen and Ross Klutke and The Guardsman staff reached a gentlemen's agreement that the paper be expanded to The Guardsman proposal, and after the meeting, relayed the information to me. I replied, "If you reward The Guardsman by accepting their proposal after all of the crap they've slung in council and the board meetings, I'll resign as editor of the Critic." Ross Klutke became enraged at my ultimatum and Rich Christensen was caught between cross pressures. That evening we discussed the matter further. I outlined my reasons for refusing to accept The Guardsman's terms: 1) I felt that The Guardsman was lying about the technical limitations—they had produced no data to support their claims. 2) I disliked The Guardsman tactics of screaming to the council about lack of funds and the deprivations of the students, and then taking stands that could only slow negotiations in the policy board meetings. 3) By cutting the size of The Guardsman, the staff would have to modify their own format and prune the paper of some of its traditional superficiality. 4) Miss Nourse has been issuing ultimatums to the journalism classes for many semesters over simular controversies and it was time to swing the power pendulum back to Student Council—I'm tired of hearing The Guardsman fabrication that the students run the newspaper, not Miss Nourse. 5) The Guardsman has always won issues because they have depended heavily on the council's ignorance of newspaper production and have relied on the fact that the journalism class was the only means of feasible newspaper production. 6) I personally felt that the majority of Guardsman staff were suckling on the system of gradepoint rewards and selling out the interests of the students. Rich Christensen agreed and reversed his earlier decision on The Guardsman's six-page proposal.

The council was lively the following day. The Guardsman staff had released a 2-page document titled "Why There Is No Campus Newspaper" that accused Change party of withholding its funds, last semester's Critic of printing false accusations against The Guardsman, Lazore of being a Change party boss in respect to The Guardsman issue, and then advanced proposals previously made by council as their own implementing ideas: "The creation of a second, separate newspaper, to be controlled, written and edited by non-journalism students." It looked good and it seemed to panic and dis-orient a large number of the council. The bombshell of the meeting came when Change member Ross Klutke, hot over my ultimatum of the previous day, made statements that "Lazore is operating against The Guardsman with sinister motivations and is out to destroy The Guardsman." This rocked the council for Klutke's voice carries no little weight in council debates. I replied to Klutke and advised council against accepting The Guardsman proposal on the same grounds I had given Christensen the night before. The meeting adjourned with council referring the matter back to the policy board. Change council members assailed me with the question, "Lazore, what the hell are you doing?" I conferred with Christensen about Klutke's swing to The Guardsman's side. With Klutke's vote, The Guardsman had the power to propose anything it desired. The showdown on the issue would have to come in council; the policy board meeting would only be a formality to accept The Guardsman demands.

At the policy board meeting, we entered in a state of resignation. The Guardsman staff seemed very chipper and Ross Klutke was extremely businesslike. The negotiations began and we wrangled over various problems and orientations. I notice that The Guardsman staff had a peculiar shyness about talking over the split front page. I became curious: "What is the problems over the split front page." Ed Holmes began a statement about technical aspects and unfeasibilities, when Ross Klutke almost blasted us all out of our chairs: "I've had experience in the printing business and there are no real technicalities preventing the printing of a split front page." Hera, The Guardsman editor slipped some details about the lack of bids on council's specifications. I stepped in with a few questions, and Ross Klutke delivered the final blow: "You mean to tell us that all this trouble is over The Guardsman and the Critic's name appearing on the same page?" Summation. The Guardsman staff could produce no supportive data for their refusal to comply with council resolution. The foundation for their hostility of the council resolution was Miss Nourse and The Guardsman staff's hatred of last semester's Critic. Agreements were reached, however The Guardsman staff refused to release any production data, until after the agreements were completed. The result of all these policy board negotiations will be two sloppily-structured newspapers. But The Guardsman wouldn't have it any other way.

HELLO.

This section appearing under the Free Critic masthead is yours. It is open to anyone who cares to participate through free expression for the betterment of our lives.

The Free Critic office is in Smith Hall cafeteria, room S-102. The room is directly across from the silverware dispenser and will be open Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 11:00-12:00, Tuesday and Thursday, 12:00-1:00. Drop in and contribute so that the new Free Critic will not have a blank page next issue.

LAWRENCE LAZORE, Editor

The Guardsman Editorial Page
Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco
ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP
Vol. 65, No. 1 WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1967 Page 2

Vantage Point

by Glynn Petrie

WITH the upcoming mayoralty election, campaign posters will again attempt to wring support for their respective candidates from the public. Once more, colossal faces will grin inanely into space from billboards and wooden fences. Each paste-up will show that its man is the right clean-cut, neighborly, "just-folks" type guy for the job.

SOME BOARDS, reflecting a simplicity-at-all-costs policy, won't even show faces, just names. It is common to see during election time billboards containing nothing but an aspirant's last name in 12-foot high letters as if this is supposed to mean something.

One might become angered at the seeming disregard for issues and emphasis on visages and monikers on the part of the placard designers or whoever creates these moronic ads.

But the fault lies with the public. It has shown a favorable response to idiotic posters (as evidenced by their continued widespread use) and consequently campaign practicality demands that they be used.

After seeing somebody's name plastered up all over town many individuals are inclined to conclude that the name is very popular and then jump on an imaginary bandwagon in support of it.

IT IS A FACT that at least a portion of the public actually decides to vote for an individual on his looks, the mesmerizing impact of his name in commanding red letters or possibly on the more sophisticated basis of a pithy, meaningful policy statement like, "Win with Flynn."

Voters are reluctant to cast ballots unless they know who they are supporting. Knowing what they are supporting runs second, if at all. Rather than issues at stake too frequently it is names and faces at stake with the winner confirming his face appeal and the thoroughness of his poster crew.

This is an unfortunate and dangerous state of affairs. One segment of mass media is manifesting its power over public thought. This cannot be explained or excused away. It is significant to note that these signs are a relatively recent development; billboards and giant faces did not exist at this democracy's inception when people apparently had more complex issues to vote on.

NOW, WITH ALL our technical know-how and supposed political progress and sophistication we employ pictures that say and mean nothing, brightly colored letters and even rhymes to influence our vote. These visual aids are designed to psychologically impel us to do something we are supposed to do with clear-headed intelligence and careful forethought.

It is sad but true that many people feel more familiar with a candidate if they repeatedly see his head magnified 75 times than if they attempt to understand what's inside it. And the worst part of it all is that votes cast for faces count as much as the ones cast for programs and can nullify responsibly exercised opinion.

HOWEVER, insult is added to injury when these same "citizens" turn about and authoritatively hold forth at the bowling alley or over the backyard fence on just what should be done about foreign policy or civil rights or budget appropriations or taxes.

While it is certainly true that many and, hopefully, most citizens do cast responsible ballots, the fact that these bills are used so extensively to get votes indicates that the electorate is not as mature as it demands to be considered and that the democratic process has been warped and misused, not by government or politicians but by a public which allows itself to remain simple and psyehologically pliable.

Musical Directory Filled With Gongs, Songs, Dongs

By Doug Dorn

At this college, 60 Smiths and 54 Jones take second place to 273 Wongs, 243 Lees, and countless Chans. San Francisco's cosmopolitan population is reflected in the college's registration roles even though there is only one "Urban" student, Elizabeth Urban.

There are two Cains to one Abel, but one Free to one Greedy. It takes 273 Wongs to match 6 Wrights.

IT IS WELL known that students flock to San Francisco from all points of the compass, but how many know that there are six Wests, but only a couple Easts, Norths and a few Souths?

The college's Hotel and Restaurant Management courses may be the attraction behind 8 Cooks, 13 Butlers, 3 Butchers and 19 Bakers.

The college's colorful student body is evidenced by the 42 Browns, 9 Greens and Greenes, 7 Blacks, 10 Greys, but no Purples.

THERE ARE 3 Dings to 11 Dongs with only 9 Gongs and 15 Bells. But does Lawrence Pong have anything to do with Henry Ping?

Though the hatchetmen are gone, 21 Tongs still remain at the college.

Running abreast are the two Quicks, two Rushes and two Swifts.

THOUGH NANCY CUTE, Lilly Dear attend the college, Melody Song has the undisputable glory of the most lyrical name around.

Mary Storm moves around the 14 Hills found hereabouts.

There are 50 Ngs, but only 1 Photin Triantafillidis and not many more Pani Veerathanongdechs.

Michale Ryan and Margaret Mead can be found here.

The college boasts 80 Chins, 5 Harts, but only 1 Foote.

But from Robert Aanestad to Adran Zvereff, the college can claim more races, nationalities, normal persons and psychotics than any other college twice its size.

Reports have it there are still students attending classes where they are not officially enrolled. To prevent both embarrassment and arrangement as a climax to mid-term grades, the student named Sneek should sneak a hint to the uninformed.

Focus: Poll Reveals Pans, Plaudits

by Lori Pittman

CITY COLLEGE with a population of nearly 10,000 day students ranging in age from 17 to 70 attracts a variety of people. Their reasons for choosing this college are probably as diversified as they, but their reactions to the campus once they're here are in many eases quite similar.

A random survey was made during the second full week of classes involving some forty students. They were asked two questions: What do you like most about this college? What do you like least?

UNDER THE heading of the most liked the competence of faculty members ranked highest. The fact that the college is free of tuition tied for second place with the feeling that "people are friendly here." Third down the line, but another point not to be ignored, was the accreditation of the college and ease of transferring units.

Three coeds named the simple freedom of choosing their own classes and setting up their own time schedules. ("No one is watching you.") Two men chose coeds.

From there on the answers were almost one to one. The scientific and semiprofessional programs were named along with the Photography and Music Departments. "It offers all of the courses I want," remarked one fellow.

A MATURE COED was fascinated by the "homogeneous racial structure of the students." She referred to them as an "intriguing variety."

Others ranged from the "efficient handling of veterans" to the "good social life through the clubs and organizations." Some were just pleased with their schedules while a few students claimed to be satisfied with everything.

Most people, however, had more gripes than good things to say. Registration, of course, topped the list of the least liked things. The administration's attitude toward students as children and the high-schoolish atmosphere" ranked a close second.

"If you want an education badly enough, you must certainly strive for it here," remarked one coed in referto the hills on campus. Enough students agreed with her to rank the hills in third place with the displeasure of some students toward their own class schedules.

Overcrowding and the lack of parking spaces were followed by the expression of a few students that "the general atmosphere around the college is that it simply isn't a good school."

THE REMAINING individuals had scattered reactions. One man said that his friends at other colleges "look down on this college, but they are wrong." Another claimed that the academic courses are harder here.

Some instructors (no names), student activities, Student Council, lack of schoo1 spirit, attitude of some of the employees of the college, the TV and Radio Department, the weather, too much competition for grades rather than knowledge, not enough lockers, homework—all rated in the least liked.

This survey probably has no real meaning to most people, but it is the basis for what FOCUS is all about. This column wishes to accomplish what its name implies. Some of the problems on this campus cannot be solved in a semester; others need merely to be brought to the attention of those who care.

BY FOCUSING on those problems that can be corrected, there is hope that some pertinent changes can be made. This does not include things like individual schedules, or the hills that engulf the campus. The purpose lies in correctable problems like transportation.

At the very least, maybe something can be accomplished by simply bringing them into the open.

Draft Situation

Few Student Changes In Selective Service Law

Despite controversy, protests and congressional hearings, the new Selective Service law hasn't changed things much, according to John Brady, coordinator of student welfare.

All male students who wish a student deferment (II-S) while attending college are expected to fill out a Selective Service 109 form, Brady said. To the advantage of the male students, however, such a deferment request was included in the book of cards which all students filled out at registration.

"But if anyone got mixed up or neglected to turn in his yellow IBM card (the SS109 request), he had better get into the student welfare office right away. Otherwise they won't receive a deferment," warned the genial Brady. "It would be good to check with us in S-132 if you're not sure," he added.

THE NEW LAW, the Military Selective Service Act of 1967, gives undergraduates automatic deferment, but only if they request it.

A student deferment is forfeited when, in the words of the act, "a registrant completes requirements for a baccalaureate degree, fails to pursue satisfactorily a full-time course of instruction, (a "C" average with 30 units over a 12-month period), or attains the age of 24, whichever occurs first."

THE ACT WAS implemented by President Lyndon Johnson's Executive Order 11360 which makes it clear that student deferments would be granted only on request.

The only major change in the Selective Service Law is the abolishment of class ranking, whereby a deferment was granted on a student's class standing.

Brady disclosed that local draft boards in the area are still taking older men first, instead of 18 and 19-year-olds, as was speculated.

Students must fill out the SS 109 form now and again in February to inform both the college and the local board they are still in college.

ON THE WHOLE, the new law was only a modification of the former Universal Training and Service Act of World War I vintage, and not a major overhaul of the draft system. The new law is considered more-or-less a victory for conservative Representative L. Mendel Rivers, (Dem. S.C.) of the Armed Service committee since the law did not incorporate recommendations from liberals and some student leaders who sought an end to student deferment, among other things.

The new law helped still confusion concerning the entire draft situation. But it by no means settled controversy about the way the United States can raise troops in either time of peace or time of war.

THE NEW LAW gives the President greater discretion in terminating non-medical and post-baccalaureate degrees. But a year's moratorium starting June 30, 1967 on any such action was written into the bill.

But if a chill draft blows around students on City College hill, students can consult Brady—D. D.

College Greenhouse Avoids Stone Throwing

By Tim Brydon

Long ago, only the rich had a greenhouse. The very rich might include an overhead fan to stir the humidity. These people refrained from throwing stones.

If you're in the neighborhood of Harry Nelson and his greenhouses, it might be wise to avoid stone throwing. Nelson is the head of the Ornamental Horticulture and Retail Floristry here. He isn't the type to fool around with.

NELSON ISN'T the often-thought of horticulturist. A skinny guy wearing an apron, with specks dangling from his nose, watering plants. If anyone is under the misconception that this department is feminine, walk by Nelson's office and take a look at the man who runs it. He is muscular, wears a golf shirt and smokes a Santa Fe cigar. His bushy eyebrows and gray hair highlight a stern, suntanned face.

"It may have been the case between 1900 and 1910," said Nelson, speaking of the femininity concept of ornamental horticulture in general.

"But growing plants is one of the most complicated subjects taught at this school," said the man who has been teaching here since 1938.

THE NAME ornamental horticulture has the ring of decorating a Christmas tree. This course, however, requires knowledge in many subjects. Chemistry, soils, botany and plant identification to name but a few.

The student who enrolls in the two-year program will learn planting, spraying, watering, fertilizing, pruning, landscaping, pest and disease identification and many other things. He learns the use of basic tools and instruments.

GRADING IS patterned after the enrollment policy. Enrollment is open to all interested students. If you are interested, passing is no problem.

Job opportunities are limitless. The city hires gardeners, The state's Division of Highways needs landscape architects. Industries also need those with skills learned in this course, etc.

The only major problem is one of the most complicated subjects taught at this school," said the man who has been teaching here since 1938.

THE NAME ornamental horticulture has the ring of decorating a Christmas tree. This course, however, requires knowledge in many subjects. Chemistry, soils, botany and plant identification to name but a few.

The student who enrolls in the two-year program will learn planting, spraying, watering, fertilizing, pruning, landscaping, pest and disease identification and many other things. He learns the use of basic tools and instruments.

GRADING IS patterned after the enrollment policy. Enrollment is open to all interested students. If you are interested, passing is no problem.

Job opportunities are limitless. The city hires gardeners, The state's Division of Highways needs landscape architects. Industries also need those with skills learned in this course, etc.

The only major problem is one of the most complicated subjects taught at this school," said the man who has been teaching here since 1938.

THE NAME ornamental horticulture has the ring of decorating a Christmas tree. This course, however, requires knowledge in many subjects. Chemistry, soils, botany and plant identification to name but a few.

The student who enrolls in the two-year program will learn planting, spraying, watering, fertilizing, pruning, landscaping, pest and disease identification and many other things. He learns the use of basic tools and instruments.

GRADING IS patterned after the enrollment policy. Enrollment is open to all interested students. If you are interested, passing is no problem.

Job opportunities are limitless. The city hires gardeners, The state's Division of Highways needs landscape architects. Industries also need those with skills learned in this course, etc.

Shots At RAMdom

by Ed Holmes

OPENING VOLLEY: It should come as a relief to most that the avowed intent of this column is to not beat a dead horse by reraking the computer registration issue, but... It is interesting to note the unexpected variety of activities that were delayed by Standard Oil's contribution to higher education.

Among the more noteworthy of these was the opening of the resident writers and artists showing in S-337. It was several weeks before the race between custodians and creators was fairly underway, but we're pleased to report that things are now back to their flowery norm.

* * *

POT SHOTS

A Physics 2A class was interrupted last week by a lad returning to claim a forgotten item. Rushing to the back of the room with obvious relief, he recovered his box of Cracker Jacks.

A computer crazed coed was gazing woefully at her program Friday morn and asking passers-by, "Is today Wednesday or Thursday?"

Students are not the only ones who have been harassed during the beginning of this semester. A member of the history department entered class, whipped out his amended roll and recorded 13 straight absences before discovering that he was in the wrong room.

It's hard to miss the bald spot in the lawn between Arts Hall and Science Building. Our much maligned computer could have taken lessons in efficiency from the machine that so speedily denuded the area. In less than a day the grass (green) was stripped off like thick carpet, rolled into jelly-roll-like bundles and trucked away; where we are assured, "it will last forever if kept wet." Does that mean if the landscaping that is supposed to fill the area doesn't take place we can get the old lawn out of hock?

* * *

BARRAGE

Anybody finding out what Hotel and Restaurant has done to make their hamburgers worth a nickel more, please let this column know.

Not all of last year's election issues were as burning as they may have at first appeared. One furor was quietly settled when a fervent group rushing to defend themselves against being called "Commies" belatedly discovered that "Economy" was being discussed —not affiliations.

It takes only ten minutes for ladder-dragging window washers to noisily raise and lower all the blinds in a classroom. The policy at this institution of higher learning is that if an instructor reading familiar lecture notes can struggle along, the students —the only ones who could lose—must somehow cope. Apparently nobody but those students feels that either the windows or the lecture should wait upon the other.

The inconcruity of this abritrary practice was bitterly brought home when, by straining to hear the undaunted instructor of a Poly Sci class, we were informed that, "the withholding of responsibility from people of a responsible age could be a factor in making them anti-social."

FINAL FUSILLADE

The signs are still up in Cloud Hall definitely telling anyone interested enough to read them that "this drinking fountain is not an ashtray." We support a movement afoot to increase this all but unnoticed source of information by adding, "Nor is it an eggplant."

Guardsman Staff—Fall 1967

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 246.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... STEVEN HARA
Managing Editor ..... Lori Pittman
Feature Editor ..... Marty Arbunich
Staff Editor ..... Glynn Petrie
News Editor ..... Ed Holmes
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan

Editorial Assistants: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, Douglas Dorn, John Janigian, Ron Lent, John Le-Tourneau, Viggo Petersen.

Reporters: Berry Brown, Tom Graham, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf.

Cub Reporters: John Bendoritis, Lani Brand, Tim Brydon, Elizabeth Callan, Terance Cantrell, John Carpenter, Rita Carroll, Chris Esteves, Arthur Fanfelle, Jack Forester, Barbara Hamann, Richard Harley, David Hoffine, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Dennis Mundt, Rosita Murphy, David Noren, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom, Steven Sandy, May Ling Wong.

Guardsman Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Noursa

Delta Sinks Rams, 47-19

Team Suffers Worst Loss In 18 Years; Foothill Here Friday

By Mike Duggan

John Tubbs became the first man in history to throw four touchdown passes against City College in leading his San Joaquin Delta team to a big 47-19 win on the Rams' field, September 29.

Tubbs hit on 15 of 25 attempts for 185 yards and scored once on a three-yard run. Despite the one-sided score, the Rams managed to grind out 297 yards rushing but were able to pick up only 46 through the air.

Wayne McConico led the rushers with 129 yards in 13 carries, including a beautiful 35-yard scoring run. Ram fullbacks Willie Lewis and Joe Bell were impressive in picking up 70 and 44 yards respectively. Lewis carried 14 times and Bell four as linemen John Monroe, Mike Deschler, Kevin Shea and Ed Diaz opened good holes all afternoon for the Ram backs.

DELTA STRUCK early, with Tubbs hitting Steve Hubbard for a seven-yard touchdown, and made it 13-0 at the quarter when speedy halfback Pat Matthews plunged one yard to score late in the period.

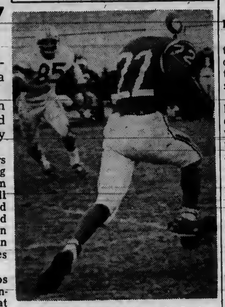
A 25-yard run by McConico and a 17 yarder by Lewis put the Rams within a yard of a first-quarter score, but quarterback John Cercos fumbled the snap on the next play and the Mustangs recovered.

The Rams opened the second period scoring as McConico carried three times for 29 yards and Lewis twice for 31 yards before going over from a yard out.

Delta made it 20-7 at the half when Tubbs found end Dave Potter for a nine-yard touchdown toss following a 51-yard run by Matthews.

San Joaquin put the game out of reach when Tubbs hit Potter again in the third period from 13 yards out and added his own touchdown minutes later to make it 34-7.

TOM MAYFIELD took over for Cercos in the fourth quarter and led the Rams on two scoring drives. McConico's 35-yard scamper and a Mayfield-to-Ralph Bayard pass for 31 yards ran the Ram total to 19, but Delta were themselves scoring twice to end the worst Ram defeat in over eight years. San Mateo beat the Rams 56-14 in a 1960 game.



It wasn't until the final period that the Rams managed a first down by passing. The hard-hitting game resulted in the ejection of 310-pound Auly McNeil of the Mustangs and the Ram's Ralph Hodge. Hodge was impressive in leading the Ram front line in dropping Tubbs for a total of 34 yards in losses, but the Ram pass defense left something to be desired.

The Rams were hurt again by injuries as Allan Cowlings, Kevin Devine and Tony Gaetani were unable to suit up.

The Ram gridders will attempt to repeat their 47-13 win over Foothill last year when they play host to the Owls on Friday beginning at 2:30 p.m.

Foothill, like the Rams, also met defeat in their two preseason encounters. Both DeAnza (13-0) and American River beat the Owls.

Foothill boasts two fine freshman running backs in Bob Bahlman and Terry Roselli.

STAR HALFBACK Wayne McConico is on his way to a 35-yard touchdown in game against San Joaquin Delta. —Guardsman photo by Mike Reama

Beavers Squeeze By Rams, 26-24, In Upset Victory

By Arthur Fanfelle

City College of San Francisco's Ram footballers traveled to Sacramento, September 15, and met a tough American River Beaver team which upset them, 26-24, in a game that saw the Rams' fourth-quarter rally fall short.

With the Rams trailing, 26-12, in the fourth quarter and only 8:50 remaining in the game, John Cercos, Ram quarterback, came into the game and promptly led the Rams downfield. Cercos lofted a 58-yard scoring bomb to sure-handed end Craig Johnson. The score stood at 26-18, as the Rams' bid for the two-point conversion failed.

The Ram defense held the Beavers and gained possession on their own 28-yard line following an American River punt. Cercos then proceeded to mix his plays well, moving the ball down to the Beaver 30-yard line. With time running out, Cercos dropped back, and with no time on the scoreboard clock he passed to Johnson once again in the end zone for the score. But the Ram rally went for naught as the pass attempt for the two-point conversion failed.

The Beavers scored first when flankerback Burl Hicks outran the Ram cornerbacker to catch a 23-yard touchdown pass. The Beavers struck again when they called on workhorse halfback Terry Kline to catch a four-yard pass for the score, making it 12-0 in favor of American River.

In the second period quarterback Tom Mayfield led the Rams in for a score, with former Lincoln High star McConico taking the ball in from four yards out.

The Ram defense, however, could not halt the American River attack, and the Beavers scored again when Mike Oreno threw a 37-yard scoring strike to Hicks. The Rams had the only scoring opportunity in the third quarter. They marched downfield with the help of penalties, and Calvin Booth went in to score from one yard out, reducing the Beaver lead to a 19-12 margin.

The offensive line of the Rams was not at top form as outstanding guards Mike Deschler and Tony Gaetani missed the game due to injuries. The defensive line was without the services of James McEldry, and All-Conference tackle Alan Cowlings was injured in the first quarter and missed most of the contest.

Soccer Team Ties NCAA Champs, 1-1, Also Wins 99th Consecutive Game

By John LeTourneau

Al Chu's second half goal enabled the City College soccer team to tie defending NCAA champion USF, September 28 at Balboa Stadium by the score of 1-1.

Coach Roy Diederichsen had very high praise for the defensive efforts of the entire squad. "USF played us with their best personnel throughout the contest, and both teams played an excellent game," the Ram mentor commented.

THE RAMS almost pulled out the victory when Otey Cannon scored late in the game, but an off-side penalty disallowed the goal. These were the only goals in the entire contest. Both coaches agreed that both squads are on an equal basis with each other.

The newly formed City College Junior Varsity has been rolling along with wins over Diablo Valley's J.V. and Washington High School. Diederichsen praised the work of Jesse Figueora, who has been helping Diederichsen coach the J.V. team.

Today the Rams have their stiffest competition in the Western Junior College Soccer Conference, when they face Merritt on the T-Birds' field.

HENRY MEJIA scored two goals and set up three more to lead the City College soccer team to its 99th straight Western Junior College Soccer Conference win in a 14-4 victory over Diablo Valley, September 25, on the losers' field.

Diederichsen also praised Chu and Jerry Tigue, who scored five and three goals, respectively. However, it was Mejia's all-around fine play and team leadership that was the big factorin the game. "Mejia, Chu and Tigue played excellently for us as they carried the load by scoring 10 goals between them," Diederichsen commented.

As the Ram offense was outstanding, the defense, according to Diederichsen, needs plenty of work. "Usually we're very tough on defense but against the Vikings we made too many mistakes," added Diederichsen. The Ram mentor pointed out that if the defense doesn't improve, there will be very tough games with Merritt and San Mateo.

DIEDERICHSEN reported that Merritt and San Mateo will be the teams to beat in the conference. "However, we should be right there with them, as our squad has been playing very well together," he commented.

The Rams have only four returning lettermen from last year's championship team, led by All-America left halfback Roger Sarria. Also returning are left fullback Marshall Granger, right wing Mickey Duzedevich, Sal Corona at inside right, and inside left Mejia.

Diederichsen mentioned that there are six promising newcomers who could give the Rams a balanced attack. Chu, Tigue, Cannon, Tony Bennett, and Peter and Paul Bogataosky will be fighting for all positions along with the veterans.

Although lacking the experience of the past Ram teams, this year's squad will depend on a complete team effort to win. Diederichsen added that the scoring load will be divided equally, since there will be inexperience on the front line.

The T-Bird game according to Diederichsen will be the toughest conference game of the year. "They have two front line All-Amricans, and are very tough defensively," Diederichsen commented.

The Rams travel to Santa Clara October 18, and play the Broncos in a non-conference game. "This game will prepare us for the upcoming game with arch-rival San Mateo," Diederichsen added. The Bulldogs are always one of the finest teams in Northern California, and this year is no expection. Like Merritt, they are led by two All-Americans.

Joe Nuxhall became the youngest major leaguer ever when he pitched a game for the Cincinnati Reds in June of 1944 at the age of 15.

Spikers Sixth As CSM Takes First

City College's cross country team placed sixth, in a field of twelve, in the Golden Gate Invitational Team Race on Saturday, September 30, in Golden Gate Park.

San Mateo won the meet handily and is now a definite favorite in the coming conference season. Following San Mateo were Sacramento, Chabot, San Jose, Diablo Valley and City College.

San Mateo, which looks like the real class of the league this year, took both first and second spots in the race. Scores for this race were calculated by totaling the times of the first five runners for each team. The first five finishers for the Rams were Jose Garcia, John Benderitis, George Haza, Bob Aamestad and Fred Forsberg.

The Ram conference season opens tomorrow in a tri-meet with Merritt College and San Jose City College on Merritt's course in Oakland. This meet could develop into a tight duel between the Rams and San Jose as they finished very close in the invitational.

Phelan Opens Basketball Tryouts Next Monday

Defending Golden Gate Conference champion basketball coach Sid Phelan will be welcoming five returning veterans, and is opening tryout Monday in the men's gymnasium.

Heading the returning veterans is Ray Hearne, a starter on last year's team. Also coming back are Mel Jones, Gary Bradford, and Isaiah Pruitt. Two-time All-City star Telvis Jones leads the newcomers.

Swim coach Curt Decker also announced that sign-ups for the team will be held Monday, in the men's gymnasium.

Labelled And Recorded

Eric, Ginger Topping For Cream

by Marty Arbunich

WHEN ENGLAND'S Cream came to town late August they nearly blew the top off Fillmore Auditorium. It's quite understandable.

Ginger Baker had just finished wailing away 15 minutes of drums on Toad when Eric Clapton silenced his guitar, turned to the Fillmore audience, seemingly an endless sea of faces, and while pointing to his nearly exhausted drummer on the pedestal behind shouted, "That's Ginger on drums — Ginger Baker!"

THE RESPONSE Clapton received was unusual for a group—a new one at that—playing its very first U.S. engagement. Somehow the fortunates seated on the floor below managed to rise, joining the mass already standing and together they let loose with an applause (of the grand slam variety) which could only be expected after such a remarkable performance.

Cream were glad, or it at least seemed so when Clapton and bassman Jack Bruce cried out, "I'm so glad . . . I'm glad, I'm glad," setting off their finale and one of the favorite Cream numbers.

BY THE TIME I'm So Glad had run its course, Clapton was alone on the stage (Ginger and Bruce unbelievably slipped away almost unnoticed) soloing brilliantly on guitar. Their striking one final note, he laid his instrument on the stage floor and walked into the crowd.

The sound was still droning from the amplifiers three minutes later when a stage hand ascended the staircase, stamped out his cigarette and fingered a switch. There was immediate silence, then a stirring. Needless to say, the violent roar that followed was not intended for him.

Cream are simply fantastic and there's no other way of putting it. A critic normally sticks his neck out when admitting a group has the greatest instrumentalists alive, but in the case of Eric Clapton and Ginger Baker there's no need to evade the truth.

They're best.

CLAPTON'S BEEN around for some time, originating with the very early Yardbirds, later with his own Powerbouse and John Mayall's Bluesbreakers.

It's easy to see, especially after studying his present work with Cream, that Eric's the top blues guitarist in the business. Others like Jimi Hendrix, Mike Bloomfield and Peter Green are nibbling at his heels, but Clapton's work is mature, polished and ranging; his rivals, for the most part, lack his experience with different forms of music.

HIS STYLE is raw and savage and comes on like the inhuman cry of a barbarous tiger. And he solos incredibly on both stage and record.

Keith Moon (Who) and Dino Valenti (Raseals) have been noted as the two most intriguing drummers of the day, and, next to Ginger Baker, they may very well be.

Ginger pounds his drums as if he were a raving madman. Though it's an astounding accomplishment, Toad on record is a mild account in comparison to what he does on stage. It's five minutes long on disc and roughly three times that length on stage, not to mention Ginger's own sporadic improvisation and extended drum roll.

CREAM HAS AN album, by the way, with another due out any day. Their first collection, Fresh Cream, is excellent. Rollin' And Tumblin', Cat's Squirrel, Sweet Wine, I'm So Glad and, of course, Toad are outstanding, something well worth the price.

However, nothing really compares to what they do in person.

Let's hope for an in-concert LP. Better yet, see Cream when they return to Fillmore.

'TIS A HAPPENING . . . A sellout crowd is expected for Berkeley Community Theater's two concert set with the Doors this Sunday (3 and 7:30 p.m.). Tickets are available at the S.F. State box office.

Electric Brain Blows Fuse

Students Broil While Computer Foils

By Tom Graham

The word computer, which has taken on a new connotation for City College students after this fall's registration, has caused much discussion, argument and maybe even a few fights.

When uttered in the presence of some students, it seems to create the same raction that one would expect from a Puritan upon hearing a four-letter word being verbalized.

The computer itself was rented by the administration presumably to speed up and insure accuracy in registration. How 250 students wound up with last semester's schedules is still a mystery.

AFTER COMPLETING counseling procedures prior to this semester, students filled out course cards indicating time preferences and working hours. The five-hour breaks in between classes of many students may be termed a technical boo-boo. Then again, it may be some new concept developed to supplement physical education—running wind sprints around campus while wondering what to do with yourself for five hours, is not only good for the legs but also keeps the lungs in good running condition.

The computer was to supply the student with information regarding the number of units and courses that he would be taking for the current semester, the names of the instructors and the times and room numbers of the classes.

ONE GIRL TOLD her counselor, before registration, that her doctor suggested she be put in a restricted physical education program, the computer digested this information and made its own suggestion—Intercollegiate Athletics for Men. Which presently, by the way, is varsity football.

Come first day of gymnasium classes, another girl found herself in men's boxing, while her male counterpart or computer mix-up, reportedly a fellow named Terry, was over in the women's gymnasium trying to engage in a body contact sport.

ANOTHER STUDENT complained that he received a Spanish lab without the lecture course; the ironic thing is that he's never taken Spanish —which would make for an interesting class.

The list is endless—students with blank registration cards, students who are enrolled in classes that they're ineligible for, etc.

The administration claims that the computer registered approximately 10,000 students in 23 minutes.

Lloyd Luckmann, acting president of the college, estimated that about 20 per cent of these day students found it necessary to go to counselors to iron out mistakes made by the computer.

Of course the computer has its good points too and the minute that they're discovered they'll be reported.

Diane Lattimer New AS President

The Guardsman / Free Critic

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 45 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1967 NUMBER 2

Christensen Lacks Units—Claims To Be 'Sick, Tired'

After being informed of his disqualification for holding office, Richard Christensen resigned his position as President of the Associated Students last week and turned over the office to Diane Lattimer, vice president.

Christensen tendered his resignation,, effective 12:10, October 11, at the Wednesday Student Council meeting with a prepared statement of his reasons for stepping down from the top student post.

THE FORMER CHANGE party leader declined to voice his reasons to Student Council but instead passed out a mimeographed statement sheet. It read, in part, that Christensen was "sick and tired of . . this so-called Student Government and many of the people in it."

Christensen was also "thoriughly (sic) dismayed and disgusted at the lack of concern for progressive action on this campus, and at the general unwillingness of many members of this body (Student Council) to behave as reasoning human beings."

Change party has a majority on council; Christensen did not make it clear who were the many unreasoning human beings.

THE EX-PRESIDENT neglected to include in his reasons for resignation that he was being disqualified from his position because he has not attended any of his classes, except Student Leadership, for the past several weeks and has consequently been dropped from the rolls of several courses. The AS Constitution provides that a member of student government carry 12 units at the college.

When James Wyatt, dean of student activities, informed him of his disqualification, Christensen was carrying only three units in addition to a student leadership class. The three units were in a philosophy class that Christensen had not attended since the semester began.

THE FORMER COUNCILMAN has already completed four semesters at City College and had stated before that his only reason for staying on an extra semester was to be AS President and to further the political aims of Change party.

One of these aims was the creation of a new AS Constitution that would lower the unit requirements for members of student government. The constitution was submitted to council for consideration by his fiancee, Change party council member Mathys Bendel, on the day Christensen was forced to resign.

However, the regulations regarding unit requirements in the proposed constitution did not go far enough to maintain Christensen in office.

ANOTHER STUDENT officer disqualified from office was Change councilman Carl Griffith who also was not carrying the required number of units. The computer foul-up had cut Griffith's total number of units below the required level of 12, but he had made no attempt to add units subsequent to initial registration.

Miss Lattimer succeeds Christensen, leaving the AS vice-presidency's spot open. Elections will be held shortly to fill this position and the council seat vacated by Griffith.

New President

DIANE LATTIMER, former Associated Student vice president, ascended to the position of AS president last Wednesday, when President Rich Christensen resigned from his post.

MISS LATTIMER is the second woman with this distinction. The first, Mary Frances Malone, ascended to the presidency when the incumbent was inducted into government service in April of 1941.

Petitions For AS Elections Available In B-5

Petitions for the Associated Student Vice Presidency and for one Frosh Councilman will be available in B-5 up until Friday, according to Election Commissioner Tony Taromina.

Election day has been set for October 25, and interested students are advised to make an appointment to see Taromina as soon as possible.

The following are the requirements for the AS Vice Presidency:

"1. Shall have completed 42 units and have no more than four completed semesters before taking office.

"2. Must be an active member of the Associated Students.

"3. Must carry a 2.0 grade-point average with a minimum of 12 units from the previous semester.

"4. Must maintain a 2.0 grade-point averag with a minimum of 12 units during his term of office."

The requirements for Frosh Council:

"1. Shall have completed at least 12 units but not more than 27.5 units before taking office.

"2. Must be an active member of the Associated Students.

"3. Must carry a 2.0 grade-point average with a minimum of 12 units from the previous semester.

"4. Must maintain a 2.0 grade-point average with a minimum of 12 units during his term of office."

Bazaar Shows Exotic Postage

Stamps from all over the world will be featured when the International Relations Club presents "something different" in the form of a Stamp Bazaar. This bazaar, which the club hopes will eventually become an annual event, is to be held during College Hour tomorrow in C-258.

IRC believes that philatelists around the campus will be interested to learn that there will also be an opportunity for trading stamps at the bazaar, as well as time to just view and ask questions about the various stamps that will be on display.

The International Relations Club is a college organization which is designed to promote good relations between foreign and American college students attending City College. It sponsors many other events which attempt to fulfill this purpose of good relations besides the Stamp Bazaar. One such other event is a fall dance which is to be held this year on Friday, October 27.

The dance will have a Halloween theme, and Lidia Baranda, secretary of the International Relations Club this semester, expects a good turnout of both foreign and American students to the bazaar and danee, she said, since "the dance is open to the whole campus and we hope many students will attend."

Miss Baranda added that both the bazaar and the dance, which is to be held in Smith Hall from 9 p.m. until midnight, provide a good chance for meeting many different kinds of people and a great opportunity for learning about a foreign student's native country, exchanging diverse opinions and comparing ideas.

Placement Service Works Hard For Job Seekers

The City College Placement Service is once again working hard to secure job openings for interested students of the college concerned with making some extra cash.

"Skills dominate the employment market in the San Francisco Bay Area as colleges and universities open their doors to thousands of students, many of whom must find part-time work to continue their education," according to Joseph A. Amori, director of placement, City College of San Francisco.

According to Amori, the demand for part-time jobs has increased approximately 25 per cent on the City College campus because of the large student population growth coupled with a decrease in the College Work-Study budget for fiscal 1967-68, nationwide on all college and university campuses.

MAJOR FACTORS leading to the elimination of a great many students from consideration as applicants for part-time employment are lack of productive skills and inflexible study schedules.

Amori explained that this combination "eliminates approximately one-third of the applicants applying for part-time work at the City College placement center during a semester with an applicant registration of 3500 students."

Amori ranked clerical skills as the jobs that are in demand more readily than any other. Jobs calling for typing skills at $1.50-$2.50 per hour rank first in demand in San Francisco with typing and shorthand in second place. There is a 50-cent differential for the shorthand skill. Accounting rates third in demand with sales and stock work in fourth and fifth place. The pay is about 5 per cent ahead of last semester.

Many new job opportunities will be created beginning this month when several large chain stores plan on opening in San Francisco. A demand for qualified workers in sales and stock work, mostly for women applicants will prevail. Appearance and previous work history in sales are the primary considerations.

A BRISK DEMAND for qualified restaurant workers also exists in several establishments with job chanees for cooks and the like. The hours of work exist in afternoon, evening and weekend shifts. Jobs pay from $1.75-$2.50 per hour. Appearance and cleanliness are highly essential, in addition to the culinary skills. These job offers are not made to beginners, and experience plays an important part in the final choice of personnel. Several weekend jobs are available in San Francisco also.

Amori pointed out that job openings for men are found in the service station areas. Experienced service station operators are in heavy demand in San Francisco. Here, as in other job openings, the appliecant must furnish references attesting to his experience as a lubrication and fuel specialist. A few stations will accept inexperienced applicants provided they demonstrate mechanical skills and aptitude. Day, night and weekend shifts are available.

THE FEDERALLY-sponsored College Work-Study program budget has been cut this year on all college and university campuses. However, there are opportunities remaining for qualified students. The criteria include: (1) American citizenship (2) Scholarship aptitude as demonstrated by grades in 12 units of work (3) economic need in accordance with established standards. Students qualifying will be placed in jobs on the campus for periods ranging from five to 15 hours maximum per week.

Any students interested in any type of placement services—jobs, career planning and counseling, employer referral and the like—can report to S-188 between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Fraternity Rushing In Full Swing Until October 29

Fraternity rushing, now in full swing, will continue through October 29, according to the Inter-Fraternity Council, and will be followed by a week of pledging, commonly called Hell Week.

Chairman of the Inter-Fraternity Council, Buzz Kribs, announced that new members may apply to any of the six fraternities on campus until November 3. Those wishing further information, he said, may contact any of the IFC officers, or James Wyatt, dean of student activities, in Bungalow 5.

Commenting on the obectives of fraternities, Kribs explained that while affording its members a great diversity of social activities, for amusement or just plain fun, and the other amenities of group association, fraternities serve the community and society more directly through their service programs.

These programs include charity work, blood drives, tutoring programs and similar benevolent activities.

He also expressed regret over the "common" notions held by some students who believe fraternities are nothing but prestigious cliques for status seekers. The purpose of fraternities, he emphasized, is to provide a means by which students can actively partieipate in community life, and have a good time doing it.

Mandolin Club Plays Tomorrow During C-Hour

The Keio Mandolin Club of Keio University, Tokyo, will perform as part of City College's Fall Festival of concerts, lectures and dramas, during College Hour tomorrow in the College theater.

Founded in 1910 by Adolfo Sarcori, an Italian opera singer, the Keio Mandolin Club's orchestra includes in its score various types of music with an emphasis on operatic material in its performances.

This unique orchestra is composed of 24 mandolines, guitars, bass, percussion, flutes and clarinets with 45 musicians presently touring the Pacific Coast.

Professor Tadashi Hattori, president of the Japan Composer Federation, professor of music at the Kunitachi Academy, and former conductor of the N.H.K. Symphony Orchestra, will conduct the performance.

A noted soprano who has appeared on the Ed Sullivan show, Masako Toda, will appear with the Keio Orchestra.

Four years ago this group performed at the college to an overflow of students, Warren White, concert and lecture series faculty committee member, said. "This group is peculiar and fascinating," he commented, "since they perform with 24 mandolins which are equal to the guitar of 1910."

Women Moving Out Of Home, Into The Office

By Viggo Petersen

The idea behind the old adage, "a woman's place is in the home," is pretty well outdated these days.

According to statistics recently revealed by the registrar's office, there were, between the summer of 1965 and the spring of 1966, almost as many women students graduating from City College in semiprofessional careers as there were men.

During that period a total of 176 women students graduated with A.A. degrees as compared with 243 men students. This is approximately three-fourths the number of men students.

AMONG WOMEN STUDENTS, the most popular course of study for that period was, by far, business education where a total of 73 women graduated compared with 34 men, indicating the women students' extreme willingness to go to work.

These statistics revealed by the registrar's office coincided fairly well with the overall picture of the working woman in the United States as a whole.

The comparison between the working female in the U.S. and abroad draws quite a striking contrast. The closest American competitor is Sweden where 58 per cent of her women are employed.

In central Europe, the figures hover somewhere between 40 and 50 per cent and in the south, in Spain and Italy, the figures reach their lowest point at between 20 and 30 per cent.

The low percentile of women employed there is attributed both to economic factors as well as to the upbringing of the young.

LATIN GIRLS learn from the earliest age that the duties of a married woman is to raise a family. Her first and foremost allegiance is to her husband and children.

She learns that she has one objective in life and one only—to please a man. If she succeeds in this her goal in life is complete and she is satisfied. If she cannot meet this responsibility, her main purpose in life has failed.

OF LATE, however, with the increasing improvement of living conditions in these countries, this kind of ideal situation (for the male at least) is changing somewhat. As a woman in either of these countries enjoys some of the same comforts of the American housewife, she too may realize a greater sense of independence and be drawn into the big cities seeking a career.

But for the present, as least, in the smaller villages where scrubbing sheds are still a familiar sight and the average family wash might take the better part of the morning or afternoon, it will be the same for awhile.

No Interest Kills New History Course

The African Civilizations history course originally scheduled for the spring semester will not be offered due to the lack of response from students.

Last year's Student Council recommended this particular course which consists of African pre-history and native cultures, the age of discovery and colonialism and the rise of modern nation-states.

Acting Coordinator of Instruction John L. Billwiller commented, "One of the reasons the course was not offered is because only six individuals expressed an interest." Consequently the course was dropped.

There is a slight chance that African Civilizations may be offered in the evenings provided enough students are interested and if a qualified instructor is available, according to John Gerstung, chairman of the social science department.

The Free Critic

Vol. 1 No. 2 WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1967 Page 1

King And Country
An Anti-War Film

"After the incomplete victory of the Marne . . . with the advent of winter, came the slow deadly sinking into the stalemate of trench warfare. Running from Switzerland to the Channel like a gangrenous wound across French and Belgian territory, the trenches determined the war of position and attrition, the brutal, mud-filled, murderous insanity known as the Western Front that was to last for four more years . . . the miracle of a better world glimmered beyond the shell-pitted wastes and leafless stumps that had once been green fields and waving poplars. Nothing less could give dignity or sense to monstrous offensives in which thousands and hundreds of thousands were killed to gain ten yards and exchange one wet-bottomed trench for another. When at last it was over, the war had many diverse results and one dominant one transcending all others: disillusion. 'All the great words were cancelled out for that generation,' wrote D. H. Lawrence in simple summary for his contemporaries." – Barbara Tuchman, The Guns of August–afterward.

The grotesque irony of warfare is captured in an almost silent, cinematic prologue as the camera focuses from the sky to a WWI monument, and is allowed to slowly pan across bronze-cast and granite relief soldiers depicted in postures of heroism and death, who sweat and grimace pushing the cassions against the enemy, and interspersed are the sounds of drums, marching men, rolling equipment and stills of the dead carcasses and denuded landscapes of the battlefield; an extraordinary moment that leaves its audience brooding and establishes the mood of the story.

This is the grim, brutal atmosphere that permeates Joseph Losey's King and Country, a study of men corrupted by fear and horror of trench warfare, and of a man who tires of the bloodshed and wanders off away from the sound of the guns and into a court-martial and execution. King and Country chronicles the last twenty-four hours of a life dependent on the decisions of officers devoid of compassion and sensitivity who are driven by a calloused and myopic sense of duty.

Tom Courtenay's performance as the bewildered deserter whose honesty and naivety grease the mechanisms of his courtmartial, and is dramatically contrasted against the fatalism of the other officers and men. In an environment of putrifying muck, rats feeding on rotting corpses, and frustration, he plays the sacrificial lamb dedicated to the gods of doom, misery, futility and patriotic duty.

The contemptuous officer routinely assigned to defend the deserter and aware of the improbability of his defense, is played by Dirk Bogarde, who is eventually moved by the sincerity of the soldier and labors to resist the inevitable outcome of the trial. What are we all fighting for, he asks, if we can't offer justice to one individual? And he is answered after the trial by the cynical prosecutor: "That was a childish tactic pleading for justice before the law." The rest of the cast is excellent.

The climax of King and Country leaves its audience emotionally shaken and shattered. When the curtains close and the lights of the theater brighten, you will exit silently from your seats almost sweating from an ordeal of witnessing a grotesque vision of war's debauchery on mankind. King and Country is now playing at the Surf Theater.

Losers In The Game Of Education

On the Stanford and Cal campuses the students are expected to play the Education Game. That means putting abstract thinking first, yourself second.

But playing the game can cause severe emotional damage. It makes many young persons into sheep. It dams up springs of passionate creativity that society dearly needs.

These conclusions were reported yesterday by the managers of a massive study of students on the two campuses by 18 psychiatrists and psychologists. One of the prime investigators, Harold A. Korn of Stanford, concluded: "Dropping into place can be fully as serious as dropping out of school."

Austere professors who build academic walls around themselves–playing the education game – "to some extent . . . produce the 'anti-intellectuals' they complain about," according to a 666-page report on the investigation.

The student research was done through tests, questionnaires and interviews involving members of the class of '65. It was directed by Joseph Katz, a former psychiatric researcher at UC's Cowell Hospital who now is research coordinator for Stanford's Institute for the Study of Human Problems.

"For most students, the academic offerings of college do not connect adequately with their own personal motivations," Katz observed–so life energy does not flow into the classroom.

Colleges consistently encourage abstract thinking "at the expense of more exposure to experience and of bringing deeply felt emotions into the open," the psychologists reported.

One result, he asserted, was that major life decisions–including choice of marriage partners and careers–often were made by default.

"The adolescent," Katz wrote in his summary of the study, "likes to work with great ideas, comprehensive in scope, and his ideas are closely related to his own emotions, confusions and gropings.

"He uses ideas both as a guide out of his confusion and as a way to savor ideally what he cannot yet experience emotionally, sensually or in relations with other people."

In contrast, he wrote, "The professor is aghast at the inaccuracies, grandiosities, vagueness, confusions and emotionalities of the student's ideational production.

"He wishes to clamp down almost immediately and give the student a sense of what cool, detached, accurate scientific investigation is like, whether in history, literary criticism or in physics."

"The student can conform if he must, because his previous training has already taught him what the coin of the realm is. But it is not what he likes to do, and he gets the sense that his own ideational products are unworthy. He feels humiliated and inept . . ."

These generalizations were based on intimate probing into the student's attitude and activities by the blue-ribbon investigators, who included Nevitt Sanford, a psychologist whose in-depth personality studies of Vassar women inspired the Katz project.

Every filament of student life was examined, from inmost sexual yearnings to drinking patterns. The investigators looked far into what happens in different living groups, into what students read, into how they feel about their mothers and fathers and friends.

There were special studies of authoritarianism in students and of the personalities of the Berkeley Free Speech Movement activists, a very small minority.

Korn, in reporting on a special study of student career interests and choices, complained that "much of the structure of higher education encourages them to master complexity of academic subject matter and put aside questions of personal relevance."

Katz concluded that in the career hunt "the student makes no firm decision, but somewhat halfheartedly moves along, doing the required things when their time comes, e.g., declaring a major, choosing a graduate or professional school . . . while he has more or less strong mental reservations and does not really feel committed."

Korn asserted that the "emphasis in our society upon achievement as a vehicle for the attainment of something else is both pervasive and pernicious"–and described the system of working hard in high school to get into college, where hard work gets you into a good-paying job in the outer world.

"The potential freshness of approach and passionate involvement of the adolescent are qualities we search for in many segments of the adult world," Korn wrote. But he concluded, these qualities are "hard to find because many of our educational procedures systematically train individuals to deny them."

In the career hunt, he reported, "what tends to happen is that the pressure to decide is so great that the individual begins to feel there is no time for genuine exploration."

He concluded that the "choices are not so much an indication of wise planning as the result of a need to stay in step with a demanding time table."

The problem, Korn asserted, is that "the whole structure of higher education is designed to look at external signs of success and, more rarely, to focus on the needs of the individual."

EDITOR'S NOTE: The preceding material was excerpted from a three-part series by Donovan Bess of the S.F. Chronicle. It is reprinted for the students of CCSF as a public service.

HELLO.

This section appearing under the Free Critic masthead is yours. It is open to anyone who cares to participate through free expression for the betterment of our lives.

The Free Critic office is in Smith Hall cafeteria, room S-102. The room is directly across from the silverware dispenser and will be open Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 11:00-12:00, Tuesday and Thursday, 12:00-1:00. Drop in and contribute so that the new Free Critic will not have a blank page next issue.

LAWRENCE LAZORE, Editor

Student Council Dissents Over Viet Nam And The Draft

Last semester, members of Student Council acting on personal conscience and commitment and in reaction to the administration's confiscation of some Vietnam Week posters, passed a resolution recognizing Vietnam Week. This resolution slammed hard into traditional attitudes and concepts relating to student leadership prerogatives on matters as volatile as Vietnam and caused considerable havoc in the council. The resolution was naturally a Change resolution. AS President Parnell, a USA party member vetoed the resolution and a controversy ensued in both council and the pages of the Critic.

The central questions of the controversy were these: 1) Do members of the council have the right to speak for the majority of students on matters controversial? 2) Does the council have the right to pass resolutions pertaining to off-campus activities? 3) What is that line delineating a councilman's right to speak or pass legislation commiserate with his own values and commitment and those wishes of an unknown and unascertained majority opinion? 4) Does the administration have the ethical right to prevent student participation in off-campus issues such as Vietnam?

After AS President Parnell's veto, as editor of the Critic, I took a stand against Parnell for these reasons: 1) There is no majority opinion on any issue–only 15-20 percent of the students have ever cast baliots in a CCSF election; therefore, if a student leader shows preference on any issue, it can only be construed as an individual opinion. 2) The administration has blocked individual student participation in issues such as Vietnam for reasons based partly on Sacrament law and broad interpretations of in loco parentis powers, which has contributed to an essentially anti-democratic and childish campus environment, 3) Student government, if it is to be effective within the campus environment should take stands on issues such as Vietnam for the protection of both majority and minority student opinion and freer communication. 4) I am personally against the U.S. military, economic and political policies and involvements in Vietnam, Thailand, Indonesia, Europe and South America.

The controversy dwindled after a few weeks with little clarification of the issues and arguments.

This semester, an identical situation has occurred through the passage of Resolution No. 4 introduced by Change Councilman Ron Hinkle. This resolution resolves that Student Council go on record as opposed to the Vietnam war, the draft and all wars in general,' and further stipulates that 'the Student Council support the National Stop The Draft Week.' This resolution was drawn up primarily due to the prevailing sentiments of the Student Council and partly because of a recent incident where literature pertaining to 'Draft Week' was ineptly confiscated.

The controversy is essentially the same as last semester, but was precipitated by the careless wording in the 'whereas' clauses stating that 'The Associated Students are opposed to the Vietnam war and the draft,' not merely members of the Student Council. The Change members characteristically being against the war in Vietnam and the draft, voted for the resolution while USA and independents apparently acquiescent to U.S. policy voted against the measure. It is not known whether USA party is pro or con concerning the draft, but it is their assumption that Change party hasn't the right to speak for all students. It seems that the conflict is predominantly in the 'whereas clauses' and its assumptions, and not in the right of council to voice an opinion or go on record on an issue of student activity or interest.

In reaction to the resolution, members of USA have concocted an opinion poll titled 'Student Opinion Poll No. 1.' The poll questions the students on their attitudes about the Vietnam war, the draft and the National Draft Week. The premise that the student at large should be consulted is an admirable decision, and I am sure that most students regardless of their party affiliations will affirm these positive intentions; however, the polling as it is being conducted by the USA party is neither scientific nor impartial.

A legitimate poll on any issue and attitude must take care that only the particular attitude or issue is the one that is being measured. Special attention must be given to the questions and the way that they are presented to insure that the answers are applicable to the intent of ascertaining pertinent data. Care must be taken that those people sampled are truly representative of the majority of the people and rigid instruction is usually given to those that administer the poll so that the bias of the poll taker does not influence its outcome, This is the most basic criteria for accurate poll taking, and even if such criteria is observed in the most sophisticated manner, it does not always insure that the data collected is accurate.

I have had one year's experience taking polls for two professional and independent survey companies. In my field experience, I have never seen a poll quite as peculiar as the USA opinion poll on student attitudes on Vietnam and the draft. Not only does it violate the existing minimal criteria for survey taking, but within the structure of the questionnaire, the USA party has contributed data that can only be construed as compromising the outcome of the data and the intent of its designers. The poll number 1 is supposed to measure opinion on Vietnam and the draft; however, it begins with the statement–"The United Students For Action (USA)," and ends with 'Another Service of the Party That Cares' and proceeds to introduce such variables as the content of Resolution No. 4, the voting pattern of the USA party on the resolution and infers that the USA party is the party interested in the attitudes and opinions of the students. The introduction of these variables into a questionnaire on student opinion has destroyed the validity of the poll. From the structure of the entire document, an experienced polltaker or anyone with some knowledge of statistics can make these assmuptions: 1) The USA party is inept at designing an impartial poll. 2) The data concerning Resolution No. 4 and the council's voting patterns is material more persuant to the USA party's political aims and not the ascertainment of student opinion. 3) An accurate estimate of student opinion on Vietnam and the draft only can not be learned from this particular poll.

Concerning the issues of the Change Resolution No. 4 and the USA Student Opinion Poll No. 1, it seems that both the Change and the USA party have acted with a great deal of hypocracy–Change party did not campaign in last semester's election on any Vietnam issue and the USA party is trying to capitalize on the Vietnam issue for political reasons. Both parties seem to be guilty of breaching common ethics established last semester in areas and situations simular.

Change party earlier in the semester had expressed an interest in having a referendum election on the Vietnam issue. It was considered that when a special election was necessitated for ratification of a new student constitution, that a resolution calling for such a Vietnam referendum be added so that the maturer voting students could voice opinion directly on the Vietnam situation through balloting. The events of Resolution No. 4 and the USA Opinion Poll No. 1 might make such an attached referendum to the constitutional elections a practical means of measuring student opinion on the Vietnam issue.

Folk Concert
An Excursion In Non-Commercial Expression

A pleasant afternoon of intimate, non-electric music has been planned for City College students. The two-hour concert, headlined by the well known Ellen Faust, will be presented in the Little Theater Tuesday, October 24th from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Miss Faust, who began her career on the streets of Greenwich Village during the Beat era, has sung at most of the coffee houses and colleges in the Bay Area, and is currently appearing at the I & Thou in the Haight-Ashbury. Her music, Ellen calls it 'New Age,' conveys her personal philosophy of life, poetically synthesizing themes of classic mythology with contemporary society.

Also featured on the program will be Tod Kelly, a folk balladeer who sings tender love songs, Christine Bigelow doing American traditional songs, and David Barnes singing contemporary interpretations and topical folk songs.

The first hour of the concert will feature all four artists in an informal "round robin." The second hour will consist of individual performances. The presentation is presented by the Associated Students and is free to all.

By Ron Melander,
Special Correspondent

(End of material submitted.)

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

ACP PRESS

Vol. 65, No. 2 WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1967 Page 2

Council Uses LBJ Tactics For Opposite Ends On War

TWO WEEKS AGO Student Council passed an anti-Vietnam war resolution thereby committing the college as opposing the Johnson administration and the war.

We do not enjoy war nor do we particularly relish the Viet conflict. We are, however, dismayed that council should pass a resolution such as this one without consulting the students.

BY PASSING THIS RESOLUTION, council has placed itself in the same corner in which President Johnson finds himself.

Johnson is the elected representative of the land and he's doing what he thinks is right. Council falls into this groove. But here's where the worm turns.

Johnson hasn't asked the people if the war is what they want. He proceeds in his plans unilaterally. He ran in the election of '64 with a solidly anti-war platform but he has now ordered more bombs to be dropped over Vietnam than were dropped over all of Europe in World War II.

Johnson is working with the policy, "If the people don't like what I'm doing, that's too damn bad. Let 'em wait until 1968."

COUNCIL IS TELLING JOHNSON he has no right to commit the United States without consulting its citizens, and yet council passed its resolution using the same rationale as Johnson, "I was elected and I'll do as I please."

We don't agree with Johnson's policy, but how can we or anyone back council members when they are doing the exact same thing they claim to denounce?

USA COUNCILMEN TRIED to hold back the vote in council until a poll could be taken to find out what the majority of students felt on the matter. Change Councilman Ron Henkle, the author of the resolution, refused to consider the idea. True enough the poll would take time, but there isn't any rush; the war isn't going anywhere.

There was a hassle last semester over a similar bill which failed in council. Former President Joe Parnell vetoed the bill because in his opinion the majority of students did not concur with the proposal.

He was correct, in our opinion, in stopping the bill. There had been no attempt to find out what the majority felt.

USA WAS RIGHT, again in our opinion, for trying to stop this bill as the situation hasn't changed. The students still haven't been consulted.

The vote in council was strictly partisan, Change for and USA against. In our opinion this only shows who is working with the belief that students have the intelligence to think through such matters themselves.

UNTIL AN OFFICIAL VOTE is made revealing exactly what the students of this college think on the matter, and until a clear majority is shown, neither Change, council nor anyone else has the right to commit the Associated Students.

And certainly council has no right to rap a man's knuckles when it is doing the same thing he is.

A Silly Side Of Science
Gastropod Tracksters Are Zoo 10 Innovation

By Tom Graham

Science has come a long way since the days of Pasteur, and people have learned from experience not to make rash judgments of so-called hare-brained experiments.

As an experiment for a Zoology 10 class, for example, students here arranged snail races on glass and on sandpaper to determine whether snails move faster on smooth or rough surfaces.

THE RESULTS CONFIRMED that the snails ran a better race under smooth (glass) track conditions.

After the experimental cross country meet, lab assistants apparently forgot to pick up the variables and students were reportedly tossing members of their team out the doors and windows of the science labs.

Well, complaints started flooding the science department because snails were found sprinting down hallways and bathing in water fountains. In fact, after classes one day, neighborhood children were discovered under the lab windows engaged in snail fights–with an abundant supply of "ammo."

A few science students may faintly recall the recent blood drive held on campus. Donors were asked not to eat breakfast before giving blood, for some medical reason. The blood bank was located on the second floor of Cloud Hall, the old photo center.

STUDENTS BECAME rather weak after donating–but what the doctors forgot to tell them was not to exercise. Unaware that attending the next class would be a disaster, students came through the court and up to the third floor for science classes and upon reaching the third floor landing – passed out.

Some chemistry and physics students have learned the hard way that certain laboratory apparatus can also be dangerous. Girls with long hair (and guys too, for that matter) and fellows with beards have received scorching haircuts and sizzling shaves from leaning over bunson burners.

ANOTHER SCIENTIFIC "happening" this semester was a swarm of bees that got loose from an observation bee-hive experiment which prevented construction workers from making noise, temporarily. This seemingly "bugged" them.

The single incident that raised the biggest stink on campus this year was an experimental skunk who escaped from his cage in one of the laboratories.

While science is interesting and challenging, it is also one of the more difficult fields of study. But along with its stress and strain, it likewise has its humorous moments. This semester at City College the science department has captured a few of those moments.

PUC Threat To Find Plug
H_2O May Take Precedence Over GTO In Parking Lot

By Mike Wise

An argument which doesn't hold water is unconvincing. Conversely, a reservoir which doesn't hold water is a parking lot. Very shortly, however, the reservoir on Phelan avenue is going to be a parking lot which does hold water.

The City Public Utilities Commission intends soon to "take back" the reservoir and use it for its original purpose, to hold water.

Presently the reservoir is used by over 1000 driving students daily, and its removal as a parking lot would create king-sized traffic and parking problems, which would affect not only the campus, but the entire neighborhood.

Although the thought of a reservoir holding water seems desperate, for this college at least, there is an alternative.

ACCORDING TO HARRY BUTTIMER, coordinator of educational management, "The water department would have to construct a roof if they decide to use the reservoir. With their approval it could be reinforced to enable students to park on it. This would increase the parking area (from 1000 to 1500 stalls) and would prevent any parking problems from developing for many years."

It would take more than city approval, however, to build a reinforced roof over the reservoir. It would take money, and lots of it. The figure for building a reinforced roof is estimated at $400,000. Since the city will not pick up the tab for this type of roof, the job of financing construction falls to the college, the school district, or the civic-mindedness of some generous individual. Buttimer stated that the college couldn't raise the money, but that the school district might find appropriations.

ON SEPTEMBER 18, a recommendation was made before Student Council that the administration take all necessary steps to see that reservoir parking be kept open, and that steps be taken to open the second reservoir. The second reservoir will probably never be opened to parking, due to the objections by the PUC, but the administration has temporarily secured the reservoir for parking, even though the time for a decision is growing near.

On second thought, drivers who were ready to begin water-proofing their cars earlier may as well proceed. It may be the only feasible solution left; it certainly holds water.

Season Tickets For Symphony On Sale Here

The annual drive for the San Francisco Symphony Foundation is underway once again on campus to recruit interested students in the Symphony Forum and extend them the privilege to attend all the 1967-68 Wednesday evening concerts beginning November 29 at a special student rate.

Forum membership and season tickets may be obtained daily between the hours of 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. in S-103. Only check or money order (made out to City College) will be accepted for season membership.

"We're hoping for a big turnout and I believe we'll get it," remarked Merritt Beckerman, faculty adviser to the Forum. "The students on campus have always had an interest in the symphony and this season looks like it will be a successful one."

Beckerman also said that students will be asked to identify themselves as full-time students at the door of the Opera House prior to performances.

In past seasons the sales have been impressive on campus. Of the 40 colleges participating, only large campuses like Stanford and University of California have surpassed City College's sales.

"Tickets for individual concerts can also be purchased on campus," Beckerman stated. The locations are his office (A-204) and the office of Don Beilke (C-333-F).

The orchestra, beginning its fifth year under the superb leadership of Maestro Josef Krips, continues to reach new artistic heights and gain international recognition.

This season's 20 Wednesday evening concerts will bring a total of 34 distinguished guest artists to the symphony stage.

Vantage Point

by Glynn Petrie

AS THE thunderclouds of censure swirl and storm over so many national, state and local figures these days and the braying of the critics reaches a raucous crescendo, each contradicting the other, criticism becomes a subject of increasing importance.

Critics and criticism abound in a free society and naturally so. The abundance of criticism is a healthy sign which indicates that people feel involved, are concerned with the events of the day and have the imagination to see how things might be done differently and better.

IT IS CERTAINLY no claim to intelligence or wisdom that one is always satisfied with the status quo and sees neither need nor possibility for improvement.

But though the right to openly find fault with anything and everything is a democratic essential which should be exercised if it is to be maintained, it tends to foster a considerable amount of irresponsible commentary which may be dangerous and damaging.

Censorship in no way solves the problem for it has an even greater tendency to become irresponsible and unrestrained. Therefore, reasonable regulation of criticism should be found with the critic himself. Too often it is not. Examples are available but won't be dealt with here.

THE MAJORITY OF verbal criticism and a considerable amount of written criticism offer simple, nice-sounding solutions toward complex political or economic problems. It ought to be remembered that complex problems, by their nature, have so many variables and points of consideration that they do not lend themselves to being solved by two or three paragraph cure-alls.

It is truly wonderful how clear our vision is from the sidelines and how perfect our actions and reactions would be were we really a part of the conflict we observe. It seems that we continually judge ourselves by intent and others by results which makes a vast amount of difference.

OUR LEADERS IN government are not above criticism and should not be considered so since they need criticism and comment from us in order to function as true representatives. But critics should be aware that usually they are not fully aware of what is going on, of all the ins and outs of the subject of their faultfinding, and are frequently very ignorant and then temper their advice and admonitions accordingly.

We all sit about and babble on how we would do things as president or governor and how things would be rosy from then on. Because of this it is nothing short of fantastic how such intelligent, sagacious and politically knowledegable people as ourselves can repeatedly elect to office such short-sighted, bumbling incompetents as we do.

IF ONLY THOSE who lead were as wise as we who follow, we would really get somewhere in our quest for perfection.

When we realize that it is easy to exercise an imaginary authority without responsibility and that it is infinitely easier to use the right of freedom of speech than it is to head a nation, an army, a state, or any kind of organization, our wonderful panaceas may gain a little more touch with reality and we might become aware of problems we hadn't recognized when we first opened our mouths in indignant protest.

Shots At RAMdom

by Ed Holmes

STRAIGHT SHOT: This column is truthfully sorry to see Rich Christensen leave the office of Associated Student president. We voted for him in last semester's election and, despite a few verbal altercations, we'd do it again.

It was Christensen's ideals that deserved admiration. Unfortunately, like most idealists, he sometimes became divorced from practicality.

He felt a real need to change the system–and let nobody say there's a system that doesn't need some change –but, as Larry Lazore could have told him, it's a lot easier to change any system from the inside.

Some good work has been done in council this semester. Abdication can't help. Neglecting to attend classes is no way to go.

• • •

NAVAL GUNFIRE

Is there nobody else on this campus who is concerned about our errant chimes?

They're wrong, wrong, wrong. Onomatopoetic that may be, but right, it isn't.

Our concern was such that we went right to the top where Dr. Luckman personally assured us that the malady was not due to an administrative decision.

Nonetheless, they have been kaput since sometime last semester. We first noticed the discrepancy when, at 3 p.m., they rang six times. Being of nautical extraction, we thought nothing was amiss–even felt that Mr. Amori (Captain, USN, Ret.) might have succeeded to the throne, or what ever.

It wasn't till seven bells failed to signify 3:30 (we were already saying "1530 hours") that concern started to creep in.

Checking the area around the silver pole in Science Hall and finding that it had not been converted to a quarterdeck finally convinced us that it was a civilian snafu, but didn't help in solving the problem.

The administration will be glad to hear that this column devoted more time to the bells than to English 1-A and now believes it has the answer. The bells are on Daylight Savings Time. If they are still screwed up after October 28 we refuse to accept further responsibility.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

(Letters to the Editor may be left in the switchboard office, S-169, in Science Hall or in The Guardsman office, S-304. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. The Guardsman reserves the right to edit letters in the interests of brevity and rhetoric. If so desired the writer's name will be withheld, but the identity of the writer must be known to the editor.)

● ACP Conflict?

Editor, The Guardsman:

Now that The Guardsman also includes the City College Critic on page 2, what will happen when the time comes for this newspaper to be submitted to the Associated Collegiate Press?

Will The Guardsman submit pages 1, 3 and 4, and leave out the Critic, or will the Critic join the ACP, and ask to be judged alone?–Due to the Critic ever heard of the Associated Collegiate Press and its standards?

Interested Reader

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1967

Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 240.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... STEVEN HARA
Managing Editor ..... Lori Pittman
Feature Editor ..... Marty Arbunich
Staff Editor ..... Glynn Petrie
News Editor ..... Ed Holmes
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan

Editorial Assistants: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, Douglas Dorn, John Janiglan, Ron Leni, John La-Tourneau, Viggo Petersen.

Reporters: Berry Brown, Tom Graham, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf.

Cub Reporters: John Bendorfis, Lani Brand, Tim Brydon, Elizabeth Callen, Terrance Cantrell, John Carpenier, Rita Carroll, Chris Esteber, Arthur Fanfelte, Jack Forester, Barbara Hamann, Richard Harley, David Huffine, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Dennis Mundt, Nesita Murphy, David Noren, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom, Steven Saney, May Ling Wong.

Photographers: Ed Bruns, Chief; Gary W. Batchelor, Paul Bekcey, James Bruce, Carol Gilmore, Roberto Guillen, Fred Harris, Robert Kim, Klaus Kutz, Gary Lee, Garth Ogle, Mike Reams, Chris Rozales, Richard Spitaleri, Kevin Tobin, Mark Weinand, Samuel Woo.

Guardsman Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Ram Kickers Make It 100 Straight

Cannon Paces 11-1 Onslaught Over Menlo With Four Goals

By John Le Tourneau

Coach Roy Diederichsen won game number 100 without a loss in Western Junior College Soccer Conference play with a 11-1 victory over Menlo, October 4, on the losers' field.

The win was against the same Menlo team that the Rams beat back in 1948, that started the fantastic streak. Under Diederichsen's reign, City College has compiled a 100-0-1 record in conference games. In overall games with four-year as well as two-year colleges Diederichsen has notched up 350 wins, 18 losses and 12 ties.

During the 350 victory string, the Rams have competed against the top teams in California.

SOCCER COACH Roy Diederichsen.

IN THE OAK game the Rams were paced by left wing Otey Cannon's four goals. "For a wing, four goals is exceptional, and Cannon has been doing an excellent job on offense and defense for the team; he seems to be taking over as team leader," Diederichsen commented.

Another standing out was goal Arnie Harrott as he held Menlo scoreless until the Oaks scored on a penalty kick late in the contest.

Also playing well on defense for the Rams were right halfback Sal Corona and Braile Triqueros at center halfback, who replaced injured All-American center halfback Roger Sarria.

Corona and Triqueros constantly halted Menlo scoring threats with outstanding defense. The pair kept the ball away from Harrott as much as possible.

SHARING OFFENSIVE honors were center forward Henry Mejia and inside right Mickey Duzdevich with two goals apiece. "Our scoring is getting very well balanced in its execution. The men are playing very well together," the Ram mentor commented.

"However, we still haven't reached our peak in offense or defense, and we have plenty of work to do to prepare for the big games in the latter part of the season," Diederichsen added.

The Menlo game would have been a lot closer, but the Oaks' All-American goalie was put out of action with an injury early in the second half.

The Rams were only leading by three goals when the goalie left the contest, and with an inexperienced goalie, the Rams took full advantage of it by pouring in eight goals in the second half.

Friday the Rams travel to Santa Clara to play the rugged Broncos. Every year in the past the Broncos have given the Rams a close game.

Block SF Society Builds Concessions

Curt Decker is starting his second year as adviser to the Block SF, after taking the position formerly held by Dutch Elston, college football coach.

The basic plans of the Block SF this year are to run concession stands at the football and basketball games at City College. Presently the Block SF's plans are to construct a portable concession stand for use in both the gymnasium and on the football field.

Decker also said the Block SF will hold its annual block awards banquet on December 11, 1967, in Smith Hall. The banquet will be held for those who have been awarded a letter in the fall sports of soccer, football and cross country.

Decker is also the college swimming coach.

Max Carey of the Pittsburgh Pirates was caught stealing only twice in 53 attempts during the 1922 baseball season.

Local Talent Adds To New Mexico's Hopes

RAM BLINGS

By Mike Duggan

O. J. In New College But Keeps No. 1 Spot

WARREN WOODSON, head football coach at New Mexico State University in Las Cruces, New Mexico, has won more college games than any active coach of today and is certain to add a few more if he continues to recruit the likes of Dave Malae and Ruby Jackson.

Malae, a rugged 220-pounder, is the starting offensive right guard for the Aggies. A member of the City College 1965 Prune Bowl winners, Malae earned Lineman-of-the-Year honors in the Golden Gate Conference for his efforts.

JACKSON, the solid 290-pounder who played under Dutch Elston on last year's 9-1 Ram team, is the starting defensive left guard for the Aggies. Big Ruby played offense last year, and played it well enough to make All-Conference and earn himself an athletic scholarship to New Mexico State.

Upon his arrival at the campus, Jackson was promptly built up as one of the top prospects in the school's history. Aggie fans were indeed impressed with the speed and agility of the big man. Ruby kept in shape during the summer at San Francisco's central YMCA by either lifting weights with pro football and wrestling star Ernie Ladd or by playing a few games of basketball with City College's fine tackle Ralph Hodge.

Aggie line coach Patrick Ryan has in 215-pound Tony Tutiele still another former Ram gridder to work with, Tutiele was also a track standout while here, but he must overcome a serious knee injury to help out Woodson's squad this year.

* * *

After four weeks of the current football season, quite a familiar name appeared on top of the NCAA rushing statistics. After four games last year, O. J. Simpson of City College led the two-year colleges in rushing with 522 yards. This year, O.J. Simpson of USC led the country's four-year colleges with 602 yards and his team was number one ranked in the nation.

FIVE OF NEW MEXICO State's football personnel. From left to right—Offensive guard Dave Malae, line coach Patrick Ryan, defensive guard Ruby Jackson, head coach Warren Woodson and tackle Tony Tutiele.

AS ABOUT 70,000 people left the Los Angeles Coliseum talking about what Simpson might accomplish if he ever breaks loose on a few long ones, a huge sign hung from the top of the stadium proclaiming "All The Way With O. J." It was true—after 107 carries, the workhorse of the Trojans could boast of a mere 29-yard run as his longest. Simpson had also managed four touchdowns (all from within the 10) and had completed two scoring passes out of three attempted.

Those 70,000 fans had watched Simpson romp for over 200 yards total offense in leading the Trojans past Stanford, 30-0.

On the next to the last day of the American League pennant race, over national TV, sportscaster Curt Gowdy announced a college football score between innings—USC 21 and Michigan State 17. Gowdy then commented, "I wonder how many touchdowns that O. J. Simpson scored today. He must be quite a back."

Simpson scored two that day and passed for another score while rushing for 190 yards. Yes, he must be quite a back.

It's All Over

Reg Hang-Ups, Computer Both Bite The Dust

Students with registration problems at this time are few and far between, according to the head of the counseling department, Donald Marcus.

The number of students who are dropping classes is not large, at this point. Counselor Arthur Samuels attributes the low number of drops to the possibility that students are waiting for the results of their first midterms to help them decide whether or not to drop classes.

Marcus has a different theory as to the low number of drops: "Most students had such a difficult time getting classes, that they are now thinking carefully about dropping these same classes."

MARCUS EMPHASIZED the date of November 1 as the last day that students will be allowed to drop classes. After that date, leaves of absence from classes will have to be taken by students who wish to get rid of them.

With regard to the recent computer mishap, Samuels had this to say: "The largest single thing that went wrong was that 250 scan sheets having last semester's schedules were programmed into the machine.

"These sheets should've been destroyed, but were somehow mixed in with this semester's scan sheets. I think the computer can work, if variables are properly programmed."

Samuels noted that during the first three days following that hectic registration week, most everyone with program problems was taken care of. Students who received last semester's programs were given preferential treatment on Friday of registration week.

"Everybody wanting a full program got one," he said. Samuels also cited the remarkable combined efforts of administrators, instructors and students in doing everything possible to straighten out programs.

WHILE THIS SEMESTER is only a month old, some counselors have already begun student programming for next semester.

In reply to the question of whether the computer will be used next semester, Marcus said, "Word is that we are going back to 'Arena Programming' with some minor changes. Maybe the computer will be used for certain aspects of preregistration."

And once again, in view of City College's answer to computer registration, that old maxim holds true: "If at first you don't succeed, the heck with it."—M.W.

Rams Open With 26-13 Loss To Diablo, Play Chabot Friday

By Arthur Fanfelle

The Ram football squad traveled to Diablo Valley for its first encounter with a Golden Gate Conference opponent only to lose its first league game in two years as the Vikings won, 26-13. The game, was played in Acalanes High stadium in Lafayette, October 7.

The game was a key one in that now the Rams have an uphill fight in order to gain the conference championship as well as a bid for the State playoffs. They started off well as Allen "The Big Cat" Cowlings dumped Diablo's quarterback Grady Aitkens in the end zone, forcing a fumble which was recovered by George Rush for six points. John Farnham's kick failed.

EARLY IN the second quarter Diablo's Curt Barker intercepted a John Cercos pass on the Ram 27-yard line. Joe San Martin then carried the ball four times, the last a four-yard plunge into paydirt. Dale Eidson's kick failed.

Diablo scored again when Joe Enlow blocked a punt by Bill McDonagh and raced 20 yards for the score.

The Vikings also drew blood again in the third period as Eidson intercepted Tom Mayfield's pass on the 27-yard line and carried it back 12 yards. The drive was capped by Aitken's run for 12 yards and six points, the kick was good, making it 19-6. The Vikings hit again late in the third period on a 75-yard scoring pass as Aitkens and Steve Sommer teamed up to make it 26-6.

The offense for the Rams was not as productive as in past years; the defense came through when Craig Martin intercepted a pass and broke downfield for 75 yards for the game's final touchdown. The offensive line did not protect quarterback Cercos well as he was dumped seven times for minus 54 yards. The Rams' air attack netted only 40 yards on three completions, all to Mike Carter.

Some bright spots for Ram followers were the defensive backs Martin, Rush and Joe Barb. Each had an interception with Martin getting a pair.

Wayne McConico packed the ball 11 times for a total of 61 yards for a 5.6-yard average per carry to lead all rushers.

Cowlings and John Monroe drew special praise for their outstanding line work.

Rush played well along with linebackers Joe Bell and Mike Deschler.

The Rams now have lost three games without a win; the team has yet to put together a consistent offense, as shown in the Diablo game. The Rams faltered repeatedly through their own mistakes, fumbling the ball a total of five times.

RAM FOOTBALLERS have a conference home game against the Chabot Gladiators Friday in Ram stadium beginning at 2:30 p.m. Last year's Chabot team finished fourth in league play with a 4-3 mark including a 34-19 loss at the hands of the Rams.

This year the Gladiators have already beaten Merritt, 29-12. In the game, Merritt led 12-0 at the half before Chabot stormed back to win it with a 29-point second half.

Spikers Finish Eighth; American River First

City College's cross country team completed their pre-conference season schedule on October 7, by running in Sacramento State College's Annual Cross Country Race.

Official results have not been received as yet, but unofficially the Rams finished eighth in a field of seventeen. American River finished first with the Stanford freshmen and Santa Anna College following. Among teams competing in the race from the Golden Gate Conference the Rams were third highest.

Top finishers for City College were Fred Forsberg, John Bendoritis, Jose Garcia, Bob Aanestad and Vic Cary in that order.

Focus: K For Kalamity

by Lori Pittman

ANYONE WHO rides the K streetcar in the morning to attend an 8 a.m. class knows what a hassle it is just to reach the college in one piece.

You must leave home an hour earlier, carefully strap your clothes on so that you won't lose them somewhere along the way, arm yourself with your sharpest books (a hat pin or two might be better), grit your teeth and charge.

When the overloaded cattle car manages to sway its way down the track and the doors swing open for a moment to relieve some of the pressure and stale air, you pounce on with all of your armor, grab whatever is before you and hang on for dear life. (After a few tries you'll know the death grip by heart.)

HALF OF YOU may have remained outside the doors but don't be too upset. At least that part will be enjoying fresh air. Don't breath with the part of you that is inside or you may not survive the trip.

Once inside you may notice a strange, rocking, jerky sensation but don't panic. It is impossible to fall . . . except back out the doors or through a window.

Sometimes you'll even hear what sounds like the loud bellowing of an angry bull coming from the far side of the confusion before you. It is merely the bus driver telling people to move back so he can see the track. (Back where? ?)

After that last sweeping sway around the curve, you've almost made it. Actually, getting off is almost as hard as getting on. You plunge wildly or face being trampled. If you're lucky, you may still be in one piece (more or less) and may even make it to class on time.

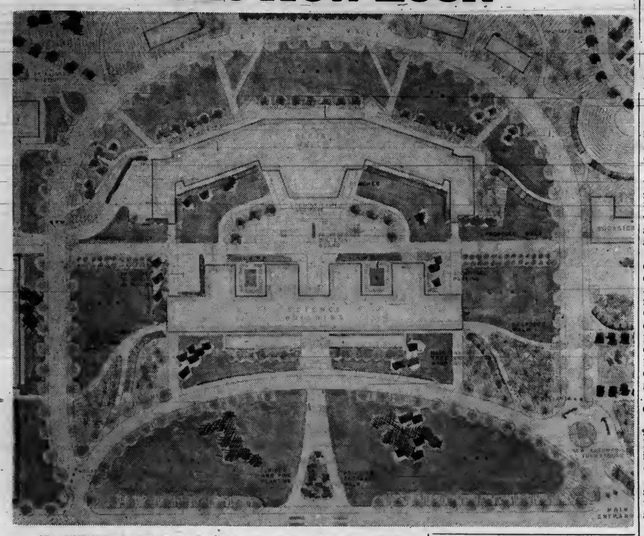
* * *

THERE IS NO reason for this situation to exist. Changes can be made or at least attempted.

Last semester Student Council passed two recommendations concerned with this problem of student transportation. One asked for reduced rates to be given to all registered students. The other recommended that the Municipal Railway "re-evaluate the service to the City College of San Francisco by the K streetcar line."

Action is now being taken by Student Council urging the initiation of Muni student discount cards for City College students of all ages, but efforts to relieve the overload remain uncertain. According to Councilman Ray Bietz, the streetcars are old and dilapidated, and there may not be others available to be brought into use during the rush hours.

The possibility however does remain. Such things as red tape and research will be needed to identify the exact times when extra cars will do the most good and there are proper channels to be followed.



Student Council is the organized voice of the Associated Students. The members have the power to pass recommendations and the authority to carry them through channels. Maybe this year there will be some changes made.

The Guardsman / Free Critic

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 65 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1967 NUMBER 3

The New Look

IF ANYBODY ON THIS campus needs The Guardsman to inform him of the fact that something big is going on concerning the landscape, he will probably also need to have the paper read to him.

WHEN DWIGHT EISENHOWER was the commanding officer at West Point, his staff complained that the cadets were ruining the lawns by wearing paths in them. The general replied, "If the cadets can't walk on the pavement, put the pavement where they do walk."

APPARENTLY, SOMETHING SIMILAR has passed through the minds of Anthony M. Guzzardo, Associates, the landscape architects responsible for the plans partially shown above.

ADMITTEDLY BEHIND SCHEDULE, the project is nonetheless now well underway, and most of the well-worn paths students have spent so long engraving in the lawns will soon be beautifully graded, paved and ready for use.

IT MUST BE REMEMBERED that all these plans are predicated on the assumption that the weatherman will continue to smile. If the rains come and City College is washed away before their completion, it may be "back to the drawing board" for real.

Landscape Redesigning Moves Full Speed Ahead

Plans for an omnibus program to redesign the entire campus grounds were outlined this week by Harry Buttimer, coordinator of educational management here.

Phase one, currently underway, will see Cloud Circle hill completely reshaped by the end of the semester, according to Buttimer.

In the first phase, the hill and a section of the southwest grounds will be relandscaped with shrubs and flowers, olive trees on the circles periphery, an extensive lighting system and underground sprinklers.

PARTICULAR attention has gone into the planning of walkways and ramps. Main walks leading up the hill are being ripped up, and steps are to be put in. From Science Hall, two new walkways will extend diagonally down the slope, following students present movement patterns, one leading to the tram terminal and one to the reservoir parking lot.

Students who repose on the slopes between classes will be shielded from the wind by trees and shrubs which will flank both hillsides.

PLANS ARE STILL being drawn up for subsequent phases of the program, but the following projects are in the works:

A visual arts building, to be located just east of Arts Hill; an amphitheater on the slope below the bookstore; a pedestrian mall out of the present circle driveway (no autos); totally redesigned traffic control and parking facilities, with a "side-spur" accessway on Ocean Avenue, and a sunken courtyard in front of the educational services building now under construction.—D. M.

AWS To Present Fashions And Tea

The Associated Women Student Fashion Show and Tea will be held Thursday, November 2, in Smith Hall.

Model tryouts for the fashion show were held October 4 and 12.

The finalists are Kathy Beaves, Renee Brown, Sheila Brown, Doreen Bunoan, Linda Daigle, Deborah Hemman, Maria Lobanovsky, Liz Lucey, Joni Lung, Bessie Scharfen, Kristie Thollander, Betty Wagner and Faye Wong.

The alternates are Jessie Kuzmanich and Patricia Dlummer.

Escorts from the Associated Men Students are Glen Butler, Jim Dierke and Craig Noonan.

Judges at the tryouts were Madison Devlin, Gloria Dunn, Paul Hewitt, Matilda McCollough, Richard Noble, Ronald Rubin, Varita Tyree, Margret Vota and Wallace Wells.

The Associated Women Students have sponsored four activities to date, the first being the Coketail Party for the freshman women students, two open meetings and the new women instructors' luncheon.

Three Crises Topic Of Vietnam Talk

America's Three Crises in Vietnam is the subject of a lecture during College Hour tomorrow in the college theater by William A. Nighswonger, assistant professor of political science at Sonoma State College and author of several books on Vietnam.

Professor Nighswonger has a Ph.D. in International Relations from the American University and his dissertation was recently published under the title: Rural Pacification in Vietnam.

During 1962-64 he served in Vietnam as the senior USAID representative for the city of Da Nang and the surrounding province of Quang Nam. His experiences there are the subject of his writing in a jointly authored book, War Without Guns: American Civilians In Rural Vietnam.

Dr. Nighswonger has lectured widely to college and community audiences and has appeared on a special KQED program on Vietnam.

Change Party, Noonan Stage Separate Council Walkouts

By Tom Graham

Change party members staged a walk-out on Student Council last week over a flap concerning a new constitution.

Change party member Mathys Bendel, who drew up the new constitution, asked to have it tabled indefinitely. A vote was taken and the motion was denied.

Upon this, Change party members "walked out"—all except for James Morrison. The remainder of council members were all USA party members.

LATER, MISS BENDEL stated that the reason she wanted the new constitution tabled indefinitely was because she felt that it needed an enabling clause and a better Bill of Rights.

Controversy over the new constitution was sparked when it could not be decided how many units a person must carry to hold office.

Craig Noonan also gave his reason for resigning his position as Associated Men Student President.

"I find it hard to reconcile my feelings of responsibility to the students who elected me with the gross and incompetent misrepresentation of the AS that council has shown so far this semester,' stated Noonan, "because it is dominated by special interest groups blind to their responsibility to the AS."

Diane Lattimer appointed Joe Stewart to fill the AMS President office.

THE ELECTIONS FOR the Frosh Council seat and the Associated Student Vice Presidency have been postponed until next Monday, October 30, according to Election Commissioner Tony Taramino. The reason for this is that midterm grades were not to be submitted until October 23, instead of the 20th, as planned.

Under the guidance of Finance Chairman Ross Klutke, Student Council has allocated $380 for the Frosh Ball to be held November 18. Larry Rodriguez, president of the Frosh Class, told council that the dance would be held at the San Francisean Hotel and that a union band will be provided.

All students must buy bids to gain admittance to the dance, but those with AS cards will be charged at a discount rate.

Resolutions, Roll Call, Registration Dominate Student-Admin Meeting

By Ed Holmes

Student and administration points of view received equal airing and attention here last week during this semester's first meeting of the Student-Admin. Relations Committee.

When top administration officials met with selected students in the conference room adjacent to Acting President Lloyd Luckmann's office, the main topic of conversation was administrative action taken on various Student Council proposals.

Discussion ranged from registration priorities for veterans to space utilization in the new educational services building, but the body of the meeting was spent on problems concerning abolishing roll call and establishing an Afro-American history class.

DR. LUCKMANN HAD previously demonstrated his willingness to discuss administration action on proposals by speedily answering a letter from Special Research Committee Chairman Ray Bietz, but he pointed out that no copies of legislation passed this semester had reached his office. "If Student Council passes a proposal," he said, "and you keep it down there (Bungalow 5) it's never going to get any attention."

A few proposals to speed communication in this area were then aired.

In his letter to Bietz, Dr. Luckmann said, "The course in Afro-American history is not offered for lack of an instructor," but discussion brought out that the course had been offered (it is still in the catalog) and only six students had requested it. "I would have gone ahead with as few as ten or twelve students," he said.

THE ACTING PRESIDENT pointed out that he is still seeking a qualified instructor. "I've listed City College with every possible placement service," he said.

Concerning obligatory roll call, discussion ranged from the fact that the present system offers students approaching the area of too many absences counseling to the level of motivation required by a no-roll call system.

Concerning Student Councils' proposal, Dr. Luckmann said, "We don't have the academic level to support this," but he did agree to changes in the membership of a committee headed by Dean Mary Golding that was formed for the purpose of studying attendance reporting.

"THE STUDENTS are right," said Dr. Luckmann; "if the faculty is inconsistent in reporting absentees, something is wrong. It will be looked into."

Dr. Luckmann concluded the meeting by distinguishing between Student Council's "pontifications" and their "constructive recommendations." "We'll pay attention to the things we can do something about," he emphasized.

Oakland Policemen Handle Protesters With Brute Force

By Viggo Petersen

Once again, as is becoming standard operating procedure each year, students, professors, clergymen and elements of the concerned public have turned to the streets to voice their protest against the Vietnam war.

"Hell no, we won't go!" is becoming their familiar battle cry.

What is also becoming commonplace each year is the presence of those opposed to the demonstrators. "They're irresponsible, ill-informed," they say. "Draft them all."

WHAT HAPPENED in Oakland last week can be regarded as a victory for those participating in the demonstration. Although they did not stop the draft, they certainly succeeded in getting their point across.

It seems that a bridge in the United States has been gapped. It seems that now the generally ill and repulsive feelings first generated by students and professors against the war have spread to "responsible" citizens, not only of the general public but to members of government as well.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON'S popularity has slipped so low as to equal the popularity of Truman during the Korean war. With the nation-wide Stop The Draft Week having taken place, it will be interesting to see how much further his popularity can slip.

The actions of the Oakland, Alameda and state police last week was appalling. Marching like hypnotized gorillas, the police indiscriminantly shoved, beat, kicked and drew blood from totally defenseless citizens.

Making people "walk a gauntlet" was the ultimate display of wanton brutality, cowardice and bullishness and most observers insist it should not for the least bit be condoned by state officials, let alone be praised as "being in the finest traditions of California's law enforcement agencies."

There are two sides to every story. A familiar criticism of demonstrators is that they have no respect for law and order. Where was the respect for law and order last week on the part of the police department?

FEDERAL LAW STATES that no law enforcement agency shall interfere with the normal functionings of the press under ANY circumstances. The police in Oakland, who should know the law, apparently did not respect it. It took a court restraining order to prohibit them from any further violence directed at newsmen.

Demonstrators, many say, are ill-informed. But how is one to stay well informed when his own government won't tell the people what they should know to stay well informed—when sometimes the best source of information comes from Communist countries?

HOW CAN ONE REMAIN silent when members of a congressional subcommittee label as "criminal negligence" and "scandal" the army's conduct relating to the M-16 rifle—the inept weapon used in Vietnam which allegedly jams at critical moments and which the army vowed to rectify and never did.

How can one remain silent when he hears of the so-called "victory" at Con Thien where "the largest contingent of bombs have been dropped in the history of American warfare" —only to have the enemy return a week later and lay further siege and loss of life in what seems to be an endless, fruitless and wasteful war.

The Free Critic

Lawrence Lazore, Editor — The Critic Adviser: Mr. Berman

Vol. 1, No. 3 — WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1967 — Page 1

REQUIEM FOR A SCAPEGOAT

By Lawrence Lazore

On October 18th, the Guardsman printed an asinine and unsigned news article subtitled "Christensen Lacks Units—Claims To Be Sick, Tired," which, in the normal G-man style of 'objectivity,' 'neutrality' and superficial focus, did through the manipulation of data, half-truths and omission distort the activities of the former AS President Rich Christensen this semester.

The news piece made these inferences and statements: 'Christensen resigned after being informed of his disqualifications,' '(He) neglected to include in his reasons for resignation that he was being disqualified from his position because he has not attended any of his classes,' 'his only reason for staying on an extra semester was to be AS President and to further the political aims of Change party,' the regulations regarding unit requirements in the proposed constitution did not go far enough to maintain Christensen in office.'

Rich Christensen sounds quite sinister and devious from The Guardsman's juxtaposition of events.

Rich Christensen like most CCSF students who have spent four semesters at this college, hated the juvenile atmosphere and childish treatment of the students and looked forward to continuing his education at the maturer SF State campus. While on this campus, he spent three semesters attempting to improve conditions through participation in discussion groups like Campus Forum and in student government.

Last semester, after completing the required units necessary for SF State entrance, he was entreated to remain at CCSF and run for AS President as a Change member. The reasons for Christensen's running were two-fold: all experienced Change members were disqualified by stringent prerequisites for the presidency and Change was frightened that some nebbish might run unopposed for the office.

Rich Christensen made the decision to stay and run while his acceptance to State was pending. His parents threatened to throw him out of the house for wasting his time at CCSF over political activities and not continuing on to State, so he went to work full-time during the summer vacation and got his own apartment.

Rich Christensen's goal for the semester was to introduce a revised student constitution that would not screen out the older or more mature students from the higher offices in student government. He early in the semester informed Change members that he would leave school after its ratification.

From the beginning of the semester, most of Christensen's efforts in and out of Council were expended in two unexpected areas: The Guardsman dispute and the Mime Troupe confrontation with the administration. He was also suppose to make appointments and generally solidify student government into some kind of effective student oriented body.

The Guardsman Staff with their petty little games fouled up negotiations for almost two weeks, and the Mime Troupe situation was also contributing to Council's disorders. The Council was, and still is, in a chaotic condition from these situations. Hostilities were further accelerated by the Viet Nam controversy and time-consuming meetings were held over these issues. Christensen was also working a full-time job in a service station.

The Council people became so embroiled in issues and immages that cooperation and coordination for the completion of the revised student constitution was almost impossible. Rich Christensen, alone made the revisions on the student constitution in two all-night sessions, and then handed it and his resignation to the Council.

The complete text of Rich Christensen's resignation is as follows:

This is to inform you that I am resigning my office of AS President, effective at 12:10 PM, Oct. 13, 1967.

My reasons are simple: I am sick and tired of this institution, this so-called Student Government, and many of the people in it. I am thoroughly dismayed and disgusted at the lack of concern for progressive action on this campus, and at the general unwillingness of many members of this Body to behave as reasoning human beings. I am tired of the games that these persons play and I will have nothing further to do with them. Perhaps some day, if the Student Government matures, my opinion of it will change. In the meantime, I'm very glad to leave this utterly demoralizing institution.

(signed) Richard Christensen.

THE ROLE OF THE BLACK COLLEGE STUDENT

By John Lovett

The majority of Black students at San Francisco City College are not aware of the role they must play while at school. Black students have failed to grasp the import of their part in the liberation of America's twenty-two million Black slaves. The role that the Black students must fill is but a step towards the more important purpose of becoming Black liberators. By role I mean one's goal or task.

College for Black students is not an inroad to the so-called mainstream of American life, but rather, college for Black Students is the preparatory school for Black liberators. Black people must be the vanguard in the struggle for freedom from oppressive America, a society that has oppressed Black people economically, politically and socially. But we, the Black college students have it in our power to remove the crippling oppression now inflicted on our people. How? Simply by taking those courses at college that will prepare one intellectually for leadership in liberating Black people—courses in economics, political science, social science, philosophy, psychology and literature. These courses are necessary before one can qualify to become a liberator. If we are to liberate Black people from this system of racism, poverty and social immobility, then we must have that knowledge essential to lead our people wisely.

Black students are spending too much time idly sitting in the college cafeteria shooting the breeze over the latest clothing fashions and listening to the local rhythm and blues "soul" music stations. I dig "soul" music too, but one, tuning in KDIA or KSOL, cannot learn how to free Black people. Sure you can learn how to do the "bugaloo," but that's all you learn.

The role then of Black students is to absorb that knowledge necessary to remove the chains of American racism from around the necks of Black people. We should make use of the college library; it's a good place to study and less distracting than the cafeteria. And if in any of your classes you know of a "brother" or "sister" who is having problems in the course, give them your help.

We have two years to spend at City College; let's not waste them. We have a responsibility to our brothers in the ghettos to get ourselves together. Are you fulfilling your role? Why not?

WHERE IN THE WORLD ARE YOU GOING?

By Tim Brydon

If you get a chance, avoid the window display now showing at the south end of Science Hall, main floor.

The display is entitled "Where in the world are you going" The "O" in the word "world" is actually a globe. Clever. The message is nicely mounted on purple and orange paper.

The viewer's attention rakes over a few trade items. There is on display a policeman's hat. And what goes with a policeman's hat? Right. A pair of handcuffs. They're there too. And what do you associate with a pair of handcuffs? Right again. Plaster of paris dental teeth. They are also displayed. And with dental teeth, one includes what? Correct. Radio tubes.

This all combines into a choose your career message. Or as the display subtitles it: "Chance or choice."

If these wares don't cause you to streak to your counselor for advice, then perhaps the displayed cage of mice will.

Mice make one think of science, test tubes, discovery and fame. If this doesn't catch you, then there is a seven-inch mouse trap to involve the viewer in a spirit of inventiveness.

This picture window of life is surrounded with catalogs, aptitude tests, vocational handbooks and so on. These are displayed with great harmony. Some of this literature clutters the right side and some clutters the left.

To complete this appetizer is a rather large picture of a girl taking an 'aptitude test. Twirling colored lights focus on this sweet creature. First the yellow light hits her, making her appear jaundiced. Then embarrassed by red. Blue from the blue light. And finally sea sick from the green light.

And that's how you'll be after seeing this display.

STOP THE DRAFT AND THE ISSUES

By Don Andabata

Stop The Draft Week demonstrations got under way October 16, and despite obstacles are still going strong at this writing (October 18). An estimated 1000 persons gathered at the Federal Building in San Francisco to watch 149 young men turn in their draft cards amid cheering, chanting and some catcalls, while in Oakland 119 persons were arrested when they attempted to block traffic in and out of the Army induction center Monday.

Tuesday saw police attacking demonstrators at the induction center, a court order against a scheduled UC teach-in and various other demonstrations.

Establishment reaction to these demonstrations, while varied, shares one major theme exemplified by Federal Attorney Cecil Poole's statement at the Federal Building Monday, "I assume they've accomplished their purpose, they've had their demonstration," and another by Jesse Unruh, "These kinds of demonstrations do no good, they draw people who are preoccupied with sensationalism."

The mistake Messrs. Poole and Unruh make is that the demonstration is for the sake of demonstration only. In the words of David Harris, ex-President of the Associated Students of Stanford University, "These men (that have turned in draft cards) have made a fundamental decision about their lives; they will not continue to live under the auspices of the Selective Services Act." To refuse cooperation with the Selective Service system is a felony punishable by five years in prison and a $10,00 fine. Obviously these men are not just demonstrating because they are "preoccupied with sensationalism." They do not consider the demonstrations as an end in themselves. At the induction center in Oakland they did not expect to halt the war by cutting off the supply of manpower nor did those at the Federal Building entertain any such notion of immediate and definite results.

Clearly the demonstrations are symbols. They are symbols of an increasingly strong and prevalent attitude. They are symbols of a readyness to do something about real and pressing human problems.

There is an increasing tendency on both sides of the Viet Nam issue to treat the symbols as facts or issues. This was carried to a ludicrous extreme when congress passed a law making it a felony to destroy a draft card. A draft card burner is obviously making a symbolic gesture which may constitute in the minds of some an unnecessary irreverance, but what reasonable mind could rank such an act with rape, murder, armed robbery or arson.

The Oakland police reacted to another symbolic gesture Tuesday with the gestapo-like viciousness of totalitarian state putting down a major insurrection. Granted, the demonstrators were probably committing the crime with which most of the arrested were charged; committing a nuisance, but there is no evidence that they intended or were equipped to commit armed revolution, the crime which matches the police reaction. To say that the police acted badly is to understate the obvious, like saying that Hitler caused a lot of trouble in his time. The point to remember is that they were reacting to what was essentially a symbol, not a threat to the community or the country, but a symbolic gesture of protest.

Confusion of symbols with issues has found its way into City College campus this semester also. A Student Council resolution condemning the war started a controversy over the Council's right to speak for the Associated Students. The issue should have been the war, support or non-support, not the function of the council. The real issue got buried in the dirt shoveled back and forth over or for the various factions' positions on the war. The point is that here too, like the Oakland police, people got tangled in the symbols. In this case the symbol was the resolution and the objections voiced were concerning the wording which was said to be inaccurate. There was no debate on the substance of the resolution, that is, the war.

It has been suggested that a series of public debates be held at the College on the various questions concerning the war with both sides presented by anyone with an opinion and facts to back it up. Possibly there could be judges appointed from the faculty and studentry to award honors to those who best attacked the issues. It would be a chance for some of us to ask and answer the question: Why? A question which belongs at the end of all slogans from 'Stop The War Machine' to 'Fight For Democracy!'

CRISIS IN THE MAYOR'S OFFICE

By Don Andabata

The office of the Mayor. The Chief of Police enters and the Mayor speaks:

"Chief, I've got bad news."

"What is it boss?" asks the Chief challengingly.

"There is an insidious plot afoot to corrupt the campaign tactics of the mayoral candidates," says the Mayor gravely.

"How?" asks the Chief putting a hand on his pistol.

"By withholding the important issues from the public, by using signs which show only the face or name of a candidate, and by using meaningless slogans and jingles and even songs."

"Which candidates, boss?" asks the Chief drawing the pistol.

"All of them."

"All of them, really?"

"Well, all but the radicals, you know the socialists and protestants."

"Who's responsible for the plot, boss?" asks the Chief.

"I hate to say this," says the Mayor gazing skyward and genuflecting.

"Who is it, boss, I'll take care of them," says the Chief.

"It's—It's the people, Chief," says the Mayor almost sobbing.

"No," says the Chief, looking at his pistol and sheathing it. "But how, boss?" he asks.

"They're mesmerized," says the Mayor.

"Huh?"

"They're not mature and they're psychologically pliable," explains the Mayor.

"They dasn't," huffs the Chief.

"It's true, look, it's right here in Glenn Petrie's column," says the Mayor, producing an October 11 issue of The Guardsman.

The Chief looks at the paper and says, "I was afraid it might spread."

"What?" asks the Mayor. "Has this happened before."

"Yes, but on a smaller scale. Don't you remember, last summer a little girl, 10 years old, was walking through the park and she met a 48-year-old San Quentin parolee. He asked her to talk to him and she did, then he asked her to walk with him and she did, then he asked her to come in has car with him and she did, then he beat her up, took her money and left her on the beach."

"Yes, I remember now," says the Mayor. "What was the outcome?"

"Why, we threw the book at her, of course. The way she tempted that poor man trying to go straight was disgraceful. We got her for immaturity on three counts, extreme pliability, gullability and of course, trust in the first degree. Got a conviction easy. She's still locked up or I'd think she was in on this plot. By the way, what are we going to do about this?"

"Why don't we ask Petrie?" suggests the Mayor.

"I don't think it is fair to ask him to do everything," the Chief replies after considerable thought. "After all, he thought up the problem."

AUTHORITY TO SPEAK ON VIETNAM: THE THREE CRISES

"America's three crises in Vietnam," will be the subject of a lecture by Dr. William Nighswonger, teacher and author, during College Hour on October 26 in the Little Theater. Nighswonger is Assistant Professor of Political Science at Sonoma State College and has published a paper entitled Rural Pacification in Vietnam. He has also published his thoughts in a jointly authored book entitled War Without Guns: American Civilians in Rural Vietnam.

Professor Nighswonger served during 1962-64 in Vietnam as the senior USAID representative for the City of Danang and the surrounding province of Quang Nam. He has spoken widely to college, community and television audiences in the United States.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Associated Collegiate Press — ACP Press

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 65, No. 3 — WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1967 — Page 2

Council Walkout An Example Of Immature Party Actions

IN STUDENT COUNCIL last week there was a mass walkout of Change council members. The loss of Change's two-thirds voting majority has given rise to new tactics devised to slow up an already floundering system of parliamentary procedure.

IT HAS BEEN POINTED OUT by council members that walking out of meetings is their privilege, but this incident, as explained by Councilman Ray Bietz was a political maneuver. It was a useless one too.

There have been entirely too many political antics this semester with both parties guilty of deliberately avoiding cooperation. The students' welfare has taken a lesser priority to that of furthering party ambitions and glory.

IF THE PARTIES CAN'T or don't want to come together and at least attempt to work out differences so that the Associated Students can have a government worthy of the name, then perhaps this campus is better off with no student leadership at all.

If walkouts or other contrived shenanigans occur, and council actions are stifled because of the lack of a quorum, then council serves no purpose and has no value. This is not a case of half a loaf being better than none.

WE SHUDDER TO THINK that this, the council that can't agree on whether it should even meet, is the same council that must allocate the AS budget later this semester.

Council members claim the administration treats them like children, but perhaps that is because they behave that way.

Vietnam Debates Proposed

WITH THE CONTROVERSY raised over the Vietnam resolution passed by council three weeks ago, some persons have expressed a desire to replace the "flap" with honest comments and facts.

To this end, a proposal has been made: A series of debates, open to anyone with an opinion which he can explain or document, discussing the various questions on the Viet war.

DEBATING WOULD BE INFORMAL so as to provide no unfair advantages to those versed in forensics with prizes given to those who best present their views.

Airing opinions on this campus is one thing that is sorely lacking, and the Viet issue is a biting one.

We think that such debates would be a healthy activity and we endorse the idea of starting them.

IT WOULD BE ABOUT TIME for action on this campus.

Anyone interested in participating in such debates is invited to do so and should contact either Ed Holmes or Terance Cantrell in The Guardsman office, S-304, or Ross Klutke in Bungalow 5.

USA War Poll Stirs Party Controversy

Surveying the far horizons of student opinion, United Students for Action political party has uncovered the seemingly lost art of poll taking at City College.

USA's recent sampling of student opinion concerning the American involvement in Vietnam was almost equally divided with 162 students favoring Johnson's Vietnam policy and 161 voting against the war.

The poll's instructions asked students to place an "X" next to one of the following: "I am in favor of the Vietnam war, or I am opposed to the Vietnam war, or I am against the war in general, but I view the conflict as a 'necessary evil.'"

"Students viewing the war as a 'necessary evil' were judged as being in favor of the war and the results were tabulated accordingly," USA spokesman Ray Bietz pointed out.

"This poll was designed to see if students are misrepresented by their elected leaders concerning the Vietnam war issue," Bietz noted.

CHANGE COUNCILMAN Ron Henkle recently introduced a resolution claiming that "the Associated Students are opposed to the Vietnam war and the draft." The resolution was passed, and this led to the distribution of the USA poll.

"The poll did achieve its purpose, because the results showed that all of the Associated Students are not opposed to the war as claimed in the Henkle resolution," Bietz stressed.

Some students simply disagreed with Bietz concerning the validity of the poll, including former Change party member Ross Klutke.

KLUTKE stated that the poll was "woefully inadequate" because the survey "could have been easily passed out to their own party sympathizers.

"With only 300 samples, which is far less than minimum representation of half of the 10,000 students currently enrolled on this campus, the poll cannot be deemed acceptable or comprehensive," Klutke emphasized.

However, according to USA Councilman Chris Loo, "Change is bringing up its own party interests and feels that it (Change) can speak for all City College students.

"USA doesn't believe they (Change or USA) or anyone else can speak for the entire student body on any major issue without discussing that issue with their constituents.

"This is why we organized the poll, because 300 samples can better represent student views on major issues than nine Change council members," Loo asserted.

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1967

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... STEVEN HARA
Managing Editor ..... Lori Pittman
Feature Editor ..... Marty Arbunich
Staff Editor ..... Glynn Petrie
News Editor ..... Ed Holmes
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan

Editorial Assistants: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, Douglas Dorn, John Janigian, Ron Lent, John Letourneau, Viggo Petersen.

Reporters: Barry Brown, Tom Graham, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf.

Cub Reporters: John Bendoritis, Lani Brand, Tim Brydon, Elizabeth Callan, Terance Cantrell, John Carpenter, Rita Carroll, Chris Esteban, Arthur Fanfelle, Jack Forester, Barbara Hamann, Richard Harley, David Huffine, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Dennis Mundt, Rosita Murphy, David Noren, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom, Steven Sandy, May Ling Wong.

Photographers: Ed Bruns, Chief; Gary W. Batchelor, Paul Bancey, James Bruce, Carol Gillmore, Roberto Guillen, Fred Harris, Robert Kim, Klaus Kutz, Gary Lee, Garth Ogle, Mike Reams, Chris Rozales, Richard Spitalieri, Kevin Tobin, Mark Weinand, Samuel Woo.

Guardsman Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Campus Lineup:

Tickets Now On Sale For Shaw's Play Saint Joan

Tickets go on sale today for George Bernard Shaw's Saint Joan. The play will be the drama department's first major production this semester and will be presented in four nightly performances, starting next Wednesday, in the college theater.

Tickets cost 50 cents for students, one dollar for nonstudents and can be obtained at the door or by calling the box office, 587-7272. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

SYMPHONY FORUM: Season tickets for the 1967-68 San Francisco Symphony concerts, which begin November 29, are available in Smith Hall—103, and not the Science Hall locations as announced in the last issue of The Guardsman.

CONCERT BAND: The college Concert Band is in need of qualified clarinet, flute, trumpet and tuba players, Band Director Joseph Alessi announced recently. Band rehearsals are every Tuesday and Thursday from 8 to 9 a.m. or from 9 to 10 a.m. in A-132. One unit is offered each semester. Interested students can contact Alessi in A-128.

SCOTTISH RITE SCHOLARSHIPS: Applications for each of the four Scottish Rite Scholarships, worth $175 each, must be filed with Dean of Women Mary Golding by the end of this week.

RAM SKI CLUB: The Ram Ski Club will fly to ski resort Snow Mass, at Aspen, Colorado, for activities scheduled from January 27 to February 3. This trip is open to all.

A $50 deposit is due by October 27. The total cost of the trip will be $184 for jet and bus fares, seven nights of lodging, six days of skiing, six breakfasts, room showers and free shuttle service to the different areas.

Vantage Point

by Glynn Petrie

IT IS BECOMING increasingly obvious that very few Americans are pleased with the results of the U.S. involvement in Vietnam to date despite the periodic "outlooks are bright" statements from Defense Secretary McNamara and General Westmoreland.

Even many individuals who support the U.S. position have expressed desires to completely abandon this messy "project."

Hand in hand with the wash-the-hands sentiment is the belief that the 1968 elections will provide the nation with a people's decision on future U.S. policy in Southeast Asia (not just Vietnam) and that in turn the new administration, if it is new, will be able to bring the conflict to a "satisfactory conclusion," whatever that means.

But since Lyndon Johnson is to be President until then, so the feeling goes, we have to stick it out but only until Election Day. Then the majority (of those who vote) will decide what course the nation may take and we will be able to unburden ourselves of this unpleasant task of containing Communism.

HOWEVER, SINCE THE two major parties traditionally disagree on many issues, victory by one will not constitute a clear public referendum on the Vietnam question. Many people will vote for a candidate because of his stand on state's rights or corn prices or federal regulatory powers.

To further becloud the situation, the Republicans, who have generally advocated strong measures in Vietnam, are not likely to have a Vietnam plank in their platform appreciably opposed to Lyndon Johnson's.

Since it seems unlikely that a Democratic or Republican "peace" candidate will appear, the '68 Presidential election may not only fail to resolve the conflict over the conflict but may obscure it even more.

But basic national policy shouldn't be the Republican or Democratic Party's decision; it's supposed to be the people's. And if the wisdom of the masses demands a Vietnam pullout, their wishes should be respected.

Therefore, the only solution to the current no-win dilemma is a nationwide vote on the Southeast Asia question alone. Without going into specific details the voter could be asked whether the U.S. should just quit worrying about Southeast Asia or continue the policy, perhaps with a few modifications, of opposing the Communist advance.

THIS REFERENDUM should be conducted in an orderly and impartial manner, if at all possible, with protagonists of each view being given a certain amount of time and space to extoll the merits of their respective programs before the ever watchful and critical scrutiny of the public.

Despite charges to the contrary, the Vietnam conflict is not "Lyndon's war." He did not start it, Ho Chi Minh did, and it is doubtful that the President has ever had territorial ambitions for Asian jungles and rice paddies.

However, he has, as President, taken it upon himself to make major policy decisions which the American majority, after getting the lowdown on the situation from the Daily Bugle and discussing it over the backyard fence, may not fully agree with.

THOUGH CERTAINLY having as much insight into the complexities of foreign affairs as any Chief Executive, the people have not been able to effectively register their advice with President Johnson. Without this advice he may have, in his inexperience, made some mistakes.

A national referendum would rectify this and return the power of decision-making to the enlightened electorate. If Americans are so ready and willing to give such complete criticism as they do, they would surely be equally willing to accept complete responsibility. Wouldn't they?

Labelled And Recorded

Strange Days—Doors' Outlet For Chaos

By Marty Arbunich

STRANGE DAYS—Elektra: Strange Days; You've Lost Little Girl; Love Me Two Times; Unhappy Girl; Horse Latitudes; Moonlight Drive; People Are Strange; My Eyes Have Seen You; I Can't See Your Face In My Mind; When The Music's Over.

Personnel: Jim Morrison, vocals; Ray Manzarek, keyboards and marimba; Bob Krieger, guitar; John Densmore, drums.

JIM MORRISON'S plunge of boldness, headlong into the audience, added nicely to the excitement of the Doors' concert in Berkeley last week.

It would have been more exciting, however, to have seen and heard him introduce the songs off the Doors' brand new album. Overworking "old" material is unnecessary when there's a fresh collection at hand.

Nevertheless, the Doors' new writings, Strange Days, can be taken in at the price of the record. It's provocative listening, carefully written and skillfully instrumented.

It's not on the same plane as their initial album, however. Overall it falls a bit short—but the first one, which is still marketing well as a national best-seller, is almost an impossibility to equal.

The album includes some especially interesting lyrics, once again furnished entirely by the group. The writings suggest rather than being superficial and obvious. The words are there but the logic is disguised by the symbolism and association with violence, sex and death.

The major work on the album is a one and a half minute narration by Morrison: a stimulating slice of poetry entitled Horse Latitudes. The opening lines hint tranquility as insecurity lurks:

When the still sea completes an armor
And here sullen and aborted
Currents breed tiny monsters,
True sailing is dead.

"We're interested in anything about revolt, disorder and chaos," Morrison emphasizes. "And we especially relish activity that seems to have no meaning." This song has its chaos serenity is swallowed by violence as symbolism intervenes and inspires the imagination:

Awkward instant
And the first animal is jettisoned.
Legs furiously pumping
The still green gallop.
And heads bob up
Poise
Delicate
Pause
Comment
In mute nostril agony
Carefully refined
And sealed over.

When The Music's Over is much the same. The violence to which Morrison refers is here too. There's roughly nine minutes between the placid opening line "When the music's Over/Turn out the lights" and the confusing verse which suggests only hostility, but the authors nonetheless achieve their aspiration:

What have they done to the earth?
What have they done to our fair sister?
Ravaged and plundered
and ripped her and bit her,
Stuck her with knives
in the side of the dawn
And tied her with fences and dragged her down.

A conflict is obvious—exactly what conflict is the mystery juxtaposed with the masqueraded logic. Unveiling the words is yet another conflict.

The Doors' instrumentation is still sublime. Ray Manzarek's organ does not cast the giant shadow it did in the first album—it lends itself to some beautiful guitar work by Bob Krieger.

Krieger comes through nicely in Love Me Two Times and Moonlight Drive, in particular.

Unhappy Girl, Strange Days and Moonlight Drive are outstanding selections. Their lyrics are interesting—particularly the closing verse of the latter: ("Goin' down by the ocean-side . . ./Baby gonna drown tonight/Goin' down . . .").

People Are Strange and You're Lost Little Girl are simple—the words are few but precise.

The dry eraas on this album are My Eyes Have Seen You and I Can't See Your Face. They just exist!

With this Album Elektra innovates a technique which should have come long ago. They've printed the lyrics to all the songs on the inside record jacket and possibly set rival companies on their toes.

Those who fancied the Doors' first album shouldn't have much trouble digesting this one.

The Doors

"We're interested . . . in revolt, disorder and chaos."

Football Team Grabs First Win

T-Birds Down Ram Booters, 6-5, End Long Streak At 100

By John LeTourneau

Coach Roy Diederichsen's streak of 100 victories without a loss was stopped by undefeated Merritt, 6-5, October 11, on the T-Birds' field.

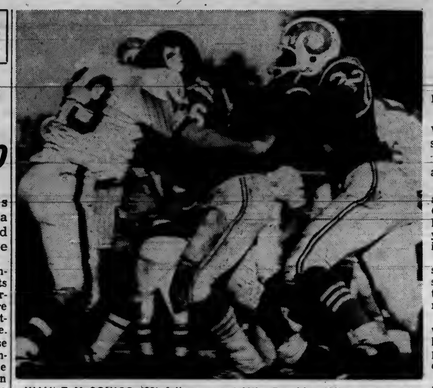
The loss, the first since Diederichsen took over as coach in 1948, puts the Rams in second place behind Merritt and San Mateo. However, there is a double round robin in the Western Junior College Soccer Conference.

THE CONTEST was extremely close throughout, as neither team had command at any time in the game. "The turning point in the game was when a Ram fullback accidently kicked the ball in our goal," Diederichsen said. The accidental boot tied the score at 2-2, and gave the T-Birds added momentum.

Also hurting the Rams was the fact that they had to operate with an inexperienced right fullback, because All-America Roger Sarria is injured. This left a gap in the Ram defense, and Merritt capitalized on it. "When a team scores five goals, that should be enough to win, but our defense ended up giving six," Diederichsen commented.

The lead exchanged hands a total of 11 times as the T-Birds scored with eight minutes left for the final score. The Rams had a 4-3 lead at half time on goals by Jerry Tigue, Henry Mejia, Otey Cannon, and Al Chu. However, Merritt came right back to tie it up in the beginning of the second half.

That lead held up until the T-Birds went ahead at 5-4 at the end of the third period. However, Cannon came back with another goal to tie the score at 5-5.



"It was a very tough game all around and Merritt is a very strong and mature club," Diederichsen said. "We played a little sloppily at times and great at other spots," Diederichsen commented. "If we even out our attack, I think we can beat them next time," the Ram mentor added.

FROM NOW ON the Rams will have to play catch up to the rest of the league, primarily Merritt and San Mateo. This is something previous Ram soccer teams never had to do. Also every game is a crucial, as one more loss would put the Rams out of the running for the title.

Today the Rams meet Solano at Balboa Stadium, the first home game of the year for the booters.

The Solano contest will not be a conference game, but should prove interesting because the Rams will be experimenting with their new plays. It also gives a chance for the reserves to get in some playing time.

Monday the Rams resume conference action with Diablo Valley.

WAYNE McCONICO (22) follows guard Mike Deschler (66) into the end zone for his second touchdown in 16-0 win over Foothill. McConico, the team's top rusher in every game, so far has picked up 334 yards in four games. Deschler, center Kevin Shea and All-Conference tackle John Monroe lead an experienced offensive line that must open the holes for McConico and teammates Jon Dyson, Willie Lewis and Joe Ball to run through. —Guardsman photo by Chris Rozales

McConico Paces Attack As Rams Dump Foothill, 16-0

By Arthur Fanfelle

Friday the 13th was a lucky day for the Ram footballers as they won their first game by thumping the Foothill Owls, 16-0, at Ram stadium.

The Ram assault was led by halfback Wayne McConico who amassed a total of 118 yards while packing the ball 23 times.

The Rams showed some of their potential when they collected a total of 295 yards while holding the Owls to 78 yards on the ground and limiting the air game to a mere 38 yards, granting only four completions in 15 attempts.

The game saw a new event when soccer-style place-kicker Mark Hensley booted a 32-yard field goal in the fourth quarter, setting a college record in the process.

THE FIRST score of the game came when the Rams took the opening kickoff and marched 77 yards in eight plays; McConico drove three yards off left tackle for six points.

The team unleashed its fury the next time it had the ball, covering 79 yards in eight plays with McConico capping the drive on a three-yard plunge. Tom Mayfield split the uprights making it 13-0.

Tom Mayfield passed for 84 yards while hitting six for 12 attempts. Fullback Willie Lewis showed his fine talents, rushing for 30 yards and showing fine pass protection blocking. He, in turn was supported by Jon Dyson who darted about for 47 yards on only four carries.

The offensive line showed its brilliance as the Ram quarterbacks were dumped only once for minus-two yards.

The Owl backs were not as fortunate as they were dumped six times for 35 yards. This was due to the outstanding teamwork of the Ram defensive unit.

The secondary was air tight allowing only two first downs passing. An interception played a big part in the defensive struggle as Ken Byrne intercepted a pass on the 10-yard line and sprinted 25 yards, forestalling a possible Owl score.

The City College rushers totaled 206 yards and picked up 12 of their 17 first downs by that route.

The Rams' top receiver to date, Mike Carter, only caught one pass for eight yards and the other starting end, Craig Johnson, failed to catch any.

The Rams were given a scare when All-Conference Alan Cowlings limped off the field; later it was revealed that it was only a sprained ankle. The front four was spending more time in the Owl backfield than anywhere else. The foursome was composed of Cowlings, Ralph Hodge, Mike Streich and Kevin Shea; a line that averages 247 pounds and is capably backed up by linebackers Mike Deschler and Orice Pittman.

McCONICO HAD a great day as he rushed for over 100 yards for the second time in four games, but his value was not just on the ground as he caught three passes covering 55 yards.

The previous field goal record for the college was a 28-yarder. Hensley also narrowly missed a 37-yard attempt in the first half.

The game evened both teams' league marks at 1-1.

The Rams take on Merritt at Frank Youell Field in Oakland Friday at 2:30 p.m. Merritt, 0-2 in league play, is led by All-American candidates Ed Lambert and Charlie Brown. Lambert, a 262-pound tackle is the cousin of Baltimore rookie star Bubba Smith.

Merritt has fallen to Chabot, 29-12, and San Mateo, 31-7, in its initial league encounters.

RAMBLINGS Former Ram Pacesetter, All-Pro Ollie, Retires

By Mike Duggan

OLLIE MATSON, who started his brilliant athletic career at Washington High School and has since left his marks at City College, USF, the 1952 Olympics, and finally as a National Football League star, has finally retired from active sports as of this last summer.

A brief look over the record books leaves no doubt that the once-Ram halfback is one of the great athletes of all time.

AFTER LEADING the city preps in scoring during the 1948 football season, Matson topped it off with first places in the 100, 220 and pole vault in the All-City track meet. Besides those events, Matson was also Washington's top long jumper, hurdler and 440 man.

The following year, Matson attended City College and left his name in this college's record book also. "Old Number 74" led the Rams and Coach Grover Klemmer to a perfect 12-0 season.

Playing in all but one of the contests, Matson racked up 19 touchdowns and 1095 yards rushing. Ollie ranks third in all-time City College scoring and rushing, with only O. J. Simpson (323 points and 2552 yards rushing) and Tom Piggee (125 points and 1625 yards rushing) ahead of him.

In his final two regular season games as a Ram, Ollie rang up seven touchdowns on runs of 89, 69, 67, 60, 50 and passes of 22 and 10 yards in leading the Rams to 27-7 and 25-19 wins over Stockton and Modesto, respectively.

Matson and teammate Burl Toler both received All-American honors (Toler and his then coach, Grover Klemmer, are both NFL officials now).

From this college, Matson went on to lead USF to an unbeaten year in 1951 and led the country in both scoring and rushing while running away with All-American honors.

The Olympics was Ollie's next stop. Matson came away from the 1952 Games with a gold medal and a bronze medal. Matson finished third in the 400-meter dash and then ran a leg on the winning U.S. 1600-meter relay team.

With all these achievements behind him, Matson turned to pro football and proceeded to become one of the great break-away runners in the league's history. Matson also played flanker, tight end and defensive back during his career.

OLLIE STARRED for six years with the Chicago (now St. Louis) Cardinals, and then went to the Los Angeles Rams for eight valuable linemen. The remainder of his great 15-year career was spent with the Detroit Lions and finally with the Philadelphia Eagles. It took one of the best, Timmy Brown, to keep the 37-year-old on the bench last season and Ollie did in fact start the Playoff Bowl against the Baltimore Colts.

Matson's total yardage mark of 12,844 is second only to the immortal Jim Brown, who managed 15,549 yards in only nine years.

Ollie Matson is a man who will not be forgotten easily, and a man who has left behind some records which will never be forgotten.

FORMER COLLEGE football star and all-around athletic great Ollie Matson. Matson's 1948 total of 114 points in a City College uniform has been topped only by the great O. J. Simpson. In one game against Stockton, Ollie gained 170 yards while carrying the ball only a total of eight times from scrimmage.

Tracksters Split Tri-Opener

City College's cross country team split its tri-meet, conference opener October 12, heating Merritt College and losing, narrowly, to San Jose City College.

San Jose's Bob Woodliff won the race, setting a new record for Merritt's four-mile course. Woodliff's time was 23 minutes 55 seconds over the course which abounds with difficult hills.

City College's Fred Forsberg placed second in the race. Other top finishers for the Rams were George Haza, John Beroritis, Bob Annestad and Jose Garcia in that order.

The Rams look for a stiff test in their next meet as they face conference favorite San Mateo and Foothill College tomorrow on Foothill's course.

Fate By Fantasy

After Poor Planning, Rains, The Halls All Came Tumblin' Down

By Tim Brydon

Back in the Fall of 1967, there was once an institution called City College, flanked by the protective cross on Mt. Davidson.

Now it is gone, replaced by desert.

City College was once a handsome place. Flowers grew everywhere. Smiling young men and women held hands on their way to class. The sun was pleasant and the breeze was mild.

Now it was in this year that a bald, little old campus beautifier decided to change things.

He was vain and power-seeking. "I will change all this," he said with a sweep of his hand.

THE FIRST THING the beautifier did was to scrape away most of the lawn surrounding Science Hall so he could plant more trees.

The grounds were already a black forest of woods.

However, he fell behind schedule and found himself carving up the lawn during the rainy season.

The rains came—and they came, and they came.

A long time ago, vain men had built City College on a pile of sand so it would have an unprecedented view of the reservoir across the street.

The rains brought the final chapter to this utopia. They pounded the sands and undermined the foundation of Science Hall.

THEN IT HAPPENED.

Science Hall, in a death struggle to cling to its perch, slipped off its foundation and slid down the sand to the edge of the lovely reservoir.

The people of San Francisco were in a quandary.

"Oh, our lovely college," they said. "All our taxes," they cried.

But no one was more troubled than the campus beautifier, for he had no hair to pull.

Science Hall teetered on the reservoir's edge for one week, then crumbled into the reservoir and out of sight.

There was a mightly belch. Vapor and clouds of gaseous matter spread over the area for miles in every direction.

The water was contaminated and the area quarantined.

EVERYTHING DIED. What was once San Francisco's Garden of Eden, is now dust and thorns.

Those who try to improve on perfection, as did the campus beautifier, should check the weather.

The moral of this story is: If you try to improve on perfection, don't let your schedule slip or the whole thing will.

Focus: Attend Or Fail

by Lori Pittman

ATTENDANCE means the difference between passing and failing at this college, regardless of grades.

Some students find this out the hard way, but it's a fairly obvious fact. Not only is a page and a half of the college catalogue devoted to attendance rules, but most faculty members warn their students during the first few weeks of classes.

MONEY IS THE main reason for these rules. The state of California pays for each student's education here on the basis of Average Daily Attendance, not enrollment.

Two weeks of each semester are considered the attendance weeks on which the A.D.A. is judged and funds are based. However, if students were only required to attend classes during these two weeks, they could no longer be considered an average.

Another factor seems to be the feeling of some faculty members that since the state is paying for students to attend college, they should be required to do so.

On the other hand, should a student be given a failing grade simply on the basis of attendance?

A committee, including members of both the faculty and Associated Students, has been set up this semester to revise the matter of attendance reporting. The power of this committee is yet unknown, but actual revision of the law is up to the state.

IF THE STATE IS unwilling to change the law, then the college should consider lightening the stigma. Rather than saddling students with failing grades for missing too many classes, they should simply be dropped from the rolls without a grade and be allowed to reenter the college under a last-to-come basis.

Since space is such an important part of this college due to the overcrowding, being the last to enroll should be enough punishment (if punishment is necessary) to encourage students to attend their classes.

A failing grade—like a passing grade—should be earned, not given.

The Guardsman / Free Critic

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 65 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1967 NUMBER 4

Shaw's 'Joan' Opens Tonight

Lynda Salazar In Lead Role Of First Drama Production

Saint Joan by George Bernard Shaw will open the fall season of City College's drama department tonight and continue through Saturday, November 4, at the college theater.

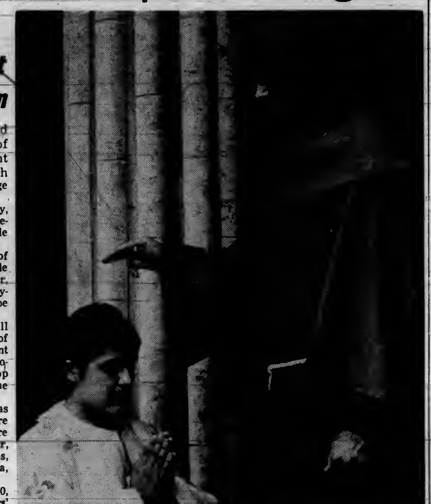
Walter Krumm, director of the play, stated, "We chose a Shaw play because he is so well known and people will come to see his plays."

THE ENTIRE CAST is made up of City College students. Having the title role of Joan will be Lynda Salazar, who has appeared at the Mission Playhouse. Opposite Miss Salazar will be Bill McCall, portraying Dunois.

Also appearing in main roles will be Gary Arata as the Archibishop of Rheims, Robert Jones as the reluctant dauphin, Louis Evans as John de Stogumber, Richard Vinson as Bishop Cauchon, and John Bacellano as the Earl of Warwick.

Art instructor Paul Crowley has designed seven settings that capture the spirit of the times just before the Reformation. Margaret Affalter, art student, created the costumes, while another art student, Brian Shea, made the armor.

THE STORY TAKES place in 1430, during the time of the 100 Years' War and the reign of Henry V. England controlled France at the time and Joan was a 13-year-old girl who lived in Lorraine, France. It was at this time that she first heard voices from Heaven telling her to get an army and drive the invaders out of her country.



Four years later, Joan persuaded the king to let her command the whole French army. Her career lasted only eight months when she was captured by the British. No more than a year later, the British burned her at the stake.

But the play by Shaw does not end there; instead, it reveals a dream by the King of France, 25 years after Joan's death. He dreams that Joan has come back from the dead, but when the king awakes, he realizes that she is better off dead.

KRUMM BELIEVES THAT the historical event in the play seems "illogical," but he was quick to add that he considers Saint Joan as the greatest of Shaw's plays.

Saint Joan's final appearance will be made on November 17 at the Scottish Rite Auditorium, 19th avenue at Sloat boulevard.

Curtain time will be 8 p.m. for all performances. There will be no charge of admission for students with Associated Student cards, or complimentary tickets can be obtained from English instructors.—B. K.

LYNDA SALAZAR (l.) AND DENNIS KLEIN, who play the roles of Joan and Brother Martin, respectively, in the college's production of George Bernard Shaw's Saint Joan, rehearse their parts for the drama which opens tonight in the college theater.—Guardsman photo by Chris Rozales

Bietz Advocates Muni Discounts

Student Council last week started the necessary procedures to make student discount tickets available through the Municipal Railway, according to Special Research Chairman Ray Bietz.

Bietz contacted Supervisorial candidates Ronald Pelosi, Robert H. Mendelsohn, John Riordan and John Ertola, and got their support for this action. Also letters were written by former Associated Student President Rich Christensen to Mayor John Shelley and James Finn, assistant general manager of the Muni Railway, seeking their help in the matter.

A complete study of all San Francisco transit systems is to take place before any final decision is to be made. The general manager of the Municipal Railway and the Public Utilities Commission will be the judges on this matter.

The reactions from all contacts by Bietz were positive, including promises from candidates if elected to office.

Council Member Proposes Experimental College Plan

By Ron Lent

Frosh Councilman James Morrison, chairman of the recently proposed campus Experimental College, announced his intentions to begin the formation of the student-led educational program this week through the usage of campus communication facilities including The Guardsman, radio station KCSF, bulletin boards and "word of mouth."

The Experimental College is an educational innovation based on the theory of self-education rather than vocational training," Morrison explained.

The councilman added that the selection of the Experimental College curriculum is a student matter, and, although faculty members can qualify as instructors in the proposed program, students will lead most of the sessions during their class-free hours.

AFTER THE INITIAL publicity phase, Morrison plans to conduct a series of polls to discover the students' basic curriculum and teaching interests.

After obtaining the desired student interest, Morrison intends to establish the program on a Student Council budget.

If council rejects the Experimental College's budget request, Morrison plans to present the proposed project for administration and student consideration.

"THIS PROGRAM WILL in no way interfere with the present class curriculum and is a non-partisan issue," Morrison stressed.

"Classes will be conducted informally with neither tests nor attendance taken at any time," he added.

Although Morrison's class registration procedure is not definite, any student or faculty member interested in the program is encouraged to "contact me as soon as possible," Morrison asserted.

He then stated that this program should prove conclusively that "we, the students, can organize our own educational program based on our own wants and needs."

Acting Coordinator of Instruction James Billwiller revealed that, in his opinion, "the administration would not attempt to block the path of the Experimental College program, because it is the students' right to meet and form organizations as specified in the Civic Center Act."

The Civic Center Act, which permits groups to meet on campus with administration approval providing no fees are charged by said groups, was tested on this campus a year ago when a group of Berkeley citizens made an abortive attempt to organize classes at City College night sessions but were refused permission to establish their private programs because the Berkeley group also wanted to charge fees.

Critic 'Censored,' Says Lazore; Council Debates Test Of Admin Authority

By Tom Graham

The blank space in the last edition of the Free Critic raised the question in Student Council last week regarding the administration's authority of censorship over campus newspapers.

The article that was submitted to Larry Lazore, editor of the Free Critic, concerned job placement and Joseph Amori, director of placement. It accused the job placement office of less-than-impartial job recommendation and implicated Amori.

Lloyd Luckmann, acting president of the college, who had the article read to him over the phone before it was to be printed, reportedly told Lazore that in his opinion the article was possibly libelous and that it should not be printed. Dr. Luckmann has an LL.B. degree from the University of San Francisco.

AFTER THE PAPER appeared, minus the article, Lazore took his problem to Student Council. Change party members sympathized with him and suggested to council that an Ad Hoc committee be formed to present their grievance with the college administration to the American Civil Liberties Union.

It was then amended to bring in the local news media for consultation over the problem of censorship. Chris Loo, soph councilman, suggested that council first meet with Dr. Luckmann to discuss the problem. Loo argued that Dr. Luckmann might have been trying to protect the college and Lazore, but his request was denied.

Ross Klutke, finance chairman, asked to have the article submitted for publication in this issue and suggested that if it were censored again, Student Council should mimeograph it and circulate it around campus.

CONCERNING OTHER BUSINESS, Student Council has recommended continuance of a tuition-free two-year college and will send its recommendation to the state legislature. It also recommended to have a vote taken on campus on Proposition P.

This proposition concerns the Vietnam war situation and whether citizens agree with the policy of the Johnson administration. It will be an exact duplicate of the San Francisco ballot and its purpose is to see how minors feel about the war. Voting will be held on campus next Tuesday, November 7, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

RAY BIETZ, frosh councilman, submitted a recommendation to adopt a policy of directing each instructor to set aside one class period every two weeks for the purpose of allowing their students an opportunity to discuss, evaluate, and question the material presented during the preceding class periods.

It further recommended that the President of City College comment on the recommendation.

Bob Paolinelli, soph councilman, and Klutke submitted a recommendation that a committee be established to study the feasibility of a Pass/Fail system of instruction on this campus and that the committee meet with Acting President Luckmann to discuss the recommendation.

School Attorney Adjudges Critic 'Not Libelous'

By Ed Holmes

Legal counsel for the San Francisco Unified School District, after studying the article removed from last week's Free Critic, has adjudged it "not libelous."

The removal of the article by Acting President Lloyd Luckmann has caused cries of censorship from both faculty and students.

According to Alfred Tapson, head of the Academic Senate, a petition from interested faculty members has been received by that body requesting it to look into the administration's reasons for removing the article.

At the same time, Student Council considered consulting the American Civil Liberties Union on the matter.

Both moves were made while Dr. Luckmann was in San Diego on college business. The acting president returned to City College last Friday to disavow the censorship charges. He explained the removal as follows:

"I received word that the article in question was a little rough and possibly libelous and I called the printer. When the story had been read to me, I felt uneasy and checked with two practicing attorneys who both thought the article to be in the realm of libel.

"With these opinions added to my own I called Editor Lazore to express my concern. He agreed that the article could be rewritten in a more positive manner and he understood that I was going to pull it.

"This action was not intended as censorship but was in the nature of a postponement to get more time to look into the matter."

Because of a School Board meeting and the impending San Diego trip the administrator had not yet read the article himself. Upon his return to City College, he gave the article to Irving Breyer, legal counsel for the S.F. Unified School District. Breyer, according to Luckmann, found the article to have been written without malice.

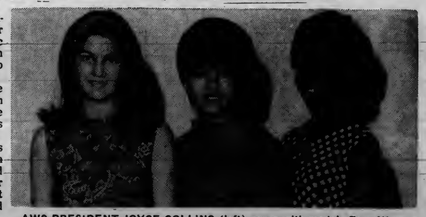
Dr. Luckmann has stated, "I do not want libelous material to appear in either the Critic or The Guardsman.

"While bad taste is not to be censored, malice will be."

The article in question appears in its entirety in this week's Free Critic.

Fourteen Vie For Best Dressed Coed

Thanksgiving turkeys, Indian corn, harvested crops and colorful displays of autumn color will emphasize the theme, Holiday Magic, for the Associated Women Student fashion show and tea, tomorrow afternoon in Smith Hall.



Along with the AWS members expected, approximately 300 high senior girls from the San Francisco public and private high schools have been invited to the show, according to Dean Mary Golding.

Mrs. Robert Jenkins, wife of the Superintendent of Schools, has been invited by the AWS to present the Best Dressed Coed award to the coeds chosen from the 14 finalists.

One woman student every year is selected to represent City College in the Glamour Magazine Best Dressed Coed Contest. Colleges from all over the country will enter the contest where ten finalists will be selected and awarded a trip to New York.

Joyce Collins, AWS president, will open the program with a welcome to all in attendance. Mrs. Marce Stuber will be commentator as the various fashions provided by H. Liebes of Grant Avenue will be modeled. This year the fashions for holiday parties will be emphasized.

Scheduled entertainment will be provided by soloists Dave Miller and Jule Stein and dancing performed by Ken Leocock. Tea will be served before the fashion show.

AWS PRESIDENT JOYCE COLLINS (left) poses with models Faye Wong and Bessie Reddick. —Guardsman photo by Frank Petticord

Censorship

By Don Andabata

In the last issue of the Free Critic there was a blank column in the center of the page. The column should have contained an article about an on-campus agency but that article was ordered removed by Lloyd Luckmann, acting president of the college. The agency concerned was one whose purpose is to serve all the student of the college; judging from comments we heard on the campus, it seemed not to be doing that and we felt that our readers, you, the students, deserved to hear about it. Dr. Luckmann did not agree, or at least he didn't think you should hear what we had to say.

It is hard indeed to present an original argument for freedom of expression, so many eloquent statements have already been made. We wonder if it is necessary to convince anyone of the evils of censorship but here is an argument from On Liberty by John Stuart Mill, "But the peculiar evil of silencing the expression of an opinion is, that it is robbing the human race; posterity as well as the existing generation; those who hold it. If the opinion is right, they are deprived of the opportunity of exchanging error for truth; if wrong, they lose, what is almost as great a benefit, the clearer perception and livelier impression of truth, produced by its collision with error."

Let us examine this particular case of censorship with these ideas in mind. The Free Critic has been empowered by the Student Council as a student publication, it is staffed by any students who wish to contribute their time and ideas and it is financed by the Associated Students. The first question which comes to mind is: Why did acting-President Luckmann decide that an article written by a student, for publication in a student paper and concerning student issues could not be read by students.

Acting-President Luckmann stated his grounds for ordering the removal of the article were that he considered it libelous. Such a contention is difficult to publicly refute while the article itself is not public and can only be presented by acting-President Luckmann and by ourselves. Of course, whatever we might say about the article will be subject to the approval of acting-President Luckmann before you will be allowed to read it. Despite this obstacle we will endeavor to bring you the truth.

Libelous literature has two basic characteristics; it is untrue, and it is damaging. The censored article consists mostly of constructive suggestions but does contain some criticism. It is, however, criticism so mild as to render the use of the term "damaging" ludicrous, like saying that Dr. Benjamin Spock is morbidly preoccupied with babies. The criticism is directed at an administration official and the natural implication is that acting-President Luckmann doesn't think that it is within the rights of a student publication to criticize administration officials nor within the rights of the students to read such criticism.

The censored article served mainly a reportorial function concerning prevalent student opinion; in other words, it attempted to report a commonly heard student complaint about an issue of fundamental importance. The article doesn't make accusations but instead reports that some allegations have been made by concerned students. Here lies the only chance that anything in the article could be construed as damaging and then only if the allegations are true.

Denying the right of a student publication to report that allegations have been made and the right of students to read about the allegations does little to remove the suspicion that they may be true. We are left with two unacceptable alternatives. First that there is malpractice within the administration or, and this repeating, that acting-President Luckmann is not willing to let you, the students, read about the issues which concern you. Either situation is one which must be acted upon.

As we have stated, (and as the article, when printed, will show) the article is not libelous but simply critical. You may ask then what other grounds could acting-President Luckmann have for ordering its withdrawal from the paper. One possibility we have mentioned; for others we turn to experts. In the essay The Nature Of The Battle Over Censorship, Walter Lippmann writes, "It is not the idea as such which the censor attacks, whether it be heresy or radicalism or obscenity. He attacks the circulation of the idea among the classes which in his judgment are not to be trusted with the idea." If this is the case here acting-President Luckmann must believe that the students at City College are not responsible enough to be hold the truth.

Lippmann states further, "The purpose of censorship is to prevent overt rebellion against the state, the church, the family, and the economic system. Where there is no danger of overt action there is rarely any interference with freedom." If this is true acting-President Luckmann must seriously fear rebellion on this campus.

Thus Walter Lippmann states the real causes of censorship and continuing says, "For purposes of argument the advocates of censorship will often pretend that they are worried about the intrinsic viciousness of an idea. Advocates of censorship are often muddle-headed and therefore not clear as to why they are doing what they are doing. But actions speak louder than words, and when you look at censorship as a whole it is plain that it is actually applied in proportion to the vividness, the directness, and the intelligibility of the medium which circulates the subversive idea."

The viciousness of the idea is what has been attacked by acting-President Luckmann in declaring the article libelous while, if we are to believe Lippmann, his real reason is simply that there is something in the article he doesn't want you to read.

There is a never-ending supply of arguments against censorship and a whole library of authorities to quote but here the issue falls in three parts which could be formed in questions. Is the censored article libelous? This question we have answered and our answer will be reinforced when the article appears in print. The other two questions we will leave for you to answer. Is acting-President Luckmann the final authority to decide what we all may or may not read? Is there to be a student newspaper which is free to publish controversial opinions on important issues? In the coming weeks we will form the answers to these questions. We will all have the opportunity to stand and be counted.

The Free Critic

Lawrence Lazore, Editor — The Critic Adviser: Mr. Berman

Vol. 1, No. 4 — WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1967 — Page 1

Editor's View On Censorship

Last week an entire article titled Student Dissatisfaction in Job Placement Facilities was censored out of the Free Critic by Lloyd Luckmann; he considered it libelous.

I do not.

The Free Critic was established by the Student Council for the purpose of student opinion and expression; it is going to remain that way.

The article in question is hereby re-submitted to the printers and will either appear within the Nov. 1st edition of the Free Critic, or it will be reproduced by other means and openly distributed on the campus by members of the Student Council.

The Free Critic is a free newspaper subject to the laws of libel, but not the administrative censorship displayed in last week's issue.

STUDENT DISSATISFACTION IN JOB PLACEMENT FACILITIES

By Dennis Mundt

Students have voiced dissatisfaction and resentment over their treatment at the college placement office. Some have suggested that discrimination exists in the department.

Principal among students' complaints are: students applying for a job are forced to conduct their business through a tiny window reminiscent of a welfare agency; almost all business is handled personally by the Director of Placement, Mr. Amori; reception by the director is seldom courteous and frequently nasty; students from minority groups are not getting an equal chance at job openings.

Under the present system, the placement office is free to choose among its applicants and to "screen-out" any which the employer might deem unqualified. There are no checks in the system to prevent its taking into account non-merit considerations, such as race, or manner of dress, quantity and distribution of hair, etc.

Whether or not this goes on at City College is debatable. What is important is that discrimination may exist here; some students strongly believe it does exist here.

A student who feels he has been slighted may submit a sworn complaint of discrimination to either the Federal Equal Economic Opportunity Commission or to the State Human Rights Commission; or if he desires, he may petition the Attorney General to initiate an action for injunction: these are his legal rights.

It has been suggested that the City College placement office adopt a policy of posting all job orders on a bulletin board so that all applicants might see what is available. This is the procedure at SF State College. Job opportunities are listed on three-by-five inch, numbered cards with employer requirements and job discriptions plainly stated—only the name of the firm and address are ommitted from the posted cards. When the student seeking a job finds a position for which he is qualified, he merely asks the placement director for the name and address of the firm, by the number of the posted position.

The placement department will be relocated in the new Educational Services Building. Hopefully, the new facilities will provide ample space to receive applicants in a more dignified manner.

Some consideration might also be given to the addition of student staff assistants to ease the strain on the director's temper, as well as to improve the service to the students.

(End of material submitted.)

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

Vol. 65, No. 4 — WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1967 — Page 2

Lack Of Material Benefits Causes Poor AS Card Sales

TO DATE, little more than 3600 Associated Student cards have been sold. By any standards, 36 per cent of a whole is a miserable tally. This condition not only shouldn't exist, it is about to be aggravated.

Theoretically, the line which separates the registered number of the AS from the active member is the AS card. Practically, there is very little difference as both types of students can benefit from AS funds.

BUT THE ACTIVE MEMBER PAYS for benefits that both members can enjoy and this is the key argument that most persons harbor in avoiding the purchase of an AS card. "Let somebody else pay for it."

Parking is the only privilege that the active member pays for and enjoys exclusively. The registered student can enjoy everything else at little or no cost to himself. This non-paying student even has the right to express how AS funds will be spent.

The condition is poor enough now but is soon to be worse if Student Council accepts the proposed constitution for the general election without changing the phrase, "any and all benefits . . . determined by the AS Senate."

THE PERSON WHO SHELLS OUT five dollars deserves more than unenumerated promises. This new phrase doesn't even give the active member the right to park his car.

We are not accusing council of treachery but this constitution, if ratified by voters and put into the hands of an unaware or unconcerned council, could wreak havoc with AS funds and privileges and would be totally within its rights to do so. The possibilities of abuse are academic now, just as the Tonkin Resolution was in 1964.

What should be done is to make all privileges stronger, more precise and perhaps more exclusive.

The students who own cards deserve the right to priority entrance at all lectures, concerts, dances, drama productions and movies, whereas now he is guaranteed that he can go to these activities providing he can get there soon enough to fight the waiting lines.

THE STUDENTS WHO PAY should be given a stronger voice in government to better distinguish their desires from those who merely participate but who have no financial involvement.

There is an unfair situation being given active members and to date they have done nothing about it. It is time for action. The general should be made more specific and the weak rules governing AS card privileges should be given more muscle, not less.

Vantage Point

by Glynn Petrie

WHEN political aspirants declare themselves candidates for city office with the Registrar of Voters, they make a statement listing their qualifications and explaining their proposed program, if elected, under the heading of "My qualifications for said office are as follows . . ."

Political office-holding requires men of high caliber and ability if leadership is to be dynamic and effective. That is why it is so heartening to read in the declarations of candidacy printed and sent to each voter the outstanding qualifications of some of the candidates running for mayor and supervisor in San Francisco's November 7 election.

Lloyd Koreneff Downton, in the race for mayor, lists his qualifications and program in just one terse, hard-hitting sentence: "I can do a better job as mayor than any other candidate."

OTHERS ARE NOT content with unprovable claims but offer solid, no-nonsense programs for civic betterment. Jerry Patrick Miller, also running for mayor, gave this rousing policy statement to the Registrar of Voters with his declaration of candidacy:

"My qualifications for said office are as follows: Peace on earth all good will towards men. This is one earth. There is nowhere to go. Legalize grass. Free food in everybody put down your guns. I love you. I love you. I love you. P.S. register to vote for every election people. This is our legal peaceful way. This is a grass root campaign."

Unfortunately, however, many candidates in the past have made promises of policy that were never carried out when they were elected. Thus, many voters become skeptical of such generous campaign vows and prefer to have verifiable data on the background of a candidate.

Few can dispute the unimpeachable qualifications of Bill Newsom, candidate for supervisor. Bill lists among his qualifications for office that he is 33 years old, lives at 1284 Stanyan Street and is married to the former Tessa Menzies. With accomplishments such as these to highlight his record there can be little question of Bill's political capability.

Education also plays an important part in a candidate's fitness for public office. Candidate for mayor, George M. Del Secco feels that the fact that he went to Mission Dolores and St. Anthony's grammar schools adds to his suitability for office.

BUT ENOUGH OF past achievements—voters want to know clearly where a candidate stands on important issues of the day. Supervisor candidate Bruce Conner sheds the following light on the situation with his qualifications statement and leaves no one in the dark as to his position:

"The light of the body is the eye; therefore when thine eye is single, thy whole body also is full of light; but when thine eye is dark, thy body also is full of darkness. Take heed therefore that the light which is in thee be not darkness. If thy whole body be full of light, having no part dark, the whole shall be full of light, as when the bright shining of a candle doth give thee light. For there is nothing covered, that shall not be revealed; neither hid, that shall not be known . . ."

BRUCE INFORMED the Registrar of Voters that he wished to have the word "Nothing," to signify his occupation, listed under his name on the election ballot.

With such obviously competent people running for office there can be little basis for the claims that there is a lack of good candidates for municipal positions. The only problem with such a dazzling array of talent is for the voter to pick the best man for the job.

KCSF Expands

Broadcasters To Get FM Time Slot For College

By Mike Wise

Very soon FM radios will include the sounds of City College to supplement the listening enjoyment of Bay Area residents.

A new FM station, KALW (91.7 megacycles on the dial), operated jointly by John O'Connell Adult School and City College, will reach the air waves by the middle of this month, stated Phillip Brown of the television and radio broadcasting department. The station will feature a variety of musical selections and also devote a portion of the time to campus news.

AT FIRST THE station will operate for only one hour a day, from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., with the radio department having the option of increasing air time later on. KALW will begin with a production staff of four broadcasters, consisting of the best four disc jockeys and newscasters selected from the campus radio station, KCSF.

The transmitter and the engineering end of the station is located at John O'Connell, while the production end is located here. John O'Connell has used its radio equipment in previous years to train students in radio engineering.

The broadcast line connecting the two schools will be installed by Bell Telephone Company, hopefully, during the next two weeks. As soon as this is finished, the station will be on the air.

The addition of an FM station to the City College campus necessitated construction of a second radio booth to supplement the one being used by KCSF, and the purchase of new equipment.

STUDENT COUNCIL passed KCSF's budget proposal last spring, which provided for the new booth and equipment. Some equipment, such as an AM tuner, an FM tuner and a tape recorder, was acquired through gifts to the radio station. The FM station was then approved by the college and the San Francisco Board of Education.

The campus radio station, KCSF, will remain unaltered with the addition of this new FM station.

It will now serve a dual purpose, however. It will not only provide the campus with instant communication and up-to-the-minute news and feature announcements, but it will also serve as a training ground for disc jockeys and newscasters, with the best of these "graduating" to KALW.

FOR EACH HOUR on KALW, two broadcasters (one disc jockey and one newscaster) will be used.

This is the first time FM broadcasting has been attempted on campus, and the radio "boys" at KCSF are experimenting with material to be used on the station.

Lattimer Lists USA Party Goals

Associated Student President Diane Lattimer stated recently that she intends to initiate a program of student polls at City College, which will allow students to express their opinions on some issues and decide what changes they want on campus.

Miss Lattimer said that results of these polls will be used in Student Council to help in determining the best policy on student matters.

Miss Lattimer listed USA party's primary goals, besides initiation of the student polls, as first, to better inform the students about their student government, and second, to obtain Muni Railway discount tickets for City College students.

She hopes to work without opposition from the college administration toward realization of these goals, and she added, "I feel that the administrators are in a tough spot and I'm not against them."

Commenting on the recent controversy concerning the Council of Organizations, Miss Lattimer said, "The statement recently made by Freshman President Larry Rodriguez criticizing COO was unfair and his plans for changes in the organization are unfeasible."

She further commented that, "the COO is a good organization which fulfills its purpose of keeping the various college clubs together. COO should be kept intact."

The AS President added that she believes Change party's methods of obtaining improvement on campus have thus far been too rushed. Miss Lattimer plans to proceed carefully to produce student-approved changes necessary at the college.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

● To Bertrand Russell

Editor, The Guardsman:

I am an American Negro. I read part of your (Bertrand Russell) review of the Dark Ghetto by Dr. Kenneth Clark, another Negro. I believe that your attitude toward the Negro problem in America is correct. The Negro has been in slavery for three hundred and fifty years. Unless something is done about the racial problem here in America, we are going to have a racial catastrophe, which might cause the end of civilization.

No man can predict the future, but I believe that if and when the average Negro earns more than the average white man, then the white man will put the Negro in concentration camps. The American Negro is still in slavery. When and if the slave is having a better life than the owner, then the only thing for the owner to do is destroy the slave.

What happened to the Jew in Germany during World War II will happen to the Negro here in America. If the atmosphere here in America gets bad enough, I plan to go to Germany and never come back to the United States. I speak, read and write German. I know some French and Spanish also.

Here in America a black man cannot become a man. He is treated as if he were just above an animal. My entire life will be devoted to examining, clarifying and possibly solving the racial problem, not only here in America, but, also, all over the world.

Joseph Osborne Jr.

(Editor's Note: The preceding letter is to be sent by the writer to Lord Bertrand Russell. Its unusual nature and the timeliness of the subject, the Negro cause in America, warrants its publication.)

● Student Rights

Editor, The Guardsman:

There was a report in The Guardsman three weeks ago about the confiscation of anti-draft literature in the cafeteria.

Unfortunately, no comment was made as to the effect of this action and others like it on the the student body at large. That the administration would refuse the right of Student Council to invite the Mime Troupe to the campus, of the right of Student Council to make birth control literature available to those students desiring such information is indicative of administration attitudes toward the ability of the students to decide for themselves what they should or should not think.

The confiscation of the anti-draft material was another in a long chain of administration protectionism. When will the administration realize that students are citizens too, and have the right to make their own decisions?

Ross Klutke

Campus Lineup:

LECTURE SERIES: Angus Wilson, noted British fiction writer, will discuss Virginia Woolf, E. M. Forster and the Bloomsbury group during College Hour tomorrow in the college theater.

CELLO CONCERTO: City College music instructor Richard Fenner will perform the Schuman Cello Concerto during College Hour November 7 in the college theater. Madeline Mueller will accompany him on piano.

HOMECOMING RALLY: KSFO disc jockey Al Collins will be the master of ceremonies at the Homecoming Rally during College Hour November 9 on the Ram stadium field. The Homecoming Queen for the college will be announced by Collins during the rally. A dance featuring the Windhover group will climax the festivities Friday night, November 10, in Smith Hall.

Shots At RAMdom

by Ed Holmes

OPENING VOLLEY: The following was left on this desk by Marty Arbunich:

"I was in the basement and wanted to buy a coke and went to the coke machine only to see that it was out of order—so I decided to have some coffee. However, the coffee machine was also out of order. From there I went to the milk machine for a carton of milk—and found that there was no change for my quarter in the milk machine.

"I went to the change machine to get the proper coins for the milk machine but found the change machine was out of order. I did find the drinking fountain a reliable spot for quenching my thirst."

It's a sad story and though disillusionment is not our goal, we feel obliged to mention that while on the peninsula last week we visited the Water Temple that marks the terminus of the Hetch-Hetchy Aqueduct.

This lovely park with its impressive structures and stirring quotations is one of the S. F. Recreation and Park Department's pride and joys.

There are two drinking fountains there, neither of which will produce a single drop of water.

Admittedly bad, the situation is not without relief. There is a pay phone on campus that refuses to keep your money. Hello, New York?

• • •

POT SHOTS

Can anyone think of a scientific project that would cause a closed room on the third floor of Science Hall to smell startlingly like bourbon?

Is the girl who brushes her teeth on campus at 2 p.m. part of a new toothpaste test?

Did Larry Lazore really mean it when he said in his Critic that all the "older and more mature students" on campus are too stupid to be able to meet "the stringent prerequisites for the presidency?"

What is there about the college switchboard that makes it impossible to get through from the outside during high use hours?

• • •

SALUTE

Take a good look at that fellow behind the counter in the cafeteria next time he splashes gravy on your peas. He may be headed for big things.

Neal Wannon, who was recently graduated from the Hotel and Restaurant department, has just been appointed as new manager of the San Francisco Playboy Club.

This, coupled with the fact that Playmate of the Month, Anne Randall, also came from City College, shows the beginnings of an insidious plot. Negotiations with Hugh for an on-campus annex can be expected any day now.

In the same vein, a professional belly dancer who is carrying 12 units here in her spare time has lost a gold pin of "high sentimental value." The pin is in the shape of a poodle and has stone inserts highlighting its facial characteristics—a blue stone for the nose and ruby eyes.

Anyone finding this blue-nosed poodie can re-unite it with the exotic owner by coming to The Guardsman office. A liberal reward has been offered.

Guardsman Staff—Fall 1967

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 240.)

(The Guardsman, its faculty adviser and staff have no responsibility for or control over material printed on the page with the Free Critic masthead.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... STEVEN HABA
Managing Editor ..... Lori Pittman
Feature Editor ..... Marty Arbunich
Staff Editor ..... Glynn Petrie
News Editor ..... Ed Holmes
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan

Editorial Assistants: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, Douglas Dorn, John Jenkins, Ron Lant, John LaTourneau, Viggo Petersen.

Reporters: Berry Brown, Tom Graham, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf.

Cub Reporters: John Bendottis, Lani Brand, Tim Bryden, Elizabeth Callan, Terance Cantrell, John Carpenter, Rita Carroll, Chris Esteber, Arthur Fantello, Barbara Hanson, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Dennis Mundt, Rosita Murphy, David Moran, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom, Mary Linz Wong.

Photographers: Ed Brune, Chief; Gary W. Batchelor, Paul Bekzey, James Bruce, Carol Gillmore, Roberta Gutlieb, Fred Harris, Robert Kim, Klaus Kutz, Gary Lee, Garth Opie, Mike Reems, Chris Rozsics, Richard Spitalieri, Kevin Tobin, Mark Weinand, Samuel Woo.

Guardsman Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Hoerse

Cannon Scores Three Goals In 3-1 Soccer Victory Over Bulldogs

By John LeTourneau

Otey Cannon's three-goal onslaught paced the City College soccer team to a 3-1 win over arch-rival, San Mateo, October 20 on the losers' field.

The win puts the Rams into a second-place tie with the Bulldogs at one game behind undefeated Merritt.

The game was very close throughout, as the Rams held a slim lead going into the final quarter. In the final quarter, San Mateo continually threatened to tie the score, but fine defensive play by fullbacks Marshall Granger, Braulio Trugueros and Roger Sarria stopped the Bulldog drives.

THE CONTEST was so close that it was anybody's ball game until Cannon scored his third goal with three minutes left. Also in the final stanza, goalie Arnie Harrott sustained a rib injury that may sideline him for the remainder of the season. This made it harder for the Rams to hold on as the Bulldogs dominated the offense.

Coach Roy Diederichsen had praise for Cannon after switching him from his lift wing spot to inside left. "He seems to be in better scoring position when he is closer to the center of the field," Diederichsen commented.

However, it was a costly victory because three players were injured. Halfback Jerry Tigue suffered a possible foot fracture, center forward Chu was knocked out and has a possible concussion. Jesse Figerroa, who has been helping with the Junior Varsity, will take over at goalie.

Diederichsen is hopeful that the trio, especially Harrott, will be back for the big Merritt game November 15.

"I think we will be able to get by with our other games, but if any of our injured men are missing against the T-Birds, it will be curtains," the Ram mentor added.

ALSO, SARRIA is still not quite recovered from a pulled tendon in his leg. He played against San Mateo, but he could have used some rest although his performance was good. Chu will definitely be in the Merritt game, but Tigue is a question mark.

Today the Rams play Menlo, a team that is tough despite an 11-1 loss to the Rams earlier in the season.

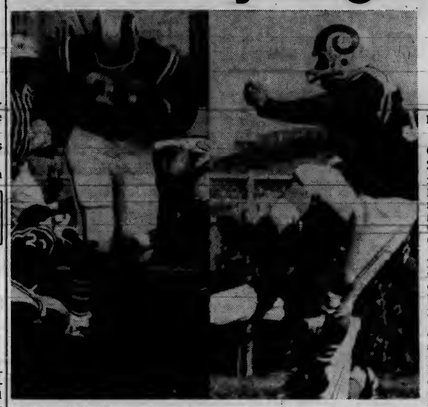
Guardsman SPORTS
Wednesday, Nov. 1, 1967 Page 3

Cabrillo Sports Day Dominated By City College

City College's Recreation Association was well represented at the Cabrillo College Sports Day October 21 in golf, badminton, fencing, volleyball, tennis, bowling and chess, by capturing eight first and two second place finishes.

This college took three firsts in tennis. Women's high game was won by Nancy Dito. Men's singles was captured by John Wong and mixed doubles was taken by Tami Thollander and John Cervantes.

Two firsts were won in badminton. Men's singles was taken by David Ng. Mixed doubles was secured by Tatiana Konstantinou and Ng.



This college also captured one first apiece in golf, bowling and chess and seconds in bowling and fencing.

Jessica Waidler took a first in women's golf, Linda Crowther captured one in bowling, and Dave Louie one in chess. A second-place award was won in women's doubles bowling by Linda Daligo and Dorothy Townsend. In fencing, Raymond Nelson took a first in men's singles.

A total of 55 City College students turned out for the RA Sports Day.

Rush copy: Iran's fastest jockey is 79 years of age.

Ram Rally Edges Chabot

TWO REASONS for City College's great come-from-behind win over Chabot. At left, fullback Willie Lewis breaks loose for a 14-yard touchdown run. Picture at right shows placekicker Mark Hensley booting the winning field goal out of the hold of Joe Barb with only 25 seconds remaining in the game.—Guardsman photos by Chris Rozales (left), Gary Lee (right).

Hensley Boot, McConico Pace 24-21 Victory

By Arthur Fanfelle

City College won its second Golden Gate Conference game, 24-21, with the help of a 34-yard field goal by soccer-style kicker Mark Hensley with only 25 seconds remaining in the game. Hensley's kick gave the Rams a come-from-behind victory over the Chabot Gladiators October 20 on the Rams' field.

Wayne McConico, the hard-running Ram halfback, lived up to his reputation as one of the top backs in the Golden Gate Conference, carrying the ball 19 times for a total gain of 212 yards.

THE RAMS TRAILED in the fourth quarter by eight points. The defensive team forced the Gladiators into repeated mistakes as "Big Daddy" Ralph Hodge and linebacker Joe Bell dropped Chabot's quarterback Jim Coopman for loses of 2 and 4 yards. Chabot punted 33 yards thus setting up one of the best series of plays that has ever been seen in Ram's stadium history.

Trailing, 21-13, Tom Mayfield handed off to Calvin Booth who swept left end and weaved his way downfield for 20 of his 99 yards. Mayfield then pitched out to McConico who packed the pigskin 37 yards. Willie Lewis followed suit bulling his way for 15 more yards. McConico gained one yard then took the next handoff for 7 yards and a touchdown.

Now two points short of a tie, with 7:24 left on the clock, the Rams lined up for the two-point conversion; the handoff went to Lewis who was gang-tackled by three Gladiator linemen at the three-yard line. Lewis literally pushed his way into the end zone packing three men with him knotting it at 21-all.

The first score of the contest came when the Rams took the opening kickoff and marched 69 yards in four plays. The opening play of the game was a handoff to Booth on a sweep. He broke loose for a 58-yard run to Chabot's five yard line. Lewis ended the drive with a one-yard run. Mayfield's kick was good.

The Rams capitalized on a short punt later in the first quarter as they covered 39 yards in three quick plays; McConico ran for 23 yards. Booth for two yards and Lewis busting over for the final 14 yards and a score.

THE SECOND QUARTER was all the Gladiators as they scored on a six-yard run by Dennis Branco. They crossed the double stripe in the third quarter on two passes by Coopman; one a 10-yard pass to Pat Orenno and another an 8-yard scoring loss to halfback Craig Leiker, and a two-point fake kick and run by kicker Mick Futterer.

The offensive ground machine of the Rams was awesome as it racked up 257 yards.

Credit must be given to the Gladiators' quarterback Coopman who passed a total of 31 times, completing 17 for 161 yards and two touchdowns. He also ran 23 times while gaining 83 yards but the Rams managed to penetrate and dump him for minus 48 yards.

The defensive unit for the Rams played another fine game. Allen "The Big Cat" Cowlings and Hodge were outstanding. The Rams seem to have an outstanding linebacker in Bell who played a fine all-around game as did Orice Pittman, both of whom were involved in many tackles.

The offensive line had its stars too as Mike Deschler, John Monroe and Ed Diaz opened gaping holes in Chabot's line allowing the backs to break loose.

McConico's total of 212 yards was the fourth largest total ever recorded by a Ram back. McConico had several long runs. He broke loose for runs of 47, 37, 34, 23 and 23 yards and caught a swing pass and ran for 49 yards only to have it called back some 25 yards where he had stepped out.

Hensley had set the college record when he kicked a 32-yard field goal last week. With Hensley's toe and McConico's legs the Rams look as if they could go to the State finals.

The longest fight on record, between Andy Bowen and Jack Burke in 1893, lasted 110 rounds and took 7 hours and 19 minutes. Result—no contest.

Gridders Face Solid Comet Aerial Attack At Contra Costa

The Ram footballers' next conference game will be against Contra Costa at Richmond High Stadium November 3, starting at 8 p.m.

The Comets feature an air attack that can make a person air sick. Quarterback Butch Whyburn is currently leading the league in passing, attempting 122 and completing 71 for a total of 784 yards, some 200 yards ahead of his nearest rival.

League-leading Lisso Harper has snagged 20 passes for a total of 286 yards and two touchdowns. Another target for Whyburn to throw to is halfback Bob Zuragoza, who has caught 12 passes for 137 yards.

Halfback Buford Evans does the bulk of the ball carrying for the Comets having rushed for 210 yards on 41 carries.

The Comets are not to be taken lightly, because they are second in total team offense. However, Contra Costa is last in total team defense.

CONFERENCE STANDINGS

	W	L	T
San Mateo	2	0	1
Diablo Valley	2	0	1
SAN FRANCISCO	2	1	0*
Chabot	2	1	0
San Jose	1	2	0
Foothill	1	2	0
Merritt	1	2	0
Contra Costa	0	3	0

Chabot Spikers Hand Rams Second Defeat

Chabot's cross country team handed City College its second loss of the season as the trackmen edged the Rams, 26 to 32, October 19.

The loss came hard for the Rams, in their only home meet of the year, as a victory against Chabot was a must if they were to stay in contention for either first or second positions in the league.

Chabot's Bill Seaver came from behind to pass City College's Fred Forsberg to win the four-mile race in a fast time of 22:01. The Rams' George Haza took third place, but Chabot won the next three places to ensure victory.

Labelled And Recorded

Electric Flag's 'Rotten' Debut

by Marty Arbunich

FOR what it's worth:

Bloomfield's Electric Flag . . .

THE TRIP—Sidewalk; Peter's Trip; Joint Passing; Fine Song Thing; Gettin' Hard, and 14 others from the original motion picture soundtrack.

A movie soundtrack is somewhat of a rotten channel for launching a group's recording debut, and more so when one diagnoses the possibilities of the Electric Flag.

After becoming familiar with the Flag through local performances, an LP of this sort is a near letdown.

This recording doesn't do justice to the actual potential of the Flag—it's limiting and nonrepresentative of their inherent capabilities.

Those who haven't been spoiled by the Flag's haunting performances and savor soundtracks teeming with the unusual, may very well find this an elixir for the curiosity.

As a soundtrack The Trip is ranging—it has beauty, dynamics and even dabbles in the psychedelics (pardon the exhausted expression).

The Flag's brass section proves interesting, leaning toward jazz and occasional blues. Mike Bloomfield, lead guitarist and formerly of the Butterfield group, takes the backseat for most of the album but gets the spotlight for about ten minutes on side two. Fine Jung Thing, in particular, reflects the superb Bloomfield talent.

Except for 52 seconds of a ragtime ditty titled Psyche Soap, the soundtrack is entirely instrumental.

Considering most limitations attached to soundtracks, this one is quite good. However, it should not be used to assess the talents of the Electric Flag or its individual musicians.

H. P. Lovecraft

H. P. LOVECRAFT—Philips; Wayfaring Stranger; Let's Get Together; I've Been Wrong Before; The Drifter; That's The Way I'm In; The White Ship; Country Boy & Bleeker Street; The Time Machine; That's How Much I Love You, Baby (More Or Less); Gloria Patria.

H. P. Lovecraft has put together one of the best LP's around, and it's a wonder why this group hasn't risen to heights of recognition as a result.

Much of the group's material is parallel to the sound of the so-called San Francisco revolution, despite not being products of the S. F. area. The Drifter and Country Boy & Bleeker Street fall right in line with tunes of the Grateful Dead and The Fish.

Lovecraft's Tony Cavallari bears a very close sound resemblance to The Fish's Barry Melton with his guitar solos, but still carries his own distinction.

This album includes the most original, and possibly the best, rendition to date of the popular Let's Get Together. The arrangement has been modified somewhat and the addition of a piccolo really enhances its intended beauty.

The White Ship is the important work on the album—a dream in a purgatory of loneliness: ("The White Ship has sailed / And left me here again . . . / Sailed on the sea of dreams / How far it seems / Sailing upon the White Ship.")

I've Been Wrong Before and That's How Much I Love You are a pair of superb love songs.

Lovecraft's approach to music is much like the color of the chameleon's skin—everchanging. They use some ragtime for The Time Machine and easily adjust to some authentic chanting in the deistic traditional, Gloria Patria. They're remarkably adaptable.

The orchestra accompanying the group is excellent and plays a wide selection of instruments. The recording is polished and exact.

The only hangup is the group itself seems to have—and it's a very minor one at that—is occasional vocal dissonance. However, this occurs only a few times and is relatively trivial.

RAMBLINGS

By Mike Duggan

Laney Eleven Slowed By Forfeit And Upset

LANEY College, which gained national prominence last year with a 35-13 Prune Bowl win over City College, recently lost its first football game in the school's history. Monterey Peninsula pulled the upset, winning 14-8.

The following week Laney bounced back for a 48-0 win over Cabrillo only to forfeit the game for using an ineligible player. Thus the college that swept through its first two seasons unbeaten, will have to come up with a miracle to win the Coast Conference and qualify for the State playoffs.

It looks like Laney will have to wait until next year before they take on City College again. The Rams also face an uphill battle in quest of a possible state championship. Laney moves into the Golden Gate Conference next season, with Contra Costa moving out, into the new North Conference.

• • •

WHAT DO THE 49ers really need? Answer is simple—a great break-away runner like Gale Sayers, the best there is. Now, how could either team afford to turn down this trade thought up by a local football expert while watching a John David Crow sweep go for no gain.

To the Bears, in exchange for Sayers, the 49ers would give up Crow, George Mira, Ken Willard and Monte Stickles. The 49ers would have just what they need and the Bears would have a complete backfield plus a fine tight end.

After all, Mira is wasting his best years playing behind John Brodie and fullback Willard is not as fast or doesn't have nearly the moves of his present back-up man and former City College star Gary Lewis. Crow is getting old and Stickles is gradually losing his job to rookie Bob Windsor so the 49ers wouldn't be losing much and the Bears might win a game or two with these four men added.

• • •

WAYNE McCONICO's 212 yards against Chabot has been topped only three times in City College history. O. J. Simpson had games of 304 and 262 yards while Tom Piggee once rambled for 213 yards.

• • •

The Los Angeles Rams' famed fearsome foursome of Lamar Lundy, Roger Brown, Merlin Olsen and Deacon Jones average about 280 pounds. Seems like a lot, but not really when one takes a look at the defensive line of Santa Barbara High School.

The high school foursome of teenagers averages 313 pounds! The left guard, smallest of the group, is 230-pound Al Reginato. Right tackle Cyril Gavin tips the scales at 260 while left tackle Dan Herring only 15, weighs in at 314. The big boy is Bob Pointer, who occupies the right guard position. His weight—447 pounds.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Froncisco

VOLUME 65 · SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1967 · NUMBER 5

Three Change Councilmen, One Independent Are Disqualified Because Of Midterm Grades

By Tom Graham

Four council members have been unseated because of grades.

They are, from Change party, Frosh Councilman James Morrison and Rupert Fleming, Sophomore Councilman Chuck Bonner, and Independent Frosh Councilwoman Lorraine Fong. Frosh President Larry Rodriguez was also disqualified from office due to grades.

This brings the total number of elected representatives who have had to leave office prematurely to seven. Rich Christensen, ex-president of the Associated Students, and Carl Griffith, ex-frosh councilman, both of Change, were disqualified from office earlier this year because they lacked the proper number of units.

PRESENTLY, THE TEN MEMBERS of Student Council consist of five members of Change, four of Forward and one independent.

The special Student Council election for the vacant council seats will be held within two weeks, according to Election Commissioner Tony Taormino.

Over the controversy of censorship, council decided to form an ad hoc committee to go before the American Civil Liberties Union, because it had been reported that Lloyd Luckmann, acting president of the college, had not really read the article submitted to the Free Critic before having it pulled from the press.

THE ARTICLE WAS later found not to be libelous and it was printed in the last edition of the Free Critic.

Editor Larry Lazore stated that the reason for the blank space in the Free Critic last week was that he follows the policy that if censorship should appear in his paper the following edition would devoted entirely to the punishment therefore he withheld articles not dealing with the problem and stated that they will be printed in later editions of the Free Critic.

In another area, council passed the recommendation submitted by Chris Loo, soph councilman, suggesting that the university parallel courses taught here give more essay examinations in order to prepare students for upper division courses.

It also passed a resolution concerning a Student Complaint/Suggestion Box submitted by Frosh Councilman Ray Zietz.

Since two-year colleges of California are required to hold classes five to six weeks longer than state colleges, Student Council resolved that a similar calendar be considered for two-year colleges. This resolution was drawn up by Bill McQuaid, frosh councilman.

1000 Grads Earn A. A. Degrees In Various Fields

By Viggo Petersen

Between the summer of 1965 and the spring of 1966, a total of 1048 students was graduated from City College with Associate in Arts degrees.

This figure, along with a breakdown of graduates in a number of professional and semiprofessional fields, was obtained recently from the registrar's office.

The most frequent major during that period was general education where a total of 243 students graduated. Rating second was letters and science with 178 graduates.

THE REGISTRAR'S LIST indicates that, aside from the fields of general education and letters and science, business administration rated as the most frequent major among students in the professional curriculum.

In the semiprofessional curriculum, hotel and restaurant management rated highest among men students, followed by criminology and business. Among women students, business rated the number one major, followed in second place by the City College nursing program.

WHAT IS INTERESTING to note in the registrar's list is the fact that general education with 243 graduates rated as the most populated major. The fact that so many students choose general education as a major indicates, to some extent, the degree of uncertainty that plagues many students during the first years of college in selecting a major.

Some students choose or are advised by their counselors to major in general education to "feel" their way through a number of courses in search of something suitable.

WHAT IS ALSO INTERESTING to note is that the final total of 1048 graduates include totals of the summer, fall and spring semesters from 1965 to 1966. That means that of 6000 to 9000 students enrolled in City College each semester, and 2000 in summer session, an average of 349 students was graduated each semester.

Although some students do leave City College after short stays to go on to a four-year college or university during the course of two years, it is interesting to speculate what may have happened to more than half the students who enrolled but were never graduated.

PARTIAL TOTALS for the '65-'66 period include (professional):

Four hundred three men graduates, 226 women — total 629 graduates in the professional curriculum.

Semiprofessional: 243 men students, 176 women—total 419.

The final tabulation adds up to a total of 1048 men and women graduates in the professional and semiprofessional curricula.

A partial breakdown in the list included in professional: business administration—62 men, 11 women; civil engineering—20 men, no women; premedical—9 men, no women; pre-teaching—3 men, 9 women; music—6 men, 7 women.

Semiprofessional: business—34 men, 73 women; nursing—3 men, 30 women; medical assisting—no men, 20 women; dental assisting—no men, 20 women; electronic engineering—16 men, no women; electrical engineering—10 men, no women.

Bids Accepted For Council Vacancies

Current Student Council elections, caused by the disqualification of four more members due to poor grades, are now underway. The Vice President and one freshman council seat have been filled, but four council seats remain vacant.

Petitions for these are now being accepted, according to Election Commissioner Tony Taormina.

Sheryl Wong was elected Vice President Monday, by a vote of 6-5. The only other candidate, Larry Henry, was hospitalized and forced to drop out of the running.

The new Vice President noted that in addition to her pro tempore and other duties, a major function of the Vice Presidency is chairmanship of the Planning and Social committee. She says she will seek to enrich the social life on campus and promote a more collegiate atmosphere.

Derrick Quan, who won a Freshman Council seat two weeks ago, said he was not at all happy about the vote (Change 5; USA 4) and suspects USA of "block voting."

Antagonism between the two parties has left the first midterm period "a waste," stated Quan, and the current midterm period will be equally unproductive unless some measure of bipartisan unity is achieved.

Unusual Talent

ROSZLIND THOMPSON in rehearsal with the oboe.—Guardsman photo by Roberto Guillen and Paul Bekesy

Blindness Poses No Barrier For Oboe Player

By Barbara Hamann

Roszlind Thompson plays one of the most difficult of woodwind instruments, the oboe, in both the Concert Band and the Small String Ensemble Orchestra at City College.

For Miss Thompson, life has always been a challenge, from the time she was born, March 1948, in La Salle, Illinois, to the present, because she has been blind since birth.

Miss Thompson, who has a warm, sensitive personality, has devoted herself to music for the past 16 years.

"It all began when I was 3 years old," she said, explaining that "one day my mother, who plays beautiful piano, found me fiddling on the keyboard. Recognizing my potential she began teaching me the piano."

IT WAS IN THE eighth grade that she began taking music seriously. "A funny thing happened, I was all set to take a course in shop, but my mother said 'no.' She insisted I take up music. I started out on the bells and moved to the flute."

"While playing the flute I was sitting next to the oboe player, and I thought the oboe sounded so beautiful, I finally convinced my instructor to let me play it. I've been playing this instrument ever since."

In addition to working toward an Associate in Arts degree here, majoring in music, Miss Thompson also studies privately with Jim Matheson, oboe virtuoso with the San Francisco Symphony.

"To play my music by braille," she said, "took too much time. It would sometimes take us two or three hours to put the notes into braille form." A previous instructor suggested she use the method of taping her music instead.

TO INTERPRET HER music, which astounds everyone who hears it, she first has to memorize it.

"Jim Matheson has to play my part on tape first. I play back the tape and listen carefully. After memorizing the melody I begin to play," she said.

She was born with natural pitch, the property of a musical tone which is determined by the frequency of vibration of sound waves.

Roszlind Thompson is not the only competent musician in her family. Her mother is a pianist, and her brother sings, plays the sax and guitar.

DURING THE PAST two years Miss Thompson has been a member of the All-City Honor Orchestra.

"My eventual goal is to play with a great symphony orchestra and perhaps teach music," said Miss Thompson, adding, "right now I'm concentrating on performing in Leonard Bernstein's Young Performers Orchestra."

A. H. Hughes Autographs God Is Dead Satire In Ramporium Tomorrow

By Marc Clarkson

Albert Hilliard Hughes, a former City College and Guardsman columnist, has had his first book published, a religious satire entitled GID: A Tale Of The Crisis, and will autograph copies of it in the Ramporium during College Hour tomorrow.

Hughes, a student at this college from 1964-66, then wrote a film series column for The Guardsman and was very active in drama productions.

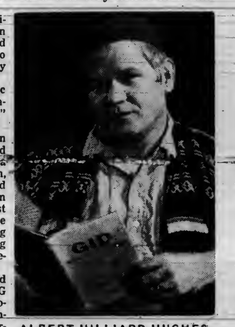
Hughes has since contributed heavily to various periodicals, mostly on documented articles about films and motion picture history and has also written plays, short stories and many poems.

His book, GID, written under the pen name of Sashie, is a bitingly satirical treatment of the "God Is Dead" trend of thought.

THE STORY TAKES PLACE in heaven—not the orthodox idealized concept of heaven but a highly departmentalized corporation, managed by an absent-minded and frustrated Mr. G, who has more than his share of problems, not the least from the First Floor personnel (the living) who send a missile crashing into the main gate of heaven bearing a tag: "God is Dead. Long live Freedom."

Throughout the book, from its bold introduction ("IN THE BEGINNING —/Oh, for God's sake! you're not going to tell that story? . . .) to its unexpected conclusion, the author sardonically attacks Christianity, tearing apart many established church beliefs.

HUGHES STATED RECENTLY what prompted him to write on a religious theme.



"I have grown disgusted with Christianity, what A stands for and the hypocrisy of the Church.

"Christianity has deteriorated," he emphasized.

"Twentieth century religious structure is based on a 2000-year-old religion which has no relevance with twentieth century standards. If today's Christian attempted to live by the standards set by Christ, he would be humble, would wear sack cloth and possess little materially. Today's Christian is a mockery."

Recently, Hughes has been quite successful as a writer.

Besides GID, Montana Magazine has published his documentary article, Outlaw With A Halo, a study of Jesse James on film and will publish his James King Of William, an account of an early San Francisco murder. Also, Films In Review will publish his Dostoievsky On Film early next year.

ALBERT HILLIARD HUGHES, former City College student, alias Sashie, displays his first published book.
—Guardsman photo by Gary Lee

Foothill Players Here For 'Lark'

Several members of the Foothill College drama department will appear as guests of the college in a special presentation of Anouilh's play The Lark. This play will be performed once only, this Friday, in the college theater. Admission is free.

The Lark is a different version of the St. Joan story by Shaw, which was presented last week by the City College drama department. The play depicts Joan as a very successful hero and martyr, whereas Shaw's play illustrates Joan's efforts at revolution in France as both foolish and failures.

Saint Joan differs from The Lark because the latter presents the story from a more liberal and positive point of view.

Job Placement Service Offers Christmas Employment Now

By Mike Wise

The Christmas season will soon be here bringing good will toward men and misery toward pocketbooks. In anticipation of this, the annual Christmas job demand has begun, with the City College Personnel Placement Service rendering its assistance to job-seeking students and personnel-seeking employers.

Joseph Amori, director of the placement service, emphasized the heavy demand for both men and women with sales experiences, in department stores and specialty shops.

STUDENTS WITH SALES experience are needed by many store employers in preparation for the large volume of business done at Christmas time.

Amori pointed out that Christmas Club savings in banks throughout the country are up 15 per cent over last year, meaning that people are going to buy more than they did last year. Subsequently more selling jobs are available than last year at this time.

The kickoff for the heavy Christmas trade begins during the Thanksgiving holiday.

For this reason, employers are hiring right now. Jobs beginning this month are on a part-time basis, usually from 1 to 6 p.m. and/or 4 to 9 p.m. during the week, with a full day on Saturdays. Pay ranges from $1.85 to $2.25 per hour.

Amori commented that he hasn't interviewed many students with the interest or the potential for sales work. He feels that students who do have an interest in sales work for Christmas are waiting too long to apply and may be "left out in the cold" this Christmas if they continue to procrastinate.

AS A NOTE TO ALL job seekers, a new Executive Order was passed by President Johnson's Committee on Equal Opportunity two weeks ago.

Executive Order 10925, called the Equal Opportunity Code, as amended has instructed employers, including all those with whom the Placement Service of this college transacts business, to inform its recruitment sources in writing that all qualified applicants receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, creed or national origin.

The order specifically states that no job orders from employers will be accepted unless all provisions of the order are carried out.

Amori urged all students interested in Christmas employment to report to S-100 immediately for consideration, screening, selection and referral. The office hours are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The Free Critic

Lawrence Lazore, Editor — The Critic Adviser: Mr. Berman

Vol. 1, No. 5 — WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1967 — Page 1

Our Faculty And Its Warm Womb Of Apathy

By Stuart Dicker, Tom Rice and William Strehlow

From Oakland shouts of "Hell no, we won't go" were heard across the nation. At the same time television cameras brought the scenes of the peace demonstration into the homes of the multitude. In reaction to this that segment of our population which insists that "law and order" be preserved were heard screaming above the cries of "police brutality" for an end to all demonstrations. Our photogenic governor smilingly claimed that it was in "the finest tradition of California law enforcement," despite the press reaction to the violence of the police, and the actual scenes of young people falling beneath the clubs of their "protectors." The action-reaction of last week brings us to one of the fundamental questions of our time: Who is protecting whom from whom? The answer to this question cannot be posed here, but it is clear that the "protection" being doled out was cracking the skulls of young people, and some not so young (a look at the ages of those arrested and treated at emergency clinics is highly educational).

Meanwhile, at the local seat of academia, City College (San Francisco's Oxford of the Outer Mission), what was happening?

A group of students circulated a petition stating their support of the Oakland demonstration, their disgust with the draft, the war, the police action, and requesting the administration to stop co-operating with the draft board. Within the core of our college, the Academic Senate, a request was made for a statement pertinent to the activities in Oakland. What happened? The statement was rapidly disposed of, with a response that was in essence, do it yourself, and the senate moved on to the more important issues. One of the issues was the removal of cigarette machines on campus. (Now this might get some response out of the faculty!) The second major issue was the as yet hypothetical question of tuition for junior colleges. The majority of those at the academic senate were too deep within their warm womb of apathy, to tear the membrane, release the pressures and emerge into the world of involvement. Their immobility was nauseating to students who care about the world they live in.

As students we have faced the reality that we have to speak and act through all available channels. The price of our involvement may be a few bruises or cuts and branding by our politicians as "agitators and anarchists" but it is much better than prostituting our individuality to Big Brother and becoming puppets manipulated by the government and the society at large.

To speak and act in moments of internal crisis are the traits of brave men, and, as Senator Fulbright contends in The Arrogance of Power, of patriotic men, of teachers. Patriotism is not the blind acceptance of every thing handed out by the government, not in the democratic sense. Patriotism is reacting to, and changing if necessary the laws of government. Change cannot be achieved by inaction. To quote Senator Fulbright, "The university (or college) in lending itself too much to the purposes of government fail in its higher purposes." The purpose of the university is to pose the questions, and set an example for the students you proport to "teach."

The mute inactivity of the faculty last week was a shirking of the responsibilities invested in them from the beginning of our century. As sincere, interested and involved students we must ask the faculty, are you afraid to speak? Is there some ominous fate being held over your head creating fear, and muting your thoughts? (The loyalty oath?) If the answer is yes, then perhaps we can give you some reasons why you must speak, and remove the boulder of Tantalus.

First your inactivity is contagious. Your failure to act is setting a trend of apathy on campus. Thank God that we are not all subject to your example, or we would all be sheep.

Second, your failure to speak may be interpreted as support for police action. Do you not interpret silence as an affirmative when asking your children if they did something wrong? In a history course some of us are taking we are studying the "polis" and we find it beautiful. We can see what it demanded verbal activity. We see Aristotle, a Teacher, speaking of justice, and pursuing it, not regurgitating "law and order."

Finally, along with and in spite of Marshall McLuhan (Understanding Media) words do have meaning. Power is transmitted to these words by today's media, as they were in last week's demonstrations. Your words have meaning, and we need them now more than ever. If you are a teacher in more than just name, give us something of yourself; give us the dialogue that Socrates and Plato gave to their pupil of Greece. You will not pay with your life.

The sight of the professors from Harvard, Princeton and Yale participating with the students in a protest against the draft which included the return of draft cards was sheer beauty. It is part of the perpetual motion in which we are involved, and the leader of the nation is California, our state. Harvard is in the center of a very "tradition" bound state, and the professors acted, how can you not act when you are in a state which holds such promise for the future as ours, and in an area (San Francisco and the Bay Area) which is the center of activity in the state. We can no longer sit back and accept silence as an answer.

We would like to melt the invisible shield that is now separating us from you. With the knowledge and leadership that teachers should have, and the searching exuberance of students, we can find the answers, and search for a solution. We would like you to "come out of your shell" and view life head on, not from a rear view mirror, but with revelance and guts, for that breeds responsibility. In essence, "We'd love to turn you on."

The words and actions you may take may be something less than fully successful (there is no Utopia) but you must engage yourself more fully in human action. To involve yourself more fully in human action is certainly worth the price of a new song, the new song was paid on the streets of Oakland; while the price of the old song is being paid for, as we are constantly reminded, by the lives of 14,000 Americans, and an undisclosed number of Vietnamese, still listening to the discords and time worn melodies of Washington, Moscow, Peking and Hanoi.

For those of us who love the college, there is no alternative to active words and deeds, to try to bring about the changes we can. Lethargy is no answer to the ills of our time. We have within ourselves the potential of using our knowledge to the highest degree of competence possible to man. If we utilize what we have we might, like the "King of Hearts," stop the "Knight from striking at midnight," and prevent humanity from colliding at the intersections of power politics.

Of course the lurking fog of doubt will always be with us, and we will always be asking, "Are we right?" In answer all we can do is point to Oakland, to Vietnam, and to Washington and say, "We can't wait and see." Nothing, so it seems, can be proven in the world, except in retrospect. But the world of NOW is all that man has to deal with, for the now determines whatever future we may have. It is this limited sphere that demands we grasp each situation as it faces us, and realize our responsibility to it, now. Need we look very far into the future to see a following of presidence set in Oakland or Washington in which all demonstrators will be herded at the point of fixed bayonets? Or do we have to imagine the last moment when the bomb is falling (it doesn't matter whose) and everyone says, "See, I was right!"

The Year Marijuana Was Legalized

By Tom Meyskens

The year was 1984. The month was January. At this time the Congress of the United States was called to an emergency session. The subject—Marijuana.

Six long years had passed since the bill for its legalization had been presented to the legislature. The various protests such as smoke-ins and smuggle-ins, had failed over the years to convince Congress to do anything but hustle the bill off to committee. Now in 1984, a few years after this committee had been formed, things were really in a mess. The members of the committee had been busted for trying to sell the outlawed weed to fellow congressmen. Many influential congressmen such as Shirley Temple Black, Bob Hope and Frank Sinatra were involved in this scandal. Something had to done with great speed. Pro and anti-legislation factions were in open warfare. The "Anti's" being armed with sawed-off shotguns, the "Pro's" with flowers. Out of the smoke-filled rooms of Washington, and strangely sweet-smeling smoke it was, came the members of both houses of Congress for a joint meeting to settle the issue once and for all. Debates were heard on both sides. There remained yet though a smell of indecision in the air. The head of the upper house, Timothy O'Leary, then delivered his brilliant speech. Dressed in his customary garb of beads and loincloth, he gave a very emotional appeal which brought even the straightest of senators to tears. With only minor resistance from a few confirmed alcoholics who felt their habit in jeopardy, the bill passed by an overwhelming majority. The impossible had been done—Pot was legalized.

A national holiday was proclaimed, and celebrations occurred throughout the states. Many telegrams were received at the White House on that great day. One from the USSR which claimed they had legalized it first. Another was a very desperate one indeed. The economy of Mexico had collapsed upon the loss of their major export.

The U. S. subsequently agreed to import 10,000 unemployed Marijuana farmers a month into California to harvest their crops. This same joyous day the Red Cross sent bales of Marijuana to our men in Vietnam to celebrate the upcoming 25th anniversary of that conflict. Also, a bill was introduced to change the California state flower from the poppy, a very suspicious flower indeed, to the flowery tops of the Cannabis Sativa.

Soon after the holiday came to a close and people floated back to work, there appeared from the grassroots of America a Johnny Poteed who started on his self-appointed mission to spread the seed of truth across the land. Subsequently, Marijuana plants sprung up in his wake.

There were many far-reaching affects on the American society. The Alcoholics Anonymous was closed for lack of alcoholics. The P.A. (Potheads Anonymous) sprung up in its place. The majority of the liquor and cigarette companies shut down. A few survived by merging and producing products such as cigarauners and grassettes. These new products came in many shapes and colors and even in easily-disposable aluminum cartons.

The changes connected with the bars were many. Bartenders became joint rollers and mixed various types of Marijuana from all parts of the world. These mixes were called such names as a double-Mexican or a Slow Hashberry. They also had available very decorative waterpipes for family and church groups. The nightclubs set up two joint minimums and switched from the topless to authentic Indian Fertility Rites.

Marijuana soon became part of our foreign aid program. In every Care package there were enclosed the seeds of democracy and instructions on their use. These Care packages were sent to the impoverished areas of the world such as India, Africa and the various Hippy communities around the world.

Less than a year later the U. S. as a whole was definitely a turned-on country; little old ladies, nuns and even narcotics agents were smoking the magical weed. Our war department was changed to the Department of Peace under the leadership of the former British general, John Lennon. Plans were made to stop the wars throughout the world, especially in what was left of southeast Asia. Pot bombs were dropped in place of conventional explosives on widespread targets over North Vietnam and China. These bombs exploded in mid-air and scattered the seeds of peace for miles around. Taking hold in the rice paddies very quickly, Pot became part of the Chinese diet. Within a year peace talks were held, the peace pipe passed (with you know what) and the war was ended. All this happened in the year 1984. . . .

The moral of the story: This whole world is going to Pot!

Black Curriculum

By Jon Lovett

With approximately 1300 Black students enrolled at San Francisco City College, there is a definite need for a Black curriculum. And too, there should be a representative number of Black teachers to teach those courses that deal in subject matter pertaining to Black people, and there should be Black counselors to guide Black students.

We, Black students, want courses with which we can identify, i.e. Black history, Black art, Black culture, etc. I for one get pretty sick of always reading about white folks. From the moment a Black child enters primary school until the day he graduates from college, he is continually confronted with white this, white that. I remember the first book I read in school was a unpropitious thing called "Dick and Jane." Now Dick, he didn't look like me and Jane didn't look like me either—they were white. And then there was that "Mother Goose" farce with characters like "Jack and Jill." I remember the first book I read in school was a unpropitious thing called "Dick and Jane." Now Dick, he didn't look like me and Jane didn't look like me either—they were white. And then there was that "Mother Goose" farce with characters like "Jack and Jill," both white, and "Little Boy Blue" who, although his name was Blue, was still a white boy. Oh yes, there was also Mary and her little lamb; now not only was Mary white, but the damn lamb was white. But I can't say that the white folks didn't include Black people in the book, for way, way, way in the back of the book was —that's right, you guessed it—"Little Black Sambo."

The time has come to replace Little Black Sambo with a big Black and beautiful, Malcolm X. Black students at City College should demand that the administration incorporate into the curriculum courses that relate directly to Black people.

The Black Student Association is currently circulating a petition on campus. This petition in essence states that you, the students of this college, want a Black curriculum. When a sizeable number of students have signed the petition it will then be shown to the administration. A large percentage of students desirous of a Black curriculum cannot be ignored. The administration will then have to s..t or get off the pot.

Potpourri

By Madeline Rosen

The good life: How is it that the faculty, with its separate johns, eatery and private elevator, hasn't yet arranged for an escalator from Smith Hall to Cloud?

Speaking of library warmth and hospitality, are there too many other areas where one feels less welcome? Apart from the off-limits area (No Students) and the cut from an eight to four book-borrowing maximum, is the sporadic "shhh" patrolling really necessary? And if there is whispered conversation, is it any wonder since there is no student lounge or union?

The Keio University Mandolin Orchestra was not only something of a phenomenon by virtue of its components (how often does one see even one mandolin player?), but it was also a sensory treat. Besides being fine musicians, it was somehow flattering that they had all appeared in formal attire for an 11 a.m. concert at City College. A charming young lady announced the numbers and a smashing soprano was featured, both of whom were largely responsible for the warm rapport established between the audience and performers (or are standing ovations commonplace at the college theater?). There is something extremely satisfying about watching a polished, masterful performance at any time, but when it is coupled with a tinge of empathetic stagefright on the part of the audience . . . it's very special.

SF State gave a general 5 per cent discount on all paperbacks at the start of this semester. Even used books are so exorbitantly priced at the two City book stores, the student would do well to learn which books are required in advance and check out used book stores similar to the Discovery on Columbus avenue and those located on Telegraph avenue in Berkeley. Their prices are considerably lower and their selection is surprisingly wide. Certainly many of the strict texts will be unavailable, but it's still worth checking out.

When one punctuates every other sentence with "shit, man" what does one say under stress? Or: Are we swearing more and enjoying it less?

To the "interested reader" who was concerned that the Associated Collegiate (sic) Press might not accept THE GUARDSMAN because THE CRITIC would affect its standards: What difference does it make? THE GUARDSMAN should be an invaluable addition to the people who make up City College. Who cares if the ACP accepts it? Does City College accept it?

The need the faculty is experiencing for a medium of communication is evidenced by a mimeographed two or three-pager they put out for the faculty (it can be examined in the magazine room of the library in a black binder under "C").

Required Reading: Both opinions (for and against) Proposition "P" as contained in the Voters' "Declaration" booklet mailed to all registered voters. Since many students may not have access to this easy-to-read explanation of the background of the war in Vietnam (along with strong arguments for and against a cease fire), this document should be printed and distributed as a public service.

Cognative Monsters

By Lawrence Lazore

There were no victors in this recent confrontation over censorship. Every one ended up asses: the administration, the faculty and the academic senate, the Critic and its writers, and myself, in particular. The pathetic result of this situation is that so few of us realize it.

A small innocuous article concerning student placement turned this campus upside down. The reactions to this article whipped through all levels of this campus and really stripped the facade off some key groups on this campus.

I am not going to run through the details because the real foul-up occurred directly between the printer, Dr. Luckmann and myself. It was a situation that was aggravated by Batmale who seemed to have some special interest in how material appearing in the Free Critic could be supervised. Whether Batmale was acting on his own inclinations or by administrative directive, only Dr. Luckmann and Batmale could tell.

But what was the result?

A segment of the faculty immediately swooped down with a petition to nail Joe Amori. The Academic Senate, whose body has lain curiously inactive and fallow, and whose primary interest has been to decrease the workload on the faculty, was chosen as the site for a kangaroo court. To be sure, I have no regard for Joe Amori—I couldn't conceive of any person more repugnant seated in the position he presently occupies, but I am not interested in initiating the ritual of the blood sacrifice. If it takes that type of activity to move an essentially inert and fallow faculty; it is better to let them rest in their own impotence.

Another segment of the faculty was deeply concerned with the question of censorship, but a secondary reaction seemed to set in their thinking: What might happen if Lazore or the Critic actually began criticizing faculty? That thought caused some portion of the faculty to buckle, and it seems that the question of a free student press dwindled in many minds.

The Student Council also acted primarily at my instigation, but not unnaturally under the circumstances: it was the method chosen for action that was dangerous—take it to the courts; a typically administrative response.

My point is this: when is this campus going to accept student criticism as a valid factor within the campus environment without continuously resorting to outside influences such as activist tactics and judiciary bodies? When are we all going to grow up and not panic or over-react to obvious or mild criticism? When is the administration going to realize that the old answers applicable a year ago on this campus simply do not work now—they initiate activism efforts on the part of the students and bury the issues? When is the majority of the faculty going to realize their non-roles and lack of participation in areas other than their own immediate self-interests are one of the most corrupting influences on this campus? And like an old Chinese proverb, decision-making going to be dominated by personal integrity, education, and training, and not by their fears of their own cognative monsters?

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Associated Collegiate Press

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 65, No. 5 — WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1967 — Page 2

Prerequisites For Council Foster Irresponsibility

ONE PRESIDENT and five council members have been disqualified from office for one reason or another, but mostly from the lack of average grades.

The loss of one third of council indicates irresponsibility. We hope that this semester is unique; we wouldn't want this to be a regular occurrence.

WHAT IS THE MATTER? Are the prerequisites for running for office too lax to insure that the people elected every semester are responsible and capable? We feel they are.

The elected government on its own should keep its standards of behavior so high that only the best possible government can result. This does not mean that best implies grade point average, but grades do give an indication as to the person's sense of responsibility, intelligence and self-esteem. Without these elements, there can be no politician.

What can students do to insure that a situation such as this doesn't happen again? First, become more involved with student government.

A GOOD GOVERNMENT CAN'T BE FORMED without knowing what it is that makes a government good. Rules should be made stringent enough so that only those who are responsible enough to abide by them can be elected.

Students can't afford to let this situation happen again; student government can't expect to be treated as adult by the administration, the world or the students if every semester they show they don't deserve the label.

And then, a governing body is only as good as the people who elect it so there is evident failure in our present system somewhere.

Criticism Mistaken For Libel

THE ADMINISTRATION has made a mistake.

Acting President Lloyd Luckmann said the article pulled from the Free Critic last week "might be libelous," but he pulled the article without reading the copy—it had been read to him over the telephone.

WHEN THE ARTICLE WAS REVIEWED by the school district's legal authority it was judged not libelous.

No one will question the obligation of the president to insure that libelous material doesn't appear under the college's auspices, but such a serious move as pulling an article, even for purposes of review, must not be done spuriously. If business away from the city prevented Dr. Luckmann from getting adequate counsel, the authority and responsibility should have been delegated, not postponed.

Labelled And Recorded

Arlo Guthrie—A Natural Folk-Humorist

By Marty Arbunich

THE recent demise of Woody Guthrie brought to a close the life of a genuinely dedicated name in music and one of the founding fathers who spearheaded folk music in this country.

Left behind to carry on the Guthrie line and its reputation was a son, Arlo, 20, seemingly one of the most outspoken names since the dawn of folk music.

Like Joan Baez and Bob Dylan in past years, Arlo Guthrie was received with open arms and hailed as this summer's discovery at the Newport Folk Festival in Rhode Island.

Arlo shattered the 1967 festival with his Alice's Restaurant Massacree, an amusing 20-minute saga of a littering charge and Arlo's consequential absurdities with the draft board.

Apparently neither the Avalon Ballroom nor the fans in San Francisco were shatterproof either. The lanky Arlo, his ears fleeced by the same bushy nest that finds refuge 'neath a brown felt hat, dittoed the arms-open feat here too.

Back in September his unscheduled appearance set the Avalon ablaze. Armed simply with a six-string, his nasally Oklahoma accent and the Massacree as a battle cry, Arlo easily hushed his crowd, captivated them with his tale and zipped up his guitar case and left.

It all happened almost that quick and the crowd was simply stunned. They just didn't know how to take it. But they loved it.

Arlo might very well fall in line as a humorist-folksinger. Dylan has attempted the humor angle but not with Guthrie's degree of success.

ARLO'S NATURAL. His stories are not mere monologues—they're engrossing memorabilia, easily absorbed, seeming almost ludicrous at first. But like an appetizing dish, one always wants to go back for more.

When he spins his yarn of the Massacree, Arlo draws his laughs through raw sarcasm, his inane phrases and recurrent expressions and frequently through the significant senselessness of the chorus lyrics.

Through his own confusing play on words, Arlo's introduction to the Massacree explains the meaning of his song and its title: "This song is called Alice's Restaurant. It's about Alice—and the restaurant.

"But Alice's Restaurant is not the name of the restaurant. That's just the name of the song. And that's why I call the song Alice's Restaurant." It's as clear as mud, but nonetheless a morsel of his keen skill with humor.

"War is a drag," Arlo's steadfast precept, is, in a roundabout and decisive way, what Alice's Restaurant Massacree is all about.

The Massacree's lengthy account with littering, where Arlo is arrested and fined, tapers down and concludes nicely with his encounter with the Army. With sarcasm he explains his views on the morality of war and ironically closes his shallow story with some words for his audience to ponder:

"Sergeant," he addressed the officer scornfully, "you've got a lot of damn gall to ask me if I've rehabilitated myself. I mean . . . you want to know if I'm moral enough to join the Army, burn women, kids, houses and villages after being a litterbug."

The Massacree seems to be more than just "a simple bit of doggerel" as reported by the New York Times. There's more to it.

• • •

It was inevitable that Arlo Guthrie and his Alice's Restaurant Massacree would get recorded, and Reprise Records has done so with Arlo Guthrie—Alice's Restaurant (R-6267).

There are some other interesting things on the album, more serious than the Massacree, sounding much like Dylan. There are some overall weak spots, however, most probably resulting from the company's haste to get the title song on the market.

ARLO GUTHRIE
The reputation lives on.

SF Film Festival

Low-Gear Start Becomes Fast-Paced Climax With Discordant Cat And Mouse

By Frank Wolf

The 11th annual San Francisco Film Festival held at the Masonic Auditorium was well worth the week that it lasted.

Starting off in low gear with the much talked about, although highly disappointing film, How I Won The War, the festival gathered speed and by Tuesday with the showing of the French and Israeli entries was well on its way to becoming a very successful production.

UNLIKE LAST YEAR'S, this festival had no dramatic walkouts. It did however have one entry that caused extreme controversy and dissent not in the United States but from where the film originated.

The film in question Cat And Mouse (Katz and Maus) based on a novel by Germany's most successful and controversial post-war writer, Gunter Grass, dealt with the story of a student with the complex of having an oversized Adam's apple. This complex compels him to steal an Iron Cross—the equivalent in the United States to the Medal of Honor—from a naval officer.

By adorning his throat with this medal, the student believes he hides the growth on this spot.

HE EVEN GOES SO FAR as to attach this medal to all parts of his sometimes naked body. In this way, Grass is ridiculing the high opinion of the German people for the sanctity of the military value of the Iron Cross. Grass shows a black cat being placed upon the students "ornament" and has her scratch it.

In this way the author symbolizes his low opinion of the military in Germany.

The opinion expressed by the author did not elicit sympathy from a part of the German people and caused a lively controversy when the film appeared.

LES COEURS VERTS (The Naked Hearts), the entry from France illustrated that a great deal of dialogue is not necessary in the making of a film. This film shows in a rather confusing fashion how the delinquent youth of France feels toward their environment and how they attempt to change it.

The rebellious manner in which these juveniles show their feelings, and the fact that they get little help from their government, says very little for the French and their concern for the youth of the country.

Although the film is very persuasive, it fails miserably in its attempt to involve the audience, turning the entire production into a seemingly elongated news report.

On the other hand, Three Days And A Child, the entry from Israel, another no-dialogue film, makes up for this by completely involving the audience with the characters of the story. The story contends with the events of a student consenting to take care of a 3-year-old child for three days.

FROM THIS SEEMINGLY harmless turn of events the film involves both characters and audience into the concern for the child. The child refuses all forms of domination and yet controls both student and audience to the point of derangement. How the child causes the audience to scream out in warning for the edge of a high building is something to experience.

If for nothing else, the direction of the film should be commended for this persuasiveness, but photography and acting are not to be forgotten.

As film after film was shown, it became quite apparent that the foreign film industry is indeed quite different from the Hollywood productions.

BECAUSE OF A great deal of audience interpretation throughout most of the films, dialogue seems not to be needed. But in only a few instances was this fact understood, perhaps because the American public is used to "talkies," this "new" way of production seems odd.

In any event the 11th Film Festival, this year sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, was a success. To view even one production is a must and will definitely prove educational and refreshing to say the least.

Vets Get More GI Benefits But No Holiday

Among the countless Americans who will be observing Veterans' Day this Saturday will be the more than 900 veterans attending City College.

But the college will be unable to celebrate a holiday since no classes meet on Saturday, and classes will continue as usual on Friday.

The veterans, including 12 women, who are receiving benefits under the G.I. Bill of 1966, will be getting a morale booster as a pay raise in educational allowance, that went into effect October 1.

A single veteran, attending college full-time, will now receive $130 a month instead of the previous $100. A married veteran with two dependents will have his allowance increased from $150 to $175. Rates for part-time students were also raised.

The G.I. Bill provides one month of educational allowance for each month served up to 36 months. Thus a veteran of three years' service would receive assistance through four years of college.

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL has called the new breed of veterans the "Invisible Men" since they blend in better than the ex-soldiers of the '40s. This seems to be borne out on this campus also, as the veterans seem to do equal or slightly better work than other students, and fewer leave college because of grade failure, according to Robin Dunn, veterans' counselor here.

Applications are still being processed by Dunn, and he explained recently that the number of veterans attending City College could reach 1000 this year, which would be an increase of about 300 over last semester.

He also pointed out that the number of veterans should level off at about 1100 unless the Vietnam conflict should end suddenly. When the Korean war ended abruptly, the number of veterans at the college hit a peak of 1650.

Shots At RAMdom

by Ed Holmes

OPENING VOLLEY: Last week we were called to The Guardsman telephone where a voice identified itself as the switchboard operator.

In answer to the Pot Shot concerning the lunch hour congestion of the switchboard, we were given the following prepared statement:

"The college switchboard has nine lines. When these nine lines are busy, which is most of the time, and I don't mean maybe, no one else can get through; same as your phone or phones at home."

It took several minutes to make certain we had the statement absolutely correct, then we asked if the lady would advocate more lines as an answer to the congestion. She adamantly refused to go beyond the prepared statement and since the call had already taken ten minutes from the high use lunch hour, we terminated the conversation.

Dr. Harry Buttimer was willing to discuss the matter a little further. It seems that the problem has reached the drawing board level. Two communication consultants have been approached and several solutions are being considered. We hope they get off the drawing board before the educational services building and its 50 phones are in use next September.

• • •

POT SHOTS

Dean Mary Golding apparently has little faith in the power of the press. She "helped out" the publicity for this week's AWS Fashion Show by clipping the article from The Guardsman and pasting it up in each of the women's rest rooms. We wonder what happened to the rest of the paper.

Either somebody isn't pulling his load or we don't understand the role of Dean of Men. It seemed incongruous to see Ralph Hillman dressed in his suit and hustling garbage cans outside Science Hall a week ago this a.m.

• • •

MISFIRE

Hearing no response to our query concerning hamburger prices, we must assume everybody is pleased with policies and prices there.

• • •

BARRAGE

We intended to leave political commentary, other than that which is City College-oriented, to the more worldly areas of this paper but feel obliged to report how one mayoral aspirant should not conduct his campaign.

Sound trucks are generally obnoxious and of dubious value at any rate, but when they are parked in an irate homeowner's driveway, as one with Alioto signs all over it was, the value is even less.

Maybe a Morrison man put it there.

This column advocates an enclosed overhead passage between Science Hall's basement and the third floor of Arts Hall. It would save trudging through the mud during inclement weather.

• • •

SALUTE

The following comments are from a participant in the lecture series which began again yesterday.

"Personality Dynamics is a blend of Erich Fromm, group therapy and orthodox psychology. It comes off well both because the subjects are of general interest and because Father Krapf is an excellent speaker."

The series will continue during College Hour each Tuesday in S-255.

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1967

(The Guardsman, its faculty adviser and staff have no responsibility for or control over material printed on the page with the Free Critic masthead.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... STEVEN HARA
Managing Editor ..... Lori Pittman
Feature Editor ..... Marty Arbunich
Staff Editor ..... Glynn Petrie
News Editor ..... Ed Holmes
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan
Editorial Assistants: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, Douglas Dorn, John Jamigian, Ron Lent, John LeTourneau, Virgo Petersen.
Reporters: Berry Brown, Tom Graham, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf.
Cub Reporters: John Benedettis, Lael Brand, Tim Brydon, Elizabeth Callan, John Carpenter, Rita Carroll, Chris Eslebez, Arthur Fanfelle, Barbara Hamano, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Dennis Mundt, Rosita Murphy, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom, May Ling Wong.
Photographers: Ed Bruns, Chief; Gary W. Batchelor, Paul Berkey, James Bruce, Carol Gilmore, Roberto Guillen, Fred Harris, Robert Kim, Klaus Kurz, Gary Lee, Garth Ogle, Mike Reams, Chris Rozales, Richard Spitaleri, Kevin Tobin, Mark Welnand, Samuel Woo.
Guardsman Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Hourse

Gridders' Running Whips Merritt, 28-6

RALPH HODGE (60) applies the stop to Chabot's Mitch Evans as Kevin Devine (71) comes up to help. Hodge and teammate Allan Cowlings will lead the Ram defense against arch-rival San Mateo on Friday.
—Guardsman photo by Gary Lee

Booters Swamp Diablo But Stay In Second Place

By John LeTourneau

The City College soccer team stayed a game behind undefeated Merritt by beating Diablo Valley, 6-1, October 30 at Balboa Stadium.

The win, combined with Merritt's 4-1 win over San Mateo, puts the Rams all alone in second place, a game behind the T-Birds in the Western Junior College Soccer Conference.

THE RAMS' SCORING was done by three men as Al Chu, Otey Williams and Sal Corona scored two goals each. Corona, playing at his left halfback position, scored his first goals of the season. "The Vikings were very much improved over the last time we played them, and we didn't have an easy time of it," Diederichsen commented.

Everybody got into the scoring act as the Ram booters clobbered Solano, 12-5, October 25 at Balboa. Every man on the front line scored at least one goal. It was such a rout that Diederichsen sent in the Junior Varsity in the last period. "This game was an excellent chance to give the J.V.'s some valuable experience," the mentor said.

THINGS ARE LOOKING poorly for the Rams as they have six men injured. Harrott may be out for the year with cracked ribs and halfback Jerry Tigue is out with a muscle pull. Also out is inside right Paul Bogatskyiz, who broke his wrist in the Diablo Valley game.

Henry Mejia, Triqueros and Sarria are playing with injuries to their legs.

Today the Rams play at Menlo, beginning at 3 p.m., in a rematch of an 11-1 victory for the Rams earlier in the season.

Phi Delta Paces First Week Of Intramural Cage Action

The Associated Men Student-sponsored intramural basketball league got underway last week with four games being played.

In Tuesday night's games, the Club league began with defending champion Phi Delta routing the Revisables, 58-30. The much smaller Revisables held on for half the game as the Delts led at half, 18-17. However, shooting by Brian Wicklow, John Casey and Bill Lichtenberger broke the game wide open.

Also in the Club division, Hotel & Restaurant used a balanced attack to defeat Newman Club, 41-36.

In the Independent league, last semester's third-place finishers routed the ABA Outcasts, 68-37. Ken Jones led all scorers with 22 points. Mickey Senn scored 14 points to lead the Spoilers to a 46-35 win over the Rabitts.

AMS President Joe Stewart, who took over as president after Craig Noonan resigned, is leading one of the smallest intramural loops in recent memory. There are only five teams in each division, which means that each team plays four games. Stewart announced that there will be a playoff between the top three teams in each league to determine the two teams that will play on Sportnight for the overall chamnpionship.

In tonight's action the Irish start their season by taking on the once-defeated ABA Outcasts. In the other Independent game the undefeated Spoilers play the Red Mountaineers who also won their first game.—J. L.

Spikers Whip Foothill But Fall To San Mateo

Conference leader San Mateo breezed to their sixth straight victory, beating City College, 17 to 43, and the Rams, in turn, beat Foothill almost as easily, 20 to 39, in a tri-meet held at Foothill, October 26.

San Mateo was competing without the Bulldogs' top runner, Mike Dally, but that didn't seem to bother them as Willie Stephens chewed up the four miles of rolling hills in 22:20.

The first three places were captured by San Mateo runners with the Rams' Fred Forsberg finishing fourth in 22:55. Forsberg's time was only eight seconds over the old record which shows what a blistering pace Stephens was keeping. Other top finishers for the Rams were George Haza, Bob Aanestad, John Bendoritis and Jose Garcia.

The Conference Championship Meet will be held Friday at Diablo Valley.

Crowded Lost And Found Pleads For Article Claimants

Found—a large array of articles on campus that nobody will claim.

This is the urgent request of the Lost and Found service which begs those who have lost items to look at its prodigious and variegated array of articles. The effort is worth it, if only for the sake of curiosity, for the collection includes such items as coats, jackets, books, keys, scarves, glasses and even gymnasium trunks.

THOUGH NOT MANY students lose their pants, a great many lose those other possessions mentioned. There are boxes and shelves in the department full of each item to prove it.

For instance, snatching a coat collar from a pile of jackets frequently reveals items such as an expensive men's double-breasted wool overcoat.

On one shelf rests a box of eye glasses. Figuring an average of $30 each, times six losses, brings a total sum of somewhere around $150.

This container of eye glasses is only one of four such boxes exhibited in the various Lost and Found locales around campus. Unfortunately, expensive items such as eye glasses are well represented throughout this department.

Probably the articles that students seem to have the most trouble hanging onto are their books. Nearly 100 books on all subjects have been lost this semester with monetary value as high as $10 per text.

THE REASON why the request of the Lost and Found service is so urgent, is that their space and time are running out. Not much room is left to accommodate additional items for the duration of this semester.

At the end of this semester, the department will conduct its annual clearance. All unclaimed items, with the exception of glasses and keys, will be donated to the Salvation Army. Unclaimed books will go to the Rampotium.

Students who have lost items might well check the Lost and Found rooms in A-201, C-303, S-149 and the Statler Wing finance office.

Booth Rolls Up 196 Yards To Lead Third Straight Victory

By Arthur Fanfelle

Calvin Booth took over for the injured Wayne McConico and paced the Rams to a 28-6 victory over the Merritt Thunderbirds at Oakland's Frank Youell Field, October 27.

McConico reinjured his ankle on the third play of the game, but Booth promptly picked up the slack by packing the ball 23 times while accumulating 196 yards; the Rams ground machine amassed 312 yards for the day.

The first score of the game came about midway in the first quarter as the Rams moved the ball 95 yards in four plays following a Thunderbird punt to the Ram five-yard line.

Tom Mayfield then handed off to Booth on an off-tackle play and he broke loose for 66 yards to the Merritt 29-yard line. Jon Dyson and Willie Lewis carried for five and one yards respectively; then Mayfield flipped a pass to Dyson for a 23-yard scoring bomb. Mayfield's kick was good.

THE DEFENSIVE LINE played its usual outstanding game as it held the rushing game of the T-Birds to minus yardage until late in the last quarter.

The Thunderbirds managed to gain only 47 yards rushing and 56 yards passing, while the Rams accumulated 312 yards rushing on 60 carries which average 5.2 yards per carry. Mayfield threw 12 passes, completing 5 for 66 yards

The second quarter saw Booth take a handoff for a 4-yard touchdown run. The play culminated a series that started when George Ohlson recovered a Merritt fumble on the T-Birds' 41-yard line. In that same quarter, Mayfield hit Mike Carter with a 25-yard touchdown pass called back on an offside penalty.

Craig Martin intercepted two Merritt pass attempts; the first leading to a Ram score. Martin took the ball on the 24 and returned it to the 12-yard line. Lewis capped the drive on a one-yard scoring run. The kick was off to the left, leaving the score 20-0 in favor of the Rams.

MARK HENSLEY attempted two field goals; one in the third period was a 34-yard attempt which was wide to the left. Hensley's second boot was a 53-yard attempt which was straight, but five yards short.

BILL McDONAGH'S fourth quarter punt was fumbled by Merritt on their 10-yard line, setting up the final Ram touchdown. Robbie Brinkley recovered the ball for the Rams, who then moved it on the ground with Doyle Miller leaping the final two yards for the score, making it 28-0.

The Ram defensive line of Allan Cowlings, Ralph Hodge, Mike Streich, James McEldry and Ohlson dumped the Thunderbirds for a minus 50 yards and Cowlings dropped Merritt's quarterback, Jim Klimartin, for a fourth quarter safety.

The offensive line punched holes in Merritt's line as the Ram backs had little trouble getting through for long gainers. Ed Diaz, Mike Deschler, Kevin Shea and John Monroe completely manhandled the Merritt line.

After the game Coach Dutch Elston said, "They have reached a point where they are working together as a unit and they are showing the potential that was latent early this year."

The final score of the game came late in the final period when the T-Birds got a great run from Dan Crocket for 38 yards setting up an eight-yard touchdown run by Donald Jackson with two seconds left on the clock.

The Rams have now won three straight, and lost one in league play and they are three and three overall. Elston declared that the defensive team was led by the phenomenal pass rush of Cowlings and fine teamwork of the linebacking corps which was led by Joe Bell and Orice Pittman.

Rams Play Host To Bulldogs In Homecoming Tilt Friday

By Mike Duggan

The San Mateo Bulldogs invade Ram Stadium Friday in a do or die game for both teams and homecoming game for City College beginning at 2 p.m. The Rams will play without the services of halfback Calvin Booth who is sidelined for the remainder of the season with a knee injury.

After four weeks of league action, the Rams' 3-1 record is good enough for a second-place tie with Chabot and a half game behind league-leading Diablo's Valley's 3-0-1 mark. San Mateo, favored to capture the Golden Gate Conference title, is right behind the Rams with a 2-1-1 standing. The other conference teams are already out of the race as San Jose, Merritt, Foothill and Contra Costa own 1-3 records.

After taking care of San Joaquin Delta in their opener, San Mateo then lost to powerhouse Santa Monica, 55-20. In league action the Bulldogs have beaten San Jose 33-13, and Merritt 31-7, while losing a 22-19 game to Contra Costa and tieing Diablo Valley, 10-10.

IN THE OLDEST rivalry in the conference, the Rams have 18 wins to eight for San Mateo and there has been one tie going back to 1935. City College won last season's clash, 40-13.

Running backs Al Namanny and Marty Kreidt lead the attack for the Bulldogs. All-Conference fullback and second in league rushing only to O. J. Simpson last year, Namanny is currently leading the league in scoring and battling with the Rams' Wayne McConico for the rushing title. A real workhorse, Namanny averages about 25 carries a game.

Quarterback Fred Garrett has hit for over 500 yards passing, well ahead of Ram signal caller Tom Mayfield's 297 yards. Garrett's main target is Gary Fleming, an All-Conference end last year who has managed 16 receptions for 368 yards.

WHILE SAN MATEO sits in the middle of league statistics for team passing and rushing offense, the Rams rank first in rushing and last in passing. City College has totaled 1319 yards on the ground thus far.

McConico had moved into the number one spot in individual rushing after his 212 yards against Chabot, but was able to carry only once for five yards against Merritt. McConico injured his leg just at the end of the Chabot game, and after being tackled once in the Merritt contest, limped off the field and didn't return for further action.

Booth had been a pleasant surprise in recent weeks for the Rams. Allowed to start against Chabot, he responded with 99 yards and then came back with his 196 against Merritt before being injured in the fourth quarter. Booth broke around left end for a 27-yard gain and upon being tackled suffered torn ligaments in his knee that required surgery.

OUT FOR THE SEASON. Running back Calvin Booth, who rushed for 295 yards in the last two games for a 9.9 average per carry, will see no further action this year due to a knee injury.
—Guardsman photo by Chris Rozales

Focus: Books And Money

by Lori Pittman

MONEY may not be everything . . . but it is a primary reason why a good many students attend this college. Without the problems of tuition and incidental fees, a person can live on a restricted income and still afford a higher education.

The largest of the expenses here is for books, and they are fairly costly. Buying used books at the Rampotium can save a few dollars here and there, but a full-time student will shell out at least $50 a semester for his books and equipment regardless.

Comparing this minimal amount with the expenses of the four-year colleges and universities within the state and throughout the country, it can seem almost petty. But there is always room for improvement.

A STUDENT BUYS a book for one price from the Rampotium, sells it back at a loss at the end of the semester, and watches it being resold at an increased price to another student.

If students could exchange books with each other on a large basis without the extra charge of the middleman, they wouldn't need to spend so much each semester.

However, a large student book exchange would become almost as complex as the present book store and would probably require full-time employees during the exchange periods.

It would be necessary to make up price lists on the books being exchanged and, possibly, student listtelling who has what and wants what. Whatever the method, the entire idea is anything but simple and needs a good deal of research.

LAST SEMESTER A resolution was passed by Student Council by which a committee was appointed to investigate the feasibility of forming a student book exchange. Whatever happened to the committee has remained a mystery.

The subject was brought up again this semester but so far no one has taken the initiative. Campus politics have evidently interferred with any new action.

Since the issue was primarily submitted by a Change party member (Rich Christensen), USA members are not too anxious to take over the job and no one else has bothered.

IT IS EASY ENOUGH to dream up a resolution and have it passed by Student Counell, but it is a useless piece of paper until something constructive is done.

Students have the right to know if such a plan for a student book exchange is feasible on this campus. The money involved is theirs.

The Guardsman | Free Critic

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 65 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1967 NUMBER 6

Admin Okays Experimental College If...

By Ron Lent

The Experimental College program will begin operation next semester, providing sufficient student interest and organization are shown, Acting President Lloyd Luckmann revealed today.

After getting administration approval, Program Chairman James Morrison announced plans to set up an information booth next to the flagpole during College Hour tomorrow.

The former frosh councilman added that the table will enable students "to ask questions and offer suggestions concerning curriculum."

IN RECENT WEEKS, Morrison's one-man organizing committee has added three new members. City College English instructors Rosalie Wolf and Donald Peterson and Robert Thibodeau, a student, are currently working with Morrison to establish this program.

Peterson stated, "The Experimental College will begin operations on a small, limited scale and will expand (curriculum and class sizes) once the program is established."

During this initial, organizing Spring semester, enrollment will not exceed 12 to 15 students per class. "No credits are available, because credits and grades tend to alter a student's motivation for learning," Peterson noted.

PETERSON INTENDS TO offer a class in this nonaccredited program entitled, A Ways And Means Of Staying Sane In A Computerized Society.

Thibodeau plans to instruct a class entitled An Interdisciplinary Approach To A Contemporary Problem.

"Students will apply their knowledge to examine and suggest solutions to such present-day problems as war, civil rights and poverty," Thibodeau explained.

In all Experimental College classes, students will participate in group discussions without examinations or attendance checks.

Although certain classrooms are currently available after 3 p.m., no class schedules or room assignments have been established to date.

OTHER FACULTY and administrative members have offered assistance in establishing the program including Dean of Students Ralph Hillsman and Dean of Student Activities James Wyatt.

"Dean Hillsman will handle classroom availablity, and Dean Wyatt will publicize the program through radio broadcasting and posters," the program chairman explained.

Morrison disbanded the idea of polltaking to arouse student interest, because "I found I can reach students more effectively through personal confrontations."

ACTING PRESIDENT Luckmann asserted that the Experimental College program must receive both Student Council endorsement and oncampus recognition from Council Of Organizations in order to obtain facility usage at City College under the Civic Center Act specifications.

Commenting on this, Morrison stated, "I feel extremely confident that the program will receive Student Council support and COO will accept our bid for organization status."

Patterned after other Experimental Colleges at the University of California, College of Marin and San Francisco State, the program on this campus will be conducted through cooperation of students and faculty.

Frosh Ball Reset For Friday Night

The annual Frosh Ball has been rescheduled for this coming Friday night, and will not take place on Saturday as was previously planned, according to James Wyatt, dean of student activities.

It will be held in the Crystal Ballroom of the San Franciscan Hotel between 9 p.m. and midnight. The dress will be semiformal or formal for women, and a tux, suit or dinner jacket for men.

Music will be provided by the Earl Heckshar Orchestra, and tickets have been priced at $1 per couple along with an AS card, or $3 per couple without the card.

A traditional cutest couple contest has been scheduled as part of the night's activities, with a trophy and tickets for a free dinner going to the winning couple.

'No Food, Just Cards Please'

Photos by Kevin Tobin

THE FLASH OF A JACK OF SPADES, accompanied by a triumphant yell, is not an unfamiliar sound in Statler Wing these days. It appears that card games have taken precedence over eating and one is more likely to hear the shuffling of cards rather than the clatter of forks and knives.

At approximately 11 a.m. each day, hordes of students, green visors in one hand and a deck of cards in the other, make their way to Statler Wing. At almost every table some form of a card game is going, whether it be a hotly contested game of Solitaire, Bridge, Black Jack, Poker, Fish, Old Maid, Baccarat, Hearts or the newest rage—Pedro.

Pedro is on the order of bridge. It is played with four players. Two on each team. There is bidding, and points are gained should Lady Luck smile on the team with the point cards. The Jack, Ten, Ace, Deuce and the Five are the point cards, but points, of course, depend on the suit in which that particular hand is being played.

Strategy is used to force opponents to play certain cards in order to take the trick with a higher card.

MANY PLAYERS HAVE regular partners and they conduct tournaments to see who is champion of Statler Wing. A game lasts until one team gets 61 points, and since this can take some time, classes and appointment are often missed while promises are totally forgotten.

Not all games are played for points. It is not uncommon to see a four-handed game of Black Jack being conducted in some remote corner of the wing.

SO POPULAR have the card games become that a one-time Black Jack dealer, now a student, has been on the scene.

Skip McKinney, one of the regulars at Statler Wing, said that the card games keep his mind off the daily presures of classes and gives him an hour or so of relaxation.

It is highly doubtful that these card games will be listed among the many recreational activities of City College.—D. K.

City College Voters Award 58 Per Cent Approval To Prop. P

By Mike Wise

Proposition P scored a significant victory in the City College poll held last week.

Passing 867 to 614, the issue gained approval by 58.5 per cent. The 1481 voters comprise 15.1 per cent of the registered students attending City College.

Election Committee Chairman Tony Taormina was in charge of the distribution and tabulation of the ballots. While the poll was held on November 7 and 8 in conjunction with the city elections, Taormina was adamant in stating that the poll was not associated in any way with the Citizens For A Vote On Vietnam.

"THE IDEA OF a student vote was initiated by a Student Council resolution and recommendation, and is purely a campus issue," he said.

Taormina further explained why the election was held on two days instead of one: "The Election Committee was directed to hold the election on two days by Student Council. The council felt that by holding the election on Tuesday only, many student who don't attend City College on that day wouldn't get a chance to vote. To give everyone an equal opportunity, voting was extended."

Only registered students could vote, necessitating the punching of cards.

THE STUDENT REFERENDUM on Proposition P came as an outgrowth of a Change party resolution on October 4 calling for City College to go on record as opposed to the Vietnam War, the draft and all war in general, and also to support the National Stop The Draft Week. When USA party members charged the Change members of misrepresenting the interests of the student body, Change members suggested the student vote on Proposition P as a means of measuring student opinion on the war.

Students Praise New Honor Class

Approximately 15 students are participating here in the first Humanities Honors course this semester, formally known as Humanities 41A, in what, according to the instructor and many of the students, is proving to be a very successful experiment.

This special humanities class is the first type of honors course to be introduced at this college in any subject field. It is taught by Sidney Ancker, of the humanities department, and is composed of one section of about 15 students who assemble twice a week for the two-hour-long session.

Requirements for entrance into the honors class call for a B average in all attempted college curriculum and at least a final grade of C in English 1A.

The class consists of an hour of student-led discussions and another hour of slide viewing. The discussions are based on the assigned reading and questions given by the instructor, but they are run entirely by the students.

Ancker commented that, "The method used in the course has proved to be a surprisingly good experience and has worked out even better than I had hoped."

Nevonne Charles Is 'Speechless' As New Queen

Nevonne Charles, representing Alpha Phi Epsilon, was crowned Homecoming Queen last Thursday at a rally held in the Ram Stadium.

Miss Charles was "speechless" when crowned and described herself as being "very proud to be elected Queen."

Her duties as Queen were to reign at last Friday's football game and Homecoming dance. With the culmination of these events she will become Queen of Alpha Phi Epsilon.

Miss Charles' princesses were Valerie Ansley, representing the Black Students Association, and Portia Henderson of the Recreation Association.

Al Collins of KSFO radio made his third annual sojourn to the campus to emcee last week's event. He called this year's location "extremely spacious," referring to last year's use of the Ram site for the rally.

Seventeen coeds representing every organization on campus were presented in the Council Of Organizations' event. Jim Dierke, chairman of COO, was responsible for organizing the event.

Aside from selecting a Queen and two Princesses the COO also gave awards to the three best decorated cars that carried the various candidates. The winnners were Alpha Sigma Delta, Alpha Phi Epsilon and the Newman Club, first through third place respectively.

Brenda Brooks, last year's Queen was present to crown Miss Charles and present her with the royal cape and a bouquet of roses.

The candidates are rated on general appearance, poise, personality, smile and walk and must be students of the college, Dierke said.

Area Six Discusses Controversial Off Campus Literature

By Rosita Murphy

Distribution of off-campus literature and the appearance of controversial speakers on campus were foremost among the issues brought up in the Off-Campus Workshop recently at the Area Six Conference held here.

Tony Taormina, workshop chairman, initiated the workshop into discussion by forwarding the question, "To what extent should off-campus issues be brought on to the junior college campus?"

ALL THE DELEGATES agreed that that there should be no ban as to what or who comes on campus as long as student government has allocated funds to provide for the controversial material or person(s) appearing on campus.

A San Francisco delegate was quick to point out that conflicts arise between Student Council and the administration as in the cases of the Mime Troupe and the confiscation of antidraft information.

Menlo Park and West Valley delegates said that they are usually not bound by administrative pressure but by pressure from the outside community.

If material brought home by a student does not meet the approval of parents, the irate parents will group together, march in protest to the college and demand to know why college officials have allowed such matter to fall into the hands of their "innocent" sons and daughters.

HARTNELL COLLEGE delegates, claiming to represent an ultra-conservative college, said students there have often been "forced" by the administration to "listen" to controversial speakers.

How they were "forced" to listen to those speakers was not explained. They felt that if the students had their own way, they themselves would disregard those speakers without second thought.

All delegates agreed, however, that there should be no banning of disputed speakers by the college administration so long as student government is able to allocate funds and sponsor the appearance of such individuals.

At the present time, a City College delegate declared, all material to be posted must be approved and stamped with the official City College Stamp of Approval. But if such material were to be handed out by individuals it would be immediately confiscated by the Campus Police.

A BULLETIN BOARD, the delegate continued, would allow the students to express themselves as adults and not as children. They and only they would be able to choose and decide what is best for themselves. And this can only come about when the college administration loosens its "reins" on the students.

Another question forwarded by Taormina was, "Should demonstrations be allowed on campus?"

Delegates from San Jose City College staunchly met this question with a "No." They felt that demonstrations are not necessary by college students. "Organized debate, rather than protest, is better," they insisted.

They felt that if a campus were to become involved in a certain rally or protest demonstration, and property damage or injury to life resulted from such a protest, the blame would fall on the college group which allocated funds to sponsor the protest.

COLLEGE OF SAN MATEO'S spokesman said that his campus has had several successive protest demonstrations in the past where the students have conducted themselves in an orderly fashion.

Delegates from Cabrillo and De Anza agreed with the delegate from San Mateo.

Taormina then proposed that resolutions be drawn up. One such resolution favored the approval of controversial speakers and the distribution of equal material be made by the students in all two-year colleges.

This resolution was drawn up by West Valley and seconded by San Francisco delegates, referred to the general assembly for action and accepted.

The Free Critic

Lawrence Lazore, Editor — The Critic Adviser: Mr. Berman

Vol. 1, No. 6 — WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1967 — Page 1

LETTER TO A TEENAGE SON: An Open Reply To Father

By Dick Kimball and Lawrence Lazore

Recently a political-pops ditty was released in the Bay Area called Letter To A Teen-Age Son. The letter is from dad and is recited against a background of patriotic music, drums and in march time.

Dad tells his son that it is all right to wear long hair and a beard; many great men have done so with distinction. He also forgives and understands his son's rebelliousness and even goes so far to rake the society with some of his own choice criticisms. Dad understands. Dad loves his son and so does his mother, who incidentaly, is a woman. But son, remember that our capitalist system has enabled daddy to give you so much and all those terrible and dirty wars we've fought were terrible and dirty necessary wars (dad remembers his von Bernhardi), and besides son, freedom permits you to go somewhere else if you don't like it here. But son . . . there's one little thing I'd like you to consider. "If you burn your draft card, then burn your birth certificate because you are no longer my son." Dad marches off into the sunset presumably to have a quick dinner with mother-who-is-a-woman-and-cooks, picks up his flag and rifle and double-times it over to his weekly Bircher meeting.

The Dad Big Brother 1984 fascist overtones of this recording are, or should be, obvious to a mature and democratically education person, but might be remarkably deceptive to the average teenager who might catch this right wing bullshit on his local blues and rock station.

I first heard this recording just after my radio-alarm sounded one morning, and it almost destroyed my day. I retaliated by dropping my Political Science 2 course which had been having a simular effect on my disposition.

But Dick Kimball, a radio and TV student at CCSF had a more productive reaction; he composed an answer to dad from his son, added a Ravi Shankar background and taped it. It has since played on a couple of local radio stations and immediately received some enthusiastic response: two phone threats on Dick Kimball's life and tentative offers to distribute the "reply" on a nationwide basis.

The following is Dick Kimball's

An Open Reply To Father:

Dear Dad,

Yes, I've listened to your letter—now I cannot be silent, and I must reply for the youth of our country. You talk of several things—freedom, prejudice, God, the draft. You make the same error about each of them. You see, dad, you believe only in the man who works for himself and his country. We, the young people, have grown up seeing how you have acted on what you call freedom. It means freedom for people with money. We see the slums. We see the hate. We see the napalmed children's burning flesh. You see, dad, we ask why?

We're young, dad. Too young to be already hammered into one little box. You say God is love—but we ask "Why God is dead" because we see our country is without love.

You want to help yourself; you think that each man should get only according to the work he does. We see how thousands are kept out of good jobs and good schools through no fault of their own. Where is the God to help them? You won't help them—you talk of family and friends, never of the real suffering human beings you hide from. You don't care about the ones who suffer. We do. We marched in Selma to help the poor who suffered. We marched in Washington to help the suffering brothers and sisters that are not in your family, but who are in ours. The people that marched for the civil rights demands that are now our country's laws, were almost all under 25. Where were you, dad?

That, dad, is the difference between you and we, who are so young. We care, we march, we hope—we love our country much more than you do because we want to make it better than what you have given us. We care about more than our freedom, dad, we care about everyone's freedom.

We will make God live. You have killed him when you turned your back on the very people that had to burn Detroit to get your smug attention.

You've been too busy taking care of only a little family—you have given me everything money could buy, but now I see that isn't enough. I am not ungrateful, but I see how much millions of others need. What good are all the toys of Christmas when others are starving? What good is the right to vote when our president promises first to never sacrifice American lives in Asia, where we don't belong, and then creates a forty-billion-dollar-a-year war. Forty billion, dad, to kill people who live in straw huts. That's about forty thousand dollars a second, dad. Snap your fingers at forty thousand dollars a thousand people. But it's all right for your country to have lousy schools at a mere five hundred a year for each of us. You show who you love and who you spend your money on . . . forty thousand dollars to kill one Vietnamese, and five hundred to educate me for a whole year. Who do you love, dad?

Why do some of us burn our draft cards? Why don't we fight your little war? You see, dad, we love too many people . . . even the ones you're so afraid of. So who really is the coward, dad? The older generation that is afraid to help people with what they need, and so gives out bombs instead? We think so.

You tell me, finally, that if I burn my draft card, I should also burn my birth certificate, because you will have no son. But you see, dad, we care about the whole world more than anything. Hitler said, "I will not wage war on innocent women and children." That's exactly the line your president is handing you, dad. We won't swallow it. We love our country too much to turn it into a waring rampage that is out to, you say, "police" the world. We will even burn our draft cards to stop murder. And if I burn my birth certificate too, don't worry, dad, because just as all human beings are my brothers and sisters, so also, is the world my new father.

Will You Stand For Integration On This Campus?

If you missed the superb production "Integration" presented several weeks ago by the Black Students Association, you loused up. It is the finest original student endeavor that has appeared on this campus. However, you lucked out. This timely collection of satirical sketches on race relations will be presented tomorrow in the Little Theater on College Hour. I suggest that you cut class if necessary to attend this excellent program.

The sketches lampoon commonplace situations that inter-racial people experience and humorously exposes the hypocrisy and absurdity of our intolerant selves. The pace of the sketches has a robust and biting humor, but rarely does its author, Leslie David Perry, permit his audience to escape the absurdity of inter-racial confusion for the delivery of a sardonic message—the meaning is in the mirth.

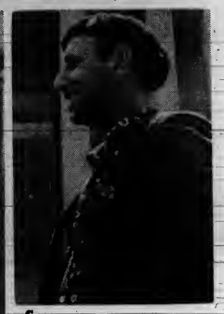
Cynthia Nichols directed a beautiful production using the talent of experienced student actors and actresses and novices in a remarkably polished first presentation which received a standing ovation from its premier audience.

The skits that will be presented tomorrow are titled Identification, Sex, Employment, Middleclass Man. Miss Nichols has lengthened the show with a fifth scene called Race Riot.

I suggest you arrive early for this November 16 presentation as most of the original audience will likely return bringing additional friends—seating in the aisle is uneomfortable and standing for Integration is unacceptable to many.

Proposition Peace Wins On The CCSF Campus

By Lawrence Lazore



Proposition Peace pulled 58 per cent of the ballots cast despite its controversial wording. According to Election Commissioner Tony Taormino, 1481 interested students balloted their opinion: 867 yes, 614 no.

It seems that a voting majority of the students have expressed a preference for peace rather than killing for democracy.

CAPTION THESE PHOTOS CONTEST

a.

c.

d.

b.

e.

CAPTION THESE PHOTOS CONTEST

a.....

b.....

c.....

d.....

e. RAMETTE OF THE WEEK

Submit your entries to Smith Hall Cafeteria, Room 102 Monday and Wednesdays 11 to 12, Tuesday and Thursday 12 to 1. There is no criteria for judging entries, and probably there will be no prizes awarded. Students, faculty, administration and all persons convicted of a felony may enter this contest. All entries may be submitted by November 22, 1967.

Letters To The Free Critic

When one presents a plea to the "majority of Black students" at CCSF, and as a premise for this plea uses racist cliches, then he is implying racism in his argument. This is not a preparatory school for Black liberators. It is a school for HUMAN liberators. America has not oppressed Black people. People have oppressed people. America has no further ability to oppress anyone than the people inhabiting its boundaries. Through the use of racist vernacular, i.e. "brother," "sister," etc.) Mr. Lovett implies that Black students must help only other Black students. Would the reverse of this implication be true? Should white students help only white students?

Mr. Lovett mentions the liberation of "Black people from this system of racism, poverty, and social immobility." Does this mean that only the Black people are going to be liberated? What of the impoverished of other races? Are they to be left in poverty? Are we to work as separate entities for the liberation of one and the exclusion of another?

Is this, as Mr. Lovett says, "...a system of poverty"? Do we know of anywhere on earth, or in fact in history, where there exists a better system? What is this better system? Where can it be found? What are its basic tenets?

How well does the system of Democratic Socialism in India provide for its citizens? What of the Congo where the government can't provide security against onslaughts of terror and cannibalism? Red China, with strong totalitarian rule, cannot keep the Red Guards from ravaging the people. If terror, starvation, and strife are our goals, then indeed this system is a poor one. America as yet does not comply with these standards of chaos. Is that what you are calling for, Mr. Lovett?

By Roger Hanes, Student

Letter From The Editor

Dear Fans and Cautious Readers,

This is the first time in Free Critic publication that blank space will appear due to a lack of student material; the blank areas in previous issues were due to mechanical error, deletion beyond my control and policy. What happened this week?

My present small staff is busy doing research for some depth articles and I personally didn't feel in the mood to do your writing for you. Unless you like blank space or feel it's more relaxing on the eyes, I think you might profit by donating a little written thought to this paper—I'm feeling a little run down lately, and sometimes, run over. Besides it's your newspaper. I just edit the thing occasionally in my haphazard manner.

Okay. Now I know that there are several hundred of you dying to submit articles, essays, letters and criticism so please form an orderly line in front of my office in Smith Hall cafeteria, room 102 directly across from the silverware dispenser, on Monday and Wednesdays 11 to 12, or Tuesday and Thursdays 12 to 1. Please do not block the hallway as the faculty will have difficulty reaching the luncheon room.

Thanks.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 65, No. 6 — WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1967 — Page 2

Status Of Vietnamese Boy Casts Doubt Over Adoption

VU VAN THANH is a Vietnamese child adopted by the Associated Students through the Foster Parents' Plan in 1965.

Vu and his poverty-stricken family received $180 that year, which was given to the family at a monthly rate of $15.

A few months later a letter of appreciation from Vu was received by the AS.

That Christmas, a total sum of $33 was sent to the boy. Contributions of $5 each were made by various clubs on campus. Other donations to the Christmas fund were made individually.

Last spring the first $180 of the profits from a concert given by guitarist Bola Sete was used to help continue supporting young Thanh.

SUBSEQUENT LETTERS HAVE ARRIVED from the boy, all of which have caused a certain amount of comment made by the AS.

According to Foster Parents, until the AS stepped in to aid Vu, he and his family subsisted on only 83 cents a day, which was earned by his mother and two sisters in leech-infested rice paddies.

A scantily furnished thatched hut reflected the family's squalor in war-torn Vietnam. The boy's father has had much difficulty keeping a steady job because of a tubercular condition and an amputated hand.

The finance office is holding $150 for the boy and his family. However, when it will actually be sent is not known, according to Pat Fiuren, Sophomore Class president.

WHERE IS VU VAN THANH?

Inquiries made by Guardsman reporters bring the same nebulous answer, "I don't know anything about it, see . . ."

All correspondence with the boy, which goes through the corporation handling the program, stopped almost a year ago.

There has been doubt and dissatisfaction with the way in which the boy was introduced to the campus and the general handling of the situation by the Foster Parents Plan, Inc.

The first letter from Vu seemed fabricated, prompting one reader to write, "(the letter) . . . leads me to believe that his education hardly needs any help from this student body."

THE AS ISN'T RICH ENOUGH to put its money into its own Vietnam abyss. If this whole matter is to show how benevolent the AS is, then let it associate itself with another adoption program or start its own.

At least then the Associated Students would know how their money is being spent and would know what good it's doing.

Vantage Point

by Glynn Petrie

AT THE beginning of each semester at City College most instructors in some way indicate that if any student does not understand something about the course material or has some question about it he should feel free to ask questions.

Apparently there is never any student doubt or uncertainty or interest or curiosity about anything instructors say for the next four and a half months—the majority of students sit in their classes like zombies, religiously writing down and unflinchingly accepting whatever is served to them whether it be true, false, immaterial, intriguing, contradictory, original or right out of their own textbooks.

AN UNBELIEVABLE number of students are motionless bladders into which instructors can pour anything without fear of being understood.

Students aren't interested in filtering definites from maybes or objectivity from instructoral bias; they just want to remember details until the next exam when they will have the opportunity to regurgitate the "facts" in their word-for-word original form—pure and untouched by comprehension or intelligence.

These individuals are not getting an education. They are, at best, getting ready for the next midterm in the most sterile and self-limiting way possible.

Even in classes where instructors depart from the lecture-type presentation and actually solicit student comment, there sit 60 or 70 per cent of tomorrow's "leaders," unable or unwilling to exercise their minds in the safety and order of the classroom, let alone in the tumult and chaos of the world outside.

IF AN EDUCATION is to be a real education it must be an active participating process on the part of the student. We must be at least willing to help feed ourselves and not just sit and expect to profit from having someone else shovel stuff down our throats.

Question when you don't understand or when the presented facts don't tie together. Comment, at least when your comments are asked for, and again when you know you have something to say. Disagree when you disagree and say what you feel ought to be said.

THE WORLD HAS enough "no-opinion," uninterested vegetables as it is without an educational system mass-producing more of them. College is supposed to be a way of getting people to open their eyes, not immobilizing their minds.

Computerized education will have reached its zenith not when all tests are graded mechanically or registration is carried out solely by machine, but when we allow ourselves to be programmed in class in the same manner as this semester's registration computer we were so disgusted with.

Guardsman Staff—Fall 1967

(The Guardsman, its faculty advisor and staff have no responsibility for or control over material printed on the page with the Free Critic masthead.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... STEVEN HARA
Managing Editor ..... Lori Pittman
Feature Editor ..... Marty Rubulcich
Staff Editor ..... Glynn Petrie
News Editor ..... Ed Holmes
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan
Editorial Assistants: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, Douglas Dorn, John Janigian, Ron Lent, John Le-Tourneau, Viggo Petersen.
Reporters: Berry Brown, Tom Graham, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf.
Cub Reporters: John Benderitis, Lani Brand, Tim Bryton, Elizabeth Callan, John Carpenter, Rita Carroll, Chris Estabez, Arthur Fantalis, Barbara Hamann, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Deonis Mundt, Rosita Murphy, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom, May Ling Wong.
Photographers: Ed Bruns, Chief; Gary W. Batchelor, Paul Bokcey, James Bruce, Carol Gillmore, Roberts Guillen, Fred Harris, Robert Kim, Klaus Kutz, Gary Lee, Garth Ogle, Mike Reams, Chris Rozales, Richard Spitaleri, Kevin Tobin, Mark Welnand, Samuel Woo.
Guardsman Faculty Advisor ..... Joan Nourse

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• AS Card Benefits

Editor, The Guardsman:

In regard to The Guardsman editorial of November 1, 1967, I would like to comment on the purpose of the Associated Student card.

The theoretical function, as the editorial stated, may be to separate the unregistered student from the "active" student, but more probably the difference lies in the availability of five dollars to be paid out for nebulous return.

In my experience, the variety of events, cultural or social, to which an AS card, over and above the registration card, can be applied is of extremely narrow interest. After buying an AS card, its possessor should be entitled to benefit from AS-sponsored events which are unique to that body. Such events, however, should not be the ones to which you referred in your editorial.

PRIORITY FOR ATTENDING lectures, movies, plays, etc., with their universal appeal to the student, should not be limited to those who can afford five dollars for an AS card. These events, and as many others as possible, should, in the spirit of education, be open to every student with the desire to attend.

On the other hand, parking fees should logically be charged only to those with cars and not be tied to the AS card at all. City College is not a country club where social and cultural "privileges" are roled out to those with the greatest "financial involvement."

If the Associated Students can present benefits of universal and unusual interest for a five-dollar investment, then possibly a mandatory five-dollar fee is in order. Meanwhile, increased restriction of the present benefits is not the answer to AS financial ills.

Leslie M. Hunt

(Editor's note: The writer evidently has misconstrued "priority" to mean "exclusive." The Guardsman agrees that all students should be allowed to participate in AS activities, but to paraphrase George Orwell, all students are equal, but some students are more equal than others. We think that this is the way it should be with the relationship of active and non-active AS members.)

• A Correction . . .

Editor, The Guardsman:

In your last issue, November 1, 1967, on your third page, you made a mistake in spelling my name for winning 1st place in chess.

Would you please make a "correction" on my name from Dave Louie, as you have it, to Dave Lonie.

Thank You,
Dave Lonie

(Editor's note: We stand corrected!)

Speed Reading

Comprehension Suffers With Accelerated Pace

By Tom Graham

Advertising gimmicks for self-improvement courses sometimes catch the reader off guard, and one area that abounds in such practice is the speed reading programs offered by private organizations.

Asking the question, "Do You Read Like A Turtle?" a nation-wide business agency entices people through newspaper advertisement to enroll in its speed reading course.

The agency encourages those who "crawl across the page one word at a time like a turtle," to enroll in the new reading program which guarantees to double reading speed or your money back.

THIS PARTICULAR COURSE, like many others of its kind, promises to increase a person's reading speed but doesn't promise an corresponding increase in comprehension.

A person who reads only 200 to 300 words per minute will reach a speed of 500 to 800 words, according to the advertisement, and the ad affirms that "the faster you read, the more you will remember and understand."

Reading courses have been offered at City College for close to 20 years and the person who has been instrumental in the development of the program here is Grace Brown. According to her, the philosophy of the reading department toward rapid or speed reading courses is that they do more harm than good.

"The idea that people should read more rapidly for better understanding is one of the most vicious errors made in the United States today, and the responsibility for this rests to a large extent with commercial speed reading courses," Mrs. Brown stated.

IN ALMOST EVERY semester in the developmental reading course (English G10) one or two students have previously taken, at considerable expense, the most famous reading course in the country which damaged their comprehension.

The only people who gain from speed reading courses are those who already are good or excellent readers.

Students who take reading courses here do improve their reading rate and comprehension, but comprehension is stressed more than speed.

Mrs. Brown believes that if improvement in reading were measured by yearly advance, students who take courses at City College in reading tend to make gains in both speed and comprehension in one semester that are equivalent to several years of general college study.

The success of the reading courses with students at City College has been measured by comparing their scores on tests with their entrance reading scores.

The courses offered by the college in this field are English K, G9 and G19.

Campus Lineup:

LECTURE SERIES: Francois Mitterland, president of France's Federation of the Left and leading presidential opponent of Charles de Gaulle, will speak Tuesday, November 28, in the theater. His subject is concerned with France in the modern world.

An influential French weekly magazine deemed Mitterland "the second personage of French politics following General de Gaulle," after a recent poll taken by the French Institute of Public Opinion. In 1965, he forced De Gaulle into a run-off vote after the first ballot gave him 32 per cent of the vote and De Gaulle 44 per cent.

RACIAL COMEDY: Integration, a racial satire, will be presented during College Hour tomorrow in the theater.

Another scene on "Negro riots" has been added to the other four scenes which were presented last month. The previous scenes include a lampoon on identity, employment, sex and pychological view of the middle-class man.

According to Leslie David Perry, a University of California at Berkeley student, the play, Intregation, attacks and points fun at all aspects of modern American society and not just the racial situation.

Election Slated For Monday

The Student Council election for the four vacant council seats will be held next Monday.

In last week's Student Council report, it was stated that four council members had been disqualified from office due to grades. It has been brought to the attention of The Guardsman that Rupert Fleming was disqualified because of a lack of units and not because of his grades.

A resolution to set aside a portion of the bulletin boards on campus for the express purpose of posting a copy of all current legislation passed by Student Council and a copy of the latest minutes of council meetings was submitted by Ray Bietz, frosh councilman, and passed.

Soph Councilman Bill McQuaid submitted a resolution to appropriate $1125 for scholarships, to be awarded on the basis of achievement and financial need. This resolution was tabled until Ross Klutke, finance chairman, could tell how much money is available to Student Council for scholarships.

An appropriation of $185.24 was made for KCSF to wire Statler Wing for sound and to take the present wiring out of Smith Hall, because Statled Wing is considered more conducive to listening.

A tentative agreement was made by council to provide a union band whenever advertisement takes place which is directed toward attracting an audience outside the regular student body and whenever a union artist performs at the college and musical accompaniment is provided.

Shots At RAMdom

by Ed Holmes

NOWHERE has the age of specialization been more adequately displayed than among the various pieces of heavy equipment used by our energetic landscapers.

There are bulldozers, back-hoes and dump-loaders. There is a space-age lawnmower that trims not the blades of grass but the roots.

There are ditch-diggers that dig narrow deep ditches and others that dig wide, shallow ditches. While we don't dig ditches very much, we found the project itself engaging enough to cause us to be late for several classes.

The time was not idly spent, however. We were fortunate enough to witness the next logical step in this process of specialization.

They even had a machine designed just to lift automobiles from ditches dug by other machines. We saw it demonstrated on a wayward Corvette.

• • •

COVERING FIRE

There are plenty of good aspects to this landscaping project and as they come to us, we'll list them.

For instance, the next time a thing sight of that denuded hillside just north of Science Hall beginning to turn green again all by itself.

Not that we lack faith in A. J. Shooter & Co., but it's nice to know that Mother Nature is backing them up, just in case.

• • •

POT SHOTS

If the ink in this paper were to fade to such an extent that it took a magnifying glass to read it, would people be as blase as they are when KCSF fades to an unintelligible level?

The following has been suggested as a yardstick for instructors concerned with any kind of self-evaluation:

"Would my position change if students of mine determined how much money I made?"

Further suggestions concerning the value of this column were unprintable.

Speaking of which . . . the Critic's editorial policy concerning the fecal verb shifts between columns four and five of last week's issue, adding further proof to the contention that the weaker sex isn't.

• • •

BARRAGE

A lot of people will deny it but the recent Proposition P vote taken on campus shows City College students to be very conservative.

Three polls were taken in San Francisco. Two city-wide polls included one for those under the age of 21; one for those 21 or over. The first overwhelmingly passed the resolution by over 90 per cent while the second bounced it by 60 per cent. In the local poll—with no age restrictions—it passed by 58 per cent. Talk about middle of the roaders . . .

Further conservatism, according to Merritt Beckerman, faculty adviser to the symphony forum, was displayed by the decline of sales of season tickets for the S.F. Symphony. It seems the program offered this year is too contemporary. City College students cry "Bach, si; Bartok, no."

• • •

FINAL FUSILLADE

We commiserate with the chairman of the Academic Senate who reportedly "has been unable to solve" the problem of custodial work interrupting classes.

Footballers Roll Over Comets, 32-8

Records Fall As Rams Tie Chabot For League Lead

By Mike Duggan

City College footballers moved into a first-place tie with Chabot by handing Contra Costa a 32-8 defeat at Richmond High School November 3.

In the process, the Rams set two conference records while rushing for 491 yards and gaining 598 yards total offense.

The 1965 Ram squad had held the league mark for total offense with 528 yards. The previous school mark for total offense was 591 yards set in 1955 against Santa Ana. The former Golden Gate Conference record for team rushing in a single game of 468 was set in 1965 by the Rams against San Jose. That day, O. J. Simpson got 304 of those by himself.

Wayne McConico gave the Rams an early lead the first time he touched the ball, going 50 yards for the initial touchdown. The Comets struck back later in the first period to take an 8-6 lead as league-leading Butch Whyburn hit Al West from 10 yards out for a score and then found Lisso Harper for the two-point conversion.

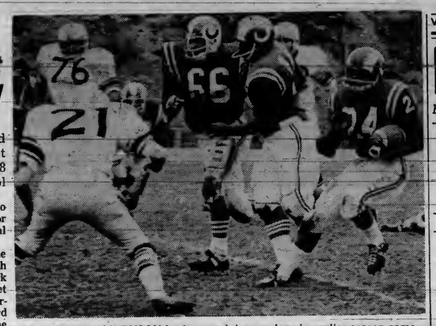
THE RAMS REGAINED the lead just before the first period ended as McConico went over from one yard out. McConico reinjured his ankle and left the game after rushing for 75 yards on nine carries in the first quarter.

City College broke the game wide open in the second quarter as quarterback Tom Mayfield found end Mike Carter with scoring bombs of 26 and 51 yards. Carter caught three of Mayfield's four completions and finished the game with 100 yards receiving. Mayfield had 107 yards passing.

The only second half score came when Jon Dyson went over from three yards out, and with Mayfield's kick, ended the night's scoring at 32-8. Dyson finished with 98 yards rushing and caught one pass for seven yards.

The Comets ground game netted seven yards as the Ram defense, best in the league, enjoyed its finest game. Ralph Hodge, Kevin Devine, Dave Kuzarian, George Ohlson, James McEldry and Joe Dutto did most of the work in stopping the Comet ground attack. Devine replaced All-Conference star Allan Cowlings who was ejected early in the game along with the Comets' West.

THE OFFENSIVE LINE for the Rams played an outstanding game. John Monroe, Mike Deschler, Ed Diaz, Kevin Shea and Mike Streich made up the five which opened holes wide enough for two nonstarters to rack up over 100 yards rushing. Linebacker Joe Bell, in addition to playing a fine defensive game, took over for McConico and rushed for 106 yards in 11 carries.



Reserve Doyle Miller rushed for 126 yards on seven carries, all in the final quarter. Fullback Willie Lewis had another fine day, picking up 82 yards on 11 carries. On the final play of the game, Miller went 92 yards.

Whyburn finished with 184 yards passing but had two picked off. Defensive back Joe Barb and linebacker Orice Pittman came up with the interceptions for the Rams.

The Rams host San Jose Friday at 2 p.m. in a must win for City College.

Conference Standings

SAN FRANCISCO	W	L	T
Chabot	4	1	0
San Mateo	3	1	1
Diablo Valley	3	1	1
San Jose	2	3	0
Merritt	1	4	0
Contra Costa	1	4	0
Foothill	1	4	0

HALFBACK JON DYSON is shown gaining yardage in earlier season game against San Joaquin. Guard Mike Deschler (66) and quarterback Tom Mayfield (14) lead the blocking. Dyson, top prep scorer in the city last year, has gained 275 yards rushing and 50 receiving thus far this season. —Guardsman photo by Mike Reams

Spikers Beat Comets, Tie Vikings At Contra Costa

The Rams bested Contra Costa, 25 to 32, but just missed sweeping their cross country tri-meet, as Diablo Valley held them to a 28-28 tie, in a race held November 2 on Contra Costa's course in Wildcat Canyon.

George Haza paced the Rams as he won the four-mile race in 22:05, finishing six seconds ahead of Contra Costa Steve Yost.

Kirt Schroers of Diablo Valley edged the Rams' Fred Forsberg for third spot, as Forsberg finished two seconds back to capture fourth place. Other top finishers for the Rams were John Bendoritis, Vic Carey, Jose Garcia and Bob Aanestad, in that order.

Only the first five runners for each team are counted in scoring in cross country, but a team's sixth man may prove invaluable as he can block another team's runner from a higher position. This is exactly what occurred in this race as Aanestad of the Rams blocked Diablo Valley's fifth man, Larry Puente, enabling the Rams to gain the tie.

The Rams, in addition to the tie in their race with Diablo Valley, remain deadlocked with Diablo for fourth place in the conference standings.

The two teams get a chance to settle their dispute in the conference meet. The top four teams from the conference meet are sent to the Northern California Junior College Race held in Fresno Friday.

The league's top 20 runners are also eligible for the Northern California Race, regardless of the finish of their colleges, and the Rams' Haza and Forsberg could go on this basis.—J. B.

New Cagers Lack Experience—Phelan

The 1967-68 basketball team will be loaded with fine shooters, but will be inexperienced in the front line, according to Coach Sid Phelan.

The front linemen are all new except Isaiah Pruitt, who saw very little action last year. Newcomers include Roosevelt Green, Tom Clyburn and Floyd Seaburn, who seems to be the best offensively. "We are quite small compared with last year's team, and will be in trouble with most teams in the conference," Phelan stated.

However, the Rams will have ample shooting with the return of Ray Hearne, a starter on last year's squad. Also looking good in practice are Mel and Telvis Jones, Tom Kuhn, Dave Kline, Darrell Fregia and Gary Bradford.

"We will have all the shooting we will need; it will just depend on the big men to clear the boards and get the ball to them," Phelan added.

College Fencers Score Touche In NorCal Meet

City College of San Francisco competed in the Northern California Fencing Association meet held last month in Sacramento, which saw seven members of the college participate.

Competition was based on individual performance, and many Bay Area colleges were in attendance. Ram Hlek Hambazumian was the outstanding participant in the men's division as he placed first in the competition. Margo Reynolds, also of City College, gained a second place in the women's competition. Miss Reynolds and Hambazumian are both classified (ranked) by the Amateur Fencers' League.

Focus: 'Representation'

by Lori Pittman

A REPRESENTATIVE body should not have the right to elect persons to fill its own vacancies.

The student government of this college proposes to run along the same lines as most elected governments within this country. On a miniature scale, the government attempts to follow all of the rules that designate a democracy.

NEAR THE END OF each semester students petition and run for the various offices. Most of the students here have heard the speeches and tried to look through the poster-covered windows. They've had "vote-for-me" mimeographed sheets shoved into their hands and been questioned at least twice: "Did you vote?"

Once it's all over, it is generally felt that the work's been done. The Associated Students will be represented by those they've chosen to fill the jobs in Student Council and other elected offices.

What few seem to realize, though, is the fact that all elected members are open to disqualification throughout their entire term of office. At the end of each midterm period, they must have passed at least 12 units with a 2.0 grade-point average.

This semester, nearly a third of Student Council was disqualified after the first midterm. Now to fill these vacant seats special elections will be held . . . in the Student Council chambers where only members of council are allowed to vote.

IN OTHER WORDS, members of council who managed to hold onto their seats will be voting in whomever they want. Which ever party is in power at this time can be expected to elect only members of their own party to fill the seats.

This is simply a student government version of a "kangaroo court."

And what happens to that old democratic idea of a representative government? The only persons being represented are those who have managed to maintain their seats.

Of course, everything is legal. According to the Associated Students' Constitution, "Vacancies in the Student Council shall be filled by an election in the Student Council under the direction of the election commissioner."

BUT BEING LEGAL does not always mean that a thing is right . . . and constitutions can be changed.

It is time for a change. If Student Council is going to call itself "the elected, representative body of the Associated Students," then it should be just that.

Bring the elections back to the students.

Vol. 65, No. 6 WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1967 Page 3

RAMBLINGS — O. J. Picks Rams As Loop, State Champs

By Mike Duggan

(Editor's Note: The following is a reprint of a letter from the country's leading ground gainer, USC's O. J. Simpson, to his former coaches—Dutch Elston (Ram head coach) and Alex "Pops" Schwarz (line coach), following City College's opening season loss to American River.)

HOW'S everything going? Well, everything is on the move down here. We just came off our win over Texas and now we're preparing for Michigan State. They lost last week so you can bet Duffy Daugherty will have them up for us.

Our game with Texas shouldn't have been that close (17-14). We drove on them all night and were down inside their 10 three times without scoring because of mistakes on our part (once I fumbled). But we won and that's what counts.

MIKE TAYLOR (former Ram tackle) is here and he wants to say hello to everyone and tell "Pops" he's doing fine. We didn't play much against Washington State because we were so far ahead (49-0). Jerd Lapham (former Ram tackle) played for them and we walked all over him.

I've heard a few different stories as to why WE lost to American River, but you and I know just like against L. A. Valley and Laney (only two losses O. J. suffered in his two years at City College) that it takes a team to lose.

Tell Mike that Mike and I have been doing a lot of talk around here trying to convince everybody that City College will be the best in the north and will play in the State Championship.

For two years we've been unbeatable in the Golden Gate Conference so the other coaches and players have learned to respect City College. This year the team has the guys to do it again, if they want to PAY THE PRICE.

FOR TWO YEARS we paid the price and we were winners and every time I think about walking on the field in the L. A. Coliseum and look up and hear 70,000 people cheering, I'm glad I paid the price. I know this sounds silly, but it's the way I feel and I know Mike feels the same way too. I guess all the guys who played on those two teams (Rams' 1965 and 1966 championship teams) do also. When I heard that City College lost to American River I felt the same as I did when we lost to Laney.

Well, this letter gave me an excuse for missing one of my classes, and I have to get to football practice, so tell Allan (Cowlings), Mike (Deschler), (John) Monroe, Ralph (Hodge) and the other guys who played last year to get things going. Also tell Joe Bell and Jon Dyson to work hard so City College won't be like our first few years at Galileo.

Say hello to all the other coaches for Mike and me and we'll be seeing you down here for the State Championships.

Sincerely,
O. J.

P.S. Tell Ham to get back to work (custodian John Hamilton).

Chu's 4 Goals Lead Booters' 10-2 Trouncing Of St. Mary's

By John LeTourneau

Al Chu scored four goals to pace the City College soccer team to a 10-2 rout over St. Mary's, November 6, at Balboa Stadium.

The win brought the Rams' overall record to 10-1-1. They will have to win the rest of their games if they are to get into the state championship.

SOCCER STAR Al Chu. —Guardsman photo by Gary Lee

THE VICTORS didn't have much trouble with the Gaels. The Rams took command early in the contest and never relinquished it. Coach Roy Diederichsen pointed out that St. Mary's is on a par with Diablo Valley.

"We just wanted to give each other some good practice, as we are preparing for the championship game against Merritt," Diederichsen commented. It gave the Gaels some good practice.

Also outstanding for the Red and White were inside left Otey Cannon, who scored two goals and passed for two more. Diederichsen had praise for Nick Sayada, who came off the bench to play an excellent all-around game at center halfback in place of Roger Sarria. "I didn't want to risk Sarria's injury in a practice game, so I let Sayada have some playing time," the Ram mentor added. He also praised goalie Tom Silva, who is replacing the injured Arnie Harrott.

THE INJURY situation looks bad for the Rams as their injuries are healing slowly. Still hurt are Paul Bogatsky, Jerry Tigue, Sarria, Henry Mejla and Harrott. These are all key men in the Ram attack in offense and defense.

The Rams meet San Mateo again Tuesday for the last game of the year. If the squad beats Merritt, this will be the clinching game.

Phi Delta Whips G'man, 67-40

Phi Delta continued its domination of the Intramural basketball league with a 67-40 win over The Guardsman last Tuesday night.

Bill Lichtenberger paced a balanced attack with 16 markers for Phi Delta. Dale Sutton and Jeff Barker added 12 each. The Guardsman, led by John Francevich, John LeTourneau and Tom (Big Red) Graham, played without the services of sharpshooter Bobby Rizzo, out with an inflamed elbow. Newcomers Jay Yerman, Larry Murtha and Bill Kays glittered in defeat. Veteran Marty Arbunich scored two points.

Also in the Club division, Merwin Fong's 11 points led the Revisables to an easy 43-25 win over Newman Club.

Wednesday night's Independent league action saw the Spoilers take over first place by edging the Red Mountaineers, 54-47. Jose Fabiani was high man for the victors with 16 points. Fine board work by Jerry Calgero and Stan Hunt was instrumental in the victory. Carlos Rameros had 13 for the losers.

In the only forfeit of the week, the ABA Outcasts picked up their first win with a victory over the Irish.

The unbeaten Spoilers play the Irish tonight in the feature Independent league game. In the battle for second place in the division the Red Mountaineers take on the winless Rabbits. The ABA Outcasts, with one defeat, draw this week's bye.—J. L.

The Guardsman / Free Critic

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 65 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1967 NUMBER 7

Best Dressed

KATHY BEAVES, City College's Best-Dressed Coed.

The attractive Miss Beaves, an education major, was graduated from Wahlert High School of Dubuque, Iowa. This is her first semester at City College.

The honor qualifies Miss Beaves to represent City College in the Glamour Magazine Best-Dressed Coed Contest. Colleges from all over the country will send finalists to the contest where ten winners will be awarded a trip to New York.

—Guardsman photo by Paul Bekesy

Special Committee Debates Offering Of Credit/No Credit Courses In 1968-69 Curriculum

By Barbara Hamann

Credit/no credit courses, in addition to the usual letter grade courses, will be included in the 1968-69 curriculum.

A committee, under the chairmanship of Dean of Instruction Jack Billwiller, met recently to discuss the possibility of credit/no credit policy for City College.

The committee reviewed a general proposal, offered by Ross Klutke, student finance chairman, to discard the traditional numerical grading system in certain courses in an attempt to judge the quality of a student's work in overall terms.

THE PROPOSAL, if approved, would allow remedial courses such as Math A, B, C, D, E and R; Communications 5A, 5B, 6, 12 13A and 13B to be given on a credit/no credit basis only. Other courses, generally intended for non-majors, such as Chemistry 10, Zoology 10 and Physics 10, could also be given on the same basis. These grades would not affect the student's average.

At present, only a limited number of courses provide for credit/no credit grades.

It was argued that students' grade-point averages would be protected from the effect of required courses on one hand and electives outside their majors on the other by this procedure.

Furthermore, students might obtain a wider choice of subjects and take more interesting courses as electives if they felt that the grades would not be adversely affected by competition with majors in fields other than their own.

It was also argued that many students needed the stimulus and motivation of letter grades to do their best work, and many faculty members found this to be most effective.

BILLWILLER announced that the committee will reconvene early in December after the proposals have been reviewed by department heads.

The State Board of Education has proposed that all California public colleges may offer courses wherein all students are evaluated on a credit/no credit basis or wherein each student may elect that basis.

Students wishing credit/no credit grades in courses, where the choice is permitted, must make the decision at the time of registration, or within a reasonable time thereafter.

CREDIT/NO CREDIT grades must not be considered in determining the grade-point average. Grades must, however, be considered in determining probation or disqualification, the proposal states.

Permission may be granted to students who wish to change credit/no credit grades to letter grades upon completion of the course on the basis of examination with the approval of the administration.

Dec. 1 Cotillion Will Introduce Sorority Pledges

Nineteen pledges of Phi Beta Rho and Theta Tau will be officially presented to the sisters of the two sororities at a cotillion, from 9 p.m. to midnight, Friday, December 1 in Smith Hall.

Each pledge of Phi Beta Rho will wear a long pastel formal and a lavaliere and hold a long-stemmed red rose, while those of Theta Tau will wear long red or white formals and pledge pins and hold white carnations. All will wear white gloves. The family and friends of each pledge will be invited to the affair.

THE TWELVE pledges to be presented by Phi Beta Rho are Jenny Green, Lynn Campbell, Kathy Vasquez, Jayne Nelson, Lynn Scharfen, Lani Brand, Randi Marin, Gloria Mota, Pat Thomas, Linda Power, Jean Godin and Debi Hemman.

Theta Tau will introduce Elaine Resnick, Eleanor Moore, Ingrid Kau, Kathy Erlwin, Ester Palun, Vicki Vittori and Kathy Erickson.

The uniformed pledges were required to go through one week of "hell" so that sisters could test each pledge's desire to join the sorority through interrogation.

A number of the coeds found the demands made of them too harsh and dropped before the week was over. Some pledges found themselves under constant interrogation, carrying out a sister's slightest whim, memorizing facts about their prospective sorority, spiels, names, songs, the Greek alphabet and definitions.

THE COEDS were also required on college nights to attend "joints," which are parties between sororities and fraternities. Pledges who did not comply with demands made of them received demerits which they must work off at some future date.

The last thing all the pledges were required to do was take a written test about things pertaining to the sorority. Everyone passed.—L. B.

Alioto May Speak In Evening Series On December 4

A series of three Monday evening winter lectures will be given this semester on an experimental basis to try to compensate for the lack of time during the regular College Hour lectures.

A tentative date of December 4 has been set to hear Mayor-Elect Joseph Alioto. Alioto is expected to discuss city problems and what the city will do to solve these problems.

The second of the three night lectures to be given will be presented by Supervisor Terry Francois on December 11 and he will be "concerned with urban renewal of the Western Addition."

The third speaker will be Zuretti Goosby, member of the City Board of Education. He will speak in behalf of schools and their part in the problems of urban renewal.

The Monday evening series will be held to test the drawing power of evening audiences, a lecture series committee spokesman said.

If they are successful, there will be further evening series. The three winter lectures will be held in the college theater starting at 8 p.m.

During College Hour on December 12, Jack Aranson, well known producer and director of the City Theater Company, will give a lecture entitled The Theater Of Dylan Thomas. Aranson is noted for his sympathetic feelings toward Dylan Thomas. In the performance of The World Of Dylan Thomas, Aranson has woven together many of Thomas' stories, sketches, poems, and talks.

Shades Of O.J.

WITH A STARTLING DISPLAY of applied leadership, Diane Lattimer, who is also president of this semester's Associated Students, guides teammate Pat Fluren safely around right end.

The occasion was the Second Annual San Francisco-San Mateo Powder Puff football game. The inspired Ramettes trounced the opposition, 9-0, concluding their second undefeated, unscored-upon season. Last year they beat San Mateo, 16-0. —Guardsman photo by Chris Rozales

Mitterand To Speak On France In The Modern World Next Tuesday

By Marc Clarkson

Francois Mitterand, president of France's Federation of the Left and leading presidential opponent of Charles de Gaulle, will speak at 11:30 a.m. next Tuesday in the college theater.

Mitterand will discuss the topic France In The Modern World, according to acting President Lloyd Luckmann.

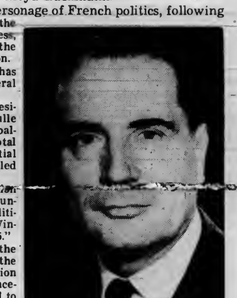
Mitterand "is the second personage of French politics, following General De Gaulle," reported the French weekly magazine, L'Express, after a poll was taken recently by the French Institute of Public Opinion.

FOR MANY YEARS, Mitterand has been the chief antagonist of General De Gaulle.

In 1965, during France's last presidential election, he forced De Gaulle into a run-off vote after the first ballot by polling 32 per cent of the total votes out of a field of six presidential candidates while De Gaulle polled 44 per cent.

Time magazine called the election results "the most resounding and unexpected defeat for a Western political leader since Britain turned Winston Churchill out of office in 1945."

MOREOVER, A further blow to the Gaullist position resulted during the French National Assembly election last March when De Gaulle's once-overwhelming majority was slashed to a bloc barely able to control the house; and this held came only with the aid of other factions.



In a recent speech attacking General De Gaulle's stated policy of "peace, independence and progress," Mitterand said peace was being threatened by the government's force de frappe, independence had become isolationism and progress was actually opposed by the Gaullists.

MITTERAND WAS born in 1917. The son of a railroad worker, he "had the drive and the brains" to win three university degrees (law, letters, and political science) simultaneously.

Politically, Mitterand first rose to prominence in 1947 when he was named Minister of Veterans Affairs at the age of 30, thus becoming France's youngest minister.

Mitterand since has served in no less than 11 cabinets under the Fourth Republic.

Mitterand, aside from being an active politican, has written three volumes, including an indictment of Gaullism entitled, The Permanent Coup d'Etat.

FRANCOIS MITTERAND, chief political opponent of French President Charles de Gaulle, will speak here next Tuesday.

Turkey Specialty Offered In Cafe

Epicureans will once again have a special Thanksgiving menu prepared by the hotel and restaurant department of this college in Smith Hall today.

On the menu will be roast tom turkey with chef's dressing, giblet gravy and cranberry sauce. Vegetables in the entree will include broccoli with yellow cheese sauce, candied sweet potatoes and a special dessert. The entire meal will cost 70 cents, and will be served from 11 a.m. until 1:15 p.m. in the cafeteria. Besides the Thanksgiving special, salads and snacks will be served as usual.

Auto Insurance Big Problem For Today's College Student

By Viggo Petersen

One of the biggest headaches facing students today is automobile insurance.

A high percentage of students drive to City College, not as a matter of luxury but as one of necessity.

A NUMBER OF students live so far from the campus that municipal facilities simply are not adequate enough to guarantee prompt appearance in class.

Unless a student is a part-time driver, sharing the family car, a student may be forced to pay rates so high as to make owning a car an absurdity.

On January first, insurance liability rates are going up. The new figures will be $15,000 for bodily injury; $30,000 for bodily injury or death for all victims of an accident; and $5000 for property damage.

BY JULY 1, 1968, it will be California State law that anyone involved in an automobile accident, regardless of who is at fault must prove financial responsibility to the state, either in the form of automobile insurance, or in the form of a bond posted with the state. The new increases should prompt higher premiums.

The paradox is that the individuals who are least able to pay excessive insurance rates, namely students, are the ones hardest hit. Except for those with high grade-point avarages, no relief from the high rates are offered to college students.

Only through some form of financial assistance can the average student, who is likely to be working only part-time, afford to pay his monthly premiums.

ONE OF THE reasons offered by insurance companies for high rates among younger drivers is that the accident rate is higher within their age group.

Another reason is that many young people allegedly receive more moving violations than any other age group, the assumption here being that moving violations lead to accidents.

However, this theory has been proved a fallacy. Surveys by interested parties have shown that there is no direct corrclation between the number of tickets an individual receives and the number of accidents he is involved in.

CBS television is running a series of investigations into the automobile insurance industry. It has found and reported a number of cases of discrimination, illegal practices and outright cheating being carried on by some of the cut-rate, lesser-known companies.

THE INVESTIGATIONS found that many of the cut-rate companies have been forced into bankruptcy because the practices of their executives include using premium funds for extended vacations and personal interests.

However, while congressional investigations are being planned, and federal controls are being proposed, the most likely to suffer from unethical and unfair practices of many insurance companies will be the under-29 age group.

The Free Critic

Lawrence Lazore, Editor — The Critic Adviser: Mr. Berman

Vol. 1, No. 7 — WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1967 — Page 1

How To Print The Guardsman Without Really Trying

By Dennis Mundt

The Guardsman has been shamelessly patronizing the same printer for over 20 years. The two have grown old together, blissfully unaware of changing times. In the Unromantic world of commerce, a relationship such as this is not only improper, it is rather poor business.

The Guardsman/Free Critic is paying over $100 a page printing costs when similar papers pay less than half that.

Gutenburg Press, which prints both San Francisco State and U of San Francisco papers, say they can do the Guardsman for $55 a page; Howard Quinn (Bay Guardian, Berkeley Barb) estimate $45 a page.

It is because these printers use new processes, faster presses and standardized specifications that they can cut costs in half.

To take advantage of these savings the Guardsman would have to trim its pages to standard tabloid size instead of the present bastard size. It would also have to modify its handsome foremat; but it might be as well if less time were spent on layout and more on news coverage.

Now would be a good time for Student Council to investigate this matter, since no bids have yet been held for this year's contracts.

Last June only three printers were notified of the bidding; one did not even reply, possibly because he did not have the equipment or time to handle the unusual Guardsman specifications. This time perhaps the specifications could be changed so that printers with modern equipment and cheaper processes might compete for the contract.

This section appearing under the Free Critic masthead is yours. It is open to anyone who cares to participate through free expression for the betterment of our lives.

The Free Critic office is in Smith Hall cafeteria, room S-102. The room is directly across from the silverware dispenser and will be open Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 11:00-12:00, Tuesday and Thursday, 12:00-1:00. Drop in and contribute so that the new Free Critic will not have a blank page next issue.

LAWRENCE LAZORE, Editor

On Eating One Another

By Gale Gara

Life is to be lived, not controlled; and humanity is won by continuing to be committed in face of certain defeat. To strive on for love and understanding of human beings, to continue to have compassion for living in the face of defeat will bring victory for all humanity.

Yet, I saw a man, named Karenga, twisting and using young minds simply as a means to a useless end rather than teaching and inspiring these students towards a meaningful ideal. The minds and hearts of these black students, who hunger for the rights of being a human being in our society, and who hunger for love and understanding, were being fed emotionally toned propaganda, and promises which in reality are non-existent. In that room, individual creativity, spontaneity, and the genuine feeling of experiencing life were crushed out by the students themselves becoming an uncontrollable crowd and were submitting to the very violent inhumanity which they reject. He fed them ideals and hopes, valid in themselves, but the means to the ends were vicious and violent. Not realizing this man's desire for control, the students cheered for him on and on.

But do you "dig it" being slaughtered on the streets? Do you "dig it" having all human beings involved in a violent blood bath for equal rights? For what? To be equally buried under ground? Because we are starving for human dialogue, for open and unconditioned love and understanding, for learning, we sometimes eat of the wrong food.

To eat of violence and hate is to vomit. Black and white men who yearn for a genuine democracy, who yearn for love and dialogue between each other—REACH OUT. Live not as a separate, alienated, selfish human being, but as one committed to peace and harmony among men.

A Gift To Myself

Hello Readers

I made an unusual decision with this week's Free Critic—I exercised my editorial prerogatives rather severely.

As I began assembling this week's Free Critic, I became troubled, then depressed and angry. However, I wasn't sure just what specifically was bothering me. I finished assembling most of the contributed student material by midnight and then proceeded to compose my own column, but found for the first time in two semesters that I absolutely couldn't even begin a story. Something I was intensely sensing was blocking my creativity. I went to bed.

In the morning I knew what my problem was—there were only two student contributions that I considered printable and worse, the rest of the issue reminded me of the typical writing that The Guardsman puts out week after week after week.

I have always stressed content over appearance and the idea of knowingly duplicating even one issue of the Free Critic in a manner simular to The Guardsman publication would seem to sacrifice every value I have been working for in the past four semesters. For the sake of my own eccentric integrity, I deleted all of the material that personally irritated me. I have a preference for blank space to meaningless print. Next week I might be forced to compromise and print some of the deleted material, but I am not that strong at the moment.

I have been very proud of most of the student contribution that has appeared in previous issues of the Free Critic; I would hate to loose that feeling for the publication. If his week's blank columns are distracting, doodle in the space; my readers have a better right to do this than my writers.

This week's Free Critic is a present to myself.

(End of material submitted.)

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

Vol. 65, No. 7 — WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1967 — Page 2

Uninformed 'Investigations' Yield Misleading Information

IT HAS COME to our attention through a phone call from the owner of the Gutenberg Press that individuals identifying themselves as members of The Guardsman staff have been soliciting prices for printing The Guardsman.

PAST EXPERIENCE WITH THIS type of "investigation" leads us to expect momentarily a revised version of the same old story. One third or less of the facts will be gathered and, through ignorance, preposterous conclusions will be reached. In a short time this ill-advised but crusading group will lift their strident voices in demands of upheaval. Before this happens we would like to set out some of the facts that we feel certain these spurious investigators will either miss or completely ignore.

Gutenberg quotes a price of $55 per page. This is not a Guardsman page; this is a page smaller than ours, with larger type and larger margins. Because of these seemingly minor differences, the material contained in a four-page issue of The Guardsman will not fit in even a six-page paper of the kind referred to in Gutenberg's price.

In other words, it would take eight of the smaller pages to contain all the material that will fit in four pages of the present format.

The figures are available in The Guardsman office. We invite inspection.

SOME QUESTIONS THAT WERE NOT ASKED of Gutenberg might have considerable effect on the quoted price. Those most conspicuous in their absence are:

- Would another printer deliver the paper free of charge?
- Would another printer hold space for last-minute developments such as weekend sports results?
- Would another printer tolerate a split editorial policy such as that of The Guardsman/Free Critic?
- Would another printer make up Lazore's page for him?

It is not a new cry that The Guardsman should devote more time to news coverage and less time to make up.

The Guardsman's policy has been and will be to maintain thorough, complete coverage and a decent, readable makeup.

We contend that this group demanding changes doesn't know the meaning of complete coverage (as evidenced by their incomplete and inadequate investigation of printing prices) and that they have to pay extra to get their makeup done for them.

Bids for printing The Guardsman have been periodically solicited. This sound business practice should continue. In the past, responsible people with all the facts before them have found that the highest quality and the lowest prices were offered by our present printer.

Vantage Point

by Glynn Petrie

THE UNITED STATES Constitution provides that each state shall determine the age qualifications for residents voting in national elections.

One may vote upon reaching the age of 18 in Georgia and Kentucky, 19 in Alaska and 20 in Hawaii. Apparently it is true that all men have equal rights but some have more equal rights than others. The 18-year olds of California are no less capable of casting responsible ballots than the teenagers of Kentucky or Georgia or Alaska.

But, rooted in antiquity, the election laws of this nation continue to allow such glaring inequities.

FORTY-SIX STATES have set the voting age at 21 for no other reason than in medieval England 21 was the age at which a man could control property and the holding of property was a necessary qualification for voting. But now the only prerequisites for voting in national elections are citizenship and residence, and lack of education is no longer a legal hindrance.

California schools teach mandatory courses in Civics and/or Political Science in order to produce knowledgeable citizens and responsible voters. However, upon completing such courses and being deemed fit to face the outside world as a responsible adult, a young person is only considered old enough to be enlisted in the armed forces.

HE MUST WAIT another two or three or four years to gain more knowledge of democracy and an additional sense of civic responsibility from an unnamed source. Only then may he exert the small amount of influence already accorded 70 million supposedly aware and civic-minded adults.

By this time he will not have total recall of his Civics or Political Science class in high school. He will also be less fired with enthusiasm for the democratic processes he has heard so much about but has not been allowed to participate in.

WHILE EAGERLY looking forward to the day he may legally enter a bar, the young adult has probably come to the conclusion that his not being able to vote makes little difference in the way the country is run.

Consequently the first stop on his 21st birthday will not be the Registrar of Voters office at City Hall but a barroom where his newly acquired manhood may be more appropriately celebrated.

Meanwhile, the young man has been fully eligible, physical defects aside, to be enlisted in one of the nation's armed forces in order to defend a system he may not be fully in agreement with and which he has not had the opportunity, small and indirect that it may be, to amend.

But, in the armed forces or not, he has all along had the privilege of paying taxes to support at least two levels of government, state and national, neither of which is remotely interested in his opinions. The government considers his mind not fully matured (in most states), but is not at all above taking strict account of his earning capacity (in all states).

THIS SEEMS VERY similar to the taxation without representation which so ired the colonials and against which they protested so vigorously and indignantly.

Rights and privileges are supposed to go with responsibilities. This society cannot consider itself progressive and modern until it ceases to encourage apathy by preventing capable individuals from participating in such a fundamental democratic process as voting on the basis of a 700-year-old "precedent."

Beauty And The Beasts

MIKE CARTER (left) AND JOE BELL adjust the "royal robe" of City College's newly crowned Homecoming Queen, Nevonne Charles, at a rally held in Ram Stadium November 9. Miss Charles represented Alpha Phi Epsilon and as her first duties she reigned at the November 10 football game against San Mateo and later that evening at the Homecoming Dance. Carter and Bell proceeded to show off their talents at the game as Carter set two conference receiving records and Bell was the game's leading ball carrier. —Guardsman photo by Chris Rozales

Speed Reading Lab Applies 'SQ4R' Idea

By Tom Graham

The reading department at City College is well informed on the new techniques of improving reading skills and one method suggested here to help the student read more effectively is the SQ4R theory (Survey, Question, Read, Recite, "Rite" and Review).

Surveying the reading material presented gives a person a general idea of what the subject is about. Thinking about the title and reading the introduction, summary, and main ideas (boldface type) provides the reader with a quick look at the total picture.

ASKING HIMSELF questions while reading through material helps a student to remember information that at one time possibly wasn't clear to him.

Reading selectively and reciting the answer to the question, in your own words not the author's, also improves comprehension.

Writing notes using only key words is all that is needed to recall the whole idea. With skillful cue noting it is possible for a person to reduce his notes in chemistry from 340 words to four words—if the person is skillful and has learned the method.

Reviewing this technique may increase retention and cut cramming time by 90 per cent.

Concerning reading courses, John Mass, one of the instructors in the reading department here, said that he has a very strong suspicion that those students who read a lot never have to take a reading course.

MASS' CLASSES aren't pressured by threat of tests. He does test, but he doesn't put emphasis on any one particular examination. Instead, he takes the average grade maintained by the student throughout the semester in his class and gives him that grade.

The reason for this is that anyone can freeze on a test and according to him, "even the best of ballplayers strike out when the bases are loaded."

The phrase "speed is a dirty word" is common in reading laboratories because it is a characteristic of the accomplished student and because everybody can't achieve speeds of 1000 words per minute and comprehend what they read.

ON THE SUBJECT of speed reading, comedian Woody Allen stated recently, "I took a course in it, learning to read straight down the middle of the page, and was able to go through War And Peace in 20 minutes. It's about Russia."

For those who have taken speed reading from commercial business organizations and are wondering whatinhell this article was about, it had something to do with speed reading . . . speed reading . . . speed reading . . .

Focus:

Stacks Closed To Students— Not A Library

by Lori Pittman

THERE aren't too many things a student can do on campus between classes. He can sit on the lawn (or what's left of it), go to the cafeteria or visit what formally is known as the college library.

Ever tried "browsing" through a card catalogue? Even an unusual or intriguing title often turns out to be a moldy has-been written in something similar to Old English.

AFTER AN HOUR of filling out those small cards with titles, authors and weird code numbers, and keeping the entire library staff running back and forth in search of something appealing, it is more than easy to walk out of the library empty handed.

Not only has the student wasted his own time, but he's wasted the time of a half dozen other people.

In truth, the library has wasted his time and the time of its staff by not allowing the student to pick out his own books. "Browsing" isn't for card catalogues, it's for books . . . and since the library is here for the [illegible] to them.

Card catalogues have their purpose and everyone should be adept in using them. For a person with a certain book in mind, they save a great deal of time and energy. But for the "browser," they aren't merely useless, they're repulsive.

SO WHY DOES the college allow closed stacks? Their answer is a past history of theft; and the replacement of books, of course, costs the taxpayers money.

Now we're back to that green stuff. Can money possibly be more important to the community than the minds of its young adults?

A few students steal books (a few would steal the planks off the floors if they could sneak them out under their jackets) . . . and the whole student body suffers. It's surprising that the reference books that line the walls aren't somehow chained down.

THE PURPOSE OF a library is to keep and lend books, but surely "keeping" doesn't mean barricading so that students can't even see them.

Closed stacks show more than a lack of trust. They are insulting to every student who is restricted from seeing and selecting his own books.

This college is here for the students and the library is here to help them. Open the stacks and let the students do their own choosing. If theft is such an overwhelming problem, then put guards on the doors.

But let the students of this college have their library.

Labelled And Recorded

Concert With The Multifacet Concept

By Marty Arbunich

TWO of England's latest additions to popular music, the Pink Floyd and Procol Harum, were in town last week and, along with the H.P. Lovecraft group from Chicago, put on one of the most well-balanced and diversified concerts ever under Bill Graham.

As each group did their 'thing' on stage it was interesting to note the three bands had constructed distinct barriers separating their own individual modes of approach.

Yet the mysterious bond which associates and identifies the entire movement of multifacets in today's music was still existent throughout the performances. It's a birthmark frequently camouflaged but not easily erased.

This multifacet concept is widespread throughout the entire new breed music scene. (This is the main reason the hard-rock, folk-rock, etc. categorization is nearly washed up and applies only in a few cases.)

In a concert of this nature, however, where the entertainment is not designed to borrow from multiple facets, it's not only remarkable but refreshing to have such a variance.

The Pink Floyd's whole approach to music via electronic techniques is highly experimental.

Bass guitarist Roger Waters, the Floyd's nucleus, is excellent at creating deep and grinding bass drones. He's also lead vocalist and uses his voice more as a stimulating electronic instrument than for singing.

Both the drummer and lead guitarist are weak; the drumming is basically awkward and the guitar work ineffective and, at times, rendered useless by the dominating bass lines.

The Floyd have promise, though, as their album indicates. If they could discard dragging monotone concert numbers, concern themselves with more of their recorded offerings and buff up the weak instruments, effective performances would follow.

Procol Harum's style is quite original—the blending of organ, piano and Gary Brooker's haunting voice distinguishes them.

Most of their material has the familiar Whiter Shade Of Pale flow and is naturally depressing, but not in the negative sense.

Their only limitation is lack of material. Procol Harum has some excellently written songs—Cerdes, Conquistador and the impressive instrumental Repent Walpurgis for instance —but it's a shame to be forced to repeat various numbers.

Judging from the two blues numbers they performed, the group has an open door to this field. Robin Trower is a natural blues guitarist and the whole accompaniment setup also falls right in line. Brooker's voice isn't raw enough, but the instruments have definite latent qualities.

H. P. Lovecraft is one of the most intriguing bands to see in person—their sound is taut and crisp and easily accepted.

Tony Cavallari is a master at producing feedback (sounding almost like a tenor sax in The White Ship and drummer Mike Tegza is a "junior" Keith Moon. He's a bit of a showoff, but a vivacious percussionist.

The group his no live performance hangups. They came on real strong and finished on the same note.

Guardsman Staff—Fall 1967

(The Guardsman, its faculty adviser and staff have no responsibility for or control over material printed on this page with the Free Critic masthead.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... STEVEN HARR
Managing Editor ..... Lori Pittman
Feature Editor ..... Marty Arbunich
Staff Editor ..... Glynn Petrie
News Editor ..... Ed Holmes
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan
Editorial Assistants: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, Douglas Dorn, John Janigian, Ron Lent, John LeTourneau, Viggo Petersen.
Reporters: Barry Brown, Tom Graham, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf.
Cub Reporters: John Bendorfftis, Lani Brand, Tim Bryden, Elizabeth Callan, John Carpenter, Rita Carroll, Chris Esteber, Arthur Fanfelle, Barbara Hamann, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Dennis Mundt, Rosita Murphy, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom, May Ling Wong.
Photographers: Ed Bruns, Chief; Gary W. Batchelor, Paul Bekcey, James Bruce, Carol Gilmore, Roberto Gulilen, Fred Harris, Robert Kim, Klaus Kutz, Gary Lee, Garth Ogle, Mike Reams, Chris Rozales, Richard Spitalieri, Kevin Tobin, Mark Weinand, Samuel Woo.
Guardsman Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Hourse

Rams Lose To Jags--Chabot Wins Title

By Mike Duggan

The City College Rams ended their season on a sad note as a determined San Jose Jaguar team upset them, 9-6, at Ram Stadium Friday. The Ram loss, combined with Chabot's win over San Mateo gives Chabot the Golden Gate Conference football title.

Chabot scored 20 points in the final quarter to nip San Mateo, 27-25 and will therefore represent the league in the State Playoffs against American River beginning Saturday.

The Rams went into the game needing a win to clinch its third straight conference crown, but finished in third place.

City College had a total offense of 427 yards as compared to the Jaguar total of 198, but 130 yards on penalties and six fumbles cost the Rams the game.

Trailing 9-0 with 5:23 remaining in the game, the Rams got their only score on a 44-yard strike from Tom Mayfield to Ralph Bayard.

With 3:56 left the Rams got possession of the ball for the final time, but a desperation pass from Mayfield was picked off by the Jaguar's Randy Ingraham.

The only first half score came on a 32-yard field goal by Sam Caruthers, a pole vault and hurdle star for San Jose during the track season. The kick was set up on a run by guard Jim Cuevas. Cuevas dropped the snap from center as he prepared to punt and was forced to run; and run he did as he weaved his way downfield for a 41-yard gain.

Mayfield hit Wayne McConico with a 49-yard pass to set up City College's only first half scoring threat, but San Jose's Blaine Owens intercepted his first of three passes as Mayfield tried to hit Jon Dyson in the end zone.

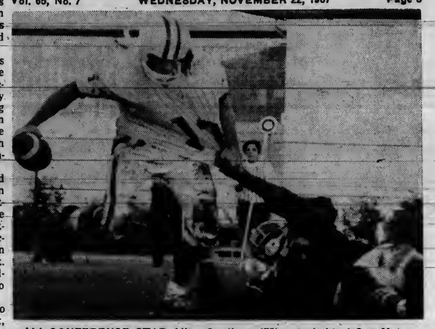
San Jose quarterback Dave Ellis completed eight of 16 passes in the first half, but the Ram defensive secondary and pass rush held him to only one completion and six yards during the second half. George Rush, Clifton Smith, Craig Martin and Ken Byrne made up the Ram secondary with both Byrne and linebacker Ray Moore intercepting passes.

San Jose got the ball in good field position all day as a result of Ram fumbles and weird plays. On one punting situation the snap from Steve Salisbury went over the head of punter Bill McDonagh and before McDonagh could retrieve the ball San Jose was only 20 yards from paydirt. Yet time and time again Allan Cowlings led the Ram defensive line to push the Jaguars back.

Jaguar halfback Ed Fairley, who rushed for over 200 yards last week, was dropped eight times for losses and only totaled 38 yards on 22 carries. Excluding the 41-yard run by Cuevas, the Rams held the Jaguar team to but 67 yards on 39 carries.

Early in the fourth period Mike Carter took a Cuevas punt and tried to reverse it to Craig Martin, but the ball was fumbled on the exchange and Martin recovered on the four-yard line, setting up San Jose's touchdown.

The Rams couldn't move out of danger and were forced to punt from the end zone. McDonagh booted it to midfield where Bob Seeger called for a fair catch. However, the Rams were called for holding and McDonagh was forced to kick again, and this time Seeger took the ball and raced 47 yards for the touchdown.



Mayfield finished with 152 yards passing with McConico catching two for 80 yards.

The Rams' league-leading rushing attack, even without the services of tackle John Monroe to lead the blocking, picked up 275 yards with reserve Doyle Miller getting 92 of those yards on 11 carries.

Miller played most of the game for the injured Dyson, who was used only briefly due to a hip pointer. Joe Bell played fullback for Willie Lewis and picked up 74 yards on 16 carries, but fumbled twice; the first fumble set up a score by Bell. Lewis, still bothered with a pulled muscle, carried only twice and gained 10 yards. McConico set up the Ram score with a 28-yard run and finished the game with 69 yards on 15 carries.

Final Conference Standings

	W	L	T
Chabot	5	1	1
Diablo Valley	5	1	1
SAN FRANCISCO	5	2	0
San Jose	4	3	0
San Mateo	3	3	1
Merritt	2	5	0
Foothill	1	5	1
Contra Costa	1	6	0

ALL-CONFERENCE STAR Allan Cowlings (75) gets hold of San Mateo quarterback Bruce Wood and dumps him for a 10-yard loss in Ram 33-7 win. Cowlings, a 6-5, 245-pound defensive end, later recorded his third safety of the season as he caught Wood in the end zone.
—Guardsman photo by Samuel Woo

Kickers Tie For Loop Lead As Cannon Paces 2-1 Win

By John LeTourneau

Otey Cannon scored a pair of goals that led the City College soccer team to a 2-1 victory over Merritt to throw the Western Junior College Soccer Conference into a two-way tie. The biggest crowd of the year was on hand November 14, at Balboa stadium.

Cannon's deciding goal came in the last three minutes of the pressure-packed game. A tie would give the T-Birds the title, so the Rams had to fight hard for the win.

LATE IN THE final period Merritt scored to tie the game at 1-1 and things looked bad for the Rams, who seemed desperate for the deciding goal. However, center forward Al Chu drove down the middle and sliced a shot that brought the goalie out of position. Cannon, a 9.8 sprinter, saw the opening and rooted it in the net.

Coach Roy Diederichsen was extremely happy with the club. "They are an excellent team and we played our finest all-around game of the year against them," Diederichsen commented. The Ram mentor had special praise for the defensive unit who held the T-Birds to only one goal, their lowest output of the season.

Roger Sarria and Arnie Harrott played well considering they have been hampered with injuries. "Sarria had his leg taped heavily to prevent any serious injury to the leg," Diederichsen said. "However, he controlled the center half of the field on defense and teamed well with Braulio Trigueros and Marshall Granger to have a potent fullback team," Diederichsen added.

Harrott played well at goalie despite nursing injured ribs. He has been out for three weeks.

Cannon got the Rams on the scoreboard midway through the first quarter with an unassisted shot from 20 yards out. The front five of Jerry Tigue, Henry Mejia, Mickey Duzdevics, Chu and Cannon controlled the ball in Merritt territory throughout the first three quarters. Halfbacks Sal Corona and Pete Bogatsky did a fine job of stopping T-Bird drives and passing to the front men.

CANNON'S GOAL held up until the fourth period when Merritt started knocking on the door. However, fine play by Trigueros, Sarria, Granger and Harrott stopped numerous Merritt drives. Merritt got its score early in the last period on a high-center shot that just made it over Harrott's head.

The only injury in the contest was suffered by Chu who was shaken up and had to leave the game near the end. Diederichsen predicted that he will have everybody healthy for the special playoff game with the T-Birds next week, if necessary.

FRESHMAN OTEY CANNON (right), the hero in the Rams' big win over Merritt, boots a goal in 12-5 victory over Solano earlier this season. Cannon's last-minute score against Merritt prevented City College from losing its first Western Junior College Soccer Conference title ever.
—Guardsman photo by Chris Rozales

Spikers Gain Third Spot In Conference Cross Country Duel

The Rams romped to a third-place finish behind San Mateo and Chabot in the conference cross country meet held November 10 at Diablo Valley.

San Mateo swept the meet, as expected, paced by Mike Daily, who won the four-mile race in 22:36, and followed by Willie Stephens in second place with a time of 22:57.

Chabot, led by Bill Seaver, took second place one point ahead of the Rams. San Jose City College nabbed fourth spot followed by Diablo Valley, who could do no better than fifth place on their own course.

The Rams needed and got excellent performances from their first five men, led by Fred Forsberg and Bob Aanestad, who finished seventh and eighth, respectively.

Forsberg's time for the four miles was 23:35 and Aanestad's 23:41; the latter's best race of the year. Rounding out the Rams' scoring were George Haza, Vic Cary and Ted Schwartz, who all finished in high positions.

The top four teams of the Northern California race, in which the Rams are competing, will go to the State Championship race, held at Fresno on November 25. San Mateo and American River loom as favorites.

The Rams, who have improved steadily all year, will need an extraordinary performance to finish among the top four in the Northern California race.

Mayfield-To-Carter Passing Manhandles Bulldogs, 33-7

By Mike Duggan

Led by the record-setting trio of Tom Mayfield, Mike Carter and Mark Hensley, City College trounced arch-rival San Mateo, 33-7, on the Rams' field November 10.

Mayfield, playing his best game of the season, hit seven of 10 pass attempts for 242 yards. Carter caught five of those passes and gained a conference record 236 yards receiving. The former league mark was 144 by Brad Ransonette of Diablo Valley in 1965 and the old City College mark of 135 yards on pass receptions was set by LeRoy Thomas against Oakland in 1956.

After the Bulldogs held the Ram ground attack for the better part of the first period, Mayfield went to the air and put the Rams ahead, 6-0, with a perfect 49-yard strike to Carter. Mayfield added his point of four conversion kicks and the Rams held a brief 7-0 lead.

Following Ralph Hodge's kickoff, Bulldog quarterback Fred Garrett also decided to go to the air. Hodge deflected his pass attempt and teammate Kevin Devine intercepted and raced 20 yards to put the Rams in front, 14-0.

SAN MATEO closed the gap just before the first quarter ended as conference scoring leader Al Namanny ran three yards for a score to make it 14-7.

The Rams' ground attack, led by Joe Bell, Wayne McConico and Jon Dyson, got going in the second quarter and drove to their third touchdown with Bell plunging the final yard, bringing the score to 21-7.

City College had another drive stopped six yards shy of a second-period score, but this put San Mateo in bad field position. Trying to pass from his own end zone, Bulldog quarterback Bruce Wood was dumped by Allan Cowlings for a safety, making it 23-7 at the half. It was the third safety recorded by Cowlings on the season.

Without star offensive tackle John Monroe, who injured his knee in the first half and with McConico still favoring his bad ankle and with Dyson out with a hip pointer, the Ram ground attack faltered considerably in the second half, so Mayfield and Carter took over.

A 45-yard Mayfield-to-Carter pass set up a third period field goal attempt from 44 yards out by Ram soccer-style kicker Mark Hensley. The boot was perfect, setting a new league and school record.

The game's final score came following a fourth quarter punt by Bulldog Dennis Ward, which was downed on the Ram one-yard line. On first down McConico tried to run the ball out of danger, but was stopped for no gain.

ON SECOND DOWN, Mayfield went back into the end zone to pass, was about to be tackled when he unleashed a perfect pass into the hands of the streaking Carter at about the 40-yard line, and Carter won the sprint to paydirt to complete the 99-yard play.

Needless to say, it was the longest pass play in Golden Gate Conference history and also City College history. The league standard of 93 yards from Ron Enos to Joe Tarango of Diablo Valley was set in 1964. The former school mark was also held by Carter, as he teamed up with Pete Mullins last year for an 86-yard scoring play against Foothill.

The Ram ground machine, best in the conference, totaled 243 yards with Bell, subbing for the injured Willie Lewis, getting 113 yards on 16 carries to lead all ball carriers. Dyson had 56 yards on only eight carries, all in the first half.

Again opening the holes for the Ram backs were Mike Deschler, Ed Diaz, Kevin Shea, Mike Strelch and Jerry Vangar. Vangar took over for Monroe in the second half.

THE DUEL BETWEEN the top two rushers in the league was won by McConico as he carried 16 times for 71 yards while Namanny got 60 yards on 18 tries. Namanny picked up most of his yardage on one 34-yard run as on 13 of his 18 carries the Ram defense held him to gains of three or less yards.

The Ram defensive line dropped San Mateo backs 13 times for losses with Cowlings personally doing the job five of those times.

George Ohlson, Hodge, Devine and James McEldry did the rest of the damage along with linebackers Bill McKenna, Orice Pittman and Ray Moore in dropping the Bulldogs for 74 yards in losses. McKenna took over Bell's linebacking and his play was outstanding.

Unbeaten Spoilers Maul Skiers

The Spoilers ruined the Ram Ski Club's debut in the Independent division with a 94-26 romp to highlight last week's action in the Associated Men Student-sponsored intramural basketball league.

In the other Independent league game the Red Mountaineers bounced back from last week's loss to trounce the Rabbits, 70-37. Tom Kilkenny led a balanced attack with 15 markers.

The Guardsman also came back with a big win over the Newman Club, 68-41. John Franecivich paced the win with 14 points, followed by Bill Bodero and Jay Yerman with 10 each while Tom Graham added eight. Veterans Marty Arbunich and John LeTourneau scored six each.

Speedy Charles Bouey scored four while big Bill Kays added two. A revitalized Larry Murtha and newcomers Robert Rizzo and rugged Ed Holmes were the spark that the journalists needed.

Don Kung's 19 points paced the Revisables to an easy 53-33 win over Hotel & Restaurant to remain unbeaten in Club league play.

Tonight's games pit ABA Outcasts vs Spoilers, and Rabbits vs. Rami Ski Club.—J. L.

Cagers Open Season At Tourney

City College of San Francisco's basketball team has been practicing extremely hard for the opening of the 1967-68 basketball season. The season starts with the Bakersfield Tournament the first two days in December.

According to Coach Sid Phelan, this year's team is considerably weaker than last year's 30-3 team. The Rams have had quite a few problems during practice, and they are working hard trying to solve them.

As for the players themselves, Phelan said he does not know how many men he will carry on the roster. He said it might be approximately 18.

The reason for the uncertainty is that quite a few of the men will be shifting back and forth from the Junior Varsity to the Varsity.

After the Bakersfield Tournament, the Rams will play the Stanford Braves at Stanford on Monday, December 4.

The Guardsman / Free Critic

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 65 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1967 NUMBER 8

The Same Library?

TWO FACES OF THE CITY COLLEGE library are presented above. The photographs (taken at approximately the same time of day) illustrate the disparity between the closed stacks and the open reading rooms.

The stacks in the college library were closed more than three years ago because of a large "loss of books," according to Librarian Robert Begg.

CLOSING OF the stacks, which contain approximately 50,000 books, means that students are not allowed to browse. They are able to take books out only after finding them in the card catalogue, listing the call number, and having a librarian locate the book for them.

The card catalogue is available as a way to locate books in any library, but as some of the staff have stated, "Philosophically, as librarians, we are not in favor of closed stacks, but sometimes practicality dictates what is best."

The closure adds to the over-crowdedness in every room of the library while the stacks themselves remain empty. At many hours during the day it is difficult for students even to find a seat.

STUDENTS ARE unable to browse through the stacks in search of books on a certain subject when they do not have a title or author. This is the main objection to closed stacks by students.

Begg is "doubtful" as to the reopening of the stacks as this would require complete reorganization of the library including an addition of help, which present finances will not allow.

EVEN IF THE BOOKS were to be reopened now, students would face difficulty locating a book they first looked up in the card catalogue as librarians are now in the process of changing all books from the Dewey decimal system to the numbers used by the Library of Congress.

This reorganization will take some years and until completion, there will be two ways to locate books.

Other large colleges have open stacks, even though they require much student supervision to see that books don't disappear as they did at City College.

—Guardsman photos by Samuel Woo

Mitterand Notes French Problems And Objectives

By Marc Clarkson

In order to understand France better "we must know its external problems to see its objectives," according to Francois Mitterand, president of France's Federation of the Left, who spoke to a capacity audience in the college theater last week.

Mitterand, the leading presidential opponent of De Gaulle, addressed his audience in French and spoke through an interpreter.

HE TOLD IN HIS discussion of some of the significant events in the past that have caused France to suffer many "sicknesses" today. Mentioned were the two world wars, the regimes of the Fourth Republic and Fifth Republic, and De Gaulle's hold of the Presidency since 1958.

GENERAL DE GAULLE is gradually losing his popularity with the French people, according to Mitterand. In the French political sphere Mitterand stated that there are three important parties now, the Gaullist Nationals, the Democrat Socialists (which he heads) and the Communists. "The principle objective of these parties is the construction of Western Europe and especially of the Common Market," he said.

Mitterand estimated that by 1968 the Common Market will have eliminated boundaries between France, Luxembourg, Belgium, Holland, West Germany and Italy. It will instead have an "external boundary formed by those six countries and everything that will come in from the exterior will be charged tax duty for the good of the Common Market."

ABOUT GREAT BRITAIN'S chances for entrance into the Common Market, Mitterand deemed it unlikely that President De Gaulle will allow her to join. In any case, Mitterand maintained, "It will not be admitted for a long time." Advocating that Britain be admitted, Mitterand stated that De Gaulle's refusal to admit Britain is not based on a decision of economic significance but on one of political significance."

Another topic during the lecture period concerned the American involvement in Vietnam. Mitterand stated that "the idea of the United States establishing democracy in South Vietnam is not a sufficient reason" for being there.

Aranson Lectures On Dylan Thomas Plays On Tuesday

Jack Aranson, well known producer and director of the San Francisco City Theater, will give a lecture entitled The Theater Of Dylan Thomas during College Hour next Tuesday.

Aranson, is keenly interested in the late writer's works and has restored many of Thomas' works of art. He has combined Thomas' talents into the performance of The World Of Dylan Thomas.

ARANSON IS also noted for his acting abilities and has appeared in his own productions of The Glass Menagerie, Miss Julie, and All My Sons.

In 1955 he played with Orson Welles in King Lear, and has appeared in many plays off-Broadway including Thomas Mendip in The Lady's Not For Burning and the title roles in Dr. Faustus and Oedipus Rex.

He has also directed Macbeth and As You Like It and was the director of Shakespeare at American Academy of Dramatic Arts from 1959 to 1965.

AFTER HAVING formed his own company, Aranson has appeared in a variety of roles from classical and contemporary repertoire, including Macbeth, Hamlet, Shylock, Christopher Mahon to Captain Ahab.

Aranson has a reputable standing in the Bay Area because his performance ran for eight months at the San Francisco City Theater, establishing a local record for a dramatic play. —L. S.

Ballot Slate All U.S.A.—Change, V.O.T.E.S. Out

Election of next semester's officers of the Associated Students will take place one week from today, when all registered students may vote either on Wednesday, December 13, or Thursday, December 14, stated James Wyatt, dean of student activities, last week.

Ray Bietz, Presidential candidate of the United Students for Action party, heads a party slate which also includes Pat Fiuren running for Vice President, Bill Matsu for Associated Men Student President, Shirley Brown for Associated Women Student President, Bill McQuaid for Sophomore Class President and Rich Shirley for Freshman Class President.

REPRESENTING USA for Soph Council seats are five candidates, Joe Stuart, Bill McQuaid, Jim Dierke, Hattie Knox, Cheryl Wong and Tim McGeachy. Rounding out the USA slate are those candidates running for the Frosh Council; Mark Bender, John Waterfield, John Range, Derrick Quan, Rosa Perez, Tom Doudiet and Rich Shirley.

The deadline for candidates' petitions was last Thursday. The Change party at that time was not running any candidates for election this semester. This has led to much speculation about whether the Change party is completely dissolved, or simply inactive at the present time.

AT THIS TIME, only two independents are running for council: Lorraine Fong for the soph council and Al R. Wong for the frosh. USA candidates will, however, dominate the election as the number of candidates matches that of the vacancies.

In marked contrast to this semester's elections, last semester three parties were competing for votes, the USA, Change, and V.O.T.E.S parties, and there was also one Independent on the ballot.

Wyatt noted that City College will not have access to the city's voting machines, due to the retabulation of votes cast in the last munipical election. Because the machines are not available, paper ballots will be employed.—M. W.

Parking Shifts To South Reservoir, But Not For Two Years—Buttimer

By Ron Lent

Student parking will be shifted from the north reservoir, next to Riordan High School, to the south reservoir when the present student lot is filled with water and capped by the city in approximately two years, Director of Educational Management Harry Buttimer revealed today.

"Until actual construction work begins on the city-reclaimed north reservoir, the north lot will remain open to student parking," Buttimer asserted.

Buttimer stressed the fact that the south reservoir must remain closed to student parking at this time because opening the area "would tend only to complicate the existing traffic problems along Phelan Avenue."

HOWEVER, BEFORE student parking is shifted to the south lot, the reservoir is to be capped and must be reinforced to accommodate the enforcement project, which will cost approximately $600,000, must be raised by the college through a local bond issue or obtained from the city budget, Buttimer explained.

Meanwhile, minor parking changes are planned for the Arts Hall expansion work that begins within the next few months.

Portions of the Arts Hall parking area facing Phelan Avenue will close when construction begins on eight temporary buildings next February.

"THE SITUATION IS not critical, because the 20 to 30 (parking) stalls lost will be absorbed in the remaining portion of the main faculty parking lot," Buttimer explained.

The Director of Educational Management noted that the faculty-parking stalls surrounding the Associated Students' bungalow area will, construction permitting, remain open while work is underway with the Arts Hall extension building.

However, contracts must be drawn up and accepted by both the college and the contractors before said construction can begin.

IN ORDER TO adjust to the ever-increasing number of cars at City College, the administration is considering the possibilities of expanding the lot adjacent to the freeway.

But this expansion move may not be necessary if future students are able to make use of the proposed Rapid Transit loading point near the freeway entrance to the college, Buttimer commented.

The Director of Educational Management added that the proposed plans, should adequately alleviate future parking problems "providing enrollment increases in a manner consistent with our recent experiences."

Seats Filled In Special Student Council Election

By Tom Graham

Student Council was realigned last month as a result of special elections held to fill four vacant council seats.

Jim Dierke was elected to Soph Council, Rosa Perez and Tom Doudiet to Frosh Council, and there was a tie between Shelley Baken and Rick Parisi for the final Frosh Council seat. The chair had the deciding vote; Diane Lattimer, the Associated Student President, voted for Parisi.

ALL FOUR NEW council members are Independents. This makes Student Council evenly balanced politically: there are five Change members, five from USA, and five Independents.

Burnetta Lemaire is the new Frosh Class President, replacing Larry Rodriguez, who was disqualified from office due to grades.

Larry Lazore, past editor of the Free Critic, has taken a leave of absence from this college; Tom Rice has replaced him as editor of the Free Critic.

MAY KALAVERAS moved to take the resolution concerning the Experimental College from the table. It was passed by acclamation. This resolution simply agreed with Council of Organizations by approving the existence of the Experimental College on campus, which was originally introduced by James Morrison.

BILL McQUAID, frosh councilman, introduced a constitutional amendment, which was passed in council, concerning the replacement of council members who are required to vacate their office due to grades or lack of units.

It states that, "Vacancies on Student Council shall be filled by that councilman who cannot complete his term of office. He shall appoint an individual who meets the requirements for eligibility in a general election."

Two-Year Colleges Will Have Separate State Board In 1968

By Dennis Mundt

California two-year colleges will soon have their own state board of governors which will give them the same representation in Sacramento as the University of California and State colleges, according to Senate Bill 669, introduced to the Senate and signed into law by former Governor Pat Brown last fall.

On July 15, 1968, the Board of Governors of California Community Colleges succeeds to all state-level functions and control over two-year colleges now handled by the Board of Education, Director of Education and Department of Education.

THE BOARD WILL be made up of 15 Governor Reagan appointees, seven of whom must have served on two-year college local boards, and eight political appointees with no stipulated qualifications. The first members are to be appointed by next January.

Their terms of office will be staggered in four years. The reason terms of office should be staggered and should be of relatively long duration is to ensure continuity of policy and programs and to avoid political interplay, Jack Aldridge, acting assistant dean of instruction here, said.

DESPITE A FEW reservations and some anxiety over the politics inherent in the new system, City College sources interviewed on the matter seem largely optimistic. All, however, said they would wait to see what happens during the board's six-month organization period.

Lloyd Luckmann, acting president of the college, believes the board system may prove to be a new direction in two-year college coordination. He suggested that it could act as a forum in which various faculty, student and administration interests and purposes could be mediated for more effective representation in the legislature.

As it is now, he added, the legislature is beset with many academic lobbies, and legislators wonder just who does speak for these interests.

PASSED WITH the bill was an appropriation of $10,000 for its operation, a sum Aldridge said, "that would nicely take care of one good secretary and her coffee."

Luckmann added that the key to the board's effectiveness will be its budget.

Although the law states that the board shall at all times maintain, to the maximum degree permissible, local autonomy and control of two-year colleges, Luckmann said there is always danger of over standardization by centralized agencies.

The Free Critic

Tom Rice, Editor — The Critic Adviser: Mr. Berman

Vol. 1, No. 8 — WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1967 — Page 1

The New Head At The Helm

On November 22, 1967, the Student Council officially appointed a replacement for Lawrence Lazore, the originator and editor of The Free Critic, who—for reasons to be disclosed in an interview by the new editor—took a leave of absence. The new editor is me, Tom Rise.

As editor I do not think my overall goals will differ from those of Lawrence Lazore. In a recent conversation with Lawrence I found that he and I were pretty much of the same mind. We both feel that City College is not all that it should be. In many ways the college is self-defeating, and in many ways it just isn't a college, it's a high school. If it were left up to me, I would not accredit the college until it made vast changes in curriculum, the library, and in some cases the teaching methods—especially those methods which have been used since 1938 and are noticeably outdated.

But then, I'm not on the accreditation team, and nothing I can do will change what needs to be changed. What I can attempt to do is to point out some of the deficiencies in an editorial column and hope someone who really cares about the college—beyond the point that everything runs like a well oiled machine with little resistance—will take it from there.

When trying to decide just how to best point out the deficiencies, I found that most of them evolved around certain issues which are not totally unique to our campus, but are seldom publicized in our erstwhile newspaper. It was then that I decided, as Larry must have once decided, to dedicate the entire Free Critic to these issues, with occasional direct criticism of a well oiled wheel that needs repair or replacement. There are several ways in which I shall endeavor to draw out these issues, and the events which occur in relation to them.

The first, of course, is my own editorial column. This is the last column dedicated to the explanation of goals and requests for submissions. From now on I shall pick an issue for each column and present my views in the hopes of getting some responses from my readers. If anyone remembers a letter which appeared in an earlier issue of The Free Critic, you know that I interpret silence as assent. If you do not respond, I will be inclined to believe that oven ten thousand students at City College feel the same way I believe, and that might be dangerous. A college filled with people like me might overthrow the current system, make the changes I deem necessary, eliminate the need for The Free Critic, and make me more egotistical than I already am, which even I wouldn't be able to stand.

The second manner of drawing out will be the new Question Box which will appear in each issue of the paper. In The Question Box will appear questions on issues pertinent to the students of City College. I shall attempt to give some sort of lead into each question similar to the one that appears in this issue. I will try to publish as many responses as I possibly can, provided there are any.

The third manner is in two direct requests which I shall make now, and not repeat. The first is to the faculty, and the second is to the students at large.

Not too long ago an article appeared in The Free Critic entitled "Our Faculty and It's Warm Womb of Apathy" written by two of my colleagues and myself. In it we asked the faculty to give us the dialog for which we were starving. Now I offer to the faculty the use of The Free Critic in an effort to further develop the dialog at City College. Many of you have much to say on the issues which surround us in our lives every day and can see these issues in relation to their role in education now and in the future. I humbly request that you exercise your right as citizens, and your responsibility as instructors, and voice your views in The Free Critic. Nothing would please me more than to give up my own column so that the space may be used to voice faculty opinions, or those of the students.

I know from experience that not all the students at City College agree with me. The Free Critic is for use by all students, whether or not they do agree with me. If any of my readers think that I will not print anything other than my own, they are wrong. I only hope that someone will write something opposed to my viewpoint to prove what I say. So far this year (and I've seen everything submitted to Larry Lazore) no one has presented the polar viewpoint to the editor's. I doubt that it could be entirely due to the fact that only 3,000 copies of the paper are printed for a student body of over 10,000 people. Or is it that activists are really more active?

In my role as editor I will exercise ever material I do not feel is suitable for The Free Critic. My criteria are really quite simple: the article must deal with some issue which is of topical interest to the students of City College; it must be well written (I will not do rewrites, though I might request that a writer do one); and finally, it must not be libelous. By libelous I mean that it must be more than just a personal attack upon another person, and anything that is brought out must be valid. This will prevent any possibilities of censorship, and prevent the writer from making an ass of himself and other people.

I do not feel that my criteria are too high, nor do I think that I will be hypercritical of anyone for any reason. I only hope that someone out there really cares about what is going on around them and can see how it affects them as members of the City College community. And City College is a community, within the community of San Francisco. We have like all communities problems which are unique, but we also have problems which are very common to all communities these days. You can reflect your care by voicing your views in the one way that a City College student or faculty member can, through YOUR Free Critic. Don't kid yourself and say that your views can't do anything. They can, as people's views have continued to do things in the United States ever since it was established. The effectiveness of your views is mainly dependent upon the method of presentation, and the receptivity of your antagonist.

For the most part I would say that City College is not receptive to change, not as long as the voices for change are so few. I do not believe that this is because there are so few people who see the need for change, because my three semesters at City College have shown me differently. Most people see the need for change, but are unwilling to voice their opinions because they think them ineffective. Believe me there are times when one man's opinion means a lot especially in Viet Nam where one officer's bad opinion can cost the lives of hundreds of men. Think about it, then do something.

The Question Box

At most colleges throughout the Bay Area there are extensive medical services offices. In these offices birth control information is readily available, and in some instances birth control pills are obtainable for students through these offices. The medical service office at City College is very small, inadequate even for the menial services it offers to the over 10,000 students at City College. Should City College have a better medical service office where birth control information is made available to those who desire it?

A Student Union For City College?

Recent activity on the City College campus has served to accentuate the need for a Student Union here. The request for, and acquisition of, a bungalow for the Black Students' Association, and the demand for a bungalow by the Chinese Students' Club are but minor indications of the overall need for facilities; not for one or two minorities, but for all the students of City College.

A Student Union would provide the facilities for the BSA, the Chinese Students' Club, and many other organizations, in addition to providing recreational facilities for the student body as a whole. Such universal facilities would aid significantly in relieving the congestion in the cafeteria at peak hours, and would very probably result in a quieter, more studious library atmosphere by providing a lounge where students could go between classes to either study in groups (which causes most of the noise in the library) or sit and drink coffee and B.S. (which causes most of the congestion in the cafeteria at peak hours.)

A good Student Union could also provide an assembly hall where the Student Council could hold open sessions with enough room to accommodate greater numbers of the student body they represent. The current accommodations discourage interested observers because of the cramped conditions and the coldness during the winter months. The same assembly hall could be used for college speakers, student-faculty forums and other student directed assemblies, freeing the Little Theatre for use by the department to which it belongs.

Other advantages to a Student Union would be a bona-fide dance hall, not an improvised one as is now used, accessible offices for The Guardsman and Free Critic, and all other student-oriented functions such as the medical service office, the job placement office, and book store could be incorporated into one central location.

An oblique, and seldom realized advantage to a Student Union is that it would provide a place where the students and faculty could gather informally, and create a dialog which would lead to a better understanding on both parts of the others' problems. This is already occurring in several junior colleges in California, and has created an atmosphere that is far more academic than it is here at City College.

With all of the above advantages it is hard to believe that City College does not already have a Student Union, or, being without one, is not making any evident moves to get one. Anyway, accepting the fact that City College does not have a Student Union, and that one is needed, how could City College get a Student Union? Build a new one?

Building a new Student Union would first require money. Money could come from two sources: (1) a bond issue; or (2) a loan. The bond issue would probably not pass, and a loan is just about impossible because all that City College has to pledge in the way of security is income from the book sales and student body cards—neither of which is sufficient to guarantee a loan large enough to finance a Student Union. And even if a bond issue were passed it would take at least five years before construction could begin (2 years to get on the ballot, and three years to plan and hire contractors). How, then, could a Student Union be obtained sooner?

A building is being constructed on the City College campus right now, an Administrative Services Building. We realize that there is a need for such a building, the administrators and faculty are cramped into a small space. But aren't the students of City College also cramped into a small space, as indicated by the events of the last three weeks, and the abominable conditions in the library and the cafeteria? Haven't the administrators and faculty operated for some time in their current conditions, with no visible wear to the machinery of education? Can't they continue to operate under the current conditions until such time when another building can be built to house their offices?

We feel that they can; that the needs of the students of City College far outweigh the needs of the administration. Reliable sources have relayed that there is no LEGAL reason why the building under construction must be an Administrative Services Building. There is no logical reason why this building could not be utilized to improve conditions for the students, and in the long run, for the administration and faculty as well. Just as the student should receive priority in the educational system, so should the City College student receive priority in this matter.

The Free Critic's new office hours are 11:00-1-30 Monday and Wednesday and 9:00-12:00 Tuesday and Thursday in Smith Hall Room 102. All submissions are welcome. Any questions or comments will be welcome. Come in and see us sometime. YOUR PARTICIPATION IN LIFE IS THE ANSWER.

TOM RICE, Editor

A Statement Of Concern For Quality Education At CCSF

We, the staff of the CCSF Tutorial Program, are primarily concerned with the quality of education in all educational institutions. Therefore, we feel it to be our obligation to voice concern for the proposed teaching of an African Civilizations course (History 48) at CCSF.

It has been stated that only six students had registered for this particular course. However, it must be pointed out that (1) most students were not aware that the African Civilizations course was being offered and (2) most counsellors, when programming students, advised those students who did inquire about this course that they should not register for the course as it was uncertain as to whether it would be taught. They were further advised that they would be allowed to add the course to their schedule at the beginning of this semester if it were scheduled. Therefore, many students who would have registered for this course did not either through lack of information or incorrect advice from their counsellors. Also, because of the obvious errors and the chaos created by the IBM registration process we question whether an accurate figure can be obtained as to how many students registered for a particular course; and those students who did try to add this course to their program during the week of re-registration were told that the course was not scheduled.

It has also been stated that "the course in Afro-American history is not offered for the lack of an instructor." We have recently been informed, however, that a qualified and experienced instructor has expressed interest in applying for this position and is in the process of doing so. We are hopeful that his qualifications will meet the necessary requirements for this position and that his employment will be considered. If for some unavoidable reason this particular instructor is not hired, we urge those with authority to endeavor to find a qualified instructor for this position.

The importance of offering a broad and thorough education in African and Afro-American history and culture, we feel, can not be overly stressed. As black and white students we realize the necessity to have knowledge and understanding of our own history and culture and the history and culture of others. As tutors we realize that in order to communicate and develop a meaningful relationship with those children we hope to help, we must have knowledge and understanding of their historically evolved culture. Because the general atmosphere and educational techniques used within the public schools are directed toward a white middle-class consciousness, most black children develop a feeling of alienation and, therefore, have a great deal of difficulty relating to and grasping their studies. If we as tutors are successful in our goals and can bring up the scholastic level of our tutees, we question if our efforts will not be all in vain. For, unless CCSF offers courses in African and Afro-American history the student that experienced a feeling of alienation in his primary education will only continue to experience this same alienation at CCSF.

Signed by the members of the CCSF Tutorial Program

Student Apathy In Associated Students' Elections

With the Associated Students' elections (for student government offices) coming up next month, I have been wondering if the student body is going to be as apathetic during those elections as they were in the AS elections held last semester.

As an indication of the apathy among City College students during the last elections, it can be noted that less than 20 per cent of the student body bothered to vote. And, less than 1 per cent of the students showed enough interest in the elections to either run for one of the 20 offices or to actively support those running.

But even the figure of 20 per cent does not adequately demonstrate the student apathy during those elections. Rich Christensen, who served as AS (student body) president until his disqualification/resignation about a month ago, was elected by less than 800 students; some members of the present Student Council were elected with less than 400 votes; there were almost 10,000 students eligible to vote in the last election but only about 1800 did so. So, when you get down to it, 8200 City College students were apathetic enough to allow less than .8 per cent of the student body to elect their president and to allow less than .4 per cent to elect some of their councilmen.

Will this apathy repeat itself in the next AS elections? I only hope it will not because many issues are being discussed and decided on by the elected members of student government that concern not only 20 per cent of the students but all 10,000 students at CCSF. Every one of those 10,000 students has a voice in student government decisions but they will only be heard if they participate in AS elections. The voices of the apathetic are never heard.

Ray F. Bietz
Freshman Councilman

Is There A Reason?

By Norman Thomas

Whispering willows cry for me,
While someone says men die for me
In a war whose cause I'm not sure
The whole damn world's so insecure.

Children die in a war unclean,
While professional soldiers their feathers preen,
And political fathers boistrously boast
That they're keeping the fighting from our coast.

Research has really told me naught
Of why this war is really fought.
Some say we must stop all oppression,
And that an end would cause depression.

But is it just economy
That causes war, depressing me?
Or is there somewhere a good reason
For the fighting? Are my thoughts treason?

Is there ever a just cause
For killing people, or for a pause
In building peace in our own nation
And improving upon the sad, sad situation?

Hopes

By Mark Lubek

What fabulous hopes and dreams
I have for the future.
They flounder in puddles of blood
on the streets of Oakland.
My life speaks to me of great promise.
It joins the screams and moans of the nation's gifted youth.
My young muscles flex as they prepare to build a nation
That is already crumbling to dust.
What excitement as my mind is challenged by important new questions,
Already answered with totalitarian
finality by dead men.
The "American Dream" has become the embalming fluid
To stagnate the minds of the nation's young.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students
City College of San Francisco

ACP PRESS

Vol. 65, No. 8 — WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1967 — Page 2

Promises, Promises From Muni—We Need Some Action

JUST BEFORE the Thanksgiving holidays, word came down from the Municipal Railway's executive secretary that Muni discount cards would not be made available to City College students.

The reason given by Secretary James Finn is all well and good—"If we give you the cards, we'd have to give all college students in the area cards." We don't see what's wrong with that, but getting down to promises, Finn made another.

The secretary promised that investigations would be made to discover if any means could be used to relieve the condition during rush hours known as "cramped elbow from a stranger in the eyetis."

IF MEMORY SERVES US RIGHT, this is not the first time such a promise has been made. Last semester just about the same thing was said. But when in fact will anything be done? Soon we hope.

Municipal officials take warning, these riding conditions can't continue if only for the fact that they are unsafe.

Some cars are so full during rush hours that the driver can't use his side mirrors or see out the front door. It wouldn't be the first time a driver pulled away from a stop with someone's jacket flap or arm trapped in the door.

And the present situation is aggravated by nine schools whose stops lie within a mile of Phelan Circle.

IF WE STUDENTS CAN'T RIDE CHEAPER, at least do something where we can ride the bus with some semblance of being human and not the stark realism of being a packed car of cattle.

Experimental College Support

TWO WEEKS AGO, the proposed experimental college was given a green light by Student Council.

Through a misunderstanding, there was more of a hassle than there had to be, but the resolution recognizing the college was voted in by acclamation.

THE GUARDSMAN THROWS ITS SHARE of support behind what is, on this campus, a quite ambitious venture.

The idea of students instructing themselves in group discussion is a bit scary, we think, but it is also quite intriguing. There are some "bugs" and unfinished plans in the proposed system of the college; we hope the coordinators of the program have them worked out come February.

Spearheaded by James Morrison, a former councilman, and Donald Peterson, an English instructor, the experimental college should be the major student project of the coming spring semester and if given the support it deserves, it should also be a success.

Vantage Point

by Glynn Petrie

PRESIDENT Johnson's popularity continues to plummet with all major polls indicating that fewer and fewer people approve "of the way he is handling his job."

MOST OF JOHNSON'S unpopularity stems from dissatisfaction with the Vietnamese conflict, but he has determinedly said that his policy will not change even if his mandate of approval drops to one percent.

However, many of the doves on Vietnam policy consider this growing discontent with the war as some kind of demand for immediate peace that strengthens their position and adds support to what is termed the "rising tide of opposition to American intervention in foreign affairs."

This, however, is not necessarily the case. Aside from a substantial group advocating unlimited escalation if necessary, the majority of people are not opposed to the philosophy of U.S. policy but to the apparently ineffective manner in which it has been heretofore implemented.

Americans weren't so opposed to involvement in Vietnam when it began but only when it did not bring the desired results.

ACCORDING TO OUR respected opponent, Ho Chi Minh, this is exactly why America will be unsuccessful in preventing a Communist takeover of South Vietnam—Americans have not the patience to endure a long, drawn-out affair where military gains are particularly difficult to consolidate and there are no clear-cut and simple tactical solutions for bringing the conflict to a close.

For the negligible possibility that we can convince somebody that it is possible and even profitable to fight a "humane" war, we have tied our hands and "played fair" probably at the cost of a swifter albeit more crushing victory.

RIGHT AWAY the cry will arise that Americans are as mean and nasty to the Viet Cong as they are to Americans, but the fact is that United States forces have scrupulously avoided pursuing enemy forces into their home sanctuary.

We give tacit approval to the enemy's right to carry out aggressive actions from his side of the border, and except for the largely ineffective air strikes, allow him to continue unmolested.

No matter how "humane" and restrained Americans in Vietnam conduct themselves in what is inherently a destructive action, namely war, the "liberals" and those who think it is somehow smart and modern to be left-wing will brand them as barbarious murderers and suppressors of freedom while "the brave little men," the Viet Cong, are mislabelled as fighters for liberty or some such garbage.

THE PEOPLE OPPOSING U.S. intervention will oppose it as "immoral" no matter how it is carried out. Therefore, if a victory is not in sight, as it doesn't seem to be, the President has nothing to gain with restraining the military to the point of impotence while casualties on both sides mount endlessly.

There can be no such thing as a humane or fair war; war is brutal no matter how you cut it. There are only effective and ineffective prosecutions of wars. In trying to attain the impossible the administration has precluded victory and insured its disfavor with the public. You see, Americans want instant success and are unprepared for anything else.

Late Christmas Hiring In Sales Expected By Job Placement Service

By Doug Boston

Don't give up yet. Christmas vacation job opportunities still exist. You just have to know where to look for them.

The City College placement service, headed by Joseph Amori, might be able to help. With the heavy demand for jobs increasing during the holiday season, the placement service has been processing workers for business, industry and government in a wide variety of fields.

While all of the retail outlets expect an increase in sales volume over last year, employers, because of the heavy demand for jobs, have been very selective in their hiring practices, according to Amori. Extensive testing has dominated the labor market in nearly all job classifications. In addition to productive skills, employers have been extremely rigid on appearance and grooming.

IN THE AREA of available jobs, San Francisco and Seattle have been assigned full-time mail handling jobs to expedite the movement of Christmas mail to the fighting forces in Vietnam. City College has placed many students in these jobs. Amori reported that the hourly rate for these jobs is $2.68 plus a 10 per cent differential for time worked after 6 p.m.

The demand for post office jobs has been restricted for this Christmas vacation, and only those who have had previous mail handling experience during the holiday season of 1966 are being considered for employment.

THE CITY COLLEGE placement center will remain open throughout the Christmas season. According to Amori, from all indications there will be some late hiring in sales work for the reason that some employers have underhired and have adopted a "wait and see' attitude.

Amori emphasized the heavy demand for both men and women experienced in sales work. Students with sales experience are in great demand by department stores, with the Christmas volumes creating a rise in employment.

Amori urged student who desire consideration for Christmas employment to file their applications in the college placement center as soon as possible, because a number of jobs still remain.

W. A. Chapman, Glynn Petrie Top Honor List

Glynn Petrie, Guardsman staff editor and columnist, and Wilbur A. Chapman, a landscaping major—both having a cumulative grade-point average of 4.00 (straight A's)—head the Dean's Honor List of 69 students at this college.

These are all the students now enrolled who have completed (or are taking) 24 or more units at City College with a grade-point average of 3.50 or higher. The cumulative grade-point average includes first midterm grades this fall, counting as if they were final grades.

The other students on the Dean's Honor List, in order of grade-point averages, are as follows:

Lucia Edwards, 3.98; Mary Taylor, 3.94; Andrew Link, 3.91; Walter Stream, 3.88; Douglas Gillis, 3.88; Tamara Sattel, 3.86; Barbara Lebarbera, 3.85; Betsy Erkkila, 3.82; Joyce Carey, 3.82; Jessica Crumrine, 3.80; Cathleen Laurdsen, 3.78; Barbara Hildebrand, 3.77; Katherine Edmison, 3.77; Philip Arcuri, 3.76; Linda Ming Wong, 3.75; James Fong, 3.75; Elspeth Davis, 3.73; Betty Mae Bekgram, 3.73; Pat Smith, 3.71.

Norma Kite, 3.70; Roger Erickson, 3.70; Joseph Yanke, 3.69; Irene Lau, 3.69; Roger Fisher, 3.69; John Guerrero, 3.67; Sally Crier, 3.66; Homer Chan, 3.66; Richard Burkley, 3.66; Madeline Rosen, 3.64; Kenneth Chin, 3.64; Richard Tully, 3.63; Edward Jew, 3.63; Joan Art, 3.63; Gail Weber, 3.62; Jutta Diemath, 3.62; Candice Tom, 3.61; William Kreefick, 3.61; Sandra Walker, 3.60; Dale Thompson, 3.60; Linda Ann Bill, 3.60; Ken Yee, 3.58; James Harvey, 3.58.

Alvin Wong, 3.57; Charles Welch, 3.57; Rose Mae Lew, 3.56; William Chan, 3.56; James Bolig, 3.56; Mariann Toback, 3.55; Michael Quinn, 3.55; Edward Pander, 3.55; William McQuaid, 3.55; Karen Lee, 3.55; Matthew Zdeb, 3.54; Pansy Wong, 3.54; Pamela Towne, 3.54; Michael Penberthy, 3.54; Gregory Pantazes, 3.54; John Meek, 3.54; Fred Yung, 3.53; Lawrence Low, 3.53; Maryanne Cilma, 3.53; Barbara Miller, 3.52; Anna Lee, 3.52; Terrance Jew, 3.52; Clifford Hayashi, 3.51; Barry Knowlton, 3.50; Winifred Barthelemy, 3.50.

Band Gives Concert Sunday

The City College Concert Band will present a concert at Lowell High School at 5 p.m. Sunday to raise funds for music scholarships here, Joseph Allessi, band director, announced today.

General admission will be 50 cents for those with student cards from the college or any school in the Bay Area and $1 for all others.

Nurse Program A Prelude To Board Exam

Should the day come when you slip and slide down the hill toward an Art's Hall class and break a leg while bruising your ego, enjoy it, because a student Florence Nightengale may rush to your side and splint the limb.

If no one comes to your aid, hobble down to the nursing program's Department Chairman Danelle Griffin in A-201 and enroll in a course concerned with patient immobility entitled Fundamental Nursing.

However, an applying student is confronted with certain entrance requirements, namely prospective nurses must be eligible for English 1A and can apply for program admittance only for the Fall.

The department chairman stressed that "nursing students must meet the college's requirements in physical education, political science and mathematics and must also complete a specified number of working hours in an assigned San Francisco hospital."

Student nurses are assigned to such hospitals as Franklin, Mt. Zion, Laguna Honda and San Francisco General.

AFTER GAINING acceptance, the student nurse will undertake a curriculum designed to help her pass the State Board Examination to secure a practicing license. Department Chairman Griffin noted, "The State Board Exam tests the student's medical, surgical, obstetrics, pediatrics and psychiatric nursing skills."

The tuition-free program is open to both men and women. Of the 60 to 65 students selected annually from the list of approximately 260 applicants, three or four men are admitted into the program.

Miss Griffin said, "These men are generally former Army corpsmen or hospital orderlies who want to improve their skills."

One such City College student, Roy Campbell, of the first graduating nursing class of 1963, later earned his Bachelor and Master degrees. He is currently a nursing instructor at College of San Mateo.

Applications For California State Scholarships Due

The state scholarship deadline for all new applicants has been set for December 14 by the California State Scholarship and Loan Commission.

These new scholarships, which have been doubled to 5600, will be awarded sometime in Aprii, 1968 They are primarily for use at colleges during 1968 but may also be used in 1969.

The scholarships, ranging from $300 to $1500, are applicable at any four-year college in California but cannot be applied directly to expenses at a two-year college level.

The fact that the number of scholarships has increased makes the requirements for winning them somewhat lower. However, a student must still maintain a 2.5 grade-point average and demonstrate a definite financial need.

City College has also received two other new scholarships this semester which were previously unavailable at two-year colleges.

The first is the Tri Delta award of $50 which is to be given to a high achieving graduating sophomore.

The other scholarship is granted by the Oroweat Bread Company to the winner of the company's essay contest.

Interested students may inquire in the office of dean of women, S-150.

"Due to the shortage of trumpeters, the end of the world will be postponed three months."—Al Collins, KSFO.

Shots At RAMdom

by Ed Holmes

OPENING VOLLEY: The following comments concerning City College's Activities Calendar were left at this desk:

"No folk social was really scheduled for Tuesday (November 28) and a folk dance was scheduled for Tuesday (December 5) instead of a social dance.

"A mistake was made when a folk social was scheduled on the activities calendar for Tuesday (November 28) during College Hour in the women's gymnasium. No dance was supposed to take place that day and no dance took place. However, a regularly scheduled dance class was held there.

"Another mistake on the calendar was that the Recreation Association folk dance scheduled for yesterday was called a social dance. Also the dance took place from 7 to 9 p.m. instead of during College Hour."

Apparently people in the know and those who accidentally stumbled onto the right place at the right time enjoyed the affair.

• • • •

POT SHOTS

● Just as Martin Luther left the church in the 16th century, today's Flower children are producting their own offshoots.

Specifically, the Fern Chiidren were brought to our attention by a bit of greenery rolled under the cylinder of our typewriter.

The going price for a fern joint (foint?) is 50 cents and the cry is: Fern on—Fume in—Fake out! Comments as to the quality of the trip are varied.

● Who is the phantom distributor of various record club and magazine advertisements that periodically flood Cloud Hall and the arts building? Dean Wyatt would like to know how he (or she) gets in the rooms.

● At the beginning of this semester rumor had it that President Conlan wasn't dead, he was merely hiding from Larry Lazore. We didn't think much of it at the time but since Lazore took a leave of absence a few weeks ago, Dr. Conlan has been unofficially seen here on campus.

● The election commissioner is supposed to check into the qualifications of all candidates, right? So who checks into the qualifications of the election commissioner?

● Dave Lonie was kind enough to explain the rise in hamburger prices to us. He suggests that the war in Vietnam has caused the price of oatmeal to soar to such heights that we're getting the backlash.

● While in that area of the campus, we note with regret that rainy weather forces people without classes to seek shelter where it can be found. We're pleased to see them drying out in the cafeteria but wonder where people are to eat their lunches now.

• • • •

SALUTE

To Danny Mondaine who last Tuesday gave the people in Vuturc's Row between the arts and the science buildings the digital salute they deserved.

• • • •

FINAL BARRAGE

Frosh President Burnetta Lemaire informs us that if the Iron Horse, the Franciscan, Circle Star Theater, ACT, the Orpheum, Castle Lanes and the Warriors don't see their names in The Guardsman, they will collectively withdraw the prizes they donated to winners and runners-up of the Cutest Couple Contest held in conjunction with the Freshman Ball.

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1967

(The Guardsman, its faculty adviser and staff have no responsibility for or control over material printed on the page with the Free Critic masthead.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... STEVEN HARA
Managing Editor ..... Lori Pittman
Feature Editor ..... Marty Arbuntch
Staff Editor ..... Glynn Petrie
News Editor ..... Ed Holmes
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan

Editorial Assistants: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, Douglas Dorn, John Jenigian, Ron Lent, John Lotourneau, Viggo Petersen.

Reporters: John Bendoritis, Barry Brown, Tim Bryden, Arthur Fanfelle, Tom Graham, Barbara Hamann, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf.

Cub Reporters: Lani Brand, Elizabeth Callan, Rita Carroll, Dave Huffine, Dennis Klein, Soku Kodama, Dennis Mundt, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom, May Ling Wong.

Photographers: Ed Brums, Chief; Gary W. Batchelor, Paul Bekesy, James Bruce, Carol Gilmore, Roberto Guillen, Fred Hartts, Robert Kim, Klaus Kutz, Gary Lee, Garth Ogle, Wiha Reems, Chris Rozakis, Richard Soltaieri, Kevin Tobin, Mark Weinand, Samuel Woo.

Guardsman Faculty Adviser ..... Jean Nourse

Basketball Squad Faces Hamilton Air Base Tonight

City College Ram cagers play at Hamilton Air Force Base tonight, beginning at 8 p.m. The contest last year ended with Hamilton handing the Rams one of their three losses by nipping City College, 68-62.

Following Hamilton, the Rams open their home season with Vallejo at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow. The Rams host West Valley Saturday with game time scheduled for 2 p.m.

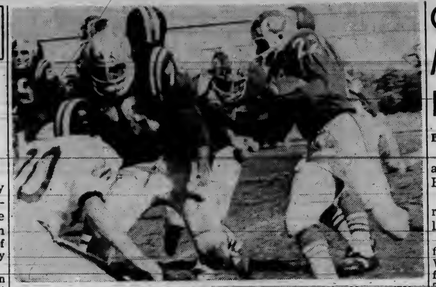
The Rams squad this year lacks the likes of All-Conference stars Willie Wise (now at Drake) and Gene Williams (now at Kansas State) and has only one returning starter, Ray Hearne, from last season's 30-3 championship team.

Not possessing the big men as in past years, Coach Sid Phelan's team will rely heavily on outside shooting. Board strength will come from 6-2 Ivories Floyd Seabron and springy legged Jesse Hill.

Spikers Finish Seventh In NorCal

The Rams finished seventh, among 25 teams, at the Northern California Cross Country Championships held at Fresno, November 17.

Valley conference champion American River won the meet handily, placing four runners in the top ten. Sacramento City College placed second, followed by Hancock and Fresno.



Modesto finished fifth, but their Andy Vollmer was the individual winner as he toured the four-mile course in a remarkable time of 20:10.

Sixth-place Chabot was the top finisher out of teams competing from the Golden Gate Conference, followed by the Rams, one point behind in seventh spot. San Mateo, the Golden Gate Conference champion, was a distant eighth, although the Bulldogs had been expected to give American River a battle for the top position.

Fred Forsberg led the way for the Rams, running the four miles in 21:33. He was followed by Vic Cary, George Haza, Jose Garcia and Bob Aanestad.

The Rams wound up their best season in four years as they finished third in the Golden Gate Conference and seventh in Northern California. The Rams also have a nucleus for a strong team next year with Cary, Haza, Garcia and Ted Schwartz all returning.

But the Rams lose a couple of good runners too, as sophomores Forsberg and Aanestad, both of whom were named to the All-Golden Gate Conference Cross Country Team, will be graduating this year.—J. B.

TWO RAM ALL-CONFERENCE stars in action. Tackle John Monroe (78) opens a hole for Wayne McConico (22) in Ram 16-0 win over Foothill.
—Guardsman photo by Fred Harris

Rams, Diablo Valley Each Place 10 Players On All-Conference Team

By Mike Duggan

City College of San Francisco and Diablo Valley dominated the 1967 All-Golden Gate Conference football selections by placing 10 men each on the all-star teams.

San Mateo fullback Al Namanny, an All-Conference pick last year and the league's top scorer and rusher this season was chosen as Player-of-the Year. City College's O. J. Simpson won the honor in both 1965 and 1966.

San Jose's Randy Ingraham was selected as Lineman-of-the-Year and his teammate, John Rearden, was picked as Back-of-the-Year.

Ram halfback Wayne McConico and tackle John Monroe were selected on the first team offensive unit. McConico finished the year with 776 yards rushing and 175 pass receiving despite nursing an injured ankle during the final four games. McConico's best game was against league champion Chabot as he picked up 212 yards.

Monroe was a second team All-League choice last year and was the big man up front in enabling the Rams to lead the league in team rushing.

RALPH HODGE and Allan Cowlings represented the Rams on the first team defense. At 6-1 and 250 and possessing fine speed, Hodge was unstoppable at his defensive tackle position all season long. In addition, Hodge did the kicking off for the Rams.

First Team	OFFENSE	Second Team
Steve Sommer, Diablo Valley	End	MIKE CARTER, SAN FRANCISCO
Pat Gamme, Chabot	End	Herb Zeiss, San Jose
Ted Leland, Chabot	Tackle	Roger Davis, Diablo Valley
Roger Bueno, San Jose	Tackle	MIKE STREICH, SAN FRANCISCO
JOHN MONROE, SAN FRANCISCO	Guard	Jim Cuevas, San Jose
Frank Fagundes, Diablo Valley	Guard	MIKE DESCHLER, SAN FRANCISCO
Chuck Budde, Diablo Valley	Center	KEVIN SHEA, SAN FRANCISCO
Al Namanny, San Mateo	Back	Louie Thompson, Merritt
John Shew, Chabot	Back	Dennis Branco, Chant
WAYNE McCONICO, SAN FRANCISCO	Back	Fred Morse, Foothill
Grady Aitken, Diablo Valley	QB	Butch Whyburn, Contra Costa
First Team	DEFENSE	Second Team
ALLAN COWLINGS, SAN FRANCISCO	Line	Ed Lambert, Merritt
Louis Strusis, Diablo Valley	Line	Bob Chiechi, San Jose
Paul Weston, Chabot	Line	Dwayne Williams, Foothill
RALPH HODGE SAN FRANCISCO	Line	Marc Schwutzer, San Mateo
Randy Ingraham, San Jose	LB	Steve McCoin, Chabot
Vic Ornelas, San Mateo	LB	ORICE PITTMAN, SAN FRANCISCO
Pete Lazzarini, Diablo Valley	LB	Don Alexander, Merritt
Bill Lynch, Diablo Valley	LB	John Enlow, Diablo Valley
John Rearden, San Jose	Back	KEN BYRNE, SAN FRANCISCO
John Nelson, Diablo Valley	Back	Fred Guaico, Chabot
Greg Aitken, Merritt	Back	Sam Caruthers, San Jose

A repeater from last year's All-Conference, only an early season injury and an early game ejection in the Contra Costa tilt kept Cowlings along with tackle Mike Streich, guard Mike Deschler and center Kevin Shea. Carter caught 21 passes for 472 yards, an average of 22.5 yards per reception. Carter's 236 yards receiving in one game and his 99-yard scoring catch of a Tom Mayfield pass are both league marks.

Shea, Deschler and Streich teamed with Monroe and Ed Diaz to form the Ram offensive line which enabled Ram backs to ground out over 2300 yards, well ahead of any other team in the conference.

Chosen to the second team defensive unit were linebacker Orice Pittman and back Ken Byrne. Byrne picked off three passes and was the standout of the defensive backfield which also included Craig Martin, George Russ and Clifton Smith.

PITTMAN, a freshman like Byrne, had both the speed to cover pass receivers and the strength to get in and dump the opposing quarterbacks for losses.

Labelled And Recorded

Flowers, Silent Night Warm Donovan

By Marty Arbunich

A SILENT NIGHT studded with flowers and—more important—exquisite music was the setting for those who witnessed Donovan last week at Winterland. The mood was simply unbelievable—so hush that he could be heard distinctly even in the street outside.

Each song the poet performed was a pleasure to the ear. His gentle, warming voice became very intimate to his hosts, and moreso in numbers like Mellow Yellow ("I'm just mad about San Francisco/San Francisco's mad about me.") and The Fat Angel ("Fly Jefferson Airplane . . .").

There Is A Mountain and Hey Gyp were also exciting and drew cheers of appreciation from the living, breathing wall-to-wall carpetry.

Donovan's company of musicians was striking, but became "fuzzy" at times, simulating a night club atmosphere. It was also superfluous for the sax player and drummer to get the spotlight with solos of their own. They're splendid musicians, but the people came to hear "the star of the evening" and not his band.

Donovan's second set was somewhat disappointing, being a repeat of the first. This was in poor taste—considering most people came to hear as much of Donovan's preaching as they could; furthermore, the poet performs in this city only on rare occasions, and for most this was a unique event.

• • •

Cream who were originally announced to be in town for Christmas have been rescheduled to appear under Bill Graham February 29-March 2 and March 7-9; Eric Burdon will play in January, The Jimi Hendrix Experience and John Mayall (two weeks) in February and The Who in March.

B. B. King, the Electric Flag and the Byrds are at Winterland this week followed be the Chambers Brothers, Tim Buckley and the Mothers next week. The Doors, Otis Redding, Jefferson Airplane, Quicksilver and Big Brother are lined up for the post-Christmas week.

• • •

Someone has finally made advances to bridge the gap separating rhythm and blues (which seems to be at a standstill) and electronic music. The Chambers Brothers have done so ("My soul has been psychedelcized!") by recording one of the most progressive R&B albums to date with The Time Has Come on Columbia.

Their versions of In The Midnight Hour and the title song, in particular, are two of the finest soul numbers this writer has ever heard.

• • •

There's dissension in the ranks—or something of that nature—between Ralph J. Gleason and Philip Elwood, somewhat rival music critics for the two city papers.

The Examiner's Elwood had this to say about a local concert featuring the famous singing pair of Simon and Garfunkel: Their songs "are platitudinous rather than powerful . . . and Simon and Garfunkel aren't really that impressive."

Ralph J. of The Chronicle later commented in his column that the same concert was "an excellent performance by the two young singers and it was an impressive evening . . . unique blend of sound and of message . . . a triumph in every way."

Ah, what a crossfire of discordant opinion.

And yet it just doesn't seem ethical to even suggest erroneous reporting to come from such a respected echelon of the Fourth Estate. Perish the temptation!

A more befitting suggestion might be to delegate a third critic to decision stalemates of this order.

City College, San Mateo, Merritt End Soccer Season In Three-Way Tie For First

By John LeTourneau

A fast-improving San Mateo tied for first place with Merritt and City College by dumping the Rams, 7-0, November 21, at Balboa Stadium.

The defeat was the first shutout suffered by Coach Roy Diedrichsen since taking over as coach in 1948. It was only the second loss in that span as Merritt defeated the Rams, 6-5, earlier this year.

Merritt, San Mateo and City College finished in a first-place tie in the Western Junior College Soccer Conference with identical 4-2 records. There will be a three-way playoff to determine the Northern California representative in the State finals.

THE BULLDOG GAME was a complete turn-around from the first encounter which the Rams won, 3-1. The second game could have clinched the title for the Rams as San Mateo beat Merritt the week before. The game was dominated by the Bulldogs.

The big man in the Bulldog attack was goalie Agustin Salvado who continuously stopped hard shots by the City College front line. "Salvado played brilliantly throughout the contest and made numerous impossible stops," Diederichsen said.

Also shining for San Mateo were center forward Aage Lyssand and left wing Augusto Castaneda. Castaneda put the Bulldogs in front with two first-half goals, and Lyssand scored four goals in the second half to ice the victory. The vital cog in the San Mateo attack was that the Bulldog offense and defense played equally great. "Their fine defense kept us out of their end of the field and consequently they had many more shots," Diederichsen commented.

The three-way tie is the first ever in the conference, and a coin flip will decide who will play each other. Also the place to play must be worked out by the three coaches. Diederichsen pointed out that the playoff might delay the state championship by as much as a week.

Delta, Spoilers Finish Unbeaten; Playoff Favorites

Phi Delta and the Spoilers went through their respective divisions undefeated and will be favorcd to meet for the championship, as playoffs begin this week in the Associated Men Student intramural league.

Phi Delta picked up two wins in the Club league by handily whhpping the Newman Club, 86-32, and Hotel and Restaurant, 81-37. Jeff Barker paced both wins with 22 and 18 points, respectively.

The Guardsman split its last two games when it beat H&R, 48-41, as John Franiecivich and Bill Bodero paced with 12 and eight points respectively. John LeTourneau and high leaping Jay Yerman added spark to The Guardsman attack. Center Tom Graham hit six with Marty Arbunich hitting four, Charles Bouey three and chubby Bill Kays adding two to round out the journalists' scoring.

The Revisables finished second in the Club league by beating The Guardsman, 56-45, despite Franiecivich's 22 points and Easy Ed Holmes' fine all-around play.

Other scores: Spoilers 77, ABA Outcasts 38; Rabbits 53, Ram Ski 31; ABA Outcasts 60, Rabbits 29, and the Red Mountaineers 73, Ram Ski 34.—J. L.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• Free Thinker

Editor, The Guardsman:

I have a very important correction to make concerning your story entitled, "Bids Accepted For Council Vacancies," on page one of the November 8, 1967 edition of The Guardsman.

Your story went like this: "Derrick Quan, who won a Freshman Council seat two weeks ago, said he was not at all happy about the vote (Change 5, USA 4), and suspects USA of 'block voting.'"

Now here's the way it should have read: Derrick Quan, who won a Freshman Council seat two weeks ago, said he was not at all happy about the vote (Change 5, USA 4). He said he knew Change was "block voting," and suspected USA of doing the same.

See the difference? I am sorry that your reporter misunderstood me, or perhaps I did not make myself clear. In either case, my apologies to the members of USA. Now let's correct the correction.

After five weeks on council, I must now withdraw my statement that I suspected "USA of block voting." In dealing with members of USA, I have yet to find any member, at any time, or under any circumstances instructing a fellow member how to vote. I am sorry I cannot say the same for the opposite party.

I realize that it was Change that elected me to council, but members of Change failed to remember that during my campaign speech, I said that I would at all times vote as a free-thinking individual—and I have done so.

On November 1, in the special election to fill the vacancy for Vice President, I proved my independency. I was instructed (to my amazement) to vote for the Change candidate. I decided that I could not vote for a candidate (Change) that was not present, so I voted for the other candidate (USA). Although not deliberately planned, my one vote offset the majority monopoly of "block voting" by Change. I believe the end result has been in the best interest of the student body.

Since my election, I have remained independent. Due to present circumstances, I hereby officially declare myself a member of the United Students for Action (USA)—the party that is composed of free-thinking individuals.

Derrick K. Quan
Freshman Councilman, USA

• Council Vacancies

Editor, The Guardsman:

In a recent issue of The Guardsman, a column was written criticizing the method used to fill vacancies on Student Council. In the last sentence of the article the reporter stated, "Bring the elections back to the students."

During the two terms that I have served as a councilman this proposal has been suggested several times. No doubt this would seem to be the fairest way to fill vacancies on Student Council, but it would not be the most practical.

First, since vacancies on Student Council occur at different intervals each semester several special elections would have to be held. Second, during a general election there are problems getting students to staff the election booths; this problem would be far more acute in several special elections.

Also, in special elections paper ballots would have to be used instead of machines. In our previous experience with paper ballots we found them to be totally unsatisfactory. (Stolen ballots and several recounts that turned out different were the result.) Furthermore, if in a general election 14 per cent of the students vote, what turnout could be expected at several special elections?

It seems that the best way to solve the problem of students dropping off Student Council because of grades, and thus creating vacancies, it to take preventive measures in advance. I suggest that The Guardsman, when listing names of candidates, also list their overall grade-point averages. This would give voters an opportunity to become aware of the candidates most likely to maintain the required 2.0 average and stay in office all semester.

Bill McQuaid,
Councilman

Slim Ballot Offered Today's Voters

Amendment Only Controversial Issue Involved

By Mike Wise

In today's election for next semester's Associated Student officers, voters will not be faced with a long list of hopeful candidates from which to choose, as in former semesters.

The list has been considerably shortened, and the choice has become one of a simple, but decisive, yes or no.

The candidates for all of the elective offices are running unopposed. The United Students for Action (USA) party is the only party represented in this year's election. Three independent candidates are running.

Also on the ballot is Proposition 1, which reads: "Should a council member who is disqualified from office have the power to select the person to complete his term of office, providing the latter has met the qualifications as outlined in the Constitution?"

HEADING THE USA slate is Ray Bietz, seeking the office of President. Bietz currently is serving the Student Council as a Frosh Councilman. Running for Vice President is Pat Fiuren, who is presently the Sophomore Class President.

The USA candidate for Associated Men Students President is William Matsu, and USA's pick for AWS President is Shirley Brown.

Running for Freshman Class President and Sophomore Class President are Richard Shirley and Bill McQuaid, respectively, both of whom are on the USA ticket.

Although in past semesters there have been usually more than enough candidates to fill Student Council seats for the Sophomore and Freshman classes, this semester the opposite is the case.

CONCERNING THE Soph Council, two seats have not been petitioned for, and the Frosh Council has one vacant seat. These vacancies, hopefully, will be filled in a special election to be held early next semester in Student Council.

Those who have petitioned for Soph Council seats include James Dierke, Tim McGeachy, Bill McQuaid and Cheryl Wong, all USA candidates. One independent, Lorraine Fong, is also running.

USA has submitted five candidates for Frosh Council seats: John Waterfield, John Range, Derrick Quan, Tom Doudiet and Mark Bender. One candidate is running independently, Al Wong.

SURPRISINGLY, even if an unopposed candidate loses he can still win, according to Election Commissioner Tony Taormina, who cited as his reference the Associated Student Constitution. If a candidate receives more no votes than yes votes, he is still installed as a new officer, under the present system. The only way a candidate running alone could lose is to receive all no votes, and with each candidate exercising his own right to vote, the possibility of that happening is negligible.

The constitutional amendment was introduced by Bill McQuaid, Frosh Councilman, and was passed by Student Council two weeks ago.

Voting will be held in Statler Wing all day today and tomorrow, from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m.

U.S.A. Runningmates

RAY BIETZ, Associated Student Presidential candidate, and Pat Fiuren, his Vice Presidential running mate, run unopposed in the student elections which begin today and run through tomorrow.

Bietz, a councilman, and Miss Fiuren, the Soph Class President, are affiliated with the USA student political party.

Voting will take place in Statler Wing from the hours of 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.
—Guardsman photos by Mark Weineand and Gary Batcheior

Student Apathy Doesn't Cause Poor Election Turnouts—Wyatt

By Ron Lent

The age-old candidates' cry that apathetic students cause poor election turnouts here at City College is an utter and complete fallacy, according to Dean of Student Activities James Wyatt.

"Issues and competition bring voters to the polls," Wyatt explained. The dean of student activities pointed out that "the City College student voting turnout is usually around the 20 per cent mark, while the national average for colleges is 12 per cent."

ELECTION COMMISSIONER Anthony Taormina remarked, that the situation this semester is unfortunate and added, "I hope no one votes. With so few candidates competing, it simply isn't worth voting."

The election commissioner commented that "the students don't really care about student government, because student government doesn't care about the students."

Contrary to Taormina's statement, past City College voting turnouts do show student interest in campus politics. For example, in the Fall 1966 election highlighted by the stolen ballot controversy, approximately 20 per cent of the 8000-plus registered students voted.

This election marked the first appearance of the United Students for Action and Change parties on campus.

WHEN DENNIS SWEENEY of United Students Representative Party secured the Associated Student Presidency at the expense of Reform on Campus Party's Alex Hing in the Spring 1965 contest about 18 per cent of the 10,000 students exercised their franchise.

In another hotly contested political campaign at the college, 72 candidates campaigned for the 20 elective offices during the Fall '48 elections.

During this same Fall (1948), 33 per cent of the 5450 registered took the time to vote for the office-seekers of their choice.

The Guardsman / Free Critic
Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco
VOLUME 65 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1967 NUMBER 9

Bietz States U.S.A. Plans

"NEXT SEMESTER, USA and I, personally, will continue in our efforts to improve conditions at CCSF. Generally, we will work in the following areas:

"I. TRANSPORTATION — USA will gather statistics from students to indicate just how crowded and despicable conditions are on the buses and trolleys that serve CCSF. With those statistics, we will then ask, no, demand that the Muni Railway improve those services. And by improving bus and trolley service more students will use the Muni, rather than drive their cars to school. This would help to alleviate the parking situation.

"II. STUDENT BODY — Student Council Communication — USA will submit legislation next semester calling for periodic polls to allow the student body an opportunity to express their opinion on certain issues under discussion by council.

"III. STUDENT UNION — USA will call for the conversion of the present Bookstore into a temporary Student Union, after the Bookstore moves in the Fall '68 semester.

"IV. INSTRUCTION — I personally will introduce legislation calling for the creation of a tutorial program, under the direction of the AGS Honor Society, designed to tutor City College students. This program will supplement the present tutorial program for elementary children in San Francisco." Ray Bietz

Scheduling For Spring Classes Now Underway

By Barbara Hamann

Actual scheduling of students in classes is currently underway for Spring, 1968 semester in accordance with certain priority classifications.

Counselors and advisers are assisting the following students with scheduling: students pursuing a Certificate of Proficiency in the semiprofessional fields such as criminology, hotel and restaurant operation, nursing, dental-lab technology, and the like; those students in the top 500 on the scholarship list and high school honor students registering for the first time; and students serving the college in connection with registration.

THOSE QUALIFYING in any of these categories may file specific class programs in S-117 after meeting with their counselor.

All scheduled students will be permitted to register on Friday, January 26, at Smith Hall, while the remaining returning students will register on Monday, February 5.

Each student is given a yellow schedule program by his counselor or adviser on which the student's registration number will appear in the upper left corner. Students will register according to this priority number.

Registration numbers are allocated on the basis of grade-point averages and seniority, except for present first-semester students for whom the basis is first midterm grades.

According to Dean of Instruction Jack Billwiller, "First midterm grades in the Fall semester are counted like final grades. The effect is to give priority to students who have completed a great many units and to students with good grades."

"For example, a student who has completed 50 units with all C's would have earned 100 grade points; so would a student completing 25 units with all A's. Preference is given to the higher grade-point average when there are ties."

Students who have schedules will receive printed copies of their programs approximately one week after filing in S-117.

A COMPLETE LIST of Spring classes is posted outside the registrar's office, S-127, so students can plan their class schedules before registering.

Students who have scheduling appointments with their counselors are expected to keep them, Dean Billwiller emphasized. Those who cannot are expected to make arrangements for another appointment.

Anyone neglecting to do this will lose his original registration number and be given a later registration hour, the counseling staff warned.

'Closed Stacks' Topic Of Debate For Librarians

The professional library staff composed of Librarian Robert Begg and four others will hold its monthly meeting today. At the request of Dr. Lloyd D. Luckmann, acting president, a discussion of the feasibility of reopening the stacks in the library will be on the agenda.

The "closed stacks" procedure has been in operation for more than three years. The reason for closing the stacks, according to Luckmann, was the fact that students failed to exercise good care when dealing with the books.

WITH OPEN STACKS, little supervision was maintained. This led to stolen books and general misuse of the library materials along with mutilation of reference books.

Luckmann suggested that perhaps a policy similar to the one in operation at the University of California at Berkeley would be worth trying. That is, the library stacks would be made available to special honor students who have proved that they could handle library books correctly.

San Francisco State College has apparently found a way to maintain open stacks and at the same time prevent stolen books and damaged materials. Library personnel are situated at the exits of the library, and all students leaving the building must allow the "guards" to examine all books. This procedure has led to a library with open stacks for those who wish to browse around in search of any book they choose.—D. B.

Campus Police Officer Attacked

A man (name withheld) was arrested last Tuesday in Statler Wing for trespassing and attfeking a campus police officer.

The person involved is not a student, yet he has been loitering around here since the beginning of this semester posing as a member of the football team. He had attacked a campus policeman once before, according to Ralph Hillsman, dean of students, and was warned not to come on campus again.

When he appeared on campus Tuesday, Hillsman along with three campus police officers tried to "talk" him off the college grounds. He then lashed out at one of the officers. He was apprehended and arrested by San Francisco police department officers.

Accident Rate Slips Despite Slides Through Mud

By Marc Clarkson

Though many new potential accident hazards have been created by recent landscaping and construction on campus, the tearing and biting of the grounds by both man and machine has helped to reduce accident rates, according to Gloria Anderson, head of the student health service.

"There may be relatively fewer injuries this Fall because students and faculty members are more cautious, either consciously or unconsciously, of the many dangers created from recent landscaping here," Mrs. Anderson said.

SO FAR THIS fall, only 16 reported accidents have resulted from construction. The worst injury resulting was a fractured leg suffered by a student when he tried to blaze his own trail along a temporary path behind Cloud Hall.

Because of the building of new pathways, many accidents have resulted from students slipping on the grassy slopes.

The most dangerous slope, is the one between Arts Hall and Cloud Hall. During rainy weather, it has the slipperiness of a tobogan run. More than water spots show on the clothing that comes in contact with it.

A LARGE CHART posted on one wall in the student health service office shows that most accidents take place in the men's and women's gymnasiums. The next most dangerous area is inside the shops and laboratories of Science Hall. On the chart, these areas are clustered with dozens of pins used for marking accident spots.

There is good news for the students covered by the student health plan. If injured on this campus, they will have all expenses paid for by the plan.

WITNESSES TO THE PERILS of climbing City College's hills.
—Guardsman photos by Samuel Woo

The Free Critic

Tom Rice, Editor — The Critic Adviser: Mr. Berman

Vol. 1, No. 9 — WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1967 — Page 1

Experiment In Learning

Dear Free Critic,

Diabolically, I sometimes give my composition classes the assignment, "Describe Your Most Exciting Kiss." Invariably this assignment angers some students: "Darn, I know what I want to say, but I can't find the words to say it." They further complain that words are inadequate when it comes to describing something that is more than one thing at a time. (Who would deny that an exciting kiss is more than one thing at one time?). The consternation they experience is part of my design, for it launches us into a study of words. Not ineidentally, this assignment also provides me with some interesting reading. Ahem.

Of late I have experienced some of my students' consternation. In responding to questions concerning the Experimental College to be started on the CCSF campus, I have found myself trying to describe something that is more than one thing at one time. Persons have blinked and silently doubted my intelligence as I have responded to the oft asked question, "What is the Experimental College?"

"It is an opportunity for experimentation; therefore, it is no one thing."

Blink, blink. Scowl.

"It is a setting in which persons are free to discover."

Blink, blink. "Discover what?" Shift weight, scratch head.

"Whatever may be discovered."

Clear throat.

"We seldom know specifically what there is to discover until after we've discovered it."

Blinking stops; scowling stops; head scratching stops; questioning stops; uncomfortable silence begins. Finally, "Well, I have to run; it sounds interesting, and Good Luck."

Encounters such as this one have been too frequent to suit me. I have not been vague and devious purposely; specific answers to the questions just did not exist at that time. Even now I can offer only a cursory description of the loose structure the Experimental College may eventually assume. However, I can definitely say there will be an Experimental College at CCSF next semester. After the Christmas holidays, a list of classes and an enrollment blank will be available to persons interested in participating.

Donald J. Peterson
English Department
C-338B

• • •

The following is a cursory description of the loose structure of the Experimental College:

The Experimental College on San Francisco City College campus is being planned with the hope of serving a wide variety of persons and thereby ideas. If all goes according to initial design, the Experimental College will provide a frame work within which educational experimentation can freely take place. All registered students, faculty members and administrators of CCSF are invited to participate.

A Campus Organization: To make the use of City College facilities and classrooms possible and legal, the Experimental College has become a duly constituted campus organization. The organization will not function in the same manner or to the same ends as do the many social organizations on campus. Instead, it and its members will comprise the coordinating body of the Experimental College. Scheduling and announcing of planned groups, bringing persons of shared interest together to form study groups, and maintaining necessary records are some of the primary functions the organization will perform.

Vocabulary Changes: To reflect some of the assumptions upon which the Experimental College is based, a few changes in the vocabulary of the educational milieu seem called for. The new college will not consist of courses with specific designs and curricula; there will be no students or instructors in the accepted definitions of these scholastic roles. Instead there will be groups of participants who are brought together by an organizer. The term group is used here to mean a number of persons who have joined together to participate in a mutually agreed upon educational experience. Each member of such a group is a participant; a person who takes a responsible, self-reliant role in the learning experience.

Anyone may be either an organizer, or a participant, or both. In the spirit of the experimentation anticipated within the college, it is quite conceivable that one or more faculty and/or administrators may enroll as participants in a group organized by a City College student. (One such group might be formed around the general area of "What it's like to be a minority group member." This group might study the structure and language of the various ethnic ghettoes and even take some field trips to these neighborhoods.) "Each person who participates joins in setting the conditions for his or her own learning, and each organizer is free to set a different contest for participants."

Group Formation: Although there is any variety of ways for groups to form, many groups will originate with a prospective organizer. A person is interested in starting a study group will submit to the Experimental College office a brief statement of intentions and requirements. For example, one might wish to start a group to study international relations as reflected in current events; he may wish to limit group size to, say, twelve and to hold a personal interview with each prospective organizer. The Experimental College Office would announce the group and its designs as well as the time and place for contacting the coordinator. Hours that classrooms are available would be given to the organizer. After the interviews, the organizer would submit a group list to the college. It may be that a prospective coordinator may not wish to interview all interested persons. In such a case, the college office would accept the enrollment of all interested persons until the previously determined group limit were reached.

Many other groups will originate with one or more prospective participants. Perhaps a number of persons realize they share a common interest in a given subject and would like to study it as a group. They, as a prospective group, would contact the Experimental College Office and make their intentions known. In turn, the college office would try to find a suitable organizer and handle other procedural details.

Grades and Credits: In order to create an atmosphere in which free experimentation may be tried, the Experimental College will not operate upon extrinsic motivations, grades or college credits. Personal interest and curiosity will be prime motivations in the study groups. Instead of a passing grade and three credits, the goal of Experimental College groups will be, if anything, self-discovered, self-appropriated knowledge. Group attendance will not be taken but will be expected. The Experimental College is basically a choice.

James Morrison
Robert Thibodeau
Rosalie Wolf
Donald Peterson

On looking for yourself: "If you haven't found by now that which you have been seeking, stop, because it isn't there."—Robert Paolinelli

The Question Box

Not too long ago the Student Council investigated the necessity of taking roll in classes. A committee was appointed to study the problem and quickly the whole thing turned into an anti-climatic statement that really said as little as has already been said. We feel that the taking of roll in a college classroom is ridiculous and only serves to accentuate the high school atmosphere of City College. We ask you, if a student can maintain his grades without attending classes, should he be penalized for his lack of attendance? Should roll be taken at City College?

Due to a lack of coordination between the Office of Instruction and the Hotel and Restaurant Division, the Free Critic hours as listed in the last edition were erroneous. Classes are scheduled in SH102 during some of the hours listed, and so our office hours have been changed to alleviate the problem. We hope that no one has been caused undue trouble because of this slight mix-up, and will bear with us in our initial trials. The amended hours are as follows: Monday and Wednesday 10:00-1:00, Tuesday and Thursday 11:00-12:00, and Friday 10:00-12:00. In addition to these hours letters to the editor may be dropped in a box outside the room if the writer is unable to speak directly to one of the editorial staff. We prefer to see everybody in person if possible since we believe in the dialog as the best means of communication, as well as the only tool for education outside the exact sciences.

An Interview With A Drop-Out

The following interview with Lawrence Lazore was taped on Wednesday, December 6, 1967:

Rice: For several semesters you have gained some notariety as some sort of activist reformer on campus and recently you have taken a leave of absence. Could you comment on your reasons for dropping out of CCSF.

Lazore: Wow. That first question involves a complex answer. I'm going to simplify it. First, I don't think I'm dropping out of anything, I'm dropping into myself. When I first arrived at this school I was appalled at the shallowness of most of the people that I came in contact with. The college didn't meet my expectations. I came to CCSF after twelve years of knocking about the country and thought that a college might have an atmosphere of sobriety and logic. I was naive. I found the same games and insecurities that I had encountered in the outside world. It was unnerving. I didn't like the school as it existed so I decided to change it. I found that the student government was operating at a childish level and the Guardsman newspaper was inaccurate and lethargic in reporting what was going on. So I changed it. The student government is now functioning at a more intelligent level and there now exists The Free Critic for students who become up tight about the school and society. But this process of changing things that conflicted with my expectations forced me to become more involved in real life situations instead of the normal abstractions that students are confronted with in the classrooms. I realized in the beginning of this semester that I was more interested in being alive than jumping through hoops and running institutional mazes. Besides I began to worry about my personal hangups. And I became too tired to play games with the administrative children.

Rice: What do you mean by administrative children?

Lazore: I mean that their thinking patterns do not reflect the positions that they hold. Look, in the past couple of years there have been many confrontations between reform-oriented students and the Administration. What happened? The students invariably proved most of the administrators to be ignorant and resistent to the common changes and trends going on in most colleges. Would you believe that this semester the Administration was attacking and confronting me? I was the one who normally functions in this role. When I arranged to have the Mime Troupe perform an entertaining and innocuous play, it was the Administration that unreasonably denied and attacked the rights of students to control their own social events. They actually forced the students to confront the establishment meaningfully. When the play went on after a serious breach between administration and students, almost everyone enjoyed the play and found little to critieize. No one dreamed when arrangements were made for the play that the administration would panic and behave so stupidly. They did the same thing shortly after Amori Student-Placement article. I was criticized by many faculty for being too soft on Amori in the article, and I assure you that it was mild compared to what we might have said. But the Administration came through with their usual finesse and had the article deleted and the usual mess occurred. Have the students asked themselves why they were standing out in the cold during the computer screw-up?

Several months before the summer registration, student leaders like Ron Melander and myself were having meetings with the Administrators about how the IBM would louse up if further precautions weren't taken. We submitted ideas that would have prevented a good percentage of the errors, but the Administration had their eye on time and economic factors, not on the interests of the students. They conned Melander and myself, assuring us that they would consider our suggestions and we foolishly took their word. They sold the computer to the students by telling them how rapidly registration would go, but didn't tell them that they only programmed the computer to recognize the time preferences for only the first two thousand students, or even give a damn about the students loosing the elasticity of choosing their instructors. If I'd been forced to repeat some of the instructors I've already encountered on this campus, I would have dropped the whole course on registration day rather than be lulled to semi-consciousness by one of the teaching dinosaurs that still roam the academic bogs of this campus. The only brilliant display of administrative planning was the humble apologies to the students who were treated to little signs saying "Computer for Sale" instead of "Intelligent planners desperately needed for CCSF." Students have been told that the computer would not be used next semester, but care should be taken by student leaders to police computer planning when they do decide to budget registration as the student's scholastic expense.

Rice: What have you accomplished besides your vociferous attacks on the Administration?

Lazore: Well, I spent a quiet year doing things with little notariety. Much of the time was spent trying to orient myself with how things ran on campus and who was responsible for most of the suppression of the students. I found rather good informational sources and established some mediocre liaisons.

During my first year I was pretty proud about being a member of Campus Forum, a discussion group that spent six weeks analyzing the problems of the Guardsman newspaper. The Forum membership ran from thirty to sometimes fifty members and I've never seen a more issue oriented group whose members independently collected meaningful data and interacted with diversified viewpoints and arrived at intelligent conclusions. Naturally, the Forum was boycotted by the student establishment for having such dangerous traits as free-form discussion. I chaired the group after Fred Stewart stepped down. The data collected by this group was the basis for a couple of articles written about the Guardsman in my Old Critic.

During this period I put together a faculty-student symposium on racial violence in the society which had a fair reception. I demonstrated against the antiquated dress code by wearing a replica of my Air Force summer uniform and was kicked off campus minutes after I appeared near the flagpole for not being suitably dressed for CCSF. Mr. Bell and I cornered Paul Shuttlesworth who was an ardent militarist, and he almost went berserk in student council over someone being kicked off campus for wearing an American service uniform. A little later that semester the dress regulations were modified to their present form.

The Old Critic was so successful, I don't want to talk about it.

The Free Critic has more potential with you at the helm because you could never have the feeling that I had for that faded mimeographed monster Melander and I created. You can't believe what went on when we published that sheet. Melander found my writing so bad that he refused to correct my copy after the second issue. He disagreed with so many of my approaches that he would only read the Critic after he had completely printed and assembled it . . . It took us fourteen to twenty hours just to

Doodly Squat's Draft Alternative

By Jon Lovett

With the large number of Black men dying needlessly in Vietnam for a supposed freedom that is denied Black people in the United States, I've racked my brain for an alternative to the drafting of Black men for the use as cannon fodder in a war which Black people have absolutely no stake in. But woe is me, not one could I think of.

However, yesterday as I was walking down Mission Street, I happened to pass the National Guard Armory. Who should I see outside of the Armory seated in an Army jeep but my old buddy, Doodly Squat. "Doodly Squat!" I exclaimed. "What are you doing in Sam's Army?" "Not Army," Doodly corrected. "Not Army?" I asked. "That's right," said Doodly, winking his left eye, "I'm in the National Guard." "You see," Doodly went on, "when I read about all of the brothers getting done-in over in Vietnam, I said to myself, 'Doodly Squat, you twenty-two years old, you in A-1 shape according to your draft card which means that pretty soon Sam gonna be calling you. Now if you wanna keep from going to Vietnam, you gotta dodge Sam's Army.' So here I am in the National Guard."

"But Doodly," I asked, "How is being in the National Guard safer than being in the regular Army?" "Man, you sure is dumb!" Doodly exclaimed. Do you know of anybody in the National Guard dying in Vietnam?" Doodly asked. "Why the more brothers that join the National Guard the quicker we gonna get freedom here in America." "How?" I sheepishly asked. "Why, man," Doodly went on, "When a riot breaks out, who does the President call to put it down?" "The National Guard?" I asked. "Right!" shouted Doodly. "Now if Black brother is dominating the National Guard and L.B.J. calls us out to put down a riot, well man, we do just the opposite." "You mean . . ." I asked. "Yeah," said Doodly chuckling sinisterly. "We put L.B.J. down."

So now I've found an alternative to the drafting of Black men, thanks to Doodly Squat. Join the National Guard, i.e., take it over.

Tempus Fugit

By Giuseppe

A little more time that's all I need;/
Just three of four million years,
that's all
Oh, you think it's too much?/ Well how about two? No?
OK, one. Still can't do it?/ Alright,
let's be reasonable.
You take one half and I'll take the other./ What! Come'n, let's be reasonable.
We're both intelligent, mature, rational and,/ If I may interject sophisticated adults,
Ergo, we should come to some compromise./After all, what would the masses think?
You don't care what the masses
think?/Alright you win.
Go to Hell, God . . .

print and assemble the old Critic.

Rice: Have you had any failures or regrets about leaving CCSF?

Lazore: Yeah. Big ones. My wife left me a week before June finals. That had nothing to do with CCSF, but it really made me realize that there were too many things more personally important to do than hang myself up here. Do you know what really did me in this semester? I couldn't be just me. I had to fk around with the Guardsman people during those absurd negotiations waiting for their arguments to collapse from their own stupidity. Then I organized a folk festival, and cracked up my motorscooter, and injured a girl who was riding with me. I fell in love with that girl, but she put me down. I saw the faculty finally stirring on the campus, but was angered by their motivations, and I worked too closely and saw too much of that great and sensitive Lloyd Luekman. I got lost in too many emotions, had too many dull teachers, and realized too clearly how absurd my position was at CCSF. I really wasn't a fighting social reformer or whatever I'm supposed to be. I was just a man with a hell of a lot of problems. So I took a leave of absence. Do I have any regrets about leaving? Yes. William Bell, Howard Harris, Fred Stewart, M. M. Cahn, Ron Melander, Ron Cuddy, Gerry Mullin, Hellen Huffman, Gary Hoffman, Helen Ferentinos, Ron Melander . . .

Lawrence had listed many people from City College stating that "Those people were the only reason why CCSF was half-way endurable."

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

Vol. 65, No. 9 — WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1967 — Page 2

System Needed To Replace Student Council Dropouts

APPEARING on the election ballot today is a piece of key legislation passed by Student Council this semester. The resolution regarding council vacancies and the filling of them will strongly effect party politics on this campus if ratified.

The proposed amendment reads in effect, that disqualified councilmen should be allowed to name their own successors subject to the approval of council. The successors would also have to fill all the requirements made of elected councilmen.

AS BROUGHT OUT EARLIER by columnist Lori Pittman, the present situation of council electing itself is unfair and silly. The proposed amendment will not better this situation at all. Council can still elect itself as it can approve or disapprove the appointment.

Added to this is the opinion by some members of council that disqualified councilmen should not be given the right "to take it with them." Their argument goes that unqualified people should not decide for the students, which, they say, this resolution would allow.

A PRO ARGUMENT FOR THE RESOLUTION goes something like this: the proposal would allow council to maintain political party balance by preventing the majority of council, whichever party it may be at the time, from perpetuating and increasing its lead over the minority.

This semester's council is not the best example of party replacement because most of those who ran to fill vacancies did so as independents. If the day should come that strong party affiliations occur in campus politics and Student Council is strongly militant, the proposed amendment would be most useful.

Make no mistake, the proposed resolution is no panacea. It still doesn't change the fact that council becomes more and more unrepresentative the more councilmen find themselves disqualified.

WHAT IT DOES DO, HOWEVER, is provide some protection for student interest by protecting the rights of the minority. If only for this point, the proposal serves a purpose.

No, it doesn't solve all the council's problems, but until such a time when council gets to cleaning its house thoroughly, it will serve as a step in the right direction.

The Guardsman recommends a "yes" vote to this proposal.

Labelled And Recorded

'Disraeli' Sets Cream In Gear

by Marty Arbunich

DISRAELI GEARS—Axce; Strange Brew; Sunshine Of Your Love; World Of Pain; Dance The Night Away; Blue Condition; Tales Of Brave Ulysses, SWLABR; We're Going Wrong; Outside Woman Blues; Take It Back; Mother's Lament.

IT'S NOT EASY TO criticize Cream — and likewise there are very few shortcomings in this new album by England's fine trio.

Each of the three musicians is a master with his respective instrument and the voice of bassist Jack Bruce is exquisite—at times a falsetto aesthetically flawless—and naturally compatible with the instruments.

Cream's best recording to date, SUNSHINE OF YOUR LOVE, a song of intense sexual love, which also exhibits some of Eric Clapton's finest guitar work to date, is included.

The two songs Clapton helped to write—Strange Brew and Tales Of Brave Ulysses— have some haunting and downright eerie lyrics.

The latter selection and World Of Pain utilize the incredible gadget known as the wah-wah pedal, which is attached to Clapton's guitar and when operated produces an awesome "wah wah" moan which is most effective.

Ginger Baker doesn't have any extensive drumming like Toad on this set of tracks, but We're Going Wrong is a pomp of drum work which is rhythmically beautiful. It underlies rather than being pronounced.

Ginger also attempts his first vocal solo with BLUE CONDITION. It's a good thing he has his drums to turn to; the singing on this number is rather platitudinous and his voice repeatedly brings to mind the nitwit dialogue of the bungling cartoon character, Elmer Fudd. It sounds ridiculous, but it's true.

Mother's Lament is another peculiarity. The song is a traditional about a baby ("'twas nawt but a skelington covered with skin") that slips down the washroom drain. It's a nonsensical little ditty, intentionally sung out of key and is somewhat amusing. However, it doesn't fit in with the other material.

Overall DISRAELI GEARS is superb. There's some exceptional music on this one.

NOTHING BUT CREAM . . . Ginger Baker, Eric Clapton, Jack Bruce
Superb new album a prelude to their San Francisco visit in March.

First Ladies Meet

MARY FRANCES MALONE WINES and Diane Lattimer—26 years separate their ascent to the presidency. —Guardsman photo by Kevin Tobin

City College Woman Chief Execs Honored At Luncheon

By Tom Graham

A luncheon was held last month in honor of the only two women ever to achieve the position of Associated Student President of City College.

When Rich Christensen resigned from the presidency early this semester, Diane Lattimer, former AS vice president, ascended to the position.

Miss Lattimer is the second woman with this distinction. The first was Mary Frances Malone who ascended to the presidency when the incumbent, George Meyers, was inducted into government service in April of 1941.

There is somewhat of a contrast between the two men presidents who preceded the coeds. They both had to resign, but their reasons for doing so were entirely different.

EXCERPTS FROM Meyers' letter of resignation stated, "I am sorry that I find it necessary to submit my resignation at this time but employment with a branch of the government service has called me and the choice no longer lies with me."

Christensen stated in his letter that his reason for resigning was that he was "sick and tired of . . . this so-called Student Government and many of the people in it."

Meyers, who was obviously the more congenial of the two preceding men presidents, also stated in his letter, "One thought that makes my task a lighter one is that I am able to leave this office in the hands of Mary Frances Malone who at every point has proved herself a capable worker and a born leader."

CHRISTENSEN, however, did not leave Diane Lattimer with any kind words.

He emphasized that he was "thoroughly dismayed and disgusted at the lack of concern for progressive action on this campus, and at the general unwillingness of many members of this body (Student Council) to behave like reasoning human beings."

One of Miss Malone's first appointments as president was the appointment of Burton Wines to the office of Club Activities Board (now COO) President. Miss Malone, now Mrs. Burton Wines, must have had something in mind when she made the appointment.

While she attended City College she also held the successive positions of News, Feature, and Managing Editor of The Guardsman.

Diane Lattimer is a working president. She works part time five days a week and carries 13 units on top of her duties as AS President. Miss Lattimer will graduate after this semester with 60 units. She plans on working when she gets out of City College. Her major is merchandising.

Miss Lattimer has held the offices of Sophomore Class President, AS Vice President, and AS President while attending City College.

Attending the luncheon held in honor of the two women in the faculty dining hall were Deans Warren White, Jim Wyatt and Ralph Hillsman. Dean Mary Golding met the two women in the hall and remarked, "Maybe one day we'll get one elected."

Valley Of Dolls Reaches New Peak As Movie

By Frank Wolf

Valley Of The Dolls, Jaequeline Susann's super-selling book, has reached its zenith of success by becoming—what else?—a motion picture.

Without a doubt this film version of what could be the most talked about book in 1967, omits quite a bit from the best selling novel; however, this is compensated for by the excellent acting and photography throughout the film.

The story, having to do with three women and their ups and downs in the world of show business, shows in a frightening way how some stars might crumble under their own success.

BARBARA PARKINS, virtually unknown before her appearence in the TV series Peyton Place, plays the part of Anne Welles, the country girl who comes to the big city.

Mis Parkins shows, as she has never been able to in the TV series, charm and wit and a surprising professional knowledge of acting.

Because the story of Anne Welles is completely separated from the other underlying plots, Miss Parkins makes any audience take notice of her from the moment she is on the screen.

From the moment Miss Duke makes an appearance, her image of the all-American girl, Patty Lane, is erased, and her portrayal of Neely O'Hara (frighteningly similar to Judy Garland) comes on strong.

Patty Duke's sometimes shocking vulgarity is quickly accepted because of the convincing portrayal of the role she plays and it is long afterward that one becomes accustomed to the fact that the hatred felt for Miss Duke is actually hatred for the character she portrays, Neely O'Hara.

THE THIRD WOMAN, Jennifer North, played by a former Playboy Playmate Sharon Tate, is simply the story of a woman with nothing but a body. Miss Tate (physically perfect for the role) plays the unimportant part convincingly but one is frequently attracted more toward her sexuality than her acting.

Valley Of The Dolls, the three-part adventure of life—with something for everyone—is slated to open December 20 at the Fox Warfield theater.

If the book is read and isn't liked, the movie should be seen. The film, although similar in plot, varies just enough from the book, to be an enjoyable movie.

Shots At RAMdom

by Ed Holmes

OPENING VOLLEY: Each Student Council must withstand claims that they don't accomplish anything worthwhile, but this semester's group comes out looking great compared to the bunch that passed this resolution a few years back.

- WHEREAS: Snails crawling around campus are unsightly, disgraceful and grotesque, and
- WHEREAS: Visitors to our college are often offended and shocked by the presence of these creatures, and
- WHEREAS: Their presence shows the disrespectful attitude students have for our college, and
- WHEREAS: They are a hindranee to the gardener's duties by destroying school property through eating grass and other such shrubs,
- THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED: The students of CCSF give their unfailing support in an effort to stamp out snails on the campus grounds.

The measure was passed by a roll-call vote. But perhaps our judgment is a little hasty. Come to think of it, we haven't seen many of the wee beasties around lately.

BARRAGE

While we're on the subject of politics, this column is opposed to the constitutional amendment offered on today's ballot.

When an individual runs for a council seat he assumes the responsibility of maintaining the qualifications for that seat; it is his duty to the people that elected him.

If an office holder is not responsible enough to fulfill this obligation, we strongly feel he is too irresponsible to name his own replacement. We urge a "no" vote on this amendment.

FINAL FUSILADE

Whether we're right or wrong about the amendment, Election Commissioner Tony Taormina seems to have gone out of his way to insure that it doesn't get a representative vote.

Advocating few polling places and fewer votes will tend to make his job easier but we feel that the price for Taormina's comfort is too high to pay.

There is no denying the fact that each vote is less than important in an uncontested race; if only one person votes for each of the candidates, the outcome will be final.

But the amendment is something else again. Acceptance or rejection will be determined at the polls. We hope that more than one per cent of the campus will be involved.

FINAL FINAL

Marc Clarkson's dog doesn't have a degree and intends to see to it that Marc doesn't get one either. He tore up his master's acceptance papers to S.F. State before Marc had a chance to read them.

Holmes Elected G'man Editor

In a Guardsman editorial board meeting last week, the new editors for the coming spring semester were elected.

Ed Holmes was chosen Editor In Chief. His editorial staff includes Marty Arbunich, managing editor; Mike Duggan, sports editor; Glynn Petrie, feature editor; Doug Boston, news editor, and Tom Graham, staff editor.

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1967

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 248.)

(The Guardsman, its faculty adviser and staff have no responsibility for or control over material printed on the page with the Free Critic masthead.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... STEVEN HARA
Managing Editor ..... Lori Pittman
Feature Editor ..... Marty Arbunich
Staff Editor ..... Glynn Petrie
News Editor ..... Ed Holmes
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan

Editorial Assistants: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, Douglas Dorn, John Janigian, Ron Lent, John LeTourneau, Viggo Petersen.

Reporters: John Bendorfis, Berry Brown, Tim Brydon, Arthur Fantello, Tom Graham, Barbara Hemann, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf.

Cub Reporters: Lani Brand, Elizabeth Callen, Rita Carroll, Dave Huffine, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Dennis Mondi, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom, May Ling Wong.

Photographers: Ed Bruns, Chief; Gary W. Batchelor, Paul Bekesy, James Bruce, Carol Gilmore, Roberta Gollion, Fred Harris, Robert Kim, Klaus Kutz, Gary Lee, Garth Ogle, Mike Reams, Chris Rozales, Richard Spitalieri, Kevin Tobin, Mark Welmond, Samuel Woo.

Guardsman Faculty Advisor ..... Jean Hourse

Booters Deliver T-Birds 4-1 Shellacking

RAMBLINGS

Ex-Ram Gridder Cops Top Lineman Honors

By Mike Duggan

DWIGHT TUCKER, City College's best-ever high jumper and triple jumper and the Golden Gate Conference Lineman-of-the-Year last season, was recently honored by being named Northern California "Player of the Week."

Now playing for San Jose State, Tucker started the season as a defensive end, but finished playing offense also. In two starts as a flanker, Tucker responded with 13 receptions for over 200 yards. Going both ways in college football is not a common sight these days, but Dwight Tucker is no ordinary athlete.

• • •

The Green Bay Packers' Travis Williams, who set an NFL record against Cleveland by returning two kickoffs for touchdowns (87 and 85 yards) in the same game, was a former star at Contra Costa.

ALL GOLDEN GATE Conference in both 1963 and 1964, Williams held almost every rushing and scoring record until O. J. Simpson broke them all two years ago. Williams is co-holder of the longest run from scrimmage in league history—97 yards, and he did it against City College.

Williams once ran a 9.2 100-yard dash, usually fast enough to win the race, only in this meet he was running against Bob Hayes and had to settle for second place.

• • •

Doyle Miller's 92-yard run on the final play of the game in City College's 22-8 win over Contra Costa is the fourth longest in Ram history. Both Ron Fassler and O. J. Simpson have 97 yarders to their credit and Simpson also ran one 95 yards.

• • •

NEW MEXICO STATE, featuring ex-Rams Dave Malae, Ruby Jackson and Tony Tutiele, played a football game recently against Nothern Arizona. The Aggies scored first and scored last and scored a lot inbetween to end up beating Northern Arizona by the final score of 90-0.

• • •

Ex-Ram Bob Lee, UCLA's Gary Beban and San Jose State's Danny Holman have been named as West quarterbacks for the 1967 East-West Shrine game at Candlestick Park on December 30. After guiding the Rams to a 1965 Prune Bowl win, Lee starred for the past two seasons at University of Pacific. Besides throwing the ball, Lee averaged 40 yards a punt and did Pacific's kicking.

Ram Gridders Finish Season Behind Chabot, Diablo Valley

By Mike Duggan

The 1967 Ram footballers finished the season with a 5-4 overall mark and a 5-2 conference mark. The Rams ended the year a half game back of Chabot and Diablo Valley, both of whom finished the league with 5-1-1 records. Since Chabot defeated Diablo in their encounter, Chabot represented the Golden Gate Conference in the State Playoffs and lost out in the first round, 28-21, to American River. Below are the Rams' nine-game statistics for the past season.

RESERVE HALFBACK Doyle Miller. —Guardsman photo by Chris Rozales

TEAM TOTALS	Opp.	CCSF
Total Points	150	195
First Downs	115	136
By Passing	48	26
By Rushing	51	98
By Penalty	16	12
Passes Attempted	215	126
Passes Completed	98	49
Yards Gained Passing	1112	656
Rushing Plays	335	440
Yards Gained	1227	2548
Yards Lost	427	220
Net Rushing	800	2328
Total Offensive Plays	550	566
Total Offense	1912	3286
Fumbles	21	14
Fumbles Lost	10	16
Penalties	38	96
Yards Penalized	547	807

Individual Passing

NAME	PA	PC	YG	TD
Mayfield	91	38	798	7
Cercos	29	11	152	1
Anley	5	3	8	0
McConico	1	0	0	0

Receiving

NAME	PC	YG	TD
Carter	21	472	4
McConico	8	175	0
Johnson	6	107	2
Dyson	5	60	1
Bell	4	56	0
Booth	2	21	0
Bayard	2	75	2
Lewis	1	-9	0
Michonson	1	1	0

Rushing

NAME	TCB	YG	AVG
McConico	125	776	6.2
Bell	61	364	5.9
Booth	44	339	7.7
Dyson	62	344	5.5
Miller	33	338	10.2
Lewis	66	297	4.5
McDonagh	4	27	6.7
Anley	5	6	1.2
Sobeck	3	4	1.3
Provost	2	-5	—
Cercos	10	-38	—
Mayfield	16	-55	—

Interceptions

NAME	NO	YR
Martin	5	89
Byren	3	52
Rush	3	8
Barb	2	25
Moore	1	20
Devine	1	22
Pittman	1	2

Punting

NAME	NO	YDS	AVG
McDonagh	31	972	31.3
Diaz	1	54	54.0

Kickoffs

NAME	NO	YDS	AVG
Hodge	32	1334	41.7
Mayfield	6	219	36.5
Rush	1	40	40.0

Scoring

NAME	TD	PAT	FG	TP
McConico	7	0	0	42
Lewis	4	1	0	26
Carter	4	0	0	24
Bayard	2	0	0	12
Johnson	2	0	0	12
Booth	2	0	0	12
Dyson	2	0	0	12
Mayfield	0	12	0	12
Hensley	0	0	3	9
Martin	1	0	0	6
Devine	1	0	0	6
Bell	1	0	0	6
Miller	1	0	0	6
Rush	1	0	0	6

Cagers Drop Two To Spoil Debut

City College's defending champion cagers opened their 1967-68 season by losing two of their three contests in the Bakersfield Tournament, held the first three days of December.

A total of four points was the margin between winning and losing the Bakersfield Tournament. The Rams started off with a bang as they ran over the Modesto five, 82-47, with four men hitting in double figures. Telvis Jones, Floyd Seabron and Gary Bradford all scored 13 points with Ray Hearne supporting them with 11 digits.

But the following game proved to be a bit more difficult as Fresno edged the Rams, 68-66 in a double overtime. Jessie Hill led the Rams with 15 points as Hearne dumped in 14 and Jones popped for 12 more.

The next night San Joaquin Delta put the nail in the Rams' coffin, squeaking by with a 69-67 win.

The Rams traveled to Stanford to play the Stanford Braves on December 4 and Coach Sid Phelan's crew promptly dumped them, 79-71, as Hearne bombed for 19 points, mostly on long jump shots. Bradford also helped as he ripped the net for 19 markers while teammate Jones added 15 points

Guardsman SPORTS
Wednesday, Dec. 13, 1967 Page 3

Fall Sport Awards Highlight Block SF Athletic Ceremony

The Block SF semiannual awards dinner was held last Monday, and 86 athletes from the three Fall sports teams, football, soccer and cross country, were awarded letters in their respective sports.

Fifty-one football players were honored by their coach, Dutch Elston.

Seven men from the cross-country team, who just finished a fine season under their coach, Lou Vasques, were honored. Fred Forsberg was named the team's most valuable runner.

City College of San Francisco's soccer team was represented by 28 members. Coach Roy Diederichsen honored his two most valuable players, Roger Sarria and Otey Cannon.

Athletes receiving awards in football were Vincent Ansley, John Cercos, George Rush, Tom Mayfield, Joe Barb, Wayne McConico, Steve Jones, Jon Dyson, Ernie Provost, Doyle Miller, William McDonagh, Leo Lazada, Willie Lewis, Joe Bell, Mark Hensley, Jim Sobeck;

Fernando Charles, Orice Pittman, Steve Salisbury, Jim Farnham, Clifton Smith, James Dyer, Calvin Booth, John Valero, Andre Hicks, Bill McKenna, Kevin Shea, Ralph Hodge, Ray Moore, Tony Gaetani, Ted Luehs, Mark Peterson, Mike Deschler, John McKenna, Ed Diaz, Kevin Devine, Dave Kuzarian;

Jerry Vanger, Allan Cowlings, Mike Streich, John Monroe, James McEldry, George Nicholson, Craig Martin, Joe Dutto, Craig Johnson, Ralph Bayard, Mike Carter, George Ohlson, Ken Byrne and Greg Jackson.

Soccer awards: Jerry Tigue, Cannon, Albert Chu, Henry Mejia, Mickey Duzdevich, Peter Bogatsky, Sal Corona, Marshall Granger, Sarria, Braulo Trigueros, Arne Harrott, Paul Bogatsky, Tony Bennett, Mick Sayada, Ron Ciarasso, Rigo Belanos, Sam Cuarda, Jesse Figeroa, Pedro Garcia, Tom Silva, William Ayoub, Gyannender Kumar, Rich Sandino, Ken Sinn, Peter Gonsalves, Bernd Friedlander, Vic Estebanes and Keith Sinn.

Cross Country awards: John Bendoritis, Victor Gary Forsberg, Jose Garcia, George Haza III, Ted Schwartz and Milton Madison.

Soccer Team Represents NorCal Again In Finals

By John LeTourneau

Onee again City College will represent the Northern California Soccer Conference in the State finals as a result of a 4-1 win over Merritt, December 2 at Diablo Valley.

Merritt, City College and San Mateo all finished in a three-way tie for first place. However, San Mateo's Athletic Department chose to keep the Bulldogs out of the playoffs and settled for a third of the title.

In the Merritt contest, Coach Ray Diederichsen used a bit of strategy that worked as reserve fullback Bill Ayoub started at center forward. With the switch, Ayoub scored two goals in the first half to put the Rams ahead for good. Inside right Jerry Tigue scored the remaining two in the second half to ice the victory.

DIEDERICHSEN WAS pleased with the entire squad as the Rams defeated the T-Birds for the second straight time. "We put together our best all-around effort on offense and defense and we completely overmatched Merritt," Diederichsen said.

In the first quarter it looked as though it would be another low scoring affair as both defenses bottled up any scoring threat until Ayoub crashed one through the nets to give the Rams a 1-0 lead. However, Merritt came right back to tie it up in the second period at 1-1. Ayoub's second goal came just before the end of the first half to give the Rams the lead they held to the end.

Strong defense on the part of Marshall Granger, Sal Corona, Braulio Trigueros, Roger Sarria and goalie Arnie Harrott prevented any more T-Bird scoring in the second half. This fine play enabled the offense to get the ball more and consequently score two more goals.

"Our two leading scorers, Otey Cannon and Al Chu were held scoreless, but our fine depth was the difference," the Ram mentor said.

DESPITE BEING the team in the state finals, the Rams took a back seat in the selections for All-Conference. Four men from Merritt and four men from San Mateo were on the team, but only Sarria, Chu and Cannon made it for the Rams. Sarria was the only repeater from the 1966 squad.

Later this month the Rams will meet Compton for the state championship. In the last four years City College has met Victor Valley for the title and has shut them out each time with big scores as the Rams completely outclassed their southern rivals.

SOCCER FULLBACK Roger Sarria was again named to the All-Conference team for his fine play this season.—Guardsman photo by Gary Lee

Guardsman, Outcasts Intra Playoff Victors

The Guardsman and the ABA Outcasts picked up wins in the Associated Men Student-sponsored intramural league playoffs last week.

Mike Duggan reactivated himself and filled in for the ailing Bobby Rizzo by scoring 17 points to pace a 44-38 win over the Revisables. John Francevich, Tom Graham and Bill Bodero scored 11, six and four points to add to the attack.

Jay Yerman contributed three markers while Marty Arbunich and Ed Holmes followed with two points each. Bill Kays, Larry Murtha and Charles Bouey also helped out.

The Revisables were led by Don Kung's 14 points.

In the Independent division the ABA Outcasts upset the Red Mountaineers, 44-42, as Bill Delany scored 18 points.—J. L.

Focus: Leadership Defined, Evaluated

by Lorl Pittman

(The first portion of today's Focus is by Barbara Hamann.)

PEOPLE in college do a great deal of talking and writing on the subject of leadership. That they should do so is understandable, leaders being essential to college at every level.

Yet, there is a tendency for some students to think of leadership as a static thing. They believe once the mark of leadership has been acquired —like say, a blue ribbon or a trophy —that it can be carried throughout one's college career.

In truth, leadership is a dynamic thing—a continuing thing that generates its own power by constant application. The person who takes charge, to whom others look for direction, has the power to set off a chain reaction in behavoir and attitude among others.

LEADERSHIP, THEN, is contagious. One might conceivably argue that if it is contagious enough it must in time affect members of a group so strongly that each person will be his own leader. A good leader will be able to assume responsibility and set an example for those around him.

What is vital to keep in mind, in this consciousness of an enduring leadership role, is that leadership should not be acquired through popularity alone to insure the attainment of an objective. It is fine to be liked, but one can often gain in popularity among his fellow students while getting diminished respect.

The leader who displays unimpetuous firmness of decision may find that he is not "one of the group" but may discover also that others regard him in a different light—of respectful admiration.

• • •

SPEAKING of leadership . . . it is that time of year again. "Vote-for-me" signs clutter the windows and smiling candidates proclaim their virtue.

The big push today and tomorrow is now being made by those students involved in or running for the various offices on campus. Their greatest problem will be trying to get students to the polls to vote . . . and from the past history of this college, that's quite a job.

MANY STUDENTS, especially the older ones, simply attend class and leave. They tend to regard both the elections and the offices as rinky-dink kid's stuff and would feel less than juvenile voting.

They are without hesitation giving up their right to a voice on this campus.

The Student Council, surprisingly enough, is not a club. It has the greatest authority of any student group on campus in regard to the way in which this college is run. It not only initiates changes for the benefit of the whole student body, but through research, tries to offer the best possible solutions.

True, sometimes it seems like nothing is being done to correct the evils that exist here . . . parking and public transportation are still miserable, the cafeteria and library are terribly overcrowded . . . but we are not having computerized registration this spring, partly because Student Council passed a resolution against it.

Some people are disillusioned by the politics on campus. They tend to view the council as an armed camp where students gather to spout various beliefs and accomplish nothing . . . where "do-nothings" do nothing and radicals desecrate the flag.

But whose fault is it when a "do-nothing" or extreme radical gets into office?

THEN THERE'S that age-old problem of not knowing whom to vote for. Those not actively involved in student affairs or student government may feel that they don't have the right to vote because they don't know anything about the persons running.

Who really knows what a candidate running for the President of the United States will do in office? All a person can do is read the papers, listen to speeches, perhaps do a little research into backgrounds . . . and guess.

It is no different here, except for one advantage. Here a person can speak to the candidates face-to-face and ask them what they intend to do in office.

Those who passively sit back without bothering to vote for the persons to represent them, deserve whatever and whomever they get next semester.

The Guardsman / Free Critic

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 65 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 3, 1968 NUMBER 10

Columnist Art Hoppe Tomorrow's Speaker In College Hour Lecture

By Marc Clarkson

Art Hoppe, distinguished political columnist and satirist of the San Francisco Chronicle, will present a lecture entitled The New Morality, during College Hour tomorrow, according to Warren White, coordinator of the college lecture series.

Hoppe has a daily humorous political column in the San Francisco Chronicle in which he runs the gamut from blasting the Washington scene to whimsical take-offs exposing society. Over the years as a columnist, he has won a great number of readers and admirers by effective combination of satire and fact in his attacks on political figures and ideas.

ART HOPPE, popular Chronicle columnist, speaks here in the college theater tomorrow.—Chronicle photo

GRADUATED FROM HARVARD University with honors in 1949, Hoppe joined the Chronicle as a copy boy, and, in a few months, became a reporter. His first major story came in January, 1952 when he and photographer Ken McLaughlin made their way on skis to a railway train which had been snowbound for three days in the High Sierra.

In 1966, as a columnist and undercover reporter, he crusaded against alcoholism in San Francisco. Posing as a Skid Row derelict, Hoppe gathered facts and later presented them in a featured series to help awaken the people of San Francisco to the problem.

IN 1959, through a series of columns, he gave an accurate account of Negro crime in San Francisco that showed an attention to fact and depth of understanding acclaimed by both Negro leaders and law officials.

One of Hoppe's most notable journalistic achievements was being named the Chronicle's reporter for the national tour of both Kennedy and Nixon during the 1960 presidential campaigning.

HOPPE'S COLUMNS have gained him the admiration of many prominent persons and news periodicals. Pierre Salinger, the Press Secretary of former President John F. Kennedy and once a Chronicle reporter, called him "the best political humorist in the country. "Newsweek magazine described his works as "wonderfully humorous pieces admired by rival newsmen and columnists and even by most of his targets."

Hoppe says of himself, "Columns should express outrageous opinions to be of any value. I don't want to tell people things. I don't know everything. I want to stir people up so they'll do their own thinking."

State Blue Shield Insurance Policy A 'Healthy' Plan

By Tom Graham

City College of San Francisco has an arrangement with the California Blue Shield to provide insurance, on an optional basis, for enrolled students.

Dues for student members are $20.04 per semester or $40.08 per year. This plan provides coverage away from the college, during weekends and vacations. With the dangers created by the "campus reconstruction period" hazards, many consider it a "vitally" valuable investment.

ONLY CERTAIN intercollegiate athletic injuries are covered through the Associated Students. The college provides the services of a registered nurse for minor illnesses and injuries. Major illnesses and injuries, including those incurred in intramural sports, are not provided for by the college.

California Blue Shield recommended last semester that each student who was not protected by his family health plan avail himself of this coverage while attending the college. Family plans do not generally cover children over 19 years of age.

HOSPITALIZATION for illness or injury is covered for 50 days in a room of three-or-more beds and includes meals, nursing, operating room, anesthetics, surgical supplies, physical therapy, and up to $15, plus 50 per cent of additional charges for drugs, oxygen, blood and plasma.

X-ray and laboratory services for illness or injury entitle members to X-ray examinations and all laboratory tests.

SURGICAL BENEFITS for illness or injury include operations and repair of fractures, dislocations, wounds and burns. The services of the following are likewise included: surgeon, assistant surgeon, anesthestist, and consultants.

Physician visits in the hospital, for illness or injury, are provided as well as outpatient medical benefits, for injury only, to accident cases.

Students interested in such a plan may obtain further information from Deans Mary Golding, Ralph Hillsman, or James Wyatt, or the finance office, located in room 107 in Smith Hall. Applications for the spring semester policy will not be accepted until February, 1968.

Tri-Sponsored Coed Brunch In Statler Sunday

All women students are invited to attend Ice 'n' Spice, the final Associated Women Student, Inter-Sorority Council and Recreation Association party which will take place in the form of a brunch to be held Sunday at 12:45 p.m. in Statler Wing, according to Dean of Women Mary Golding.

The brunch, free to those who attend, will feature the Alpine Dancers; a demonstration by the ornamental horticulture department of a winter flower and table arrangement; winter melodies on piano by Carol Olsen and a question and answer period with Inka O'Hanrahan, member of the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women.

JOYCE COLLINS, AWS president; Margery Brown, president of the ISC and Shirley Brown, president of the RA, will co-chairman the event which will also include the installation of their successors.

An award for outstanding service to the AWS will be presented to a deserving woman student and one for outstanding achievement in sports will be given to a member of the RA.

THE DOUGHERTY TROPHY will be bestowed upon the sorority with the highest scholastic achievement of its members.

The committee heads for the events are: entertainment, Hattie Knox; food, Karen Hall; hospitality, Ann Slauson and Patti Hickson; decorations, Zelma Belles and Katy Dixon; publicity, Ellen Hastings, Jane Renstrom and Linda Wong; invitations, Shirley Gatson; programs, Carol Olsen; clean-up, Connie Henderson; set-up, Jackie Garret and Connie Henderson; photography, Liz Yee; and serving, Margery Brown.

Lysistrata Next In Little Theater

Lysistrata, the first classical Greek play to be performed at City College, will be presented by the drama department beginning January 10 through 14, in the College Theater. Admission is free to all student card holders, and curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

The play is a Greek comedy which was written in 411 B.C. by Aristophanes. The plot, according to Director James Haran; involves a sex-strike by the women of Greece against their warring husbands.

Haran commented, "The story is applicable to modern times but we are presenting the play because a Greek play has never been performed here, and we feel that it's time one was."

Man-Woman Of The Year Sought

A search is presently underway to find a man and a woman student to represent City College in the annual Statewide Man and Woman of the Year contest sponsored by the Bank of America.

According to Dean of Student Activities James Wyatt, a special committee will meet early this month to select two representatives from the college to compete in this three-year-old competition. He added, "This contest gives students the opportunity to win a $1000 scholarship to further their educations."

Candidates are selected on the basis of academic achievement demonstrated by the completion of 30 or more units with a 3.0 grade average and enrollment in an Associate in Arts or Sciences degree; successful participation and effective leadership in student government, clubs, athletics, publications or special events as well as participation in community activities and a written statement, submitted by each candidate, of not more than 150 words indicating their aims and objectives upon completion of college.

The nominees will each be awarded $50 cash and a plaque before entering the Bay Area semifinals on Wednesday, February 21.

New Spring Leaders

RAY BIETZ AND PAT FIUREN. —Guardsman photo by Samuel Woo

Constitutional Amendment Fails As Bietz, Fiuren Win

By Tom Graham

The official results of the Associated Student elections, as posted by Tony Taormina, election commissioner, shows Ray Bietz (United Students for Action party) evolving as the new President of the Associated Students.

Pat Fiuren (USA) was elected vice president.

The presidency of the Associated Men Students remains open, because William Matsu (USA), the only candidate running for the office, was disqualified due to grades and lack of units.

Shirley Brown (USA) is next semester's Associated Women Student President.

USA's Bill McQuaid and Rich Shirley were elected to Soph and Frosh presidencies, respectively.

ELECTED TO SOPH Council from USA were Jim Dierke, Tim McGeachy, Bill McQuaid and Cheryl Wong. Independent candidates elected were Lorraine Fong and Ann Slauson.

USA filled five Frosh Council seats with Mark Bender, Tom Doudict, Derrick Quan, John Range and John Watterfield. Al Wong, the only independent who petitioned for Frosh Council, was also elected.

The constitutional amendment, submitted by McQuaid, stated: "Shall a Student Council member who is disqualified from office have the power to select the person to complete his term of office, providing the latter has met the qualifications as outlined in the constitution?"

THE AMENDMENT WAS defeated by a 36 yes, 70 no vote.

The total number of votes cast for this election (112) is an all-time low. Aside from the fact that all candidates for office were running unopposed, reasons for this poor turnout can be attributed to remote poll locations, limited poll hours and cold weather.

Statler Wing, originally publicized as the polling place for the election, was closed Wednesday and the balloting was then held in the cafeteria. This, however, was unannounced and some students weren't able to find the voting station.

ON DECEMBER 11, Taormina suggested to Student Council that a change be made in voting times because of the rather strange situation regarding this semester's elections.

This suggestion was picked up by Bietz who proposed that voting times be amended for Thursday. This was accepted and the time was adjusted from the scheduled 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. to the proposed 8 a.m. to 10 a.m.

The cold weather needs no explanation.

Out of the 14 vacant council seats, only 12 were filled. One soph and one frosh seat still remain open. These seats will be filled next semester by a special Student Council election. The AMS president will be appointed by President-elect Bietz in the spring.

Four Students Win Scottish Rite Scholarships

California Scottish Rite Scholarship winners have been chosen, according to Dean Mary Golding. Of the 15 applicants, Glory Chaw, Thomas Hill, Joseph Lum and Rosa Perez are the four recipients.

The scholarship, originally set up by the San Francisco chapter of the Scottish Rite, is designed to help worthy students here who are graduates of San Francisco public high schools.

This year marks the fifth year that the scholarships have been awarded to City College students, according to Dean Golding.

ACTING PRESIDENT LLOYD LUCKMANN presents the $175 Scottish Rite scholarship awards for academic and service excellence to winners (l. to r.) Rosa Perez, Thomas Hall, Glory Chaw and Joseph Lum. —Guardsman photo by Gary Kreutz

Selection of winners is based on scholarship potential of the students here and during high school. Other factors are student self-help, services to the community, and hobbies.

Miss Chaw, a graduate of Galileo High school, is currently majoring in accounting. During high school she was a member of the Silver Seals society. She also won the 20th Century Bookkeeping award. Here she is a member of Alpha Gamma Sigma, scholastic honor society.

Miss Perez, former student vice president of Balboa High school, has served the community as a tutor at Visitacion Valley. She also received the Magna Cum Laude trophy upon graduation from Balboa.

Hall, engineering major, listed his hobbies as chess and meeting people whom he could exchange ideas with, and Lum, also an engineering major, was a lifetime Silver Seals member at Galileo and his hobbies are collecting stamps and coins.

The scholarship certificates were presented to the winners in December by Acting President Lloyd Luckmann.

The Free Critic

Tom Rice, Editor — The Critic Adviser: Mr. Berman

Vol. 1, No. 10 — WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 3, 1968 — Page 1

A Wondering Editorial

Wednesday, December 13, 1967. At one o'clock the student council meeting is finished. Go out into the cold wind and talk for a short time with one of the tutors in the Tutorial Program that nearly lost $1,000 from a $1,500 budget proposal. Shiver from the cold outside, shiver from someone else's coldness inside.

Walk up one of the cold hills and meet someone who holds the warmth of the world to me on cold, cruel days. We walk through the cold and decide to get in from the cold and get some warm coffee inside of us. At one, the only thing usually open on campus for this purpose is the Statler Wing of the cafeteria.

Reach Statler Wing expected to grasp the cold handle of the door and enter into the warm inside air. Look up and see a cold sign: CLOSED. Give some credit to the intelligence of someone and walk into the Smith Hall: Surely arrangements have been made to keep something open for the students here on a cold, windy day. Especially since there are so many students who have long breaks in classes caused by a screwed up computer registration. Enter Smith Hall only to find that it will close at 1:15. Decide I'm going to stay there anyway and drink a cup of coffee. Get coffee and sit down.

1:10. Others from the Student Council come into Smith Hall and find no coffee, but they too decide to stay. We're all tired from the last hour, and from too little consideration from the powers that be.

1:15. A warm greetng is extended from one of the establishment in Smith Hall. "Get out of here. We're closing. "No sir, we won't go." Member of the establishment offers an alternative to us from the cold. "Why don't you go to the library." We remind him, "The library is for study." (Isn't it?)

Establishment again. "Why don't you go to the library?" Again we counter that the library is for study and add, "We don't want to study. We want to get out of the cold, smoke, drink some coffee and talk with our friends." Again he asks the same question. We wonder if he can hear.

Establishment offers warm greeting to the whole group of students in the cafeteria. "You'll have to leave, we're closing." One of us stands and addresses the 150 or so students who have come out of the cold. He speaks loudly so that he can be heard by all. "You don't have to leave people. Stay here." Establishment panics. Calls a dean.

Dean comes. Listens to student complaint and to the establishment. Student complaint deemed legitimate. Establishment talks of "Raving maniac." Wonder if he really listens if he can hear. Wonder where the raving maniac is so I can hide and not get hurt.

Establishment yields to pressure from the dean, a member of the higher establishment that had forgotten 10,000 students and closed the Statler Wing for a faculty party. Find it hard to believe the establishment forgot 10,000 students.

We sit in a group and talk to the dean. Interesting talk, as usual. Action has been taken for the moment. Action taken only because of a direct confrontation. Dean: "Let's talk." Students: "We've been talking so long our voices are hoarse. When will someone do more than just give up lip service?" An even bigger question runs through all of our minds: "Is it really necessary for a confrontation to occur every time something needs to be done." Conversation goes around in circles as usual. Wonder if anything was actually accomplished besides the cafeteria being kept open for two hours. We get up to leave.

As we leave to go to classes and home, a group of Hotel and Restaurant students and workers have been gathering. They cross our path and one of them who appears to be in the managerial classes speaks "Why are you here? Why didn't you leave when asked? Why didn't you go to the library?" We wonder if he hasn't heard what we have been saying for an hour. We saw him in the group that was, we thought, listening to us. But we are polite for a while and answer his questions as we had answered them before. The group circles around the four of us who had been the center of the protest. I find the air a little uncomfortable and walk out of the circle. Everyone seems to be hot, even though it's cold outside. It's not because of the heating.

Outside the circle I notice several things. Some of the circle have taken off their coats and hold them in their arms. One or two are in T-shirts. I look at the table area behind me and notice a second group is forming, apparently in support of the central four protesters. I too get warm, uncomfortably warm. For fifteen minutes the central four have been answering the same questions and everyone is getting warmer. Wish they'd shut off the heat. Wonder if H&R is really a part of City College as I had always thought it was.

One of the central four has been playing with a knife, about one inch long. Someone from H&R suddenly notices the knife and hollers "He's got a knife! He's got a knife!" I thought we already knew that. He always plays with that knife. It gets even warmer. Dean wisely walks over to the group. Hate appears in several faces on both sides. Much is directed towards the Black member of the group, who also is the one with the knife. As the dean leaves so do we. Nothing is really settled. Some H&R follow us outside. Even in the cold it's uncomfortably warm. We continue to walk away, wondering.

We wonder if this whole thing couldn't have been averted. All that was necessary was for someone to think about the students. We wonder if that is too much to ask. We don't have to wonder what could have happened, we know from the uneomfortable warmth still under our collars.

We wonder if anyone is really listening to us. We're speaking, but even in some letters to the editor is an absence of the essence of what we are saying, and a concentration on facts by some. We really wonder if those who are supposed to have the intelligence to look into the words of others and find the true meaning are capable of doing that.

We wonder if we have to have violent confrontations in order to prove our points. Many of us feel that the only way to get a student voice heard is through numbers and violence. The others wonder, and would be prepared to support something that looks like it has a chance of succeeding, even if it means violence.

We wonder and we wonder. We wonder what education has been brought to, and we wonder how we can chance the system that most of us want to enter but will not do so if we have to sell ourselves to something in which we cannot believe. We love education, and many of us are trying to get through with ours so that we can help to educate others. We wonder at times if it is worth it. This hell that we are going through is making us even wonder about the basic principles that we believe in, the democratic principles. To quote Camus, "I should like to be able to love my country and still love justice." We wonder why we can't do both, even though we are shown that our country is in many ways unjust.

We wonder and we wonder. And we know that sooner or later we are going to get so sick of wondering that we are going to act, and we'll act on anything that looks like it has the slightest chance of succeeding. And that anything includes violence.

The Free Critic office is in Smith Hall room 102. Office hours are 10:00-1:00 Monday and Wednesday, 11:00-12:00 Tuesday and Thursday, and 10:00-12:00 on Friday. In addition to the hours, you may submit material or letters to the Registrar's Office, box S127. All submissions will be welcome. The greatest fear that man can have is the fear to show himself to others, for man can only see himself in respect to other men.

Black Guard Editorial

With the permission of Jon Lovett we present the following editorial from the December 15 "Black Guard." Since the beginning of the Black Guard we have been aware of what Jon has been saying, and have from time to time printed something that has previously been in that newspaper. We would like to congratulate the BSA and Jon Lovett on the success of the Black Guard, and hope that he keeps on "saying it like it is."

"With the recent outbreaks of Black student dissent on college campuses in California, there is a need at City College of San Francisco for positive communication between Black and White students. If some sort of meaningful dialogue is not established, and if the existing condescending attitude that what students, faculty, and administration foster upon Black students is not changed, the responsibility for a violent confrontation between Black and white students will rest with the whites.

"The Black Students Association is cognizant and concerned about the impending chaos, and is trying to create a line of positive communication between Blacks and whites at City College. But the BSA cannot by itself bridge the abyss that years of white apathy have created. We, the concerned Black students of the BSA therefore call upon the white students, faculty and administration of City College to join us in preventing havoc from falling upon Black and white City College students.

"What can you whites do? You can begin to show a genuine concern and understanding of the academic apathy that confronts Black students, i.e., the almost total lack of recognition by the City College administration of the academic needs of Black students. You can ask that a meeting between concerned Black and white students be held where solutions to existing academic problems can be discussed and ironed out.

"The key to mutual understanding and harmony between Black and white City College students lies solely with you, the white students, faculty and administration."

Letters To The Editor

Sir:

There is much of what was said in the December 6 issue which should evoke response. I will limit myself to the story on the "Student Union."

From whom did your reporter learn that "a loan is just about impossible," etc.? From an officer of a bank, or a real estate investment counselor! If there is real substance to his reporting then we on the administrative staff have been improperly advised.

Who are the reliable sources who would advise a reporter that there is "no LEGAL reason" why the Educational Services Building could not be utilized, etc.? The building is partially financed by federal funds and the applicable federal laws exclude the expenditure of federal moneys if the purposes of the building are to be those your reporter describes. To my way of thinking this is a very persuasive LEGAL reason.

Very truly yours,
Lloyd D. Luckmann,
Acting President

The sources for the information contained within the article will not be disclosed, even though they did prove to be somewhat unreliable. While the facts contained within the article were not correct (of which I apologize, I wrote it) they did present some information which was hitherto unknown. I hope that I am not to be solely judged on the factuality of what I say, but hope that the response from others, both written and acted, be included somewhere. Thank you for your letter. It's encouraging to know that the administration reads the Critic so closely.

* * *

Dear Mr. Rice:

Oliver Wendell Holmes said: "Life is action and passion; therefore it is required of a man that he should share in the passion and action of his time at peril of being judged not to have lived."

You have asked the faculty to give you the dialogue for which you are "starving." Very well, Mr. Rice. Let it be just that. A sharing of the action and the passion. A dialogue. A conversation.

There are, it seems to me in this present and urgent time, two basic assumptions upon which we need to agree: first, that we, the faculty and the students, are here engaged in mutual endeavor, in intellectual pursuits; and second, that we, the students and faculty, are desirous of constructive ends.

The problem is that we do not know who we are nor for whom we speak. Mr. Bietz, the Freshman Counsilman, draws the picture of the students: 10,000 students were eligible to vote in the last election; 1800 voted; 8200 students did not vote. And so with 18 per cent of the student body electing the President, who represents the students? The President? The Student Counell? Some of the council members were elected with fewer than 400 votes—4 per cent. Who really speaks for the students?

On the other hand, who really speaks for the faculty? Not I. I am just one, even as you are, Mr. Rice, neither of us having been "elected" to speak, but both of us involved enough to try to speak. For the faculty there are the Faculty Association and the Academic Senate, 335 members strong. From the Academic Senate there is elected the Executive Council, 15 members in all. It will cheer you, Mr. Rice, to know that of the 335 ballots distributed 260 were returned; of those 235 were valid; hence 71 per cent of the faculty voted for their representatives. Which is not exactly "apathy," either "warm," "womb," or otherwise. But it's no record to shout about. That's for sure.

And so perhaps no one can speak with the voice of authority for either segment. Irritating as that may be, inefficient as that may be, nevertheless, Mr. Rice, it is the way of democracy. And this might well be a third assumption that both students and faculty need to support—the democratic structure and democratic techniques. And where they are in peril, where they operate in a dangerous vacuum, it is time that both students and faculty concern themselves.

But how can there be a dialogue if not everyone is in possession of the words? Is it truly a fact that "only 3,000 copies of the paper are printed for a student body of over 10,000 people" and 335 faculty? I shall certainly raise this as a question at the next meeting of the Executive Council of the Academic Senate.

Which brings us to the matter of the Student Union. The students need one. Of this there is no doubt. You say that "the student should receive priority in the education system." Of this there is no doubt. The whole concept of the junor college is based in this belief. But there are priorities and priorities, Mr. Rice. Consider before we get involved in a semantic quicksand. The Administrative Services Building (I cannot think of a less fortunate choice of words, but you've got to be patient with educational jargon, Mr. Rice; it so often embodies the "disinclination to think")—that building is totally and completely dedicated to the service of the students, all 10,000 of them. That building will house the offices of Student Welfare, the Registrar's Office, the Bookstore, Student Activities Office, Educational Management, Placement, Testing, Counseling, Student Finance Office, a conference room, a lecture hall seating around 300.

That building will not give "aid and comfort to the enemy," Mr. Rice—nor aid and comfort to faculty or to administration. Hopefully, it will give aid and comfort to the students. It is not a question of whether the faculty can't continue to operate under the current deplorable conditions so much as whether the students are not entitled to better conditions and better services. I submit that "services" come before "lounges." Lest you do not know, the Executive Council of the Academic Senate is on record that top priority be given to the creation of a student lounge in the Bookstore when it is vacated, this admittedly being at best only a temporary measure.

And so, Mr. Rice, hopefully this might be a beginning at dialogue between those engaged in a mutual endeavor, toward constructive ends, within a democratic framework.

Barbara Y. Brackett
Instructor
Department of English

Thank you very much Barbara Brackett. Your letter came at a moment when it seemed that all was lost in the world of the dialogist. In principle I must agree with your three assumptions, in practice I cannot say until the situation presents itself. My editorial is only a part of what I am talking about.

When you say that the building will not give "aid and comfort to the enemy" I must disagree. The offices of those who hand us well-meaning words and little constructive ACTION.

Minister Of The Night

By Jerry Ganley

If you read beyond the title it means you will help people without looking for pay, or you're killing time between classes and it's this or read cereal boxes.

I want to tell you about a group of people who wait for a phone to ring between 10 p.m. and 5 a.m. seven nights a week. Listen to what happens when the phone is answered.

"Hello! Night Ministry."

"I want to talk to someone because I'm depressed."

"Can I help you or do you want to talk to the Night Minister?"

The conversation will continue unless the person wants to see the Reverend Donald Stuart, in which case he will be located and put in touch with the caller. Most often callers will just want to talk, and the volunteer listens to the lonliness that comes out at night. Don Stuart, and the two ministers that relieve him two nights a week have been on "Night Ministry" for three years. Unless on a call, they can usually be found in the tenderloin where people of the night congregate.

There are suicide threats and just the lost, the lonely, and the depressed. All ages and walks of life referred by strangers or even by Ma Bell. The link between Don and his people are those who will sit in a room on 14th street one night a week each month and answer the phone.

A volunteer does not need more than understanding, and the ability to listen to and relate to another human being. There is a training program, so if you're interested call Margaret Pettigrew at 585-1034 between 6:00 and 7:30 p.m.

If some night between 10 p.m. and 5 a.m. you feel the need, or know someone who does, call "The Night Minister" at 621-8282 or 621-8283.

My greatest enemy is the status quo, it stinks.—Ed.

* * *

Dear Free Critic:

The elections for student body offices for next semester will be a farce. Those elected will take their respective positions feeling that they have a mandate from the students to do what they have been doing for years —nothing.

This is the fault of Change party, and consequently Change owes the students an apology.

For the past two semesters the students of this campus have shown their preference in leadership and student goals by electing a solid Change majority to council. However, each semester Change has abdicated their responsibility by losing that majority (due to poor grades or lack of required units) before the semester was over.

There are rationalizations Change members can make. They can point out that student government is an exercise in futility; that getting things done is like the proverbial needle in the haystack, you may find the material needing alteration, but you just can't find the tool to change it with. On the other hand, apathy on this campus presses down, a hard burden to carry.

Why are the USA people able to function while Change was not? Partly because they are essentially trivial. They have in the past had no concrete goals and pursued no defined path towards student problems. Secondly, USA represents a clique of glory hunters that has perpetuated itself out of S.F. high schools into CCSF.

However, our purpose is an apology, not mud slinging. Change offers an apology for not participating in the forthcoming elections, and consequently leaving CCSF in the hands of USA.

Ross Klutke Change Party Member

Good-by Change. Hopefully some of the people involved in Change will continue to be involved in campus activities outside of student government. Perhaps by forming a solid group that can function together for changes on campus (by petitioning, demonstrating, etc.) they can be more effective than they were in the bureaucratic system of student government here. The dichotomy which existed, and eventually destroyed itself in the Student Council may function better in two separate groups, rather than one. Each may be able to bring about constructive changes in their own ways; one through the bureaucracy that it bathes in, and the other in direct confrontation with the powers that be. Most Change members will probably agree with me when I state that the latter manner seems to be the most effective since they witnessed the failure of the former in many instances.—Ed.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

ACP Press

Vol. 65, No. 10 — WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 3, 1968 — Page 2

'Foster Parents' Clarify Status Of AS Adopted Vietnamese Boy

IT HAS COME to our attention by a letter from Foster Parents Plan, Inc., that charges, carried in an editorial of the November 15 issue of The Guardsman, are false. Vu Van Thanh is alive, well, but is no longer the adoptee child of the Associated Students.

Thanh has been sponsored by an Elk's Lodge since June this year, the letter relates, but more specifically, charges brought up in the editorial are answered. The letter cites much enlightening information before unknown to us. The letter reads as follows, with the charge preceding the response:

● "Vu Van Thanh was adopted by the AS in 1965."

"Vu Van Thanh was assigned in July 1966, a month after the AS check arrived. The attached photostat of the application, signed by President Joe M. Parnell of AS, was careful to commit the Associated Students for one year only."

This is true and it is our mistake.

● "Last Spring the first $180 of the profits from a concert was used to help continue supporting young Thanh."

"The $180 sent for Thanh in June 1966 was the only support money ever received. An extra $33 was sent on October 31, 1966, as a Christmas gift for the child and duly acknowledged to AS by the child."

This again is true as pointed out by both the company and the AS President. The concert was, in fact, a flop, as the president remarked, but the officers in charge assumed that what profits were made were sent. They were mistaken. This mistake wasn't admitted until after the Foster Parents sent its letter.

● "Inquiries made by Guardsman reports bring the same nebulous answer, 'I don't know anything about it, see . . .'"

"NO INQUIRIES have been made by AS to Foster Parents' Plan since the signed application and note accompanying the Christmas gift, 1966."

Officers in Bungalow 5 related only that no correspondence had been received for months from either the Foster Parents' Plan or the boy—some thought the AS was still supporting Thanh. These officers told how action was and would be taken to find the boy when, in fact, nothing did happen.

● "The first letter from Thanh seemed fabricated."

"Thanh was less than 7 years old when he was adopted by the AS. The information sheet sent with Thanh's photo and case history stated that 'if a child is too young to write, his letter will be written for him by a relative, friend or social worker.'"

A check with former President Parnell reveals that he was fully aware of this situation. However, no one else seemed to be when asked—Why?

"You will also find attached to this letter copies of the two letters sent to the AS asking them to let us know whether or not they would continue supporting their child for another year. Associated Students did not answer. On June 27, 1967, a third and final letter was sent to them announcing that the child had been cancelled from their care."

THIS PRESENTS ONE OF THE KEY puzzles in this snafu for no one knows the whereabouts of these letters or the ones written by (or for) the boy. The Guardsman has the copies sent, with the letter, asking for renewal, but only Parnell has or will admit seeing the originals. Had these requests for renewal been seen, the program might not have been cancelled.

The former AS President, who piloted the program, reports that all correspondence was forwarded to the Soph Class President. Diane Lattimer, then the Soph President, denies reception of the material in question. Obviously something is wrong here—it's just that even now no one can be sure who made the now evident mistakes.

Had the charges been true, we would stick by our guns—but we aimed at the wrong people. Someone in the AS office made a big mistake and we, but most of all Foster Parents' Plan, Inc., paid for it.

The Guardsman was taken for a ride in this runaround and we sincerely regret any injury we may have caused Foster Parent Plan, Inc., for they were, it has clearly been revealed, not at fault in this matter.

Statler Shut For Faculty Party, So Cold Students Stage 'Sit-In'

By John Bendoritis

The closing of Statler Wing to students, and an outside agitator, Jack Frost, gave rise to City College's first "sit-in" at Smith Hall cafeteria, December 13.

Students, who were seated in the cafeteria, were asked to leave when restaurant personnel began their routine cleanup, and Statler Wing was closed for the day to students for preparation for the faculty Christmas party.

The students, suddenly faced with the prospect of the cold outside and gusts of icy wind, weren't eager to budge and were prompted by some of the more warm-blooded souls to "stay seated."

Dean Ralph Hillman was advised that things were at a "sitstill" and he quickly declared a section of Smith Hall open until 4 p.m.

Hillsman later explained that because of the increased faculty here the party was held in Statler Wing this year and that it was simply an oversight that other facilities weren't made available for students.

He stated provisions will be made in advance if Statler Wing is closed to students again in the future.

Statler Wing now closes at 4 p.m., he commented, because last semester it was held open until 7:30 p.m. on a trial basis. However, the small number of persons utilizing it didn't warrant keeping it open.

Guardsman Staff—Fall 1967

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 246.)

(The Guardsman, its faculty adviser and staff have no responsibility for or control over material printed on the page with the Free Critic masthead.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... STEVEN HARA
Managing Editor ..... Lori Pittman
Features Editor ..... Marty Arbunich
Staff Editor ..... Glynn Petrie
News Editor ..... Ed Holmes
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan
Editorial Assistants: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, Douglas Dorn, John Janigian, Ron Lent, John La-Tourneau, Viago Petersen.
Reporters: John Bendoritis, Berry Brown, Tim Bryson, Arthur Fantalis, Tom Graham, Barbara Hamann, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf.
Cub Reporters: Lani Brand, Elizabeth Callan, Rita Carroll, Dave Huffine, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Dennis Mundt, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom, May Ling Wong.
Photographers: Ed Brune, Chief; Gary W. Batchelor, Paul Bekezy, James Bruce, Carol Gillmore, Roberto Guillen, Fred Harris, Robert Kim, Klaus Kotz, Gary Lee, Garth Ogle, Mike Reams, Chris Rozales, Richard Spitaleri, Kevin Tobin, Mark Weiland, Samuel Woo.
Guardsman Faculty Adviser ..... Jean Nourse

Vantage Point

by Glynn Petrie

DOWN WITH THIS! Down with that! We protest, we demand, we won't go, we won't allow . . ." chant the mobs. Everything is being protested these days, all in the name of freedom and lofty ideals. Nothing escapes the attack of hysteria and mass idiocy.

Students going to school ostensibly to learn something suddenly feel eminently qualified to tell everybody else what to do and how to do it.

Knowledge and experience are not the requirements for leadership, but ignorance, emotion and immaturity are. The blind are having visions and instructing those with sight how to cross the street.

IT IS THOUGHT ridiculous that an actor run for public office but perfectly appropriate for baby doctors, poets, folk singers, acid-heads, communists, senile old men and, of course, students to advise the government on American policy in international affairs.

Free advice from the unknowing is in the spirit of democracy but if the country does not heed the demands of the ignorant minority it is claimed that it is not a democracy. Democracy only exists if the protestors get their way.

If they do not get what they want, if the nation does not do what they say, they feel completely justified in resorting to violence and active obstruction to achieve what they feel is right.

BUT IF VIOLENCE is justified for the dissenters to achieve "right," the majority (the villainous "establishment") is also justified in using violence to maintain what it believes is right.

However, when violence is employed against those who initiate it, the protesting ones claim their freedom is being stifled and run around screaming at the top of their lungs that they're not being allowed to speak.

The philosophy is, "If we start pushing you around we are exercising our freedom of expression—if you then try to stop us you are stifling our freedom and being tyrannical."

Few question that behind each protest movement there may be noble ideals and high-minded individuals, but there are also the thousands who are against the Vietnam war not because they think it wicked and sinful but because they would rather not get shot at.

PROTESTERS ARE NOT against drafting young men; they're against getting themselves drafted, despite the exalted ideas they give lip service to. Where were they when draftees were being sent to occupied Germany, drinking beer and dancing with the fraulein? But when the shooting starts the whole principle of conscription suddenly becomes evil.

Publicity is also a motive for raising one's voice in self-righteous objection. Judging correctly the news media's natural gravitation toward discordant events and bigmouthed individuals, dissenters thoroughly enjoy the coverage they get and the worried looks on those who exclain, "What's the world coming to?"

THEY ARE THE CENTER of attention whether they are the mill-in crowd at Berkeley happily gurgling out their protest song for the news cameras or a single "student leader" waving his arms and mane in the air in bitter invective against the "1984-type society" which he claims denies him freedom of speech.

Dissent today has failed to be rational or intelligent, it has failed to be responsible and worst of all it has failed to be democratic. Free speech is only for those who agree with the dissenters, others are shouted down or assaulted.

Until the protest movement ceases to operate from a plane of blind emotion and thickheadedness and becomes willing to listen to something else besides the endless restatement of its own beliefs, it does not merit either attention or respect. You can't reason with stampeding cattle.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

(Letters to the Editor may be left in the switchboard office, S-169, in Science Hall or in the Guardsman office, S-304. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. The Guardsman reserves the right to edit letters in the interests of brevity and rhetoric. If so desired, the writer's name will be withheld, but the identity of the writer must be known to the editor.)

● Police Budget Cut

Editor, The Guardsman:

I am writing this letter to inform the students of the recent cuts concerning the Campus Police (CP) budget by Student Council. Though the cuts are not final (at the writing of this letter), I feel it important to let the students know what's going on.

In recent years, I am told, the CP budget has always been under fire. In the past, personal campaigns have been launched to delete the CP budget altogether. Fortunately, such attempts have not been overwhelmingly accepted by past councils.

IT WAS ON December 8 that the CP budget request was presented before council for approval. The day before, I had published a non-political memo to all councilmen (some councilmen were not located until the day of the hearing) concerning my stand on the CP budget request.

In the memo, I pointed out the services that are provided by the CP, as well as the facts on why the parking fees went to the city instead of to the college, as well as why it was not feasible for the college to undertake such a project.

I further pointed out that the CP budget request was 28 per cent lower than last fall, and 71 per cent lower than that of a year ago.

The CP budget was not cut as badly as in previous years; whether or not this was due to my memo is questionable. The majority of Student Councilmen decided to cut (among other things) a car-opening kit, half of the red-lighted traffic batons requested, half of the batteries requested, and all of the night sticks requested.

THE FIRST MOTION was to cut all service batons and night sticks because there was a possibility that these defensive weapons might be used against students. I considered the rationalization behind this motion to be faulty.

As Sophomore Councilman Chris Loo said to me after the meeting, "It's like saying policemen should not be given pistols because they might shoot someone, or firemen not given fire hoses because they might use it against demonstrators."

DESPITE MY PERSONAL feelings about the CP (for or against it), I believe it is important for them to be given the equipment they need to function as an effective unit. Their hands should not be tied by financial strings that would decrease their vital services to the college and AS.

If we were to lay our personal feelings aside, we would find that we are doing ourselves a disfavor by eliminating certain pieces of equipment from the CP budget.

What good is a teacher who doesn't have a blackboard? What good is the CP half equipped—or do we expect them to do a half effective job?

Derrick K. Quan,
Frosh Councilman

● Copies of the memo were sent to all councilmen and may be obtained in B-5.—Editor.

Tear gas canisters employed by the Oakland police force contain 60 squirts.

Shots At RAMdom

by Ed Holmes

OPENING VOLLEY: Everybody knows the Christmas vacation is an annual godsend to students and faculty alike. While individuals may spend the time in various ways, collectively there was little difference between the way these two groups spent the holidays.

The frantic ones used the spare time to do things they should have done before, while most of us used the time not doing things we should have been doing.

Everyone spent weeks or months looking forward to it and now, two days after, most of us wonder where it went.

We can tell you a little of what took place here on campus during the holidays.

Administrators got down to the serious business of administering without the interference of faculty and students.

Paper pushers pushed paper efficiently, circuitously, frantically or calmly as suited their individual personalities, all with a freedom not possible when interferring students and faculty are in the area.

Custodians who seldom bother to alter work schedules for, or even acknowledge the presence of, faculty and students were able to see real results for a change.

Restroom walls stayed clean for two weeks, waxed floors were given a chance and many waste baskets stayed empty all vacation long.

* * *

The only people to really miss the vacationers were the sandscrapers. As with any true artistic group, these people perform best in front of an appreciative audience and, frankly, the house has been pretty poor these last two weeks.

Oh, they put in some time, but their hearts obviously weren't in it. With no lectures to drown out, the jackhammers sounded almost hollow and the compressors and heavy equipment seemed muted.

Their spirit sagged so badly that at one point they were in real danger of being routed by an army of neighborhood youngsters.

These lads found the maze of ditches, revetments, etc., made a perfect test ground for their Christmas war toys. The clatter of A. J. Shooter and Co. gave way to sounds of little shooters and their AR-16's, bazookas, grenade launchers, and so on.

POT SHOTS

We're pleased to note that next semester's Associated Student President and other officers received a clear and overwhelming mandate from the voters.

● In a hack room of the Campus Police complex is a large sign admonishing the ticket givers not to tag fellow officers' cars. Does the adage about honor among thieves apply?

● The suggestion box tacked onto an outside wall of the Rampodium has not drawn an overwhelming response. Before the holidaze only two notes were found; one complaining about lousy coffee and the other about not enough hours in which to buy coffee.

● The COO-sponsored Santa Claus contest netted almost $500. Recipient of the award was Ron Lent, who cheerfully interrupted his preparations for the Chanukah Holiday to serve.

● Found but not understood in The Guardsman's mailbox in the Student Council office: Rick is God.

● Far be it from us to question the results of a well-run election, but the official results of the latest here on campus stated that 112 votes had been cast. We raise a question because our own ballot was number 117 and we saw several people vote after we did.

● We've finally discovered the secret of success employed by the best reporter in Journ. 21A. She's taking Comm. G 5A at the same time.

● Have you notice that diabolical weapon the constructioneers use to drive a nail into several inches of concrete? Chilling to watch but it was used in building that new wooden bench over the cement planter n Cloud Patio.

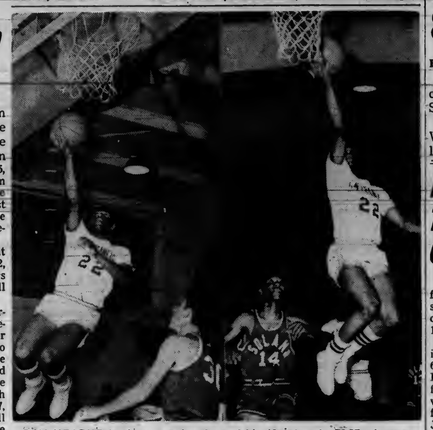
● Speaking of chilling, it'll be nice not to sit on that cold concrete these damp and chilly mornings.

● It will disappoint the sauna enthusiasts on campus to learn that they have reportedly fixed that leaky steam pipe in the Finance Office.

Rams Beaten In Tourney

Cagers Streak Ends At 7; Finish Preseason, 9-4

By Arthur Fanfelle



The defending champion Ram cagers were knocked out of the 30th annual Modesto College Christmas Tournament when San Joaquin Delta beat them, 79-75, December 22. This is the same team which eliminated the Rams from the Bakersfield Tournament earlier last month. The loss ended a seven game Ram win streak as well as the preseason, with a 9-4 record.

The Rams started the tournament by bombing College of Sequoias, 93-62, with Ray Hearne leading all scorers with 21 points, followed by Darrell Fregia, who had 19 points.

THE SECOND GAME of the tournament saw the Rams go down to defeat. San Joaquin Delta, who later went on to the final game and lost to Cerritos, defeated the Rams despite a brilliant second half comeback led by Hearne and Telvis Jones. The Rams had all five starters finish with double figures as Jones led with 17, Gary Bradford added 14, Jacob Hill 13, Isaiah Pruitt 12 and Hearne cashed in for 11 points.

Laney invaded this campus on December 19 to find themselves victims of the Rams' sixth straight win. On the opening tipoff Laney took the ball and drove to the basket for two points, but it was the wrong basket, giving the Rams the lead. That mistake turned out to be very significant as the Rams won it, 74-71. With the score tied at 71 apiece and 28 seconds left on the clock, Laney fouled Telvis Jones, who made the first and missed the second free throw, but Hill took the rebound and was also fouled. Hill made both shots, giving the win to the Rams. Hearne paced the team with 19 points with Seabron hitting 14 and Bradford 11.

COACH SID PHELAN'S crew played Saint Mary's Frosh on December 15. Trailing by eight at the half, a Ram rally in the second half tied the score at 69-all on a Bradford jumper with only one minute remaining. Saint Mary's then stalled, but Hearne stole a pass and layed the ball in with 10 seconds left for a 71-69 win. Hearne led all scorers with 24 points.

RAY HEARNE is shown getting four of his 18 points in 78-57 win over Solano. Hearne saw limited action in the first half, but got 16 digits after intermission. His jumping ability and fine outside shot make him tough to stop. —Guardsman photos by Chris Rozales (l.), Samuel Woo

American River fell to the Rams' hot shooting, but the victory was costly in that they lost starting forward Tom Kuhn for the year with an injury to his knee, as City College rolled up a 51-40 win.

The Rams tipped the San Jose State Frosh 71-67 with Bradford accounting for 22 digits. Others who attained double figures were Hearne, Telvis Jones and Hill.

WEST VALLEY was downed by the Rams 73-62 as Bradford scored 17 and Kuhn notched 16 in a game played December 9 at City College.

Solano was completely manhandled by a score of 78-54 with Hearne leading all scorers with 18 points, December 7 in the Rams' gym.

The Ram quintet traveled to Hamilton Air Force Base where they were dumped, 72-55. Former All-City basketballer Vance DeVost led the winners with 15 points while Hearne and Telvis Jones paced the Rams with 12 points apiece.

Rams, Foothill In Tilt Friday

City College of San Francisco's basketball team will meet Foothill this Friday, in a game scheduled to start at 8 p.m. at Foothill.

The Rams will be entering this game with a considerably weaker team than last year's 30-3 team. Despite a few early season losses, the Rams could pick up quite a bit of momentum with a win over the Owls.

Foothill is also having problems this year with a lack of height, and only two returning lettermen, Jeff Frost and Simon O'Hanlon. Frost will be counted on to carry most of the offensive punch for new head coach, Jerry Cole.

After the Foothill game the Rams will prepare for their meeting with San Jose City College next Tuesday.

Booters Capture Another State Title; Tigue Paces 8-1 Win Over Compton

By John LeTourneau

The City College soccer team sewed up its fifth straight State championship by whipping Compton 8-1, December 16, at El Doros Stadium in Torrance, California.

Inside right Jerry Tigue paced the victory with four goals. All-Western Junior College Soccer Conference star Otey Cannon and left wing Mickey Duzdevich scored two goals apiece to round out the Ram scoring.

THE RAMS got on the scoreboard quickly as they got two early goals in the first quarter and never looked back. In the second period Tigue, Cannon and Duzdevich scored goals to give the Rams a 5-0 halftime lead.

Coach Roy Diederichsen was very happy with the outcome and had praise for the entire squad. "We put together one of our best all-around games of the year, as we scored well and played excellent on defense, the Ram coach said. Also playing a big part in the victory were halfbacks Sal Corona and Pete Bogatsky, fullbacks Roger Sarria, Marshall Granger and Braulio Trigueros, who kept the ball away from the Ram goal.

Compton had some very good players, Diederichsen commented, but they didn't play very well together. "Two starting front line players missed the contest as they couldn't make the game on account of other commitments." Diederichsen said. "They had five Jamacian players who were very big and fast," the Ram mentor said.

IN THE SECOND half the Rams started off slowly as Tigue scored the Rams' sixth goal. In the fourth period City College scored two quick goals to make the score stand at 8-0. For the entire quarter it looked as if the Rams were going to shut out their Southern California opponents for the fifth consecutive time. However, fullback Granger and goalie Arnie Harrott had a mix-up as a simple pass from Granger to the goalie went through the nets for a Compton score.

Phi Delta, Spoilers Tangle As G'men, Outcasts Expire

The Spoilers and Phi Delta will play for the Associated Men Student-sponsored intramural basketball league championship at Sport Night, January 11.

Phi Delta held off The Guardsman in the second half to win going away 60-30. Brian Wicklow's 16 points and Bill Lichtenberger's 12 points and the fine board work by both paced the win. John Casey and Dale Sutton hit for 11 and 10, respectively, to add to Jeff Barker's fine floor play.

The Guardsman kept it close for a half, mainly on the shooting of Mike Duggan, who hit for 15. John Franecivich added nine and John LeTourneau four, but were held in check after intermission. Fine rebounding by Ed Holmes and Tom Graham gave the journalists some bright moments.

The Spoilers outlasted the ABA Greats, 59-52, as the all-around play of Stan Hunt sparked the victory. Hunt scored 16 points plus clearing the boards. Jose Fabiani and Mickey Senn scored 12 and 11 markers each to add to the Spoiler attack.

Mike Jackson and Bill Delaney's outside shooting kept the Outcasts in the game throughout the contest.—J.L.

Labelled And Recorded

The Modernization Of Plain Song

by Marty Arbunich

The Electric Prunes . . . . . .

MASS IN F MINOR—Reprise: Kyrie Eleison; Gloria; Credo; Sanctus; Benedictus; Agnus Dei. (Time: 24:43)

THIS NEW YEAR is barely off the ground and there's already some interesting specimens of musical progress to be challenged by the stalwart neophobiacs (fearers of the new).

This new album by the Electric Prunes is such a specimen and, unlike the evolutionary advancement exemplified by groups like the Beatles or Stones, takes on more of a daring revolutionary approach.

Specifically, this recording brings together two idioms of music—popular music and traditional plain song—which, up to the release of this recording, were like two aliens, smugly existing in respective little worlds and were analogous only from the point that they were both ignorant of the other's existence.

A few popular recordings have experimented with the chanting which is typical of church music and, it should be added, there have been some very beautiful productions. The Bee Gees injected the chanting angle in their superb Every Christian Lion Hearted Man, the Yardbirds in Still I'm Sad and the Association's Requiem For The Masses is also another remarkable 'churchy' number.

However, each of the aforementioned songs apply basic religious chanting to popular music rather than conversely applying the latter's electric, emotional hard beat to the music of plain song.

This is where the Mass In F Minor scores with remarkable success. The songs on this record are performed with the same traditional religious lyrics, the Christian significance of worship is still there—however, modernization has stepped in.

The arrangement on this album is so well handled that no matter how classic and preserved the lyrics are, the instrumentation (the screaming guitar, the throbbing drums—even a sitar) is as beautifully.

The chanting done by the Electric Prunes is also impressive. Their vocal blend doesn't form the traditional bass sound of plain song; the voices combine into a baritone pitch which occasionally rises to tenor and, though there are a few instances of minor dissonance, the overall quality of harmony is refined.

This record not only reveals how a modernized version of church music (with all its advanced instrumentation) would sound, but also indicates quite convincingly that church music today is obsolete and therefore in need of alterations.

There have been a few trials which have experimented using folk music and jazz in church services, but, to this writer's knowledge, there have been no major attempts at revamping the past.

"The times they are a-changin'," Bob Dylan once wrote. Even the clergy should be aware of this. If any of their hierarchy are tuned in to this column, this writer recommends them to first listen to this innovative recording—and then discern Dylan's truth.

• • •

Keeping up with the latest LP releases has some definite financial hangups, but the AC Doughty shop (on Geary near 14th Ave.) assures considerable relief to musical economists. Those interested in splurging (or just being selective) after raking up Yuletide profits will find a handsome savings attached to Doughty's standard $2.98 stereo/mono rate.

• • •

Still in the bargain corner: The Rolling Stone is a must publication for all serious music fans. It's an underground paper with timely news and down-to-earth critical articles. It respects the readers and is reasonably priced—just 25c at scattered news stands and also by mail from RS Offices, 746 Brannan Street. Issue five is currently on sale.

• • •

Steve Miller and Vanilla Fudge will top the Fillmore's bill for this weekend; Siegal-Schwall Band and Chambers Bros. next week; Butterfield Band and Charles Lloyd Jan. 18-20; Eric Burdon & the Animals and the Youngbloods Jan. 25-27.

Scouts Seek Two-Year College Star Athletes

WHEN O. J. SIMPSON was recently named the UPI's Player of the Year and finished second in the voting for the Heisman Trophy, it marked the end of the greatest year ever for a man only one year out of junior college.

Simpson has now become the most famous two-year college transfer in collegiate football history. Joey Bishop remarked while introducing Simpson as his special guest that over 70 million people had watched O. J. blitz UCLA over nationwide television. Since then, Simpson has appeared on the Bob Hope Special, Ed Sullivan and Merv Griffin shows.

SIMPSON HAS helped change the times and now more than ever before, the college scout will pay first attention to a junior college athlete rather than a prep.

A junior college star is more proven than a high schooler, and therefore becomes less of a risk for a four-year college to offer him a scholarship.

John Deschler, after a year at City College and All-Golden Gate Conference honors, went to Los Angeles State College and promptly made, as a linebacker, the 1967 All-California Collegiate Athletic Association team.

GETTING BACK to Simpson, he also helped USC's track team to an NCAA title last spring and was a member of the foursome which also included Lennox Miller, Earl McCullough and Fred Kuller that set a new 440-yard relay world record of 38.6. Of the four, only Miller is not a junior college transfer, and it's doubtful if Jamaica (his home country) has any.

McCullouch, All-Coast end for the Trojan gridders this year, was an opponent of Simpson's when City College beat Long Beach, 40-20, for the 1965 Prune Bowl.

Last year's Prune Bowl winners, Laney, sent two of its stars on to California, where both were starters this year—defensive end Irby Augustine (most valuable lineman in Laney's 35-13 Prune Bowl win over City College last year) and fullback John McGaffie.

The Bear cagers also have received benefit from the two-year colleges this year as both guard Trent Gaines and center Bob Frasley have gained starting berths. Gains was an All-Southern California performer last year for state runner-up Long Beach. The 6-11 Presley made third team All-State last year as a member of Mt. San Jacinto.

USC'S CAGERS are led by Bill Hewitt and Mack Calvin, the Trojan's top scorer last year, formerly played for Mt. San Antonio, where he earned All-State honors. Calvin was a teammate of Gaines last season and made the second team All-State.

Bob Rule, currently in the running for NBA Rookie of the Year as a member of the new Seattle Supersonics, was a former junior college star at Riverside.

TWO YEARS ago, seven-foot Larry Bunce led Riverside to the state title by scoring 30 points against City College in the championship game. Today, Bunce is starting center for the ABA's Anaheim team, although he was second string at Utah State last year and still had a year of college eligibility remaining.

Close to home, Santa Clara, picked to win the WCAC title this year, has added two former San Mateo eagers to its squad, Terry O'Brien and Chris Dempsey. O'Brien, former Sacred Heart high school star, is a starter for the Broncos.

Eddie Wilson and Charlie Parks, who helped Sid Phelan's squad to a 30-3 season in 1965, are both starters again this year for Idaho State. In their season opener, Wilson hit 21 points and Parks had 20.

While Willie Wise (Drake) and Gene Williams (Kansas State) headed east to resume their college careers, two other members of last year's Ram 30-3 team are now playing for San Francisco State. Girard Chatman, a reserve last year, is starting center and has already hit for 32 points in one Gator victory. Darling Thomas, All-Conference forward last year, will be eligible during the second semester for the Gators and will undoubtedly move right into a starting role.

The list of successful two-year college athletes goes on and on and will continue to grow even more now that the precedent has been set that a proven junior college star is much more likely to make it in college competition than the local high school hero.

• • •

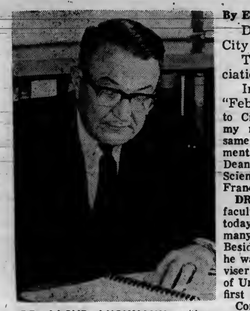
The 1967 two-year college state playoffs ended in a rout as Fullerton whipped American River, 41-0, for the state championship.

• • •

IN THE SMALL school division of the state championship, Hartnell won the title by beating Reedley, 40-21. Hartnell, who tied Marin, 29-29, in their first playoff game, continued on to the title after winning a coin flip from the Tarheels, was led throughout the season by halfback Rocky Thompson. Thompson broke O. J. Simpson's single season rushing record and almost topped Simpson's scoring mark. Simpson scored 166 points last year for City College while Thompson ended the season with 154 points.

RAMBLINGS

By Mike Duggan



Simpson Heads List Of Grad Standouts

The Guardsman / Free Critic

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 65 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 10, 1968 NUMBER 11

Luckmann Ends Thirty-Two Year Service At City College

DR. LLOYD LUCKMANN, acting president of the college and former coordinator of instruction, resigns his post in February to assume an appointment to the faculty of the University of San Francisco. —Guardsman photo by Gary Kreutz

By Ed Holmes

Dr. Lloyd D. Luckmann announced his pending retirement from City College last week.

The Acting President will, with this move, terminate an association with City College that has spanned more than 32 years.

In a memorandum to the faculty, Dr. Luckmann announced, "February 16, 1968, will mark the conclusion of my active service to City College. I have applied for my retirement benefits and at the same time have accepted an appointment as Professor and as Associate Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of San Francisco."

DR. LUCKMANN, a member of this faculty before the vast majority of today's students were born, has logged many firsts during his tenure here. Besides being on the original faculty, he was this college's first Business Adviser for The Guardsman, first Dean of University Parallel Courses and the first Coordinator of Instruction.

Commenting on his move to USF, the veteran staff member said, "This decision was made entirely on the basis of self-interest with the expectation that my new assignment will not only be less demanding but will return me to the role of counselor and teacher."

A KEEN INTEREST in civic affairs has led Dr. Luckmann to appointments to the board of directors of such varied organizations as the Family and Child agency, The American Association of the United Nations, the Catholic Association of International Peace, the Conference of Christians and Jews, the Carnegie Foundation's Council on Religion and International Affairs and the World Affairs Council.

His academic degrees include a B.A. from University of San Francisco, an M.A. from Stanford, an LL.B. from University of S.F. and an Ed.D. from Stanford.

Student Council Approves Spring Semester Budget

By Tom Graham

Under the guidance of Ross Klutke, finance chairman, Student Council approved a budget of $40,604.78 for the Spring semester of 1968.

The proposed budget was cut 10 per cent. The only items not included in this cut were The Guardsman, Student Insurance, and Forensics Club. According to Klutke, the reason for this is that a set sum is needed in order for these activities to function effectively.

COUNCIL PASSED an appropriation of $500 for a school in Chile. This will provide a portion of the money necessary for completing the school's construction.

An additional appropriation of $175 was allocated for the A Cappella Choir.

The largest budgets for Spring '68, amounting to more than $20,000, are The Guardsman ($5664.64); Concert and Lecture series ($4005.00); Drama ($3240); Controller ($2956.50); Varsity Baseball ($2570.56) and Track ($2333.80).

ASSOCIATED STUDENT President-Elect Ray Bietz and Frosh Councilman Derrick Quan are conducting a poll here on registration day, which is entitled "A survey for better service from the Municipal Railway."

Some of the questions that will be covered are "Have you ever been late to class because of the bus/trolley line? Have you ever been passed by because the bus/trolley line was too crowded?"

The results will be taken to Supervisor Jack Morrison who has promised to see to it that there is a public hearing concerning the problem. Bietz and Quan also will try to get City College student car tickets.

The annual AS student government awards banquet will be held at 6:30 p.m. tonight in the dining room in Smith Hall. The new President and Vice President of the AS will be inaugurated and awards will be given to a faculty member and a student for outstanding service to the AS this semester.

'Ban The Mom' Says Chronicle Columnist Hoppe

By Marc Clarkson

Art Hoppe, political columnist for the San Francisco Chronicle, was to give a lecture last week on the subject of The New Morality. But he didn't.

Instead, he talked about almost every other subject of public and world importance—and satirically too.

HOPPE EXPLAINED THAT all over the country people are lecturing on this topic, and that he always wanted to stand before an audience and say a few words about the New Morality but believes that "there isn't any." Instead he talked about "total birth control."

When Hoppe thinks of the problems we face today, he claims first to think of President Johnson, but quickly adds, "Don't get me wrong. No one loves our President more than I... I worship the very quicksand he walks on."

Hoppe makes it known he isn't an expert on President Johnson. "I don't write satirical articles on him; instead, I write television scripts." One featuring Elbie Jay.

ON THE VIETNAM conflict he believes that Johnson has kept his promise to "seek no wider war."

Hoppe states: "What we got was a longer, narrow one." He added that we are merely bombing the "pejabbers" out of "East Vhtnng (North Vietnam) to force them to the peace table... You can't sign a peace treaty with someone you aren't waging war on."

On the topic of national security, the United States, along with the Russians, the Chinese and the French are making hydrogen bombs "in order to feel secure."

HOPPE INSISTS that the United States has more ballistic missiles than the Russians; but the Russians have more antiballistic missiles than the United States.

Instead of equipping ourselves with antiballistic missiles, "we gave the whole thing up. Instead of competing with the Russians, we are going to make anti-Chinese ballistic missiles. That way, we won't make the Russians mad. And we certainly can't make the Chinese any madder than they are anyway."

In the final analysis, Hoppe strongly believes that the only solution to end the world's problems is to practice total birth control.

"So ban the mom! Think of generations yet unborn and let's keep them that way," he quipped.

Resolution Won't Concern College

A recently adopted resolution by the State College Board of Trustees which would call for local law enforcement agencies to intervene in the event of campus disturbances will not directly affect City College.

However, administrators here said this resolution could influence the San Francisco Unified School District's Board of Education into modifying their present regulations to conform with the new resolution.

This new resolution was adopted after a series of campus riots throughout the state left peaceful students defenseless in the face of physical violence. Unruly mobs, composed largely of nonstudents, ranged over the campuses and vented their frustration on persons and property.

Draft Deferments For Semiprofessionals

By Mike Wise

Men students, pursuing a two-year course of study in a semiprofessional field, who have become alarmed by the prospect of being classified 1-A by the Selective Service System can put their minds at ease.

The state headquarters of the Selective Service stated on December 7 that students enrolled in a two-year course will receive a student deferment as long as they are eligible under the regulation of the Selective Service Act of 1967.

JOHN BRADY, coordinator of student welfare, disclosed this information in reply to the many questions of concerned students regarding their draft status. The cause of this concern stems from a faulty press release prepared by the American Association of Junior Colleges.

The article, which was published locally by the San Francisco Examiner on December 7, stated that a recent Selective Service ruling lifted draft deferments for all students enrolled in programs which do not lead to a bachelor's degree.

The California Junior College Association immediately got in touch with Selective Service State Headquarters, asking for advice and counsel on the draft standing of California students, and to the relief of many, was informed that students meeting the proper requirements could receive a student deferment.

TWO-YEAR PROGRAMS, whose men students would have been affected by such a ruling, include the hotel and restaurant department, the criminology department, the business department and the horticulture department. Those majoring in these subjects can continue their studies at various other colleges and universities, if they wish to extend their deferment.

The Military Selective Service Act of 1967 provides for student deferments for full-time students and provides for the continuance of deferment until the registrant fails to pursue a full-time course of study, completes requirements for his baccalaureate degree or is 24 years old, whichever occurs first.

A full-time course of study is described as enrollment in 25 per cent of the credits needed to secure a baccalaureate degree each year, which usually amounts to 30 units a year. Enrollment in a five-year course lowers the requirement to 20 per cent per year.

ANOTHER STIPULATION in the Selective Service Act calls for the deferred registrant to notify his local draft board each year with evidence that he is satisfactorally pursuing a full-time course of study.

Brady emphasized strongly that the office of student welfare will notify the local draft board of a student's present standing, but it is the student's obligation to request such notification.

Further information is available at the student welfare office in S-132.

Greek Drama

IN DRESS REHEARSAL (l. to r.) Christine Farrell, Cynthia Nichols, Denny Leone, Dana Kaplan and Cheryl Willis practice a scene from the Greek play Lysistrata which begins it four-performance stint tonight in the college theater. —Guardsman photo by Garth Ogle

Ancient Sex, War Drama Begins Tonight In Theater

By Elizabeth Callan

The second major production this semester by City College's drama department, Lysistrata, is scheduled to open at 8:30 p.m. tonight in the college theater.

Aristophanes wrote this comedy play in 411 B.C., but the story line is interpreted as applicable to modern times because it involves a war. It is set in Ancient Greece during the time of the Peloponesian War.

THE STORY CENTERS around the women of Greece who are tired of the long absence of their husbands and plot to end the war by going on a sex strike.

The title role of Lysistrata will be performed by Dana Kaplan, who has appeared in the Strait Theater, and Jeanne Larmen plays the second major part of Myrrhini.

The play is dominated by women, and there are only three major male roles. These are played by Edward Hallmark, a member of the San Francisco Modern Dance Company, who portrays the Magistrate, while Herman Eberitzsch has the part of Kinesias, and Dennis Leone appears as the head of the male chorus.

OTHER CAST members include Sandi Lenner, Mary Lou Dale, Cheryl Willis, Sam Weiss, Christine Farrell, Louis Evans, Alex Bustamante and Robert Jones.

Students of the art department and the Drama 19 class are responsible for the elaborate stage sets, and Margrit Affoleter, also a member of the art department, has designed and supervised the students in the sewing of authentic Grecian costumes which are to be used in the play.

Lysistrata will be performed each night through and including January 13 and Director James Haran urged all students to attend one of the performances. Admission is $1.00 or free to students holding Associated Student cards.

Library Shelves To Be Opened On Experimental Basis

The library staff, which includes the librarians and Acting President Lloyd Luckmann, met January 3, and decided to open the presently closed library stacks to students on an "experimental basis."

"Beginning the first Monday in March the stacks will be opened to 25 students each hour," Dr. Luckmann said. This experiment will last for the month of March giving the librarians a month to observe and see whether opened stacks will be feasible in the college library.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT inspected the library stacks December 28, and advised that no more than 49 persons at one time be in the three floors of stacks," Dr. Luckmann added.

The 49 will include librarians and pages, student librarians and 25 students. The librarians will be ready to assist the students whenever their help is needed, and students will be permitted entrance on a first come, first served basis.

Dr. Luckmann stated that no student will be permitted to reshelve a book. This will be done only by librarians so that books will not be misplaced or lost.

THE STACKS WERE closed more than three years ago because of a large loss of books, according to Librarian Robert Begg. The closing of the stacks makes it impossible for students to browse through the books. Using the card catalogue is the only way students may presently borrow books from the library.

Dr. Luckmann explained that the month of March was chosen for this experiment because in February the new scmester begins and by March "things should be back to normal."

Bietz, Brown, Selected As Man, Woman Of Year

Ray Bietz, president-elect of the Associated Students, and Margery Brown, president of the Inter-Sorority Council, were elected the college's representatives in the Bank of America's annual Man and Woman of the Year Contest.

The winners will now compete with other student finalists in the statewide judging, the winners of which receive a $1000 scholarship to further their educations.—J. J.

The Free Critic

Tom Rice, Editor — The Critic Advisor: Mr. Berman

Vol. 1, No. 11 — WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 10, 1968 — Page 1

A Whimsical White-Winged Wombat

By Tom Rice

It's happening in the Caf

After three semesters at City College I have come to one great conclusion more education occurs in the cafeteria than in the classrooms. Reason: more active dialogue occurs between truly interested, and interesting people there than in any classroom on campus. Why does an active dialogue mean more education?

Grab any dictionary and look up the meaning of educate. It means to draw out, from the Latin educere. An active dialogue requires each participant to draw out from himself information, logical argument, and often undigested, and incomplete thoughts. A good participant listens to his own words as closely as he does the other participants. The result may not be immediately seen, or demonstrable to suit our grade-oriented system of education, but it comes. Sometimes the participant sees the faults in his own argument immediately and corrects the logic, or admits his fault during the course of the dialogue, and sometimes he leaves the discussion before reflecting upon what has transpired. In either case it requires thought, sincerely draws out the individual, and it happens in the cafeteria more than it does in our classrooms.

There weren't many in the election. Votes that is. And it wasn't from apathy, cold, or lack of good polling places. More than 150 people passed the one polling place in the cafeteria in one hour. So how come only 116 voted? Many reasons. One is that the once-interested student is now disinterested. After being interested and involved he has found it to be an exercise in futility, as I have found my education to be. One is that the student body as a whole has been unmoved by Student Council's lack of ability to communicate within itself, much less to the student body just what has been happening. A good, active Student Council might have helped to give the student body something to be active about. Another obvious reason was the absence of a second party. This is not surprising. Student government was proven ineffective. Time and time again the Student Council has been called upon to take some constructive action that will aid in relieving the deplorable conditions for students on City College, and time and time again it has been proven that only threats of demonstrations, outside intervention in the form of the ACLU, or outside publicity, which City College will get eventually anyway, will move the great unmoveables. Maybe if we arm each member of the Student Council with magnets will they then be able to move leadseats in the administration.

Who Will Answer? A great song if you listen totally to the words. But who will answer the plea for more tutors for the tutorial program next semester? They're going to need them. Who will answer the question why no mention has been made in the community newspapers of the tutorial programs of CCSF or SF State? They're quick enough to pick up the trouble, but sure are slow on the pick-up when it comes to showing that college students are doing something constructive in the community. Or is it that they are too wrapped up in the objective type of news too prevelant in the Guardsman, and don't do human interest stories any longer. Who will answer a question directed at Lloyd Luckmann, the human being? Will you be willing to speak as a human being, not an administrator, before you leave, and tell the City College students how you feel about the problems in colleges? Can you do this with an awareness of the problems confronting the students, not the administration? We're going to miss Dr. Luckmann, because the act that follows is virtually a rock of Gibralta. There's no lead in his pants Council.

What do you do? When you research education 300 years ago and find out it's better than what you've got now? Look at Renaissance education and be amazed. They actually thought educate meant to draw out. When you find the fire once in education for you was just a reflection in someone's rear view mirror? I found an answer, it's called life.

Is it really embarassing? To see two men hug each other? Or shake hands? Or to see a man hug a woman? Or kiss her hand? Or kiss her lips? The touch of two human bodies often can say much more than words. True affection should not be embarassing, but should be eagerly shown. Now I'm not going to say that sexual intercourse should be performed on every street corner, it might make interesting viewing, but I don't think it's Kosher. I'll have to ask Mamma Dicker. By the bye. She's got excellent advice to skiers. "Don't ski downhill."

Speaking of downhill. That's where I'm going. It's late, I'm tired, and in too many ways disgusted with City College in particular, and education in general. I think I'll go to Sears Roebuck and buy a degree in P.E. so I can be an administrator. Good-night.

The Free Critic office was temporarily closed the week of January 2-5, 1968 so that the Student Bank could utilize the space when a steam pipe burst in the regular bank office. Hopefully this will be repaired by January 8 and regular Free Critic hours will be kept. The Free Critic office is in Smith Hall room 102. Office hours are 10:00-1:00 Monday and Wednesday, 11:00-12:00 Tuesday and Thursday, and 10:00-12:00 on Friday. In addition to the office hours, there is a box in the Registrar's Office, Box S127, where material may be left for submission. All submissions will be welcome. The human touch can show more effectively than the human voice true human emotion.

Newspapers, Who Needs Them

By Dennis Mundt

"We must restore confidence in the ability of our educational institutions to maintain the same standards of conduct which apply to the rest of society and to eliminate disorderly interference with academic pursuits."

These words from Governor Reagan define the objectives of the collegiate press more candidly than any journalism department could, or would dare to. Stated more concisely, the objectives of a college newspaper are to socialize and tranquilize the student. They differ only slightly from those of the national press—to propagandize and tranquilize the public.

Our own journalism department puts it this way: "A newspaper is a social institution . . . whose functions are to inform, entertain and to mold opinion."

Ostensibly the raison d'tre of any newspaper is to inform its readers. Newspaper-type informing does not, however, mean factual reporting of events as they happen; it also means to edit, "interpret, manage, play-up, play-down, slant, spike and black-out" (latter being two forms of rejecting news for political reasons). These are all standard journalism terms, all standard newspaper policy.

Likewise, the entertainment function is not what it seems. It certainly seeks to amuse the reader. Amusement keeps people out of trouble.

Sports, for instance, absorb men's bellicose energies which might otherwise be spent in anti-social behavior. A sports fan can vent his pent hostilities by vicariously kicking a football, rather than by actually kicking his wife, or the mayor. The sporting green takes his mind off the morning commute traffic, thereby soothing those hostilities which could otherwise indece him to kick the mayor out of office, and several city planners as well.

Similarly, fashion and society news, travel section, Count Marco, and advertisement, take the woman's mind off her mean lot. With her naturally vexatious mind occupied with dreams of consumer Utopia, she is not so interested in any social mischief which might redress her grievances.

Hell, even the comics are filthy with propaganda, as anyone can observe who has paid any attention to Li'l Abner, Dick Tracy or Little Orphan Annie.

Only difference between American newspapers and Nazi or old-line communist propaganda is that ours is more insidious, more effective. Our middle classes are told that this is the best of all worlds, and they believe it. Blacks are told their best-of-all-world lies just around the corner, in the next Model City housing project, or after the next token government project—but they don't believe it any more.

As students, our newspapers tell us to look at all the nice things our school is doing for us, the concerts, fashion shows, campus beautification, Thanksgiving turkey dinners, etc. They tell us that our way to success is to emulate the goody-goody student elites deified in its feature stories (so that we can later emulate all the social elites in Examiner features).

So who needs newspapers? Ask any good citizen and he will tell candidly that he doesn't need all that propaganda, but They do, the public, that we do—yes, especially the students. Students must be taught to appreciate all that America has to offer, and they must be dissuaded from spoiling it all with their radical ideas. Just look at what happened at State.

Whether we want it or not, we're going to get all that bulshit—but we don't have to ask for it, much less pay for it. But that's exactly what we are doing by financing the Guardsman with student body funds. These funds should go to a student publication, and I don't mean the Critic.

I propose that Student Council and the Academic Senate get together to mediate all interests and draw up plans for a comprehensive, independent academic journal which would provide a forum for debate for all estates of the college; which would provide a format suitable for publication of the prodigious papers, manifestoes and literature that I suspect our conscientious faculty is just itching to submit for the edification of humanity; which would incorporate adequate news gathering facilities necessary to fill the Guardsman's coverage gap (Educational News Service, UPS, academc association mailing lists, etc.); which would tolerate any manner of profanity; as well as any other quality a more wide-awake imagination can dream up (it's four-thirty).

Letters To The Editor

Dear Free Critic:

I don't know how other students feel, but I resented the closing of Statler Wing Wednesday, December 13. Aside from the sign that said the place would be closed all day, no explanation was offered.

The closing of Statler Wing left students a choice between the cold, windy outdoors, a crowded cafeteria, or an equally crowded library. There does not seem to be any regard for the welfare of the students.

Who is Statler Wing for? If it is for the students, the faculty and others should have their banquets, luncheons, and meetings somewhere else, or at another time, after school hours. Meanwhile the administration continues to say "F-k you" to the students.

Fred R. Wilson
Student

You should have been there later, Fred. An administrator actually admitted they had "forgotten" about the students, all 10,000. But then, this is CCSF. What do you want, a real junior college?—Ed.

What Price A Paper?

By Dennis Mundt

Two weeks ago we reported that printing costs for the Guardsman/Free Critic were twice the going rate. Despite the Guardsman's calumnious editorial blustering to the contrary, and despite Student Council's wholly inadequate "Preliminary report," the fact remains:

The paper can be expanded to eight pages and still cost $65 less per issue than its present four page edition. To repeat our original qualification, page size would have to be trimmed to one of the standard tabloid formats.

Using as a model Howard Quinn's format (SF State's Open Process), this would amount to a twelve percent loss in text (image area), all other factors remaining the same (eight-point type, eight lines per inch, five 16½ inch columns, etc).

Tabulating specifications and cost accounting do not fall within the realm of journalism, but are in this case the responsibility of Student Council whose job it is to account for student body funds. We are confident that council will see this study through to a conclusive end.

The figures used by the Guardsman editorial and Student Council's "preliminary report" were based on SF State's Gator, a daily that uses larger type, wider margins and other specifications irrelevent to our paper's needs. What was proved was that the Guardsman is cheaper to print than a more expensive paper—which is absolutely meaningless. The New York Times might have been

Dear Free Critic:

Ron Karenga is a demagog who is trying to persuade the Negro youth to do things that he would not do. His sense of humor is in bad taste; his logic is awful; and his appearance is ludicrous. No man with any sense of responsiblity would say the things that he said. His mind is like a robot's: I imagine he repeats the same jokes in each meeting that he attends. I would not be surprised if one day Karenga would, after seizing a small amount of power, become a part of the establishment.

Last week Gail said that Karenga was doing more harm that good. (Gail Cara, "On Eating One Another," Free Critic, Nov. 22, 1967). I agree. Gail's writing has a poetic quality which is like taking a breath of fresh air after one has been in a swamp all day. Gail has a great future ahead of her if she continues to write such beautiful and logical works. My heart goes out to you, Gail. Thanks for saying what many people felt, but did not have the courage or intelligence to say.

Now I should like to state my philosophy about the Negro problem: (1) nothing matters and (2) a change is going to come about.

(1) No matter what the Negro does, he's not going to gain his complete freedom in my or your lifetime. Progress, if there is such a thing, happens so slowly that it is almost imperceptible. I believe things have an 80% chance of staying the same, a 10% chance of improving, and a 10% chance of getting worse.

(2) A change is going to occur because nothing ever stays the same. Life changes but yet it stays the same. Change is inevitable, yet we cannot force change. Change occurs by its own self.

Joe Osborne Jr.
Student

Thank you for your letter, Joe. I join you in praise of Gale Gara. She is truly a person who is willing to share her human emotion with others.

I only hope that you are wrong when you say that "nothing matters," and that we "cannot force change" because somehow I feel that a lot matters, and that we must force change because there are too many people trying to maintain the status quo.—Ed.

better used to prove the same silly point.

We were truely abashed by the Guardsman's calumnious editorial which appeared in the same issue as our report. It was some pretty sleezy journalism, but for that the Guardsman is notorious.

When will City College students demand a responsible and competant campus newspaper?

• • •

"I should like to be able to love my country and still love justice."
—Camus

THINK

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students, City College of San Francisco

Vol. 85, No. 11 — WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 10, 1968 — Page 2

Ten Year Development Plan Provides Needed Facilities

CITY COLLEGE submitted a ten-year plan for redevelopment and construction on campus which will be used by the San Francisco Unified School District to apply for funds from the State.

The plan, presented by Coordinator of Educational Management Harry Buttimer, lists 12 items judged to be of priority importance to the college which can be supplied with state aid.

TOPPING THE LIST ARE REQUESTS for an increase in parking facilities for students and a utility complex to join all buildings on campus—those existing and those to be built in the future.

Following these two were requests for a remodeling of the Science Hall; the construction of a student union, extensions for Arts Hall and the physical education departments; roofing for the south reservoir and a swimming pool. Plans for these projects are expected not later than 1973 providing the funds are made available by authorization of the California legislature's Steirn Bill.

WITH A GROWING EMPHASIS BEING PUT on the importance and on the advantages of the two-year college, it makes only good sense to plan now for a population explosion which can be expected within the next ten years on all two-year college campuses.

In the last ten years, City College alone has almost doubled its day-student enrollment from 5500 to nearly 10,000. Faster rates of growth can be expected as the offspring of the post-Korean war "baby boom" come to college.

With two-year colleges supplying a vital link to the bachelor's degree, City College needs these extra facilities and the funds to build them.

Emmett E. Smith—A Loss

CITY COLLEGE instructor Emmett E. Smith, 62, died December 16 while vacationing enroute to Bellingham, Washington.

Mr. Smith had planned to reside in Bellingham following his June retirement after serving the college for 20 years as an instructor of photography and allied arts.

He was responsible for the formation and maintenance of the photographic display of student works in the Cloud Hall faculty office area.

According to Photography Department Chairman Bev Pasqualetti, Mr. Smith was an outstanding instructor and well liked by his students "because of his unique ability to present the esthetic and practical approaches of photography."

He was a well known Bay Area critic of photographic exhibits and competition, and he judged educational films in San Francisco Film Festivals.

His death is a distinct loss to City College.

Focus: Discussion Gap

by Lori Pittman

WHILE some instructors feel a great lack of student response in classroom discussion, many students feel that they are being discouraged by instructors from making any comments.

WHEN AN INSTRUCTOR lectures through the entire hour without allowing five or ten minutes for discussion and must then rush off to another class, the student is restricted to asking questions only if and when he can contact the instructor during his office hours.

Under these circumstances, many students bury their curiosity and sometimes their interest. They become "classroom sponges" trying to soak up the lecture material but giving nothing in return . . . never going beyond what is actually presented to them.

When lecture material is not open to the give and take of a discussion between students and their instructor, it is no different than reading a text book and taking notes.

Perhaps these few instructors feel they have too much knowledge to teach and not enough time. But there should always be time for questions.

Teaching must be more than a one-sided distribution of facts. It is up to the instructor to make time for discussion, to allow at least a few minutes from the lecture to find out if the students are, in fact, retaining the information he is trying to get across to them.

ANOTHER PROBLEM some instructors have is being human. By being human they usually have their own individual political views and prejudices which they at times bring into the classroom either deliberately or unconsciously.

Sometimes to make a point or take the dreariness from certain aspects of their subject matter, they will fall back on these beliefs by throwing them into the lecture material or by making a side joke.

Though this is done in good humor, the outcome can be rather disconcerting. When the pun is made, the instructor usually expects his students to laugh and continue with the lesson for the day (especially if the course is not involved with politics).

Some students, however, may not hold the same viewpoints and may wonder where the instructor found his information. What the instructor had intended as an idle joke might provoke a student to question and defend.

AT THIS POINT, some instructors either discourage further discussion of the unnecessary remark or refuse to "waste classroom time discussing something that is irrelevant to the course."

In this case, the instructor is partially right and partially wrong. He is human . . . but if he refuses to allow a student to challenge his remarks because they are not a part of the lesson, then he should not have made the remarks in the first place.

Much of the knowledge a student gains from a course depends on the instructor. Though a student's own ability and effort are of great importance, the way in which the subject matter is presented and the relationship between students and their instructor means the difference between wanting to learn and merely memorizing facts.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

(Letters to the Editor may be left in the switchboard office, S-169, in Science Hall or in The Guardsman office, S-304. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. The Guardsman reserves the right to edit letters in the interests of brevity and rhetoric. If so desired the writer's name will be withheld, but the identity of the writer must be known to the editor.)

• Attitude Change Due

Editor, The Guardsman:

Our library is a constant source of irritation to the students of this college. Not only because the stacks are closed, but also because of the attitude of the students who use the library.

The administration of this campus holds the viewpoint that students are generally immature. If the administrators wanted to prove their point, all they would have to do is conduct a tour of the library.

A library is a place for study—silent study! All students know this to be a fact. Yet, when one wishes to use the library for its real purpose—chatting, joking, laughing and paper throwing are what greet his efforts.

I hope that all students will make a personal effort to make the library more condusive to academic pursuits.

Ross Klutke

• Gauntlet Thrown

Editor, The Guardsman:

May I commend this newspaper for the enlightening article written by Lori Pittman (first portion by Barbara Hamann) entitled "Focus: Leadership, Examined, Evaluated" (December 13, 1967).

Often times I have asked myself how many students know that I am a member of Student Council, and that I am in office to serve them (the students). Occasionally, I read an article of discontent from a student that claims Student Council has done "nothing" for him. Occasionally, I meet a friend who asks me what student government has done for him?

But these same people are shocked when I ask them if they had presented any problems to council for solutions. These same people are speechless when I ask them what they want Student Council to do for them?

I have tried to communicate to the students through this paper (Letters

(Continued on Page 3, Column 1)

Canine Corps Finds College A Daily Prowl

By Elizabeth Callan

Lately it seems as if City College is going to the dogs! Every day as the chimes indicate 11 a.m., the campus is usually invaded by a small canine corps of scroungers, vagabonds and a few hounds who are just out for a short lark.

Any combination of dogs, from large and black to small and spotted, may be seen romping around the lawns in back of Cloud Hall and the area near the Ram during the lunch hours.

THEY SEEM TO enjoy themselves immensely as they devour any discarded goodies, and some of the bolder dogs even beg for morsels from lunching students. Sometimes, however, a few of the visiting canines disagree over one thing or another and challenge each other to "dog fights."

Such was the case recently, on the hill between Science Hall and Smith Hall, when two dogs engaged in a short battle which scattered students lounging on the grass and eventually ended in a retreat by the losing canine from the scene.

The dogs have on a few occasions found their way into the buildings on campus. One was last seen forlornly wanderng around the second floor of Cloud Hall, one planted himself down in the library and promptly fell asleep and another more courageous canine took shelter from the cold January winds among the crowds in Statler Wing.

ALTHOUGH SOME students have dubbed a few of the unknown hounds with such unlikely nicknames as "Clem" and "Spot," the mystery of this college's "dogged down" problem lies in the question of where the intruders come from, since some of them have no identification collars or dog licenses.

Perhaps the SPCA is slipping in its ability to round up strays, or could it be that the atmosphere of higher learning here has rubbed off on these canines and helped them to avoid the "doggie draft"?

In any case, canines on campus are a doggone problem.

Vantage Point

by Glynn Petrie

THOUGH it may surprise some, the primary purpose of any college is to teach students. It therefore follows that any method which facilitates the learning of the required material is desirable and should be preferred.

But if you look around you here at City College you will find that often this is not the case.

MOST INSTRUCTORS will admit that the IBM-type test is a necessary evil that does not really measure a student's command of the knowledge or his ability to apply it in any way but records instead his "ability" to recognize or guess at the right answer when it is staring him in the face.

The problem is made worse by the considerably widespread instructoral policy of refusing to tell students anything about the results of tests other than the number they got "correct" (this applies to any type of test).

Aside from the fact that the "right" answers aren't always right and these will never come to light under the no-tell system, students cannot find out what questions they missed and what exactly is the error in their understanding. The wrong answers given by the student remain with him—the test is corrected, the student isn't.

THE REASONS FOR this policy are several—all equally illogical. Practical aspects are the only ones considered. First, the efficiency expert's lament, "It takes too long to go over the tests." Almost any test can be gone over at least briefly in an hour.

One class period is not too much time to spend to erase any misinformation which may have accumulated with the students. If class time is too precious, instructors could offer to go over the test at another time.

Second, "There will be a comprehensive final exam in which I plan to use some of the old questions." Here we have the fear of students "knowing too much" which makes grading more difficult. Learning is made much harder but ease of grading seems to be the only concern.

Third, "Students aren't interested in review." Maybe, but instructors don't ask.

Fourth, "I use the same tests each semester." Here is the fear of "compromising" a secret document—students might furtively slip the correct answers to their friends going through the same class the following semester. Instructors should then be willing to exercise a little periodic originality in making up new tests.

THE WHOLE PRACTICE of secrecy is not less idiotic than would be turning in compositions in a writing class and never being informed as to what errors in grammar, punctuation or development were made but just being told that essay one was a B, essay two a C, etc.

Some instructors apparently don't realize this. The secret test perpetuates ignorance. Information is supposed to be given freely here, not hoarded.

KALW

Radio Department Increases Broadcast Hours Next Spring

Shortly over a month ago, City College's Broadcasting Department began an hour program on FM station KALW.

According to City College Instructor Phillip Brown, it has been successful. He is pleased with the type of professionalism his students have put out.

So for next semester the broadcasting time will be increased, Brown said. The exact length has not been decided upon yet, but will be hashed out by Brown and Ken Neilson of John O'Connell Adult School which owns KALW.

The 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. program provides music similar to that heard over KSFO. There are two newscasts of two-minute length each. One at 11:45 a.m., the other at 12:15 p.m. They deal with college news and news of general interest. There is occasional sport news, but City College sports do not dominate the newscasts.

"There is a very professional atmosphere on KALW," Brown said. About once a week the department does a special, which can be on any subject the student chooses, he said.

Tracing the history of music, life of a personality, documentaries, experiments in sound or interviewing people who have spoken on campus are a few of the types of specials that Brown listed.

A recent special told the events of World War II by original radio reports.

In this way, "Students try things they wouldn't try other places," Brown said.

KALW broadcasts on 91.7 megacycles.

Guardsman Staff—Fall 1967

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 246.)

(The Guardsman, its faculty adviser and staff have no responsibility for or control over material printed on the page with the Free Critic masthead.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... STEVEN HARA
Managing Editor ..... Lori Pittman
Feature Editor ..... Marty Arbunich
Staff Editor ..... Glynn Petrie
News Editor ..... Ed Holmes
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan

Editorial Assistants: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, Douglas Dorn, John Jernigan, Ron Lent, John Letourneau, Viggo Petersen.

Reporters: John Bendorfin, Berry Brown, Tim Bryden, Arthur Fanfelle, Tom Graham, Barbara Hamann, Mike Wiss, Frank Wolf.

Cub Reporters: Lani Brand, Elizabeth Callan, Rita Carroll, Dave Hartline, Daniels Klein, Baku Kodama, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom, May Ling Wong.

Photographers: Ed Bruns, Chief; Gary W. Batchelor, Paul Bekesy, James Brock, Carol Gilmore, Roberto Guillen, Fred Harris, Robert Kim, Klaus Kurz, Gary Lee, Garth Ogle, Mike Rosms, Chris Rozales, Richard Spitaleri, Kevin Tobin, Mark Weinand, Samuel Woo.

Guardsman Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

SF Chronicle's Kinsolving In C-Hour Lecture

By Douglas Dorn

The Reverend Lester Kinsolving, Episcopal church liberal and the San Francisco Chronicle columnist-religious editor, will speak on The Old Morality during College Hour tomorrow in the theater.

The worker priest is president of the Association of Episcopal Clergy and a member of Father Du Bay's union of clergymen. As Chaplain to former Bishop James A. Pike, he collaborated with him in articles for Playboy magazine. His articles have also appeared in Ramparts, Newsweek, The Nation and many church publications.

He also moderates the Lester Kinsolving Show on KCBS radio.

HELL BROKE LOOSE in Pasco, Washington, when the controversial minister preached that "Hell is a damnable doctrine—responsible for a large mass of the world's hatred. According to this doctrine, God, who commands us to love our enemies, plays the hypocrite by damning His enemies. This in turn stimulates the hatred of God by people who abhor hypocrisy—and it gives sanction to our hatred of certain selected enemies."

Such statements have brought the Reverend Kinsolving to national attention besides drawing criticism from conservative elements of the clergy.

"I know of no other corporation in the United States with 10,000 employees and no central personnel department," said the Reverend about the church as a capitalistic endeavor, and hence "open for unionization."

"WE ARE NOT BISHOP baiters," he explained. But he insists that the priests' association is a check on unlimited power of bishops to control parishes and individual ministers.

Father Kinsolving has been in the forefront of the battle for therapeutic abortion laws.

"The things you remember most about after a talk with Kinsolving," wrote one columnist, "are his intelligence, wit and warmth."

Kinsolving's talk follows by one week fellow-Chronicle columnist Art Hoppe's lecture, scheduled to be about The New Morality. (For Hoppe lecture, see page 1.)

HOPPE RELATED an incident in which Kinsolving wrote a satire on satirist Hoppe's column. But Kinsolving's parody did not appear in the Chronicle.

Born in New York, the 41-year-old minister is an alumnus of University of Pennsylvania, John Hopkins University and Church Divinity School of the Pacific.

The Reverend Kinsolving resides in Berkeley.

Lynda Johnson announced recently that she had selected all-American makes for her china, silver and crystal.

Rams Open League With Two Wins

Hearne's 17 Points Paces Team's 60-33 Victory Over Foothill

By Arthur Fanfelle

The Rams extended their win streak to 31 consecutive league victories, defeating Foothill College last Friday at Foothill, 60-33. Ray Hearne's fantastic exhibition of shooting enabled the Rams to capture their second league victory without a loss in quest of another title.

With the score tied at eight apiece and Foothill controlling the tempo of the game, Hearne began to take things into his own hands.

HEARNE INTERCEPTED a pass and took it all the way for two points. He followed that with a 20-foot shot that swished the net. Then he was on the end of a court-long pass and layed it in making the score 14-8, a lead that the Rams never gave up.

Hearne went on to hit four more field goals before he missed a shot as he finished with eight field goals out of 10 attempts, and one point from the foul line for a total of 17 points. He led all scorers and showed his ability as court general, leading the Rams in assists.

Gary Bradford, while he scored but three points, was a star on defense as he held Jeff Frost of Foothill, who on his last outing hit 30 points, to but 13 points on five for 14 from the field.

JACOB HILL added 12 points and Telvis Jones 10 for the Rams. City College dominated the Owls on the backboards with Isaiah Pruitt leading all rebounders with 10, while hitting three points. Pruitt also blocked three shots.

Hill and Jones each had five rebounds; Simon O'Hanlon led Foothill with six rebounds for the night as the Rams outrebounded the Owls, 35-18.

In the first half the Rams made 13 baskets out of 17 attempts for 76 per cent from the field while Foothill managed only a mere 31 per cent, making six of 19 shots. The Rams led at the half, 28-16.

In the second half, with the score 36-27, Hearne and company combined to run off 10 consecutive points to make the game a runaway.

WITH THREE minutes remaining in the game Coach Sid Phelan sent in his second line troops with the score 49-30. The bench did a creditable job as they went on to outscore the Owls, 11-3, with Darrell Fregia pacing the Rams during that string with six points and Floyd Seabron hitting for five and getting four rebounds.

The Rams' shooting in the second half dropped as they hit 10 baskets out of 23 attempts for 43 per cent. But in the end, the Rams shot 57 per cent and the Owls hit but 39 per cent. From the free throw line the Rams hit a poor 14 of 25 for 53 per cent while the Owls hit for 81 per cent.

Phelan this year has employed a three quarter court press that seems to utilize the speed and quickness of his ball club to its fullest.

Cagers Dump Diablo In League Opener As Jones Paces Assault

The San Francisco Ram basketballers opened their 1968 Golden Gate Conference season with a 74-33 win over Diablo Valley College on the Vikings' home court, January 2. The win was the 30th consecutive league victory for the Rams.

Telvis Jones paced the Rams' attack with 21 points as well as displaying fine all-around floor leadership.

JACOB HILL displayed his outstanding leaping ability as he tipped in several shots, adding to a total of 12 points.

Ray Hearne and Gary Bradford both passed and shot well as they controlled the fast break which wore down the Vikings; they contributed 10 and six points, respectively.

Bradford's ability to hit the open man enabled the Rams to penetrate the Viking zone defense, giving the Rams a 12-2 lead in the early going.

A tight three quarter court press forced the Vikings into many ball control errors as Diablo was no match for the speedy Rams.

The Vikings were forced to call time out with the score 23-9 as the Rams had reeled off 10 points in a row; Diablo then changed to a man-to-man defense for the remainder of the game.

JONES ACCOUNTED for 10 points and Hearne added eight points to give the Rams a 35-18 halftime lead.

The Vikings were held to a lone field goal in the first five minutes of the second half as the Rams went on to pump home 12 points, making the game a complete runaway.

Isaiah Pruitt and Floyd Seabron showed their strong rebounding and their passes help ignite the fast break as the two combined to limit Diablo's center to a mere one point.

The Rams exploded for a string of eight points with seven minutes left in the game, making it 56-27. Coach Sid Phelan then called time out and emptied his bench.

The Vikings were hampered by the loss of 6-3 forward Mike Day who was their leading rebounder and scorer. Diablo had one of its poorer nights from the free throw lane as they managed to make only seven shots of 18 attempts; a mere 39 per cent. They were even colder from the floor as they could only make 13 field goals out of 36 attempts; a 36 per cent shooting clip.

THE RAMS out-rebounded Diablo, 37 to 20, Bradford pacing the Rams with eight, as they showed fine all-around board strength with several men with five or more rebounds.

Forward Greg Phelan led Diablo with 10 points and five rebounds; tops in both departments for the Vikings.

HIGH SCORING freshman guard Telvis Jones drives by Laney's Sam Hill in earlier Ram victory this year. In 30 minutes against Diablo, Jones hit for 21 points. —Guardsman photo by Chris Rozales

Ram Cagers To Host San Mateo Bulldogs Friday

The defending conference champion Ram cagers host archrival San Mateo, Friday at 8 p.m. The Bulldogs, expected to battle Contra Costa and Chabot in quest of stopping City College's attempt at a third straight title, lost their league opener to Chabot.

San Mateo is led by letterman forward Roosevelt Darrough and 6-7 center Craig Farley.

Lanky freshman forward Mark Wilson, football quarterback Fred Garrett and returning guard Paul Dempsey round out the starting five.

The 6-2 Darrough was last year's third leading scorer and rebounder for San Mateo while Wilson was the Mid-Peninsula League's most valuable player last year at Hillsdale High School.

Basketball And Boxing Headline AMS Sportnite Action Tomorrow

Defending Associated Men Student intramural league champion Phi Delta will face the Independent division champion, the Spoilers, tomorrow at Sportnite, in the men's gymnasium beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Phi Delta went through the Club League undefeated as did the Spoilers in their league.

All five starters average 10 points a game or better. Leading the scoring are center Bill Lichtenberger and forward Brian Wicklow. Not far behind are two fine guards, Jeff Barker and Dale Sutton. John Casey is at forward to round out the starters.

The Spoilers rely on basically the same thing as they have a balanced scoring attack and tough rebounding. Jose Fabiani, Mickey Senn and Stan Hunt are the leading scorers for the Spoilers.

Preceding the title game, boxing coach Roy Diederichsen will present six boxing matches ranging from the 120-pound class to the heavyweight division. In the past the boxing matches have been the high point of the evening. Judges for the matches will be the college's physical education instructors.

RAMBLINGS

Thrillers Highlight Cagers Recent Streak

By Mike Duggan

WHEN City College travelled to Diablo Valley last Tuesday and came away with an easy win, it marked victory number 30 in a row in League competition for the Rams. But, like everything else, it must sooner or later come to an end. For, believe it or not, UCLA will some day lose a basketball game.

During any long streak there are certain games in which the winners just do barely manage to keep their record going. Last year it took UCLA an overtime period to beat the Stalling USC Trojans, a 40-35 score.

RAM COACH Sid Phelan has had some close games also. This particular win string started back on February 26, 1965, when City College beat Diablo, 68-62. Win number two, the following season, was an overtime victory over San Jose, 66-63.

The following game saw the Rams trailing San Mateo by eight points at the half. Willie Wise, who played in 28 of the consecutive winning games, scored 21 to pace a come-from-behind 48-43 win.

Win number 12 was a 71-69 squeaker over Contra Costa on substitute center Bill Berger's free throws with eight seconds remaining.

The streak almost ended at 19 last year, but Wise hit two free throws to give the Rams a narrow 57-55 win over Foothill. It was Gene Williams who broke a 53-53 tie in last season's finale to give City College a 59-53 victory over Merritt and send the 1968 team into league play with the streak still "alive."

IT WOULD TAKE quite a bit for a 14-0 season this year, as the Rams have their smallest team in many years. A preseason injury to forward Tom Kuhn has forced Phelan to go with three guards in the starting line-up—Telvis Jones, Gary Bradford and Ray Hearne.

Below are the Ram scorng totals for the 1967 preseason. The Rams played 13 games and came out with nine wins and four losses. Three of the losses came by a combined total of seven points.

PRESEASON SCORING

Name	GP	TP	Avg.
Ray Hearne	13	216	16.7
Gary Bradford	13	163	12.6
Telvis Jones	13	143	11.0
Jacob Hill	13	107	8.2
Floyd Seabron	13	76	5.8
Darrell Fregia	13	66	5.1
Tom Kuhn	7	58	8.3
Isaiah Pruitt	12	58	4.8
Mel Jones	10	30	3.0
Tom Clyburn	8	18	2.3
Boyd Stephens	5	8	1.6
Les Giley	4	2	0.5

Labelled And Recorded

Five Weeks With The Great Blues Bands

By Marty Arbunich

TAKING a quick look at the calendar, the next five weeks should be quite a festival of blues in San Francisco with four Chicago bands and one English group pouring in to make the rounds locally.

England's John Mayall and the Bluesbreakers will probably be the group most blues fans will have their eye on. Mayall, who has a unique timbre for singing the blues (he also plays keyboard, harmonica and five and nine-string guitars for the group) will make a rare string of appearances with his band at the Fillmore the first two weeks of February.

He hasn't performed in San Francisco before, but his albums (his third which has been on the market in England for a few months has just been released here this week) have made considerable penetration among blues fans in this country, enough to stir up a small but die-hard following.

"John Mayall is tremendously underrated," one English reporter told this column of Mayall's difficulties in England. "Not a great many people are even aware Mayall exists, let alone appreciate him," the source said. It's unfortunate that the situation in this country is parallel and maybe even a bit more unfavorable.

In both countries popular music has clinched a tight hold on the fans and consequently has overshadowed both blues and jazz, sending them to the backseat. As a result many personalities have retreated, abandoning the blues in pursuit of the more easily accepted popular music. And it's a pity there aren't more blues purists like Mayall around today (that is, those who would walk the coals to spread the faith of music they believe in and practice) to help carry the torch the escapists have forsaken.

When Mayall makes his debut here there will also be some new faces debuting with him. Aside from Mayall himself, only bassist John McVie has endured "the hard road" through the first three albums; guitarist Peter Green and drummer Aynsley Dunbar have formed their own groups.

An album entitled The Blues Alone (available only on the English label) was released a couple months back featuring Mayall on every instrument (harmonica, bass, three keyboards, drums and five, six and nine-string guitars) and, of course, vocals. Not only is he a truly dedicated figure in blues but a skilled virtuoso with every instrument (save drums) he uses to communicate what he feels.

Mayall's group may be the only foreign blues band in the area during the next five weeks but the domestic groups due here are the cream of the American blues and certainly a rarity to find performing locally over such a short span of time.

Charley Musslewhite and his blues group from Chicago, which has also undergone some personnel changes, will be in town at the Avalon this weekend; the Siegal-Schwall Blues Band will be at the Fillmore this weekend and the Avalon next week.

America's foremost blues ensemble, the Butterfield Blues Band, after just releasing their third exciting collection on Elektra, will be at the Fillmore next week followed by Mike Bloomfield's Electric Flag (Jan. 25-27) whose album on Columbia is set for release within the next few weeks.

This is blues at its best.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

(Continued from Page 2)

to the Editor) and through the Council Reports that are handed out (paid for by a group of students that care). During the recent election, I campaigned despite the fact that my council seat was uncontested. My platform consisted of more student rights (no censorship), better bus and trolley service, and better communication between Student Council and the students.

These items will be fullfilled next semester, but a lot more can be done if you (the students) care enough to make yourself heard. How can I continue to fight for your student rights if you keep your "wants and needs" to yourself. It's easy to sit on the sideline and shout charges of "do-gooders do nothing," but it's harder to come up with constructive criticism. Perhaps I am too harsh on my fellow students. I really would like to be proved wrong. I hereby challenge all the critics of student government to volunteer to help me run a fact-finding poll during registration for spring 1968. Statistics from this poll will be presented to the Public Utilities Commission to demand better bus and trolley service. But this project will fail unless I get enough volunteers to "man the tables" during registration. Come on, critics of student government, prove me wrong—stop shouting and start helping.

Derrick K. Quan,
Frosh Councilman

● Those interested in helping with this fact-finding poll during registration may contact Derrick Quan in B-5.—Editor.

Vol. 65, No. 11 WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 10, 1968 Page 3

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 65 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 17, 1968 NUMBER 12

Free Critic

— 30 —

Experimental College Holds First Signups

By John Bendoritis

The campus experimental college has moved from conception to reality in a few short weeks and will begin its first signups concurrently with regular registration.

The college has been given Student Council approval and budgetary support as well as official sanction of Council of Organizations as a campus organization.

INFORMATION TABLES will be located in Smith Hall during registration period, and any interested individual may acquire specific information there or sign up for one of the 15 groups which are being formed. These range from a group in comparative economics to one in practical yoga.

Students will be able to choose courses which fit into their free time as they will have already received their regular schedules. Group size will vary, but generally will stay in seminar range.

INSTRUCTOR DONALD Peterson, experimental college faculty representative, remarked that both student and faculty response to the college is excellent, and that the present list of offerings will soon be expanded to 20 or 30 for the Spring semester. He also noted that administrators are giving invaluable support to the college during its formation.

Peterson explained that students will be organizing the groups and that the experimental college office will merely handle the procedural details, scheduling and announcements. In the main, group participants will determine the subject matter of the groups.

The experimental college office is presently working on a brochure which explains structure and mechanics as well as individual groups.

Priority Reg Jan. 26; Cafe 'Closes' Today

Registration By Number To Start Feb. 5 In Smith Hall

The hours for registration were announced last week by Jack Billwiller, dean of instruction.

Priority students whose status has permitted prescheduling and who have their IBM program schedule, will complete registration in Smith Hall on Friday, January 26, according to the following schedule of registration numbers and hours:

0-1999	9 a.m. or later
2000-3999	10 a.m. or later
4000-5999	11 a.m. or later
6000-7999	Noon or later
8000-above	1 p.m. or later

All other returning students will begin registration on Monday, February 5, according to registration numbers. Registration times are as follows:

0-2999	9 a.m.-10 a.m.
3000-5999	10 a.m.-11 a.m.
6000-7499	11 a.m.-12
7500-8999	12-1 p.m.
9000-10499	1 p.m.-2 p.m.
10500-11999	2 p.m.-3 p.m.
12000-above	3 p.m.

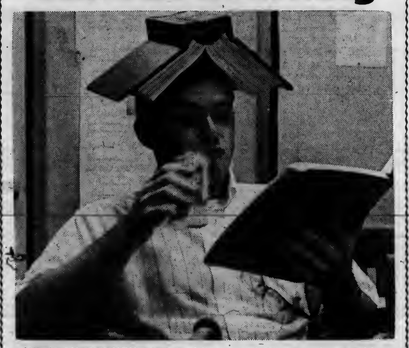
All students will enter Smith Hall by way of the Statler Wing entrance where they will pick up the registration packet.

Returning students will then proceed to the Library periodical room to complete their registration. Open and closed classes will be posted for the student's convenience and faculty members will be on hand to assist anyone who needs it.—B. H.

Statler Wing Remains Open To Students During Finals

Cafeteria and fountain services will close after today, because no more restaurant operation classes will be held this semester.

The faculty dining room was closed yesterday, a day before the student facilities, because of the absence of a custodian whose duty it was to maintain and clean the dining room. Since restaurant operators must clean the room themselves, it will take a day longer than expected.



It is felt by the hotel and restaurant department that without the assistance of students they would be too shorthanded to carry on normal operation; however, normal operations will continue in Statler Wing.

The vending machines in Statler will, however, be closed to students starting January 24 to allow for the preparation of preregistration and registration. At the time that the Statler section is closed, the fountain services will again be put into operation if need be, a hotel and restaurant spokesman said.

No food will be left over from the restaurant for the next semester, except for frozen food, which will be stored for use in vending machines to meet students' needs.

It is the hope of the hotel and restaurant department that there will be enough facilities in operation at all times to meet the students' needs.

Osmotic Learning

WITH AN IMMINENT attack of final examinations confronting him in his bemused state of mind, with the cafeteria's hot food unavailable to the hunger-stricken student, with next semester's rgistration procedure yet to be completed and with a slightly familiar announcement made by the City College administration that the computer will return to "speed up" the Fall 1968 procedure, it's enough to drive any sane man to drink—7-Up. —Guardsman photo by Samuel Woo

Liberal Episcopal Reverend Knocks Church Conservatives

By Doug Dorn

Rev. Lester Kinsolving, Episcopal church liberal and religious editor-columnist for the San Francisco Chronicle, was expected to talk about The Old Morality last week.

But he ended up attacking conservative and staid ways of the church and illustrating a new morality to match the modern world's problems.

"I suggest that it is both ridiculous and ludicrous that the same people who bemoan illicit sexual contacts by teenagers are the ones who at the same time forbid them use of contraceptives," the reverend said. "I don't think that the mere availability of contraceptives to teens will result in mass promiscuity."

HE ALSO SUGGESTED that birth control devices be made available to all girls without parental permission, as present laws require. He feels that both birth control and abortion are necessary.

A proponent of liberal abortion laws, he noted the biological fact that more than one out of three sperms are lost in the menstrual process which is not looked on as "murder in the womb."

CASTING HIS EYES skyward, he said, "I can't believe that homosexual relations between consenting adults in private is a sin. And putting them in jail would be like locking me up with the playmate of the month."

The former chaplain of San Quentin prison and opponent of capital punishment said, "I can't see how the state killing in cold blood is just punishment for killing in cold blood. Man has the ability to kill, not the right. One of the 'cyanide gang' once told me, 'Christ was not a victim of capital punishment'," Rev. Kinsolving said. "So I asked him, 'What did He die of, influenza?'"

"The university is ahead of the church in that the university is where the new ideas are coming from—they are not coming from the church, which started the universities," said Rev. Kinsolving of the Old and New Morality.

THE REVEREND Lester Kinsolving, who talked of a new morality rather than the listed Old Morality, in a speech here last Thursday.

AS Cards Required For All Functions

Ray Bietz, president of the Associated Students, announced today that beginning next semester free admission to any college function supported financially by the Associated Students will require an AS card.

The new policy is actually only a stricter adherence to the existing regulations in the AS Constitution, according to Bietz. College lectures, concerts, films, sport events, plays and other activities will come under the new enforcement.

Also, participation in any budget-supported activity such as Campus Police, student government and sports will continue to require the purchase of an AS card.

Enforcement of the regulation requiring parking stickers on student cars parked in the City College parking lots will begin two weeks after the semester begins instead of the usual month, Bietz added. An AS card is necessary to receive a sticker.

The new ruling is designed to encourage more students to buy AS cards, Bietz said, in order to avoid repetition of the severe budget cuts necessary this semester.

Computer Registration Returns For A Second Round Next Fall

By Ron Lent

With the announcement that computer registration will return to City College on a limited basis for the Fall, 1968 semester, faculty IBM informant Thomas Gaffney revealed that "most of the 'bugs' in the Fall, 1967, procedure have been eliminated."

According to Gaffney, the main difficulty with the computer method at the college this past semester involved the late registering student with a low priority number based on over-all grade point average and seniority.

UNFORTUNATELY these students often neglected to fill out alternate courses, and when the classes did close, they received incomplete programs.

The mathematics instructor stated that "it would be good for the college to establish a public relations man to prepare the faculty and students for what they might expect" during future computer registration proceedings.

HOWEVER, MANY students, including former Associated Student President Rich Christensen and new AS President Ray Bietz, felt that the computer procedure cannot efficiently replace the current, wait-in-line method.

Christensen stated that despite the proposed corrections, "I see no indication that the IBM system can offer students better service than the method employed in previous semesters."

"IF THE COLLEGE does resume the computer procedure for the Fall as planned, a full-scale test should be run before the actual registration operations begin in order to prevent avoidable mistakes that occurred this semester."

Bietz stressed that he was opposed to computer registration "in any form, because this (IBM) procedure does not offer the student flexibility" in selection of alternate courses.

Academic Senate Nixes Council's Plea For Mandatory Talks

The Academic Senate recently declined to take action on a Student Council recommendation that class time be set aside to discuss and evaluate the content of courses here.

Last October, Student Council made a recommendation to the Academic Senate regarding the student's opportunity to discuss and evaluate with other students material presented to them in their classes.

This recommendation was discussed by the Executive Council of the Senate.

In a letter to Associated Student President Diane Lattimer, Dr. Alfred Tapson, Senate chairman, explained that "the Senate council believes that there should be review where students or instructor deem it necessary, but it is very reticent to specify exact dates or periods of time when this should be accomplished."

Tapson said he would be "irritated" if he were directed to turn his class over for discussion once every two weeks. This direction would question his academic freedom in the classroom. Although, he added, he would allow class discussion immediately at the request of one of his students.

H&R Students To 'Run' St. Francis Hotel Tomorrow

The 16th annual Operation St. Francis, in which the world-famous hotel is run by students of the college's hotel and restaurant department, will take place tomorrow. Lawrence Wong, director of food management, made the announcement last week.

This event gives students the opportunity to participate in and get acquainted with the various services required of an employee of a major hotel. Thirty hotel and restaurant fourth-semester students will be assigned to executives and/or department managers and observe and work throughout the day with details of big hotel operation.

THE DAY WILL begin at 9 a.m., at which time students will meet outside the Mural Room of the St. Francis. They will then be separated into groups, each group reporting to a different department of the hotel.

At 5 p.m., the groups will reassemble and attend a special reception. At this time, students can get acquainted with the executives and department heads, who will be in attendance.

Participating in the program will be William Quinn, general manager of the St. Francis Hotel; Klaus Scheftner, executive chef; Hanna Dittler, executive housekeeper; Jack Harrison, purchasing agent; Chris Kramer, banquet captain, and Jane Dillon, public relations director.

A SIDELIGHT TO the day's activities is that two of tomorrow's special supervisors, Jack Harrison, purchasing agent, and Carl Jensen, of the English Grill and Room Service Department are both graduates of City College. Harrison was graduated in 1961, and Jensen donned his cap and gown in February, 1967, thus succeeding to his present position in less than a year.

The many and varied positions to be filled by tomorrow's "temporary employees" include those of General Manager, Personnel Director, Building Superintendent, Executive Chef and Steward.

Dan London, vice president and managing director of the hotel and considered the moving spirit behind the inception of Operation St. Francis, informed the department last week that he will be unable to attend the event.

HOPE

As the semester closes I feel that there is something to hope for. The past semester has been an encouraging one. People are beginning to realize themselves all over the campus, and the city.

On campus, the faculty has become much more responsive and responsible. They have admitted students to the Academic Senate meeting, and received, and replied to student suggestions in classrooms there has been an attempt at dialog, and total communication. Faculty members who have become aware of the student desire to create a dialog have attempted to do so. In some cases it has been necessary for students to speak out over the voice of the monologist in order to speak, but even then the monologist has, on occasion, attempted to become a dialogist. Barbara Brackett has begun the process of creating an atmosphere of free dialog between students and faculty. There is progress, in the faculty actions, and in the student actions.

The students are becoming more responsive and responsible. In the Student Council next semester there may be a group of people who can work together, and not get hung up in mud-slinging. Outside of the Council there are groups of people who can work in other manners to get things done, hopefully.

Also hopefully, the SFTA can gain more power, and initiate programs for changes, and get them implemented, that have more basis in practicality, since they come from people who are close to the source of the problems. (After all, they are confronted with the problems of the educational system daily.) If it takes a strike, I hope that the students will organize a sympathetic demonstration, since both students and faculty are involved in the "education game," and the improvements asked by the SFTA will improve conditions for the students as well as the teachers.

Another thing to be hopeful about is the teacher involvement outside the classroom. Organizations in the city such as the Concerned Teachers Committee, and the groups of faculty members at City College who are willing to take their time and effort to involve themselves in the Experimental College, and other student functions, are all encouraging.

There is hope that together we can make it. Students and faculty together can. All that it takes is continued effort, for as soon as we get something changed, it will be necessary to change again because the situation changes, as do the people involved, and our own views. Progress is possible, but it takes work; let's all get together, and do it.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Free Critic:

I read with interest Mr. Klutke's letter in the Free Critic of January 5, concerning the Change and USA Parties. This is a reply to that letter and is in two parts.

1. Several statements contained in the letter were either erroneous or over-generalizations: Change Party did not have a solid elected majority last semester on Student Council. At the beginning of this semester, however, Change did have a 9-6 majority on council plus the office of AS President. USA's goals and accomplishments (which are a sure indicator of what any political party really is) this semester are not so trivial when compared to this semester's Change Party's goals and accomplishments. Acknowledging that Change had a majority on Student Council for the first part of this semester, just what did they accomplish for the benefit of all the students who voted for them? About the only thing Change did was put the student body on record as being opposed to the Vietnam War and the Draft—without first asking the students their opinions on those issues. Oh yes, a Change member did get a resolution through council that provided parking spaces for student government leaders. Admittedly, USA did not accomplish a great deal this semester either. But, as the record shows, what USA did do was certainly less trivial than what Change accomplished; and, USA was in the minority for quite some time.

USA represents anything but a clique of San Francisco high school graduates, as implied in Mr. Klutke's letter. Of the thirteen USA members elected to Spring '68 offices, five, including the AS President and the AWS President, are not graduates of San Francisco high schools. Also, four members of USA are over 22 years old, hardly any indication of the existence of a "clique of glory-hunters . . . out of S.F. high schools." And for comparisons between USA and Change, Joe Parnell, who ran as the USA candidate for the Spring '67 presidential election, was not an S.F. high school graduate but his Change opponent was, as was Rich Christensen. So, if USA represents any clique, it is a clique that wants to see CCSF improved, not a clique of high school graduates.

2. Since the issue of differences between the Change and USA Parties has been raised, certain other facts concerning them should be brought out. This semester's Change Party is entirely different in attitude from last semester's Change. Ron Melander, Ron Bianco and Rich Christiansen (and even Mr. Klutke, who incidentally, worked as hard as anyone else in student government this semester) were hard-working Change members on Student Council last semester who helped a great deal in improving conditions here at CCSF. They not only saw what was wrong on campus but were willing to work to correct those wrongs. This semester has been an entirely different story, particularly after the departure of Rich Christiansen. At the beginning of this semester, Christiansen (the then AS President) just could not seem to get his party organized into working form. Change was making a lot of noise but accomplishing very little. And it should not have been that way because Change, with a big majority on council, had everything going for it. But Change blew it, mainly because the individual members were more concerned with complaining about conditions than with working to improve those conditions. Things got so bad within Change that Mr. Klutke resigned. (It is assumed he subsequently and surreptiously rejoined Change since he signed his letter as a "Change Party Member.") As things went from bad to worse, Change changed from a progressive party to a group of individuals (with some exceptions, of course) who seemed bent on doing nothing more than disrupting Student Council meetings by deriding and ridiculing their fellow council members. And for that Change should apologize.

Yes, Change changed from a party of doers and improvers to a party of do-nothings and complainers. This semester, Change as a party did nothing so now it is nothing. For the sake of City College, let's hope it remains that way.

But Change will probably return in one form or another. If it returns as a group of individuals intent on disrupting campus life without improving that life, then it won't be welcomed. But if it returns with a resemblance to the Change Party of Spring '67 with members such as Melander, Bianco, Christiansen, and Jim Morrison, full of ideas and with enthusiasm for carrying out those ideas, then USA will welcome Change.

But until such time as Change does return, CCSF will remain in good hands—the hands of the United Students for Action.

Respectfully, Ray F. Bletz
Chairman, USA (AS President)

The Free Critic

Tom Rice, Editor — The Critic Adviser: Mr. Berman

Vol. 1, No. 12 — WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 17, 1968 — Page 1

Dear Free Critic:

The Black Guard editorial of Jan. 2 asked white students to help the Black students or else accept the blame for any chaos or havoc or "a violent confrontation between Black and white students." They want changes and white students to help make them. I'm ready to help and so are many other white students. But—we must have something more concrete to work on than phrases like, "the BSA cannot by itself bridge the abyss that years of white apathy have created." We cannot act on vague accusations or wishy-washy pleas. We have got to know specifics. We have to know of exact incidents. I here suggest that this "line of positive communication" begin to do just that. We have at this college several papers in which students could make their accusations or state their grievances. I would further suggest a specific section in the Guardian for just such complaints. Also, since the BSA probably knows better than any what Black students' problems are, they could probably better inform us of the facts, possibly in their paper. If Black students want help, we must have facts!

Kate Campbell, Student

• • •

Dear Free Critic:

There is no crosswalk or pedestrian right of way sign at the intersection of Judson and Gennessee streets, north of the Horticultural Building. Hundreds of students use this crossing coming and going from school, or to make connections to the No. 10 bus. This is indeed a dangerous situation, and I hope the administration will see some safety device installed here before someone is hurt or killed.

Bill Nichols

DO YOU FACE THE DRAFT?

We, the undersigned teachers of San Francisco, recognize the concern of all young people facing the draft. We are available to students for information and consultation, and we will support them in whatever ways are necessary and appropriate within the schools.

We are equally concerned for those students who as a matter of individual conscience state their unwillingness to participate in the military service and who wish to serve their country in a more humane and constructive manner.

Active opposition to oppression or immoral acts of government is in the finest tradition of our Constitutional history. As teachers we have the obligation to defend and assist young people who, from personal or religious conviction, choose to dissent from the policies of our government.

Fugh Aamonsen (A. Lincoln)
Jack C. Abad (City College)
Hilda P. Abrahams (Presidio H.)
Eyrle Aceves (Presidio)
Diane Alder (Substitute)
Mary A. Allen (A. Lincoln)
Margaret B. Ancker (City College)
Pani Andersen (Presidio)
Jacqueline Anderson (Lincoln)
R. S. Anthony (Lick-Wilmerding)
Jerry Arena (Lick-Wilmerding)
Florence Armstrong (Washington)
Marshall Axelrod (Polytechnic)
Walter Bajor (Galileo)
Durward Baker (Burbank)
Quenah Baker (John O'Connell)
Joseph Bailey (Pelton)
Jack Baraff (Galileo)
Calvin C. Barnhart (Washington)
E. G. Barton (Mission)
Barbara Baumann (Presidio)
Merritt T. Beckerman (CCSF)
Thelma Beckerman (Bayview)
R. Paul Beem (A. Lincoln)
Allen S. Bell (Aptos)
R. Belmour (Lowell)
Ruth L. Berg (A. Lincoln)
Judith Berliner (Lowell)
Pearl Berkelman (Lick-Wilmerding)
Robert H. Berman (CCSF)
Ronald Bertuccelli (W. Wilson)
O. G. Berwanger (Galileo)
Eugene Block (Everett)
J. Boykin (Francisco)
Bert Brauer (Lowell)
A. Stafford Briggs (Ret.)
Don Brillhart (Lowell)
Beatrice Brooks (Presidio)
Antoine J. Brouqua (H. Mann)
Jim Brovelli (Lick-Wilmerding)
Grace M. Brown (CCSF)
Patrick M. Butler (CCSF)
Ronald B. Cabral (H. Mann)
Ruth E. Callas (Washington)
John J. Callen (CCSF)
John Caris (CCSF)
William E. Carpenter (O'Connell)
Francis Carr (A. Lincoln)
Ted Carrol (H. Mann)
Lulu M. Carter (Sunshine)
Richard Castile (Washington)
Leon Cathey (Washington)
Anne T. Cavenaugh (Poly)
Barbara Cerf (Lowell)
A. F. Chamness (Roosevelt)
Laura P. Chase (on leave)
Herbert Choy (Aptos)
Evelyn Clair (Jean Parker)
Alan Clark (Presidio)
Barbara Clemans (H. Mann)
David Colisham (A. Lincoln)
Jack Coffey (Lick-Wilmerding)
Arlene Cohan (Washington)
Dona Colt (H. Mann)
James M. Colwell (Pychologist)
Carol D. Commins (Presidio)
James H. Conley (CCSF)
Wm. Coolidge (Roosevelt)
Leah Cooper (CCSF)
Ann Coopersmith (Balboa)
Mary Fae Coulter (Lincoln)
Carroll Covey (Mission)
Colin Covey (Washington)
Ben Criswell (James Lick)
Sarah Crome (Lick-Wilmerding)
Peter Dahl (Lowell)
Bertram C. Davies (Lincoln)
Loretta DeAndreis (Aptos)
Anthony De Gennaro (Mission)
Elizabeth de Lozada (Wilson)
David Dent (Mission)
Aldo Disgrazzi (Francisco)
Barbara Dixon Dobriner (Francis)
Robert S. Donn (Presidio)
Mary Dreifuss (Galileo)
Margaret Dsenis (Pelton)
Robert Dunbar (Balboa)
Marianne Durand (Mission)
John Earl (CCSF)
Raymond Early (CCSF)
Jo Ann Edmonsen (Presidio Hill)
Beverly I. Eigner (Poly)
Jerome Eisenman (Presidio)
Maurice F. Englander (Lowell)
John Eshia (Aptos)
Susanne Eubanks (Aptos)
Luisa E. Esquerro (A. Lincoln)
Jack Fairchild (Mission)
Russ Farnsworth (Pelton)
Richard C. Fenner (CCSF)
Robert E. Fesler (Lincoln)
Nickolas A. Fesunoff (Wilson)
Ira Fishman (Burbank)
Edward M. Fitzgerald (Lincoln)
Marilyn L. Fitzgerald (Roosevelt)
M. L. Fitzmaurice (Lick-Wilmerding)
Alta Fly (Child Guidance)
Katherine G. Flynn (S. B. Cooper)
Elaine Forrest (Burbank)
Mary Foster (Polytechnic)
George R. Fouke (Lafayette)
John Franklin (Mission)
John O. French (CCSF)
Eve Freudenthal (James Lick)
Robert H. Frierson (Francisco)
Veraine Frierson (Presidio)
Jon Fromer (Presidio Hill)
Katherine Fromer (Presidio Hill)
Charles Frye (Portola)
Joseph Fulford (H. Mann)
Florence E. Gantner (CCSF)
J. Garcia (Francisco)
Jo Ann M. Ghio (Burbank)
Kenneth H. Glasgow (Presidio)
H. D. Godins (A. Lincoln)
J. R. Goldsborough (Lowell)
Nadine Goodenough (Denman)
Gerson G. Goodkind (Lincoln)
S. Gottfried (Lincoln)
Gail A. Graham (Mission)
Ronald Greene (CCSF)

CONCERNED TEACHERS COMMITTEE
P. O. Box 31179
San Francisco, California 94131

Caroline Grundt (Roosevelt)
Marcella M. Hall (Roosevelt)
Bonnie Hammond (Jed. Smith)
Bertha Handin (Aptos)
Bruce F. Hannah, Jr. (CCSF)
Dorothy Hansen (Pelton)
Lewis Hanson (Presidio Hill)
Katherine Harms (R. Woill)
John Heisler (Lincoln)
Robert Hilmoe (Polytechnic)
D. R. Hodges (Everett)
Frank Holden (CCSF)
Milan Holdorf (Aptos)
Stephen R. Holman (Presidio)
Cornelia Hoppe (S. B. Cooper)
George F. Hutchins (CCSF)
Dan Jackson (Balboa)
Linda Jernigan (H. Mann)
H. P. Jeter (Balboa)
Marsha Z. Jewett (CCSF)
Rosemary Jezukewicz (Presidio)
Carol R. Johnson (Burbank)
John N. Johnson (CCSF)
Mildred L. Johnson (Presidio)
Robert C. Johnson (CCSF)
Junona Jonas (Presidio)
Alfredo Jordan (Presidio)
Denise A. Joseph (Washington)
Harold Juster (Balboa)
Florence Juvinall (Mission)
Robert Kaiser (Wilson)
Paul Kamony (H. Mann)
Thomas T. Kawakami (Mission)
C. F. Kelley (Lick-Wilmerding)
Gerald Kelley (Washington)
Elisabeth Keyser (Presidio Hill)
Carole Khadjenouri (Redding)
Richard B. Kidd (Poly)
Robert Knapp (Washington)
Donald E. Koors (Mission Adult)
Marian Kushner (J. McLaren)
George Lai (Washington)
Marcia N. Leach (Presidio)
Robert Lee (Aptos)
Thomas G. Lee (Lowell)
Stephen Levinson (CCSF)
Joseph Lewbin (Denman)
Mary B. Lewis (Poly)
Gayle Leyton (Lowell)
Bill Light (Presidio Hill)
Sue Light (CCSF)
Frederic Linder (Lowell)
Nan Lipsett (Roosevelt)
Judy Logan (Pelton)
Henry G. Lohmann (Mission)
Sally Grieg Lowell (Pelton)
Andrea V. Lyons (Poly)
Robert MacDonald (Presidio)
Mary Mackbee (Washington)
Peter MacNeil (Poly)
Don C. Marcus (CCSF)
Elizabeth Marcus (Wilson)
Morton Marcus (Lick-Wilmerding)
Kent Marlin (Lowell)
Peter Marlin (Lowell)
Peter Marlowe (Denman)
Stephen Marvin (Poly)
Eugene H. Mattingly (Pelson)
Hugh McColl
Karen McClearey (Hancock)
Yvonne McClung (Balboa)
Clinton McGovern (Lincoln)
Charlotte McGuire (H. Mann)
Thomas F. McMahon (Aptos)
Louise McTernan (Roosevelt)
Eugene Mead (CCSF)
Fanchon Mead (CCSF)
Jack Meier (Lowell)
Richard Meigs (Polytechnic)
Geraldine Meister (Washington)
James Metros (Wilson)
Joan H. Michael (Presidio)
Burt W. Miller (CCSF)
Irene M. Miller (H. Mann)
Richard Miller (Aptos)
Richard Miller (Denman)
Earl G. Minkwitz (Poly)
Carmen Mitchell (Lincoln)
Aida Monares (H. Mann)
Mary Monteith (Burbank)
Diane Moore (Mission)
George Moore (Lowell)
G. F. Muller (Francisco)
Gerald W. Mullin (CCSF)
Rose Linsky Myers (Washington)
Emily Margaret Olson (Portola)
J. B. Orofino (Galileo)
Robert D. Over (Poly)
Elizabeth Page (Jed. Smith)
Effie Pandell (Washington)
Roland E. Paradis (Roosevelt)
Jane Patterson (Mission)
Ronald Pelsinger (CCSF)
Rodger Perelli (Poly)
Donald J. Peterson (CCSF)
Susan Pratt (Jed. Smith)
H. W. Prewett (CCSF)
Rudy Ramirez (Mission)
Edward F. Rancourt (CCSF)
Diane M. Rasmussen (Galileo)
David E. O. Rath (CCSF)
Lynne Rathbun (Presidio Hill)
Denis Rauchmann (Lowell)
Ronald C. Reinholdt (Aptos)
Helen Renfro (Presidio)
Peter Rezendes (Lick-Wilmerding)
Paul Ribera (Log Cabin Ranch)
Audrey J. Rodman (Wilson)
Fred Romagnolo (Roosevelt)
Marsha N. Rosenbaum (Mission)
Victoria Roth (H. Mann)
Ronald Rumney (H. Mann)
Paul Rusanoff (O'Connell)
Dwight Sandifur (Poly)
Mark Sapiro (CCSF)
Nathan Schafler (B. Franklin)
Marianne Scheck (Redding)
Mona Scheyer (Roosevelt)
Sandra S. Schlesinger (CCSF)
Julian Silva (Galileo)
Betty Silverman (Polytechnic)
Elaine Silverman (B. Franklin)
Garnet Sollenbarger (Cooper)
Stanley W. Sommers (Francisco)
Ann F. Spake (Parker Nursery)
David Spears (CCSF)
A. N. Sperber (Everett)
Eric A. Spiekerman (Lincoln)
Dale R. Spoerer (Washington)
John R. Stafford (CCSF)
Susan Steen (Roosevelt)
JoAnn Stewart (Washington)
Alfred J. Tapson (CCSF)
C. A. (Zack) Taylor (Washington)
Marcia Taylor (Pelton)
Sarah Taylor (Presidio)
David Teplitz (Poly)
Jerome Testo (Pelton)
Twen Thoele (Presidio Hill)
Colin M. Thurlow (Washington)
Patricia Tommaney (Pelton)
H. B. Trave (Balboa)
Walter Tresize (Poly)
Geraldine Troy (Hancock)
Betty L. Turner (Francisco)
Mary L. Turner (Washington)
Mario Utzig (Yerba Buena)
Ray Valdez (Balboa)
Susan Vaughters (Denman)
Maud Volandri (Retired)
Gerald Wacks (Poly)
William Wagoner (Pelton)
Orlin Wallace (Denman)
Gerald Walker (Poly)
T. Mike Walker (Poly)
Edward T. Walsh (CCSF)
Joseph Watson (Aptos)
Miriam B. Weinberg (Denman)
Nathan E. Weinstein (Wilson)
Robert A. Whalen (Wilson)
Susan M. White (Mission)
W. Merle Wiedman (CCSF)
John F. Wiemar (Aptos)
Judith Wiese (Wilson)
Deanne Wilson (Burbank)
Robrt T. Winkley (Galileo)
Mark S. Wittenberg (YGC)
Rosalie Wolf (CCSF)
Germaine Wong (Washington)
Ann Woodward (Mission Adult)
Robert Yates (Lincoln)
Roberta Zadow (Denman)
Charles J. Zemalis (O'Connell)
Samuel B. Ziegler (CCSF)

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 55, No. 12 — WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 17, 1968 — Page 2

City College Outbid By USF For Dr. Luckmann's Services

LAST WEEK Acting President Lloyd Luckmann announced his resignation, effective February 16, 1968, in order to accept a position at the University of San Francisco.

The Guardsman does not like to see Dr. Luckmann leave, for it has been evident this semester that he tried earnestly to develop a useful, working rapport between students and the "all mysterious" administration.

Dr. Luckmann reactivated the Student-Administration Relations Committee after the registration foulup and The Guardsman-Council hassle strained student-admin. relations to the breaking point.

THE COMMITTEE'S purpose was to expose and resolve campus situations and plans. It has been said that resulting converations were "enlightening, interesting and helped to bridge the administration's credibility gap."

Growing student activism on American college campuses will require college administrations to seek more men like Dr. Luckmann, not fewer—City College's loss is clearly University of San Francisco's gain.

WE TAKE THIS OPPORTUNITY to wish him well in his new position in this, the last issue of The Guardsman for the Fall semester of 1967.

Transportation Survey

IT WAS ANNOUNCED last week by Frosh Councilman Derrick Quan that an investigative survey will be made during registration in February to discover students' real opinions about the Muni Railway service.

This is the first attempt to listen to gripes in an official survey, the results of which will be given to the Board of Supervisors for further investigation in a public hearing.

Councilman Quan reports he is in an optimistic mood about the poll and well he should be, for he is supporting a most popular issue. About his outspoken desire to reach all 10,000 students though, we say, "Good Luck."

Vantage Point

by Glynn Petrie

AS THIS semester draws to a close it is only fitting that appropriate recognition be given to those deserving individuals of the campus community who have made outstanding contributions to the college during the Fall semester 1967.

In appreciation of such achievement the following awards are hereby presented:

THE SOUR GRAPES Award to Rich Christensen, ex-president of the Associated Students, who emphatically rejected City College after it rejected him . . . Most Unread Book Collection Award to Dr. Lloyd Luckmann, acting president, photographed in his office with a volume entitled The Computer In American Education . . .

Most Appropriate Pseudonym Award to Terance Cantrell alias Don Andabata, writer for the Free Critic, Andabata being a gladiator who wore a helmet with no eye holes so he didn't know where he was or what he was doing.

The Involved Students Award goes to Ray Bletz and his 76 followers who voted him the presidency of 10,000 Associated Students . . . The What-I-Say? Award to Larry Lazore who, after pleading for two years for freedom of speech, "exercised (his) editorial prerogatives rather severely" in his 'Free' Critic . . .

THE AVIS We-Try-Harder-Because-We're-Number-Two Award to Ron Lent, who wrote almost as many headlines for The Guardsman as Ed Holmes . . . Originality-In-Packaging Award to John Janigian who sold a joint of garden variety fern leaves rolled in cigaret paper to an eager student for 50 cents.

The Best Use Of A Visual Aid Award is presented to an anonymous biology instructor who portrayed himself as a "huge uterus" in order to get a point about feminine anatomy across to his class . . . Honest Abe Award to Police Chief Mike Almola who asserted defensively that there was no honor among the thieves of the Campus Police Department . . .

Biggest Switch Hitter Of The Semester Award to Derrick K. Quan who, after being elected to Student Council by Change Party and unanimously opposed by USA Party, renounced Change and joined USA because they are 'free-thinkers' (even though they had almost free-thought Quan out of council) . . . Here-In-Spirit award to O. J. Simpson, City College alumnus whose name appeared 33 times in this semester's Guardsman.

BEST DISAPPEARING ACT Trophy goes to Change Party which, like the dodo, is now apparently extinct and unfortunately unable to accept.

The Bullitzer Prize For Journalism, also to Larry Lazore, for his timely 'Caption These Photos Contest' in his Free Critic, a publication dedicated to pressing issues of the day . . .

In the same spirit of the charge that Eisenhower is a Communist, The Robert Welch Personal Accusation Award goes to Ross Klntke, finance chairman, for his enlightening revelation in a Student Council meeting that USA Party members advocate baby-killing.

The Political Objectivity Award to Ron Greene, psychology instructor, for comparing President Johnson to Pavlov . . . The Closest Near-Miss Award to Lucia Edwards who came out second on the Dean's Honor List with a 3.98 grade point average.

THE CIVIL DEFENSE Preparedness Award has been unquestionably won by A. J. Shooter & Co. for their tremendous job of turning the west band, the south bank and the north bank of City College hill into an impregnable mass of trenches and revetments ready for an assault from the sea.

And in line with our college's new defense posture, the U. S. Army Award is bestowed on Guardsman News Editor Ed Holmes for his blatantly militaristic approach to column-writing (shots, volley, salute, etc.).

It is hoped that in some way these presentations will spur other individuals here to greater and greater efforts on behalf of City College. The same spirit of everyone pulling together that characterized the Fall semester 1967 will make 1968 another thrill-packed, constructive year for City College.

KQED News

KQED Newspaper of the Air is a Channel Nine innovation for news coverage during the strike that has shut down both of San Francisco's major newspapers. This program is scheduled from 12 to 1 p.m. and 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Lebanon Drawing Board

Art Grad Secures Contract As Designer In Near East

By Doug Boston

Adilon Galang, born in the Philippines and former student at City College, was recently hired as a designer for Condas International, located in Berut, Lebanon.

Condas International, designers and manufacturers of furniture for several of the Arabian rulers in the Near East, is also the first corporation to manufacture furniture there.

ADILON GALANG, former student of the college, now a designer for Condas International in Lebanon—and has no income tax worries either!

GALANG SIGNED a two-year contract which included free transportation for himself and his wife and two children to Beirut, where he has been assigned. Galang, who signed the contract on his twenty-second birthday, graduated from Woodrow Wilson high school in San Francisco and enterd City College two and one half years ago working toward a major in Advertising Art and Design.

He took a leave of absence after two years and began work as a free-lance artist for Ted Martinez Advertising and Joe Shupin and Associates.

Both of these jobs were somewhat temporary, and Galang was interested in securing full-time occupation. Soon after, the events leading to his present position began to unfold.

AMADO GONZALEZ, an instructor in illustration here at the college, was contacted to do some work for RGS, a local corporation which deals in contract furnishings.

Gonzalez was apparently too busy with other work to handle the job for RGS. He contacted William Davis, head of the advertising art and design department here, in hopes of finding out whether Davis knew of any former students capable of doing the job for RGS. Davis knew that the work would require a good sketch artist, and he remembered that Galang was a good student in sketching.

A FEW MONTHS later, Davis was contacted by Ted Huggins, Pacific Coast Representative for Triad Corporation, via Joseph Amori, director of placement at City College.

Huggins, a former consultant for Standard Oil and member of its Foreign Advisory Staff, was interested in finding a former student whom Davis felt was capable of doing illustration work for one of Triad's subsidiary companies, Condas International.

Galang began his job at Condas for double his former salary at RGS. He will also not be responsible for paying income tax, since his contract in a foreign country exceeds a period of 18 months.

If he decides that the job at Condas is what he wants to continue, Galang will be able to extend the contract.

Bietz, Quan Poll To Diagnose Bus Service Problem

"A survey for better service from the Municipal Railway" will be the topic of the poll organized by Associated Student President Ray Bietz and Frosh Councilman Derrick Quan and is scheduled to be taken during registration.

The opening day of registration, January 26, will be the first attempt of the poll to determine student reaction to present Municipal Railway conditions. Quan said that members of the special committee conducting the poll will assemble on campus and will interview students about the Muni problem.

The survey will continue on February 5 and 6, the scheduled registration days for the majority of students here. The site of the poll will be the same, plus an added location in the library.

The purpose of the poll, according to Quan, is to see how many City College students are "adversely affected by Muni conditions." The poll will also attempt to establish how many students over 18 years of age are still using car tickets.

The results of the poll will be transferred to Supervisor Jack Morrison who has promised to see to it that there is a public hearing concerning the problem.—D.B.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

● Hyperbole?

Editor, The Guardsman:

A rather excited column appeared in the January 3 edition of your newspaper, under the heading and byline: Vantage Point, by Glynn Petrie.

Its basic concern for more than 15 column inches was the terrible beating the "spirit of democracy" is taking today, at the hands of protest demonstrators—variously described as hysterical, idiotic, blind, ignorant, violent, selfish, cowardly, vain, bitter, irrational, irresponsible, undemocratic, emotional, thickheaded and, finally, as "stampeding cattle." (Cast listed in order of appearance.)

Certainly it might be suggested that there is here a somewhat heavy-handed use of hyperbole; but, one must presume, further journalistic training will care for that. Indeed, the only purpose in this particular comment, is to express the sense of poignancy I felt at Mr. Petrie's use of the word "democracy."

It is the same feeling Emerson must have had when, over 100 years ago, he said of Webster: "The word 'honor' in the mouth of Mr. Webster is like the word 'love' in the mouth of a whore."

David E. Stannard

● Though several of the words here are David E. Stannard's "hyperbole" and not Glynn Petrie's, it is indeed unfortunate that such adjectives characterize much of the current "protest movement."

Stannard apparently misinterpreted the column as an appeal for suppression of freedom of speech rather than as it was intended, a call for a more rational exercise of that freedom.—Editor.

● Honor Among Thieves

Editor, The Guardsman:

I would like to take this opportunity to correct an error on the part of your misinformed journalist, Mr. Ed Holmes.

As appeared in your January 3 issue of The Guardsman it stated that, "In a back room of the Campus Police complex is a large sign admonishing the ticket givers not to tag fellow officers' cars. Does the adage about honor among thieves apply?"

This statement is totally in error. Our patrolmen are not given any special parking privileges and for infractions of parking regulations are not only cited but are fined by the Campus Police in addition. If anything, the parking regulations are stricter for them.

I hope that in the future, persons who wish to write about the Campus Police will come into our office and get their information first hand; maybe then they will realize that we don't believe in "honor among thieves."

Michael S. Aimola
Campus Police Chief

Shots At RAMdom

by Ed Holmes

OPENING Volley: We would like to correct any bad impressions that might have been made by Police Chief Mike Aimola's letter that appears on this page.

Earlier this semester some of the KCSF staff conducted a poll on selected campus issues. One of the questions asked was, are the Campus Police doing a good job?

To this fairly straightforward question, 40 per cent answered that they felt the Campus Police were doing a good job while 20 per cent felt that they were not.

This gives the Men in Blue a vote of confidence of roughly 2 to 1, which is pretty significant, but an interesting part of the question is that the rest of those answering had no opinion.

This is not a police state. Students on this campus are definitely not intimidated by the thought of police reprisal. The question was not asked by men in uniform nor was it asked of people in line for parking permits.

In short, there was absolutely nothing to stop these people from sounding off if they had anything to sound off about.

This is pretty significant when you consider that a policeman not doing his job stands out like the sorest of thumbs, while a consciencious cop doing his job quietly and well is often overlooked.

It seems to us that the ambivalent lot who had no opinion, in fact, give their approval to the way the Campus Police operate. It seems further that a case could be made for saying that those polled approved of our police 4 to 1.

Had the questioneers asked us, we would have had to admit that we too feel the cops on campus are doing a good job.

This admission on our part would be much less grudging if the image created by the force contained a sense of humor.

SALUTE

To the staff of the Black Guard for putting out a professional looking newspaper. One of their stated editorial goals is to increase the amount of curriculum at City College directed solely toward Black students.

We note that along this line a course entitled Negro Culture in America will be offered for next semester. Anthropology 36 will meet in A-133 Tuesday and Thursday from 8 to 9:30.

POT SHOTS

Registrar Somerville tells us that any student who has moved from within the city limits of San Francisco without obtaining a release from his new district will be turned down at registration for next semester. Apparently the gouge is to get a release or use the old address.

Our music columnist promised to get this bit in the final edition. Students holding tickets to Wednesday Evening Series of the San Francisco Symphony may not know that the strike is over and that the series will begin this evening at 8:30. Refunds for cancelled performances are available.

We asked for a cogent comment to fill out this last column and received this: "With the present low rates to Europe, what the hell are we doing here?"

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1967

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco, Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 246.)

(The Guardsman, its faculty adviser and staff have no responsibility for or control over material printed on the page with the Free Critic masthead.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... STEVEN HARA
Managing Editor ..... Lori Pittman
Feature Editor ..... Marty Arbunich
Staff Editor ..... Glynn Petrie
News Editor ..... Ed Holmes
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan

Editorial Assistants: Doug Boston, Marc Clarkson, Douglas Dora, John Janigian, Ron Lent, John Letourneau, Viggo Petersen.

Reporters: John Bendottis, Berry Brown, Tim Bryden, Arthur Fanfelle, Tom Graham, Barbara Hamann, Mike Wise, Frank Wolf.

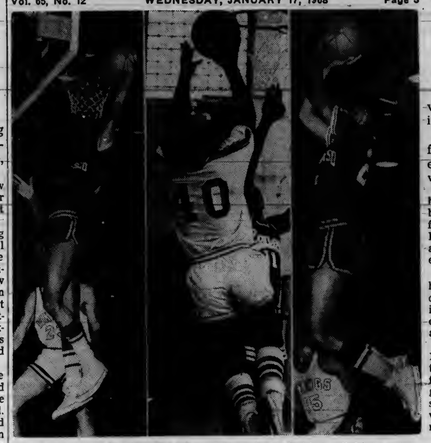
Cub Reporters: Loni Brand, Elizabeth Callan, Rita Carroll, Dave Huffine, Dennis Klein, Soku Kodama, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom, May Ling Wong.

Photographers: Ed Brose, Chief; Gary W. Batchelor, Paul Bekesy, James Bruce, Carol Gillmorn, Roberto Guillen, Fred Harris, Robert Kim, Klaus Kutz, Gary Lee, Garth Ogle, Mike Reames, Chris Rezales, Richard Schlairi, Kevin Tebbe, Mark Weinand, Samuel Woo.

Guardsman Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Hourse

Rams Whip Bulldogs For Fourth Straight

Phi Delta Champs; Boxing Highlights Sportnite Action



By John LeTourneau

Basketball and six boxing matches highlighted the Associated Men Students Sportnite, Thursday, in the Men's Gym.

Jeff Barker and Brian Wicklow paced Phi Delta to a 60-46 win over the Spoilers for their second straight championship.

The featured event was the boxing matches which saw two technical knockouts and one knockout. In the lightweight division Al Jung decisioned Dee Low. The next match saw Howard Terada whip Al Peterson in the second round. In the welterweight match Reg Batups used some fast footwork to beat the hard-swinging Franklin Wong. The middleweight bout was won by Dan Martin as he outpointed Gordon Rideau.

In the most exciting bout of the evening, Larry Tomasello punished the fleet Kenwood Devore before knocking him out in the third round. The featured heavyweight was ended abruptly in the second round when Greg Dellaine suddenly gave up as he might have suffered a mild concussion and Joe Bell was awarded the victory by technical knockout.

THREE HIGH FLYING RAMS in action. Boyd Stephens (left) lays in two while Telvis Jones (40) muscles in short jumper and Ray Hearne lets go with a long one.
—Guardsman photos by Chris Rozales, James Bruce, Rozales

Bradford Paces 64-43 Win; Team Faces Chabot Friday

Gary Bradford's 20 points paced the Rams to their fourth league victory of this season and their 33rd consecutive league win, defeating the San Mateo Bulldogs, 64-43, here last Friday night.

The Rams trailed early as the Bulldogs hit the opening basket for a lead but the Rams pressed and forced them into a number of errors with Telvis Jones and Jacob Hill each stealing passes which were converted into baskets.

Jones sparked the Rams to a 29-17 halftime advantage as he made four baskets and a free throw and had four assists. Isaiah Pruitt helped the Rams to their early lead as he dominated the boards, getting seven of his eight rebounds in the first half.

AT THE OPENING of the second half the Rams out-scored the Bulldogs 13-4, breaking the game open as in that streak Bradford scored three consecutive baskets as well as stealing a pass.

For the game Jones and Hill hit 15 and 12 points respectively. The team as a whole shot 50 per cent from the floor. This was the fourth game in a row that they have done so as they made 23 of 46 attempts with Bradford making six shots in nine attempts.

THE BULLDOGS managed a respectable 19 of 40 attempts for a 48 per cent clip. The Rams outrebounded the Bulldogs 32-21 and forced them into 21 ball control errors while the Rams committed but 12.

The Ram cagers are preparing to meet five opponents during the semester break from the tough league schedule starting with Chabot this Friday, January 19.

Since a short early season slump, the Rams have come on very strong, at one point in the possession of a seven-game winning streak.

They have been sparked all along by the consistent play of Hearne, Bradford and Jones, and fine teamwork by everyone. This, according to Coach Sid Phelan, is of utmost importance if the Rams are to go anywhere this year.

THE RAMS' FIRST real test will be this Friday when they take on John Wagoner's Gladiators from Chabot. The game will be played at Chabot. The Glads are led by their great All-Conference forward Don Crenshaw. The Glads have been rolling right along suffering only one loss, and that was in the preseason, to Long Beach.

The Rams will travel to Contra Costa to meet the Comets, who are led by high-scoring Harry Brown, on January 26. Merritt will come to City College on January 30.

Diablo Valley and Foothill come here on February 2 and 6, respectively. All games start at 8 p.m.

—A.F. and D.H.

Ram Cagers Win Home Opener From San Jose, 89-53

The City College Rams won their league home opener and third straight conference game of the season, January 9, defeating the San Jose Jaguars, 89-56.

The Rams shot at a 53 per cent clip. In the first half, Telvis Jones and Jacob Hill scored well; Hill hit 13 points of his total of 15 and Jones hit for 11. The two paced the Rams to a 44-26 first half score.

ISAIAH PRUITT, the Ram center, played a fine game both offensively and defensively to deliver the opening pass on the fast break. His total of seven rebounds was the highest for the game as the Rams out-rebounded the Jaguars, 37-15. No San Jose player had more than four rebounds.

Though early in the game the Jaguars led by a 5-4 margin, two baskets in a row by Hill shifted the lead to the Rams, which they never lost. The Rams' hot shooting buried the Jaguars as Ray Hearne found the range early in the contest to score 22 points, high for the game. He shot well—10 baskets in 19 attempts for better than a 50 per cent clip.

The other three members to score in double figures were Jones with 17 points, Gary Bradford with 12 and Darrell Fregia with ten.

SAN JOSE'S scoring was led by forward Gary Lademan's 20 points—nine baskets out of 10 attempts. Everett Breaux, the Jaguars' leading scorer, was held to 15 points as he was forced to miss some long jumpers under pressure to make seven of 17 attempts.

Ram Coach Sid Phelan mentioned after the game "that a break in this year's schedule had not allowed the Rams to play a highly rated team thus far." He added, "We are still basically untested."

The Rams' defensive press was effective, forcing the Jaguars into more than ten turnovers, eight of which were turned into successful field goals.

Basketball, Soccer Only Crowns For '67

RAMBLINGS

Record For Laney And O. J.'s Photo Finish

By Mike Duggan

DURING the past year City College has added only two championships to its long string of title winners. Only last season's basketball squad and this year's soccer team managed to win league titles.

The year 1966 brought seven athletic championships to City College as the school enjoyed its best year in that respect.

When looking back upon the 1967 titles, it is nothing new for cage mentor Sid Phelan or soccer coach Roy Diederichsen to come up with winners.

DIEDERICHSEN'S booters have won the state championship for the past five years by ridiculous scores of 14-0, 8-0, 4-0, 12-0 and 8-1. These scores leave little doubt that once getting by the conference, City College has but a southern pushover to sew up another state crown.

Yet, the 1967 soccer campaign brought something new to its followers—defeat! Yes, the Rams actually lost two games as both Merritt and San Mateo turned the trick. After 19 years and 100 straight victories over two-year college competition, Diederichsen tasted defeat for the first time.

Faced with having to come from behind to win the league, Diederichsen fired up the team and they beat Merritt to tie for the conference crown, beat Merritt again in a special playoff and then routed Compton for another state title.

Basketball victories come easy for Phelan. Since the Golden Gate Conference started six years ago, City College has won 64 conference games and lost but nine. Now in his 13th year of coaching at the college, Phelan's squads have taken eight league titles.

• • •

LANEY, 74-17 losers to the Rams last month, opened its league with a 100-88 win over Gavilan. Of more notice, however, was the performance of 5-9 guard Sam Hill. Hill (pictured guarding Telvis Jones in last week's Guardsman), hit 21 field goals and five free throws on way to a school record 47 points.

• • •

In the Examiner All-American Games indoor track meet at the Cow Palace January 5, O. J. Simpson finished eighth in a photo finish 60-yard dash won by San Jose high schooler Billy Gaines in 6.0. Others in the race included Mel Pender, Charlie Greene, Jim Hines and Willie Turner.

While it was a great feat by the 18-year-old Gaines, the biggest thrill of the meet was provided by 45-year-old Augie Escamilla. Running in the Seniors' Mile Run, Escamilla put on a finishing kick to win in 5:03. Escamilla, who represented the San Diego Track Club, is a teacher by profession and has run the outdoor mile in 4:47.8. The one requirement for the event was that entrant be at least 40 years of age.

Awards Presented At RA Gathering

The Recreation Association recently presented 50 members with shield, block and star awards at its semi-annual award social, Shirley Brown, RA president, announced.

Laurine Bergin, retiring volleyball coach, was honored, and the new RA officers were sworn in.

The new officers for the spring semester are Mary Wambeke, president; Tatiana Konstantinow, vice president; Elaine Granda, secretary; Connie Mugas, treasurer, and Jessica Waidler, historian.

Members of the Recreation Association competed with 14 other Bay Area colleges in a basketball tournament (January 13) at Hartnell College in Salinas, according to Lottie Taylor, RA basketball manager.

Interested men and women are reminded that the college's RA offers a variety of activities and dances each semester.

City College became the first two-year college to win the Northern California Intercollegiate Fencing Association championship when the RA fencing team took top honors in competition last spring.

Final Examination Schedule

Fall Semester 1967

Classes	Day	Hour
7 Daily	Friday, January 26	8:00-12:00
7 MWF	Friday, January 26	8:00-10:00
7, 7-8:25, 7:45-9 TTh	Friday, January 26	10:30-12:30
8 Daily	Friday, January 19	8:00-12:00
8 MWF	Friday, January 19	8:00-10:00
8, 8-9:25, 8:45-10 TTh	Friday, January 19	10:30-12:30
9 Daily	Thursday, January 25	8:00-12:00
9 MWF	Thursday, January 25	8:00-10:00
9-11 Daily	Thursday, January 25	8:00-12:00
9, 9-10:25, 9:45-11 TTh	Thursday, January 25	10:30-12:30
10 Daily	Wednesday, January 24	8:00-12:00
10 MWF	Wednesday, January 24	8:00-10:00
10, 10-11 TTh 11 T	Wednesday, January 24	10:30-12:30
11 Daily	Tuesday, January 23	8:00-12:00
11 MWF	Tuesday, January 23	8:00-10:00
11 T, 11 TF	Tuesday, January 23	10:30-12:30
12-1 Daily	Monday, January 22	8:00-12:00
12-1 MWF	Monday, January 22	8:00-10:00
12, 12-1:25, 12:45-2 TTh	Monday, January 22	10:30-12:30
1 Daily	Thursday, January 25	1:00-5:00
1 MWF	Thursday, January 25	1:00-3:00
1-3 Daily	Thursday, January 25	1:00-5:00
1,1-2:25, 1:45-3 TTh	Thursday, January 25	3:30-5:30
2 Daily	Friday, January 19	1:00-5:00
2 MWF	Friday, January 19	1:00-3:00
2, 2-3:25, 2:45-4 TTh	Friday, January 19	3:30-5:30
3 Daily	Thursday, January 18	1:00-5:00
3 MWF	Thursday, January 18	1:00-3:00
3, 3:45-5, 3-4:25 TTh	Thursday, January 18	3:30-5:30
4 Daily	Tuesday, January 23	1:00-5:00
4 MWF	Tuesday, January 23	1:00-3:00
4, 4-5:25, 4:45-6 TTh	Tuesday, January 23	3:30-5:30
5 Daily	Wednesday, January 24	8:00-12:00
5 MWF	Wednesday, January 24	8:00-10:00
Chemistry 1A	Thursday, January 18	8:00-12:00
Bus. Admin. 1A	Monday, January 22	3:15-6:00
Health (Women)	Monday, January 22	12:45-1:55
Health (Men)	Monday, January 22	2:05-3:25

Focus: Don't Knock It

by Lori Pittman

IT IS MUCH easier and more popular these days to ridicule and demonstrate against anything than it is to appreciate the good.

If a student were to walk around this campus carrying a sign that read, "This is a good college," or went to Student Council and suggested writing a letter of appreciation to the people of the city and state on behalf of the students of the college, he would probably be met by jeering and laughter. Many would think him mad.

Like the dog that bites the hand . . . most students have grown up to accept everything they are given as their natural right and to expect more. Yet, in this state they have so much.

CALIFORNIA AND ILLINOIS are the only two states in the union that have specific legal restrictions against charging resident students tuition for attending two-year colleges.

In other words, though many states hold the philosophy that two-year or "community colleges" should provide free or practically free education, the common practice is to charge tuition or general fees to students.

One method used by two-year colleges in some of the other states is to finance this type of education by dividing the cost in thirds. The student pays a third of the cost, the district pays a third and the remaining amount is paid by the state.

This college is also nationally accredited by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges. It isn't what the name "Junior College" implies—a stepping stone to higher education. It is the first two years of a higher education.

MANY OF THE COURSES here are parallel or equivalent to those given in the first two years at universities and state or private colleges. They are transferable.

For those students who didn't do as well as they could wish in high school, there are foundation courses to help them get back on their feet . . . and it is all free.

Studies kept on students who transfer to the University of California at Berkeley, San Francisco State and San Jose State Colleges show that students from this college generally do better grade-wise than the average transfers from all two-year colleges. There is so much here . . . and it's all free.

THIS COLUMN HAS been devoted to pointing out some of the evils that exist at this college. The last evil and the most devastating is the attitude of some students here who are ashamed to say that they are students of City College.

Do they realize just how much they are getting for nothing?

Joan Nourse Succumbs Suddenly

Flags at City College of San Francisco flew at half mast when Joan Nourse, charter member of the college faculty, founder of The Guardsman and its adviser for 33 years, died in her apartment on Saturday, February 10, from the effects of a sudden cerebral hemorrhage. The end came without warning. Miss Nourse taught until the day before her death. She met all her classes during the week and was in good spirits when she left The Guardsman editorial room.

Leaders in San Francisco civic life, members of the faculty of City College, newspaper men and women, all graduates of The Guardsman staff, heard Rev. Harold E. Halleck of St. John's Episcopal Church, of Ross, deliver the memorial service at Gray's Post Street Chapel on Tuesday, February 13.

Attending the service in a body were members of the last classes taught by Miss Nourse, President Conlan, members of his administrative staff and faculty.

Miss Nourse left a legacy of national honors won by The Guardsman down through the years. A colleague once called her "one of the great teachers of journalism" and many of the well known names of the newspaper and communications world learned the ABC's of their profession from her.

In her memory, the Joan Nourse Scholarship Fund has been established by alumni and students for the benefit of an outstanding student in journalism. Contributions to the fund are being accepted by Dean Mary Golding at City College.

Miss Nourse's interest in journalism dates to her high school days when she won honors from Stanford University for a story she wrote for the Galileo Pendulum. Later, while a student at Stanford, Miss Nourse was a "stringer" for the Associated Press. After graduation from Stanford in 1931 she worked briefly as a reporter for the San Francisco Chronicle, before joining the City College faculty. She then earned a Master of Arts degree from the University of California.

Miss Nourse was born in Palo Alto, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Nourse. Mr. Nourse later became superintendent of public schools in San Francisco. She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Joseph P. Nourse of San Francisco, a sister, Mrs. Frank Goodell of Los Altos Hills and a brother, Col. Robert S. Nourse of Greenbrae, California.

Rich Shirley Declares Involvement His Goal

"Involvement, that is the key word I wish to bring out in my term as president," said Rich Shirley, Freshman Class president.

Shirley stated that at the last election only 1.3 per cent of the student body voted. Although he was pleased that he won, he was disappointed by the low turnout of voters.

In order to get people involved, Shirley and his secretary, Janis Ryun, have sent letters to those people who have said they were interested in working for the class, inviting them to participate in student affairs.

The new president intends to "try and unify the spirit" of all the people he comes in contact with. This is mainly because he feels that many people think that Student Council is one "big cliche," and this is why they show no spirit. "However, when they are asked what they want done, they reply "anything," said Shirley.

Shirley also wants to stimulate the faculty in student affairs. He mentions this because the majority of the faculty does not know enough about student government, or they "don't want to know." He hopes to receive help from Derrick Quan and his Controversial Affairs Committee.

As vice president of the Council of Organizations, Shirley wants to "send out" knowledge to the various clubs at the college in an effort to "help clubs help themselves."

He plans to have class meetings later in the term, and to have a "table" to talk to those who are interested in planning things for the semester. This is his main concern because he wants to do a lot of things for his class, but only if people are interested.

Shirley's goal is to become AS president, but only after he learns enough about the students and clubs so he can do the job effectively.

One activity he is planning is a dinner or banquet welcoming the new freshmen.

In commenting about the first school dance held on February 16, Shirley said, "Personally I feel that it was successful, but more people could have gone." He feels that this dance was "successful" due to the fact that it was well publicized.—L. L.

AS Cards

Council Intends To Improve Activities

In order to raise funds for student activities, Student Council has launched a campaign to sell more AS cards.

"The cuts in this semester's budget for student activities resulted from declining sales in student body cards," according to AS President Ray Bietz. The present semester's budget has allocated $13,000 for cultural events and $9000 for sporting events.

Last semester an AS card was not needed to attend drama productions, concerts, lectures or film series. This semester's new measure has been put into effect and will require an AS card to attend these events.

Bietz also stated, "In order to gain more funds for cultural activities and sporting events we must sell more student body cards to be able to give the needed money to campus organizations." He further stated, that the more student body cards sold the better the activities will be at City College, as the lecture to be given by Negro speaker Dick Gregory in the near future.

Representatives of Student Council feel that they are justified in taking actions designed to provide for more money to finance school activities. Their action of making AS cards mandatory for college activities has been a common practice by most other colleges, Bietz commented. Student Council's goal is to obtain more AS funds for better cultural and sporting events at City College.

Drama Department Says 'Unrealistic'

In an effort to strengthen AS card sales, Student Council passed a resolution prohibiting all non-AS cardholders from attending cultural events on campus.

According to James Haran, coordinator of the film series, council is taking a fiscal attitude instead of looking at the situation realistically.

"This college has never functioned by school spirit. The only way to get the students to come was by the tickets. This was our only mode of advertisement," Haran stated.

As an example, he cited the first film of this semester. In addition to his Drama 5 class, only eight people came to the film, compared to last semester's average of two hundred. Seventy-five students were turned away because they didn't have AS cards.

In a letter to council, Haran and Dr. Walter Krumm, head of the Drama Department, outlined the reasons for the unfeasibility of this resolution. The Drama Department feels that council is hampering its function as a cultural experience for both the students and the community.

The letter also pointed out that the entire source of funds did not come from AS card sales. In concluding, the letter assured Student Council that these events (both dramas and films) would cease unless a more workable agreement was reached.

Student Council has not yet taken any action on the letter.

Experimental College Rolls

Revolutionary classroom techniques are the endeavor of the Experimental College which commenced last week with some 300 students having already enrolled.

The Experimental College will be conducted on a no-grade, no-credit basis. One of the reasons for this procedure is that the California State Education Board does not accredit the specific group discussions offered.

Judith Rosenthal, secretary-treasurer of the Experimental College, says that "Many school have adopted programs similar to those offered here, and after a few semesters these schools have adopted a pass-fail type grading system for those specific discussions offered in the Experimental College."

The Experimental College is based upon the desire of participants to achieve self discovered, self appropriated knowledge through a variety of classroom arrangements. One such arrangement might be seminar type classroom procedure.

The subjects range from "Yoga and Meditation" to "International Relations;" from "The Negro Poet in America, 1619 to Present" to "Increasing Awareness," or any subject a prospective organizer cares to submit to the Experimental College office.

Educational experimentation means the trying of new procedures or techniques so that the best results of a classroom situation can be realized. Educational experimentation may be a departure from classroom procedures. Educational experimentation also means the wary eye of the skeptic, and the disdain of the conservative.

In answer to the question, "How successful has the Experimental College been in the recruitment of student participants?", Donald Peterson, faculty adviser of the Experimental College, replied, "It has been even more successful than the proponents of the college predicted. This successful enrollment also contradicts what the negative critics of the college predicted. I think it shows that students wish to play an active, and somewhat independent, role in their education. Maybe the current college curriculum does not always reflect the interests and needs of the students. On this note the Experimental College serves as a vital and versatile supplement."

Peterson said that students attended the first meeting of the Experimental College on various days last week. He pointed out that "Yoga" and "Awareness" are filled to capacity; there is even a waiting list for another section in Yoga, making it the third in that subject.

Further information and a brochure of the possible courses may be obtained at C-338B, and C-332E.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 66 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1968 NUMBER 1

'Hysteria' Helps Collect Dimes

"Celestrial Hysteria" and a guest speaker from rock radio station KFRC will be the highlights of this year's Mile of Dimes Drive which will be held tomorrow during the hours of 9 and 3 on campus.

The combo and speaker will be entertaining during the College Hour.

Sponsor of the dimes drive, Phi Beta Delta fraternity, along with the Phi Beta Rho sorority sisters, will be around the campus collecting the contributions. As the year before, there will be a tape extended from the Ram near Smith Hall to the flagpole in front of the school library. The contributions will be taped on. After being counted, it will be sent to the National Foundation of the March of Dimes where it will be used for the battle against birth defects.

Last year, the dimes drive was a huge success. The same fraternity, Phi Beta Delta, collected over $400. Till Cosgrove, president of the fraternity, expresses hopes of collecting as much or more than the amount last year.—R. Q.

Student Finance Office Opens Additional Branch

The Student Finance Office, located in Smith Hall-107, has recently expanded its office space in order to meet the growing demands of student affairs.

The over-crowded conditions and many activity services forced the Finance Office to open an additional branch. The new office, the Controller's Service Center, is located in Smith Hall-103 and handles the sale of student body cards, dance, play and symphony tickets; lost and found; locker issuance, and leaves of absence.

In addition to safeguarding the student funds the finance office is also responsible for the processing and writing of checks, accepting deposits on payment of loans, collecting dues from the various clubs and other organizations, serving as adviser to the Associated Students treasury, and aiding in activities such as the selling of tickets at football games, plays and dances.

"Students are constantly coming to the window to cash checks," said Carl Anderson, finance office accountant and office manager, who has a back file of bounced checks since 1955. "There was a time," he said, "when we cashed checks for students, but because of the volume of bad checks we had to discontinue the service." He added, "I am hoping to experiment with the check-cashing service again, but the decision rests with the Unified School District's Division of Fiscal Control and the college."

Names of students who fail to clear loans, checks, chemistry laboratory breakage fees and other debts are kept on file. Transcripts and recommendations from the college are not given out until the debt is paid, according to Anderson.

The finance office does not grant loans but does process them when the student has made application with Mary Golding, dean of women or Ralph Hillsman, dean of men. Veterans can apply with Robin Dunn, veterans counselor, room S-132. Loans are granted upon final approval of Dr. Harry Buttimer, controller of student and school district funds at City College.

"Loans must be for a definite need, such as books," said Anderson. "There is no interest on student loans."

The finance office reminds students that requests for scholarships, service and reimbursement checks must be submitted four days in advance. However, personal loan applications may be submitted on 24-hour notice.

Due to the overload of work and the lack of personnel the finance office processes work requests on a first-come first-serve basis.

This method is fair and most effective, according to Anderson.

The finance office is open daily from 12:05 p.m. to 2 p.m. The Controller's Service Center from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

—B. H.

AS Funds Removed; G'man Is Published Under New Budget

The Guardsman, which to date has been published by the Associated Students, will, as of this issue, be published by the college with funds provided by the San Francisco Unified School District.

The change was effected during last term when the school board decided to become the official publisher of The Guardsman and to provide approximately $6000 per semester for the paper as a classroom project. The Associated Students will contribute $1200 in addition, enabling The Guardsman to increase the number of copies per issue from 3000 to 6000.

Dr. Lloyd Luckmann, as acting president of the college, brought the issue before the school board during last semester after publishment of The Guardsman had been delayed due to a struggle in Student Council over the Free Critic and The Guardsman.

Dr. Luckmann explained, "I didn't go before the board to save the Associated Students money but to save the headache of last semester." He also stated that he felt the Free Critic was useful as an "opinion paper," but that "The Guardsman is necessary for communication and shouldn't be hung up by squabbles."

Ray Bietz, Associated Student president, remarked on the change of publishers, "I think it's great. It takes the load off the students financially and will enable The Guardsman to come out with more copies. It will also give the paper more freedom as they won't be subject to political pressure as they were last term by the Change party when they were forced to relinquish a page to the Free Critic."

Bietz also explained that the Free Critic, under the joint editorship of Dennis Mundt and the Experimental College, had been granted 200 dollars in order to publish three issues.

He stated "The council will probably continue to award the Free Critic money if it fills its four-page paper. If a repetition of last semester occurs, when the Critic produced blank space and such junk as a page full of signatures, council will probably cut their budget."

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco

ED HOLMES, Editor

Vol. 66, No. 1 | WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1968 | Page 2

Joan Nourse

DEPARTMENT CHAIRMAN, instructor, faculty adviser, friend. Yet how many people really knew her? A staff of over 300 on this campus and it's a good guess that not more than a third of them would recognize her in the hall. An enrollment of over 10,000 yet no more than 100 of these would have recognized her by more than name.

But hundreds of former students, and many of the staff will never forget Joan Nourse.

Because to those that did know her Joan Nourse was a remarkable person; an instructor more interested in allowing her students to learn than in pedagogically "teaching" them, a sympathetic friend when wise counsel was needed, and above all a person devoted to the highest principles of journalism.

This blend of personal concern, instructional skill and professionalism has affected some of the best journalists in the bay area.

The walls of her office are lined with awards earned by the paper under her guidance but these awards are not all that a long-time friend, George Mullany, included when he paraphrased, "If you would see her monument, look about you."

Students Lose Their Paper

THE GUARDSMAN has a new publisher this semester (news story on page 1). Having been party to many of the negotiating sessions leading to the present state of affairs, we feel called upon to offer an assessment of the situation.

Just as the fellow who sees his cantankerous mother-in-law drive over a cliff in his brand new Cadillac, we view the results with mixed emotions.

The Guardsman formerly was the "Official student newspaper of the Associated Students" published entirely by AS funds. As with the Critic, the Black Guard, Focus, the Activities Calendar, or any of the many smaller publications, this paper came under the indirect control of the administration. Indirect in the sense that the administration always has, and always will, reserve the right to prohibit the publication of a certain class of news story.

But direct control was maintained by the AS. Examples are: "You will devote more news space to Student Council or we will take away your funds" and "You will give one page of The Guardsman to the Free Critic or you will get no money."

If some people contend that this direct control was misused, that does not prove that it was misplaced.

However, control of this nature must be exercised with responsibility—a word much in disfavor today.

The AS abandoned this control with an amazing lack of concern, showing conclusively that they lack interest in, responsibility for, and/or understanding of the situation.

Labelled And Recorded

Experience, Cream And Now Blue Cheer

by Martin J. Arbunich

IT'S A shame there are people still roaming the streets that believe Blue Cheer is a sudsy detergent used exclusively for household laundry. Blindness of this nature is enough to erase the smile from a bearded Abe "Voco" Kesh, producer of Blue Cheer's new album and KMPX disc jockey, and to cause him to begin a retreat of lament in a puddle of his own tears.

"They're dynamite, just legal dynamite," Kesh preaches of his trio of rock musicians which got their start locally a little less than a year ago and have risen to become one of San Francisco's foremost contributions to the evergrowing rock scene.

On stage Blue Cheer is the most propulsive dynamo of musical power this writer has ever witnessed, rivalled only by its English counterparts Cream and the Jimi Hendrix Experience's ability to pack quite a wallop to the eardrums themselves. Potentially, however, thanks to the omnipotent amplification of a certain Mr. Marshall (six big amps), Blue Cheer holds a slight edge.

It's interesting to note that the three groups are parallel along lines other than just sheer, magnified power. Each has three talented and extremely capable musicians. Eric Clapton of Cream and Jimi Hendrix have been internationally established "gods" of the guitar for some time, but Blue Cheer's Leigh Stephens, though rather unknown at the moment, is a real marvel himself. His work on the Blue Cheer LP is simply incredible, and cuts like Out of Focus and Parchment Farm curiously mirror his fondness for the intriguing Hendrix style, though most of his style is primarily his own.

Like the incomparable Ginger Baker (Cream) and the swift but less powerful Mitch Mitchell of the Experience, Blue Cheer's Paul Whaley pounds away on his drums with equal savagery.

His stick work can best be compared to that of Baker, especially so after closely studying their Second Time Around, where everyone, even the violent bassman Dick Peterson, gets a solo. It's a somewhat modest reply to Baker's beautiful classic, Toad, with the addition of Stephens' "legal dynamite" smoking from his Gibson.

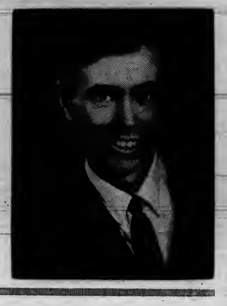
STEPHENS, WHALEY, PETERSON
Blue Cheer: we conquer chaos.

VINCEBUS ERUPTUM (We Conquer Chaos) is the kind of LP Hendrix and Cream should have come up with long ago. The six lengthy cuts on this album are superbly improvised almost to their fullest, something that Hendrix and Cream both love to do in performances but butcher brutally when it's time to record. It's a very sad thing.

Musicians shouldn't be deprived of the necessary time to do their 'thing' on record. The stage repertoire and the recording should be one and the same, otherwise they're like two isolated "beasts"—one with freedom and the other imprisoned in captivity. And there's no sense in caging good music.

It must be quite a distinction to be crowned the most highly amplified group around, but are all Blue Cheer's casualties worth it?

Blowing amplifiers is a very familiar occurence on stage with Blue Cheer and it's reported that lead quitarist Stephens is so playful with his Gibson that "he goes through three or four of them each month." And to top the physical exhaustion the threesome undergoes during live performances, the drummer's hands, despite being covered with protective gloves, are frequently a "bloody mess" after concerts due to shattering drumsticks.



"It's just creative energy," Blue Cheer's manager Gut explains. Some people will do anything for power!

• • •

Cream will be in town at the Fillmore both this weekend and next. On the same bill with them this week are Big Black and the Loading Zone.

There's also a very nice show over at the Avalon with the new Blues Project, Taj Mahal and Genesis.

Mind-Blower

Paul G. Hewitt, physics teacher, was elected Outstanding Instructor at City College for last semester. Student Council, in making the selection, quoted Paul Goodman, a former Experimental College teacher at S.F. State, when he wrote in Playboy that "an outstanding instructor should blow your mind." And the feeling is that's exactly what Hewitt does for his students.

In his classes Hewitt dismisses all formalities and to his students he says, "Call me Paul." And they do.

Hewitt also uses unusual techniques to establish a better instructor-student relationship. "If you have problems," he tells his classes, "here's my home phone number."

Hewitt is also the type of instructor that shies away from memorizing facts and figures. "It's the principles that count," he believes.

Registration Difficulties Prove Similar For Students, Instructors

Students who have gone through the turmoil of registration may appreciate their position after a brief look at the difficulties involved when their nemesis, the instructor, goes to register.

As the instructor glares down at his new class, with the sour expression of despair, it's obvious he wonders why so many students chose him, when, if he could reciprocate, he surely wouldn't choose these losers. But that's not the only reason he's glaring.

WHEREAS THE student may often select his courses, the instructor is assigned his workload by the department chairman. They may request a morning or afternoon based program, but this isn't always possible.

Dean of Instruction, James Billwiller, notes that an instructor's load at this college includes teaching an average of 16½ units a semester, keeping office hours, doing his "homework" of checking student papers, and the sometimes formidable task of attending lectures. Science instructors, in addition to their task of keeping up with new information in their field, are also burdened by more teaching hours because of the necessity of operating laboratory courses.

Dean Billwiller also commented that because a Master's Degree is almost a must today, a teacher is sometimes forced to teach part of the day and attend school himself in his free time to attain his advanced degree.

Students now have the consolation that they're not the only reason for their instructor loosing his once-exuberant disposition.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

(Letters to the Editor may be left in the switchboard office, S-169, in Science Hall or in The Guardsman office, S-304. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. The Guardsman reserves the right to edit letters in the interests of brevity and rhetoric. If so desired the writer's name will be withheld, but the identity of the writer must be known to the editor.)

●AS Or SS?

Editor, The Guardsman:

Is it AS or SS? The Associated Students are beginning to have the appearance of a mini-fascist government who feels all students must pay monetary tribute to it.

I am led to believe that before my time the Associated Students initiated a gallantly fought campaign to gain control over the money they were allowed to spend.

They claimed to possess maturity and intelligence, no longer were they high school 'kids' but college 'students,' capable of overseeing their own affairs.

APPARENTLY these students have fallen on their faces, or at least stumbling precariously. The power of spending is being taken as an instrument to beat all members of City College over the head with. No longer is one allowed to see movies without his SS, excuse me that is AS, card. From what I gather no college function may be attended without this card. Also from what I understand the drama department is refusing to perform this semester as a result of the action.

Further, I offer myself as an example of the AS's overall pedantic personality. I am on the staff of the Forum, our college magazine, but I do not own an SS card. Because the AS controls our money, it is mandatory to possess a card, or our name cannot appear anywhere in the magazine. Now with a name like mine, I feel it to my benefit for it to not appear in print, but the idea of the matter is pretty childish.

OF COURSE there isn't much I can do about it, except to refuse to spend any money what-so-ever at City College, this includes books. I'm sure the California Book Store will appreciate my future business, and anyone else's for that matter.

The AS has taken a power which was granted to them under good faith, and have already perverted this faith to such an extent that they are alienating themselves from the body of students.

THEY CANNOT dictate to me or anyone else what we shall buy, believe it or not for many students $5.00 is still a fairly large sum of cash which isn't readily available and to deprive these, as well as others, from what could be considered cultural activities, to a minor degree in many cases, is asinine and against the very purpose of education.

Jerry D. Fink

Pot Luck

by Tom Graham

WHEN this column was first conceived the basic theme was to focus upon interesting areas which would possibly influence or at least entertain the reader.

In searching for a name to set the mood for this type of column only two suggestions or ideas were seriously considered. One was entitled 'Gass,' which sounded too Count Marcolsh, and the other was 'Pot Luck.'

Since the title may have been misleading to those who thought that it was intended as a pun, the first area that will be discussed will be marijuana, simply to prevent the disillusioned reader from 'Shootin' It.'

Marijuana has been called this generation's alcohol and today is experiencing a new form of prohibition. The use, sale, or possession of it has more severe legal consequences than drinking alcohol. The use of pot is a subject of growing concern on campuses across the country.

Why do students blow grass? Some say they enjoy the intensity of sense perceptions. Others make a ritual of it and testify that they have gained a new perspective of life from the deep sleep after a trip.

Both drinking and blowing are forms of escape and shouldn't be regarded as anything but.

The whole controversy started in this country when the Marijuana Act of 1937 first outlawed marijuana and the Federal Narcotic Act of 1956 classified selling, using, or possessing it as a federal felony. The establishment of mandatory minimum sentences of two years for possessing and five years for selling pot increased the questionable distinction between pot and alcohol.

It is argued that these stiff penalties were enacted on the basis of the incorrect assumption that marijuana is a narcotic when actually it is a mild hallucenogenic drug which is not addictive, leaves no hangover, and apparently does no permanent physical damage. In defense, users state that there are no withdrawal symptoms as there are with narcotics.

Is the problem of pot, then, more a legal than a medical one? With most of the 15,000 arrests last year among college students, the legality of such laws is being questioned. In the future, the Supreme Court possibly will have to deal with the old marijuana law in light of increased knowledge and more wirespread use of pot.

• • •

On a more serious subject, it has been discovered that our nation's economic stability rests between the ankle and thigh.

There's a rumor circulating throughout this country that "as the hemline goes, so goes the economy." Responsible in large part for this revealing situation is the H. W. Gossard Company—yes, they're the bra manufacturer—who have been issuing hemline economy predictions since 1958 with remarkable accuracy.

Gossard predicts a see-saw economy next year with the varied new styles. According to Gossard's girl watching economists, last year's economy reached record highs. Styles, however, are getting longer, which is a bad omen for economists and girl watchers alike.

Looking back, one recalls that the flapper era, which featured knobby knees, was one of economic growths. While hemlines were going down in '29, so did the economy. In the 1930's girls with ugly legs prompted designers to cover up, and the economy was practically buried.

So girls, don't be bashful, our national economy depends upon you.

Guardsman Staff — Spring 1968

(Official newspaper of City College of San Francisco, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall: telephone 587-7272, extension 246.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... ED HOLMES
Managing Editor ..... Martin J. Arbunich
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
News Editor ..... Doug Boston
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan
Editorial Assistant ..... D. K. Dorn
Circulation Manager ..... Arthur Fantells

Reporters: John Bendoritis, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Linda Sandstrom.

Cub Reporters: David Albertson, Penny Blum, Garret Duncan, Willy Durkin, Lawrence Ferrari, Jerry D. Fink, Floyd Flynn, Michael J. Flynn, Wayne Hiroshima, Ed Jimison, Lavine Lee, Rita Quong, Leonard Ribeiro, Carol Roehl, Jerry W. Siskron, Pam Tomasello, Gavin L. Watt, James Baggett, James Bilbury, Robert Forsker, Lawrance Lee.

Photographers: Dawn Turner, Chief; Gary Bachelor, Nathaniel Dodge, Carol Gilimore, Herbert Gong, Glenn Graham, Fred Harris, Jerry Jew, James McElory, Doug Mills, Robert Morris, Jens Protze, Mike Romeo, Larry Tiscornia, Melvin Weiner and Samuel Woo.

Council Calls For Rate Cut In Muni Fare

By Barbara Hamann

A recommendation was proposed by the Student Council enabling all students to ride the "muni" to and from campus at reduced rates regardless of age.

Under the plan, first proposed last October, students 18 and older could purchase a Muni Student Discount Card (car ticket) good for ten rides for 50 cents, a saving of 10 cents each ride.

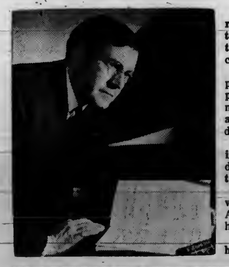
At present only those students under 18 are officially allowed car tickets.

The Public Utilities Commission, now considering the proposal, makes the final decision on student fares.

HOWEVER, the commission has no further reply concerning the proposal.

Derrick Quan, frosh councilman, conducted a Municipal Railway Survey during registration, at which time questionnaires were completed by returning students.

One question regarded the bus/trolley service to and from campus. The results showed that 437 felt the bus/trolley service was good, opposed to 2008 who voted fair and 1518 who considered the service poor.



Students who exclusively drive to and from school were asked the same question and voted 161 for good service, 421 voted fair and 513 felt the service was poor.

THE PURPOSE of the survey, according to Quan, was to see how many City College students were affected by Muni conditions. The survey also attempted to establish how many students over 18 years of age are still using car tickets.

Quan felt the survey would also bear weight on the Municipal Railway's efforts to improve bus service.

The results of the Municipal Railway Survey will be forwarded to the Public Utilities Commission in hopes that it will speed up the approval of the Student Council's recommendation, according to Quan.

Karl Schnabel In CH Concert

Karl Ulrich Schnabel, pianist of rare distinction, will be this semester's first College Hour concert attraction tomorrow at 11 a.m. in the college theater.

Schnabel, particularly noted for his playing of romantic composers, will perform Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata, Schubert's Moments Musicaux, and four pieces from Liszt's Annees de Pelerinage.

Schnabel made his American debut in 1937 in New York City. He now divides his year between England, the United States and South America.

Raised in Berlin, where he studied with Leonid Kreutzer at the State Academy of Music, Schnabel made his first appearance in 1926.

Admission is limited to AS card holders only.

Spectrum: Gift Of Freedom

by Barbara Hamann

WE DWELL in a nation blessed with riches and opportunity far surpassing that of any other country. America appears to be the last bastion of freedom and democracy. It is indeed a "land flowing with milk and honey."

Freedom in this world is not the rule, but the exception. Many nations seek but few find it. The freedom of faith and conviction has been bought with a great price. For the quest of freedom, righteous blood has been shed throughout history. Our nation has obtained it with the sacrifice of people, who considered it so important, that they willingly laid down their lives to attain it.

BECAUSE OF this freedom every American has the opportunity to make the most of himself and his life. It does us little good unless we think for ourselves, act for ourselves. It comes alive only when we set ourselves high goals and standards and do our best to attain them.

The individual who lets others do his thinking for him, who drifts through life with no special goals and no special effort might as well be living behind the Iron Curtain.

America needs people with high ambitions and the will to work, no matter what their chosen career may be. These are the people who will make our economy strong, our institutions and our government vigorous. These are the individuals who prove that a free society is strongest.

Freedom cannot be given to or forced upon anyone. If, as individuals, we do not use our freedom, we lose it. And if we in this country lose freedom, then freedom's cause is lost throughout the world.

TODAY, IT IS the duty of every college student to seek out ways in which we can contribute to our nation's strength.

The democratic voting system that offers students on campus the opportunity to elect their representative officers is perhaps the best way of expressing one's freedom as a student. Yet, only 132 students voted in the last AS election.

Neglecting to vote and express your opinions is like throwing your freedom aside and inviting a dictatorship.

Dual Look At Job Placement

Job Queries Keep Coming

Students in search of employment have descended en masse upon the college placement service this semester in pursuit of part-time jobs, career planning and full-time positions, according to Joseph A. Amori, director of job placement.

While more than one thousand students have been processed to date, Amori indicates that employers are continuing to recruit City College students.

Job openings are varied with a wide range of occupational opportunities, among which rank accounting, secretarial and data processing fields, salary ranging from $1.75 to $2.50 per hour. One stipulation is emphasized: typing is a basic requirement for most office jobs.

INVENTORY JOBS for large department and specialty stores are filled by both male and female applicants.

There have been orders such as one that called for "three blondes wearing red miniskirts to work as service station attendants."

Students wishing to apply for summer jobs, the time to apply is now. Most summer resorts and camps have already begun their recruitment drives for summer employees. Among these are Yosemite Park, Curry Company, Yellowstone National Park, Crater Lake Resort and many others.

Most job openings require skill in hotel and restaurant work, counseling or driving; the pay ranging from $1.50 per hour to $20.00 per day dependent on the type of work involved.

Large establishments such as Yosemite Park and Grand Teton Lodge register 10,000 applicants for only 1000 available jobs, which gives a slight hint as to the competition among students for summer employment.

Interested students should apply as soon as possible to the student placement center located in the Science Building, Room 188.—C. R.

Student Poll In Job Probe

Student Council will conduct an opinion poll tomorrow and Friday in an attempt to determine the adequacy of the Job Placement Office. Poll booths will be available in Smith Hall and near the flag pole from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., according to Stephanie Shaw, poll chairman.

Ray Bietz, Associated Student president, stated "the examination of the Placement Office was one of the conditions of the USA platform and this poll should show whether the complaints of students are true."

HE EXPLAINED questions of the poll would ask such questions as what students think of the Placement Office, if students had received satisfactory treatment, if they know of any prejudice shown by the office, and what students think of the office's welfare-type window and short hours.

Bietz noted that the council had gone to the administration previously about student complaints of the Job Placement Office but received the reply that the office had an excellent placement record.

If student reaction is clearly negative, Bietz stated the council would recommend a change be made by the administration. If this failed council would carry their plea to local news media or figure some other way to effect a changs.—J. B.

Lack Of Parking Rule Knowledge Creates Sardines

Any student who has driven his automobile hopelessly in circles searching for a place to park while his teacher is marking him absent is probably very much aware of one of City College's most frustrating problems: parking.

ACCORDING TO Lawrence Lawson, head of the Criminology Department, this problem is partially solved by the staggering of classes, with some students attending in the morning and the rest during the afternoon hours.

Lawson also feels that if the students were more educated as to where their parking areas are and what rules and regulations are in effect, some of the pressures of parking could be alleviated.

Campus Police Chief Stephen J. Gudelj feels that the increasing amount of motorcycles also tends to ease parking tensions.

He warns, however, that here too there are difficulties. Many students leave their motorcycles parked in between automobiles, which frequently results in more frustration and citations.

Even with motorcycles, staggered class hours and wide-eyed students who are aware of the parking areas, the problem persists. How can 3000 automobiles, the number registered, fit into 2200 available parking spaces? The answer: With a great deal of imagination.

DR. HARRY BUTTIMER, coordinator of educational management, reports that the City Water Works, which owns the two reservoirs on Phelan Avenue across from Science Hall, is planning to put a top over one of them.

An agreement has also been reached whereby City College can use the top for parking facilities by paying the $600,000 necessary for constructing sturdy support structure. Since the city will not pick up the tab for the construction work, the job of financing it falls upon the college or the school district, or the civic-mindedness of some generous individual. This will add another 1000 to 1500 parking spaces.

Dr. Buttimer expressed a desire to place the same sort of covering on the remaining reservoir, but at this point only papers concerning one area have been signed.

Campus Lineup:

●Petitions Due

Petitions for graduation at the end of the Spring 1968 semester may be obtained at the Registrar's Office. The deadline for filing these petitions will be this Friday.

●ISC Tea

The Inter-Sorority Council has a Tea scheduled for this Sunday. It will be held in the Retail Floristry Building, lasting from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

●Leap Year Dance

The Leap Year Dance, sponsored by the Associated Women Students, will be held this Friday night in Smith Hall. The dance will begin at 9 p.m. and last until midnight.

●Field's Film

One of W. C. Field's greatest films, Million Dollar Legs, is showing tomorrow evening in the College Theater. The film concerns a typical European country's capture of the Olympics. Fields plays the trainer opposite "The Most Beautiful Woman in the World," Betty Grable.

Ramporium Moves To Larger Location

Bigger and better things can be expected of the Ramporium next semester when it pulls up roots and moves to its spacious new location in the new Administration Building.

In a recent interview with Dick Maln, Ramporium manager, he commented, "The Ramporium's future is very bright. Our new location will be twice the size of our present one which will enable us to increase our range of merchandise considerably."

Since the Ramporium opened in 1950, it has been relocated three times as the college's enrollment increased. It moved to its present location in December of 1957.

In its new location next term, the Ramporium will have nine check-out stands as compared to five at its present location. Among other major improvements, there will be much more display and storage space and wider aisles for more comfort while shopping. "With these improvements," said Main, "we can expect a 25 per cent increase in business and possibly more if all goes well."

Mary Gray, a full-time employee at the Ramporium for the past 14 years, is also looking forward to the change and agreed with Main when she said, "Our new location will be a great improvement over our present one."

All in all, the Ramporium's relocation will mean quicker and more efficient service for the students.

Spring Registration Breaks 12,000 Mark

Registration for the Spring semester of 9100 day students was "an improvement over last September," Gertrude Somerville, registrar, stated. "This semester 9100 day students registered and over 3000 night students."

The adding of classes is officially over now, but students are still able to drop classes until April 3.

Quite a number of classes are overcrowded, Mrs. Somerville revealed. These classes are being split where it is possible to get another instructor and room.

"The problem," Miss Somerville said, "is the lack of instructors, rooms and an overabundance of students." The college campus is built to facilitate 7000 students and at present there is not enough space.

The computer, which was used last semester was used partly this semester with the students who had preregistration. The computer will not be used completely until all the difficulties are worked out.

Next semester, the registrar's office confirmed, the college will try to preregister as many students as possible, hopefully all returning students.

Miss Somerville believes that computer registration will be much better than the present registration.

SHOOTIN' IT

by D. K. Dorn

DEATH OF THE OLD: The Guardsman of truth announces some changes. Last term this column was shooting at random with Ed Holmes doing his hard-hitting thing. This semester, the column is really getting hooked as it goes about just "shooting it."

BIRTH OF THE NEW: Marty Arbunich is dead. Long live Martin J. Arbunich. Famed former feature editor Arbunich gets kicked upstairs to the managing editorship, and he changes his name. His Labelled And Recorded column seeks to follow the footsteps of his guru, Ralph J. Gleason.

On other press fronts, herein is a review of the underground-overground press which sprang to attention with the strike of the metropolitan dailies.

● The most newsworthy was The Daily Ramparts or ToDay paper which reported top news stories with a left of Chronicle tinge. It kept abreast of that Asian situation, high society, sports and dope bust news. The paper folded due to circulation difficulties.

● The weekly Guardian (no relation) reported and exposed news in an in-depth, feature style. A second string, liberal publication before the strike, The Guardian blossomed into a major reference point after the shutdown of the Chronicle and Examiner. Its strike reports were well written, comprehensive reporting of labor's viewpoint.

● The Express Times, a sort of San Francisco Barb, has a more radical but nonetheless valid viewpoint. It's sort of a respectable hip weekly with good comment on such things as the Peace and Freedom Party versus liberal Democrats, intellectual anti-war protest and the policy hassles of FM rock station KMPX. It seems to avoid the pitfalls of the Barb, which has ended up talking to itself.

Anyhow, both major papers are back in business today.

Once again we can all thrill to the antics of our favorite topographer, ctaoin shrdlu.

• • •

WE HEAR GRUMBLINGS from the multitudes about "Silly College" and other mispronounciations of the alma mater. The campus cops get their share of criticism. But one has to pity the blue boys more than badger the badges. They try so hard to do the Dragnet thing in protecting us from ourselves by giving parking tickets and handling us masses at registration.

They deserve some merit for being alert to Guardsman staffer Dennis Klein, a straight and upstanding lad, at a recent college dance.

It seems Dennis was transfixed with NOTHING more than a strobe light and a rendition of the Grateful Dead's Cold Rain And Snow. But two campus cops escorted our Dennis into a locked room, pecred into his pupils with a flashlight, had him empty his pockets and searched in vain for evidence of smokeable dope. Dennis didn't seem to mind City's finest being ever alert guardians of morality at his expense. It's just that the cops spent ten minutes banging on the door to get out after their fruitless investigation.

• • •

BACK AT THE RANCH: But even the "joke on the hill" is taking on characteristics of a socially unacceptable college . . . SEX. The first floor bulletin board is taking on cuttings from the Berkeley Barb's want ads. One lad is specific about his tastes for a roommate. 'No fags need apply' was his singular message.

Like SF State, Cal and Berkeley High School, the college boasts its own experimental college. Courses include increasing awareness, yoga, rock music, and how to put on a light show. Information is available from EC prexy Jim Morrison inside the doors in B-6 between 12 and 4 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays and between 1 and 4 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

• • •

DAWGS: The college is going to the dogs, we can report. A variety of canines roam this airy hilltop, scarfing on food and affection. For the most part they are friendly yet aloof about their academic surroundings.

Talking with one, it seems they dig on the students and the atmosphere here. One beagle said he used to frequent SF State, but left when that institution became overcrowded with long-haired types from the SPCA.

Cagers Tie Chabot For Conference Title

Rams Beat Contra Costa, Merritt; End League, 12-2

By Arthur Fanfelle

The Ram basketballers, by virtue of a 74-69 victory over the taller Contra Costa Comets and a 72-48 wipe of Merritt have ended their Golden Gate Conference season tied with Chabot as co-champions, both with 12-2 records. The playoff to determine the league winner was scheduled for last night in San Jose.

In the victory over the Comets last Tuesday, the host Rams were paced by Gary Bradford's 24 points and Isaiah Pruitt's outstanding board work against the biggest team in the conference.

Coach Sid Phelan said after the game, "This is the greatest team effort that I have seen all this season." The Comets defeated the Rams earlier this year as they controlled the tempo of that game and out-rebounded the Rams.

The Rams have five men in double figures: following Bradford were Jacob Hill and Pruitt with 14 points apiece and Telvis Jones and Ray Hearne with 11 each.

THE RAMS maintained a five- to six-point lead throughout the early part of the second half, but the Comets tied the score midway in the half. Then each Ram came through with a basket, breaking the game open.

The Merritt Thunderbirds hosted the Rams in a game that was decided early. The Rams outscored the T-Birds 45-18 in the first half. The Rams surprised Merritt with a 1-3-1 zone defense which forced the T-Birds to shoot outside and enabled Pruitt to control the boards.

Phelan emptied his bench early in the second half giving the starters an early rest. Hearne led the Rams with 18 points and Hill and Darrell Fregia had 11 each.

CCSF 69 - CHABOT 70

With a four-game win streak this season and with 33 consecutive league wins over the last three seasons, the Rams traveled to Chabot where they were defeated by a 70-69 count. Ray Hearne's second half exhibition of shooting went for nought as it was not the night for the Rams.

Hearne, who was held scoreless in the first half, came on in the second stanza hitting 10 of 14 attempts from the floor and leading the Rams in assists with seven. With eight seconds remaining in the game, Hearne took the in-bounds pass; taking the ball down the court he let fly with a 20-foot jumper which rippled the net and would have been the winning basket, but, it did not count since the officials had called time out. Jacob Hill added 19 points and Telvis Jones 12 for the Rams.

CCSF 71 - CONTRA COSTA 77

The taller Comets sent the Rams to their second straight defeat, as they were no match for the Comets, being out-rebounded 35-25. Ray Hearne tied Contra Costa's Harry Brown for high man with 24 points apiece. Jacob Hill chipped in with 14 points with Gary Bradford and Telvis Jones hit for 12 and 11 each.

CCSF 76 - MERRITT 71

The Rams were forced into overtime to defeat the Thunderbirds as Merritt tied the score with three seconds remaining. In the overtime the T-Birds fouled Gary Bradford, who cashed in on the free throw, followed that with a lay-up and gave them a lead which they never relinquished. Ray Hearne's 21 points was high for the night, Jacob Hill had 14 points and Bradford and Telvis Jones hit for 13 and 11 respectively.

CCSF 111 - DIABLO 32

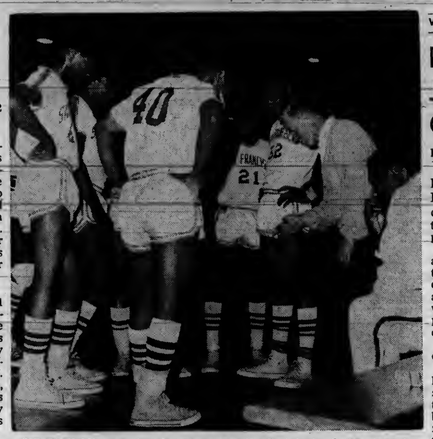
Darrell Fregia accounted for 31 points to help the Rams to the greatest winning margin in Golden Gate Conference history (79). The Vikings were out of the contest early as they were without a field goal for 10 minutes and 40 seconds of the first half. Meanwhile the Rams hit for 30 points, forcing the Vikings into 32 turnovers during the course of the game; many of them during this string. The Rams had six men with double figures.

CCSF 58 - FOOTHILL 41

The Rams ran into a slowdown ball control type offense which gave the Owls an 18-17 halftime lead. The Owls' game plan went for naught as they could not stop the Ram onslaught as they out-scored the Owls 21 to 10 in the early going of the second half. Jacob Hill paced a balanced attack with 15 points, and Isaiah Pruitt led all rebounders with 10 and also blocked three shots.

CCSF 79 - SAN JOSE 57

Sporting a 39-27 halftime lead as Ray Hearne scored six points late in the first half to give the Rams that lead, City College held on for their third win in a row. Gary Bradford led all scorers with 20 points, and Isaiah Pruitt led rebounders with nine. Telvis Jones led in assists with four and stole four passes which enabled the Rams to stave off a late Jaguar rally.



CCSF 53 - SAN MATEO 36

The Bulldogs' game plan was to use pattern plays to wear down the quicker Rams. The plan worked at first as they pulled out to a 7-2 lead, but then the roof fell in as the Rams outscored them 15 points to two. Isaiah Pruitt paced the win with 10 points and 14 rebounds.

CCSF 74 - CHABOT 61

Second place City College played the first place Gladiators in a free-wheeling fast-breaking game that saw Chabot pull out to a 30-29 halftime lead. The second half saw one of the finest exhibitions of basketball this year. With the score 40-37 in favor of Chabot the Rams exploded and went on to outscore them 18 to 1 with Isaiah Pruitt and Gary Bradford leading the way.

Bradford tied the individual league scoring high for the season as he ripped the net for a total of 35 points, and he also played one of his better board games. Ray Hearne accounted for 13 and Jacob Hill matched that total.

SID PHELAN, recently selected to coach the first Junior College team in the Olympic trials, instructs his team during a time out. From left to right—Jacob Hill, Darrell Fregia, Telvis Jones, Gary Bradford, Isaiah Pruitt, Phelan and Mel Jones.
—Guardsman photo by Chris Rozales

Phelan To Coach Junior College Olympic Trials

By Mike Duggan

Ram basketball coach Sid Phelan has been named along with Pasadena's Jerry Tarkanian to coach the California delegation to the first ever Junior College Olympic Trials in March.

Now in his 13th year as head coach at City College, Phelan's record over that period is 295-76. Since the Golden Gate Conference started six years ago, Phelan has 'owned' the league with a mark of 72-11, including two perfect 14-0 years and a win streak of 33 games.

Phelan called his appointment as co-coach of the team a "great honor."

IN HIS FIRST 12 years here, Phelan's squads took eight championships, three seconds and had one third place finish. "It would not have been possible for such success except for the great attitude of all the players I have coached," added Phelan.

Among the stars who have played under Phelan at City College are Brad Duggan (currently Phelan's assistant and most valuable player of the state tourney in leading the Rams to their only state title in 1962), Elton McGriff, Ev Adams, Art Adams, Jerry Chandler, Charlie Parks, Ed Wilson and most recently Willie Wise and Gene Williams.

Tarkanian (featured in Sports Illustrated, Feb. 5, 1968) has coached four straight state championship teams. Last year his Pasadena team won the title and the previous three years his Riverside clubs turned the trick. In 1966, Tarkanian and Phelan met for the state title and with seven foot Larry Bunce hitting 30 points, Riverside won easily.

SEVEN TOP PLAYERS will be chosen to make up the California Junior College team which will join with 18 players from the National Junior College Athletic Association at Hutchinson, Kansas, March 25-30.

These 25 men will then be cut down to the best 10, who will go on to the Olympic Bracket tournament at Albuquerque, New Mexico, April 2-6.

Phelan's job will end at Hutchinson, but Tarkanian will co-coach the final Junior College team.

This year marks the first time the junior colleges have been granted a spot in the eight-team Olympic Tourney. The NCAA sponsors three university division teams and one college division and the remaining units come from the NAIA, AAU, and the Armed Forces.

JOE BRENNAN, president of the California Junior College Coaches' Association, said of the appointment of Tarkanian and Phelan—"these two individuals have probably done more through their teams, coaching records and successes to help implement the importance of the junior college basketball movement here in California than anyone else."

The tournament at Albuquerque will determine 18 men who will go on to high altitude training in Colorado, September 15.

With the likes of Lew Alcindor, Elvin Hayes, Wes Unseld, Rick Mount, Pete Maravich and Calvin Murphy to battle from the NCAA group alone, it will be quite a feat for a junior college player to make the final 12-man team for Mexico City, but the recognition for junior colleges and City College in particular in the person of Phelan, has been a tremendous honor.

Linkers Whip Hamilton, Napa, Lose Out To American River

This year's Ram golf team has an optimistic outlook for the 1968 season.

With the return of one of last year's best, Doug Boston, and some fine new talent, Goach Grover Klemmer is looking forward to a good season.

Last year City College finished fifth with a 5-8 record in the Golden Gate Conference and fourth in Conference tournament play. Off to a fine start this year, the linkers defeated Hamilton Air Force Base 24½ to 23½ at Sonoma February 9. In the second non-conference match the Rams split, winning over Napa College and falling to American River College, February 13.

ALONG WITH BOSTON, the man to watch is freshman Stew Whitman. A graduate of Washington High School, Whitman won the All-City Championship in bis junior year and holds the course record at Lake Merced. Whitman admits he had 'an off season in his senior year but is looking forward to a good season with City College. Whitman was low man against Hamilton Air Force Base.

With Boston and only other returning member of the team is Gary Corvi from the 1966 season. Coach Grover Klemmer feels that most of the new men are evenly matched. It should be a close race for fourth and fifth man on the team.—G. L. W.

Baseballers Face USF Tomorrow

This year's Ram baseball team will be going all out to regain the Northern California Championship City College won two years ago.

This year's team has seven players returning from last season. They are Chuck Gretton and Paul Clayton, first base; Dave Herman and Odell Williams, outfield; Bill Mahoney, catcher; Chuck Collins, pitcher and Jeff Barker, infield.

When asked about this year's team, coach Ernie Domecus replied, "it's a promising team with pretty good prospects."

Some of the prospects are Joe Dutto, Dave Lopez and Rich Heintz, pitchers; Tom Mayfield and Hans Vigil, catchers; Irving Jones, Telvis Jones and Andy Fracchia, infield; Dave Kline and Manny Berrios, outfield.

"This year's pitching staff is the deepest we have had in a long time," commented Domecus. The pitching staff consists of seven players: Lopez, Heintz, Dennis Owens, Collins, John Portoni, Clayton and Dutto, who was chosen "Player of the Year' in the AAA last year.

The Rams' next two games are tomorrow against USF and Friday against Laney. Both games will be played at Sundberg Field, Balboa Park, and will start at 3 p.m.—J. B.

Swimmers Meet Merritt Friday

Competition looks tough for Ram swimmers as perennial state champion Foothill is once again favored to take the title.

The Rams will have quite a challenge as the Foothill swim team consists of swimmers from all over the world and are recognized as the best in the state.

The swimming team hosts Merritt at 3 p.m. Friday at Balboa Pool.

Coach Curt Decker said he hopes to pick up points in the diving event with Dave Detert. Detert "should be one of the top in the state this year," commented Decker.

Other returning swimmers are Tom Jarvis, diver; Ed Peterson, sprinter and Jim Vida, breaststroke.

Outstanding newcomers are Rich Glass, butterfly; Frank Johnson, distance; Vernon Lavell, backstroke and individual medley man; David Nelson, backstroke, and Lee McCollum, middle distance and sprinter.

Other Ram swimmers are Ken Canavarro, breaststroke; Jack Melandphy, sprinter; Roger Shane, sprinter; Ken Shimosaka, 200 yarder; Jeff Tsu, sprinter and Keith Hori, sprinter.

The swim team is looking for a scorekeeper. Anyone interested is advised to contact Coach Decker. Girls are welcome.—P. T.

Roger Sarria, Otey Cannon, Al Chu Named To All-American Soccer Team

Three Ram soccer players, who were instrumental in leading City College to its fifth straight State Championship this past season, have received All-American recognition. Fullback Roger Sarria and forwards Otey Cannon and Al Chu were recently named to the Junior College All-American soccer team by a nationwide panel of coaches and officials.

Sarria, an honorable mention pick last year, was chosen to the first team while the high scoring Cannon and Chu made the second unit.

The three helped Coach Roy Diederichsen gain his 100th consecutive victory over two-year colleges earlier in the year. Ram booters finished in a three-way tie for the league title with San Mateo and Merritt, but beat Merritt in a playoff and took the state crown by an 8-1 score over Compton.

San Mateo, who settled for a share of the conference title and did not enter the playoffs, placed halfback Al Rodrigues on the first team. No other players from the conference were selected.

OTEY CANNON.
—Guardsman photo by Gary Lee

Racketeers Challenge Chabot Next Week

The City College tennis team will face an early test Friday, March 8, when it travels to Chabot for its first conference match. The Gladiators slew the Rams 5-2 last April and knifed City College out of the conference standings.

Ram Coach Roy Diederichsen, not easily phased, may surprise them. Returning lettermen John Wong, George Zoul and John Cervantes helped score fourth place in the Golden Gate Conference Tennis Championship last year. Chuck White and Paul Stafos, both new to the league, may provide the Gladiators with unpleasant experiences. Bob Castro, Dave Anthony and Bob Nastor will also be on hand, ready to aid the veterans.

Four Sports Make Up Spring Intramurals

This year's intramural program will be marked by the addition of three new sports; soccer, flag football and ping-pong, as well as the usual basketball competition.

To participate in any of these leagues a petition must be filed with AMS President Jesse Figuroa in B-5. There are certain AMS regulations that each team must adhere to, the most important is that every team member must be an AS card holder.

Figuroa is concerned with the lack of student referees. Anyone seriously interested in officiating any of these sports should contact him at once.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of City College of San Francisco

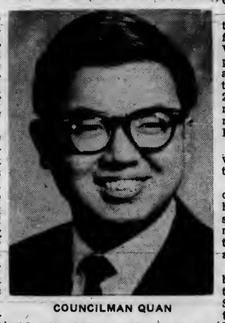
VOLUME 66 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MARCH 6, 1968 NUMBER 2

Special Report Analyzes Student Grievances With Muni Service

By Rita Carroll

A special research report was released last Wednesday by Frosh Councilman Quan concerning the Municipal Railway Survey that was held during registration by the Associated Students.

A total of 7590 students, almost 84 per cent of the total number of students enrolled at the college, were reached by the poll. Of those surveyed 6649 (or 86.5 per cent) had opinions on the service rendered by the Municipal Railway.



This survey was divided into two major parts, the first section was directed toward returning students only, and the second section was directed primarily toward new students. The goal of the survey was to seek for student impressions of the Municipal Railway and to obtain an idea of future passenger loads on the three major lines serving the college.

Results on the first part of the survey, answered by returning students who take the bus, showed that 72 per cent had been late to classes in the past because of the Municipal Railway; 82 per cent were passed up by "muni" vehicles at stops because the vehicles were too crowded; and 1886 students admitted that they were still using car tickets meant for students under the age of 18. Those who depend on Municipal Railway transportation (34 per cent) thought the service was poor and 296 students thought the service was dangerous.

THE RESULTS OF returning students who drive to college showed that 48 per cent would ride the Municipal Railway if the service was improved, and that 40 per cent thought the Municipal Railway service was fair.

Using transportation lines, along with City College students, are students of 12 other secondary and elementary schools.

After reviewing these results the Associated Students proposed to the Municipal Railway that the K line be supplemented with a shuttle line running to City College from Junipero Serra and Ocean, and reverse in the afternoon; that a special shuttle should be set up to run from West Portal to City College; and that a special express should be set up leaving from a specific terminal on Market to City College, carrying only City College students.

COUNCILMAN QUAN

Also recommended was that additional K streetcars should be added from the East Bay Terminal or from Van Ness and West Portal; that supplementary motor buses should be added on the "12-Ocean/Mission"; and that southbound "Geneva - Mission" 28-19th Avenue buses should be rerouted during the morning and afternoon peaks to run by Ocean and Phelan.

THE RESULTS OF this survey were sent by the Associated Students to the Public Utilities Commission.

Derrick Quan, frosh councilman, conducted this survey mainly because he felt he "needed statistics to present before the Public Utilities Commission, and the Municipal Railway, to back our charges of poor and inadequate service."

An issue brought up by this survey, besides the problem of service, was the bus/trolley fare. The Associated Students proposed the recommendation to, "allow City College of San Francisco students to use the present car tickets by amending the present Public Utilities Commission Resolution for students under 21 years of age, or create a special car ticket for City College students, regardless of age, at a rate of 10 cents a ride."

National Prospectus Queries Political Views Of Students

The main service project of Phi Beta Rho sorority this semester will be a prospectus called Choice '68, according to Stephanie Shaw, president.

The following quotes are from a pamphlet that was circulated on campus defining its goals:

"Never in the nation's history have so many college students been so well informed about the major issues of the day. Yet, to a large extent isolated from their society, they have had little opportunity to express their political views in a unified, coherent manner.

"While many claim to speak for the student body politic, none can really do so. For the college students are so heterogeneous in their origins, as diverse in their opinions as the American public. The difficult question, largely unanswered until now, is not what is the student opinion, but rather what are the students' opinions.

"CHOICE '68, the National Collegiate Presidential Primary offers college students the opportunity to express their preference on Presidential candidates and selected issues—to speak for the first time as a body politic. With participation open to every university, college, and junior college in the United States, Choice '68 will be a major political event of sufficient scope to merit the nation's attention and consideration.

"Choice '68 will be administered by eleven student leaders representing different geographical regions and all types of campuses. This Board of Directors will establish basic guidelines for the NCPP, design the national ballot, and provide overall leadership and directions. Time magazine has agreed to underwrite the cost of national administration of Choice '68 as a public service. There is no connection between the primary and the editorial content of Time.

"CHOICE '68 will be coordinated by the executive director, who will carry out the decisions of the board of directors, solicit the support and participation of the colleges, direct national publicity and press relations, and provide for the independent tabu-

(Continued on Page 2, Column 3)

New Educational Program In '68

Center of Independent Learning (COIL) will become part of the educational program in the Fall of '68, revealed Eugene Roberts, newly appointed head of that organization.

The aims of COIL are primarily that of preparing students for entrance to various courses and also to broaden their academic background in their area of interest without formally enrolling in a course. This program will provide facilities similar to a library; where students will be able to come in and use programmed materials such as tape recorders; and obtain help from faculty members who will tutor anyone desiring it.

Roberts, an instructor in chemistry at City College, is assisted by Jules Fraden, assistant dean of instruction, and Jack Aldridge, a social science instructor and acting assistant dean. Fraden stated, "The main function of the center is to provide programmed, self-teaching materials, together with tutorial services to support the academic program at City College."

A great amount of emphasis involving COIL will be given to the areas of mathematics and reading improvement. Fraden further stated, "These learning procedures are not intended to cover all aspects of the learning process and are limited at this time to those needs expressed by the students and faculty."

Students who use the facilities, according to Fraden, will be able to proceed at their own pace. He recommended that anyone who wishes to use the center next semester may obtain information from counselors.

Library Opens Stacks To Students On Trial Basis

Before this week, locating a book in the library involved several people, and much valuable time. Now, for the first time since March of 1962, the stacks are open to the students.

Any student who has tried to outguess the card catalogue will welcome this change. Hopefully, this will speed up the process of finding and checking out a book. One of the librarians commented that the opening is on a trial basis only.

There are several new rules for the student to observe. The two most important are: only 45 students will be allowed in the stacks at one time, and student books must be left outside.

The librarians also have a new system of shelving. Students are requested not to put any books back on the shelves, but to put them in reshelving areas, instead.

As a librarian stated, "The biggest problem will be misplaced books."

Hopefully, opening the stacks will be beneficial for both the library and the students. The librarians are confident that the students will conduct themselves in an orderly manner.

As for the stealing of books, the students will be watched closely when they enter and leave the stacks. This procedure will closely resemble the procedure followed at San Francisco State College.

Members of the library staff at State are situated at the exits of the library and examine all books that are taken out.

With the new rule at City College providing that student books must be left outside, stolen books should be kept at a minimum.

How long the stacks stay open depends entirely on the students, and they seem willing to comply for this new privilege. One of the librarians stated, "The students are very excited. Many have thanked me personally."

As far as the library is concerned, the students will dictate future policy by their handling of the open stacks.

The feasibility of opening the stacks was discussed at the request of Dr. Lloyd Luckmann last semester. On January 3 the library staff met and formulated the present policies.

Secret Ballot

Academic Senate Votes To Oppose City Wide Strike

A meeting at 11.20 a.m. last Thursday of the Academic Senate took place in the Little Theater, and voted 2-1 in opposition to a citywide strike affecting San Francisco's public schools.

Donald Travers, business instructor at City College and a member of the California Bar Association, introduced a resolution to reject union representation of City College.

In reply to Travers, Jack Abad of the mathematics department, who was active in negotiations between faculty and administration, stated that a strike vote on the part of City College faculty would not be in direct opposition to the City College administration but rather would support striking elementary and high school teachers.

Abad's position is that the instructor's obligation is to the student. Citing students in his own Math E classes "who could neither read nor add" he stressed the urgency of improving conditions within the educational system.

At this point, a move to limit debate came from the floor, due to the absence of Robert E. Jenkins, Superintendent of Public Schools.

A voice vote was taken which approved a limitation of debate.

COMMENTS from the floor included: Lee Dolson, history instructor, stated that each faculty member had a contractual obligation to uphold, and that a strike would therefore, be illegal.

Eugene Mead, sociology instructor who last year introduced George Lincoln Rockwell to his class informed the session that a "legitimate source" had informed him that "adverse consequences" prompted by "Negro militants" would occur if a strike took place.

A motion from the floor to extend debate was made, followed by a call for the previous question. Strike interference from outside sources which would prevent instructors opposed to the strike from entering their classrooms was the question.

The ballot took place and the meeting was adjourned.

DURING INTERVIEWS following the session Mr. Dunn, veterans' counselor indicated that his interest lies with the veterans and if their education was being interferred with then a strike would affect their welfare.

Richard Bloomer, political science instructor, had no comment. Mr. Struckman of the Philosophy Department implied that the proposals could have been presented in a clearer context. Mr. Gardener of the Criminology Department said the meeting was conducted in a democratic manner, that his vote would be reflected in

(Continued on Page 2, Column 3)

Forum Starts 32nd Year On Campus

Forum, the college literary magazine, heads into its 32nd year of publication this semester.

Donald Cunningham, Forum adviser, notes that contributions have just started coming in and submissions will be accepted until the April 19 deadline.

The bulk of the Forum usually consists of short stories and poetry but anything from one-act plays to criticisms and satires are acceptable. The magazine is entirely student written and edited. The students of English G14, who make up the editorial staff of the Forum, evaluate student contributions and select those which are to be published.

Contributions usually run well over the hundred mark and there is a limit of 1500 to 2000 words for manuscripts to enable a greater number of student stories to be published.

A recent proposal for additional funds to expand the magazine was rejected by Student Council. Cunningham's failure in securing extra funds will limit the magazine to its standard 32 pages. At the same time, council approved funds for another phase of the Free Critic, a publication which, according to Cunningham, lacks student contributions.

The Forum will be published in late May and distributed at the Rampdrium and California Book Store. The magazine is free to AS card holders and a token fee of 50 cents is charged for non-AS members.

Union Steps In, Halts Progress Of Eight New Bungalows Here

The construction of eight bungalows, which were to be located in the parking lot next to Arts Hall, was halted several weeks ago when the Building Trades Council, a San Francisco AFL-CIO Union, stepped in with a powerful nay.

The action by the local union came just as the concrete foundation was to be poured, after nearly a year of planning and paperwork procedure by the college. The only visible remains of the project are several concrete case-mouldings pounded into the college's parking lot.

Dr. Harry Buttimer, coordinator of educational management, said of the stoppage, "We've presented our case to the council but the continuation of the project looks very dim and there's not much we can do."

He explained that one of the college's first actions, after the project's proposal a year ago, was to obtain approval from George Johns, secretary of the San Francisco AFL-CIO, which heads all San Francisco unions, including the Building Trades Council.

The council's capability of halting a project that its head organization had previously approved was learned at a bad time.

The project, after an original AFL-CIO okay to the plans, was subsequently approved by the school district, City Hall Purchasing and other departments, and then, only after construction began, did the local step in.

Dr. Buttimer stated that he doesn't know exactly what the relationship is between the council and its supposed head.

He noted that the council gave no

(Continued on Page 2, Column 3)

Students Win Business Awards

Two City College students will be honored for achievements in business at the Hilton hotel March 14.

The pair, Terrance Jew and Christine Gee, business majors at the college, will each receive a $200 check and a certificate of merit for their achievement.

The awards program was first instituted by Mrs. R. Fields, dean of women at East Los Angeles College some 15 years past. Within three years the program expanded to include all the junior colleges in California.

Its purpose is to recognize the importance of the business curriculum and to encourage pursuit of a business career.

Miss Gee, a 20-year-old coed who has completed 60 units of three point work at City College, stated that her part of the award will go into her savings account.

Jew was unavailable for comment on his plans but an acquaintance felt his major would come to his aid.

G'man Needs Good Illustrator

The Guardsman is looking for a good editorial cartoonist to enliven the feature page. Any student interested should contact The Guardsman's Ed Holmes in S-304. Prospective illustrators are asked to bring art samples along with them.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco
ED HOLMES, Editor

Vol. 66, No. 2 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 6, 1968 Page 2

Expanded Praise

ONE OF THE most outstanding aspects of this college is the excellence of its semiprofessional curriculum. Typical of public approval generated by this program is the KGO editorial of a few weeks ago, "Pleasant Aroma of Success."

According to the editorial, City College "boasts many fine departments. And one which has made perhaps the greatest strides is the Hotel and Restaurant Division. . . Channel 7 believes such educational programs as the Hotel and Restaurant Division at City College will help prepare many young people for exciting and creative jobs. At the same time, City College provides a steady stream of qualified people for one of the city's major industries."

Praise from such an eminent source is always welcome but an important thing to remember is that H & R is by no means the only high-class semiprofessional program on campus.

Advertising Art, Business, Chriminology, Medical-Dental, Ornamental Horticulture and Photography are just some of the 34 other programs highly respected in the business and professional community. An inferior amount of PR funds may affect the relative amounts of publicity these programs get, yet the quality is consistently high.

Labelled And Recorded

Improvisation Is Cream's Trademark

by Martin J. Arbunich

AFTER A six-month absence from this locale, the powerful rock trio, Cream, made their return here last week, and following a stunning four-night stand last weekend will conclude their stay at Fillmore/Winterland on another exciting bill beginning tomorrow evening.

Everything went wrong last Friday night—but fortunately Cream weren't directly involved. The Big Black Sextet, also on the bill, failed to show on schedule and the Loading Zone, a local combo, were asked to extend their set an extra 15 minutes—but still no Black! So Cream came on early . . . very early.

Later, the amplification power went out on the Loading Zone in their second set (another 20 minutes gone) but the drummer, brass section and "Linda," their husky Negro "soul sister" who continued to wail her vocals even without a microphone, nicely kept the show intact and rolling.

As a result of all the hangups, the crowd was somewhat on edge between sets and before long the massive audience began stomping their feet—a rather rude scene—in hope of speeding up Cream's return to the stage. Promoter Bill Graham, a little beated already from the problems which preceded, ascended to the stage and announced he never expected such "bullshit" to come from San Franciscans. There were a lot of first nighters at hand—worse yet, immature teenyboppers.

The evening wasn't an entire lemon. Most of the hangups provided for fun and Cream (Eric Clapton, guitar; Jack Bruce, bass; Ginger Baker, drums) performed in their style. They lead off with the uncanny Tales Of Brave Ulysses, with Bruce singing lead and Clapton furiously draining the incredible from his wah-wah pedal.

Then they moved into NSU, a number which hints what Cream's stage act is all about—they're not on stage simply to play back album cuts; their LP's act as only mere skeletons with the real meat coming on stage with the wild instrumental improvisation on almost every number.

Clapton, for instance, rarely repeats a solo on the same number and likewise each time Cream plays a particular song it has a new sound. Being puppets isn't their thing, but to improvise freely is. It's the trademark that makes each of their performances as exciting as the last.

Sunshine Of Your Love, We're Going Wrong, Rollin' And Tumblin' and Sweet Wine rounded out their first set and their return lead off with their most exciting stage number, Willie Dixon's Spoonful.

Each of the three musicians then had their individual opportunities to solo with Clapton on Steppin' Out, Bruce (harmonica) on Train Time and, of course, Baker's classic solo on Toad, an unbelievable display of drumwork. I'm So Glad acted as their finale.

Clapton, who abandoned his "Frizz-a-la-Hendrix" in lieu of a new hairstyle and mustache, seemed to be at his best at guitar unlike earlier reports from the Los Angeles show. Bruce is remarkably fast and Baker so durable and unfailing.

Both picture cameras and audio facilities were on stage to record Cream's performances. Portions of the audio recording may become a part of an upcoming Cream LP even though their third album was recorded in New York last December.

The Big Black Sextet performed their jazz-a-la-r&b very nicely and are one of the finest progressive jazz combos around. The Loading Zone are passable but lack original material and really don't need eight members.

• • •

Cream are back at Fillmore/Winterland this week with James Cotton, Jeremy & The Satyrs and Blood, Sweat And Tears. Love, Blue Cheer, Sons Of Champlin and Congress Of Wonders are at the Avalon.

Love, the Sons Of Champlin and the Congress Of Wonders will share the bill at the Avalon this weekend with Blue Cheer added on the bill for Sunday evening only.

ERIC CLAPTON
With the "frizz."

Prodigals Return

Forty Former Students Enhance Faculty, Staff

By Linda Sandstrom

Forty members of the student faculty have one thing that bands them together, they were all former students of City College of San Francisco.

The forty former students are: William Auslen, George Baffico, Hyman Berston, Robert Brand, Paul Crowley, Curtis Decker, Henry De Iongh, Ernest Domecus, Gloria Dunn, Paul Fisher, Harry Frustuck, Peter Gardner, Roy Hammerick, Doris Hernried, Ralph Hillsman, Peter Hoch, Maryhope Jacks, Edward Jordan, Robert Kaar, Josephine Kennedy, Robert Kovacic, James Longo, Wilbur McKenzie, Kenneth Molino, Rosemary Murray, Harry Nelson, Edward Nylund, Beverly Pasqualetti, Oleg Reoutt, Barbara Rosenthal, James Sehon, Wallace Sellman, George Stewart, William Svabek, Frank Szebner, Robert Tealer, Louis Vasquez, Vivian Ward, Lawrence Wong and James Wyatt.

THERE ARE TWO graduates now on the administration staff and they are Ralph Hillsman, dean of men, and James Wyatt, assistant dean of student activities.

When Hillsman was attending the college in 1935-1936, he was the captain of the Ram's first championship basketball team coached by Louis Conlan, now president of the college and he was voted all-conference guard the same year. He graduated from the University of California.

In August 1955, Hillsman was appointed to the position of assistant dean of student activities and then he was named dean of men.

While attending City College of San Francisco, Wyatt, captain of the track team, ran the half mile and set a new conference record in that event. He became adviser and director of student affairs in September 1964.

AMONG THE OTHER thirty-eight students more than a dozen fields are represented. Baffico and Kaar both graduated from the University of California and are two of the college's geography instructors while Nelson and Mrs. Jacks are horticulture instructors here.

Schon and Sellman are teaching engineering in a field where opportunities are expected to be excellent for a long period of time.

The field of mathematics is represented by McKenzie.

More of the college's former students are with the business department than with any other particular field. Frustuck and Stewart for an example, are graduates of the University of California. Ward and DeIongh hail from Stanford University and Berston comes from San Francisco State.

NEXT TO BUSINESS, English is the most popular subject taught by former students. Kennedy and Jordan are two of the many English instructors teaching here.

Hotel and Restaurant instructors are Hammerick, Nylund, Nelson and Wong, who are all graduates of the college. The college is noted for its excellent hotel and restaurant department.

DOMECUS, Mrs. Dunn and Vasquez have returned to the college directing the physical education classes and sports.

Another former student, top in her field, is Hernied who teaches French. She has a bachelor's degree from the University of California, a master's from Mills College, and a Ph.D. from the University of Paris.

The remaining sources—life science, photography, public relations, art, and social science are represented by Carpenter, Molino, Mrs. Rosenthal, Kovacic and Wilczek respectively.

Strikers Get 'Walk' Procedures

Pioneers in the field of striking teachers received their first lesson in picketing from their professional organization last week. The directions read as follows:

- "Obey the picket captain at your school. Picket captains will make assignments to cover each sidewalk entrance and driveway with pickets.
- "Dress well and be prepared for inclement weather.
- "Remember—only you can prevent an untoward incident. Be courteous—do not be abusive to anyone who crosses your line.
- "Keep walking slowly, single file, about five feet apart.
- "Beware of scare talk, wild rumors, and misleading information."

No provision is made for serving graham crackers and milk at the first recess.

Faculty Strike Vote

(Continued from Page 1)

the secret ballot. Mr. Adolph Stoll, meeting chairman, succeeded in keeping the discussion pertinent to the main issues.

The resolution secretly voted on contained a clause calling for a referendum in opposition to "any attempt by any organization to interfere with instruction at City College of San Francisco."

At 4 on a formal strike meeting was held in the Veterans Memorial to determine whether or not a citywide walkout would take place.

Union Halts Progress

(Continued from Page 1)

specific reason for superseding Secretary Johns, but based its action on a 1963 agreement between the school district and the council which they say states there would be no more temporary buildings erected.

Choice '68

(Continued from Page 1)

lation and analysis of the election results.

"Choice '68 will be sponsored on each campus by a major nonpartisan student organization. That organization will be responsible for insuring maximum student participation, providing financial support, and regulating the election on its campus in accordance with the national standards determined by the Board of Directors.

"It is our aim that Choice '68 will create increased interest and participation in national politics among the students, and promote a greater dialogue between students and those in positions of national leadership."

Guardsman Staff — Spring 1968

(Official newspaper of City College of San Francisco, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 245.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... ED HOLMES
Managing Editor ..... Martin J. Arbunich
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
News Editor ..... Doug Boston
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan
Editorial Assistant ..... D. K. Dorn
Circulation Manager ..... Arthur Fanfalla

Reporters: John Bendoritis, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Lynda Sandstrom.

Cub Reporters: David Albertson, Penny Blum, Garret Dondon, Willy Durbin, Lawrence Ferrari, Jerry D. Fink, Randy Flynn, Michael J. Flynn, Wayne Hiroshima, Ed Jimison, Layton Lee, Rita Quong, Leonard Ribeiro, Carol Roehl, Jerry W. Slatton, Pam Tomasello, Gavin L. Watt, James Beggett, James Billbery, Robert Forsker, Lawrence Lee.

Photographers: Dawn Turner, Chief, Garth Ogle, Nathaniel Dodge, Carol Gillmore, Herbert Gong, Glenn Graham, Fred Harris, Jerry Jew, James McElory, Doug Mills, Robert Morris, Jens Protzo, Mike Rosano, Larry Theornis, Melvin Weiner and Samuel Woo.

Pot Luck

by Tom Graham

AMONG college students today, the name Hershey no longer implies sweetness; in fact, some will agree that it isn't necessary to purchase a candy bar to encounter a nut.

Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, has made many decisions and proposals concerning the student draft which have caused him to be the brunt of much criticism.

THE LAW THAT formerly regulated the issuance of student deferments stated that:

"The President shall provide for the deferment from training and service in the Armed Forces of persons satisfactorily pursuing a full-time course of instruction at a college, university, or similar institution of learning and who request such a deferment.

"A deferment granted to any person under authority of the preceding sentence shall continue until such person completes the requirements for his baccalaureate degree, fails to pursue satisfactorily a full-time course of instruction, or attains the twenty-fourth anniversary of the date of his birth."

It further states that "no person who has received a student deferment under these provisions shall thereafter be granted a deferment, nor shall any such person be granted a deferment if he has been awarded a baccalaureate degree, except for . . . graduate study."

The most recent controversy regarding the student draft situation arose when a special federal interagency committee on critical occupations proposed that after June deferments be given only to graduate students in four fields—the natural sciences, engineering, mathematics and medicine.

THE IDEA BEHIND the proposal was to prevent graduate students from hiding in the classrooms while their counterpart—generally the poor, the urban Negro and the rural white —can't get into college and hence wind up in Viet Nam.

Last June, General Hershey announced that it would be a year before this policy would go into effect.

Undergraduates seeking their bachelor's degree can be deferred until they complete that phase of their education if they are full-time students and are in good academic standing or if they turn 24.

Hershey's graduate-student policy allows post-B.A.'s already enrolled to keep their deferments until they complete their degrees; it also defers those who started grad school this fall until the end of the current school year.

SEEKING TO DEFINE a permanent policy, the federal committee on critical occupations proposed to the National Security Council (which is presided over by President Johnson who oversees Hershey on draft policies) that after June, deferments be granted to "the essential" graduate students. Nonessentials—about half of the 144,000 first-year grad students—would be eligible for the draft next summer.

In an effort to answer the question of why we have the draft the President has said that "because of the conditions of the world we live in now, we must continue to ask one form of service—military duty—of our young men. We would be an irresponsible nation if we did not—and perhaps even an extinct one."

The Selective Service System was created to provide an orderly method of registering the young men of the nation and classifying them as to their availability for military service from the viewpoint of the national health, safety, or interest.

The Council of Graduate Schools in the United States appealed to Congress to abolish all college draft deferments and turn to a random lottery of 19-year-olds to serve in the armed forces.

THE STATEMENT SAID that the selection process should take place at "a natural time of transition."

The council defined this as the completion of high school.

The council, which represents major universities across the country, also strongly opposed designation of certain subjects to which students would be eligible for deferment.

Hershey recently passed along a recommendation to local draft boards which stated that there shouldn't be any more deferments for graduate students.

From all angles it seems like the draft situation is one big chocolate mess.

SHOOTIN' IT

by D. K. Dorn

WITH THINGS just beginning to get organized in a scattered sort of way, this column is still shootin' away. But the first mid-terms can be expected in about a week . . .

WHISTLIN' IN THE DARK: A sport which is gaining popularity with students and other indulgers in high life is a unique bird-hunting trip. The common variety in question (campus copus vulgaris) is recognizable by his blue coat and shiny breastplate. The rara avis of the species is hardly distinguishable from anybody else. However, bunting such birds can be dangerous to the health of the pursuer, since both are publicity shy and can be dangerous if riled.

Therefore, the only true, sporting way to bunt these creatures is with whistles—a simple dime store job will do the trick. The deal is that whistles make a melodic bird call with which to serenade the law.

When one of the species in question does something classified as "uncool," help him realize the terror of his ways by sounding the whistle.

Also, when encountering one of the un-uniformed variety, whistling helps him realize his identity. This is especially soul-satisfying when such a bird is with persons who are not aware of the bird's identity.

LEADIN' AND FOLLOWIN': The Fourth Estate leads the way. And a whole series of diverse groups follow suit.

Co-incidentally, the day the major papers resolved their difficulties, minor city workers, grocery store clerks and teachers all made the strike scene.

The most serious dispute is the teachers' strike which made for partial mayhem in the school system.

FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH: The merits of the strike are debated everywhere. But college instructor English Mary Riordan noted, "Ten years ago I was on a committee which made the same recommendations which form the basis of the strike demands now.

"These demands have nothing to do with higher wages or personal benefits for instructors. But too many teachers, especially in the lower grades, can't be in the classrooms because they have to pull washroom duty and other disciplinary activities."

Some comment has risen regarding the duties of the two men in the cafeteria bearing "CCSF Staff" nameplates. Gus Davis and James Tesso claimed that they are "representatives of the administration at official functions and in the cafeteria."

"We aren't connected with campus or city police," said Davis as his companion walked up and asked if Davis has seen the chief of the Campus Police because Tesso was looking for him.

"We are students with a sort of faculty status," Davis said mystically.

Both men are in the cafeteria as "responsible citizens concerned with avoiding gambling, 'class-cutting' and other illegal activities by students (or non-students) on campus."

Some titter was caused by a sign on the Dean of Student Activities closed door a couple of weeks ago which read, "Mr. Wyatt is on a trip." Can we expect further developments such as bringing Tim Leary here as AS guru?

SEX NEWS: Marriage for a day (with all privileges attendant) was consumed last week when radio station KMPX sponsored a Sadie Hawkins Day thing in Golden Gate Park. Chicks captured unattached males and could keep him as long as she wanted. Marrying Sams roamed the park blessing the temporary unions.

Bands played and women folk brought food to Speedway Meadows as the leap year event progressed through the balmy afternoon.

The college's own topless dancer is reported not to be doing well in class. Questioned on her lack of participation, she made her points succintly: "Has it occurred to you that I might by shy?"

STAR TREK is getting further lost in space . . . Used to be full of heroic types pulling zap guns and enigmatic conversations on people about the true value of the democratic way of life itself. NBC execs were set to vaporize the series until nationwide protest demonstrations and letter-writing campaigns kept the spaced series on the air. But lately, the crew of the USS Enterprise has degenerated into a parody of their former selves.

Bietz Hints At Budget Cut For Fall

By Dennis Klein

All indications point to further budget cuts for the Fall semester, according to Associated Students President Ray F. Bietz.

Previously the burden of AS sales has fallen on athletes or those who belong to some school organization. This money, he stated, is not enough to support the entire student body. Bietz justified his position on the budget cuts by stating that, "Since nobody voted against me in last semester's election, I consider that I received a mandate." Bietz's total vote amounted to 79 votes.

RAY BIETZ, AS President

The sports budget was cut 50 per cent and in some cases even more. Now, if a team goes on an overnight excursion no allotment is made for food.

BIETZ DENIED a rumor that $100 was allocated for a new rug in the AS President's office, stating that he fixed up the office with paneled walls and a new paint job with money from his own pocket.

Under the new system proposed by Bietz, soon to go into effect, admittance to all activities will require an AS card, in order to make the benefits of owning a student body card more enticing.

"The whole problem is a vicious circle," Bietz stated.

"Without funds, the budget must be cut, when the budget is cut there are fewer activities, thus less people want student body cards.

NOW IF MORE people buy AS cards, then the budget allotments will go up, activities will be better and when activities are better, more students are induced to buy AS cards," the president emphasized.

As it stands now, according to Bietz, until AS sales go up decisively, the budget will remain at a low, and activities will be at an inferior level.

Others, including James Haran, drama instructor, think differently.

"This college has never functioned by school spirit," the drama instructor emphasized. This "hampering" of the cultural affairs on campus will only lead to the decline of student participation.

The question of which end primes the pump is still being debated across the campus. Student Council, the Free Critic and The Guardsman have all heard from the protagonists.

Peace And Freedom Movement Seeks City College Chapter

The Peace and Freedom movement, official youth division of California's Peace and Freedom Party, is seeking to organize a chapter here. But administrative officials claim that the State Education Code, section 25512, prohibits forming an affiliated chapter at the college since the PFP has not received one per cent of the vote in a general election.

Peace and Freedom movement member Judy Rothermill cited the same Section (25512) as a defense for organizing.

The section on page 1524 of the education code states that "any political organization which is affiliated with the official youth division of any political party that is on the ballot of the state of California may hold meetings on a junior college campus and may distribute bulletins and circulars concerning its meetings . . ." Section 25512 makes no mention of a one per cent cutoff point.

JAMES WYATT, dean of student activities, and Ralph Hillsman, dean of men, were tentatively scheduled to meet with PFP people yesterday.

But upon seeing a leaflet published by the City College Peace and Freedom Movement, Dean Wyatt said "The Peace and Freedom movement people will have to meet with me. Dean Hillsman and I were going to see if we could find a legal way for them to organize on campus. But after seeing this leaflet, I won't come to them."

MEANWHILE, Peace and Freedom movement members circulated a petition asking the administration to permit the party to organize here. George Ewart, a movement member, said that they had about 200 signatures.

"The administration will let us on campus if we are not connected directly with any political party. But we want to be able to send representatives to the PFP conventions and give minors a voice in the government. The only way we can do this is by getting the Peace and Freedom Party officially recognized," Ewart said.—D. D.

Black Comedian Gregory To Speak Here April 25 On Controversial Issues

One of the nation's top comedians, Dick Gregory, will speak during College Hour next month on April 25, at 11 a.m. in the college theater.

Gregory's topic has not yet been disclosed but Dean Warren White presumes, "He will talk about Vietnam or Civil Rights. These two topics seem to be his major concern."

St. Louis, Gregory said, was his home, "a place to be only when all other places were closed." He learned to fight with jokes rather than with his fists, and when the first chance came for him to become an entertainer he took it gaining success as one of the nation's top comedians.

This material success was not enough for Gregory. The Civil Rights movement was on and he was going to be part of this.

Before he speaks at City College, as a part of the Lecture and Concert Series, Gregory will speak at UC Davis, and from City College he will be going to Los Angeles.

McQuaid Plans Soph Ball, Drive

Sophomore Class President Bill McQuaid is now in the process of planning the two major events which will be sponsored by his class this semester. They are the Sophomore Ball and Annual Scholarship Drive.

The Sophomore Ball serves as a "climax" to the Scholarship Drive and it is at this ball that a queen and king will be selected. They are selected on the basis of the amount of money collected by a particular organization or club of the college.

Each club sponsors a king and queen and each penny that is collected counts as a vote, so the king and queen will be from the club which collects the most money. The Sophomore Ball will be held on May 17 in the Colonial Room of the St. Francis Hotel, and it will feature Earl Hechscher. Any City College student may attend.

AS FAR AS improvements on campus are concerned, McQuaid would like to have more on-campus activities, and he would also like to establish a Student Union.

"Students, for lack of any other on-campus activities have resorted to Black Jack, Gin Rummy and Poker to occupy their free time," he said.

HE DOES NOT SEE anything wrong with card playing "under the circumstances that currentiy exist," but guests of the college and faculty members find this type of activity "appalling."

"Statler Wing is a place to eat, but it is evident that this is not true to anyone who has entered it during school hours," said McQuaid.

In order to provide room for both those who wish to eat and those who wish to talk and play cards, McQuaid has proposed that the Ramporium (bookstore) be transformed into a Student Union, after the bookstore moves to its new location.

"Transforming the present bookstore bungalow into a Student Union would relieve the congestion in Statler Wing, and it would give students a place to get together and talk without disturbing those students who wanted to eat lunch," said McQuaid.

HE IS ALSO working to establish an Associated Students' loan program that will enable City College students to borrow money on a short-term basis without interest, so that a student can buy books and supplies without turning to high-interest loan companies outside of the college.

Lastly, McQuaid is working on a program that will enable the students at the college to receive tutorial assistance from Alpha Gamma Sigma (the college honor society) for less than $1 an hour as opposed to the current price of $2 an hour.

Signups Due Soon For AWS Coed Contest

Modeling tryouts for the Associated Women Students' Best Dressed Coed on Campus contest will be held next Thursday, March 14, during the College Hour in C-257-258.

This will be the twelfth bi-annual AWS Best Dressed Coed contest held on the City College campus. Tryout cards may be picked up in S-150 or at the door of C-257-258 on the day of the semifinals.

Shirley Brown, president of the AWS, hopes for a large turnout for this semifinal modeling session. At this meeting, the number of girls trying out will be cut down to 24 semifinalists. They will compete in the finals March 21.

Ten of the semifinalists will be chosen to appear in the AWS Fashion Show as finalists for the Best Dressed Coed here. On the day of the fashion show, April 3, one of the finalists will be chosen as the Best Dressed Coed on campus. She will be able to compete in the contest for Nationwide Best Dressed Coed.

Inter-Frat Council Makes Decision To Go Out For Blood

The slogan for this year's annual Blood Drive, "Give so someone else may live," is the resounding cry that can be heard in all corners of the campus these days.

The Blood Drive, sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council, will take place between 8:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, March 14 and 15, in Cloud Hall, Room 240.

ANY PERSON OVER 18, who is a registered student, faculty member, member of the Alumni Association, or a civil service employee at City College is eligible to help save a life by donating one pint of blood to the college blood bank. Donors under 21 must have a note of parental consent to donate blood.

Any donor who is ill or incapacitated in some other way during the Blood Drive may contribute to the college blood bank anytime during the year by giving at the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank, which works in conjunction with the college blood bank.

Hannebeck stressed that potential donors should eat regular meals on the day of donation, avoiding fatty foods.

Rewards for participating in the Blood Drive are two-fold. The first reward is self-satisfaction. The second reward is the privilege to withdraw from the college blood bank an unlimited supply of blood for the donor and his immediate family, or a maximum of eight pints of blood for any person of his choice who is in need of blood.

THE ANNUAL BALANCE of each blood fund is contributed equally to the Veterans' Hospitals and to the San Francisco Disaster Fund, during the last 12 years, approximately 875 pints of blood have been thus donated.

In 1956, when City College initiated the Blood Drive movement, 96 pints of blood were donated. As each passing year has rolled by, the response has become larger and larger. In 1967, the Blood Drive reached a new peak with 454 members of the college participating; 357 during the Blood Drive and 97 throughout the year. City College has received numerous commendations from the city, county and the state because of its outstanding record of donation which has surpassed all other colleges.

Spectrum Credit/No Credit

by Barbara Hamann

CITY COLLEGE students may soon have the choice of getting grades or not as they please in certain academic subjects if a new proposal system goes through.

Known as the "credit/no credit" plan, it would allow students to take certain courses they would merely pass or not pass.

The new proposal comes from a committee of instructors headed by Jack Billwiller, dean of instruction.

Reaction from students and faculty has been mixed. The committee members themselves are not in accord about its blessings.

ONE COMMITTEE MEMBER argued that letter grades give the students more of an incentive. He recalled instances where, under a pass/no pass system, "my students would merely try to get by."

Taking an opposite tack, other committee members maintained it should not make any difference. Students will still do their best. They also demolished another argument, that universities and four-year colleges will not accept a grade that is merely passing and does not involve a letter evaluation. The proponent of the credit/no credit idea said the system would be readily accepted by those schools to which a City College student might transfer.

However, this contention bas yet to be proved because the system has not been tried here.

The credit/no credit concept now exists in a few non-academic subjects such as drama and music.

In the east, Yale University is trying the pass/no pass policy, dropping all letter grades.

Yale's purpose, according to a university spokesman, is to discard the traditional numerical grading system in an attempt to judge the quality of a student's work in overall terms.

Billwiller mentioned that in certain courses, if the credit/no credit system goes through, students would have the option of merely passing the course or getting a letter grade.

THIS IS A BOON to the student: if he has done well enough to get an A or B, he can reap the harvest of his labors. If he is only doing C work he can accept the passing grade and not have to contend with a letter grade he would rather not have on his record.

Many have wondered how, under a credit/no credit system, a series of passing grades would be translated into a grade point average the student could use when transferring elsewhere.

Billwiller stated, "One answer, is to give a straight 2.0—or C average—for a series of passing grades."

Opponents contend this would be unfair to A and B students. The objection is lifted if the better students have the option of letter grades when they want them.

ONE ARGUMENT in favor of the credit/no credit system is that students might be encouraged to take a wider range of elective subjects because they are not competing for top grades. Students could go into unfamiliar fields and, since they only need to pass the course, are not in sueb strong competition with experts who are majoring in these subjects.

Billwiller's 11-man committee first proposed the credit/no credit policy last November. The idea came from Ross Klutke, last year's student finance chairman, who complained of having difficulty under a letter grade approach and suggested there may be a better way.

Rams Gain State Tournament Berth

GARY BRADFORD (above) goes up for two of his 35 points in earlier win over Chabot. At right, Jacob Hill gets loose for an easy two. Bradford and Hill have hit for 358 and 302 points respectively in helping lead tht Rams to a 22-6 record.—Guardsman photos by Fred Harris (above), and Doug Mills.

Bradford's 28 Points Paces Team To 91-65 Win Over Siskiyous

Hill, Hearne Pace Cagers To Crown In Victory Over Chabot

By Mike Duggan

The City College basketball team gained a berth in the State Championships by winning easily over College of Siskiyous, 91-65, Friday night, in a game played at Yuba College in Marysville. The Rams will meet Eastern Conference champion Orange Coast at 5 p.m. tomorrow in the first round of the State Tourney.

The taller Siskiyous Eagles, although winner of the Eastern Division of the Golden Valley Conference and winner of the conference tourney which also pitted the champs of the Southern, Western, and Northern Golden Valley Conferences, were no match for the quicker Rams.

COACH SID PHELAN, whose Rams now boast a 23-6 overall record, said that "the boys were really up for this game and had one of their better scoring nights." In addition, Phelan mentioned that a big part of the win was the play of center Isaiah Pruitt, who held the Siskiyous' 6-8 center Roland Holcomb to only nine points.

Holcomb, who was picked for a tryout for the Junior College Olympic Trials, came into the game with a 22.5 scoring average.

The Rams spotted Siskiyous to a 5-0 lead, led only 16-14 after seven minutes, but then proceeded to score at will and took a commanding 45-25 halftime lead.

Gary Bradford, rebounding well, hitting from the outside and driving for easy buckets past the hapless Eagles, had 16 of his game high total of 28 points during the first half.

SISKIYOUS, finishing the year with a 24-7 mark, was paced by forward Mike Thomas, who hit for 20 points of his own.

Ray Hearne, City College's leading scorer, got 13 points in the first half and finished the evening with 17. Guard Telvis Jones who directed the Ram fast break, followed Hearne with 12 digits and reserve forward Darrell Fregia hit for 11.

The City College Rams captured their third straight Golden Gate Conference basketball crown by defeating Chabot, 77-72, last Tuesday night at San Jose City College. Both the Rams, the number six ranked team in the state, and the seventh-ranked Gladiators finished the regular season with 12-2 marks.

Chabot beat the Rams 70-69 in their first contest, but then City College captured the next encounter, 74-65, to force the playoff.

The Glads, with sharpshooting guard Rich Galbraith and forward George Smith hitting for 12 points apiece, moved to a 35-34 halftime advantage. Jacob Hill and Isaiah Pruitt helped keep the Rams close for awhile, and then Ray Hearne hit four straight 20 footers to put City College ahead, 32-26. Chabot then ran off seven consecutive points to move to their narrow halftime lead.

THE SECOND HALF opened with the teams trading baskets. Then, with the score tied, 51-51, fielders by Hearne, Hill and Gary Bradford gave the Rams the lead that they never relinquished.

With nine minutes remaining and leading, 60-53, the Rams lost Pruitt on fouls, but forward Darrell Fregia came on to fill in capably.

Chabot pulled within four at 66-62 in the closing minutes, but two free throws by Hearne and a jumper by Tom Clyburn iced the victory.

Ram Coach Sid Phelan called the game "another great win."

PHELAN FELT the team didn't play an exceptional first half, but explained later that this team "has a knack of coming back strong in the second half."

Hearne, hitting in spurts, finished the game with 21 points on nine of 25 field goal attempts. Hill tied Hearne for scoring honors, also getting 21, but hitting on a great eight of 13 from the field. Telvis Jones, in addition to his usual fine floor game, came up with 12 points while Pruitt finished with 10 and Bradford nine.

Before fouling out, Pruitt also had a game high total of 13 rebounds.

For Chabot, Don Crenshaw, the all-time career scoring leader in the league's history, had 20 points.

FINAL CONFERENCE STANDINGS

Team	W	L	PF	PA
San Francisco	13	2	1024	735
Chabot	12	2	1055	897
Contra Costa	11	3	1089	914
San Mateo	8	6	820	789
Merritt	6	8	907	948
San Jose	4	10	924	1054
Foothill	3	11	789	851
Diablo Valley	0	14	745	1139

CONFERENCE SCORING

Name	GP	FG	FTA	FT	TP	Avg.
Ray Hearne	14	93	42	30	216	15.5
Gary Bradford	14	70	63	44	184	13.1
Jacob Hill	14	68	54	38	174	12.4
Telvis Jones	14	67	39	32	166	11.9
Isaiah Pruitt	14	30	39	23	83	6.0
Darrell Fregia	11	34	22	9	77	7.0
Mel Jones	11	15	37	27	57	5.2
Tom Clyburn	12	13	21	8	34	2.8
Boyd Stephens	7	5	11	8	18	2.6
Les Giley	5	1	0	0	2	0.4

Cerritos Host Of State Tourney; Runs March 7-9

Cerritos College of Norwalk will host the 17th Annual State Junior College Basketball Tournament which will be held beginning tomorrow and running through Saturday. The tournament will pair eight of the state's ten conference champions.

The opening round pairings and times on Thursday, March 7, were chosen by a draw. Game one: has Central Conference champion Allen Hancock meeting Pacific Southwest champion San Diego City College or Grossmont. Game two: Golden Valley champion, Siskiyous, or Golden Gate Conference champion, City College of San Francisco meets Eastern Conference champion Fullerton or Orange Coast. Game three: Valley champion, San Joaquin Delta against Desert champion, Imperial Valley. Game four: Coast champion De Anza will play Western State champion, Pasadena City College.

Due to the fact that there are only eight berths in this tournament and ten conferences in the state, one team from the north and one from the south are designated as challengers. Both of them must challenge one of the four remaining champions from their area.

This year the two assigned as challengers are the Metropolitan champion, Cerritos, who will probably challenge the Desert Conference champion for its berth and Golden Gate Conference champion, City College of San Francisco who will play College of the Siskiyous.

Pre-tournament favorite Pasadena City College is led by scoring sensation "Super" Sam Robinson, a 6'8" soph who last year made the All-State squad. This year he has averaged 22.5 points per game and 11.5 rebounds. He is supported by 6'8" George Trapp, who hits 15.2 points a game.

Pasadena coach Jerry Tarkanian is looking for his fifth consecutive state championship. While coaching at Riverside City College he lead them to three championships and then last year he shifted to Pasadena where they won once again.

San Joaquin Delta has one of the outstanding shooters in the tournament in forward Aaron Jenkins, who is the top scorer in the state with a 26.2 points per game average.

Orange Coast has the highest scoring club in the tournament with 97.1 points per game. John Vallely leads the Pirates with a 25.3 points a game.

The longest win streak is held by Pasadena at 23 wins in which they set a school record of 126 points in one game. A note to keep in mind is that Pasadena is ranked number one in the state, its only loss came at the hands of Hancock. The best defensive team in the tournament is City College of San Francisco, allowing only 52.5 points per game, best average in the nation.—A.F.

Provost Takes Sprint Double In Loss To Modesto; Track Team Hosts Diablo Friday

By Dave Albertson

City College track breeds high hopes this season. Coach Lou Vasquez feels that, "Our team has as good a chance as any to dethrone last year's conference champion, San Jose."

The Rams had a creditable performance in a pre-season meet with Modesto Wednesday, February 28, although losing, 71-64.

Returning sprint veteran Ernie Provost is off to another good season, taking two first places in the sprint events with a 9.6 in the 100 and a 22 flat in the 220. In addition, he anchored the 440 relay to a 42.6 win. In the state meet last year Provost took third place in the 100 with a time of 9.4.

LARRY MOSELY took a first in the broad jump with a leap of 22 feet. He also placed second in the 220 finishing behind Provost.

Newcomer Vic Cary ran his best time in the 880 of 1:58.5 which was good enough for second place.

Cross-country veteran George Haza doubled in the mile and two mile, taking second in the latter with the time of 10:06.

August Berry took a first in the triple jump with a jump of 42-8. In another field event Forest Shute won the pole vault with a vault of 12 feet. Shute set the school record last year with a vault of 13-8.

The Ram 440 men completed their relay victories, in winning the mile relay in 3:32.

DAVID JONES ran a 50.9 in winning the 440 and also ran a leg in the 440 relay.

Other returning veterans expected to bolster the Ram strength include hurdlers Greg Jackson and Craig Johnson.

Tom Clyburn, city high school record holder in the high jump, presently on the Ram basketball team, seems to be the one to watch this season; Clyburn cleared 6'10" in establishing his city record.

When Clyburn returns, the Rams will also gain strength in the long jump.

Coach Vasquez summed it up stating, "Our depth this season is in our sprinters, but the field events could turn up anything."

The regular season opens Friday, March 8, when the Rams play host to Diablo Valley. The highlight of the meet should be high jumper Don Pierce of Diablo, who leaped seven feet in high school.

Wong, White Lead Tennis Team To Third Place Spot

Coach Roy Diederichsen's netters tested their rackets in the Northern California Intercollegiate Tournament at Stanford Feb. 21-23, in preparation for their March 8 date with Chabot, and earned themselves a tie for third place.

Their rackets didn't rust, bust or collect dust as the City College crew finished behind only the University of California at Berkeley and Stanford overall and tied Foothill for first place among competing junior colleges.

John Wong and Chuck White bore the brunt of the load by separately reaching the quarter-finals and as a pair finishing in the semifinals, being beaten only by the eventual winners, Bob Alloo and Larry Hill of California.

Individually, either Wong or White would be the number one man on almost any team. When they are playing together they are, as netter Bob Nastor understates, "contenders."

But first, our tennis squad must face Chabot, whose Gladiators are led by the likes of Fred McPherson. McPherson plowed his way into the semifinals in last year's conference tournament and is expected to have improved this year. If City College can contain him they may be able to give Chabot a rude awakening in the first league match of the regular season.

Last year the Rams were led by Wong, who advanced to the semifinals of the conference championship before losing to first seeded John Haak of Merritt.—E. J.

RA Takes Sports Day At San Jose

The Recreation Association won seven awards at the San Jose Sports Day on February 24, according to Mary Wambeke, RA president.

The seven awards were won in three divisions, the first of which was women's archery, tennis, badminton and high series bowling. The second division consisted of coed volleyball and badminton and the third coed tennis doubles.

The RA is an organization designed for students who like to participate in sports for recreation, and plans for the near future include a Sports Day, Saturday, March 30 at College of San Mateo. Transportation is scheduled to leave the women's gym at 8 a.m., according to Miss Wambeke.

Among the activities offered are coed archery, badminton, bowling, dancing, fencing, tennis and volleyball. RA members also attended regular sports day with other Northern California two-year colleges.

Participation in activities sponsored by the RA is open to all students of the college with Associated Student cards.—B. H.

New Intramural Program Foreseen

The relatively poor student interest in this semester's intramural program may force an alternate program to be enacted, explained Associated Men's Student President Jess Figueroa.

Figueroa said because of a lack of bona fide petitions filed, he may be compelled to have a tournament consisting of all gym classes. This would entail the best team of each touch football, basketball, volleyball and badminton class to play off against other classes in that specific sport. The teams who have attained the best record will play for the championship on AMS Sport Night, later this spring.

Sandlotters To Face San Jose Tomorrow

Due to rain, the two baseball games that City College was supposed to have played February 22 and 23 against Santa Rosa and the University of California were postponed.

The Rams play San Jose City College tomorrow and Contra Costa College March 12. Both games are at Sundberg Field, Balboa Park, and will start at 3 p.m.

Golfers Win, Chabot Next

Conference play started for City College of San Francisco's golf team February 23 at Harding Park, with the Rams winning impressively over Foothill, 30-5.

Instrumental in Foothill's defeat was Gary Corvi with a 73, Stew Whitman also firing a 73 and Mike Gevertz shooting a 76. Paul Rea turned in a 77 with Donn Paulson close behind shooting an 81.

Corvi took all of the possible six points from Larry Steinburg who was ten strokes off the mark with an 83. Whitman took his six points from Richard Lepke who shot an 81. Also taking all six points was Gevertz defeating Jerry Meeker who shot an 88. Paulson picked up five points from Bill Muldoon who shot an 82. Rea managed to salvage two points from Mike Rossi who shot a 75. The linkers as a team won five points for total score while defeating Foothill by 29 strokes.

This Friday the linkers will play Chabot College at Harding Park at 1:00 p.m.—G. L. W.

Ecologist To 'Save The Bay' At College Hour Tomorrow

"How to Save the Bay" will be the topic of Dr. Tom Harvey, noted ecologist from San Jose State College, who is scheduled to lecture tomorrow during College Hour in the little theater.

Dr. Harvey is a professor of biology at San Jose State College and consultant to the Bay Area Development and Conservation Committee.

He earned his A.B. and M.A. at San Diego State College in 1951 and in 1955 he received his Ph.D. in biology from the University of California at Berkeley.

Dr. Harvey was invited to the college by Edmund Bedecarrax of the Life Science Department.

A portion of his topic will deal with the results that could occur if the Bay were to be filled. As an ecologist, Dr. Harvey is interested in the effects the filling of the Bay would have on the fish, oysters, shrimp and birds locally.

Budget Receives More Money From Bookstore

By Sharon Roberts

This semester's student body budget has received higher revenues from the Associated Students Bookstore than expected and the process of allocating money will vary.

According to John Range, assistant finance chairman and member of frosh council, "The Associated Students' term budget was predicted to run into the $45,000 bracket and the total amount of the budget will depend on the sales of AS cards, profits from the bookstore, money obtained from the vending machines, and various other sources."

Representatives of Student Council expected the AS Bookstore to provide $15,000 in funds, but were able to obtain $20,000 instead. "This plus $5000 will aid the declination in AS card sales, but more cards sold would promote better activities," Range commented.

Organizations on campus send in requests each semester for their needed funds to carry on their activities.

The amount given to them is decided upon by the amount of funds available and Student Council's opinion on where the money should be spent, Range stated.

"One aspect which should be pointed out is that the budget changes daily, because we are constantly giving more funds to organizations at various time intervals."

One example would be the $150 Joan Nourse Memorial Scholarship Fund to be given to an outstanding Journalism student. Miss Nourse was the previous Guardsman adviser for thirty-three years who recently passed away.

A total of approximately $3000 was appropriated to the championship varsity basketball team and the thirty-seven member pep band which recently participated in the Los Angeles championship basketball tournament. "The trip lasted for three days and I'm very proud that our college could participate in such an event," said Range.

Suggestion/'Gripe' Box Located In Front Of Bookstore

A Suggestion Box, allocated for by Student Council legislation and for the use of all students, has been placed on the southwest wall of the Ramporium bookstore for the use of all students.

The recently painted bright red box will serve as a "liaison" for students who have complaints but no one to complain to.

Derrick Quan, frosh councilman, announced last week that he was assigned the job of caretaker for the newly installed Student Suggestion (or complaint) Box.

Quan asked that students use this box for suggestions, and "not for a garbage can."

Each "gripe" or suggestion that comes in will be answered by Quan or a member of his administration staff personally.

Quan hopes to "be able to publish each suggestion, or complaint, in the form of Letters to the Editor (this paper)."

Names and addresses are asked to be placed with each "gripe" so that the research committee can report back to the students.

However, Quan added, names and addresses will not be used when the suggestions or complaints are published, if it is so requested.—L. L.

Mile Of Dimes

THE MILE OF DIMES held on leap year day by Phi Delta Rho fraternity netted $235.55. —Guardsman photo by Melvin Weiner

Visual Arts Building Seen Here Next Year

The bid for the construction of a Visual Arts Center here will be awarded by the Department of Public Works, probably before the end of the month.

According to Victor Vaio, of the Department of Educational Management, the groundbreaking ceremony, signalling the actual construction, will probably take place by the end of April and completion of the center will take a maximum of 18 months.

The one-story building will be located below the Horticulture Center, adjacent to the Arts Building. It will house the Graphic Arts, Advertising Arts and Photography departments. The center will have six classrooms and two lecture halls.

Exact cost of the building won't be known until the bid is awarded, however a previous low bid, submitted by the firm Wright and Ortesky, was approximately $1,290,000.

Black Curriculum Proposed

By Penny Blum

The possibility of an Afro-American curriculum is presently under consideration by President Conlan and a joint committee of students, faculty and administrators. The program could come into effect by Spring of 1969.

President Conlan has asked Dean Jack Aldrich to head this committee. The names of the other members will be announced at a later date. The Guardsman learned that Dr. William Cobb, Department of Human Relations, will be a member of this committee.

Aldrich said that the committee will try to see that "the college offers the best pattern of courses designed to meet the needs of all the students."

Aldrich also has a special message for the students. He asks that they bear with the school, and hopefully by working together City College will have a "better black curriculum than any other surrounding institution."

The prerequisites for these courses will be similar to those of comparable classes as Aldrich stated, "These courses will not be Mickey Mouse. It will not be an easy way to obtain a degree."

THE BASIC problem is not the courses offered, but finding the staff to teach them.

The Guardsman talked to Mary Lewis, an instructor in one of the two "black curriculum" courses offered this semester, who elaborated on the problem by stating, "The college might be too selective by establishing too strict academic requirements."

But, she also believes that this college is aware of the needs of all the students.

She stated, "These courses will not be discussion groups, but valid fields of study." This opinion was echoed by all concerned with the planning of the "black curriculum."

In addition to the joint committee, there is also a current curriculum committee, of which Ben Pasqualetti, a photography instructor at City College, is a member. He indicated that the following courses are proposed for next semester: one psychology course, one anthropology course, four English courses, and two history courses. Pasqualetti stated that the committee wants to offer more.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 66 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MARCH 13, 1968 NUMBER 3

IFC Looks For Red Blooded Men, Women

The annual Blood Drive, sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council, will be held tomorrow through Friday, between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. in Cloud Hall Room 249

Any person over 18, who is a registered student, faculty member, member of the Alumni Association, or a civil service employee at City College is eligible to help save a life by donating one pint of blood to the college blood bank. Donors under 21 must have a note of parental consent to donate blood.

Donors unable to donate during the Blood Drive may contribute to the college blood bank any time during the year by giving at the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank, which works in conjunction with the college blood bank.

It is essential that donors eat regular meals on the day of donation, avoiding fatty foods.

A donor is privileged to withdraw, from the college blood bank, an unlimited supply of blood for himself, his immediate family, or a maximum of eight pints of blood for any person of his choosing who is in need of blood.

The annual balance of each blood fund is contributed equally to the Veterans' Hospitals and to the San Francisco Disaster Fund. During the last 12 years, approximately 875 pints of blood have been donated.

The Blood Drive was first initiated in 1956 at which time 96 pints of blood were donated. Each year the response has become larger and larger. In 1967, the Blood Drive reached a new peak with 454 members of the college participating; 357 during the drive itself and 97 throughout the year.

City College far surpasses all other colleges in annual donations and has been commended numerous times by the city, county and state for its outstanding record.—B. H

Borrowing Power

McQuaid Asks $2000 Hike In Present Loan Program

Bill McQuaid, sophomore president, recognizing the absence of a substantial loan program here, has asked Student Council to add $1000 to each of the existing loan funds.

At the present time, according to McQuaid, there is no short-term loan program that is operating at City College of San Francisco (with the exception of the two existing loan programs which are only for small expenses such as lunch and carfare. These can be obtained in the Deans' offices.)

McQuaid pointed out to Student Council that there were two existing Associated Student loan programs, and proposed that they be increased by the above-mentioned amount.

McQuaid feels that the absence of a substantial loan program has created a void, since financial emergencies can arise suddenly, and students are usually caught off guard.

FOR THE student who is determined to stay in college despite the fact that he does not have the money for supplies, he must turn to loan companies and their high-interest rates, McQuaid pointed out.

These high-interest loans are often "disastrous" to students because after getting the loan he finds that his monthly payments to the loan company are so high that he cannot afford to stay in college any longer.

On the other hand, there is the GI who often does not receive his check on time. He knows that his check is coming, but he does not know for certain when it will arrive. This puts him in a bind since he must buy his books and supplies, but does not have the money, according to McQuaid.

McQUAID hopes that the new loan program will eliminate some of these problems.

Originally, he planned to have the Finance Chairman of the Associated Students handle the loan program, but after talking with Dr. Buttimer, who is in charge of Educational Management, he found out that this would be illegal.

The guidelines for determining who will get a loan have not been concretely established as yet, but McQuaid hopes to have this problem solved soon.—L. L.

New Date Set For Postponed Job Placement Poll

The Job Placement Poll, a survey of student opinion concerning the effectiveness of the City College Job Placement Service, will take place one week from today on Wednesday, March 20.

Stephanie Shaw, coordinator of the project states, "Some people have wrong ideas about this poll that I'd like to correct.

"We're not out to 'get' job placement," she emphasized, "nor are we anti-Mr. Amori. It's just that people come down here complaining about the placement office and we want to see whether or not they are in the minority."

The campus Job Placement Poll, originally scheduled for February 29 and March 1, did not take place as planned due to the confusion caused by the teachers' strike.

Miss Shaw went on to say that in the past there have been numerous complaints and suggestions about the campus Job Placement Center. The Job Placement Poll is designed to obtain the opinions of the majority of the students as to the fairness and effectiveness of the center.

The results of the poll will be compiled and presented to the Administration.

Miss Shaw pointed out that "While we have lots of help for conducting this poll, we can always use more." Interested parties may reach Miss Shaw in Bungalow 5.

Two Choral Groups To Perform Here Next Tuesday In College Theater

A choral concert will be presented by the Loyola University Men's Chorus and the Mount Singers of Mount St. Mary's College here next Tuesday at 11 a.m. in the College Theater.

These two choral groups are under the direction of the nationally known choral director, Paul Salamunovich, who has been engaged in choral conducting in Southern California for twenty years.

The concert will present choral music of every period beginning with selections of Gregorian Chant, and including polyphonic motets and madrigals from the Italian and English Renaissance, Baroque and Romantic selections, and works by modern composers.

Besides selections from Mozart, Schubert and Brahms, several American and foreign folk songs and a medley of five Western songs together with some German drinking songs and Negro Spirituals will provide the lighter side of the program.

After their appearance here, the chorus will present programs in several high schools in the city, and continue at Alma College in Los Gatos, and American River College in Sacramento.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco
ED HOLMES, Editor

Vol. 66, No. 3 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 13, 1968 Page 2

Students Not Forgotten

A VERY MIXED BAG of emotions was displayed by City College students in reaction to the recent teachers' strike.

Reaction ranged from ultra conservatives who got up out of their sick beds in order to cross the picket lines all the way to students making their own sympathetic signs in order to join the marchers.

One group of light-hearted students showed disappointment when an early settlement spoiled their "holiday." Another group didn't know there was a strike.

A common occurrence was to hear students bemoaning the fact that "My union will fine me if I cross the line" although those that bothered to check discovered that most San Francisco labor unions were not interested in fining students.

As a matter of fact an amazing amount of concern for students was shown by all parties throughout the short walkout. The reforms aimed at by the strikers were altruistic enough to cause the Chronicle to comment editorially, "In giving such reforms far more emphasis than they gave to demands for improved pay and working conditions, the teachers demonstrated a genuine concern for education."

A genuine and realistic concern for the specialized problems of male, draft age students and for those drawing GI benefits on this campus was especially apparent.

There were few reported cases of instructors using their podiums to take stands on the issues. More common was the attitude of James Haran of the Drama Department. Taking a few moments before his class started, he commented, "I don't believe in taking class time for this but I want to point out that a part of the return to work agreement was that there would be no discrimination against either teachers or students involved in the walkout."

This proviso allows students to make up classes or tests missed during the day-long strike.

Without taking a stand on the issues involved in the strike The Guardsman applauds the amount of concern for students shown by all parties.

A complaint heard not infrequently on this campus is that "Students are forgotten" or "Student interests are not being considered." It is a pleasure to note that only the opposite was true in this instance.

Labelled And Recorded

Reviews Of Current Albums

by Martin J. Arbunich

FOR WHAT it's worth:

TRAFFIC — Heaven Is In Your Mind (United Artists-LP 6651): This is Steve Winwood's biggest project since leaving the Spencer Davis group and forming his own. He's the same one responsible for the singing and fantastic organ on Gimme Some Lovin' and just recently named the second best keyboard player in England for 1967 by one of the better U.K. publications—losing out only to Alan Price.

This album is better than any LP production Spencer Davis could manage to record and this is probably so because Winwood is now free, on his own and able to record what he likes rather than having material dictated to him.

It includes the two singles (Paper Sun and Hole In My Shoe) which made considerable penetration into the English charts—but they're by far not the most outstanding selections on the record. Dear Mr. Fantasy is already an underground classic and is probably one of the finest things to come from any group this year. The words are rather basic, but Winwood's singing, the beautiful harmonica and the whining guitar make it the finest number track on the LP.

Dealer is one of those tunes that come on tranquilly (the same approach Love uses on many of their songs, particularly in their Forever Changes), all part of a crescendo that eventually busts open. Chris Wood's flute (he was chosen the best on brass and woodwind by the previously mentioned poll) is featured heavily here on this track and to some degree on sax on the remarkable title song.

Numbers like Berkshire Poppies, House For Everyone and Give To You just don't hit it off as the type of material Traffic is cut out to record. The latter number, in particular, is basically an excellent instrumental but is ruined by some rather unnecessary over-dubs of ridiculous vocals.

When this LP was originally released in England a fourth member, Dave Mason, was featured on the jacket. Since that time Mason, who played sitar, tambura and a few other freaky instruments that don't really seem to be in Traffic's bag, left the group. Though his instruments remained on the American version, he was not pictured or credited.

It's actually a step forward for a group (now a trio with Winwood, Wood and Capaldi, drums) with such a great reservoir of talent. Mason was really too freaky!

It will be interesting to see what the group can do on stage, also, when they make their first local appearance at Fillmore Auditorium this weekend.

BUD SHANK — Magical Mystery (World Pacific-LP 21873): This is a great way for a rock fan to get introduced to jazz—it's an LP of conservative, easy listening instrumentals performed exquisitely by Shank and his band.

The album includes six tunes from the Beatles' latest LP, Magical Mystery Tour, as well as a few other classics like Windy and I Say A Little Prayer. They're not mere remakes, however; the arrangement is refreshing and the album as a whole presents a very interesting outlook on jazz and rock, making them two very compatible idioms.

Shank's excellent sax/flute work (he was picked number two and three on sax in Playboy's recent music poll) puts this collection on a distinctive plateau and really shouldn't be passed up.

CLASSICS IV — Spooky (Imperial-LP 12371): The beautiful hit title song bore some indications that the group was a talented bunch, but the rest of the LP offers very little. Six cuts are remakes of other groups' top-40 hits (Daydream Believer, The Letter, etc.), recorded poorer than the originals—In short a hurriedly put-together batch of tunes, mounting to hardly more than an 11-piece audio bore. Classics IV is a typical one-hit combo, the type that easily fades into obscurity simply because today's accredited fame in music is built on originality, not a lucky hit.

A 'Break' Between Classes

A SKI ACCIDENT or a snow job? This student takes time off from a busy day to relax upon the newly refinished benches in Cloud Plaza. He is one of many, in an all-star cast, who have received a break in life.

City College Chow Hounds Eat Through Seven Bills Daily

By Randy Flynn

With the exception of the Hotel and Restaurant Management students, few people know anything about the City College cafeteria other than the fact that it is always crowded.

What goes into the preparation of a hamburger? What about the condition of the cafeteria?

Just what is $700 worth these days?

If a person were to ask 100 different people that question, he would more than likely receive a hundred different answers. However, none could be more far out than that one given by the Director of Food Service Training and Operations at City College, Lawrence B. Wong.

Seven bills, to the Hotel and Restaurant Department, means a one-day supply of food for nearly 12,000 hungry students! Deliveries each day include 50 lbs. of spaghetti, the makings for 70 gals. of soup, 350 lbs. of meat, 1000 sandwiches, 50 lbs. of frozen vegetables and 500 lbs. of potatoes!

Students seldom realize how much time and effort goes into the preparation of a day's supply of food. Approximately 150 students and 25 union employees are required to prepare and serve the meals each day.

With such a mass production of food and with so much business, one would expect the cafeteria to be a veritable gold mine. The truth of the matter is, however, that the financial records never show a cent of profit. This is because of a law established by the Board of Education stating that all money taken in must be put into the board's general fund.

There are two kinds of service in the cafeteria. For the student with time on his hands, there is the cafeteria style service with hot lunches.

For those who are on the run, there is the vending machine service in Statler Wing. The vending machines were donated to City College by various people in the vending machine industry. The cafeteria cooperates with Servomation in allowing the sale of their products such as ice cream and soft drinks but in no way is affiliated with them.

Wong, mentioned earlier, is the big wheel in the Hotel and Restaurant Department but refused to take credit for the cafeteria's success when he said, "I am very proud to have such a loyal and vigorous staff working with me. Their efforts," continued Wong, "have made the Hotel and Restaurant Department the success that it is."

Wong feels strongly that the department has enjoyed a great success.

Guardsman Staff — Spring 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... ED HOLMES
Managing Editor ..... Martin J. Arbunich
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
News Editor ..... Doug Boston
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan
Editorial Assistant ..... D. K. Dorn
Circulation Manager ..... Arthur Fanfelis

Reporters: John Benderitis, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom.

Cub Reporters: David Albertson, Penny Blum, Carret Duncan, Willy Durkin, Lawrence Ferrari, Jerry D. Fink, Randy Flynn, Michael J. Flynn, Wayne Hiroshima, Ed Jimison, Lavina Lee, Rita Quong, Leonard Ribeiro, Carol Roehl, Jerry W. Stokros, Pam Tomasello, Gavin L. Watt, James Baggett, James Billbury, Robert Forsker, Lawrence Lee.

Photographers: Dawn Turner, Chief, Garth Ogle, Nathaniel Dodge, Carol Gilimore, Herbert Gong, Glenn Graham, Fred Harris, Jerry Jew, James McElory, Doug Mills, Robert Morris, Jens Frotze, Mike Reams, Larry Tiscornia, Melvin Weiner and Samuel Woo.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

(Letters to the Editor may be left in the switchboard office, S-169, in Science Hall or in The Guardsman office, S-304. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. The Guardsman reserves the right to edit letters in the interests of brevity and rhetoric. If so desired the writer's name will be withheld, but the identity of the writer must be known to the editor.)

● Open Letter

Editor, The Guardsman:

An open letter to my colleagues:

On February 29, 1968, 188 of you voted for the following resolution:

"Whereas, the members of the Academic Senate recognize their responsibility for the education of San Francisco's youth and adults;

"Whereas the present conflict over working conditions in the San Francisco public schools has little relevance to the situation at City College of San Francisco."

The mind boggles! In one paragraph you recognize responsibility for education but in the second you find that conflict over working conditions has little relevance to the situation at City College. Where do our students come from—if not from these schools? And who teaches them—if not our fellow colleagues? Do you seriously feel that overcrowded classrooms, a lack of a period for preparation, a mass of non-teaching duties and responsibilities, a serious problem in relation to discipline are irrelevent to our situation? Where is the logic on your position?

Perhaps even more importantly where is your pride in profession that should say to every teacher in San Francisco what concerns you concerns us? What are we, if we do not live up to even minimum standards of professional people? Is it possible that you felt strongly, as I did, that a strike is never justified among teachers under any circumstances. But surely that opposition should not involve a setting aside of professional courtesy and integrity.

Last of all, what has happened to us that would permit such a selfish, short-sighted point of view? We've got ours—we couldn't care less about anybody else—is this really the way you feel? I cannot believe it. I feel that this was an action that dishonors every one of us at City College. It will return to haunt us, justifiably, in the years to come in a further deterioration in our relationships with our collcagues who just possibly may know more about responsibility for education of San Francisco's youth than we will ever know.

Barbara Y. Brackett
Instructor
Dept. of English
City College of San Francisco

Pot Luck

by Tom Graham

VERY INTERESTING. Students interested in improving themselves and helping others have discovered a course offered in Physical Education which has a practical application.

The course is P.E. 24 for men and 85 for women (Water Safety) and it is offered in conjunction with the American Red Cross.

The program theme is to increase the number of qualified teachers in the field of water safety. The top teaching certificate in swimming is offered if the course is satisfactorily completed.

The knowledge and skill gained by people through water safety has played an important part in instructing correct swimming techniques to novice swimmers. The course offered here has produced many such qualified swim instructors.

IN ORDER FOR A person to receive the same training it would be necessary to attend a national aquatic school and to be 21 years of age.

The course that supplements Water Safety is Advanced Safety Service or First Aid (Hlth. 14). Together these courses amount to one and a half units.

Students confronted with the problem of fulfilling a Phys. Ed. requirement next semester might seriously consider this area. Students lacking only one unit for graduation with next semester's schedule may likewise look into this.

The prerequisite for the course is a Senior Life Saving certificate and the swim skills of the nine styles in swimming.

Another benefit which is available if this program is satisfactorily completed is the ability to apply for duty as a life guard for summer employment.

The man in charge of the program at City College is Roy Burkhead, Health and Physical Education instructor. His classes meet at Balboa swimming pool for instruction.

• • •

A THOUGHT IN PASSING. President Johnson recently received an open letter signed by the 82 crewmen of the captured intelligence ship Pueblo admitting that they did trespass into the territorial waters of North Korea.

The letter appealed for the President's assistance in repatriating the crew by publicly apologizing to North Korea.

The following account was given by parts of the letter:

"Immediately following the capture, we attempted to deny the real purpose of our operation and our intrusion into the territorial waters, hoping to safeguard national security and our national honor.

"However, we could not long deny the facts since the Korean People's Army had in their possession our documents, which revealed the real purpose of our operation and the ship's position logs and charts."

According to the State Department, the 800-word letter was handed over to the United States negotiators in South Korea 10 days ago.

In an effort to negotiate the release of the Pueblo and its crew a series of 10 private conferences with the North Koreans were arranged, but failed. It has been 50 days now since the Pueblo and its crew were seized by the North Koreans and there's still no sign of a workable solution to the problem.

Repatriation of the prisoners can be achieved only after public apology. And since public apology would mean losing face, Uncle Sam is reluctant.

IN DEFENSE OF the issue, it has been suggested that the signatures were possibly forged by North Korean propagandists. Whether the signatures were forged or not, there's no excuse for the indifferent treatment shown by our government toward the men of the Pueblo.

If we were not guilty of the violation, it is certain that there would have been more drastic actions taken to have the men returned.

On the other hand, if we are in the wrong (which all evidence points toward), an apology is due, even though it may require a major facelift for Uncle Sam.

The entire situation is rather typical, however, because the United States was put through the same humiliating experience eight years ago, during the Eisenhower administration, when the U-2 incident occurred. Our country denied then also that their intention was espionage. It was all a mistake?!

SHOOTIN' IT

by D. K. Dorn

THE CHILD Is The Father Of The Man Dept.: Whenever I hear a "voice of experience" pontificating about the wisdom inherent in age and when such a voice's condescending attitude about the naivete of youth becomes unbearable, my mind wanders back to this airy hilltop. It was the all-knowing, over-thirty generation who was responsible for the slippage down the hill when the A. J. Shooter Co. couldn't put in steps. Was it because the powders that he didn't know the proper grades for the slopes? This meant that the construction had to be halted until the right pontificators could approve the new plans.

Did nobody think of doing all the cement breaking and ground digging during vacation periods? What this college needs is men to move our mountains . . . And then there is the annual registration affair which takes longer and gets more complicated with every new, improved time and effort saving vice and device dreamed up by the academidans.

Computer or no, the hangup is in the human element. You can speed along until you meet the lines which are backed up because there is one little man inside the halls of learning handing out IBM cards, one at a time. This is as it is and always will be, forever without end.

• • •

WHITE HOUSE FEVER: I'm sure you were all glad to discover an editorial in the Selma (Fresno County) Enterprise about the glowing record of the college's own Associated Student President Ray Bietz. His goal "is to run out the hippies" the Enterprisc reports. This news came as a shocking surprise to many, including this column. Why doesn't Ray love everybody? we all asked.

"Why does he want to run me off?" asked one long-haired lad. "I'm not the only one who didn't buy an Associated Students card," he said in a confused and hurt way.

Bietz's campaign reminds us of another person who wanted to get rid of those dirty, dope-ridden, derelict, dropout sex fiends. Remember the plight of Roscoe Sweeney and his baby sister in the Sunday paper's comic section a few weeks ago? It seems Roscoe Sweeney's household was taken over by a group of dirty no-goodniks with long hair, beards and sandals. The Sweeney home had no peace and no food while the interloppers were there. But the brother and sister team finally outwitted the bummers by out dropping them.

Ray Bietz take note: Let your head grow out, bare feet are where it's at! Co-habitation isn't habit forming. And there's no hope without dope, Ray. If you just try it, you can be sure that not a soul will be found to answer to the handle of hippy.

This column is looking forward to the day when buttons and bumper stickers will abound with the motto "All Ray Bietz Needs Is Love" and "Love Ray."

• • •

SIGNS OF THE TIMES: Found on campus bulletin board was the message "Interested in joining a Fraternity? Join a Sorority." Who says interest is flagging in rah-rah . . .

• • •

EXP: The KCSF Experience socked it to 'em, babies, last week when Jimi Hendrix came off every PA speaker in the college including the library and almost every classroom. Slight oversight by a KCSF d.j. who didn't remember that there was supposed to be the daily Campus Carriers on at that time. But Jimi told the KCSF news department, "Better roll over and let Jimi take over!"

• • •

RECOMMENDATIONS: What this college needs is an activities affair where all organizations and clubs can hawk their wares in the market place of ideas in this land of the free.

Anyone interested in whipping up activity, could promote a day-long deal by the flagpole where eardtables and club members could disseminate their thing to us masses . . . But such a proposal is probably too radical a concept for City College of San Francisco . . . Better to wait until we all are mature enough to go to S.F. State or U.C. before being surfeited with too much activity.

There are approximately 30 trillion red cells in a person's blood stream. Their main function is to carry oxygen to all parts of the body.

Bietz Silent On COIL Tutorial Program

Present AGS Tutorial Fee Under Financial Scrutiny

Associated Students President Ray Bietz is refraining comment on the tutorial program which he advocated as part of his presidential platform. He is awaiting the outcome of the Center Of Independent Learning (COIL) meeting in room C-246 tomorrow at 11 a.m. before acting on the plan that would supplement the present Alpha Gamma Sigma Society tutorial program.

The plans for funds to be allocated to the AGS to tutors without cost to disadvantaged City College students, whereas the existing program provides the services of a tutor for a fee of $2 per hour.

Counselor Wallace Wells, coordinator of the AGS Tutoring Program indicated that he was aware of the hardship the fee imposed upon students that are not capable of paying the fee, and he is in favor of Bietz's plan. But he has some slight reservations as to the feasibility of certain economic measures the program would incur.

The possibility of under-finance exists, but Wells points out analogously with Bietz that $1 from the student desiring a tutor could be matched with $1 from the AS funds to alleviate the cost of tutoring and facilitate a deficient AS budget.

The tutors are students who have qualified for the AGS Honor Society by maintaining at least a "B" average. Wells encourages the tutors to help out on a voluntary basis. Students desirous of tutorial aid should inform their counsellors of the need.

Wells also noted that the proposed tutorial program depended on Eugene Roberts, project director of COIL, Dean Jules Fraden and Dean Jack Aldridge, assistant deans of instruction.

COIL will become part of the educational program at City College in September. It is being established in order to help students prepare for various courses, satisfy requirements in courses they are taking for credit, and broaden their academic background in areas of interest without formally enrolling in a course.—J. S.

Commanday Talks On Changing Music

By Jerry D. Fink

The Impact Of Music On The Current Revolution And Visa Versa was the title of the lecture given by San Francisco music critic Robert Commanday, last Thursday in the College Theater.

Commanday spoke to an attentive crowd of 50 people, all of them AS card-bearing members of the student body.

Music is merely one of the many forms reflecting the changes taking place within today's society, he said. It expresses a need and desire for today's generation to challenge, criticize and accept or reject what was considered to be valid truths by earlier generations.

Commanday said he overheard two bankers, about his age, discussing the difficulties of having children who are attending college. One of them said, "I've got to unteach them all the things those liberals have been teaching."

"The straight world attempts to exploit the young revolutionaries, which only results in further change. Art is a direct response to pressure," said Commanday.

Music became an escape route of the youth from their adult contemporaries many years ago, stated Commanday. The most radical change, he indicated, took place with the advent of the Elvis Presley era.

"Eventually the kicks began to wear off and the revolutionaries began to search for new releases . . . Today the new expression may be found within the Indian music of Shankar," Commanday said.

Commanday also stated that revolutionary art, changes within the art forms themselves, have been taking place since the advent of the economic problems which are facing today's societies.

"Folk singers and balladeers have always been around expressing the ideas of the revolutionaries, their quests for truth and self-expression, and more recently a condemnation of the economic problems which have been a part of American's lives since the early 19th century. Today a metamorphosis has been forming in the concept of music," he pointed out.

"The new music isn't as far in the future as one thinks. While I was at Expo '67, in Canada," said Mr. Commanday, "thousands of people listened to this music which relates to contemporary sights, sounds and smells and were quite impressed."

Japanese 'Magnificent Seven' On Tomorrow's Film Series Agenda

The Japanese film entitled The Magnificent Seven, the second of a series of seven foreign films to be shown here, is scheduled to be flashed on the silver screen of the College Theater tomorrow evening at 8 p.m.

The movie is the tale of a group of wandering Samuri who stumble into a town besieged by bandits, protect and defend the not-too-grateful peasants and end up with some losses of life.

Toshiro Mifune portrays the impoverished farm boy Samuri whose ingenious and valliant deeds are both the pride and shame of the group.

An American version of this Japanese classic was done a few years ago with cowboys instead of Samuri.

All performances, slated to begin at 8:00 p.m., are open to all students of City College of San Francisco. Tickets are available from members of the English Department.

The upcoming schedule runs as follows:

April 4 ..... King and Country (England)
April 18 ..... The Love Game (France)
April 25 ..... Great Expectations (Eng.)
May 9 ..... Juliet Of The Spirits (Italy)
May 23 ..... Last Year At Mariandad (France)

Band To Play First Concert

The first concert of the Spring semester for the City College Concert Band will be held at 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, March 31, in the auditorium of Lowell High School, Joseph Alessi, band director, announced recently.

Special guest soloist will be Maria Leone (Mrs. Alessi), former Metropolitan Operas soprano. Miss Leone will sing both opera and popular selections.

Guest conductor Doug Stewart will direct selections by Verdi, Puccini and Berlioz.

Admission will be free.

Frat, Sorority To Sponsor Boat Dance

A boat dance, sponsored by the Beta Tau Fraternity and the Theta Tau Sorority will be held this Saturday according to Ester Palun, vice president of Theta Tau.

The dance will be open to the public and begin at 8:00 p.m. aboard the Harbor Princess docked at Fisherman's Wharf. Music will be provided by the Ambassadors.

Tickets are $5 per couple and may be purchased in Bungalow 5 or from members of the fraternity or sorority.

"Dress will be dressy—but not semi-formal," a representative from the organizations disclosed.

Campus Club Formed To Help Foreign Students

A new organization on campus, the Intercollegiate Students for Social Action, was formed recently for the purpose of helping foreign students at the college with their problems and to probe into and alleviate some of the poverty areas in the city, such as Chinatown.

The ISSA will operate a cultural-study program in Oriental culture, including philosophy, art, music and literature.

One of the ISSA's service goals, that of helping foreign students with language problems, is much needed on this campus. Hundreds of City College students are graduates of foreign high schools and have difficulty with their English. The college provides communication classes, but once outside the classroom foreign students tend to stick together and speak their native tongue.

Johnson Kam, president of the organization, explained that the ISSA was formed this semester and has been given official sanction by the Council Of Organizations. The club is open to all students of City College and anyone interested is invited to attend one of the meetings held every Tuesday during College Hour in A-310. The club's sponsor is Marsha Jewett.

Spectrum: A Fine Bunch Of Fuzz

by Barbara Hamann

IT'S THE MOST thankless job on campus.

You are ignored, resented and rebuffed by your fellow students. You are criticized and castigated; made to feel unwanted and unpopular.

How do you attain this unenviable position? By being one of the fuzz . . . the men in blue . . . the Campus Police.

Your only reward is three scholastic units and, if you have done your job well, the sense of accomplishment it brings.

The amazing thing is that a number of guys have guts enough to take all the guff involved because of a strong desire to make law enforcement their career, and it's a good thing for the rest of us that they are not so disturbed by their unfortunate—and unfair—image that they shun Campus Police work.

Too many students consider the college cops a hindrance, a joke, or as people who are out to bug them personally. But we need our Campus Police and it's time we appreciated the fact. These young men have full authority to maintain law and order at City College and this is necessary. A campus lacking in law and order would hamper our search for an education.

Without our Campus Police, traffic would be a catastrophe and parking more a mess than at present, and we would have no protection against vandalism, theft, or disorderly and destructive elements.

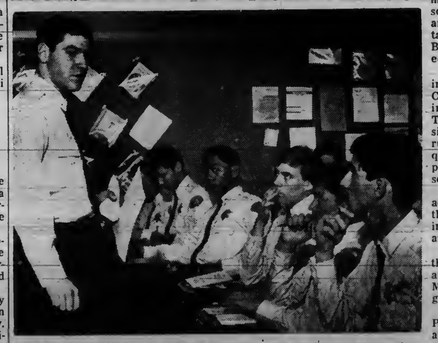
The current 40-man force is headed by Chief Stephen J. Gudelj, a criminology major acutely aware of the problems he faces.

"We must deal with a basic resentment toward authority," said Gudelj. "People who are your same age resent your telling them what to do."

He emphasized that contrary to some students' opinion, "We are not here to harass them—nor embarrass them. The main objective," said the chief, "is to serve both students and faculty in every manner." The police are admonished to use courtesy and tact in all their dealings.

The current chief's problems are, perhaps, more weighty than those of his predecessors because former ones had one or more deputy chiefs to help shoulder responsibility. Gudelj has no deputies.

A careful weeding-out process takes place before students are allowed to join the Campus Police. Every effort is made to prepare them for police work and ways are found to determine if they are suited to the job. Applicants must, of course, be physically qualified, and certain criminology courses are required before training actually begins.



Being on the Campus Police is not merely a daytime job. A special night security crew—two men in the field and one in the Campus Police office—take charge from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. Both day and evening crews are equipped with radios.

The campus police office is tucked into a corner of the first floor of Cloud Hall. Walking in is like entering your neighborhood police station. The radio is blaring, and a sergeant sits behind a reception desk. Students rush in and out, firing a barrage of questions at Chief Gudelj, who has a private cubbyhole behind the desk sergeant.

Overseeing this rush of activity are advisers Lawrence Lawson and Timothey Foley, the only two non-students in the Campus Police system. Both are law enforcement veterans.

The student hierarchy is similar to that of a city police department. There are two captains—Ed Wong and Joe Mulane—plus seven sergeants and a group of patrolmen.

An interesting facet of Campus Police power is that the students may arrest wrongdoers who are near—but not on—college property as well as those at the college itself.

STEPHEN J. GUDELJ, Campus Police chief, instructing a class on the techniques of police procedures. —Guardsman photo by Doug Mills

Cagers Take Consolation Trophy

Cerritos Wins State Tournament; Rams End Season With 25-7 Mark

By Mike Duggan

The City College Ram cagers (25-7) defeated San Diego City College (20-14), 74-55, last Saturday night to salvage the Consolation Championship of the State Basketball Tournament held at Cerritos College in Norwalk.

In a big upset, the host Cerritos Falcons (31-3) edged defending champion Pasadena (32-3) in overtime by a score of 69-68 to capture the state title. Jerry Tarkanian, coach of the number one ranked Pasadena Lancers, narrowly missed winning his fifth straight state championship. Pasadena led at the half, 36-28.

The tall Falcons, champs of the Metropolitan Conference were paced Metropolitan Conference, were paced John Van Vliet's 16 and 6-7 Bob Horn's 12.

Two time All-Stater Super Sam Robinson was high for the Lancers with 36 and along with his 32 and 31 point performances in the opening days of the tourney, walked away with the tournament's Most Valuable Player trophy.

Hancock (32-4), with 6-7 Bill Jones getting 36 points and 20 rebounds, easily captured third place with a 125-88 win over Orange Coast (22-12).

Joining Robinson on the All-Tourney team were Ruffner and Lee Mansell of Cerritos, John Vallely of Orange Coast, Sam Carter of Pasadena and Bobby Baker of Hancock. Mansell's 18 assists against Orange Coast on Friday night set a tournament record.

CCSG 98 - Orange Coast 102

High scoring Orange Coast, averaging 97-1 per game and champions of the Eastern Conference, went into overtime to defeat the Rams in opening round action last Thursday afternoon.

Telvis Jones and Ray Hearne got hot early and City College, with the help of 10 consecutive points, opened up a 21-7 lead. With the Rams leading 33-18 midway through the first half, the Pirates' press suddenly came alive and Orange Coast ran up nine straight points of their own and what looked to be a runaway was suddenly a new ball game.

The Rams opened up a lead of 67-60, but two quick baskets by Vallely and one by forward Bruce Chapman cut it to 67-66. The lead continued to change hands for the remainder of the half and with 1:11 to play Ram forward Jacob Hill hit a 15-footer to tie the score at 89-89.

Orange Coast stalled the ball until 12 seconds remained, then called time out to set up a final play, but the Ram defense held, sending the game into overtime.

The overtime saw the lead change back and forth until with the score 98-98 and time running out, Vallely drove for the winning lay-up. In the closing seconds Hearne tried to tie it up, but Chapman blocked his shot and with two seconds left the Pirates' Ed Babiuch sank two free throws to end the scoring.

Hearne finished with 29 points while Bradford had 26, Hill 13, Isaiah Pruitt 13 and Telvis Jones 10. Darrell Fregia hit five points and Tom Clyburn added two to round out the Ram scoring while Pruitt, Hill and Bradford tied for game honors with 12 rebounds apiece.

CCSF 91 - Delta 89

City College, with all five starters hitting in double figures, finally beat San Joaquin Delta (22-6), 91-89, Friday afternoon. The Mustangs had beaten the Rams in both the Bakersfield and Modesto tourneys earlier this season.

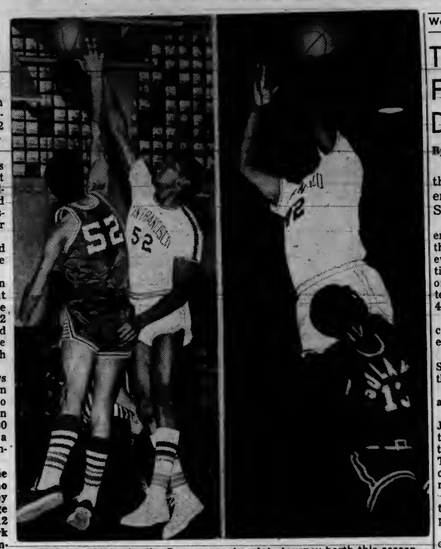
With 26 seconds remaining and leading 89-87, Jacob Hill clinched the victory with two free throws.

The Rams, hitting 66 per cent in the first half, built up a 55-38 lead at intermission. Midway through the second half the lead was cut to 72-62 and then Aaron Jenkins, who finished the game with 32 points, hit three straight fielders to make it 72-68 with eight minutes remaining.

The Mustangs, on two free throws by Bruce Salisbury, closed to within two at 91-79 with three minutes to go. Isaiah Pruitt and Jenkins then started trading baskets and with 30 seconds left Gary Bradford hit a jumper to set the stage for Hill's winning free throws.

Both Bradford, who finished the game with 22 points and Jones, who hit for 23, broke the day-old tourney record for best field goal percentage in a single game. Each hit on 10 of 12 for 83.3 per cent, bettering the mark of 78.6 per cent (11 of 14) by Hancock's Malcolm Taylor.

Hill and Ray Hearne had 17 points apiece with Hill's 13 rebounds and Hearne's seven assists leading the Rams in those departments. Center Isaiah Pruitt rounded out the scoring with 12 digits.



CCSF 74 - San Diego 55

Five early field goals by guard Mike Humphrey gave San Diego an early 20-9 lead, but Ray Hearne, who led all scorers with 26 points, got hot and put the Rams into the lead at the half, 36-35.

Only minutes into the second half, the Rams, sparked by the all-around play of Darrell Fregia, moved out to a 47-38 lead and the game was a runaway thereafter.

Following Hearne for the Rams were Gary Bradford, Jacob Hill and Fregia with 10 points apiece, Telvis Jones had nine points while Isaiah Pruit hit for seven and Mel Jones contributed two.

Fregia, playing forward, guard and center, also had seven rebounds, only two behind team leader Hill. Hearne got eight rebounds and Bradford matched Fregia's total.

TWO REASONS why the Rams earned a state tourney berth this season. At left, fast improving center Isaiah Pruitt (52) gets the tip against San Jose and, right, reserve forward Darrell Fregia rises for a jumper in game against Solano. —Guardeman photos by Fred Harris and Samuel Woo

Basketball, Soccer Only Intramurals

AMS President Jesse Figueroa, head of the intramural program, stated that there will be only two intramural sports during the current Spring semester, basketball and soccer. Flag football, which was previously scheduled, has been cancelled due to lack of interest.

Basketball will consist of 11 teams divided into two leagues. One league will consist of clubs and fraternities and will have five teams, while the other league will be made up of six independent squads. Basketball games will be held on Tuesday and Thursday nights at 7 and 8 p.m. The leagues will begin March 12, and there will be a four-team playoff after the regular season.

The soccer matches will be held in the afternoons on the same days as basketball.

A list of regulations have been made and can be obtained by the captains of each team in Bungalow 5.

Figueroa also said that there will be some additional events this year sponsored by the AMS that have not been offered in the past.

He added, however, that an increase in student interest will be necessary to maintain the program. On March 28 there will be a color movie on soccer in C-247; later this year there will be a battle of bands between a pair of rock and roll groups. The AMS will also sponsor a ping pong tournament.

Further information can be obtained in Bungalow 5.

Ernie Nevers, Ollie Matson Possible As Block SF Speakers

Jesse Figueroa, AMS president, declared that the lack of interest on the part of both coaches and members of the Block SF has made it impossible to have a well run club."

An election meeting was held yesterday to elect new officers. There will most likely be a barbecue held during the Easter break. Figueroa also said that the block club will try to gain discounts at shops in the area.

On March 27 the semiannual Awards Dinner will take place. Figueroa hopes to get either Ernie Nevers or Ollie Matson to act as guest speaker.

"The soccer players seem to be the only ones willing to do any work," was the last of Figueroa's comments on the lack of interest. Figueroa was a member of the varsity soccer team this year.

Tracksters Take Fifth; San Jose Dominates Relays

By Dave Albertson

The San Jose Jaguars raced to their second consecutive conference relay crown at Foothill, Saturday, March 2.

The Jaguars featured Sam Carruthers and Earl Harris, who between them scored points in nine different events. Harris won the 100 with the time of 9.8 in addition to taking part on the winning triple and long jump teams and anchored the victorious 440 and 880 relay teams for San Jose.

San Jose dominated the winners' circle with wins in nine of the fifteen events run.

THE JAGUARS' Jerry Jackson led San Jose to impressive wins in both the long and triple jump events.

The Rams, finishing fifth, turned in a number of good pre-season time.

Vic Cary, Ernie Provost, David Jones and Larry Mosely teamed up to give the Rams their sole win in the sprint medley, finishing in 3:29.7. The Ram sprinters also finished a close second to San Jose in the 440 relay with a 42.3.

Led by August Berry, the Rams' triple jump team leaped to a second place finish.

The Ram sprinters turned in another fine performance by finishing second in the 880 relay.

The City College shot putters showed promise in their event, ending up in fourth place.

CONTRA COSTA, led by long jumper Marion Anderson, proved strong in the field events by winning the high jump with a total heigbt of 19-4. They also out-putted the field in the shot put for first place with a winning total of 140-10.

The final relay team scores were: San Jose 101, Contra Costa 82, Foothill 55, San Mateo 54, the Rams 47, Merritt 36, Chabot 31, and Diablo Valley 23.

The Rams return to Foothill this Saturday for a 10:00 a.m. conference meet with the Foothill Owls.

Hippies, Barefoot Girls Greet Netters In Win Over De Anza

By Ed Jimison

The City College of San Francisco tennis team demonstrated home-court advantage as they demolished De Anza, but lost to Stanford in the last two practice matches before the regular season.

Most tennis courts have peculiarities and the team that understands them, the home team, doesn't need to bribe the referees or bring in bottle-throwing fans to have an advantage.

The tree-shaded courts at Golden Gate Park, which are "home" to the Ram netters are no exception. When the De Anza tennis team arrived at the courts February 29, they were greated by bearded hippies and barefooted girls passing out flowers.

THE DE ANZA squad blew their minds, their cool and the game in a background of blaring transistor radios and beating bongo drums as Coach Diederichsen's netters won every match to the tune of 9-0.

How do the local distractions affect the Ram team? John Wong, 19, admits that "the girls interfere with my training" but somehow he manages to stay in top form.

Pro-like Paul Stafatos, 34, who makes the other coaches wonder how Diederichsen recruits his material, remains, as always, undisturbed. John Cervantes, on the other hand, is not content to practice just with the men, does it with the women and occasionally gets beat.

THERE WERE few flowers, however, at Stanford March 4 as the Indians scalped the Rams, 9-0, illustrating once again that a good team in its own territory is a mighty potent force.

This Friday, the college netters greet the Contra Costa Comets at the park.

Ram Nine Opens League With 2-1 Loss To Foothill

The Ram baseballers set Napa College to a 12-1 defeat on February 27, and edged the University of San Francisco, 3-2, on February 29. They then opened their 1968 Golden Gate Conference league by losing to the defending champion, Foothill Owls by a narrow 2-1 score.

The Foothill Owl's pitcher held the Rams to a mere two hits through nine innings of play, while they went on to collect five hits. Pitcher Joe Dutto went all the way for the Rams.

The only run for the Rams came about in the eighth inning as David Herman got on with the help of an error, and Dennis White came up with a long triple to left field driving in Herman from first.

Coach Ernie Domecus' comment on the team's performance in the recent contests was, "We haven't been hitting much, but the mainstay of the club is our strong pitching."

If the Rams expect to capture the top spot and go on to the state playoff the hitting will certainly have to improve.

Commenting on the league, Domecus emphasized, "They're all tough but right now we have to favor Chabot and San Mateo."

After tying for second place last year along with the Rams you can bet Chabot will be breathing down the Rams' neck all season.

In the Napa contest, Gretton's two hits and two runs batted in paced the Rams' attack. The Napa pitchers gave up 12 bases on balls to help the cause. The Rams play Chabot tomorrow, at Sunberg Field, and follow that by playing Merritt Saturday in Oakland. The Chabot game starts at 3 p.m. and the Merritt contest starts at noon.—A. F.

Aqualads Optimistic About 'Splash-In' At San Mateo Friday

The college's varsity swim team will travel to the College of San Mateo tomorrow, after a two-week layoff due to the cancellation of the Merritt meet.

Tomorrow's contest will be one of the toughest of the season, says Ram coach Curt Decker. Decker bas an optimistic outlook, despite the loss of two top sprinters because of ineligibility. He has bigh hopes for diver Dave Detert, and butterfly man Rich Glass, both of whom he feels can contend with the best in the league.

Golf Team Beats Foothill Again; Glads Here Next

By Gavin L. Watt

The Ram linkers roll on undefeated in league play after losing once in six practice rounds. In league play last year, the Rams finished sixth with five wins and eight losses.

The linkers rolled over Foothill for the second time this season. The second match took place at Los Altos Country Club February 27.

Leading the way to victory was Paul Rea, shooting a 73. Close behind was Stew Whitman firing a 74, followed by Doug Boston and Gary Corvi with a pair of 77s. A bit off the mark was Mike Gevertz, shooting an 84. Rea took the six possible points from Foothill's Gary Meeker, who shot an 82. Gevertz slipped away with five points, defeating Bill Muldoon, who shot an 87.

Jeff Frost lost four points to Boston after shooting a 79. Shooting a 75, Mike Rossi lost four points to Whitman. Corvi managed to salvage two points from Rich Lepke, who fired a 73. The Rams as a team took five points for low score total, out-shooting Foothill by 11 strokes, 385 to 396.

In non-league play the linkers defeated the Olympic Club Juniors March 3 at the Olympic Club course. Missing from the Olympic Club roster were two of their strong players, Rea and Corvi, who played for the Rams. In three-way play at Sharp Park March 4 the Rams dropped the University of San Francisco team 24½ to 5½, and won over Santa Rosa College 21½ to 8½.

Coach Grover Klemmer feels that the league match this Friday against the Chabot Gladiators at Castlewood will be a good test for the linkers. Klemmer said, "Chabot has a strong team this year." Last year the Rams beat Chabot 26-9 with Boston shooting a fine 74, taking third.

'Ugly Man On Campus' Contest Begins Next Week

By Randy Flynn

Beginning next Monday, March 25, and continuing through Thursday, March 29, Alpha Phi Omega fraternity will sponsor the 18th annual Ugly Man On Campus (UMOC) contest at City College to raise money for suffering college scholarship funds.

UMOC, a nationwide college campus contest, has been in existence for 43 years. It was invented in 1925 by the more than 280 chapters of the National Service Fraternity of which Alpha Phi Omega is a proud member. The UMOC chairman at City College tbis year is Fred Chang.

THE CONTEST is governed by a set of national rules and regulations. The contestants are male college students sponsored by campus organizations and/or groups of ten or more students. For each contestant entered, there is a $2 registration fee which is paid by the sponsoring group.

The deadline for entry this year will be Monday, March 25, at 9 a.m.; the time when UMOC officially begins.

On Thursday from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. the task of the UMOC contestants will be to sell as many votes as they can. Votes are in the form of contributions by fellow students. Each cent will be counted as one vote. Therefore, when the four-day contest ends, the candidate who bas collected the largest amount of money will be deemed the winner.

IN ADDITION to the gratification one gets from unselfish service, the sponsoring group of the winner will be awarded a bandsome perpetual trophy. The winning contestant will receive an individual tropby and a free dinner for two at the Fairmont Hotel.

Due to a lack of enthusiasm and little publicizing, last year's UMOC featured only one contestant. This year there will be at least five.

Wilkie Courter, a member of Alpha Phi Omega, spoke enthusiastically about the fact that students this year will not need AS cards to participate.

In addition to the contest itself, there will be a UMOC rally on Thursday, March 28, during college hour. Last year, the UMOC rally included several Broadway girls from Tipsy's in addition to a pie auction and a band. This year there will be another pie auction and another band. What about the girls from Tipsy's? Come and see.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 44 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MARCH 20, 1968 NUMBER 4

Black Youth Relate Better To Black Tutors

By James R. Billbury

The tutorial centers located in the Mission, Fillmore and Haight-Ashbury districts only want black tutors, states Hershel Major, a key tutorial worker.

Major said, "One should easily see that this desire is justifiable. The students range in age from six to ten years old, and are all black. Through non-black students are equally welcomed the only active children now are black.

"In the fall semester of 1967," he continued, "these centers operated with an integrated staff of three black and fifteen white tutors. And according to the results and effects, the non-black tutor was unable to relate with the black children through association or relation."

The black tutor felt the children needed environmental and personal attachment in order to progress and mature fully.

THE AVERAGE number of children in each class ranges from 15 to 20, and at any given time the staff matches them so that they are able to offer individual instruction; a situation envied by many public schools, according to the tutorial staff.

There are 10 salaried positions with a maximum of 15 hours a week—$1.46 per hour. The rest are voluntary workers. Major, one of the key tutorial workers, puts in 10 to 15 hours more than his maximum salaried 15.

The funds are provided by the Student Council.

"The black students of City College," stated Candace Etter, another black tutor, "are to be congratulated for the fine job they are doing with these children. Their objective — to help the students with academic weakness and acquaint the black child with his history, arts and struggle for human dignity—is a task that the United States Supreme Court is still trying to force many educational systems to undertake."

Bietz Initiates Questionaire On Class Evaluation

Class content and instructional techniques will be evaluated before the end of this semester via a soon to be instituted process called Class Evaluation.

Evaluation of teachers by students isn't an entirely novel idea; a few colleges, San Francisco State among them, have attempted it in the past with favorable results.

Ray Bietz, president of the Associated Students, using State as an example, hopes the evaluation will be something meaningful for all concerned.

By answering the questions honestly and without allowing them to turn into merely personality contests, the students will benefit greatly. By using the questionnaire as a criterion the teachers can adjust their techniques accordingly. In this way, the AS president theorizes, the courses can become more interesting and the students will possibly study harder.

According to Bietz, the system will work on a grade basis. Sometime during the middle of the semester an instructor will give the questionnaire to his students. The answers will be evaluated and the teachers having the highest marks shall be revealed to the general populace of the college via the newspaper, while those with the lowest marks shall be informed privately of the results and can then make such adjustments as they see fit.

Bietz hopes the situation will be approached with maturity by all parties. "Teachers shouldn't mistakenly construe the valuations to be in any way an affront upon their individual personalities, and students should not think they may use the questionnaire as a paper whip by which they may punish their instructors for poor grades."

Forms have been distributed to all of the faculty members seeking their opinions on the evaluation issue. Thus far there have been 40 or 50 positive responses.

Zak Awarded Scholarship

Michael Zak, adertising art and design student at City College, won the Lloyd Myers Memorial Award in state-wide competition among five colleges—Academy of Art, California College of Arts and Crafts, San Jose State College and San Francisco State College. City College is the only two-year college in the group.

The award consists of a $300 scholarship and is granted on the basis of the student's talent, and potential achievement in the field of advertising art and design.

A major factor in Zak's winning of the award was his animated film entitled "Genesis," a 16mm black and white, sound film depicting the genisis of the earth. The film portrays man's emergence from a cocoon into human form.

He called "Genesis' 'an impressionistic work and complimented City College's art department for its "diversification of curriculum" and "freedom of interpretation."

Zak, who attended SF State College stated that he felt City College's art department facilities were freer, claiming that State's department was very "therapeutic and dictatorial."

Chessnuts Resting In Open Air

Closing Cafeteria Doors Congests Digestive Tracts

A petition, council action, and administrative cooperation were all directed recently toward soothing the digestive systems of City College students who have lunch hour classes.

"Scheduling problems keep some people from getting to the cafeteria until 1 p.m.," states Lolita Rankin, who collected 150 sympathetic signatures in less than an hour.

Nickie Gargan, who originated the petition, adds, "By the time you get through that line, it's quarter after and that leaves only 15 minutes to find a seat and finish your meal before they start running you out."

A recommendation is before Student Council concerning the subject and according to Derrick Quan, frosh council member, David Borrelli of the hotel and restaurant department is willing to discuss the issue.

San Mateo Hosts Area 6 Conference Saturday

By Jerry Siskron

The California Junior College Student Government Association (CJCSGA) will hold its Area Six conference this Saturday at the College of San Mateo.

The preliminary meeting will prepare for the state meeting by selecting the most important discussion material from a pre-planned list of topics. This will allow the state meeting to focus on the subjects of greatest concern to junior colleges in California.

The workshop topics, besides the student body president's business, will be education, student-faculty relations, communications, the draft and others.

The conference will be comprised of 20 members from the student bodies of the ten colleges in Area Six. Area Six geographically includes San Francisco and the lower peninsula.

In earlier years, the CJCSGA was initiated for the purpose of exchanging views between the administration and the student body. The trend of its purpose, since it was formed in 1945, bas gravitated toward that of a pressure group.

The CJCSGA is indirectly influential in the state capitol through its parent organization, the California Junior College Association (CJCA).

The CJCA is composed of faculty, administrators, and educational overseers. It has a legislative advocate in Sacramento.

Most of the ideas introduced to the state legislature by the CJCA legislative advocate are in reference to the CJCSGA resolutions.

James Wyatt, assistant dean of student activities at City College, is the representative of Areas Six and Five, for the CJCA. Wyatt said the CJCSGA is thinking of biring a full-time professional secretary to bolster their influence and apply it in a more direct way.

The CJCSGA state meeting will be holding its 45th semiannual conference on April 18, 19 and 20, at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles. The five delegates sent from City College are Ray Bietz, associated student president; Pat Fiuren, associated student vice president; John Waterfield and Tom Doudiet, freshmen councilmen, and Bill McQuaid, sophomore president.

The other nine junior colleges that will send delegates to the preliminary meeting besides City College are: College of San Mateo, Cabrillo College, De Anza College, Foothill College, Menlo College, San Jose City College, Gavilan College, West Valley College and Hartnell College.

The CJCSGA is composed of 84 junior colleges throughout the nine areas of California.

Peace/Freedom Now On Campus

Establishing itself as part of the campus community, the Peace and Freedom Movement at City College held its first meeting on March 7 in the Arts Building.

After a short running feud with Assistant Dean of Student Activities Jim Wyatt, all has been settled.

Earlier in the year counterparts of the Peace and Freedom Movement consulted Wyatt in regards to establishing the movement on campus. The dean readily admits that at the time he misinterpreted the state law. After checking the books and finding the error, he states, the individuals connected with the movement went off in a huff, crying "Conservative Administrators."

Wyatt feels that the misunderstanding wouldn't have continued as long as it did if the Peace and Freedom Movement had brought the error to his attention.

The Movement's organizational meeting on March 7 attracted a group of 25. The meeting represented the campus well, with the exception of the black students. Topics for discussion were: registration in the Peace and Freedom Movement, need for people to help and serve, and the convention.

The chairman for the day, Art Sullivan, lead the group in drawing up the constitution.

The constitution is as follows: 1) name, City College of San Francisco Peace and Freedom Movement; 2) open to, City College of San Francisco campus community; 3) vote, all registered City College of San Francisco Peace and Freedom members and simple majority to pass issues; 4) leadership, rotating chairman; 5) meetings, 11 a.m. to 12 noon Thursdays (subject to change).

Wyatt said, "Dean Hillsman is sending someone to see me about the Young Republicans."

All in all it looks like a big political year on and off campus.

Instructors' Petition Challenges Student-Faculty 'Coffee Lounge'

The Executive Committee of the Faculty Association plans to change the faculty lounge on the second floor of Cloud Hall into a "coffee lounge," to which faculty could invite students. But a petition has circulated among the faculty opposing the change.

According to Art Evans, faculty association secretary, the issue will be resolved at a Faculty Association meeting to be held tomorrow.

Evans, who originated the plan, explained that it was just an effort to solve the problem.

There is currently no place where faculty and students can get together otber than Statler Wing, which is too noisy," the secretary stated.

He stated that "The faculty lounge is certainly not ideal; it is a small, windowless room, but that it is the only space available." The refurbishing was to be accomplished with limited funds of the Faculty Association, contributions, and perhaps mural work on the walls by art students, to expand it visually."

According to a faculty member, the petition, which would keep the lounge as it is, was started because "the room is the only men's faculty lounge on campus. If a teacher isn't feeling well, it is the only place on this campus to which he can go."

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco
ED HOLMES, Editor

Vol. 66, No. 4 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 20, 1968 Page 2

Tutorial Pace Slowed

A CHILD IS crying out for help. But, the tutorial program at City College of San Francisco seems to ignore his plea. The "war on ignorance" is now being overshadowed by another more frustrating war.

The two warring factions are black and non-black tutors, both of whom seem to have forgotten the children. The black students feel that a non-black tutor will do a black child more harm than good. Yet, the majority of the children are black, and the majority of the tutors are non-black. It can only be expected that there are more non-black tutors; there are more non-black students at City College.

But, many fail to understand this mathematical difference. The results are two fold: children without tutors, and tutors with no children. This seems to contradict the whole concept of tutorial; the desire should be to educate, not disrupt.

At the beginning of this semester, it was decided that there were to be two all-black (children and tutors) centers. Both of them opened, but are in danger of closing for lack of tutors. But, right now, in another center there are non-black tutors quitting the program for lack of children. This seems to be foolish handling of needed people.

At the moment, there is only one center remaining (out of six), which is running smoothly, devoid of this conflict. But this temporary peace is precarious at best. The question besetting all the tutors at the moment is, what is to become of the tutorial program? With so many centers closing, there is a chance of the funds being cut. If that were done, the centers could not reopen, even if the differences were settled. For the sake of the children, let's hope the tutors can reach some agreement; before there is not longer a tutorial program.

Opinions Vary

THE ABOVE EDITORIAL was written by a member of the City College Tutorial Program.

There is a general consensus that black tutors are best for black tutees, and some members of the Black Students Association state unequivically that, "white tutors will hurt, not help, black children." Others feel that a start must be made and that some non-black tutoring is better than none at all.

The Guardsman invites comments in general on the Tutorial Program and in particular we invite replies to this editorial.

Labelled And Recorded

Rascals, Price, Pops Festival

by Martin J. Arbunich

FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH:

THE RASCALS — Once Upon A Dream (Atlantic—SD 8169): Applying the slogan that 'practice makes perfect' the Rascals are continually edging closer to perfection with each LP they produce. This one is no exception.

Like the Beatles' Sgt. Pepper and the Stones' Satanic Majesties Request, Once Upon A Dream is based on the same 'this is the show' concept—actually a small-scale studio melodrama which employs recording effects to create a striking theatrical setting. The Rascals, in this case, use a dream for their setting.

The album is like a steady train of progression that makes no pauses throughout the entire disc. The technique is effective in drawing the 11 tracks together in unison and also in strengthening the dream theme of the album. "If you really want to entertain somebody," Erie Burdon told a reporter in a recent issue of Jazz & Pop, "one track must drift from one into another . . . or you will lose peoples' attention and the mind wanders."

The mind finds itself hard to wander here and the entertainment fails to depreciate from the free-wheeling opener, Easy Rollin', right on through the beautiful title song finale.

The Rascals have finally realized that their voices are the true vehicles of entertainment in their music and this album places additional emphasis on their aesthetically superb vocals over their instrumentation, which, by the way, is far from being defective.

This is one helluva magnificent production from America's foremost white rhythm and blues singers.

ALAN PRICE—The Price Is Right (Parrot—PAS 71018): This is the same guy that played organ with the original Animals (House Of The Rising Sun) and later came through again with another outstanding exhibition of keyboard instrumentation as well as vocalizing on I Put A Spell On You.

This album, however, will be a letdown to those listeners who are familiar with Price only through his two previous accomplishments mentioned above.

The album includes five songs which fared well on the English charts, including 'Spell,' but Priee's sensational keyboard work which sent him to the number one post recently among keyboard players in the U.K., lacks befitting exposure on most of the LP's 12 tracks.

'Spell' is unquestionably the most outstanding cut on the LP and there really isn't much more that can compare to it. Price's vocals are justifiably attractive—in the Eric Burdon-Georgie Fame vein—but for the most part are hindered by an overly-commercial offering of songs.

• • •

The fate of the second Monterey Pops Festival is still dangling from a thread thanks to that city's mayor, other officials and their friends. Their attack is based around a charge that last year's Festival led to "open fornication," the sale of pornographic material and drug marketing. Apparently the boys in blue at the Festival got too involved with the aesthetics of the event themselves, weren't executing their policeing duties properly or just got all their facts tangled up. As reported there were no arrests made at last year's Festival, in fact half the force was sent home. This writer's witnessed better example of disorder and lawbreaking at a three-hour 49er football game—just count the fights and empty vodka bottles.

Maybe someone should have anticipated the interference of the establishment by relocating the Festival site. Is Monterey where it's at?

Riding The Soundwaves

Campus Broadcast Club Operates With 38 DJ's

By John Bendoritis

From the innermost recesses of the Arts Hall a crew of 38 City College students, who make up the KCSF Broadcasters Club, operate together as KCSF, the campus closed-circuit radio station, and as KALW, an FM radio station transmitted over 91.7 megacycles.

Best known to students is KCSF, which pipes music and news into the cafeteria from 8 to 10 a.m. weekdays. The music breaks down to about fifty per cent rock and the rest a combination of classical, jazz and popular music. News of the campus is broadcast three times per hour. At election time, the station also makes itself available to any campus political candidate that wants to record a one-minute plug for his candidacy.

Paul Silva, one of City College's 38 disc jockeys, broadcasts over KCSF.

THE CLUB ALSO broadcasts daily from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. as the FM radio station KALW, using the transmitter located at the John O'Connell Technical Institute. KALW is the oldest educational FM station in the country.

The music of KALW has less emphasis on hard rock, and the campus news is of the type that would interest the general community. Special programs are also taped including speeches and interviews of guests appearing on campus, such as recent speakers Mayor Joe Alioto and columnist Art Hoppe.

Phillip Brown, who oversees the club, explained that the campus radio station is run entirely by the students and they function in every capacity from disc jockey to station manager. There are no girl students among the broadcasters, but Brown states that they'd love to have some.

THE DISC JOCKEYS select the music they play and write their own scripts. The DJ's alternate on a Wednesday, noon-hour program in which they build a show around a theme of their own choosing, and on another special one-hour show on Thursday, they build a show around a classical theme. In addition to their DJ roles, the students work either in the news, production or special events department.

The news of the Campus Carrier, piped over the school PA system is not part of the club, but KCSF's DJ's do the announcing.

Diek Kimball, no relation to the famed TV character, acts as station manager of the club and Dave Smith is program director. Students head all three departments of the club and make the assignments.

The KCSF Broadcasters Club is a student supported organization, and the budget for the club runs about $1000 a semester.

Freshman Curriculum Limited

Freshmen find many limitations in their programs for their first semester at City College of San Francisco.

Many freshmen find themselves at the beginning of their first semester directed into a math course such as Math E or Business 60. Both of these courses are considered to be remedial courses. They aid the student in helping himself to brush up on his math. Students taking Math E can take an exam at the end of the first six weeks which is equivalent to the one given upon entering the college. If the student is able to pass the exam with a score of 28 out of 40, he can leave all of his math worries behind him.

ACCORDING TO Mr. Hanson, head of the math department of the college, 50 per cent of all freshmen have to take either of the two courses. Between 35 to 40 per cent of the students are able to pass their Math E exam at the end of the first six weeks, while those students who haven't quite grasped the certain knowledge that is required of them, have a second and third chanee to pass the exam.

Upon entering the college a student must take an English exam as well, and those who do not pass must take a bonehead English course. Most students are required to take Com G5a for a semester and then Com G5b for another semester. For those students who just missed passing the entrance exam an alternate course of Com G6 can be taken.

THESE COURSES are not constructed as the Math E course is. A student must complete a full semester of each course. After completing a semester of Com G5b, an exam is given and if the student passes, then he no longer has to take another English course while attending the college; of course if he doesn't pass the exam, then he is required to repeat Com G5b to fulfill the college requirement.

Among the list of college requirements it is stated that all students must take a health course during the first semester at the college, unless they passed the health entrance exam. The health courses help to orient the student into an awareness of the necessity for good health.

THE GENERAL attitude of the student taking these courses isn't of the finest quality.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

• AS Cards Again

Editor, The Guardsman:

I would like to answer the recent letter that appeared in your paper on March 6, 1968, written by Mr. Jerry D. Fink.

Mr. Fink stated that the "power of spending is being taken as an instrument to beat all members of City College over the head with." I disagree violently.

The power of spending is the responsibility of the 15 members of Student Council. I, as a member of the council, am not only responsible for allocating your money properly, but I must at the same time oversee the problems of raising revenue. I can't allocate money for an activity if there is not enough money to allocate in the first place.

Cultural activities (in any form) cost more than they did five years ago. The standard rate for a noted guest lecturer is $1000, but how do you exnect me to meet your demands for better cultural activities when I don't have the funds to pay for the activities that you want!

I agree with Mr. Fink that $5 is a large sum of cash, and the administration of this college, fully realize that some students just can't afford $5 for an AS card. Therefore, it has been the unwritten policy of these concerned people to allow a student to earn an AS card if he cannot afford one. This is done by special arrangement and is always worked towards the benefit of the students. This I guarantee to be true.

I fully realize that I, nor anyone else, can dictate to Mr. Fink, nor an individual, how or where to spend his money. As a student, I sympathize with Mr. Fink's views. As a councilman, one who understands the financial problems of this Association better than the average student, I entirely disagree with Mr. Fink's views.

Perhaps demanding an AS card for admission to all AS functions is not the best solution to our problems . . . If by any chance Mr. Fink, or any other member of the student body possesses the possible solution to our financial problems, please contact me in Bungalow 5 immediately.

Derrick K. Quan
Councilman

Pot Luck

by Tom Graham

WORTHWHILE INFORMATION. About one out of every four American families of average income send their children to college.

A college education is expensive.

At City College expenses are minimal in comparison to other four-year colleges and universities.

Those planning on continuing their education at a university or state college after transferring or graduating from here will discover an increase in expenditures.

One way to avoid financial difficulties is for the student to avail himself of all information regarding college costs.

Choosing a college to attend is of utmost economic importance to the student. Students should look for the college that comes closest to fulfilling their requirements at the lowest overall cost by comparing faculties, curricula, campuses, location and other features.

Students shouldn't be fooled by thinking that expensive colleges are the best because many low-tuition colleges and universities are very good.

College counselors warn against selecting a college entirely on the basis of cost. However, don't ignore or underestimate the cost factor.

Besides "fixed costs," such as tuition and room and board, "variable costs" should also be figured in. These include books, personal expenses and money for recreation and travel.

Students shouldn't overestimate the amound of help they may receive. Grants and scholarships are based not only upon ability, but need also.

Know all about scholarships, jobs and loans. There are three types of scholarships: unrestricted, restricted and regional.

Unrestricted scholarships are open to any qualified students. Restricted scholarships are awarded on the basis of specialized qualifications. Regional scholarships are usually limited to applicants living within a certain area.

Two out of three college students help pay their way with part-time jobs during the school year and summer vacation months. Many times these jobs help their whole financial problem. A job convinces the financial aid officers that the student is worthy of a scholarship. Moreover, a job makes the student a better risk at the bank, in case he needs a student loan.

To find work, students should discuss their problem with financial aid officers or placement officers at the colleges they're considering. Try to locate work in line with the "compatible theory—something that the individual is interested in doing.

There are usually jobs on campus, such as laboratory assistant, cafeteria helper, library or museum aid and teachers' assistant.

Many summer jobs are open in camps, parks, neighborhood centers, children's homes, hospitals and in federal state and city agencies.

If current income, savings, scholarship aid and a student's part-time work still fail to meet college costs, he may seek a loan.

Today education loans are becoming available through the traditional commercial sources: banks, finance companies, savings and loan associations and credit unions.

Careful thought should be given to college plans. Consider the institutions that pay students as they learn. There are colleges with comprehensive eamnus work programs that enable students to earn all or most of their tuition and living expenses.

Students at City College realize that a college doesn't necessarily mean four years on one campus. Spending the first two years at a low-cost junior college and then transferring to a state college or university for the junior and senior years has proved practical.

Guardsman Staff—Spring 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... ED HOLMES
Managing Editor ..... Martin J. Arbunich
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
News Editor ..... Doug Boston
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan
Editorial Assistant ..... D. K. Dorn
Circulation Manager ..... Arthur Fanfelle

Reporters: John Bendoritis, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom.

Cub Reporters: David Albertson, Penny Blum, Garret Duncan, Willy Durkin, Lawrence Ferrari, Jerry D. Fink, Randy Flynn, Michael J. Flynn, Wayne Hiroshima, Ed Jimison, Lavine Lee, Rita Quong, Leonard Ribeiro, Carol Roehl, Jerry W. Stokron, Pam Tomasello, Gavin L. Watt, James Bazzett, James Billbury, Robert Forsker, Lawrence Lee.

Photographers: Dawn Turner, Chief; Garth Ogle, Nathaniel Dodes, Carol Gillmore, Herbert Gong, Glenn Graham, Fred Harris, Jerry Jew, James McElory, Doug Mills, Robert Morris, Jens Protze, Mike Reams, Larry Tiscornia, Melvin Weiner and Samoel Woo.

SHOOTIN' IT

by D. K. Dorn

SEE HOW THEY RUN: The passage of time at City College likens to more primitive acts. The hectic entry at registration, flashes throughout, climaxes at mid-terms, then the orgastic session of finals. Then it starts all over again . . . People walking and talking under the stony gaze of Thomas Edison and Galileo by the flagpole courtyard, smoking and laughing at their own wit in the cafeteria . . . Life goes on within and without you . . . Meanwhile turbulent clouds cast turbulent shadows on Cloud Hall. See how they run . . .

• • •

PHUN AND GAMES: The ultimate attempt at THE super-female-aspreditor poster is out on the market now. Sex starlet Brigette Bardot is pictured in a tight, black leather mini skirt with tight laced black vinyl boots astride an Hells Angels type chopper motorcycle. Whether this pop poster appeals to masculinized chicks, cats who are missing a couple things, or to prophets of parody and put-on, this black shadow of the late Marquis is reaping pretty, prophet.

• • •

KUDOS: The Guardsman's Martin J. Arbunich finally made big time when entrepreneuer Bill Graham tacked the musicologist's column to the bulletin on the merits of Blue Cheer to the bulletin board at the Fillmore Auditorium. But all the while, Martin J. thought that Blue Cheer was the name of a group. The Who plays hard rock music.

We are glad to report that the Council Of Organizations (COO) reads this column. Last week, we advocated and recommended an activities fair where all organizations and clubs could propagandize and recruit members.

And Lo. April 26 is the date of COO's spring festival and carnival with games, events and related parahanalia.

"Yup. There's going to be cars smashed up and things like that," said Associated Students President Ray Bietz.

However, the KCSF Broadcasters Club, who usually put on a dance with rock records live disck jockies (rah) don't want to go through with all the bummers inherent in such a presentation.

• • •

"Glenn Yarbrough In Concert," a talent package now touring colleges, will be presented at the College of Notre Dame on April 4 at 8 p.m., in the San Mateo High School Auditorium on Delaware Street. Tickets range in price from $3.25, $3.75 to $4.50 and may be reserved by calling either 591-1580 or 593-7676. At those prices, everyone is urged to rush down to swinging San Mateo before they all disappear. But don't mistake Paradise for that town down the road.

• • •

MOVIN' ON UP: Students are winding their way into the power structure. A Faculty-Student Lounge is to be set up in Cloud Hall on the second floor. The deal is that instructors can invite students into this lounge for coffee. Coffee Houses? In City College of San Francisco?

The Guardsman Of Truth still needs an artistic type to add illustrative appendages to its pages. Contact anybody in S304 if you can deal in this line.

Straight Shootin': Student politics are playing flip-flop on policy again, just like real Washingtonians. It seems that AS cards are again required to get into the Thursday night movie series, even though there was contrary dope in this paper last week.

• • •

City's finest are again protecting the college from roaming marauders. It seems that some lads from Riordan were involved in a cliff hanger of a fisticuff in the empty reservoir recently, until four of the fuzz caught onto the action. A legal conference resulted in a review of the California statutes covering fights in reservoirs, and a quick glance was undertaken to determine how big the battlers were. The heat cautiously approached the scene of the riotous act, until the fight broke up and everybody split. Then the heat ran onto the scene, four abreast using the latest techniques of riot control. The National Guard was rumored to be on stand-by.

"We cleared the area in the best way for them and the best way for us," said a high-ranking officer, in his best police brouge.

College, Muni Meet Reveals Extra 'K' Streetcar Service

At a meeting between Frosh Councilman Derrick Quan, Associated Students' President Ray Bietz and Dean of Student Activities James Wyatt and Muni Railway's General Manager Jack Woods last week, an additional "K" street car run was announced for students with 8 a.m. classes. Another extra "K" car will leave City College station after 3 p.m. The augmented service will start by April 8.

Woods called City College of San Francisco to extend an invitation for the Associated Students to meet with him to discuss the issues concerning the recent Municipal Railway Survey conducted by Councilman Quan during registration.

DURING THE 50-minute conference, Woods had the assistance of V. W. Anderson (former general manager of Muni) who is presently head of the schedule department.

The conference started with Woods giving the City College trio a background leeture of the woes of the Muni. Woods noted to the trio that the "newest coach is eight years old," and that the Muni is short of buses because of oversights by past administrations. Woods contended that there are "not enough street cars" and that they cannot give anyone any more service.

During the meeting, Quan diseussed the five solutions that were published along with the unprecedented ten-page Muni research report.

QUAN STATED after the meeting that five of the six solutions were rejected due to technicalities. The only solution passed was the additional "K" cars to the line.

"However," said Quan, "the research Muni people have promised to search into the possibilities of extending the 17 local Park Merced as a shuttle bus for City College students. This," added Quan, "looks favorable."

Concerning the possibilities of allowing the City College students to use the present student ear tickets, Councilman Quan reluctantly said "no soap."

Quan elaborated by saying, "Woods states that the Public Utilities is responsible for setting the Muni fares," and that "when I asked him directly if he would recommend student discount cards for City College students, Woods said 'no.'"

Quan stated that he is "terribly disappointed that I am unable to obtain more from the Muni Railway people," but that "what we've got so far is better than nothing." He intends to follow through with his survey and attempt to meet with the Public Utilities Commission concerning student fares.—R. Q.

Quan, Assistants Trigger Action On Bulletin Boards

Controversial Affairs Chairman Derrick Quan announced this week that two temporary "free" student bulletin boards will be erected within two weeks.

The purpose of these boards is to help relieve the over-crowded conditions of the bulletin boards inside the college.

LAST SEMESTER, Student Counell passed a resolution that established a Controversial Affairs Committee. Its job was to post information that would publicize on-campus activities.

However, the CAC found out that it would be illegal to publicize material on existing bulletin boards.

The CAC was then instructed to build a student bulletin board, but nothing was done.

This term, as head of the CAC, Quan and his assistants, Randall Low and Arthur Wong, are developing plans for a "super-size" bulletin board that is to be erected near Statler Wing. Quan originally wanted to have an outside constructor build the bulletin board, but this would cost over $500.

Low then suggested that the three-man team (Quan, Low and Wong) build the bulletin board themselves. This way, they would save about $200.

In the meantime, two temporary boards will be constructed for student use until the "super-size" bulletin board is constructed.

Quan also announced that a program for a series of "mini" bulletin boards, that will be constructed on key locations, is in the making.

"We hope," said Quan, "that the school district will back up the tab for these 'mini' boards."

The discovery, in 1901, of distinct human blood groups was a major breakthrough for blood transfusion.

Spectrum: Home On The Range

by Barbara Hamann

THE SWEET smell of success. The Hotel and Restaurant Department has extended its services on Monday through Thursday evenings from 5:45 to 7:15 p.m. providing students, faculty and guests with a variety of hot meals.

The extended service was initiated in September, 1967 and is designed to further train students in the H&R division.

Approximately 25 students manage the evening operation under the supervision of John Seopazzi, chief instructor-in-charge. They prepare the menus, cook and serve the food.

"We serve the best meal in town for a dollar," said Seopazzi.

IN ADDITION TO the evening meals, banquets are catered. Here again, students are given practical experience in catering techniques. Banquets are arranged in advance with Jim Longo, head of the faculty dining room. The preset entrees are $1.25 per plate including salad, beverage and dessert.

While all hotel and restaurant students are trained in the basic subjects such as the preparation of food, dining service, front office procedures, etc., many of the graduates are presently serving in executive positions with annual salaries of $10,000 and up.

• • •

IN A RECENT editorial David M. Sacks, vice president and general manager of KGO-TV, praised the Hotel and Restaurant Department on their 16th annual Operation St. Francis.

This annual event enables fourth semester students of the H&R division to become top exeeutives of the hotel for one day.

In his editorial Sacks expressed, "We are pleased to report the operation was a success."

The program, in cooperation with the St. Francis Hotel, is designed to give students practical experience in the field of hotel and restaurant management.

"Channel 7 believes such educational programs as the H&R division at City College will help prepare many young people for exciting and creative jobs," said Sacks.

THERE ARE ONLY a few colleges in the country which offer this kind of course.

Sacks stated that, "As a two-year college it is far too great an educational facility to simply call it a junior college. It boasts many fine departments, and the one best is the H&R division."

He summed up his editorial by adding that, "City College provides a steady stream of qualified people for one of the city's major industries."

KGO-TV is noted for its editorial comments in bringing to view items of community and civic interest.

H&R IN ACTION.

—Guardsman photo by Doug Mills

Serious Ski Injury

Steve Marigan, former freshman class president at City College, was seriously injured in a skiing accident in Reno, Nevada, two weeks ago. He was moved from a hospital in Reno last Friday to Mount Zion Hospital in San Francisco.

Marigan, who spent a lot of his time skiing, was on City College's Ski Club this semester and the accident occurred when he tried to avoid hitting another skier who had cut across his path.

In his fourth semester at City College, Marigan was due to enter the Army shortly.

He was a member of the Student Council in addition to being former freshman president. He was also active in campus activities this semester and a member of the Beta Tau fraternity.

Council Passes New Student Loan Proposal—Effective Next Week

By Sharon Roberts

The student loan proposal was passed by Student Council recently and will go into effect next week, Soph President Bill McQuaid announced.

Council's vote of 13 in favor of the proposal and two against provided the winning margin. McQuaid stated, "I mainly supported the program because the loaning of money is necessary for school expenditures, which some cannot afford all at once." Furthermore, "I believe that the loaning of money will eliminate high interest rates by finance companies."

IN ORDER TO obtain a loan a student must be a resident of the Bay Area for at least one year (or at one time been affiliated with the Armed Forces), have officially registered as a full-time student carrying at least 12 units, use the loan only for books and school supplies sold at the Associated Students' Bookstore, maintain a C grade-point average, and the amount borrowed cannot exceed $75.

Loans can be obtained through Dean of Women Mary Golding and Dean of Men Ralph Hillsman.

Representatives of Student Council have agreed to allocate $1000 for the needed funds, and plan to add a $1000 more each semester. McQuaid commented, "My goal is to get a large sum of capital and later on be able to enlarge the sums loaned."

AS PRESIDENT Ray Bietz, AS Vice President Pat Fiuren, Soph President McQuaid, USA members Tom Doudiet and John Waterfield were selected to attend the California Junior College Student Government Association's convention in Los Angeles. McQuaid plans on discussing student loans with other Junior College AS government officials at the convention.

McQuaid commented, "I would like to know of similar types of programs and diseuss the one which I proposed to those delegates present." McQuaid continued, "this program hopefully will in the future provide more substantial amounts for other purposes and maintain a no interest policy." He made no mention concerning how the loans would be repaid.

Scholarships To Be Given

During the months of February and March, America's oldest major silversmiths, Reed and Barton are conducting a "Silver Opinion Competition."

City College of San Francisco has been among one of the few selected to enter this competition in which the First Grand Award is $500. There will also be hundreds of other cash and tableware prizes.

In the 1968 "Silver Opinion Competition," an entry form illustrates 12 designs of sterling with eight designs of both china and crystal. The entrants simply list the three best combinations of sterling, china and crystal from the patterns illustrated.

Karen Hall, student represcntative, is conducting the "Silver Opinion Competition" for Reed and Barton on the college campus. For those interested in entering the competition, contact Miss Hall in S-150.

Turn SF Bay Into A Recreation Area—Dr. Thomas Harvey

Dr. Thomas Harvey, a biologist at San Jose State College, spoke to a near capacity crowd during College Hour last Thursday. His topic was "Save The Bay," a subject in which Harvey urged immediate attention.

He stated that, "Concern for the Bay Area, is concern for the world at large."

"There are 400 square miles of water in the bay," he stated, "but less than 10 per cent is available to the public. This is due to the fact that many private industries own the marshland that is the only accessible route to the bay." Harvey also expounded the fear of over-polution, if action isn't taken to quickly save the bay. Should the bay be filled in, and homes built there, the result would be disastrous in two ways. "The houses would eause extra polution," he said, "and the chemicals in the bay which deter polution would not be there."

There are many alternatives which could be efficiently put into use. One of the many that Harvey suggested was to turn the San Francisco Bay into a recreation area.

He suggested that those who really care should join the "Save The San Francisco Bay Association."

College Netters Bury Chabot In First League Contest—Merritt Next

By Ed Jimison

Chabot's tennis team got trampled by an enraged Ram squad in the league opener March 8, after Gladiator Ron McPherson beat Chuck White 6—1, 6—4 in the opening singles set in a match at Chabot.

The stampeding City College netters displayed its tremendous depth as it ground the remaining Gladiators into the pavement of Chabot's own tennis arena and trotted on back to San Francisco with a 6-1 victory and a 1-0 league record.

ASIDE FROM the initial loss, Coach Diederichsen's squad wiped the singles slate clean. Leading the charge, John Wong gave City College its first singles victory by beating Tom Discher 6—2, 6—4. George Zoul continued the onslaught by upsetting John Marks 3—6, 6—2, 6—3. Paul Stafston followed through by handing Bob Kucer a 6—4, 6—4 defeat. Newcomer Tony Lee made it 4-1 for the Rams as he beat Al Brown 6—3, 7—5.

In the doubles, Zoul and Lee teamed up to whip Chabot's Marks and Kucer. Even Chabot's McPherson wasn't enough of an asset to nab the first doubles match from Chuck White and John Wong.

AS TENNIS PLAYERS go, White and Wong are small in size. In fact, they look more like a pair of jockeys than a doubles tennis team. But they don't look like jockeys when they're on the court.

Standing 5-8 and 5-9 respectively, they usually lose about six inches between them to their opponents in a game where, both at the service and at the net, height is all important. However, as players who have played against them will testify, they always seem to grow about 4 or 5 inches when they step onto the court.

City College has a diamond-studded team this year and it won't take long to find out if they have the material for the conference crown.

Diederichsen and his team will put their bid right on the line Friday, when they travel to Oakland to face Merritt.

The T-Birds, who won the Golden Gate Conference Tennis Championship last year, recently did the "dirty deed" by handing Foothill its first league setback in three years. Spearheaded by Les Hansen, they are undefeated and coming on strong. They are ranked, with good reason, as the number one team in the conference.

Mountaineers, Rangers, H&R Intra Victors

This semester's intramural program is well on its way with the opening night's basketball action starting last Tuesday. Four games were to be held but only three were played, with the fourth being forfeited.

The men's gym was the battleground for the Blackstone Rangers as they defeated the Friendly Bears 43-34.

In the women's gym, the Red Mountaineers out-fought the Can't Lasts by 53-49. The final game of the night was the only runaway with the H&R beating the Vandals 57-23. The only forfeit of the night came when Chi-Rho-Delta did not appear, giving a victory to Phi Delta.

Club and Independent teams will play Tuesday and Thursday nights. Tomorrow will see the Vandals meeting The Guardsman at 7 p.m. in the women's gym. At 8 p.m. the Can't Lasts faces off with The Revisables. In the men's gym the first game will see the Blackstone Rangers tipping off against The Celtics.

The final game of the night will see Phi Delta playing the Philippino-American Club.

Next Tuesday will see H&R pitted against Chi-Rho-Delta, with the second game in the women's gym pitting the Blackstone Rangers against the Revisables.

In the men's gym the first game sees the Friendly Bears against the Red Mountaineers, followed by a game matching the Vandals and Revisables.

Last week's games saw Tom Wilson of the H&R lead all scorers with 22 points. Ken Jones of the Red Mountaineers paced his club with 16 points and played a fine floor game. Three members of the Can't Lasts club hit double figures, despite the loss to the Mountaineers.—A. F.

Ram Nine Play Jags To 11-11 Ten-Inning Tie

The City College-Chabot baseball game scheduled for last Thursday afternoon at Balboa Park was called off on account of rain. This marked the third straight postponement for the Ram nine, with only one of the games having been made up so far. Hoping for some sunshine, the Ram squad travels to San Mateo tomorrow and then host defending champion Foothill this coming Tuesday. Both games begin at 3 p.m.

The Ram baseballers hosted San Jose and played the Jaguars to an 11-11 tie in 10 innings on March 9. The game, originally scheduled for March 7 but postponed due to rain, was finally called on account of darkness.

THE FIRST INNING was a wild one with the Rams pulling out to a 5-3 lead.

City College didn't score again until the sixth when they pushed across three runs to narrow San Jose's lead to 9-8 as the Jags had come up with a single run in the second, a pair in the third and three more in the top half of the sixth.

The Rams added the tying run in the seventh, but San Jose came back with two scores in the top of the ninth. City College came back again in the bottom of the ninth with a pair of runs as catcher Tom Mayfield's single drove in the final score.

Coach Ernie Domecus used four pitchers, who yielded a total of 12 hits while the Ram batters got nine safeties. Mayfield, who caught all four hurlers, was two-for-five at the plate with three runs batted in. Dave Kline and Odele Williams drove in a pair each.

PAUL CLAYTON pitched the first four innings, followed in order by Rich Heintz, John Portoni and Dave Lopez.

Each team received 10 walks with Ram hurlers striking out 11 Jaguars and San Jose pitchers fanning 10 Ram batters.

The game scheduled against Contra Costa on March 12 was postponed because of rain and will be made up at a future date.

Kansas State Wins Big Eight

Gene Williams, who led City College to a 60-6 record during the 1966 and 1967 seasons, completed a fine season Friday night in a losing cause to Texas Christian at the Midwest Regionals in Wichita, Kansas. Williams' Kansas State team (19-8) were the Big Eight Champions and would have met Houston Saturday if they could have beaten Texas Christian.

State took their league crown over arch-rival Kansas in the final week of the season with a 63-61 win over Iowa State on Williams tip-in with two seconds remaining.

Gene, now 6-7, led the club in rebounds averaging over 14 per game, despite the presence of senior center Nick Pino, who stands 7-1.

Williams was a non-starter at the beginning, but came on strong to lead a team that was given no chance to win the title. State played before a packed house every home game, with Williams becoming a favorite of the fans with his tremendous shot blocking and board work.

Winning In A Breeze

ERNIE PROVOST (left), the school record holder in the 100 (9.4) and also the Rams' top 220 man breaks the tape in winning the 440 against Diablo Valley. The race was the first quarter mile Provost has run since his days at Washington High School. —Guardsamn photo by James McEldry

RAMBLINGS

Coach Phelan Ready For Olympic Tryouts

By Mike Duggan

SID PHELAN, who recently finished coaching his Ram cagers to a 25-7 mark will be back on the job next Monday through Saturday when seven top players from California join with 18 from the National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) for Olympic tryouts at Hutchinson, Kansas.

Assistant Coach Phelan and Head Coach Jerry Tarkanian of Pasadena will cut the team down to 10 men, who will then compete the following week in the Olympic Bracket Tournament at Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Phelan led the Rams to their third straight Golden Gate Conference crown despite the fact that he had only one returning starter from last year and a starting five that averaged only 6-1. Phelan and other coaches selected the seven California representatives at a meeting following the conclusion of the state tournament, March 9.

Four of the seven chosen played in the tourney and four of the seven are "big" men while the remaining are back court men. City College's Ray Hearne, who wasn't even one of the 35 nominated but through his fine performance in the state tourney was selected as the first back court alternate. He will get the shot if one of the three guards is unable to make the tryouts through injury or school obligations.

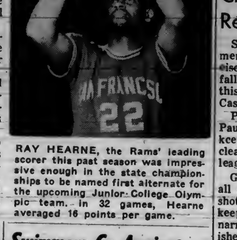
The seven chosen were: Sam Robinson, Sidney Wicks, Tim Natsucs, Lee Tolliver, Paul Ruffner, Bobby Baker and John Valley.

Pasadena's 6-8 George Trapp and Don Crenshaw, the Golden Gate Conference leading scorer from co-champion Chabot, are the first alternates for the front liners.

The 6-7 Robinson led Pasadena to a 68-4 record during his two years and was recently selected most valuable player of the state tourney. He averaged 22 a game and 10 rebounds last year in making All-State and 22.5 and 11.5 this season. In the state tournament, Robinson hit for 33 a game.

Ruffner, a 6-9 center, led Cerritos to the state title while scoring 17 a game and rebounding at 12 a game in anchoring a 6-8 front line. He was All-Tourney in the state championships and most valuable player of the Modesto Tournament, in which he scored 43 in one game.

Wicks, only a freshman, is a 6-9 post man for Santa Monica who was number two in the state with an 18.8 rebounding average and also scored at a 25-point clip.



The 6-5 Tolliver is the state's leading rebounder with a 19.4 average and also led his Mt. San Jacinto club with a 25-point scoring average.

Natsues, a 6-3 guard from Fresno, was the smallest member picked, but hit for 755 points in 30 games to lead the state in that category.

Vallely is Orange Coast's 6-2 back court star who hit for 26 a game this year and got 40 against City College on way to making All-Tourney in the state championships. Vallely was a third team All-State selection last year.

Rounding out the team is the 6-2 Baker of Hancock, a second team All-State last season while scoring 24.7 per game. Baker is also a fine rebounder and passer and was one of three Hancock players to average over 20 points a game this year. He also made the All-Tourney team during the state championships.

Among the 18 players picked from the NJCAA is Artis Gilmore of Gardner-Webb Junior College in North Carolina. He is a 7-3 freshman who scored 23 per game and the former prep All-American also averaged 17.5 rebounds per contest.

RAY HEARNE, the Rams' leading scorer this past season was impressive enough in the state championships to be named first alternate for the upcoming Junior College Olympic team. In 32 games, Hearne averaged 16 points per game.

Swimmers Go Against San Jose On Friday; Two Sprinters Lost

Ram swimmers will be the guests of San Jose Friday in a conference meet beginning at 3 p.m.

It could be grim for the Ram swimmers as City College has lost two of their best sprinters. Both men were dropped from the team because of ineligibility.

This has not been one of the best seasons for the Ram swimmers. Their strongest event, diving, was not in all meets because of the lack of diving boards.

Ram Track Team Rolls Past Diablo In Season Opener

By Dave Albertson

High winds at City College Friday, March 8 affected track times, but not Ram performances as the home sprinters rolled over the Diablo Valley Vikings 80-55 in their first regular season dual meet.

The Rams coasted to an easy victory highlighted by Vic Cary's dual wins. Cary won the 880 in 1:59.6 while taking the mile in 4:33.0. In addition he anchored the mile relay to a 3:34.7 win.

David Jones had a good day taking first in the 220 with a time of 23.1. He also ran on the winning relay teams.

LARRY MOSLEY ran in a dead heat tie for first in the 100 with a 10.2 while his teammate, Vincent Ansley finished a close third in 10.3. Ansley also took second in the 220 with a 23.3.

Forest Shute easily won his event with a 13-3 vault in the pole vault.

Steve Jordan won the intermediate hurdles in 43.3 while teammate Joe Bell took a second in the high hurdles with a 16.9. Jordan also ran on both winning relay teams.

George Haza gained points for the Rams taking seconds in the mile with a 4:42.0 and the two mile in 10:00.0.

Ernie Provost took a first place in the 440 with a 50.5. He also ran in the winning 440 relay. It was Provost's first quarter mile since his early high school days.

The Rams swept the triple jump led by Bill Butler who took first with a leap of 42-10. James Mavros took second, jumping 41-8½, while Jones finished third with a leap of 40 feet. Butler also took a first in the long jump with a 21-8.

JIM BALDOCCHI shows promise in the discus, taking second with a throw of 127-1½.

Diablo Valley slammed the high jump with Don Pierce easily clearing 6-7 for first place. Pierce high jumped seven feet in high school. The Ram hopes in the high jump rests on track newcomer Tom Clyburn. Clyburn's late arrival was due to being on the basketball team. He holds the city record in the high jump, which he set while attending Balboa High. Clyburn is also expected to bolster the Rams' strength in the long jump.

INJURIES HAVE plagued the Ram hurdlers. Coach Vasquez is hoping for a quick return of Craig Johnson and Greg Jackson who were injured earlier this season. Vasquez hopes to see them back soon as "Their presence could prove crucial in some of our closer meets." Johnson and Jackson were the leading hurdlers until their injuries.

The Rams take on San Mateo Friday, March 22 at City College.

San Mateo and the Rams finished fourth and fifth at The Golden Gate Conference Relays earlier this season.

Golfers Squeeze By Chabot; Undefeated Record Kept Alive

Surprise performances by two new members of City College of San Francisco's golf team saved the Rams from falling to Chabot College March 8 in this season's third league match at Castlewood Country Club.

Paul Rea, firing a hot 71, and Donn Paulson, shooting a 74, managed to keep the golf team's league record clean. The Rams stand undefeated in league play with a record of 3-0.

Gary Corvl skied to an 87, losing all six points to Rod Velasquez, who shot a 74. Doug Boston had trouble keeping the ball in bounds on the narrow Castlewood course, and finished with an 85. Boston managed to salvage two points from Larry Pessagno, who shot an 81.

Stew Whitman, shooting an 81, lost 3½ points to Terry Galatt, who shot an 80. Rea took five points from Doug Brood, who shot an 80. Paulson won all six points from Rod Souza, who had an 86.

With a total score of 398, City College picked up the five points for low total, just edging Chabot, who had a total of 401. The final score was 20½ to 14½ in favor of the Rams.

Rea's performance so far this season has kept the team's undefeated record intact.

This Friday the Rams play Contra Costa College at Harding Park.

—G. L. W.

An Editorial On Tutorial

THE TUTORIAL PROGRAM is a living, growing thing. Inspired and driven by an altruistic concern for children in need of help, the program brings out the best in people associated with it.

It also causes an emotional involvement — from these same people — that reaches staggering proportions. It is this involvement and identity with the program that has led to reports of strife within the organization.

LAST WEEK in a news story and an editorial The Guardsman discussed the tutorial program and invited further comments and expressions of opinion. While the response could not all be called encouraging, we were pleased at least with the volume of opinion.

The reports came from different points of view and they were not incorrect. But they were incomplete.

The program is suffering from growing pains, but there is a sincere, concentrated effort by each and every individual involved to see to it that little or none of this strife reaches the children.

There is no division of opinion concerning the ends of the program. Even those tutors with the deepest emotional involvement never lose sight of the fact that the program exists solely for the benefit of the tutees.

THIS ADMIRABLE attitude pervades the program, going much deeper than the tensions which appear to the casual observer.

When people in tutorial speak of their common goal — help for children — there is a noticeable lack of the saccharine terms usually called to mind by that ideal.

This unusual honesty leads The Guardsman to believe that tutorial will resolve their present difficulties without the benefit of outside "help" and continue their outstanding service program.

Jessica Mitford To Lecture On 'American Way Of Life'

Jessica Mitford, authoress and lecturer, will speak tomorrow in the College Theater on 'The American Way of Life.'

Miss Mitford was born to the Lord and Lady of Redesdale in England.

Until the age of nine she was taught by her mother, who didn't believe in schooling for girls, that associating with children her own age was "unnecessary and overstimulating." From the ages of 9 to 17 her education was presided over by governesses.

As a child Miss Mitford desired an extensive education, but her parents were against it. She began to steal "forbidden books" that she had heard discussed by her parents, which included such authors as Huxley, D. H. Lawrence and Andre Gide. These books she read by flashlight and then returned to her father's library.

At the age of 12 she knew some day that she would have to run away from home. She subsequently opened a "Running Away Account" in a nearby bank. She devised unique methods of increasing the size of the account, such as having her doctor put her appendix in alcohol after it had been removed and then sold it to one of her sisters.

DURING HER early teens, England was plagued by unemployment, strikes and a younger generation who tended to be highly political and pacifistic. She became a pacifist and a supporter of socialism after reading "Cry Havoc," a bitter denouncement of war by Beverly Nichol.

Upon further investigation of books and pamphlets on socialism she made the discovery that "human nature isn't a fixed and unalterable entity, that wars are not caused by a natural urge in man to fight and that ownership of land and factories is not necessarily the natural reward of greater wisdom and energy." With these discoveries freshly imprinted on her mind, Miss Mitford furthered her desire of leaving home, for now she knew exactly what she was running from and running to, which was a strong belief in communism.

When Hitler first began his ascension to power, Miss Mitford's sister, Unity, went to Germany and became a devout Nazi. She traveled in the same circles as Hitler and his top Nazi officers. Another sister, Diana, soon followed.

Miss Mitford's schooling ended at the age of 17, when she was sent to Paris for one year, as was the custom for the daughters of royal families.

IN 1939, Mr. and Mrs. Romilly emigrated to the United States, where Jessica held various jobs such as bartender, bouncer and salesgirl.

During the late 40s and early 50s the authoress served as executive secretary of Civil Rights Congress in the San Francisco Bay Area, which was the forerunner of SNCC, CORE and other similar organizations.

She has campaigned energetically for fair employment, freedom of political dissent and against police brutality.

Her publications include an autobiography entitled "Daughters and Rebels" (1960), "The Amedican Way of Death" (1963) and numerous articles for Life, National, McCalls, Ladies Home Journal, Ramparts, and many others.

Criminology Head Lawson Selected To City Crime-Study Commission

Mayor Alioto has established a crime-study commission, on which Lawrence Lawson, head of the Criminology Department, has the privilege of serving. In making his appointments, the Mayor selected those who were experts in the field.

In an interview with Lawson, he outlined the purpose of the study, and his feelings toward it. The study will be concerned with courts, police, and the Youth Guidance Center. Lawson said he was "proud that City College was included in this commission." He went on to comment that, "it was an honor for the college, more than any individual."

THIS IS THE first crime-study undertaken to handle a specific city. According to Hadley Ross, press secretary to the Mayor, this study will take a "deep and serious sociological look at crime, in an effort to find causes and cures." He also explained that the Mayor chose 37 people, all of whom he thought to be experts in various fields, to look into the questions besetting this city. The Mayor considers Lawson one of the experts in the field of criminology.

Both Lawson and Ross made it quite clear that this study will be a practical one. The commission will have the right to subpoena witnesses, and have a very broad scope of power. In order to implement their findings into cures, the Mayor will ask the Board of Supervisors to add $25,000 to the federal grant of the same amount. The study will take about 18 months, with the commission reporting to the Mayor every six months.

In concluding his remarks to The Guardsman, Lawson said he "welcomed opinions, viewpoints, and assistance from the students." He also stressed that this study will be "one of the most challenging jobs I will ever undertake."

Junior College Transfers Preferred By University

Junior college transfers will be given preference over high school graduates in registering for the University of California next fall, according to Dr. F. L. Kidner, vice president of educational relations, University of California at Berkeley.

Dr. Kidner, who has researched the enrollment program, stated that:

"The students graduating from high school and going directly to the state's universities will feel the impact."

Charles Hitch, president of the University of California, announced recently that some qualified applicants to the nine campuses will be turned away "unless the budget is increased substantially."

If the budget is not increased, it would be the first time in the history of the University of California that students were denied entrance even though possessing the necessary requirements.

With the liberal entrance requirements in existence at City College, some of the overflow students from high schools will be attracted to this college if the University of California is forced to turn down applicants.

Increased enrollment in the past two years has already crowded many of the classes here. The future could require a tightening of admission requirements.

The Physicists Opens Tonight

The Drama Department of City College will present the first play of the semester entitled The Physicists, which opens here tonight, under the direction of drama instructor Walter Krumm.

The Physicist, a comic satire with a science-fiction approach, opens a four-night run in the City College Theater at 8 p.m. The other showings will be Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

VETERAN PERFORMERS Philip Bennett, Herman Eberitzsch and Richard Vinson portray the "scientists." The play takes place in a madhouse located in Europe. The three lunatics believe that they are nuclear physicists. One appears as Sir Isaac Newton, another as Einstein, and the third portrays a charactcd who has visitations from King Solomon.

The play is a recent work of the Swiss dramatist Friedrich Durrenmatt, who also wrote "The Visit." Krumm commented, "The play contains an interesting mixture of veterans of past performances, and also some new talent will be on hand for this production." He further stated, "It has a bitter satirical message that no individual of the 1960s can ignore."

OTHER PERFORMERS are Dan Kaplan who plays the hunchbacked 'Doktor,' and Tim Duncan appearing as the police inspector. Krumm also stated, "Instructor Paul Crowley has devised another very unusual setting to augment the tense episodes leading to the surprise ending."

Tickets can be obtained through any English instructor and the general admission is one dollar; students without AS card, fifty cents, and those with AS cards will be admitted free.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 66 — SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MARCH 27, 1968 — NUMBER 5

New Administrative Position Causes Campus Changes

Administration In Personnel Shakeup

A change in the administrative staff here is currently underway, and President Louis G. Conlan has asked the new vice president, Dr. Louis F. Batmale, to submit his recommendations for advancement to the rank of dean and assistant dean.

Conlan and Batmale have been conducting meetings throughout this week in order to discuss the change.

Batmale's appointment as new vice president was the first step in the reorganization of the administration which should be announced by the end of this week.

THE NECESSITY of the administrative change was also a result of the retirement of Dr. Lloyd D. Luckmann, former acting president of the college.

Luckmann recently accepted an appointment as Professor and as Associate Dean of the College of Arts and Science at the Universit yof San Francisco.

The president looks upon the reorganization as the culmination of a logical series of changes instituted in the twenty years he has headed City College's administrative staff.

DR. LOUIS F. BATMALE

Batmale Appointed Vice President Here

Dr. Louis F. Batmale, coordinator of technical education at City College, has been appointed vice president of the college, according to an announcement made by President Louis G. Conlan.

Batmale was nominated to the position by Dr. Robert Jenkins, superintendent of public schools. The nomination was unanimously confirmed by the Board of Education at its last meeting.

The appointment of Batmale is in recognition of outstanding service since he joined the school department in 1938 as a teacher of French and history at the old High School of Commerce.

He returned to City College as a counselor in 1948 after two years of service in the United States Navy.

THE NEW VICE PRESIDENT has served at City College since 1948 in the role of acting dean of men, dean of student activities, and since 1962, coordinator of technical-terminal education, which involves the direction of 35 separate programs.

In his new position, Batmale feels that his primary responsibility will be "the planning of instruction programs which will benefit the students, and the concern toward the various aspects of student welfare."

He continued that he wants "to open the channels of communication between students and administration so that more people understand what is going on."

BATMALE'S educational backgorund includes a B.S. in history from the University of San Francisco; M.A. in secondary curriculum at the University of California; and Ed.D. in educational administration from the University of California.

Besides his new role at the college, he is currently a consultant to the Ford Foundation in vocational and technical education, past president of the University of San Francisco Alumni Association, and member of the Board of Governors of the San Francisco Heart Association.

100 Participate In Work-Study Plan

One hundred City College students are participating in the College Work-Study Program this semester, according to figures released this week by Joseph A. Amori, director of personnel placement.

Since there was a ten per cent decrease in the budget allowance for the program, the number of students has been reduced from 135 to the current 100.

Fifty departments on the college campus, Amori said, are utilizing students in the college work-study program. Most of the participants possess some type of productive skill with typing and shorthand being the two most in demand by the departments concerned.

ALL STUDENTS involved in the program must meet all requirements set by the federal government. These requirements include American citizenship, enrollment in 12 units of work, a 2.0 grade point average each semester, proof of economic need and committment to a major field of concentration.

This program is one aspect of the federally sponsored Economic Opportunity Program. All colleges and universities in the United States which are accredited, are eligible for budget allowances. The budget is allotted on a sliding scale and varies from semester to semester depending upon acts of congress.

Amori reported that this program is based on the assumption that if a student has a strong potential for pursuing college work, and is in need of financial assistance he will receive it.

Initiated in 1965, by the college placement service, the College Work-Study Program has proved an outstanding adjunct to junior college economic aids.

"It is too bad that more students cannot share in this wonderful program," stated Amori. "The answer is more funds."

Open Stacks Prove Successful; Lending Expands 30 Per Cent

The open stack system, on trial in the City College library for the last few weeks, has proved to be a fast and efficient way of lending and borrowing books.

The library introduced a system of book borrowing wherein a student tracks down his own book, thus eliminating extra work for the librarian. To make it easy on the student, the books are put in stacks of different categories, and the student need not return the book to the same spot, but may return it to reshelving areas.

The system has met with great success. The lending of books has increased by 30 per cent and the number of missing books has dropped considerably. Students are asked to leave their books outside when they enter the open stacks area, and as they come out they are checked by a librarian.

The librarians have great confidence in the new system and the students have shown their approval.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco
ED HOLMES, Editor

Vol. 66, No. 5 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 27, 1968 Page 2

An Absence Of Discord

AN UNACCUSTOMED sense of tranquility seems to have settled on City College. First semester students and new faculty members might find this hard to believe, but relatively speaking it's true.

Compared to previous semester's flaps and hassles, things are pretty quiet here on campus.

TRUE, the subject of AS cards is being battered around and a few people have objected to the Critic's use of language, but no hue and cry has been raised to compare with the great censorship debate or with the Mime Troop, or Free Speech Platform, or with any of several other issues.

Some reasons behind this change can better be explained by example than by analysis.

Now that the Free Critic has finally spread the word on birth control, everybody can heave a huge sigh of relief and go on with their daily chores. It is naive to think that students on this campus learned anything new and startling because of it.

THE NEED was not to disseminate information but to admit that such information is common knowledge. College students today are mature in many ways and strongly resent being "protected" from such trite, readily available knowledge.

The falsely motivated protection has been removed, the information admitted (more than disseminated) and there have been no reported cases of indecency because of it.

A few die-hards will hold their breath while awaiting a population explosion beginning next December, but The Guardsman feels confident that birth control is no longer a controversial issue.

NOW that the Peace and Freedom Movement is an on-campus organization there is an outlet for this activity and marches, demonstrations, etc., seem to be on the wane.

In a way we miss reporting how many times the ACLU was called on campus each week, but the calmness and dignity with which most affairs are being conducted today is refreshing.

Labelled And Recorded
Futile Dance-Reviving Attempts

by Martin J. Arbunich

THERE were those Friday and Saturday evenings a couple years back when the original Jefferson Airplane, the Great Society and the Charlatans got together under promoter Bill Graham's roof to hold a dance—not a sit-down affair or a mixture of the two highly unbalanced by the latter—but an uninhibited bash overflowing with perpetual physical motion.

Those were the days in the "dark ages" when curious rock fans left their homes for an evening of entertainment and flocked together to live a few hours with a new breed of music which was still a seedling at the time but threatening to blossom at the first possibility. In the beginning the reaction was slow but progressed naturally and, as a likely response, people danced.

There were a few people back then, though, hardly more than a handful in the crowds, that for reasons of their own risked soiling their bottoms to sit gaping at the bands. Though being stationary wasn't the most positive reaction to this new movement of rhythms, this minority was accepted.

There have been many changes since those early days, the most obvious being the tremendous influx in the number of disciples attached to the ever-expanding music revolution occurring locally. The scene has become a way of life and each day new recruits discover how beautiful it is.

Another remarkable change is the manner these disciples now react to the entire rock circle at the ballrooms here. People, for the most part, don't dance anymore. Whether the groups performing be English bands, New Yorkers or locals, there's a new philosophy which has risen locally out of rock followers; the majority, reversing the tables of a couple years back, now storm the ballrooms to park their rumps at the most comfortable floor angle adjacent to the stage to become part of a huge mass of "eyes and ears."

Rock bands in the immediate area also seem to be on a 'kick' of trying to revive the old ballroom routine of "everyone dance because it's the thing to do."

A couple weeks ago at the Carousel, pleas to "please dance" coming from both the Airplane and the Dead more or less back-fired with an audience response that was somewhat nil. Most stood up still securing their posts on the floor below, a few made attempts to dance, but overall the pleas were futile ones.

Where has dancing gone? Better yet, why is it people prefer to sit motionless hour upon hour in ballrooms just listening?

This writer has reason to believe that the crux of the "problem" lies in the designs of local ballroom promoters who are continually presenting two and sometimes three "big name" bands on the same bill each weekend, thus drawing full house crowds which naturally are unfavorable to a dancing atmosphere. They make great concerts, but rather congested dances.

It seems the only logical solution is for the promoters to "lighten" the bills, that is if they're sympathetic to this "dance drive" currently being undertaken by local musicians and aren't in the scene "just for the money." And until favorable dancing conditions are reached, this writer feels that bands should permit their audiences to sit (or stand) and breathe comfortably rather than strive to have them do the impossible.

It's not that people don't want to dance anymore, but this beautiful thing called rock music seems to draw massive crowds as if it were a living magnet.

• • •

According to a spokesman for Headstone Productions which is now putting on the shows at the recently "revamped" Carousel Ballroom, dance-concerts "will become a very regular thing" at the Carousel, quite possibly on a steady weekend basis. This weekend the Grateful Dead and the excellent showman, Chuck Berry, will headline.

Country Joe and the Fish, Steppenwolf and the Flaming Groovies are at the Fillmore this weekend while Jeremy and the Satyrs, Sons Of Champlin, the Fourth Way and Al Alexander's Timeless Blues Band are at Avalon.

West Side Story

Three City College students have top roles in West Side Story, a contemporary love drama of a Romeo and Juliet, which opens on April 6 at the A. P. Giannini Junior High School Auditorium (38th Avenue and Ortega) at 8 p.m.

City Collage

By Boku Kodama

The beautification of the area around the Science Building and Cloud Hall, a project known as Phase One, should be finished early in April, according to Victor Vaio, assistant coordinator of constructions on campus.

The project, which got underway last September, is under a city contract with Anthony M. Guzzardo & Associates, a well known San Francisco architect firm.

THE IDEA of bettering the campus scenery had been thought of for some time. Finally in 1964, a bond issue providing money for such a venture appeared on the ballot in the city election and was approved by the voters. A total of $250,000 was allotted for the project. In July of 1966, the primary drawings were sketched by the Guzzardo firm. Fourteen months later, with the plans finished, the actual construction began.

The paths which lead up the hill to the Science Building and Cloud Hall were among the first constructions of the project. Who can forget all the slips and falls last semester when these paths were still mud. This was when students tried everything from cautious tip-toeing to rolling down the hills. This was also the time when students had muddy shoes, muddy faces, muddy legs, muddy arms, muddy etc.

HOW MANY times in the past have night students wandered off the paths to Cloud Hall or the Science Building and trampled through the grass, smashed their head on an unseen tree or pillars, only to wind up in Statler Wing? This problem will come to an end soon when all 96 of the short-sized lights are placed along the paths. In wider areas, tall lighting will be used, 51 in all.

The most impressive path will be the one on the west side of the campus, along the Science Building. This path will be 20 feet wide at the entrance of the Science Building. At its widest point, the path will be 30 feet wide. At this point, the huge path will divide into two smaller ones and exit down to Phelan.

Various areas on campus will have ground cover. These include 38,000 ice plants; 65,000 Algerian ivy, and 80 Star Jasmine and Hahn's ivy.

Trees also were provided. Thirty-year-old olive trees have already been planted along Phelan Avenue. Karo trees will surround the lawn around the Science Building and Cloud Circle. Other trees include Monterey pines, Monterey cypress, red gum, blue gum, dwarf blue gum, red iron, ironbark, Sierra alder and London Plane tree.

With such a variety of plants some students may organize a club in beautifying and preserving the different specimens while others play Robin of Sherwood. In 20 years, these trees will be reproducing and shortly after, this area will look like the grandson of Golden Gate Park.

WATERING these plants will be of no problem. An automatic sprinkling system has been installed to give sufficient amounts of water during various times of day. So what happens to the gardeners who used to water the plants?

Vaio informed The Guardsman that Phase One is just half of the entire project. The second part, called Phase Two, is in its preliminary stages. As of now, $200,000 of the alloted funds has been spent. Phase Two will use the remaining.

When Phase Two gets underway in the very near future, it will begin decorating the remaining area.

The Guzzardo architects have begun preliminary drawings for Phase Two.

PHASE TWO will beautify the areas around Arts Hall and the future Educational Services Building, which will be completed by July of this year.

The land behind the football field will become a parking lot. The reservoir will double its capacity in parking space when parking facilities are made on the slopes of the reservoir.

Phase Two will also construct a circular turnabout for cars at the entrance of the road to Cloud Circle.

'Useless Science' Attracts Two Hundred Seven Students

By Rita Carroll

"Astronomy is a useless science," remarked Dr. Louis Berman, City College astronomy instructor. A unique group of astronomy courses are among the electives offered at the college to non-science majors.

Dr. Berman revealed that "astronomy is about as useless as listening to good music." (This statement did a lot for the morale of his students who were taking their mid-term in one of his classes.) The knowledge gained in astronomy is not used to better one economically or in some other status; instead one "takes astronomy to pursue knowledge for its own sake," he continued.

DR. LOUIS BERMAN
City College Astronomy Instructor

THE OLDEST of sciences, astronomy deals with celestial bodies and their position, motions, distances, physical conditions and their history and destiny. This science deals only with the earth in its relations to the celestial bodies.

Astronomy is not offered as a major at City College because there is not enough student interest as required for a major course.

By taking one of the many astronomy courses from Dr. Berman, students are not offered any type of a job. "These courses are offered as electives, just for credit," Dr. Berman stated.

Dr. Berman believes that astronomy does not interest any one type of student, but instead believes that astronomy "interests any type, and all types" of students.

While an undergraduate student at the University of Minnesota, Dr. Berman took astronomy as an elective and then became interested in it.

TWO HUNDRED AND SEVEN students are enrolled this semester in the astronomy courses which have been offered since City College was first begun. Among these students there appear to be many more male star gazers than female.

Courses offered in astronomy and space sciences at the college have to do with astronomy, astronomy for surveyors, air navigation, exploring the universe, the solar system, the stellar system and astronautics and space exploration.

On the fourth floor of the Science Building is a planetarium for the use of all astronomy classes for demonstrations. This room is also used for navigation and engineering classes. The planetarium, a model representation of the planetary system, and the "amusing" aspect of the course, is "excellent," Dr. Berman feels, for demonstrations of three dimensional observations.

Guardsman Staff — Spring 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... ED HOLMES
Managing Editor ..... Martin J. Arbunich
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
News Editor ..... Doug Boston
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan
Editorial Assistant ..... D. K. Dorn
Circulation Manager ..... Arthur Fantella
Reporters: John Bandertlis, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom.
Copy Reporters: David Albertson, Penny Blum, Garret Duncan, Willy Durkin, Lawrence Ferreri, Jerry O. Fink, Randy Flynn, Michael J. Flynn, Wayne Hiroshima, Ed Jimison, Levina Lee, Rita Quong, Leonard Ribeiro, Carol Roehl, Jerry W. Stakron, Pam Tomasello, Gavin L. Watt, James Baggett, James Billbury, Robert Forster, Lawrence Lee.
Photographers: Dewn Turner, Chief, Garth Ogle, Nathaniel Dodge, Carol Gilmore, Herbert Gong, Elena Graham, Fred Harris, Jerry Jow, James McElery, Doug Mills, Robert Morris, Jane Prete, Mike Rasmo, Larry Tiscornia, Melvin Weiner and Samuel Woo.

SHOOTIN' IT

by D. K. Dorn

SOWING SEED: Spring is back once again to prove that there is some order somewhere running all things. The Alaskan Quinn has made it. People are dancing in the streets at radio station strikes, making love at festivals in Speed Way Meadows, and generally romping around. Spring is nothing new, and we ain't gettin' into no virgin territory but Spring's goings and comings are still so nice. Go where you want to go, do what you want to do, 'cause that's all right, too.

MORE MOVIE MESS: Associated Students Prexy Ray Bietz has latched onto a real politico's power play with his crusade to make the movie series a second feature to his money interests.

State Senator George Moscone is trumpeting around with a bill numbered SB440 (to be added to Section 25531.5 of the Education Code) that would make it illegal to exhibit any kind of films for any kind of fee on any kind of junior or senior college campus. This would end virtually every college film series in the state.

Like all good, pompous politicos everywhere, Sen. Moscone may be catering to either (1) professional movie exhibitors who don't dig the competition, or (2) he may cater to the flag-wrapped patriots who don't dig antiwar films on campus (the senate controversy stems from a flap over antiwar films in San Diego). The only people the Bietz's and the Moscone's can't control are artists and free-thinking types. Thus artists in general and movie makers in particular are to be considered dangerous. Please report all suspects to Prexy Bietz.

FREE CRYSTAL HIGH: The first intercollegiate hot air balloon regatta is being planned for late May. The winner takes the Mac Arthur Trophy "a small crystal prism of Stuben Glass which is to be found submerged in a bowl of champagne when presented to the winning pilot." It seems that piloting balloons is somewhat easy to do, and that all one needs is a medic's exam to get a student Fed. Aviation License for the race.

According to hot balloon experts that this column could dig up, one just sails along the sky—like something out of a cinematic French flick.

I.N.I.T.I.A.L.S: Everything is moving so fast that Bloody has time to spell anything out anymore. If you know w.l.m., UNCLE, SPECTRE, SMERSH, etc., are only parodies of CIA, FBI and SFPD.

The Cream has a song on their Disraeli Gears album titled SWLABR (She Was Like A Bearded Rainbow) which only this column can report.

Now, the latest attempt at artistic esoterica is T.L.E.I.B.P.'s S.M.S. The Letter Edged In Black Press has a discount publication which promises complete freedom for the artist's objective. Bruce Conner, the funk artist who ran for the San Francisco Board of Supervisors on a love platform; Marcel Duchamp, the painter and Roy Lichtenstein, the pop painter, are featured. You can pick up a year's subscription for only $100. The usual price is $125. Oh boy.

BACK AT THE RANCH: AS Prexy Ray Bietz is gaining ground in his goal to "run off the hippies." The United States Dept. of Interior's Bureau of Land Management reports in their monthly bulletin that "a number of hippies have focused their attention on the public domain lands in the Ukiah District. The land search began after land locaters told the hippies that there is cheap government land for sale." As a result, a number of estranged people from the college were driven out into the wilds of the Ukiah district around Cow Mountain and Putah Creek.

However, an exodus isn't expected, especially since a government spokesman denied that there is any land left.

This column talked with a loving couple nestled between two mountain lions. Dabbing at tears that rolled down her lovely cheek onto her correspondence school notebook, a young thing named Amantha told how she missed the college.

"It was terrible. We were just eating in the cafeteria from a machine that said 'Out of Order—Don't Use,' and then the lightening flashed and the face of the AS President appeared," Amantha revealed.

"He ordered us into the wilds, and here we are," said her friend. "There's a fellow with a tail that keeps trying to get us to apply to San Mateo J.C. but so far we've resisted," he concluded.

Bietz Nixes Tutorial Funds For Alpha Gamma Sigma

President Ray Bietz of the Associated Students will not recommend that funds be allocated to the Alpha Gamma Sigma Honor Society for a supplementary tutorial program.

Bietz had refrained from commenting on his proposed supplementary tutorial program three weeks ago, pending the outcome of a Center of Independent Learning (COIL) meeting. The COIL meeting was held a week later.

The plan had called for funds to be allocated to the AGS Honor Society for tutors without cost to disadvantaged City College students. The existing program provides the services of a tutor for a fee of $2 per hour.

BIETZ decided later, that the AS budget could not facilitate a full-payment program. He suggested a 50 per cent payment on the part of a student desirous of tutoring to be matched by payment of the other 50 per cent with AS funds.

Bietz was reluctant to act on the proposal. He was hoping that another program that was independent of AS funds would implement a no-cost tutoring service.

Now that COIL has met and announced its goals, Bietz remarks, "I will not recommend that the AS allocate funds to the AGS Honor Society Tutorial Program, because when COIL becomes effective next semester, it will serve the same purpose."

COIL will include a tutorial service in its program.

Bietz pointed out that until next semester, the loan program advocated by Bill McQuaid, sophomore president, and passed by Student Council, could now temporarily alleviate the financial burden imposed upon students who need money for the tutoring fee.—J. S.

Blood Drive Turnout Less Than Expected

The recent Intra-Fraternity Council Blood Drive held earlier this month failed to meet expectations.

The total amount of blood collected was only 237 pints, just a little over half of last year's 430 pints. Workers of the drive couldn't point out any specific reason for the lack of participation in the drive. The high point of the drive was the rally held in the men's gym on March 14, with entertainment provided by The Galaxie on Broadway. Blood donations may still be given at the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank, 270 Masonic Avenue here in San Francisco.

McQuaid Pushes Compromise Bill On AS Card Hassle

The Associated Students' requirement demanding AS cards for all AS sponsored events has been unsuccessful, according to Soph President Bill McQuaid. He has introduced a resolution to Student Council which allows for non-card holders access to remaining seats after AS card holders have had first choice.

The AS card requirements represents Council's effort to obtain more money for better quality speakers at the Concert-Lecture Series, and to help avoid cutting the AS budget by 50 per cent in some organizations as happened last semester.

Thus far the new regulation has not raised the income of the AS budget. Last semester almost 2800 AS cards were sold as compared to the Spring sales of 2300. McQuaid stated, "The AS card sales should reach 3000 by the end of the term, but the figure is considerably less than what Student Council was expecting."

HE CONTINUED, "I don't believe that mandatory AS cards is the answer to raising more funds, because the AS card sales account for less than one half of the AS budget." The other funds are obtained from students who purchase school supplies at the Ramporium Bookstore or who patronize the campus vending machines.

McQuaid commented, "It seems to me that Student Council should change this ruling and give "preference" to student body card holders." He further stated, "The AS card holders should be admitted to AS-sponsored events first, and the non-card holders should be admitted."

If the change is made and the proposal is passed, it would satisfy the faction that AS card holders who pay for an event should be the only ones admitted as well as the faction which argues that empty seats should be occupied, according to McQuaid.

The proposal is directed at solving the budget conflicts between Student Council, the Drama Dept., and non-card holders.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

● Open Letter

Editor, The Guardsman:

In my two semesters here at City College I have come to notice as most everyone in student government, the lack of cooperation by the student body as a whole. Therefore, this letter to them as a whole.

It seems to be the case that only 10 per cent of the entire student body of 10,000 voted in the last election for this spring's officers. In fact there weren't enough people to have a full slate of candidates for this same election. In the special election only four people got off their rears to try and get a seat on council. However, people who sit on their rears, pick their noses, and moan about things being so bad are those students who comprise the greatest percentage of the student body.

Another gripe people on this campus have is the idea of having to have a student body card to get into the games, dances, be in student government or the like—well, what would you say if you were told you couldn't register without an AS card, this is the case at SF State, USF, UC Berkeley, and many junior colleges in the area. Another thought on this line—no AS cards sold, no money to put on the things that you gripe about having to have an AS card for admittance.

In conclusion, I feel if more people would use the energy they have to deal cards with in Statler Wing, gripe about having AS cards in a constructive way to be a better student and take part in some activity they would make City College a better place.

Thanks again for your attention in this matter as it takes a man to face the facts about what men are doing.

Richard V. Shirley
Freshman President

First Spacewoman Talks On Balloons

By Rita Quong

First woman in space and first woman to be a licensed balloonist, Dr. Jeannette Piccard, spoke during the College Hour in the Little Theater last Thursday on "The Past is Prologue."

HER FAMOUS flight was made October 23, 1934 in a spherical balloon called Balloon Gondola piloted by Dr. Piccard herself. Accompanying her was her late husband, Jean Felix Piccard. They took off in their balloon from Ford Airport in Dearborn, Michigan, reached an altitude of 57,596 feet and landed in Cadiz, Ohio. For the flight, they were awarded the Certificate of Performance by the National Aeronautical Association in 1935.

Commenting on her flights into space, Dr. Piccard expresses her feelings by "It gives a wonderful feeling of detachment and of the beautiful serenity in space."

The flight was notedly important in two aspects. The pyrotechnic device, invented by her late husband, allowed a spherical balloon to raise into the outer stratosphere. This device made Balloon Gondola the first pressurized stratospheric investigations possible.

AFTER THE first famed flight, cellophane and plastic materials were experimented with.

Pleisades I was another project they had researched into. It was the first manned flight of multiple-free balloons.

When Dr. Piccard was asked how she got into the field of aeronautics, she replied, "If a husband needs a typist, the wife learns to type; my husband needed a licensed balloonist, so I learned to pilot a balloon."

College Will Return To Original Arena-Type Registration In Fall

After three semesters of experience with computer registration, City College will be returning to the original arena-type registration next term with the exception of pre-registered students, in an effort to shorten student lines and return the human factor to signing into classes. Registration will be held from August 19, through August 30.

In an interview with John J. Brady, coordinator of student welfare, he explained the reasons for scraping the computers; "The purpose in returning to the arena-type registration is to shorten the long lines of students waiting to register. Department chairmen," Brady continued, "will also be able to see which classes are and are not filling and will therefore be able to make adjustments accordingly."

Under computer registration, counselors and department chairmen were at a disadvantage, not to mention the students! They were not able to change classes around to meet demands and they were unable to cope with individual problems until the computer had finished its work which, for many students, was too late.

Some 2500 students with semi-professional majors will be allowed to pre-register. Because there are few in number and their variety of courses will be relatively small, computer registration will be used in their case.

More Vending Machines Needed—Councilman Quan Conducts Survey

Frosh Councilman Derrick Quan announced last week that there will be a survey conducted on campus concerning the necessity of obtaining more vending machines here.

He revealed that plans for a survey of the existing Associated Students' profit-making vending machines, has been in the making for the last ten days.

"The purpose of the survey," stated Quan, "is to look into the reports, which I have received, complaining that the vending machines are more often empty than they are full."

According to Councilman Quan, "The vending machines make over $3000 annually for the AS." If the survey proves that the students are receiving poor service, Quan added, "we can take our business elsewhere!"

Council Passes Quan Cafe Recommendation

Student Council recently passed Councilman Derrick Quan's recommendation to extend cafeteria hours an extra 15 minutes (until 1:45) in the afternoons for the convenience of its patrons.

The proposal was passed by council with 14 for the measure and one against it. Jim Dierke, Associated Student coordinator and member of the USA party was the sole vote against the Quan recommendation.

He said that, "We (council) have no authority over the Hotel and Restaurant Department and we are extending our powers as a governing body." Dierke also stated, "This kind of legislation can put Student Council in a bad position."

Spectrum: Mouthing Off

by Barbara Hamann

HAMBURGERS and profanity just don't mix, or at least in this college's cafeteria most people find it hard to digest both.

We come in contact with a variety of people while eating in the cafeteria. While most of them are interesting and pleasant to be around, a minority of individuals are just plain disgusting.

Too many students publicize the emptiness of their minds through profane and incomprehensible language in which the same four-letter words are repeated.

LANGUAGE IS a vehicle of expression. Words are the tools of language used to effect a transfer of ideas.

The combining of words to convey thoughts and feelings misses the "bulls-eye" of perfection by a considerable margin. We give Pulitzer prizes and other literary awards to those who can verbally express themselves adequately and artistically.

The error, however, lies not in 'poverty of language' but in 'poverty of thought.' So much of what occurs to the minds of so many individuals is unworthy of being expressed. Unfortunately many of these individuals have not learned the wisdom of profound silence if something worthy of being heard cannot be conceived.

LET THIS WRITER leave you with this final thought:

If more individuals could be made to realize that what they say, and the way they say it, says more about them then less would be said, and more of what is said, would be worth saying.

MALICE AND PETTINESS

You hear talk about the 'rat race' where people will stab you in the back; where, by petty maneuverings, they'll seek to advance themselves at the expense of others.

Human nature being the fallible thing it is, probably a lot of this is true enough. The world of the college student is a very human world, populated not by saints but by people with human failings. If you doubt it, keep an open pair of ears at the next coffee break or lunch with the gang and see how much of the talk that goes on is about someone who is not there.

TEST YOURSELF—do you rise to the bait when someone makes a slurring comment or reference to the student who's just been commended for a job well done? Do you take more relish in talking about his or her failings than their good points? Do you elaborate on their personal habits?

Granted, it is very human to do this. But observe that there are always one or two individuals who stay outside this discussion of personalities or excuse themselves when it gets underway. If they can't talk about a person to their credit they'd rather not talk at all.

College life, to be full and satisfying, demands genuine unitarian feelings. It brings people together to an extent that community life seldom does.

Harmonious relationships, mutual respect and trust, make such enforced proximity to one another not only tolerable and enjoyable, but highly agreeable.

Campus Lineup:

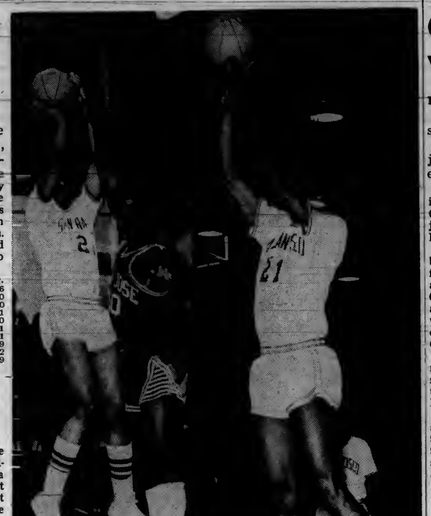
● Fashion Show

The Associated Women Students will present its annual fashion show on Wednesday, April 3 from 3 to 5 p.m. in Smith Hall. Admission will be open to students holding AS cards.

● Sports Day

The Recreation Association will hold its second Sports Day of the semester at the College of San Mateo this Saturday. Transportation is scheduled to leave the women's gym at 8 a.m.

● College Band



The first concert of the Spring semester for the City College Concert Band will be held this Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in the auditorium of Lowell High School. Maria Leone, former Metropolitan Opera soprano, will be a guest soloist.

Hearne, Bradford Honored

Chabot's Crenshaw Heads All-League Basketball Team

Chabot's Don Crenshaw, the conference scoring champion, was named Golden Gate Conference Player of the Year on the ten-man All-League team selected by the coaches last week. City College placed two men on the squad as Ray Hearne and Gary Bradford both received All-Conference recognition. Both co-champion Chabot and third place Contra Costa also placed two men on the squad.

Name, Team	Ht.	Class	Avg.
Don Crenshaw, Chabot	6-4	S.	23.6
Harry Brown, Contra Costa	6-3	F.	20.0
Jeff Frost, Foothill	6-2	S.	19.0
Rich Galbraith, Chabot	6-3	S.	15.1
Craig Farley, San Mateo	6-7	S.	16.0
Ray Hearne, San Francisco	6-0	S.	15.1
Gary Bradford, San Francisco	6-1	S.	13.1
Everet Breaux, San Jose	6-2	F.	20.9
James Anderson, Contra Costa	6-6	S.	12.2
Tom Scott, Merritt	6-0	F.	16.9

ALL CONFERENCE stars Ray Hearne (left) and Gary Bradford (21) in action against San Jose.—Guardsman photos by Mike Reams, Fred Harris

Comets Succumb To Ram Netters

In a brazen display of raw courage the Contra Costa tennis team challenged the City College netters to a match Friday, the ides of March, but were quickly dispatched. A glance at the obituaries after the 9-0 massacre tells all:

CCSF — Contra Costa

1 singles	Chuck White over Tack Avalos	6-0,6-0
2 singles	John Wong over Rich Betti	6-2,6-0
3 singles	G. Zoel over L. Morgan	6-2,6-2
4 singles	F. Stafatos over F. Monillas	6-1,6-1
5 singles	Tony Lee over Curt Crooks	6-1,6-1
6 singles	F. Kiestoff over B. Norville	6-0,6-1

Doubles

1	Wong,D.Lei over Avalos,Monillas	6-0,6-2
2	Zoel, Lee over Betti, Morgan	6-2,6-3
3	Kiestoff,Orvais, over Crooks,Norville	6-1,6-2

It was generally recognized after the meet that the Comets "have a long way to go."

But Ram leader Diederichsen and his horde don't expect easy pickings at the park this Friday, March 29, when they collide with the Owls of Foothill.

Foothill, the "Packers" of junior college tennis, has lost one league match since 1964 and will have everything at stake when they meet the Rams. Owl Coach Tom Chivington, who is planning to go'all out to shoot his wad" against the San Francisco team, has a knack for turning local yokels into prime netters such as Mark Elliott, who was able to beat T-Bird star Les Hansen.

Beating Foothill will be no mean feat but the Rams have the potential to do it.—E. J.

Swimmers Suffer Atrocious Defeats, Face Gloomy Season

This season has been and will continue to be one of the toughest for the Ram swimmers.

The team's first defeat of the season came from Chabot College with a final score of 104 to 9.

In the meet against the College of San Mateo, the Ram swimmers gave the victory to the Bulldogs with a score of 88 to 24.

Although the defeat was not one to be proud of, the Ram swimmers proved that they are not an easily discouraged team.

Notable performance was shown by several team members. City College's Ed Peterson, who usually swims the 100-yard freestyle, entered into the 1000-yard freestyle for an ineligible teammate. Peterson, although finishing last, endured the 40 laps to gain the well deserved point for City College. Vernon Lavell of the Rams gave the Bulldogs a run for their money in the 200-yard individual medley event. Lavell maintained first position until the last two freestyle laps and finally settled for a strong third place as two of San Mateo's swimmers overpowered him and took first and second places.

City College did take two first places in spite of it all. The Rams' Rich Glass gave an excellent display of form in the 200-yard butterfly event and took an easy first. 6-8 Dave Nelson also took a first for City College in the 200-yard backstroke event. Dave Detert settled for a second place in the one-meter diving event. Due to the illness of one of the divers, City College had no entrys in the three-meter diving event.

The Ram swimming team now consists of only 12 members. Coach Curt Decker commented that there are several good swimmers at City College that he knows of at the present time that have not come out for the team. Anyone interested in becoming a member is still welcome.

This Friday the Ram swimmers will meet with Diablo Valley at Chabot. Regardless of recent setbacks, morale remains high on the Ram team.—P. T.

Reed Duels Clyburn, Taylor Challenges Jones As Comets Visit Rams' Track Friday

By Dave Albertson

The Rams take on top ranked Contra Costa Comets in an early season track showdown here Friday at 3 p.m.

Contra Costa features a number of individual standouts in high jumper Jesse Reed, shotputter Gaylord Courchesne, 440 man Clarence Taylor and sprinter Ed Hart.

Marion Anderson of Contra Costa presently leads the conference in the long jump with a 24-4 mark. Giving the Comets depth in the long jump are Hart (23-5), and Arno Brewer (21-6).

REED, fresh off the Comet basketball team, won the Golden Gate Conference Relays high jump crown with a jump of 6-8. He barely missed at 6-10. Anderson and Tyson Osborn aided Reed with 6-4 performances in winning the high jump relay in the conference meet. Al Cowart of the Comets has also cleared 6-5.

Comet newcomer Taylor of Richmond High ran a 47.8 440 in high school. He has already done a 48.9 this season. Taylor is backed by Roy Finks who has done a 49.9 this year.

Hart ranks third in the conference standings in the 100 with a sprint of 9.9. He has previously run a 100 in 9.6, and a 220 in 21.2. Hart placed second in the conference relays to San Jose Jaguar Earl Harris. Rounding out the Comet sprinters is Charles Galnes, who has run the 100 in 9.7.

Contra Costa hosts a fine relay team in the form of Taylor, Finks, Carl Harris and Howard Carter. They have run a 3:18.4-mile relay earlier this season. In the conference relays, they placed second to the Rams in the sprint medley.

THE COMETS also feature the shot put trio of Keith Tice, Bob Carlsen and Gaylord Courchesne, who won the conference relay team shot put with a total distance of 140-10.

The Ram attack is lead by sprinter Ernie Provost, who has run a 9.6 100 and a 22-flat 220 this season.

Vic Cary gives the Rams strength in the 880 and mile. Cary has run a 4:21.0 mile in this year's competition.

David Jones and Larry Mosely have turned in fine performances in the sprints so far this season. Jones has run a 50.8 440 in addition to running on the Ram relay team. Mosely has a best win in the 220 (22.7), and other sprint events. Mosely also is one of the Rams' leading long jumpers (22-0).

Two years ago in the high school state meet at Berkeley Jones and Taylor met in the same heat of the 440. Taylor finished second with a fine 48.1 while Jones ran seventh in 49.8.

The highlight of the meet is expected to be a high jump duel between the Comets' Reed and the Rams' Tom Clyburn. Clyburn cleared 6-10 in high school.

Provost Captures Two Firsts In 68-68 Deadlock

The Ram trackmen battled to a 68-68 tie with the Foothill Owls at Foothill, Saturday, March 16.

Ernie Provost took two firsts by winning the 100 in 9.9 and the 220 in 22.2. Teammates Rob Brinkley and Vincent Ansley finished second and third to sweep the 100 for the Rams. Provost is ranked the top sprinter in the Golden Gate Conference in the 100. He ran it in 9.6 against Modesto earlier in the season.

Greg Jackson placed second in the 220 with a 22.8. He also took third in the 120 high hurdles in 16.3. This was Jackson's first meet since an early season injury.

VIC CARY tied for first in the 880 with the Owls' Steve McLenegan in 1:59.8. Cary also ran a close second in the mile, running a 4:21.0. Foothill's Jeff Ruble won the mile in 4:20.2. Ruble is presently ranked second in the league standings with a 4:19.5 mile.

Forest Shute, a usual 13-footer in the pole vault, failed to place in his event while teammate Tyrone Hanna took third with an 11-6 effort.

George Haza ran a fast two-mile in 9:39.5 which was good enough for second place. The Owls' Ruble won the event in 9:39.3

Hurdler Floyd Banks ran 42.5 in placing second in the intermediate hurdles. Banks also ran a 16.8 in the 120 high hurdles.

In the field events, Rich Baggetta took third in the shot put with a heave of 41-4. Teammate Jim Baldocchi placed third in the discus with a throw of 122-4.

BILL BUTLER took a second in the long jump with a leap of 20-8. He also finished a close second in the triple jump with a 44-3¾ effort. The Owls' McClam won the triple jump, leaping 44-5.

David Jones won the 440 in 50.8. Teammate Larry Mosely was close behind in second place in 51-flat.

Tom Clyburn placed third in the long jump with a jump of 20-3. Clyburn failed to compete in the high jump which the Owls' Schrader won at 5-8.

The Rams won the 440 relay in 43.1 and the mile relay in 3:28.7.—D. A.

Linkers Undefeated In League Competition

Winning their fourth league match the Ram linkers stand 4-0 in league play after dropping the Chabot Gladiators at Harding Park March 15.

After a narrow win over the Gladiators at their home course, Castle-Wood Country Club, March 8, the linkers left no doubt about their superiority, winning over the Gladiators 25-10.

Fine performances by Donn Paulson for the past three weeks have moved him from fifth man on the Ram team to number one with a 75.3 average. Paulson fired a one-under-par 71, to take four points from Chabot's Doug Brooke, who had a 75. Gary Corvi shot a 78, taking all six points from the Glad's Larry Pessagno. Doug Boston turned in a one-over-par 73, picking up five points from Rod Souza, who shot a 77. Stew Whitman came in with a 78, taking five points from Chabot's Terry Galatt, who had an 80. Paul Rea lost all six points to Rod Velasquez, who came in one over par with a 73.

The Rams as a team took the five points for low total, with a 381 to Chabot's 388.

This Friday the Rams play Contra Costa College at Richmond Country Club. Coach Grover Klemmer said, "Contra Costa isn't a strong team but playing on their home course could give them a slight edge."

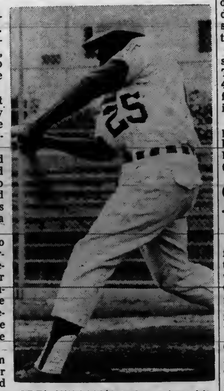
Baseballers Defeat Jaguars; Lose To Diablo Valley, 6-2

By Arthur Fanfelle

Ram baseballers split the week's activities by defeating the San Jose Jaguars and losing to the Diablo Valley Vikings. The Jaguars' game was a make-up of the previous week's 11-11 tie. This time out the Rams edged San Jose 4-3, at Balboa Park on March 15. The Diablo Valley game was played March 19, also at Balboa, with Diablo winning 6-2.

Against San Jose, the Rams collected ten hits over the nine innings. Irv Jones, former All-City third baseman, had two hits in four at-bats, while Chuck Gretton also went two for five. The Rams only collected one extra base hit, a Joe Dutto double.

DAVE HERMAN collected one hit in three at-bats. The former All-City star from Lincoln High played a fine defensive game including a good running catch of a deep drive.



Three members of the squad had perfect days. Each of them collected hits while only batting once. Dutto doubled, Tom Mayfield singled as did Jim Smith. Outfielder Odel Williams and second baseman Andy Fracchia collected the remaining hits.

The Vikings were paced by two second team All-Golden Gate Conference players from last year, first baseman Scott Sulprizio and centerfielder Jim Butterfield. The Rams were limited to only two runs, getting three extra base hits, four singles and receiving seven bases on balls. The Diablo Valley club had six runs while getting eight hits.

DUTTO GAVE UP five bases on balls, striking out seven. First year man Fracchia went one-for-two and got three bases on balls. Smith was the Ram leader in total bases as he collected a double and a triple in three at-bats. Dutto had the only other extra base hit, a double to left. The Vikings scored early in the game getting one run in the first inning while holding the Rams scoreless.

The Rams broke the ice in the third inning getting a single run and matching that in the fourth. The Diablo club came back with four runs in the fourth and an additional run in the eighth. The loss gave the Rams a one-win, two-loss record for the season.

The San Jose game appeared to be a repeat of last week's tie as the score was 3-3 going into the bottom of the ninth when Mayfield, pinch-hitting for Cliff Schofield, came through with a sharp single to centerfield.

ODEL WILLIAMS lashes a base hit in Ram win over San Jose.—Guardsman photo by Jens Protze

Coach Ernie Domecus had Manny Berrios act as a pinch runner for Mayfield. Jones came to the plate and bunted down the line, moving Berrios to second on the sacrifice. Hans Vigil forced the runner into a rundown with a one-bouncer to the San Jose shortstop. Pitcher Dutto came up and laced a double to centerfield to drive in the winning run.

Later, Domecus commented: "They (the Rams) did a good job of coming back. They were down a couple of times during the game but they pulled together to come up with a winning effort."

Tomorrow the Rams meet San Jose City College there, followed by Tuesday's contest at Contra Costa College.

G'man And Phi Delta Tied For League Lead

Intramural basketball came into full swing with Phi Delta decisively trouncing the Vandals 74-37. Delta was led by the hot shooting of Bill Cosgroves with 25 points and the playmaking of Mickey Senn. In the next game the Celtics squeaked by the Revisables 52-48.

Other hoop action pitted the elusive Guardsman staff against the Filippino-Americans. The Guardsman came out on top 51-33, led by the dead-eye shooting of Mike Duggan who scored 20 points. In the final game of the night the Can't Lasts coasted by the Blackstone Rangers 53-39.

In last Tuesday's game the Friendly Bears pulled out a 48-45 victory over the Celtics. The Filippino-Americans handily defeated Chi Rho Delta 54-23, behind the hot hand of Bob Salvador's 17 points.

In the women's gym the Revisables pulled a victory over the Red Mountaineers, 61-58. In the finale, The Guardsman defeated Hotel and Restaurant, 56-47, with Duggan leading all scorers again with 18 and Ed Holmes controlled the rebounding.

Tomorrow's first games pit The Guardsman against Chi Rho and the Celtics against the Red Mountaineers; the Filippino-Americans against H&R and the Revisables meet the Friendly Bears in the 8 p.m. clashes.

Tuesday's matches have The Guardsman against the Phi Delts and the Celtics versus the Can't Lasts. In the later contests the Vandals meet H&R, while the Blackstone Rangers take on the Friendly Bears.

Reporter Poisons 6 Student Editors

The Guardsmen

Publication of City College of San Francisco

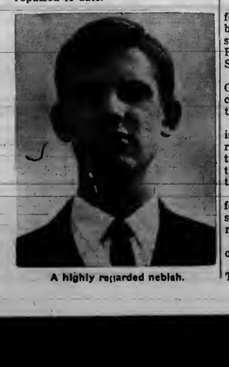
VOLUME 66 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—MONDAY, APRIL 1, 1968 NUMBER 5½

Critic Exposed

Anyone who has contributed material to the Free Critic is familiar with the contribution and acceptance procedure: One enters the drab, lifeless outer office in Smith Hall and is then ushered past the sliding panel door by the learningly malevolent hunchbacked, snaggle-toothed, one-eyed jailkeep, Mund, down the dark, dank, dismal, damp corridors flickering with the light of the wall torches, past the mysterious vaults and into the musty catacombs that constitute the environs and the bowels of the Free Critic.

PAST THE IMPASSIVE guards, armed with razor sharp steel flowers, through the thick oaken doors, one is greeted by the portly Grand Vizier, the venerable Burrmun, attired in the traditional astrologist's garment.

Moving by the huge devil-image of the wicked and dread Konlun, its eyes flickering evilly with the eternal flame of conservatism and physical education, the contributor finally rests his eyes on the Royal Chamber where presides the Exalted Imperial Neb.



HERE THE FORBIDDEN rites of the worshippers of the all-pervading God of Bul, La Sore, take place. These rites are forbidden to all but sworn card-carrying members of the Cult of the Crock of Bul. They have never been witnessed by non-worshippers and only one's imagination can tell what terrible things occur here.

The contribution is taken from the writer, who has been drugged with the man-made hallucinogen, Bul, and placed at the aromatic feet of the golden idol, La Sore, which periodically regurgitates frothy Bul, manufactured inside and drunken in unbelievable quantities by the worshippers.

This, anyway, is what the Free Critic organization would like everyone to believe. But as part of The Guardsmen's pledge of total news coverage, an intrepid reporter managed to sneak into a rear chamber, pretending to be a drunken Bul worshipper.

UPON PARTING the button-down draperies, he discovered the real bowels of the organization. Down at the end of the long, straight hall with its argyle rug were two thrones. On the throne on the right, beneath a tattered Goldwater for President poster sat stoical, unblinking Ray Bietz, a gavel in his right hand and a crushed flower in his left. In the other throne, suspended from the ceiling, was the seating place of Ron Lent, a highly regarded nebish.

Our man was immediately seized by the guards who were attracted by the screeching of Ron Lent and forcibly ejected. His mini-camera was smashed, his pencil points broken and his erasers smudged. But they couldn't take the story out of our man's head and so The Guardsmen is able to bring you this complete expose. Retaliatory attempts by the Bul worshippers have been successfully repulsed to date.

A highly regarded nebish.

Price Of Purloined AS Cards Soars; Black Market Flooded As Controls Prove Ineffectual

Student body cards have been sold at black market prices by unknown persons who have stolen and taken advantage of the overwhelming demand for these cards.

Only 6000 student body cards were printed this semester, and about 5500 have been legally sold by the student government. "At least 500 cards were taken from the student body office," stated James Wyatt, dean of student activities.

Wyatt told The Guardsmen that student body cards which were sold legally have already been registered numerically, but with the huge crowds that attend the activities, the ticket-takers have no time to check each card to see that it is valid.

WHEN ASKED when the student body cards were stolen, Wyatt said, "We believe they were stolen either the night of March 23 or March 24. This would be a perfect time since no one is present on the campus during weekends.

"The Campus Police have been investigating the case since the discovery of the loss on Monday, March 25," continued Wyatt, "and so far they have accomplished little."

Sergeant Henry Freelander, head of the investigation, believes the case is going "smoothly."

Freelander, a 38-year-old sophomore student, indicated that the burglars used a pin to open the door of the student body office. He went on to say that no fresh fingerprints were found in the vicinity of the crime except those of Dean Wyatt and Associated Student President Ray Bietz.

"This is the biggest case we've had since Billy Anderson short circuited every light in the school back in 1963," revealed Freelander.

"We believe the stolen cards have been sold by a gang. At this moment, I have several undercover agents seeking information as to the whereabouts of the missing cards."

Freelander added that since the beginning of the investigation, two members of the "gang" have been taken into custody and sent to the San Francisco County Jail.

THE GUARDSMEN was able to get an interview with one of the prisoners, a girl student of City College. Her name was withheld by request. She stated that her only motive for selling the college's student body cards was to pay her mother's way through medical school.

"The cops caught me when I had only seven out of the 50 cards I was given. My supplier told me to sell them at $12.50 each. I got $5 for myself for each card sold, and I'm not going to tell anybody where I hid my profits," she concluded.

THE OTHER prisoner refused to see anyone except his lawyer and denied all charges. However, the police learned from his identification and mug pictures that he is John Doe, 26-year-old former student of the University of California at Berkeley. He has had 14 previous arrests on charges of theft, rape, murder, possession of drugs and loitering.

The Associated Student government will place a list of the invalid student body cards in the next Guardsmen. The student government has also approved a $550 reward to anyone knowing as to the whereabouts of the stolen student body cards and the names of those associated with the crime.

Criminology Agent To Lecture During College Hour Thursday On 'Man-Handling Of Agents'

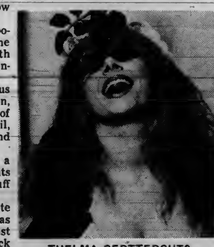
Thelma Gertterguts, noted CIA/FBI, AFL/CIO and UFO agent, will lecture on the "man-handling of American agents in foreign lands" this Thursday during College Hour in the Little Theater at 11 a.m.

Presently on tour of all California colleges, Miss Gertterguts will strive to recruit students, who seek law enforcement as a career, for a top secret project now being planned in Washington, D.C.

It was revealed, however, that potential agents will be trained in the art of combat so as to deal with the underground syndicate now man-handling American agents abroad.

Miss Gertterguts is not only famous for her 'cloak and dagger' occupation, but also as a well known author of such best-sellers as Fuzz On My Tail, Police Brutality Is Here To Stay, and Sock It To Me Copper.

While being interviewed by a Guardsmen reporter Miss Gertterguts commented, "There's a lot of stuff the public ain't aware of."



The Stanford criminology graduate is a native of Podunk, Idaho, but has resided in South America for the past ten years due to delinquent back taxes. This will be her first visit to the U.S. since 1958.

When asked why she chose law enforcement as a career, the blonde, red-streaked haired, skinny-as-a-rail agent replied, "I dig cops, Baby."

Miss Gertterguts has a unique habit of picking her nose while talking.

If all is peaceful on campus this Thursday, Miss Gertterguts will receive a police escort to the theater, according to Campus Police Chief Stevie Goodguy. The chief, however, mentioned that if his men were in the middle of a hot card game in Statler Wing she would have to take the "K" car.

Students and faculty are urged to come early since there will be SRO.

THELMA GERTTERGUTS

Chief Holmestein Dies; Others Survive Crisis

The Guardsmen office resembled a morgue yesterday at noon when the bodies of its six editors, including Chief Ed Holmestein, were sprawled unconsciously on the office floor, victims of a mass poisoning by a staff reporter.

Ambulances arrived shortly afterwards and the six editors were rushed to Mission Emergency Hospital where five of them were revived by a staff of 18 physicians who fought the deadly poison and its fatal effects for nearly three hours.

THE VICTIM

THE SUSPECT

THE SIXTH EDITOR, Holmestein, died at approximately 6:45 last night surrounded by a cluster of doctors who refused to render any medical assistance because of Holmestein's poorly groomed beard and rather mute and unsociable conversation.

"We're not going to mess with any bearded weirdos," Dr. Lee U. Helplus, head physician, told The Guardsmen of Holmestein at 6:46 last night. The doctor and his staff, however, were equipped with Polaroids to take memory snapshots of Holmestein, at the request of The Guardsmen, before punching out last evening.

Arthur Fanfelle, alias "Harm" whose name was scratched from The Guardsmen staff box today, was arrested last night for the alleged murder of Holmestein and the attempted murder of Holmestein's five associates.

"Harm" was handcuffed and dragged up the aisle of the New Follies Burlesk on 16th street (where he had been hiding in the fourth row since yesterday afternoon) by Campus Police Chief Stephen Goodguy and three fellow officers.

Fanfelle was taken to the closet cell in the Campus Police office by the three officers (Goodguy stayed behind) where he is currently confined until Student Council can reach a date for his trial.

WHEN INTERVIEWED this morning, "Harm" told The Guardsmen that "the entire Guardsmen editorial staff is a clique of tyrants. They forced me to meet my deadlines. Somehow I always did. But then they refused to publish my stories—my beautiful exposes on The Free Critic's underground wire service and the marijuana orgies in the Statler Wing dining hall.

"So I had to . . . I had to make a few changes in the editorial board—and potassium cyanide in their Sanka was the only practical and reasonably sane scheme. But it was only one-sixth as effective as I had planned," Fanfelle cynically sneered then screamed as his hollow head echoed as he thrashed it back and forth against the cell walls.

AT AN URGENT editorial meeting of The Guardsmen held this morning, Martin J. Arbunich, present Managing Editor, was unanimously selected to succeed Holmestein as Editor-in-Chief.

"This is my big break in life," Arbunich announced after the meeting, "and it's unfortunate Holmestein had to be sacrificed.

"Fanfelle, however, appears to be a fine lad with a lot of promise. He's not much of a writer but can make one helluva cup of java. He really comes through when he's needed most," the Chief grinned sitting behind his new desk.

Just for the books: Holmestein is survived by his lovely wife; a cocker spaniel, Renne, 9; his canary, Tweets, and his playful boa, Squish. They'll all be at the funeral tomorrow.

Hot Air Balloon Demonstration

Popular demand has enticed Dr. Jennete Picard, first lady in space, to return to City College tomorrow.

Dr. Picard's College Hour talk of a few weeks ago centered on a historic balloon flight in which she and her husband reached a height of over 50,000 feet almost 30 years before the Russians sent a woman into space.

Accompanied by a film, the talk drew very favorable response from the audience and concluded with a lively question and answer period.

Tomorrow's lecture, slated to begin at 11 a.m., has been expanded to include a thermal balloon demonstration.

The lecture will take place in the Little Theater and then will move outside to the parking lot just west of the Arts Building where the demonstration will take place.

The lot will be closed for this demonstration and faculty members normally using this lot are requested to utilize public transportation or to form car pools for that day only in order to alleviate congestion in other parking areas.

A considerable amount of cooperation has gone into the preparations for this demonstration with all departments contributing.

A special session of Student Council has been called to produce the hot air for the balloon.

Excuses! Excuses!

(Continued from Page 3)

Perhaps the best part of the work system is the rewards given to those students who miss nine or less classes. First, red lollypops are given away; second, a free Tom and Jerry cartoon is shown (no student body card required) and third, free get out of jail cards are administered, usuable of course for all Monopoly games.

Thanksgiving Luncheon Served In Cafe Today

Since 1968 is a Leap Year, the Thanksgiving Day holiday will be celebrated tomorrow to account for the extra day.

The annual Thanksgiving luncheon will be served as usual in the cafeteria today between the hours of 11 a.m. and 2 p.m., according to the cafeteria crew. The price is 50 per plate.

According to the crew, turkey is currently out of season, but, fortunately, TV dinners are not. The cafeteria service has ordered 5000 frozen turkey TV dinners which will be available in the vending machines between the aforementioned hours. "Once they melt," said one cafeteria assistant, "they're real great . . . kind of tough on the teeth, but anything beats our hamburgers."

The Guardsmen Editorial Page

Publication of City College of San Francisco

ED HOLMES Editor

Martin J. Arbunich

Vol. 66, No. 5½ MONDAY, APRIL 1, 1968 Page 2

Making Of An Angel

EVER SINCE he was a wee-wee tyke garbed in a foliage of cotton absorbers, little Eddie Holmestein was looked upon by everyone as an "Angel." As of 6:45 last night little Eddie, lately referred to as just Big Eddie, lived up to his childhood monicker and began a new career of angelic life when St. Peter opened the gates for The Guardsmen's demised pilot.

Big Eddie is now a winged-wonder, clad in satin nighties strumming a harp to the haunting tune of "Angel Baby" somewhere in the celestial heavens. Though we're a little choked up at the moment—making a very general consensus—we all know Big Eddie is happy lying back and listening to his wiry whiskers branch out from his haloed countenance.

While spreading the landing gear and descending down to the 'Earthy' level, we regret to report that Holmestein's reign as editor of The Guardsmen was, in the eyes of its staff, "delightfully short." His policy was usually nonrepresentative of staff opinion, he was rarely outspoken in his editorials and tended to ride the wire (rather than taking a stand) on campus problems.

The new policy, as apparent in the following editorial, is to sock-it-to-you with sharp, flaming blows. It's really a shame the Lord has to cope with an illiterate cherubim that resides in His household.

New Policy On Job Placement

THE JOB PLACEMENT program here is really an incorrupt sight for somber eyes, and anyone who passes their office can really see what's happening with the fuss and all. And only all the people who hold jobs and really like to work are at fault because good jobs are rough, and easy ones are even more painful obstacles and can really bring one down.

All men need money and jobs are money making but "a good job," according to Joseph Amori of job placement, "is really coming closer and we're fighting extra hard to preserve the outcome for student welfare and for general spending money too."

In conclusion, we firmly stand that the job placement office is there and foreseeing the impossible is their bag, but, as far as unemployment is concerned, The Guardsmen believes a fib is undoubtedly nonexistant and acts as an enzyme to speed up monetary digestion. Working, it should be remembered, equalizes the inspection of voluntary inservitude.

Libeled And Recorded

Big Band Sound Rocks Fillmore

by the late Eddie Holmestein

ONLY AN entrepreneur of Bill Graham's stature could have pulled it off.

Naturally there was no ballyhoo, none of the drumbeating involved in most formal publicity attempts.

The subject was just too ludicrous to stand the harsh spotlight of normal advance work.

But the "whisper campaign," carefully omitting any names, spread like wildfire through the dry grass of the Hashberry.

"FRIDAY NIGHT will grove."

"What's happening, man?"

"It!"

"Where?"

"Where else, baby? The Fillmore."

"What's the bit?"

And then, in perhaps what was the only over-played part of the entire campaign, those in the know waxed poetic with:

The world will stop,
The sky will fall.
The fuzz will drop,
The straights will crawl.
The town will burn,
The worm will turn,
The flips will flop,
We'll have a ball.

ATROCIOUS POETRY perhaps, but a master stroke of underground publicity.

"Anything that bad can't be for real," they said.

Speculation ran rampant and, at the appointed hour, the curious and the skeptical, the wonderous and the cynical all began to gather in small groups to drift toward the auditorium.

A vague uneasiness at the thought of being out camped prevailed and it was an unusually quiet crowd; but as the march continued and as the ranks began to swell, a sense of purposefulness settled over all.

IT WAS UNQUESTIONABLY a dangerous stunt, this toying with the emotions of such a sincere group, but the stakes were high and the management accepted the risk, albeit, with trepidation.

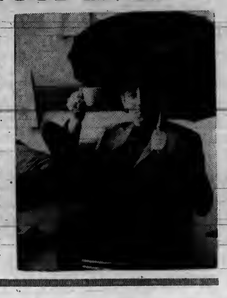
Many of the crowd thought that their gods were going to be publicly mocked and they came prepared to exact instant retribution.

So it was that when the great man himself stood up to announce the beginning of the program, tension had reached a fever pitch.

Then came Graham's fateful announcement—simplicity itself in structure, audacious in content.

"Tonight's featured entertainer will be Lawrence Welk!"

STUNNED SILENCE greeted the the revelation.



Shocked disbelief held the maddened crowd motionless.

A small, voiceless, inarticulate cry

LAWRENCE WELK
"A one, a two, a three . . ."

How Sweet It Is

The new, bereaved editor-in-chief, Martin J. Arbunich, sat back in his newly acquired desk and recalled his long, hard road to success.

Young Martin attended Saint Paul's grammar school as a child. It was there that he first discovered his flair for writing. In eighth grade he got his start as a reporter for St. Paul's room 15 bulletin, which was irregularly published.

After graduating from high school, now grown-up, Martin enrolled at City College and immediately began writing for the paper. As a cub reporter he was the first in his class to have an article printed. Not long after he was made a full-time reporter. In rapid succession he was promoted to staff, feature, managing and finally editor-in-chief. And he still can't write worth a damn!

Who Says 'No Bugs' In Hotel & Restaurant Cafeteria Service

"Waiter, there's a ☠☠☠ in my soup!"

"Shhhhhh! Don't let it get around or everybody will want one!"

Laugh now but don't look too closely at those letters in your City College alphabet soup because they might well spell out ☠☠☠."

Any red-blooded student at City College with enough courage can spoon through his soup and come up with one of the tasty little devils. But fear not, for there are no Tse Tse ☠☠☠ in America!

You did what to the soup?

As stated in the last edition of The Guardsmen, the Hotel and Restaurant Department shells out $700 a day for 50 lbs. of spaghetti, the makings for 70 gal. of soup (☠☠☠ not included), 350 lbs. of meat, 1000 sandwiches, 50 lbs. of frozen vegetables and 500 lbs. of potatoes. However, what was not mentioned in the last issue is that in addition to these commodities, several other items are thrown in free of charge. They include approximately 4000 eyes of the potatoes, 10 to 12 lbs. of ☠☠☠ on the spaghetti, and 400 to 500 Grade AA black ☠☠☠ with the meat.

When the two chefs pictured above were asked what they thought about the ☠☠☠ falling into the soup, they laughed and said, "We couldn't care less!"

When the San Francisco Health Department found out about the situation, they didn't seem to be worried or surprised. Inspectors told the cafeteria crew and interested students that the majority of the tasty little creatures carried no dangerous germs.

When asked about those ☠☠☠ that did carry highly infectuous disease germs, the inspectors offered a simple rule of thumb; "A boiled ☠☠☠ carries no germs," or "A ☠☠☠ in the soup can't harm the group."

Letters to the Editor

Ram Horns

● Honor System

Dear Editor:

I'm not going to get too mad in this letter, but sort of mad. The cops on this campus have got to go. They have tagged my car for ten days straight. One day my car was towed away and it cost me $27 to get it back.

I'm constantly getting 'green phantom' notes in my desk drawer. I'm the kind of guy who gets arrested for walking in the crosswalk or for stopping at a stop sign. I'm stumped. I guess I'll resign.

This letter was NOT received from the Criminology Dept. Adviser

● Swingers

Dear Editor:

You're the only one I can turn to. Everyone is against me, but I believe I'm right in my fight for mini skirts. What do they think we are around here, anyway—a bunch of squares or something? If we have good legs and want to show them off why can't we?

I'm tired of being treated like a child and told to go home and return when I'm properly dressed. Even more, I'm sick of having my dresshems measured when I go to the college dances. I like to swing, and I refuse to swing in a dress down around my knees.

Let's have a little more 20th century thinking on this campus. Leave us mimi skirt girls alone.

This letter was NOT received from the DEAN of Women

Excuses! Excuses! Excuses!

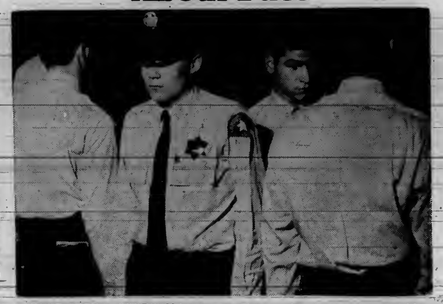
The present system for unexcused absences will soon be done away with, and a new system initiated.

In the new system, each student will be allowed ten cuts for each class, without penalty. The only catch to this is that for each excused absence, the student must bring an apple to Dean Godling's office, do a five-minute crying act and hop on one foot for 13¼ minutes.

ACCORDING to Dean Godling, "This eliminates the human element in receiving an excused absence." This system was proposed by deceased Guardsmen editor, Eddie Holmestein. Mr. Holmestein stated that this system was the most mature system ever devised for college students by anyone. Before Mr. Holmestein's timely death, he held the record for the most unexcused absences ever at City College – 3,281 – a record that will take some time to beat. It took Mr. Holmestein 82 semesters to accumulate this record.

Upon checking the old system, it was discovered that millionaire playboy, James Coyne, used various excuses to obtain his excused absences.

A few of these were: whooping cough, cancer of the left ventricle, hernia, rheumatic fever, typhoid fever, malaria, arthritis of the left ear, yellow fever, amputated hangnail, claustrophobia, a hangover, mysterious liver infection, halitosis, and a mild case of the stomach flue. Dean Godling did question the excuse of the stomach flue, but soon relented when she noticed that the excuse was verified, by the student of course.



THE NEW SYSTEM goes into effect today. Students who want excused absences are expected to be waiting, bright-eyed and bushy-tailed, at Dean Godling's office promptly at 5:31 a.m. If Dean Godling decides that a student is not bright-eyed enough, or bushy-tailed enough, he must hop on one foot for an additional 2 hours and 11 minutes to make up for his deficiency.

Despite all the good points in favor of this system, there is one drawback. After the tenth absence, each penalty is tripled, and a severe tongue lashing is administered by the much feared Pete Cordellos.

SHOULD A STUDENT miss a lab, more stringent methods of punishment of course will be taken. Not only must the student be at Dean Godling's office at 5:31 a.m., but he must polish rocks for the Pick and Hammer Club until Mr. Kaar can see

(Continued on Page 3, Column 5)

About Face

CHIEF STEVIE GOODGUY became suspicious when he heard one of his men humming "duby duby do" and upon inspection found a duby.

Chief Stevie Goodguy, better known to his men, as a hundred pounds of rompin', stompin', hell, death and destruction, conducts his daily 'eagle eye' inspection.

One of Goodguy's men once said, "The chief is a goodguy to work under, but he has a bad habit of stompin' on our little toes when inspecting us, and man, that puts a hurtin' on a guy wbo's standin' at attention."

The 38-year-old former Leatherneck, who doesn't look a day over 22, rules his men with an iron hand. A great guy to talk to—if he's in a good mood.

"One of the many things I demand of my men is constant exercising," said the tatooed-chested chief. He popped his knuckles and continued, "I always instruct my men to carry 'silly puddy' while on post as this keeps them from 'blowin' their cools.'"

Unity and brotherhood are important between the chief and his men.

Every night after all is secure the chief and his 220 men head for Jon's Happiness Haven Pizza Parlor (a small place at the edge of town) where they can relax.

"We just sit around and talk about law enforcement and drink tea by the hour," said one rookie.

For some reason we feel we should not have printed that rookie's statement because shortly afterwards, he was dropped from the force.

Students participating in the White Hat Campaign can pick up their hats in C-119. Chief Goodguy, campaign chairman, reminds students that only the GOODGUYS wear the white hats.

Excavation Crew Uncovers Skeleton

Bones Identified As Former English Instructor; Probe On

Skeletal remains of a former City College instructor were found here last Friday by members of the construction crew while excavating the grounds west of the cafeteria.

After careful investigation by the police department the body was identified as that of Oronthal P. Charles, a former English instructor of the college who mysteriously disappeared after giving an English final to a class in the Spring of 1948. Since that time no evidence as to his whereabouts could be gathered by the police despite their thorough investigation which was carried over until December of 1953.

THIS IS Oronthal P. Charles now—a little older and thinner than his old self, which all goes to prove that beauty's only skin deep.

The police department now has reason to believe that Charles was murdered and his body "dumped in the most unlikely spot for any one to search—right on campus," Phillip Wade of the San Francisco force reported.

COINCIDENTALLY, the college was undergoing construction during the Spring of 1948 and, as Wade phrased it, "the body was probably discarded beneath the excavation tunnels and later covered over by the construction crew."

And it wasn't until the current crew was in the thick of digging the same area that they located the skeletal remains last week.

Wade is amazed that Charles skeleton, which was positively identified as "Charles for sure," was still intact and perfectly preserved beneath the thickly packed layers of dirt.

THE POLICE also have suspicions that Charles was murdered by a band of students who detested the instructor, his disciplinary routines and his very strict manner of instructing.

"Apparently," said Wade, "Charles was a very unpopular instructor. The registrar's files gave us this much information."

There is a possibility, Wade indicated, that "we may have to tear up all the grounds around the school." Apparently there were three other instructors who mysteriously disappeared in 1949 and two in 1950. "Probably the workings of the same people," Wade added with a sigh. "Now can you dig that?"

Mace Spray Hits Police Chief

Campus Police Chief Stevie J. Goodguy was seriously injured today while showing rookie Campus Police officers how to use a cannister of mace, a spray chemical agent used to stop rioters and protesters, when it went off in his face.

Goodguy had just finished telling the recruits the different uses of mace, stressing that the can must be turned in the direction of the enemy when the accident occurred.

According to rookie officers on the scene, the chief pointed the mace at his face, instructing that "the pushbutton should never be pushed when in the direction of your face." By some accident the can of mace went off, spraying the non-lethal but dangerous liquid into Goodguy's eyes, nose and mouth, causing unconsciousness and severe nausea.

He was taken to St. Francis Memorial Hospital where be is in fair condition.

Zoo 10 Field Trip Planned For Friday

All students of Zoology 10 will have the opportunity to take part in a field trip to Half Moon Bay beach this Friday, an instructor of the Science Department revealed today .

"The main objective of the excursion," according to the instructor, "is to dig up a few clams and then have a cozy beach party." He encourages all girls to wear just "the bare necessities," since he's anticipating a very hot day.

Buses will leave at 8 a.m. on Phelan avenue directly in front of the Science Building.

THE ARROW indicates where the skeleton of former City College instructor, Oronthal P. Charles, was found by the construction crew.

Gunfire Breaks Out In Welding Shop Melee

The lead flew in the welding shop last Friday, as a casual remark and ensuing events touched off a shooting. Campus and city police are still searching for welder Mickey Duzdevich who shot fellow student Mark Barger and then escaped, still decked out in his "welder-go-faster zoot suit."

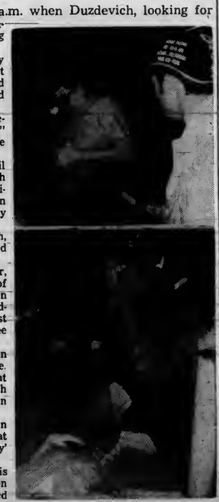
It all began at about 10:15 a.m. when Duzdevich, looking for Mr. Hallock, the classes' popular instructor, noticed Barger butt-welding two pieces of No. 40 steel together.

"Look, you've got your polarity leads backwards," he screamed. "That looks like garbage; you couldn't weld your lunch bucket shut, you stupid dipstick."

"YOU'RE SUPPOSED to use 'reverse polarity' with a 6010 electrode," replied Barger, who took great pride in the quality of his work.

The atmosphere cooled off until Duzdevich discovered that his lunch pail was, indeed, welded shut. Infuriated, he turned up the acetylene in Barger's torch and was immediately knocked to the floor.

Lugging his lunch pail with him, the badly shaken Duzdevich groped out of the lab.



Barger, thinking the affair over, returned to his work. But a salvo of shots from a small calibre pistol soon sent him reeling to the floor, his welding torch still in his hand. The rest of the class looked up in time to see Duzdevich dashing from the room.

MR. HALLOCK quickly called an ambulance and the Campus Police. Officer Murphy, the first to arrive at the scene, stated, "It looks as though he's been shot." Barger, writhing on the floor, groaned in agreement.

Mark Barger, welded to his bed in Mercy General Hospital, claimed that he "always used 'reverse polarity' with 6010 electrode."

Barger's mother said that this is the first time that her son bad been shot but "it couldn't have happened to a nicer guy."

Campus Police would appreciate any clues to the location of Duzdevich who is also wanted for parking on campus without an AS sticker.

GUARDSMEN photographer caught Duzdevich's trigger action as he applied the squeeze (photo #1) to Barger and (#2) the victim lies bleeding.

Spectacle: Best Of All Possible Worlds

by Decay Dorque

FACULTY LOUNGE. Campus Police keep watch on the door to the faculty coffee lounge.

IT'S THE SWELLEST place in town. Really, it is. I mean because of the administrators of the college.

Pity the poor little people who run this school. They are figuratively beaten, kicked, spat upon and disliked by the students and their fellow teachers.

Despite what you hear, it's not true that they are petty people, frightened of changing the status quo. It's not true that they have a vested interest in keeping students down because they need to maintain the apparition that they really have an important job to do.

WITHOUT administrators, this place would really go to pot. I mean more than it is now. Those beloved protectors of this establishment push those necessary pencils across those real keen forms for us! Without administrators, who would set up all that paper work which is so necessary to run things around here. Just think! No IBM cards, no emergency forms, no loyalty oaths, nobody caring in triplicate what your mammy and pappy's names are, nobody even being interested in your phone number or locker combination. Why, nobody would have a thing to do for half the semester.

Another aspect for which we can praise the powers that be that we have powers that be is that you have no department heads to give that personalized attention and that rubber-stamped signature on program changes after their brethern so intelligently computerized the programs.

However, our administrators are still human. They also seek out a place to relax from their hectic work.

I FELT privileged when I was personally invited into the faculty lounge by one administrator. I was nodded on by the two Campus Police officers pictured here. Sipping on ambrosia and nibling on viands, administrators "took five" as it were. The topic under discussion was students.

"This would be a good college," said one adamantly, "if it weren't for the students. Get rid of them, and we could really make this a decent place."

"Why, we would win every prize in the book," he continued, his eyes lighting up with a visionary mystique.

I felt proud as his fellow workers nodded in agreement.

SHOUTIN' IT

by B. B. Hamann

DO YOU READ ME? If so, here we are diggin' the scene at Smith Hall. The time is 10:12 a.m., and three burly campus cops surround a brutish figure at the entrance as 200 or more cats look on.

"Grab him around the body," said the sergeant. "He might try and get away before the patrol wagon arrives."

"LOOK OUT! He's coming at you!"

"That's all right. I've got him now."

The crowd backed off, but no one left the scene.

"You say he knocked you down, young lady? Give me your name. I might need you as a witness."

Two more times the brute attempted to cut out, but the 'heat' held him down.

The sound of the siren was heard, wow!!, and the patrol wagon rolled up. The sergeant spoke to the driver.

"Take this Great Dane to the dog pound Jack. The damn fool's lost."

Man, what a waste of fuzz.

DIG IT BABY! Never taking a real 'out-a-sight trip', I can't tune-in with the groovers. My vibrations cool it around the time I'm due to 'blow my mind' and I just 'freak-out.' Man! Like, I'm up tight and wigged-out all in the same scene. But, even these hang-up can't keep me from diggin' a real happening.

Mohammand Raghahibish, prophet, poet, mystic, free-thinker, and part-time salami sausage salesman, is a real happening. WOW, like, man, when he made the scene last Thursday during "Silly College Hour" every cat (including yours truly) dug his brain pattern in double time.

Raghahibish gave the flower child new hope when he said, "Dig not 'free love,' flower children, but instead dig Daffodils."

The barefoot prophet wore strand after strand after strand of beads around his neck, ankles and waist, significant of his true image—the leader of the "beautiful people." His long, dirty matted hair woven with flower buds blistened in the sunlight when he left the theater and entered his psychodelic VW bus. WOW, man, what a scene to groove in.

Rah-Rah Raghahibish—we love you.

Campus Lineup:

● Barn Dance

The Betataukewta fraternity of City College will sponsor a barn dance this Friday evening in Smith Hall from 9 p.m. to midnight. The theme of the dance will be "Hillbilly Frolic." Music will be provided by the duo of Flatts and Scruggs and the dress will be "casually hick."

● Water Polo

Both reservoirs will be filled today for the Seventeenth Annual Water Polo Championship to be held this weekend. The event will splash off with semifinals, and work up to a banquet and dance. The highlight will be the mass drowning of the losing team. The Fish will play for the water polo dance, but Country Joe will be entertaining at the Smith Hall Barn Dance. The theme of the aquatic affair will be "Wet Dreamy Interlude."

● Fashion Show & Tea

The second annual Fashion Show and Tea for men sponsored by the Student Council will take place this Saturday afternoon beginning at 1 p.m. in Statler Wing.

President Ray Beets and his fellow male associates of council are expected to put on another outstanding display of Spring men fashions. Beets, who introduced the mini-trousers at the Fall fashion show held last semester, has informed The Guardsmen that his latest brainstorm design, the topless spats, will be the highlight of Saturday's show.

Excuses! Excuses!

(Continued from Page 2)

his face in the rock. This in itself does not seem to be too difficult a task, but before peering into the rock, Mr. Kaar removes his glasses. Mr. Kaar, along with Mr. Pellitier, devised this part of the new system in order to get revenge on those students who choose to cut their enthralling lab classes.

(Continued on Page 1, Column 4)

Hit 'Em Again

ORICE PITTMAN, All-Conference linebacker (pictured helmetless), wasn't happy with the result of the San Jose game this year, and wasn't happy with number 77 on San Jose, so he let him have it. Meanwhile, number 70 pleas with Ralph Hode (60) not to join in the affair. Pittman credits his rise from the unknown to All-Conference to watching Dick Butkus play on television. "I model my style of play after Butkus," says Orice. "But, most of all I hate to lose." The Rams lost that game against San Jose. —Guardsmen photo by Mike Reams

RUMBLINGS

Pete Goes On Strike; Telvis Jones Lost?

by M. J. Duggan

HAM, the gym custodian who used to be known as a nice, hard working janitor, erupted yesterday when two students failed to pick up their towels after a PE class and proceeded to clobber Craig Johnson and Frank Cooney with his broom and sent the two, with blood pouring from head wounds, running toward S-190 for immediate first aid.

• • • •

A strike is on in the men's gym. Pete Cordellos, taking note of the recent paper and teacher strikes, has gone on strike for higher wages. Cordellos, the equipment manager who supplies towels for the physical education classes, takes the movies for the basketball and football games, passes out the uniforms for all the varsity sports, is indeed on strike.

The strike, now in its third week, has left hundreds of shivering, wet students with nothing to dry themselves after showering following their classes.

ALL SPORTS are suffering (the track team has nothing to wear for their meet Friday), all students are getting that uncomfortable feeling, when they walk into a classroom after a PE class, that fellow students don't appreciate the fact that they didn't take a shower.

Reports about the "Strike of Cordellos" are coming from all sections of the campus. Harm, a journalism student who has a key to the Science Hall elevator due to the location of The Guardsmen office (third floor), wasn't allowed on the elevator recently. The story reported was something like this: Paul Hewitt, physics instructor and "Teacher of the Year," boarded the elevator in the basement. It came to a halt on the first floor, where, after a hard hour of basketball, Harm was waiting impatiently. When the door opened, Hewitt sensed that Harm was an unfortunate victim of the Cordellos strike and quickly using his scientific mind, closed the elevator door before Harm could enter and proceeded up to the second floor by himself.

• • • •

Nearly every college basketball coach is hoping that Wilson's great 6-9 Ansley Truitt will attend their school. But, only one will be the lucky one. Sid Phelan of City College is just one of about a hundred who hopes and prays that Truitt will pick his school. All the scouts and coaches who wait near Wilson High for school to let out and try and "get" Ansley with offers of a high paying job, new car, beautiful apartment, etc. are going at it all wrong, and Phelan knows it.

Phelan plans to go down to the YMCA one evening and ask Truitt's dad politely if Ansley will please attend City College, then Phelan has outfoxed all the coaches in the nation—for you see, Truitt's dad is a body builder and there isn't anybody that's going to argue with what he says.

• • •

Where is Telvis Jones? The star guard of the Ram championship basketball team has been seen since the state tournament in Norwalk.

Reports have it that while swimming in the motel pool where the team stayed for the tourney, Telvis suddenly sank to the bottom while teammates Jacob Hill, Tom Clyburn and Darrell Fregia, thinking Jones was putting on a show, laughed at the performance. The same source revealed that Jones was not aboard the plane that brought the Ram team back to San Francisco, and is believed to still be at the bottom of the pool.

PETE CORDELLOS taking it easy during his strike. "I've been getting a lot of sleep lately, it's wonderful," remarked Pete.
—Guardsmen photo by Samuel Woo

HAM

No athlete's foot can be contacted in the men's gymnasium due to the work of John "Ham" Hamilton, who keeps it hygenic. Ham, as he is known to his friends, has worked as a custodian at this college since 1946.

Ham, who starts work at 7 a.m. and stops about 4 p.m., is a bundle of energy. At age 57 his humor is filled with little quips about his old sweetheart, Sugar, who was Miss Peach Fuzz of 1921, which wasn't a very good year for peaches.

He spends most of the working day in the gymnasium proper where the floor is kept clean by continual sweepings. His work load is greater when basketball games or dances are held on campus for he must stay until all have left, then set things right.

Ham's face beams with the light of a warm candle. A man whose face is never without a smile and a kind word.

Keen and witty battles of the tongue are often heard in the coaches' room when Ham and Pete "The Greek" Cordellos, the equipment manager, go at it.

Ham has a tattoo of his sugar babe on his right forearm, and on his left arm a symbol of his true nature, two hands clasped in friendship superimposed over a heart.

Forrest Shute Sets New Vault Mark; Discus Beans David

Pole vaulter Forrest Shute set a new world record last Monday when he soared 19-14 to better by one and a half inches the fromer mark set last April 1 when San Mateo's Ken Gallo went 19-12. Shute's vault helped the Rams win the dual meet by a 69-68 score over Aptos. Gallo used a javelin spear to set his mark last year.

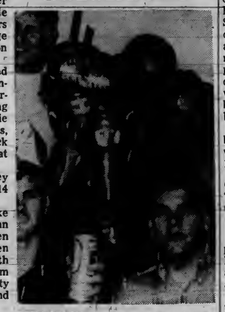
Asked about the feelings on the new world standard, Forrest commented, "Shute, I could have gone higher but I spent the weekend at a ski party drinking and wasn't physically ready for the Aptos meet."

Coach Lou Vasquez was laughing when asked about Shute's mark. "Hell, the pole vault wasn't anything compared to the discus." In the discus, Jim Baldocci, the Rams number one man in the event, let go with his best throw of his life, but released the platter a little late. The result was that David Jones, preparing to start off the 440 relay, got beaned by the flying object. Jones was removed from the meet and could not be reached for questioning. Baldocci said that "it slipped."

Rizzo Paces Guardsmen To Intra Title

For the first time in history the Guardsmen won the intramural basketball championship on Sport Day last week with a 187-43 trouncing of the defending champion Phi Delta.

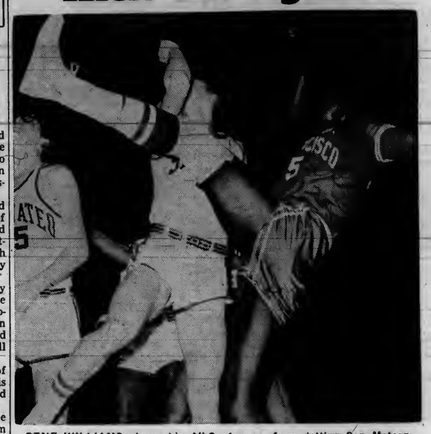
Bobby Rizzo, besides controlling both backboards, hit for a career high 27 digits and held Delta's Dale Sutton scoreless. High point honors however, went to deadeye George Hoenisch, who meshed 31, mostly on long fallaway jumpers.



SPARKPLUG GINNY Gits used his plus 200 pounds to good advantage, getting 15 rebounds and scoring 17 points in addition to being a ball hawk on defense. Little Artie Dulberg, hitting on long arching sets, put through 19 points while big Mick Creed used all his moves to great advantage, hitting 14.

Sharpshooters G. Frank Cooney and Eddie Murtha added 17 and 14 respectively to the winning cause.

Also adding to the rout were Mike Duggan, High Leaper Jay Yerman and John LeTourneau, getting ten apiece. Rounding out the G'men scoring were Easy Ed Holmes with six, Big Red Graham with six, Harm Fanfelle with three while Marty Arbunich blitzed for a pair and Charles Bouey added a digit.



THE GUARDSMEN'S full court press, triggered by Murtha and John Franicevich, helped the journalists run up 19 points before Delta's John Casey got the opponents on the scoreboard. The halftime score was 79-19, allowing Guardsmen coach Eddie Brimkley an opportunity to give the reserves ample playing time. Both teams entered the game with 80 marks. Casey was high for the losers with 27 as he continually eluded Franicevich for easy buckets.

Champs Celebrate

GUARDSMEN team celebrates intramural championship in locker room after the game. Star Ed Holmestein declared the victory a 'Lucky' win. In center of picture is championship trophy.
—Guardsmen photo by Ginny Gits

Kick 'Em Again

GENE WILLIAMS shows his All-Conference form, letting San Matean 'have it' in the teeth while referee wasn't looking. Rams won this game and 13 others in going through the conference 14-0 last season, mainly because of the great play of Williams. "Gene was the greatest at blocking shots that I ever saw," commented his coach, Sid Phelan. "Sometimes I couldn't believe how he would block shot after shot. He seemed to instill a fear into his man," added Phelan. Yes, it is true, Gene did instill a fear into his man. —Guardsmen photo by Chris Rozales

Kingpins Bouey, Murtha In Cliffhanger Win Over Coeds

The City College Ram bowlers, paced by 12 sharpshooting sidearm strikes by southpaw Charlie Bouey, upset Contra Costa in the first season match, 306-301, in Friday's doubles match at Downtown Bowl.

Bouey's perfect game was his third in competition, but it wasn't until teammate Larry Murtha tallied a game total of 6 in his match that the Rams secured a win.

"Larry's never been much of a shot," the tiny Bouey said while slinging his polka-dot Ebonite over his shoulder after the match, "but he's constantly improving as his high game today showed."

Murtha, somewhat a hippy sportsman with long drooping sideburns and an obscure but promising hairline growth bordering his upper lip, is the type of bowler most teams can do without—except City College.

Murtha and Bouey were the only two signees for the Spring squad.

Murtha's big frame came in the sixth when his eight-pound freckled ball scraped his outspread right thigh and plummeted, of all directions, straight down the center of the alley. At this point he set a new personal record by edging his old game high of five pins. The duration of the match, as usual, was a series of exquisite gutter balls.

The Contra Costa opponents, a pair of coeds, gave the Ram duo a rugged match but lost it in the tenth when they needed only a mere five pins to overcome the Rams' 306 total.

As she stood on the line, with a doubles nine-frame total of 301 behind her, Pat Jenkins prepared her roll. She stormed with precision form down the lane, but, as she related after the match, "the sheer excitement of the cliffhanger contest propelled me endlessly down the alley" only to fly headfirst into the pins. She was penalized for illegal use of the body, losing the match by a heartbreaking five pins.

Bouey led the afternoon with a blitzing 300, followed by Miss Jenkins with 151, teammate Gail Cronin with 150 and Murtha with six.

Swim Team Finally Wins; Decker Happy

The City College Aqualads completed their first undefeated season last Friday by "drowning" San Mateo and Foothill in a three-way meet held at the Balboa pool.

Coach Curt Decker expressed a certain amount of self-satisfaction as he said, "I knew the lads had it in them. Long practice and perseverence will always pay off."

Coach Decker's team was bolstered by the presence of several veterans. Notable among them were butterfly man Hydro Therapy, in his 43rd semester at City College, and medley winner Stormy Cove, who started here in 1949.

Wrestlers Wreak Havoc At Arena

Matmen met his match at Winterland last weekend as the City College wrestling team soundly defeated all comers in an audience participation match that packed the house.

Starting tamely with a tag team event featuring Peg Leg Peterson from Ornamental Horticulture, and Monty Arbuckle against Turk Stone and Gypsy Rose, the match soon picked up after the first two falls were split.

Arbuckle was in danger of suffering the final pin when his over anxious teammate used his wooden appendage in a most unusual manner.

IT WAS AT THIS point that the audience learned how Turk Stone picked his "pin name." Heaving two pound boulders at the opposition, the referees, and finally the crowd, Stone created pandemonium. Unfortunately for this game competitor, one of his missles struck his partner, ending the event rather suddenly.

The second match had hardly begun when Plastic Man was put to the test by Bender McGee, a Humanities major here.

Unfortunately for the Man, he was not plastic.

Also, unfortunately, events taking place in the third bout, a ladies tag team match, were of such a nature that they cannot be related in this tabloid.

For a few moments, the referee declared Silky Sue and Diamond Lil winner of, that fantastic spectacle, but a near-rabid crowd overturned the decision; the referee and, nearly, the arena.

IT WAS FINALLY declared "no contest" and order of a sort was at last restored in time for the final event.

Matman, an awesome sight in his bearskin robe and logger's boots, seemed for awhile to have the best of Fred Fearless from the Math department.

It almost appeared that the end was in sight for our stalwart lad when Matman managed to snap the handcuffs on Fearless.

A hacksaw was produced in time though and the fair-haired boy's vengence was terrible to behold. He took the next two falls, one of Matman's boots, and most of his bearskin rug, all in about two minutes.

Choice '68—Student View Of Politics

By Tom Graham

The 1968 presidential election has become a subject of growing interest among college students throughout the country as the months grind closer toward November.

Students are constantly trying to influence the administration's decisions on domestic and foreign affairs and one way which has proven effective in the past few years has been student dissent, which has successfully focused a great deal of attention on the area of politics.

With a project entitled CHOICE '68, the national collegiate presidential primary, students' voices will echo across the United States again.

TO DATE, nearly 1000 colleges (including City College), with enrollments numbering over five million students, representing 75 per cent of the total student electorate, have decided to participate in the CHOICE '68 election.

The student coordinators expect intense debate to arise over the phrasing of the various referendum questions that will undoubtedly center on those areas of greatest student concern—the Vietnam war, urban problems, civil rights, and the draft. They are insistent, for example, that CHOICE '68 not fall into the same wording difficulties that blunted the San Francisco referendum, Proposition P, last fall.

To insure that the various questions are properly pointed towards achieving maximum impact and clearest interpretation, the board has arranged to meet with several top poll and survey experts.

The final ballot and referendum issues of the first nationwide collegiate presidential primary is to be held April 24.

THE STUDENT DIRECTORS of the program selected a slate of 14 candidates for the presidency. They are: Fred Halstead, Mark Hatfield, Lyndon Johnson, Robert Kennedy, Martin Luther King, John Lindsay, Eugene McCarthy, Richard Nixon, Charles Percy, Ronald Reagan, Nelson Rockefeller, Harold Stassen, and George Wallace.

The students also decided that three referendum questions be included on the ballot. Two deal with the country's involvement in Vietnam, and one with the priorities of government spending in confronting the "urban crisis."

IN ADDITION, the board resolved several administrative questions, such as voter qualification. It was decided that any student currently enrolled in an American college or university will be eligible to vote in the CHOICE '68 election. This includes graduate, part-time, and foreign students, as well as those studying abroad in American branch universities.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON expressed his conviction that this kind of vote from students was highly significant, and that when students express their opinion intelligently, people across the nation "stop, look, listen, and evaluate."

CHOICE '68 will be organized on this campus by Phi Beta Rho fraternity, according to Stephanie Shaw, student coordinator. The student election will be held on April 24, probably between 9 and 2. Registration cards will be required to vote.

Candidates in this area will be asked to speak here. The entire project is being sponsored by Time Magazine. For further information see Stephenie Shaw in Bungalow 5.

Pros and cons of CHOICE '68 will be taken next week in Pot Luck.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 66 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, APRIL 3, 1968 NUMBER 6

College Fraternities In The Thick Of Hell Week

By Jerry D. Fink

Students who are potential members of the various Greek Letter Societies can expect this Hell Week, which began last Sunday and runs through this Saturday, to be one of interest.

Reggie Harvey, president of the Alpha Phi Epsilon, had his pledges wear dresses to school Monday to demonstrate their sincerity in wanting to become members.

Unusual scenes such as this should be typical throughout this entire week both on and off campus.

HAZING, although illegal in most states because of many deaths associated with it, had been a part of fraternal life since its onset in 1776.

This was the year Phi Beta Kappa was organized at the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, Virginia. It had all the characteristics of the modern-day organizations in that it was inundated with secrecy, rituals, oaths of fidelity, a grip, motto, and it had a background of high idealism and a strong tie of friendship and comradeship.

"Our philosophy of brotherhood is the hope of the world. We have no choice but to learn to live together as brothers . . . Fraternities have long emphasized this policy," said President Willis M. Tate of Southern Methodist University. This was the point in instituting the fraternal organization.

"Let us build an organization that will bind men together," said the founding fathers of one fraternity.

The ensuing activity amounted to strength tests amongest the representatives of competing contestants. The top bid on the first pie was $1.75.

The high bidder joined in the spirit of the event by thoroughly covering the face of volunteer John Callero with cream pie filling.

Flavors ranging from banana cream to chocolate sprinkled the next four or five offerings. Such pies pushed higher the ceiling previously set by bidders.

The bulk of pie trading was done in the one dollar through five dollar price range. As Courter neared the end of his pie supply, the bidding took the form of block interest participation. Friends and generous supporters of UMOC candidates joined together to raise former one digit highs to past fifteen dollars.

Finally, at $17.75, the last available pie was sold off the block. The successful bidder employed a crew of supporters to help remove Calleros' clothes above the waist, then he was rolled on his stomach and held in position while the pie holder spread both the topping and everything else over the exposed Callero.

Receipts from the pie event will be applied towards the total votes of a candidate. The total revenue derived from this campaign will be applied to scholarships for the underpriviledged.

"We give all money collected in the contest to Mary Golding, the dean of women," said Courter, "That's the way Alpha Phi Omega has been doing it for as long as I know, and this is the eighteenth year of an Ugly Man On Campus Contest at this college."

Campus Picks Ugliest Man

John Callero captured the dubious honor of being the Ugly Man On Campus. For his feat of amassing almost 5000 votes, the contestant from the Newman Club was officially crowned during Alpha Phi Omega's dance last Friday night.

Alpha Phi Omega's President Wilkie Courter addressed a crowd of some 300 City College students over the roar of two operating pieces of construction and excavation equipment.

Despite the need for proper acoustics at no time during the event was the equipment shifted to a lower audio level. Overcoming this handicap, Courter offered the first pie at a one dollar starting bid.

The ensuing activity amounted to strength tests amongest the representatives of competing contestants. The top bid on the first pie was $1.75.

The high bidder joined in the spirit of the event by thoroughly covering the face of volunteer John Callero with cream pie filling.

Flavors ranging from banana cream to chocolate sprinkled the next four or five offerings. Such pies pushed higher the ceiling previously set by bidders.

The bulk of pie trading was done in the one dollar through five dollar price range. As Courter neared the end of his pie supply, the bidding took the form of block interest participation. Friends and generous supporters of UMOC candidates joined together to raise former one digit highs to past fifteen dollars.

Finally, at $17.75, the last available pie was sold off the block. The successful bidder employed a crew of supporters to help remove Calleros' clothes above the waist, then he was rolled on his stomach and held in position while the pie holder spread both the topping and everything else over the exposed Callero.

Receipts from the pie event will be applied towards the total votes of a candidate. The total revenue derived from this campaign will be applied to scholarships for the underpriviledged.

"We give all money collected in the contest to Mary Golding, the dean of women," said Courter, "That's the way Alpha Phi Omega has been doing it for as long as I know, and this is the eighteenth year of an Ugly Man On Campus Contest at this college."

Faculty Association Turns Down 'Friendly' Lounge Bid; Heads Seek New Solution

By John Bendoritis

The proposal to convert the faculty lounge on the second floor of Cloud Hall into a coffee lounge to which faculty could invite students was rejected as unfeasible by the Faculty Association in a meeting held March 21.

At the same meeting members of the association voiced complete agreement that such a lounge was necessary.

To emphasize the point, according to Art Evans, Faculty Association secretary, they presented a resolution to the Department of Educational Management, the responsible department, requesting that "immediate space for faculty-student lounges be made available.

Evans stated that the proposed room was rejected because it was already being used for a variety of reasons, and that this "little room" offered no real solution.

IN ADDITION to their short range request for space, the association made a strong request that the administration set aside adequate space for next year, particularly in the Science Building.

They hope that when the counsellors move from that building into the Services Building in August, space for this purpose will then be available.

Dr. Harry Buttimer, of the department of educational management, noted that no single rooms are available.

The possibility does exist, he pointed out, of jockeying the rooms classes, etc., throughout the day to create the needed space.

Dr. Buttimer further explained that space wouldn't be quite this tight if the union hadn't halted the erection of eight portable bungalows last Fall.

This space had been counted on to the extent that it was even listed in the classroom directory.

DR. LOUIS BATMALE, newly appointed vice president of the college, stated that the resolution hadn't reached him yet, but that it would be given serious consideration when it does.

"There is a real need for further teacher-student dialogue on the campus," the vice president stated, adding that such a lounge would help the problem.

He further remarked that it is a question of priority, since setting a room aside for any purpose on this campus is taking a classroom away. As to the plan to use rooms in the Science Building when the counsellors move out, he revealed that there will be 50 new faculty members in the Fall so the situation will still be tight.

Student Finance Office Expands To Another Site

The Student Finance Office, located in Smith Hall-107, has recently expanded its office space in order to meet the growing demands of student and faculty affairs, according to Teresa Lowther, bank cashier.

The new branch, the Controller's Service Center, located in Smith Hall —103, operates from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. It will handle the sale of student body cards, dance, play and symphony tickets (for advance sales), lost and found, and leaves of absence.

Mrs. Lowther stated that, "the main office, room 107, will continue its window service daily between 12:05 and 2 p.m. to handle the delivery of checks, purchase orders, loan payments and deposits."

RECENTLY, representatives of the Student Council had a conference with College President Louis Conlan regarding their gripes with the Finance Office. The complaints included the short hours of operation, slow processing of business transactions, and the bank's refusal to allow a Council member to check the student body card records.

Carl Anderson, Finance Office accountant, answered the complaints in this fashion; "The Board of Education lays down the rules and the staff follows them with no preference to faculty or students.

"Furthermore, in order to clear up the Student Council member's attempt to see AS card records, it is against the Board rules to allow entry to college records due to security reasons.

"Information of this nature can be obtained from either Mary Golding, dean of women or Ralph O. Hillsman, dean of men."

ANDERSON regards the $758 budget cut for the Finance Office as one of the main reasons for the slow service.

He commented, "This money could have been used to hire more students to help with the work load."

He also cited the ever growing college population in comparison to the size of the Finance Office staff and the lack of space.

The Finance Office feels that if organizations or individuals having dealings with the bank would make inquiries regarding procedures and obtain necessary forms, they would save themselves and the bank a good deal of time.

THE FINANCE OFFICE will be moving to the new building, to be finished by Fall of 1968, and will employ additional civil service personnel to help speed up the bank services.

Mrs. Lowther, responsible for all incoming business, reminds students that requests for scholarships, service and reimbursement checks must be submitted on a 24-hour notice. "I process work requests on a first-come, first-serve basis and find this method fair and most effective," she stated.

13 Vie For AWS Best Dressed Coed Title

Fashion Show And Tea Today In Smith Hall

By Rita Quong

The traditional Fashion Show and Tea presented by the Associated Women Students in honor of the high senior girls from the San Francisco high schools and City College women students is being held this afternoon at 3 p.m. in Smith Hall.

Approximately 600 guests from the city high schools and Bay Area two-year colleges will attend this function as well as our own women students.

SIXTY members of AWS, under the leadership of Karen Hall, hospitality chairman, will be hostesses.

The Fashion Show and Tea will start off with a welcoming speech by Shirley Brown, AWS president.

Fashions from Deb's Den of the Marina will be modeled by the semi-finalists. They are: May Chin, Joyce Collins, Luci Fanugao, Alice Grijalva, Shirley Labrador, Ida Minnich, Ann Montenegro, Georgia Newsome, Lynn Scharfen, Alfrieda Smith, Kathy Wang, Jane Weiss, and Coleen Williams.

—Guardsman photo by James McEldry

FROM THESE semi-finallists one girl will be selected as the "Best Dressed Coed On Campus." Her name will be submitted to Glamour Magazine for the nation-wide competition for the "Best Dressed Coed of 1968-1969."

Along with this glamor award will be an award for the freshman with the highest grade point average.

Evelyn Kerkhof of the Math Department here will present the awards.

The Guardsman Editorial Page
Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco
ED HOLMES, Editor
Vol. 66, No. 6 WEDNESDAY, APRIL 3, 1968 Page 2

Ineffective Legislation

THE CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE has proven in the past that it is incapable of controlling this state's $19 million a year pornography trade. Bill after bill attempting to do so has been defeated by committee, by the legislature itself, or by judicial action.

Under the guise of protecting minors, this august body presses on, unmindful of their failures and undaunted by the growing mountain of proof that their approach is all wrong.

Attorney General Thomas C. Lynch points out that the flood of obscene material recently is "even more blatant and the solicitations more offensive," but the lawmakers are on a crusade and cannot be bothered with such things as facts or figures.

THE SAD PART of all this is that the prime movers of such legislation justify their actions as an attempt to "save the youth of this state."

The youth of this state, however, is a part of the most knowing youth in history. While "knowing" does not necessarily imply maturity, today's youth is smart enough to recognize and resent this sanctamonious attempt to deny their knowledge.

But the crusaders plod along.

Editorializing recently on the subject, the Examiner stated: "The producers of . . . hard pornography will get by with all they can. They don't draw the line at the juvenile trade—they cultivate it. Society has the right to protect its young. We hope for a strong law to help do that job."

ONCE AGAIN, where common sense violates puritan standards, the hypocritical saviors seek refuge in their last bastion by pleading for a "strong law" to accomplish what they have failed so miserably to do.

The Guardsman recommends to these people—who would appear to be concerned with today's youth—a study of the Scandanavian country which recently abolished all controls of pornographic literature. Reportedly, sales have dropped drastically.

This seems to point out that the only demand for smut is created by laws abolishing it, at least in Scandanavia. We feel there is no reason to think less of Californian youth.

Labelled And Recorded
Strike, The Park And Other Things

by Martin J. Arbunich

INDIGENT ROCK MUSIC enthusiasts, barred from the $3 ballrooms, need not be left out in the cold on weekends these days. For the price of bus fare or just the energy consumed making it by foot to Golden Gate Park and other areas, a pleasant Saturday or Sunday afternoon of music is guaranteed at an inexpensive tab.

The radio KMPX strike which has sent everything from DJ to janitor to the street with picket signs, has brought both local bands and those from afar to their side with sympathy. As a result the KMPX picketeers have put together some fantastic street scenes to promote their walk-out and bring new campaigners to their feet.

A week ago Sunday, for instance, it was one surprise after another around the corner from strike headquarters. It was a perfect afternoon: the sun was throbbing, the beer still cold and the Sons of Champlin were rocking the stage. Their rhythms were sucking in crowds as if luring them with a siren's call.

The portable generators which supplied the juice for the afternoon were still humming as the Sons of Champlin silenced the Vox amplification and made their way from the two flat-bed trucks that joined rears and acted as a temporary stage. Their big band rock sound was well taken with a befitting applause.

The crowd edged closer and closer to the stage as a small van pierced a layer of the assemblage, dragged out a massive hunk of organ caped with a coverlet inscribed "Stevie Winwood."

It wasn't long before Traffic, the outstanding English trio, was on the stage. Heaven Is In Your Mind started the wheel rolling and by the time Dear Mr. Fantasy poured forth the crowd seemed overtaken by some strange trance. Drummer Jim Capaldi was drenched with sweat and Winwood's versatility was steaming unbelievably from guitar.

Traffic didn't give much of a chance for the trance to break as the Grateful Dead's Jerry Garcia climbed the stage, jacked in his guitar (sending Winwood to organ) and an incredible jam session with as many as eight musicians working out at once, was underway.

A very short appearance by James Cotton on harmonica and a lengthy and impressive jam featuring guitarist Harvey Mandel with the Indian Head Band concluded one of the most unusual musical experiences this writer has ever witnessed. And it was all for free.

Lately, each weekend has been graced with free open-air concerts somewhere in the city. Most are in The Park and as long as the KMPX strike is on their street scenes will be too. It might be a good idea for enthusiasts to keep eyes pinned to the press and ears to KMPX (bnt is that in poor taste?) and get in on these things. (The Haight Ashbnry Switchboard (387-3575) is usually of reliable assistance.) They can become an experience more unique than the ballrooms themselves.

• • •

John Lee Hooker heads the bill at the Carousel this weekend along with Mother Earth and the Loading Zone. Eric Burdon and the Animals, Quicksilver and the Sons of Champlin are at Winterland while the Blues Project, Iron Butterfly and the Nazarra Blues Band play at the Avalon.

Guardsman Staff — Spring 1968

(Official newspaper of City College of San Francisco, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 248.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... ED HOLMES
Managing Editor ..... Martin J. Arbunich
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
News Editor ..... Doug Boston
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan
Editorial Assistant ..... D. K. Dorn
Circulation Manager ..... Arthur Fantella

Reporters: John Bendoritis, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom.

Cub Reporters: David Albertson, Penny Blum, Garret Duncan, Willy Durkin, Lawrance Ferrari, Jerry D. Fink, Randy Flynn, Michael J. Flynn, Wayne Hiroshima, Ed Jimison, Lavine Lee, Rita Quong, Leonard Ribeiro, Carol Roehl, Jerry W. Sisaron, Pam Tomasello, Gavin L. Watt, James Baggett, James Billbury, Robert Forsker, Lawrence Lee.

Photographers: Dawn Turner, Chief; Garth Ogle, Nathaniel Dodge, Carol Gillmore, Herbert Gonz, Glenn Graham, Fred Harris, Jerry Jew, James McElory, Doug Mills, Robert Morris, Jens Protze, Mike Reavis, Larry Tisconnia, Melvin Welner and Samuel Woo.

President Bietz Has Mixed Emotions As A Politician

In his fourth semester at City College, Ray Bietz, Associated Students president, has mixed emotions about his office which is "very satisfying when we (USA) can do something for City College, and is disappointing when personalities interfere" with certain projects.

Aside from being married, the father of three children and working 44 hours a week at the Fairmont Hotel, parking cars, Bietz is constantly compromising with the administration and students trying to get things done effectively.

THIS OFFICE is "hectic, of course, time consuming, frustrating and educational—learning about people," he revealed. "Lots of people," he continued, "respond to things before finding out if they are true or false."

So far this semester, Bietz, along with USA and the Academic Senate, is able to list many accomplishments: limited improvement in the Muni service with promise of more to come; improvement in the job placement office procedures with promise of more to come; re-establishment of a four-page Guardsman and the establishment of a four-page Free Critic; removing political pressure from The Guardsman; and a Teacher Evaluation Program, now in the beginning stage. Bietz's major accomplishment is that "more people are aware of the student government's existence and power and ability to do things."

The projects now being considered are improvement of cafeteria service, searching for a solution to the AS card problem and financing of AS functions.

COMMON to every office are gripes and this AS president's gripe is that "a lot of people have a lot of gripes but no solutions."

Aside from "finding time to sleep," the hardest thing about being AS president is making "decisions that some object to but sticking to them—nevertheless. While he is putting in approximately 25 hours a week for the students, Bietz knows he must "work with the administration to get things done."

If it is difficult for Bietz to make decisions it is easy, he states, "to find opinions. Someone always has a different opinion."

"My job," remarked Bietz, "is to improve City College for the benefit of the students. Students who want to see something done should get hold of me and I'll be glad to do something about it."

Making Of A Newspaper

The Guardsman's staff of aspiring journalists, from cub reporter to Editor-in-Chief, all do their learning under the pressure of having to help produce a weekly newspaper.

The core of a college newspaper is the news story and a typical article goes through many hands before it's ever printed. The reporters (28 on The Guardsman staff) get their assignments from either the news, feature or sports editor. In addition to their assignments, reporters are always looking for a good news story or feature.

After the reporter tracks down his news source and gets his information, he must type his story on copy paper, which is no small task for some, who peck out their stores with one or two fingers.

The students on copy desk correct reporters' stories and rewrite.

Then the various editors, who always hope for a surplus of copy, select which stories they'll use and arrange them, always under the burden of getting exactly four pages of print.

Whereas the goal of the news reporter is to write as objectively as possible, the columnists and feature reporters express their individual opinions and attitudes and always add a distinctive flavor to the paper.

When the paper's finally in print there's a feeling of satisfaction, but it's usually short-lived, because there are inevitably a few mistakes: misprints, misspelled names or stories that could have been better, and the knowledge that the error, however slight, has been repeated 6000 times by the printing press. But one can't worry too long; for there's another paper and another deadline next week.

History Of The College On The Hill

It's not unusual for a person to wonder, while struggling up one of City College's slopes, why the campus was erected on a hill, rather than on the flat side of Phelan Avenue.

The answer to the question is by no means simple.

The beginning of the college was in 1935. Then it was known as San Francisco Junior College. At that time classes were held in 21 different locations in the city and students literally had to pursue an education. Classes were held mainly at the University of California Extension Building—540 Powell Street—and at Galileo High School.

The campus as it stands today was located in 1938 in a bond election which provided funds to erect the Science Hall and the two gyms. The site for the campus was then picked and it was called Balboa Park.

THE SECOND authorization came from the voters in 1948 which provided money for the construction of Cloud Hall and Smith Hall; the third came on June 3, 1948 when voters authorized an increase in the tax limit for schools by 50 cents, followed by a bond issue the same year allocating money for the Arts Hall.

On November 10, 1940, the college was opened and enrollment reached 3000.

AFTER WORLD WAR II an expansion program was inaugurated through the efforts of Dr. Cloud, who acquired from the Navy Department buildings on a site across Phelan Avenue, which was called West Campus. The property was owned by the city Water Department, and soon West Campus was evacuated, for the building of a reservoir.

In 1948 the college was officially renamed City College of San Francisco.

There's still the question of "Why on a hill?" When the college site was decided upon, all that stood on Balboa Park was an abandoned county jail. The flat side of Phelan Avenue was owned by the Water Department, and at that time it was not even flat.

The college was originally a "depression building," built in part with money from Public Works. Since the erection of the campus, the Water Department has made a reservoir out of the other side of Phelan Avenue, which also was "mountainous" at the time.

All these facts may seem superfluous to the tired student trudging up a hill with an armful of books, but at any rate, it gives the campus a "college atmosphere."

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• Black Tutors Explain Their Position

Editor, The Guardsman:

For too long the black man has been dominated by the white man and his society, his laws, his home life, and his very existence depended upon the white man's decision.

Now for the first time an unprecedented chance has been made by the black populous to become independent and self governing, no longer does he strive to become a middle class or to integrate. He knows these things were dreams for one can change the laws but he cannot change the heart. And that's the very foundation of the blacks' plight today. Racism that lies below the written word that can only be found in the hearts. And white America clings racism to its heart.

To put this on a specific situation is to look at the tutorial program in depth. Look beyond a all-black class with black tutors; look to the beginning, where the black child was snatched from its mother's bosom to be sold and cast into a system where he was despised and unwanted. He lost his language, his heritage, his manhood and in its place he was given the white man's history, the white man's culture, but never the white man's status.

Things haven't changed very much today, the black child is taken from his home, cast into an educational system that teaches him his very roots began in slavery, and never of his true history. It will teach him European history not black African history, English, Spanish and French but never Swahili or Congolese. He will see white children in his textbooks smiling, playing, traveling, and by contrast he realizes that this is not his family for by and large the majority of the black families are struggling for very existence, there is little laughter, little travel, little playing. "Why?," the black child questions and all these things must be answered.

Yes, after he spends his six hours in the white oriented educational system, he is still puzzled and confused. A great many blacks drop out, quit, for they feel the alienation.

The black tutor attempts to find the confused soul of the black child, to make him realize that black men have a place of distinction. That his roots were established long before slavery, and many black men performed great deeds and made many significant contributions to these United States.

Racism, no; the Irish took care of the Irish, the Jews took care of the Jews, the Quakers took care of the Quakers, and many, many more as matters of record. So now the black man asks to be given a chance with his own; not entirely, for he knows a complete education must involve the complete educational realm—black and white. You have left out the black. So now the black must teach it himself. And who is better qualified? Naturally black can only feel another black's sorrow or joy and only blacks can teach without partiality black children.

So to offer the child a white tutor is to cast him once again into the alienated environment from which he came (school). Two choices are left: a little white or nothing black. Decision: nothing black, then likewise nothing white. For you say we will hurt the child this way. No, look around our ghettos, or delelicts, our criminals, our struggling working class, this is a product of your system of education for blacks. We intend to change this our way or no way.

Don Herman
Herschel Major

(Not all blacks connected with Tutorial are ready to reject help offered by white students. — Ed.)

Anatomy Uses 'Abra-Cadaver'

Resumption of the former practice of using a cadaver for dissection in City College anatomy classes has brought a new realism to the subject.

The cadaver was supplied by the College of Mortuary Science of San Francisco, which has been supplying City College with cadavers since last fall.

CADAVERS had not been used for the past 15 years until last semester. However, when Lawrence Elson, biology instructor, came here last spring, he suggested that the college resume its practice of using cadavers in certain classes.

Currently the college only possesses one cadaver. It cost $85, which was paid by the biology department.

THE ANATOMY 12 and Anatomy 25 classes use the cadaver. Anatomy 12, which is taught by both Elson and Kathleen Kamiya, is parallel to University of California. The students in these classes utilize the cadaver in observing, dissecting and studying the anatomonical structure of the human body.

The students are not allowed to handle the cadaver unless they are capable because working with it takes exactness and precision. The instructors do the handling and dissecting in front of their classes while the students observe.

The cadaver is used more in class toward the end of the semester when the blood system is more extensively studied. A cadaver is used for two semesters before another cadaver replaces it.

Then the used cadaver is disposed of by the same people who supplied it.

Blood makes up about 7 per cent of a person's total body weight.

SHOOTIN' IT

by D. K. Dorn

SIXTEEN YEARS away. Our spies tell us that a high ranking administrator is interested in the morality and legality or lack thereof of some students at the college. It seems that certain students are associating with the wrong peer group, or so claims the powers that be. The suspect students have been told that the eye is upon them and that disciplinary action will be taken unless certain aspects of the students' private lives are "improved." This means that the administration loves us all so much that they are concerned about us students even when we have nothing to do with the San Francisco Unified School District.

"Hey, Mr. Blue, we've got our eye on you. We have a slot for you to fill, and fill that slot you will," the college's thought coordinator told one of the suspect students.

But be happy. 1984 is still 16 years off in the dim, dark future.

Rock-'n'-roll revamp. The experimental college's class on rock music has been cancelled. But anybody with a serious interest in starting it again may contact Rosalie Wolf, one of the coordinators, in her Cloud Hall office, room 332-E. Our experience with the class was that too many people were going in too many different directions.

Back at the Ranch. Soph Councilman Derrick Quan reports that he's discovered a rare document buried in a long-lost file cabinet that Statler Wing was the first Chinese student to be made a cafeteria cook. There are similar rumors about Cloud Hall and Arts Building, but Menz Jim is stretching things.

Slow Dance on the Killing Ground, a poetic play about people discovering themselves, is open to City College students for the half price admission of $1.25 at Intersection Coffee House at 756 Union Street in North Beach. Show time is 8:30 p.m. this weekend only. This afternoon at 1 p.m., lead actor in the play, John Cochran, will speak to students in the little theater.

Ballooning, anybody? This column neglected to tell where balloons and information could be obtained if you wanted to try for the Atlantic crossing. So here's what you need to know: Maneuvering is easily accomplished. The sponsors of the race, The Aerostats, a bunch of bully boys bent on better ballooning, supply the balloons, baskets and will teach ballooning to any group of ten students. For more done on copping the crystal, write to The Aerostats, Box 342, East Hartford, Connecticut 06108 or catch this columnist romping around the spring time.

Freaks. One of Tod Browning's best films titled "The Freaks" will be shown Friday evening at 7 o'clock at San Francisco State in the Education Building, room 117. The gate is 75 centavos for the flick about circus freaks. Pin heads, midgets, Siamese twins and other hallucinatory characters make up most of the cast for this all-time weird movie.

American conservatory Theater is putting on a "not yet announced to the general public" production of Hamlet on April 22, 23, 24, 25 and 26 at 2 p.m. at the Geary Theater. The production is advertised as "pure, musically balanced and visually neutral" which sounds as interesting as it is enigmatic. The Bay Area is in need of a good production of Hamlet right about now. Get thee to a theater at 450 Geary Street for more info. Or phone 771-3880.

Oft 'n on. The Over Five And Twenty Club (most of whose membership are in that untrustable age group of thirty years plus) is organizing. They meet in A-307 during College Hour. The club was formally known as the Society Of Older Students. "But SOS sounded too disastrous," hissed one LOL member through her gums. "I was cutting classes here before you were born!" she snapped.

Black Art. Sculpture and paintings by a San Francisco artist named Aum is on exhibit at the Western Addition Library during the month of April. The library is located at 1550 Scott Street at Geary Boulevard near Winterland auditorium. His show is specially designed at young people, claims Aum.

Sex News. Always glad to help keep our readers abreast in this field, this column, however, questions the veracity of the claims made by certain posters around the college. Certain young lovelies are running for the umpteenth annual Sweetheart contest or something. Only all their posters are advertising them as "Ball Queens."

Comedian Here For AMS Rally

RICK STEVENS
Lively Monologues

Comedian Rick Stevens will entertain at tomorrow's baseball rally in the men's gym during College Hour. The Associated Men Students are sponsoring the event.

Stevens is currently appearing at the Galaxy Lounge in North Beach, where he keeps his audience rolling in the aisles with his lively monologues on his wife, his comings and goings in the glittering world of show business and life in general.

The rally will plug a dance to be held Friday night in Smith Hall from 9 p.m. to midnight.

The special attraction of the Inter-Fraternity Council's "Fraternal Happening" will be a light show by the Optical Illusion. The OI is made up of City College students who help their audiences to a dazzling display of bombastic, shimmering and hallucinatory lighting effects.

Conlan Appoints Committee To Expand Black Curriculum Here

Eleven members of the administration and faculty have been named to a committee for the development of a group of course offerings in Afro-American studies here at City College.

This announcement came last week from Dr. Louis G. Conlan, college president.

Dr. William L. Cobb, assistant superintendent of schools, has agreed to serve as an advisory member of the committee which is aimed to broaden City College's curriculum to meet the needs of our students more precisely," Conlan announced.

THE 11-MEMBER committee headed by Chairman Robert Tealer of the counseling department includes the following instructors and administrators: Beverly Pasqualetti, Roy Thomas, Robert Brennan, Mary A. Lewis, L. Richard Bloomer, Peter Hoch, Vernie Henderson Jr., Robert A. Jones, Jack H. Aldridge and William L. Cobb.

Recently one of the two black curriculum courses offered by the college this semester, History 48 (African Civilization), was dropped since no qualified instructors were available to teach the course due to conflicting time schedules.

However, the other course, Anthropology 36, is still running and taking an optimistic outlook on the possibilities of the new committee, many new courses might very well be added to the black curriculum for the Fall.

According to Conlan, the committee will make a study of the curriculum possibilities shortly and will report their findings and recommendations back to him at the earliest date.

The following courses have already been proposed for next semester: one psychology course, one anthropology course, four English courses and two history courses, according to Pasqualetti of the committee.

Shirley Plans First Freshman Class Meeting Tomorrow

Frosh President Rich Shirley announced last week that the first freshman class meeting in the history of City College will be held tomorrow during C-Hour at 11 a.m. in S-100.

The purpose of the meeting will be for Shirley to inform the freshman class of the events that are happening in student government, to ask for questions, suggestions and new ideas and to try to enlist more support in frosh activities.

He hopes for a big turnout but he isn't expecting it. The general consensus down in Bungalow 5, according to Shirley, is that the majority of the students at City College couldn't care less about student government and their own class.

Shirley feels that the lack of enthusiasm shown by the Associated Students and the freshman class in particular is quite disheartening and he would like to see this situation changed, starting tomorrow.

Shirley wants this meeting to be a step forward for the freshman class. He stressed that it's up to the students to help their elected representatives make the freshman class great. Without student help this goal will be next to impossible to attain.

TODAY IS THE LAST TIME TO DROP COURSES
See Your Counselor!

Campus Lineup:

• IFC Happening

The Inter-Fraternity Council will present a "Fraternal Happening" in Smith Hall this Friday night, featuring "rock music" and a convex light show. Music will be provided by the Main Attraction and the light show performed by the Optical Illusion.

• Sweetheart Ball

The annual Sweetheart Ball, sponsored by the Chinese Student Association, is scheduled for April 20. It will be held in the Mural-California room of the St. Francis Hotel beginning at 9 p.m. and lasting until 1 a.m. Tickets are available in B-5.

• Song Girls

Names of students who wish to run for song girl are now being taken in B-5. An applicant for song girl must be taking at least ten units during the Spring 1968 term, and have a 2.0 grade point on her second midterm.

• Westside Story

West Side Story, a contemporary love drama of a Romeo and Juliet, will open Friday night at the A. P. Giannini Junior High School Auditorium, beginning at 8 p.m. Three students of the college have top roles in this dramatic story.

Money collected from this production has not yet been designated for any particular organization but Director Dave Greenberg says, "There is no doubt that the proceeds will go to charity." Tickets are available in Bungalow 5.

• Dick Gregory

Dick Gregory, one of the nation's top comedians, will speak later this month in the college theater. His topic has not yet been disclosed but Dean Warren White presumes "He will talk about Vietnam or Civil Rights. These two topics seem to be his major concern."

Before he speaks at City College, as a part of the Lecture and Concert Series, Gregory will speak at UC Davis, and after here, he will be going to Los Angeles.

Jessica Mitford

Guest Speaker Attacks 'Trial By Headline'

By Penny Blum

Last Thursday, Jessica Mitford spoke during College Hour on the timely subject of "Trial By Headline." The basis of her talk was the old controversy of free press versus fair trial.

Miss Mitford emphasized that in America a man is supposedly innocent until proven guilty, yet many times our newspapers pronounce someone guilty before the trial. Her most famous example was that of Dr. Sam Sheppard, and the Supreme Court decision as a result of his mis-trial.

SHE BROUGHT HER point closer to home by relating the case of Rexingzer. He was arrested for the rape of a young girl who positively identified him. The newspapers crucified him before his trial ever came up. Miss Mitford read many examples of the biased reporting from the dailies of the time. She mentioned by name Ed Montgomery of the Examiner, whom she said specialized in "phony reporting." By a fluke, the true culprit was found, but the newspapers neither retracted nor apologized for their sensational way of handling the case. But rather, stated Miss Mitford, "They twisted the story around to glorify the newspapers."

Miss Mitford had two suggested remedies to avoid trial by headline, both of which do not seem likely in the near future. The first is purely legal; the defendant can request a change of venue, but this is seldom granted and usually no help.

THE SECOND suggestion involves the editors of the newspapers. The editors could either adopt a code of ethics or the government could set a standard for them. Miss Mitford suggested jail terms for those defying the code of ethics. She quoted H. L. Menken as saying, "Editors will only change through the fear of penalty by law."

But, as she emphasized, legislation against the newspapers is usually hampered by bringing up the first amendment, by the press. The press usually claims that to deny them access of all the facts, before and during the trial is limiting free press.

MISS MITFORD said that she suspects we shall see several more trials by newspaper in the near future. Two of the cases are local, they are the Huey Newton trial, and the trial of the Oakland youths (because of induction center fiasco). She stated that both of the cases have already been covered extensively by the press, and not objectively.

The third case she mentioned will be the subject of her next book, which is the trial of Dr. Benjamin Spock.

McQuaid: 'Let 'Em In For A Quarter'

Bill McQuaid, sophomore president, introduced a resolution to Student Council Monday which would give seating preference to Associated Student card holders and to students who donate 25 cents at the door to all AS events.

THE PRESENT regulation requires an AS card for attendance to all AS-financed events. McQuaid points out this policy has not been successful.

The AS adopted the regulation in an effort to raise more money for better quality speakers.

He believes his proposal will reduce the possibility of cutting the budget of the Concert-Lecture Series later in the semester.

THE AVAILABILITY of the Concert-Lecture Series had created a controversy. Some AS card holders had insisted that only card holders should be admitted to AS events. Non-members had been attending before the regulation went into effect.

The regulation appeased the AS card holders that insisted that AS members be admitted only. Some members argued that empty seats should be occupied, even if it means filling them with non-members.

Prior to the proposal, McQuaid had thought of charging admission fees to the Concert-Lecture Series as a possible solution. But, a Board of Education law prohibits charging an admission fee on campus in the day time.

He said his proposal was an outgrowth of the Area Six Student Government Conference two weeks ago. Students in the discussion group said that asking donations from non-members who attend AS functions is a common practice at most junior colleges in California.

Spectrum: For The Losers

by Barbara Hamann

HAVE YOU EVER lost something? Whether it's of value, sentiment or a piece of junk it's annoying to lose it. Even more, it's frustrating when you can't find it or don't know where to look.

Everyday, Monday through Friday, lost items are registered with the Lost and Found department located in Smith Hall, room 103.

Here are just a few of the unclaimed items accumulated: keys, books, shoes, glasses, clothes, umbrellas and credit cards. There are also golf clubs, jewelry, gym suits and a wig. The accumulation of goods started in 1967 and, frankly, it doesn't look as if it will let up.

MOST PEOPLE, when losing something, give up looking immediately. They chalk up their loss as an unfortunate experience and forget about it. If you didn't know before that there is a lost and found you do now.

In addition to the Smith Hall branch, there are three other lost and found locations:

Arts Building	Room 201
Cloud Hall	Room 303
Science Building	Room 149

By the time you're of the august age to have reached an institution of higher learning you should have learned how to hang on to your possessions, baby.

By nature we're all somewhat forgetful, and losing things is part of being human. It's also very human to miss what you lose especially if it's of value or a necessity.

Identification helps but can't completely solve the problem of unclaimed goods. The big problem is returning the lost item to its owner. Unless the owner claims an umbrella, a book or whatever, it is a hopeless situation. The Lost and Found items keep piling up, unused, and some unhappy individual goes on compaining that fate has done him in.

Keys and glasses are not only valuable dollar wise, but are a valuable necessity. Losing these items can cause someone a great deal on inconvenience.

How can a person function without glasses if they wear them? Before buying a new pair, check to see if they might be waiting for you in one of the lost and found offices.

Every student knows the hardship of buying books. Book prices, on the average, range from one to ten dollars. If you lose a book don't jump to buy a new one before trying to find it.

Perseverance pays off. A young woman was eating in a well established restaurant that catered to hundreds of people each hour. Half way through the dinner she realized she had lost her retainers (an appliance worn in the mouth). Having laid them on the table while eating, the waiter threw them out not knowing what they were. Later that evening and seven barrels of garbage later her retainers were recovered.

The lost and found offices operate for the convenience of the students. As one lost and found office stated, "We dare you to put us out of business."

Foothill Falls, 13-5, As Ram Batters Come Alive In 2-Win, 2-Loss Week

By Arthur Fanfelle

The rebirth of the Ram batsmen came as they amassed 20 hits in whipping Foothill, 13-5, March 26 at Foothill.

The Rams went on to win one and lose two other games that week. The losses came at the hands of Chabot, 6-3, and San Mateo, 6-3, while the win was over Merritt, 8-4.

The Rams, in the Foothill contest, scored in the second inning on a base on balls by Jim Smith and singles by Odel Williams and Tim Calian.

The second Ram run came in the fourth with Manny Berrios doubling to right and Williams laced a double, driving him in.

A single run in the fifth came about when Andy Fracchia walked, Chuck Gray doubled, Chuck Gretton singled and Smith also singled, driving in Gretton.

IN THE SEVENTH inning Gretton scored as he and Smith doubled and Berrios singled. With the score 7-5 in the eighth inning the Rams exploded for six runs with Gray and Tom Mayfield hitting back-to-back doubles and Fracchia, Callen, Gretton and Dave Kline all hitting singles.

Four Rams had three hits during the contest as Gretton, Fracchia, Berrios and Callen turned the trick. Eight of the Rams had at least one run-batted-in with Fracchia, Berrios and Callen having two each.

The host Rams lost to Chabot on March 22 as the Gladiators scored three times in the top of the fourth inning, taking a 4-3 advantage and adding two insurance runs later.

The Rams beat Merritt by an 8-4 count March 23, collecting 14 hits. Mayfield and Berrios collected three hits each.

Williams had a near perfect day going four-for-five from the plate.

THE SCORE WAS tied 4-4 going into the ninth as the Rams came to bat.

With two outs and nobody on, Joe Dutto's sharp grounder to the Owls' third baseman went for an error. Fracchia followed with another smash that the third baseman booted.

Paul Clayton was walked, setting up the force play. Mayfield, the Rams' leading hitter, came up to the plate having two singles in three trips. Mayfield unloaded a triple into the corner, driving in three runs.

Gretton doubled, driving in Mayfield, and ending the scoring.

Dutto pitched a fine game, striking out six and walking six.

The Rams travel to Hayward to play Chabot tomorrow, beginning at 3 p.m.

The Rams seem to be off the pace of last year's 9-5 record, but, considering the fact that they play each team three times the Rams' hopes for taking the Golden Gate Conference title are still not lost.

On Tuesday, April 9, the Rams play a practice game against Cabrillo College at Aptos. Starting time is 1 p.m.

Duggan, Sutton In Star Roles—Delts, G'man Clash Next

Intramural competition is again being dominated by The Guardsman and Phi Delta fraternity with both teams extending their winning streaks to 3-0, with wins over Alpha Phi Epsilon and Filippino-Americans respectiveiy. The Guardsman win, 52-24, was led by Mike Duggan's 26 points and the playmaking of Eddie Murtha. While the Phi Delts swamped the Filippino-Americans 60-42 behind Dale Sutton's 20 points.

In the later games the Celtics narrowly defeated the Blackstone Rangers 47-46, and the Can't Lasts won out over the Revisables 44-41, with Vince Moran pouring through 20 points.

In last Tuesday's matches the H&R soundly beat the Chi Rho fraternity 44-22, behind Ed Wilson's 17 points. The Blackstone Rangers easily beat the Revisables 63-48, led by Smith and Lewis who had 19 and 18 points respectively.

That same night in the men's gym the Red Mountaineers handily beat the Friendly Bears 52-21. While in the later contest the Vandals posted their first win, in a close one over the Filippino-Americans, 47-46.

TOMORROW'S GAMES will be marked by the clash between The Guardsman and the Phi Delts, as they put their perfect records on the line at 7 p.m. in the women's gym. Other contests put the Celtics versus the Can't Lasts, the Blackstone Rangers versus the Friendly Bears, and the Newman Vandals take on the H&R.

Intramural hoopsters will receive a much needed and much deserved rest, as will the rest of the college next week due to Easter vacation.—W. D.

CLUB LEAGUE

	Won	Lost
Guardsman	3	0
Phi Delt	3	0
H & R	2	1
Newman Vandals	1	2
Filipino-Americans	1	3
Chi Rho Delta	0	3
Epsilon	0	1

INDEPENDENT LEAGUE

	Won	Lost
Red Mountaineers	3	0
Blackstone Rangers	3	1
Can't Lasts	2	1
Celtics	1	2
Friendly Bears	1	2
Revisables	0	4

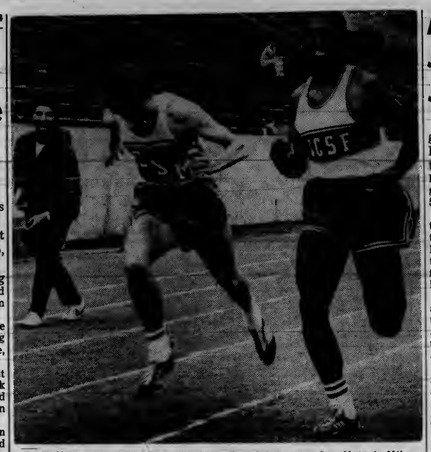
RAMblings

Mesa Sprinter Fray Sets JC 220 Record

By Mike Duggan

MIKE FRAY of Mesa (Arizona) College set a new national junior college record for the 220 when he ran the distance in 20.5 on March 2. To prove it was no fluke, Fray came back the following week with a 20.6 clocking. The former mark, 20.9, was set by San Jose State's Ronnie Ray Smith while running for Los Angeles City College.

GEORGE REYNOLDS, Houston's 6-5 guard who was declared ineligible for the recent NCAA championships, was the California junior college "Player of the Year" last season while at Imperial Valley. Reynolds hit for 13 points and was instrumental in breaking the UCLA press in aiding Houston's 71-69 Astrodome victory.



Laney's Fred Jackson became the first junior college high jumper to leap seven feet this year when he cleared the height at the Easter Relays in Santa Barbara, March 24. Jackson also made seven feet last season, his freshman year at Laney. The national junior college record is 7-1½, set by Santa Ana's Ed Caruthers in 1965. Ed is the older brother of Sam Caruthers, the Golden Gate Conference's top hurdler and pole vaulter from San Jose.

Eddie Wilson, former Washington High and City College basketball star finished sixth in the country this past season in rebounding by grabbing 17.7 rebounds a game for his Idaho State team.

THE MEMBERS of the Chabot basketball team named their all-opponent squad recently. The Rams' Ray Hearne was selected on the first team along with Harry Brown (Contra Costa), Jeff Frost (Foothill), Tom Scott (Merritt), and Ken Booker of Long Beach.

City College's Gary Bradford, who hit 35 in one game against Chabot, was picked on the second team.

O. J. Simpson, former City College great, returns to the Bay Area this Saturday when the defending NCAA champion USC track team meets California at Edwards Stadium, beginning at 1 p.m. The nation's top hurdler, Earl McCulloch of USC, the Trojan world record 440 relay team (McCulloch, Fred Kuller, Simpson and Lennox Milier), and Cal high jumper Clarence Johnson will be the feature performers of the meet.

RAM MILE AND 880 STAR Vic Cary (far right) edges San Mateo's Mike Dailey in 4:31.0 to Dailey's 4:31.2 in mile run here last week. At far left is Ram Coach Lou Vasquez, who has helped Cary step into the shoes of last year's middle distance star Hoy Henderson.
—Guardsman photo by Jens Protze

Bulldogs Defeat Tracksters; Rams Lose On Field Events

By Dave Albertson

College of San Mateo Bulldog trackmen dealt the Rams a decisive loss at City College, Friday, March 22. San Mateo won 81-55.

The meet was highlighted by Vic Cary edging conference cross country champion Mike Dailey in the mile run. Cary won in 4:31 flat, while Dailey was only two tenths of a second behind in 4:31.2.

The situation was reversed in the 880 as Ed Temple of San Mateo edged out Cary. Temple finished first in 1:58.5, while Cary placed second in 2:00.7. Bruce Eaton of San Mateo was close behind in third, with a time of 2:01.0.

ERNIE PROVOST took the 100 with a sprint of 9.9. He also won the 220 with his fastest time of the season in 21.8.

Larry Mosely took two second places, with a 22.5 effort in the 220, and a leap of 22-5 in the long jump.

Tom Clyburn made his first appearance of the season in the high jump. He won his event with a jump of 6-4. Gary Dilley of San Mateo was second at six feet even.

Vince Ansley of the Rams ran a 50.7 440 for another Ram first place. David Jones followed in second place in the time of 51.5. Jones also placed third in the triple jump with a jump of 40-8.

The Rams' Forest Shute took third in the pole vault with a vault of 13-7½. Rich Dragovich and Ron Coleman of San Mateo also cleared 13-7½, but were awarded first and second place on account of fewer misses.

DAILEY OF SAN MATEO won the two-mile run in 9:46.6. Joe Belton, also of San Mateo, placed second in 9:47.2. George Haza of the Rams was close behind in third place with a time of 9:48.8.

In the 120-yard high hurdles, Ram Greg Jackson finished a close second to San Mateo's John Schuler. Schuler won in 15.8, while Jackson was only one tenth of a second off the mark in 15.9. Jackson also placed third in the 330-yard intermediate hurdles in the time of 41.6. Al Masaoka of San Mateo won the intermediate hurdles in 40.8.

Bill Butler won the long jump with a leap of 22-9. Butler's mark of 22-9 ranks him fourth in the conference standings.

San Mateo completely dominated the other field events, with sweeps in the shot put and discus. Salzono of San Mateo won the shot put with a toss of 46-9½, while teammate Fogel won the discus with a throw of 140-4.

The Rams easily won the 440 relay in 42 flat, but lost the mile relay. San Mateo won the mile relay due to a Ram mixup in dropping the baton on the last leg of the race.

Provost, Harris Duel Highlight Of Friday's Meet

The second place San Jose Jaguars are slated to meet the Ram tracksters here this Friday at 3 p.m.

San Jose's attack is led by conference standouts Earl Harris and Sam Caruthers. The Jaguars also feature Calvin Robinson in the 440 and Dave Carlin in the field events.

Harris presently leads the conference in the 220 and the triple jump.

The Jaguars' Caruthers also ranks near the top of the conference in a number of events. He ranks first in the 120-yard high hurdles in the time of 14.5, and second in the 330-yard intermediate hurdles in 39.6. He also ranks second in the pole vault with a vault of 15.0. He is the defending conference champion in the pole vault.

THE JAGUARS' high jump trio of Bill Pennington, Ted Lepas and Scott Loomis tied for second place in the conference relays at Foothill earlier in the season. Pennington presently ranks fourth in the league standings at 6-4½. Lepas and Loomas have both cleared 6-3 this season.

A duel between Pennington and Ram Tom Clyburn is expected in this Friday's meet. Clyburn cleared 6-4 in his first appearance in the high jump this year.

The meet will also be highlighted by a duel between the two top sprinters in the conference, in the form of Ram Ernie Provost and Jaguar Harris. Provost ranks first in the 100 at 9.6, while Harris is second in 9.7. Harris is rated first in the 220 in 21.6, with Provost second in 21.8. Harris is defending 100 and 220 champion as he edged Provost in both events in last year's league championships.

Ram Coach Lou Vasquez has a host of 440 men to send against quarter-miler Robinson of the Jaguars. Robinson ranks second in the league with a time of 49.4.

THE RAMS' Larry Mosely and Jaguar Harris are expected to give each other a battle in the long jump. Mosely is rated fourth in the league long jump, while Harris ranks second.

A team duel is expected in the 440 relay. The Jaguars have the fastest time in league this season of 41.1. The Rams are close behind in 42 flat.

San Jose also boasts the league's leading time in the mile relay of 3:17.7.—D. A.

Linkers Win Fifth Straight Match; San Jose Next Foe

City College of San Francisco's golf team stands undefeated in league play after dropping Contra Costa College at Harding Park, March 22. The Ram linkers will go into this Friday's meet with a 5-0 record.

Gary Corvi came in with a 78 to take all six points from Contra Costa's Mark Roberts, who chopped up Harding Park with a 108. Doug Boston, with an 81, secured the six points from Pete McLaughlin, who hacked his way around with an 89.

Brent Salmi also hacked his way around with an 89, losing five points to the Rams' Stew Whitman, who shot an 81. Paul Rea came in with an 82 to split the six points with Ronald Joost, who had an 84. Contra Costa's Denny Garman, with a 78, picked up four points from Donn Paulson, who shot an 80.

Coach Grover Klemmer said, "San Jose is the best team in the league." This Friday the Rams' linkers will take on San Jose at Almaden Country Club. The Rams' hopes for this important match will ride on the new men. Paulson will go into play as number one man, with a 76.5 average, followed by Rea, with a 76.8. Whitman will play as number three man, with an average of 77.4; Corvi number four, with 78.6, and Boston as anchor man with 79.—G. L. W.

Netters Capture First Place Lead

The City College netters captured the league lead at Oakland Friday, March 22, when they upset top-ranked Merritt by a score of 5-2.

The previously unbeaten T-Birds put in a creditable performance on their own tennis courts but were no match for Coach Roy Diederichsen's cohorts.

Ram Chuck White, in the first singles match, quickly beat Merritt ace Les Hansen, 6-1, 6-3.

John Wong's marathon hassle with Tim Hasler was reminiscent of the 1966 world record match in Warsaw, Poland where Roger Taylor beat Wieslaw Gasiorek 27-25, 6-4, 31-29. Wong finally out-volleyed Hasler 6-4, 4-6, 11-9, finishing a good 1½ hours after Chuck had polished off Hansen.

Although Ram George Zoul was beaten, Paul Stafatos and Tony Lee, neither of whom has lost a league singles match, pulled through with victories, Stafatos coming from behind 3-6, 6-4, 6-1, and Lee beating his Thunderbird 6-3, 7-5.

In doubles, Wong and White, who have long been looking for their equal on the courts, are still looking, as they eclipsed Hansen and Hasler 6-2, 6-2.

Coach Roy Diederichsen was glad the match ended when it did as the rain just reached the game and the coach just reached the plane in time to see UCLA's basketballers beat Houston.

This Friday the college netters hit the royal road south to San Mateo, for an all-important league duel.—E. J.

Local Aquamen Fall To San Jose, 82-29

The City College swim team was buried in a losing cause, 82-29, March 22 against San Jose City College in the victors' pool.

City College swimmers placed one first, four seconds and a third in six different events.

Rich Glass of City College raced to victory and took a good first place in the 200-yard butterfly event in 2:22.6. Glass also led the butterfly in the relay event and broke his own time with a :59 flat. Jim Vida managed a second in the 500-yard breaststroke in 2:48.8.

Dave Detert took second place in the one-meter diving event with a total points of 168, while a member of the San Jose team took first with a total of 189 points. Diver Tom Jarvis of City College also took a second in the three-meter diving event.

Jarvis gave a good performance by scoring well on three different dives which he had never before attempted on the three-meter board. Dave Nelson started in first position but finally ended in a close second place in the 200-yard backstroke in 2:04.4. Roger Shane gave City College its only third place of the day in the 1000-yard free-style in 14:46.—P. T.

Signups For Intramural Wrestling On Monday

Signups for anyone interested in competing in intramural wrestling will be held in the men's gym Monday. Curt Decker, varsity swimming coach, will be head of the grapplers' activities. This addition of wrestling makes this term's intramural program one of the most varied in recent years.

$550,000 Loan Sought For Student Union

By Boku Kodama

An application for a $550,000 loan from the federal government, which will enable City College of San Francisco to build a Student Union, was passed on by Student Council on Monday, April 1, and approved by the Board of Education on the following day.

The preceding Friday, March 29, a meeting was held by Dr. Buttimer, coordinator of construction on campus. Attending the meeting were Victor Vaio, assistant to Buttimer; James Wyatt, student adviser; Lawrence Bloomer, social science instructor and Lawrence Franceschina, instructor of architecture.

ALSO PRESENT were Bill McQuaid, sophomore president; Jim Dierke, Student Counell representative; Guardsman editor Ed Holmes; and John Waterfield, Student Counell representative.

Dr. Buttimer discussed plans for the Student Union Building and estimates the cost to be around $990,000. So far the campus bookstore, the Ramporium, has raised $50,000 toward the construction.

The Student Union will help in relieving the already congested Statler Wing by providing more room for students.

It will be broken down into four main areas: the lounge-auditorium, offices, recreational area and the outside terrace.

THE LOUNGE area will be used for dances, conventions, exhibits, etc. There will also be an auditorium, storage facilities, dressing room, a mezzanine, meeting rooms, a check room and a service kitchen.

The office area will have union management offices, offices for student body officers, Student Council chambers, a sign room, storage facilities and a number of other offices.

THE RECREATIONAL AREA will furnish game rooms (billiards, table tennis), food facilities and a library.

The outside terrace will be made up of a lounge area and rally space.

In all, the building should have between 18,500 to 20,000 square feet of floor space. Buttimer believes the maintenance of this area should be serviced by the school.

The Associated Students of City College have been authorized by the Board of Education to employ Milton Pfluegar, the architect of the college, to prepare preliminary plans, specifications, and other information concerning the Student Union Building.

The construction of the Student Union Building itself should cost around $700,000 while the landscaping will add another $100,000. Consultants fees will be $75,000 while external utilities, supervision and inspection, plans, duplicating, legal fees and project contingency will be $115,000.

THE IDEA of a Student Union Building had been thought of for several years, but it was not until six months ago that proposals for such a building were made. The preliminary plans for the structure must be submitted before April 30. Within a month, the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development should approve or disapprove the plans.

If these plans are approved, the loan will be made and be paid off over a period of 50 years at three percent interest from bookstore profits.

The site of the Student Union will probably be in place of the Ramporium. The construction is planned to begin in about six months and be completed in the fall of 1971.

Fifty New Instructors Expected For Fall Term

Fall semester at City College will commence with approximately 50 new faces behind the rostrums.

Interviewing of instructors goes on at a forced pace in order to fill needs caused by normal attrition as well as by anticipated growth.

The screening of potential instructors has been underway in President Louis Conlan's conference room here for the past two weeks.

Dr. Louis F. Batmale, recently appointed vice president of the college, has been interviewing applicants with the president. Conlan and Batmale expect that 40 to 55 new instructors will be added to the faculty by fall.

THE NECESSITY of screening at this particular time roots from the predicted loss of faculty members by retirements and resignations in the Fall 1968 semester. It is also a result of the expected increase in the number of students attending City College.

Batmale said they have been interviewing five or six applicants a day. He added they will continue the screening until the quota is met.

President Conlan pointed out that there are 362 full-time instructors. The total number of faculty is close to 400.

Batmale indicated that he plans on realigning the divisions of instruction. A reorganization of the deans is also planned.

The vice president said he is also searching for better channels of student communication. He will attempt to encourage even greater student-faculty relations.

When Batmale was asked how he liked his new position, he replied, "I think it's very exciting, working with students and faculty. Fine students and excellent faculty make it enjoyable."

Besides Batmale's new appointment as vice president, Jules Fraden has been appointed Dean of Instruction and Dr. Jack H. Aldridge has assumed the position of Assistant Dean of Instruction.

Fraden said he planned on instituting some new two-year programs. A Medical Records Technology will start in September 1968. Also, Orthopedic Assistance in September 1969, and possibly Inhalation Therapy.

The need for these programs is a projection of the pressure that is presently put on practicing MD's in hospitals. Medicine is becoming more complex and leaving less time for the physician to concentrate on surgery.

With the addition of more medical technicians, it is believed the pressure will be lessened.

In reference to his new position, Fraden said, "Otherwise, I will just spend time learning my new duties and responsibilities."

H&R Explains Price Policy

More food and lower prices was the topic of discussion in a meeting held at Smith Hall Tuesday, April 2. The meeting was held between members of the faculty and The Over Five and Twenty Club.

Dr. Louis Batmale, newly appointed vice president, opened the meeting with a rundown on the history and background of the Hotel and Restaurant Department and its development up to the present time.

Larry Wong, director of food operations and training, followed Dr. Batmale with a complete presentation of the hotel and restaurant's financial position.

He also pointed out reasons for the college's established price and portion policy.

Wong compared the price of our campus lunch of 75 cents to the average downtown lunch price of $1.50.

He emphasized that at City College 65 percent of the cost goes for food, 30 percent for labor and five percent for miscellaneous usages.

In comparison, downtown lunches consisted of 40 percent for food, 30 percent for labor and 30 percent for for miscellaneous usages which accompany any such operation.

Wong stated, "The price and portion served in our cafeteria is fair, and items concurrent with our financial position."

David Borrelli, manager-instructor of the H&R department, feels that, "This meeting was a success in clearing up some misunderstandings that have been developing on campus over prices and food portions in our cafeteria."

Borrelli also said that "more meetings of this nature should be held, to help point out all the facts to the students concerned." Borrelli is a former graduate of City College.

Shirley Brown and Sharon Meyers, co-originators of OFT, said "The meeting helped clear up a lot of misunderstandings that had been developing on campus over food price and portion in our cafeteria."—D. A.

Forum Deadline This Friday

Friday is the last day to submit material to the Forum, the college's literary magazine, and adviser Donald Cunningham welcomes anything from essays to photographs.

The Forum will be available the latter part of May and will be free to AS card holders, otherwise a price of 50 cents will be charged.

Forum 1968 marks its 33rd year of publication on campus. From submission of material to selection to final publication, it is a learning process.

WHAT GOES ON behind the magazine as well as its format is well defined as Forum: A median of open discussion.

"THE PROCESS of judging and accepting compositions is the job of the Forum staff and the final decision is theirs," emphasized Cunningham, Forum adviser. Very often these are difficult decisions to make, for it means studying each piece of work carefully and making the best possible judgment. The student offering a story, poem or whatever is merely step one in the process. The nine members of the staff then take over the task of evaluating and deciding what is finally to be published.

When it is received, the manuscript is placed in a folder, the name of the student is removed to insure unbiased criticism and an evaluation sheet is enclosed. Each of the staff members reads the material and evaluates it. Then at a staff meeting, the evaluated material is given open discussion and comments are made as to its contents and literary merit.

A POINT SYSTEM is used for choosing what is actually to go into the magazine, the highest rating being five points and the material receiving the highest rating is given priority. Thus, each entry is given equal attention, unbiased evaluation and open discussion.

In order for the Forum to be of high quality there must be the best of material to chose from in both the art and literature fields. Material may be submitted to Cunningham in C-333a.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 66 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, APRIL 17, 1968 NUMBER 7

Tree Planting Ceremony Ends 'Dirty Work'

The final tree in the beautification of City College project was planted in front of the Science Building at a ceremony on April 2, by three school officials.

Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, Commissioner Adolfo deUrioste, from the Board of Education, and Wilbert Vesnyes, assistant superintendent in charge of building and grounds of the San Francisco School Department, were the officials.

The three shared the ceremonial shovel, which was decorated in red and white ribbons, and tossed the first pile of dirt on the final Monterey pine tree being planted.

"Father of landscaping for City College," Commissioner deUrioste pushed the Board of Education on this beautification project, according to Victor Varo, Educational Management Department, under Dr. Harry R. Buttimer.

THREE YEARS AGO, while president of the School Board, Commissioner deUrioste spoke at a luncheon meeting at City College, for the faculty. He stated that "One project I hope to see completed is the landscaping of City College of San Francisco."

On April 2, when the final tree, saved for him to plant, was placed in the ground, Commissioner deUrioste was "most pleased" to witness his dream "finally taking place."

Following the tree planting ceremony the school officials were guests at a luncheon in the faculty dining room.

WATERING these plants will be of no problem. An automatic sprinkling system has been installed to give sufficient amounts of water during various times of day.

The project, which got underway last September, was under a city contract with Anthony M. Guzzardo & Associates, a well known San Francisco architect firm.

The shovel that was used in the ceremony was the same one that originally broke the earth when construction of the college first began in 1935.

Ida Minnich AWS Best Dressed Campus Coed

The Best-Dressed Coed On Campus is Ida Minnich, a dental hygiene student here. The award was presented at the traditional Associated Women's Fashion Show and Tea on April 3.

Miss Minnich, a fourth semester student at City College, was chosen among twelve other semifinalists.

The honor qualifies Miss Minnich to represent City College in the Glamour Magazine Best-Dressed Coed Contest. Colleges throughout the country will enter finalists for the nation-wide competition.

THIS SEMESTER'S theme was entitled "Colors In An Egg Shell." Fashions, ranging from delicate lace to sturdy leather, were shown compliments of Deb's Den of the Marina.

The decor was very simple, but smart . . . white table coverings, colorful floral arrangements and silver tea service were set . . . Linda Wong was chairman of the decor.

Serving tea and pastries were hostesses JoAnn McCue and Gloria Dunn.

Shirley Brown, AWS president, gave a welcoming speech before a near-capacity audience prior to introducing Dolores McWiggins, clothes consultant and commentator.

ENTERTAINMENT, adding a relaxing mood to the atmosphere, was performed by the "Emanon's" men's sextet, the jazz dance class of RA and pianist George Rango.

The Intersorority Council award, a gold emblem braeclet, went to Gloria Gee, freshman with the highest grade point of 3.52. Miss Gee is a pre-med student and holds the highest grade point average of any woman student in the freshman class.

Judges were Madison Devlin and Margaret Vota. Contestants were judged on the basis of general appearance, poise, grooming and smile.—B. H.

CSA Sweetheart Ball Saturday

The 23rd annual Sweetheart Ball, sponsored by the Chinese Students Association (CSA) of City College, will be held this Saturday evening from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the St. Francis Hotel.

The purpose of the ball is to raise money for the CSA special scholarship treasury from which six $100 scholarships are rewarded annually to six Chinese students with serious financial problems, who have a grade point average of 3.0 or better.

In order to make the ball a success, the CSA has secured a nationally known group, Tony Materie and his Orchestra, to supply the music.

At the stroke of midnight, the winner of the Sweetheart Queen contest will be announced and she and her four princesses will be crowned. The five candidates and their managers are: Faye Wong—Calvin Gin, Waynna Tom—Franklin Woo, Alice Gee—Paul Wong, Janice Wong—Ben Wong, and Kathy Tong—Tom Booten.

Refreshments, photographs and door prizes will be offered. Dress will be semiformal (at least cocktail dresses and suits).

'Fairytales' At Retail Floristry Open House Here

Retail Floristry's tenth annual open house got underway yesterday at the Retail Floristry Center, 273 Judson Avenue, and will continue through today.

The flower displays will be available for student and faculty viewing today from 9 a.m. through 1 p.m.

This year's theme for the Retail Floristry Department is entitled "Fairytales in Flowers" and will feature twelve window displays pius demonstrations in floral arranging.

Mary, Mary Quite Contrary; Alice In Wonderland; Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs; Bambi; Little Red Riding Hood, and The Three Little Pigs will be among the window display designs.

EACH STUDENT designs his own window display and is judged on originality, design , (depending on the theme), sales appeal, artistry, and quality and quantity of flowers used.

Trophies were awarded to the first, second and third place winners at a presentation dinner held last night in Statler Wing. A fourth place award was presented for the abundance and effective use of flowers.

Awards were presented through the courtesy of the Zappettini Company, wholesale florists, according to Maryhope Jacks, floristry instructor.

Approximately 250 guests attended the presentation dinner following the viewing. Guests included: judges, former students, and florists from the industry.

ON OTHER floral fronts, the department is preparing a 900 square foot landscaped display for the annual California Spring Garden Show at the Oakland Coliseum. Harry Nelson, head of the ornamental horticulture department, said that the theme of this year's show is "The Greatest Show On Earth." The date for the gala event is May 10.

"Our entire department is working on the completely landscaped exhibit. We have one crew of people constructing the display and then another crew of people who will install our exhibit. It's going to be a pleasing aray of floral designs," Nelson concluded.

Last year's theme was Florali, a festival dedicated to Flora, the Roman goddess of flowers. The college's exhibit was a statue of her surrounded by a bevy of beautiful blossoms.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco

ED HOLMES, Editor

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

Vol. 66, No. 7 WEDNESDAY, APRIL 17, 1968 Page 2

Proposed Student Union

CITY COLLEGE is being considered for a $600,000 loan for the express purpose of building a Student Union.

The chance to secure funds at this particular time was apparently unexpected. A concrete proposal including site, space, utilization and preliminary design must be submitted by the end of this month. Most planners would give various reasons why a proposal should not or could not be drawn up in that length of time.

Faced with this problem, the administration still made the gesture of including representative student opinion in their plans.

The drawbacks of such a move were demonstrated by a council member focusing on one telephone while a whole building was being discussed, but ideas were exchanged and student views listened to.

The Guardsman applaudes this action and hopes that the results will prove that students and administrators can work together for a better campus.

AS Cards Again

CITY COLLEGE is a commute campus. There is no form of on-campus housing.

This means that outside the classroom there is no captive audience for the administration or for Student Council.

It means that an excellent drama department and an above-average lecture series must compete with the outstanding entertainment available in the entire Bay Area.

Council has tried to make AS cards attractive by limiting campus functions to card carrying individuals, but AS cards are not selling as expected.

The experiment has failed. Council must now come up with a better idea.

Choice '68

CHOICE '68 offers the youth of this nation a unique chance to be heard in a very meaningful way. Political leaders, policy makers and news analysts across the country will closely watch the results of this collegiate presidential primary.

The Guardsman, in the strongest possible language, urges each and every City College student to register his opinion at the polls next Wednesday.

Labelled And Recorded

The Big Band Resurrection

by Martin J. Arbunich

ONE OF THE nicest offsprings of contemporary rock music is the fresh sounding big band approach which has sprung up over the last few months. It's the merging of the traditional rhythm section of rock with a spicy brass section producing a sound which is innovative and intriguing.

A few of the blues bands, as in the case of the Butterfield group, have installed brass sections to give themselves a fuller sound and to enhance the beauty of the music. The very promising local rock group, the Sons of Champlin, though in need of a little buffing, have come up with a very distinctive sound since they've added a trio of brassmen last summer. The Electric Flag, kind of a big band rhythm and blues octet, puts on one of the most integral and richest sounding performances of any band around. And the horns are largely responsible for this.

Probably the best example of a real great brass section incorporated into a rock group is the four horn men that comprise one half of Blood, Sweat and Tears, one of the most important contributions to the current scene.

Talented keyboard player and song writer Al Kooper, formerly of the Blues Project, formed Blood, Sweat and Tears as it stands now only a few months back with the design "to make the horns just as important as the rhythm and vocals sections."

This is an unusual course for any rock group to pursue since it's always been an established rule of thumb to place the emphasis on guitars and drums. However, for Kooper it wasn't an unfeasible plan to follow and, to the surprise of many, his end product was the discovery of a very unique dimension in popular music. Rather than a very powerful horn section impairing the guitars and drums, his result was a pleasant fusion of the two sounds.

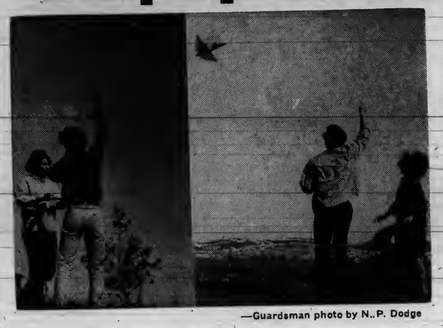
Their very professional blend of rock (with traces of blues, jazz and rhythm and blues) with horns can be heard on their brand new album on Columbia entitled Child Is Father To The Man.

This is one of the most beautiful productions to hit the market in some time, largely due to some brilliantly penned numbers by Kooper and, of course, the very tight amalgamation of sax, trombone and a pair of trumpets.

Their music at times is very powerful, however, their gamut runs to the opposite extreme with tender numbers like Without Her and guitarist Steve Katz' Meagan's Gypsy Eyes—both excellent numbers.

I Love You More Than You'll Ever Know is one of those haunting masterpieces that seems intimately familiar as if it was a standard that's been around for years. It's a Kooper original, however—a unique form of blues sung by Kooper and presented in a unique style which is totally BS&T.

Kooper's pattern of emphasizing the brass paradoxes the whole trend which rock music set years back.



Rock was originally in part a revolt against the big band sound of people like Glen Miller and Benny Goodman (etc), and their extensive use of horns. And now ironically Blood, Sweat and Tears is reverting back to that style which rock music was originally a reaction against.

The big band resurrection appears to be a trend that will become widely popularized in the rock circles very soon.

• • •

Love, the Staple Singers and Roland Kirk are at the Fillmore this weekend; Steppenwolf, Charley Musselwhite, the Indian Headband and the Fourth Way are at Avalon; The Carousel features Irma Franklin (sister of Aretha), Canned Heat, Santanna Blues Band and Fruminous Bander-snatch.

A Key Experiment

—Guardsman photo by N. P. Dodge

Paul Crowley's sculpture class, who began the semester manufacturing paper airplanes, recently unleashed a bevy of "UFO's" over the campus of City College.

The class flew their own original kite models although they weren't considered kites, but rather flying sculptures. The objective was to create and design a sculpture that would take hold of the wind and really glide.

Pie-In-Sky Plans Include $800,000 Pool

By John Benderitis

An Olympic-size swimming pool carrying an estimated cost of $800,000, is among the proposed construction projects for the campus under the school district's plan for facilities expansion.

The lack of an adequate swimming facility has plagued the college for a long time. The campus is now one of the few major junior colleges that doesn't have a pool.

One of those especially hopeful that the construction comes off without a hitch is Roy Burkhead, health instructor and former swimming coach, who participated for years in past efforts to obtain a pool for the college. He stated that despite continual efforts by the administration, they simply could never get a needed bond issue going due to lack of local interest, and because no federal funds were then available.

Although the recreation department was always cooperative and gave all the time and space it could, it was always a matter of "not enough water for so many fish."

Because of the severe space limitations, City College has had no championship swimming teams in the past, although they did produce a number of All-Americans.

According to present swimming coach Curt Decker, along with greatly improved swimming teams, the expanded facilities would enable the school to offer a complete program of aquatics, including water polo, water and boat safety, and canoeing.

Whereas now swimming teams must share the Balboa Park pool for practice, and travel to all of their swimming meets, they could then have home meets, plus hold such revenue-producing meets here as high school, Northern Cal and State championships, as well as Olympic trials.

Decker submitted rough drawings of five alternate plans for pools to the Department of Educational Management last year. The pool would be situated between the men and women's gyms.

The preferred size would be 50 meters by 25 yards (The NCAA college width), with a depth of from 4 to 14 feet. Alternate plans include a T-shaped 50-meter by 25 by 20-yard pool, and an L-shaped 25 by 25-meter pool.

Decker points out that the biggest expense wouldn't be the pool, but the building housing the pool.

The number of students that could use an Olympic-size swimming pool in a typical day would amount to over a thousand based on 150 students using it each hour for seven hours. This compares with the 60 students now using Balboa's pool four times a week from 10 to 11 a.m.

The pool is part of the physical education project and constitutes the costliest portion of it. Other work includes expansions of the men and women's gym and construction of six tennis courts. Total estimated cost of the expansion project is $1,310,000.

Pot Luck

by Tom Graham

VALUE OF CHOICE '68. For student radicals in the past, the only successful method for expressing political opinion has been dissent.

Looked down upon by society as a whole, young radicals have had nowhere to turn.

Their views have remained largely ignored, and their protests, correspondingly, have transformed into displays of cynicism and bitterness aimed at the Establishment. The existing American democratic process makes them feel even more voiceless with each passing day—and each mounting crisis.

Choice '68, the National Collegiate Presidential Primary, will either serve as testimony to their sincerity in attempting to make the world a better place to live in, or will expose them as hypocrites. It will likewise show them the actual political power of the vote.

According to the sponsors and coordinators of Choice '68, "If a sizeable percentage of college students do care enough to participate in the election, and, indeed, do succeed in exerting some appreciable pressure over the policymakers of the country, then the radicals may very well channel their considerable energies into the drive to lower the voting age to eighteen."

The ballot contains questions concerning the Vietnam war which should satisfy the most extreme of radicals. The current anti-administration feeling among students would certainly indicate a favorable turnout of the leftist vote.

Campus conservatives have often been ridiculed as being dedicated young fascists obsessed with the fantasy of ridding the free world of communism and related socialist factions, but the fact remains that the student right, as a political machine, is unequaled.

This condition has developed, ironically enough, as a result of the publicity that student leftists have received from the national press.

Actually, this distorted image is deceiving, for the very existence of the student right rests in its dedication to the democratic process. Student power for conservatives does not involve the leftist method of direct and militant social intervention regardless of law and order. It concerns instead power factors that make the bad sculpture flying. For these students it's "back to the drawing board" again to reconstruct their ideas.

Illegal Parkers— 75 Tags A Month

The Campus Police give out approximately 75 parking tickets a month to illegally parked cars within their jurisdiction.

Joseph Mullane, captain of the Campus Police force and Police Chief Steve Gudelj spoke with The Guardsman on the subject of regulating parking. Mullane stated that there is somewhere around 770 cars with parking permits that park in the reservoir. Ninety-eight percent of these cars are owned by City College students. The remainder of the identified cars belong to students of Riordan High School. The amount of cars that park there takes up only two-thirds of the reservoir.

On the other hand, faculty members have sometimes found it difficult to obtain space to park in their lots due to the fact that students are also using these areas. The faculty uses five large lots, plus a very small ten-car lot by the women's gym, and shares another one with students.

The faculty parking lots are: "A" lot, located by the new Educational Services Building; "D" lot, near the Men's Gym (student parking allowed); "E" lot, located at the entrance of Cloud Circle; and "F" and "G" lots, which are situated by Arts Building. The Hotel and Restaurant Department is privileged to have its own parking lot in the back of Smith Hall.

By the way, cars found in the faculty parking lots without a faculty parking permit are subject to penalty, as some have discovered.

Mullane stated that parking in the reservoir varies from day to day. "I'd say Mondays and Fridays are when the reservoir is the most crowded." revealed Captain Mullane.

He went on to say that the weather effects parking too. On cold or rainy days, parking is more crowded.

Guardsman Staff — Spring 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... ED HOLMES
Managing Editor ..... Martin J. Arbunich
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
News Editor ..... Doug Boston
Sports Editor ..... Mike Dugan
Editorial Assistant ..... D. K. Dorn
Circulation Manager ..... Arthur Fantello

Reporters: John Benderitis, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom.

Cub Reporters: David Albertson, Penny Blum, Garret Duncan, Willy Durkin, Lawrence Ferrari, Jerry D. Fink, Randy Flynn, Michael J. Flynn, Wayne Hiroshima, Ed Jimison, Lavine Lee, Rita Quong, Leonard Ribatro, Carol Roehl, Jerry W. Siskron, Pam Tomasello, Gavin L. Watt, James Baggett, James Billbury, Robert Forsker, Lawrence Lee.

Photographers: Dawn Turner, Chief, Garth Ogle, Nathaniel Dodge, Carol Gillmore, Herbert Gong, Glenn Graham, Fred Harris, Jerry Jew, James McEldry, Doug Mills, Robert Morris, Jens Protze, Mike Reams, Larry Tiscornia, Melvin Weiner and Samuel Woo.

SHOOTIN' IT

by D. K. Dorn

THERE'S NOTHING you can do that can't be done (wrong). Anything you can think of—any thought, any gentle action, any idea can be mucked up so much easier than it can be done with soul or with love. Misunderstanding, bad paintings and other prostitutions are easier come by than getting truth, lovely form or joyous love.

One begins to feel in such world-is-crud moods until vacation relieves the tension. Last week, the Easter bunny gave way to the White Rabbit. But now, midterms are again only two weeks away.

• • •

Every now and then, something really worthwhile comes to town. Right now that is the Art Nouveau exhibit at the de Young Museum. And it's free. The paintings and sculpture are what dance hall posters now stem their zig-zag type wanderings from. Everything flows, undulates and spawns its streaming lines all over the place. But this is the show's last weekend, so make it there by Sunday to catch it.

INDIAN FESTIVAL: Let your little inner light shine for the rest of this month for the Indian festival of films, art and music. At the Cedar Alley Cinema, next to the Cedar Alley Coffee House near Geary and Larkin streets, there are some Indian flicks. Tonight through April 23, two films, "Kanchenjura" and "The Music Room" are in the offing. Both directed by Satyajit Ray, "The Music Room" has a fantastic musical score. The sound for "Music Room" is a type of ancient and venerable Indian Jazz which is structured, yet demands the musicians to improvise.

Starting April 24 and running through the end of the month is "Kachenjunga," again with "Devi," another Satyajit Ray rendition. Call the theater at 776-8300 fo' mo' info.

Continuing at the de Young Museum in Golden Gate Park is a touch of a more introspective magical mystery tour titled The Unknown India: Ritual Art In Tribe And Village. But I think there's a two-gite gate charge for students.

For those who are into the Indian thing, the Ali Akbar Khan College of Music is accepting applications for aspiring sitar, tabla and Indian flute players. A benefactor has donated some $2000 to buy instruments in India which will be shipped to the northern California college. However, it takes $100 a year and about ten times around the sun to be really proficient at an Indian instrument. For more information write P.O. Box 297, Sausalito, Calif. Khan you dig it?

• • •

So enthused was KCSF dj Wayne Jeffcoat with Speetrum's analysis of Lost and Found by The Guardsman's own Barbara Hamann that he went looking for the Lost/Found in Cloud Hall. He couldn't find it, nor did the Campus Cops know, nor the information booth in the Science Building have the faintest grunion of an idea to the Lost and Found's whereabouts. If they're lost, where is there to turn?

• • •

LIGHT: The next phase in light shows may be in the developing stage at the Experimental College here. Paul Hewitt's class labelled "A non-math intro to physics" has been narrowed down to whys and wherefores on how a light show works. The Optic Illusion, the light show which did the Fraternal Happening dance a couple of weeks ago, does their thing with liquids and slides. But it is Paul Hewitt, recently lauded as teacher of the year, whose brain belched forth the new concept. As a physicist type, he's devised a way to bring 3-D into a light show. And that ain't all—the class is working on a setup to make pictures look like 3-D in reverse, making concave objects convex and such physics-type shots. The class meets Monday afternoons at 3 p.m. in S-100.

• • •

UNION: Steps were taken the other day by the Board of Ed. to get a $600,000 loan from the government to build a student union here. All types of talk abounds that this student union will be completed by 1971 when an estimated 11,000 souls will seek student union solidarity at this college. But SF State College's Student Union plans have been kicking around since 1961, and nothing has been built there yet.

"Frailty, thy name is the administration," Hamlet said once, I think.

A Genuine Case Of City College Apathy

By Michael J. Flynn

"Student apathy is an actual fact," was the first of many comments made by an obviously disgusted Rich Shirley, frosh president, in regards to the Freshman Class meeting held here April 4 where only three class members out of 4000 showed up.

Although only three students attended, Shirley was quick to emphasize that the meeting was not altogether a complete failure. Numerous topics were discussed.

Shirley opened the meeting by introducing guest speaker Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of City College, who had four items of interest that he presented to the attendants.

He said that registration will be refined next semester, when a systematic pre-registration will take place, where 1000 students per day will be registered. He has high hopes that more students will get the classes they want under the new system.

CONLAN ANNOUNCED that the Board of Education has given the college permission, as a result of student action, to build a Student Union that will be donated strictly to student use. Student services such as the book store, the Associated Student offices, small and large group meeting rooms and an auditorium for dances and rallies will all go in the student union.

Also, when the Administration Building is completed all the faculty will have individual offices in which the students will be able to have private meetings with their instructors.

Dr. Conlan added in closing that he would be more than happy to meet with students in forums, large groups and individually when requested. He said that he feels that it is important that students and faculty stay abreast of each other.

After Dr. Conlan's address the meeting was thrown open to discussion. The illegality of partial military uniforms on campus, where students wear unearned medals, insignia, and rank was pointed out by Thomas Kennedy, a marine reservist. He pointed out that unauthorized uniforms are illegal and should be banned from campus.

THE FRESHMAN CLASS assembled, unanimously passed a resolution by a vote of three ayes to the administration that partial uniforms not be permitted on campus. Dr. Conlan said that the administration will investigate the subject and take appropriate action.

Another complaint by freshman Ed McMillen was that there is a lack of tables in the cafeteria forcing students to eat outside. Dr. Conlan said that the administration is working on a solution. He added that the new Student Union is hoped to take care of part of the problem.

After the meeting closed Shirley said that his biggest complaint is that people holler about everything; they gripe about parking, AS cards, and never gaining an audience with the administration, but when they had an opportunity to air their opinion they aren't around. He continued that it is those who gripe the loudest that are the hardest to find when a solution to a problem is being sought.

Shirley ended by saying that unless a drastic change takes place in student interest in activities he is through knocking himself out for people who don't care. He added that any freshman interested in participating in frosh activities can contact him in Bungalow 5 at almost any time during the day.

FROSH PRESIDENT RICH SHIRLEY
Raps on Student Apathy

Questionnaire To Rate Instructors In May Voting

The shoe will be on the other foot next month, when the students at City College will evaluate their instructors. Ray Bietz, Associated Student president, and associates are compiling a questionnaire to be distributed the first week in May.

Bietz plans to get teacher cooperation (if at all possible) in handing out the questionnaires. He told The Guardsman, "Hopefully we will have substantial teacher support." But, he added, if the instructors are not in agreement, the survey will be made anyway. Bietz hopes to have the questionnaires distributed by the instructors, but he said, "We may have to pass them out without the consent of the instructor."

STUDENTS WILL be asked questions pertaining to the instructor's fairness, if he is prepared, his sense of humor, and his general conduction of the class. Once the questionnaires are completed, they will be turned over to a tabulating committee, which will compute grades for the instructors. The instructors will be given alpha grades, with only the names of the A and B instructors published, and at all times the results will be kept confidential.

Bietz hopes the situation will be approached with maturity by all parties. "Teachers shouldn't mistakenly construe the evaluations to be in any way an affront upon their individual personalities, and students should not think they may use the questionnaire as a paper whip.

The reasons for this survey is twofold; both to improve the quality of the faculty, and to let the students know who the good instructors are. Or, as Bietz put it, "So the new students can avoid the lemons." But, improving the education is their prime consideration, as Pat Fiuren, Associated Student vice president, said, "This will do much to uplift the education standards at City College."

—P.B.

Topics Discussed At Freshman Meeting Despite Poor Turnout

Thug Armed?

Thief Nets Loot, Valuables In Hotel & Restaurant Hiest

By Sharon Roberts

A mystifying robbery of several hundred dollars from lockers of civil service employees of the Hotel and Restaurant Department has left college personnel "stunned and shocked" according to Dave Borrelli, H&R manager-instructor.

He commented, "The thief took cash, credit cards, and checks from the lockers of approximately 20 women employees." Borrelli continued, "It would appear to be the work of a professional who had knowledge of our daily proceedures."

The Campus Police and the San Francisco Police Department have the case under investigation. He stated, "There are a few leads which are channeling through criminology measures."

Borrelli and the San Francisco police inspector believe that the robbery was the work of a woman. It was reported that the suspect had used one of the stolen credit cards to purchase a firearm.

ACCORDING TO Noreen Rende, employee for the H&R department, "The person who committed the crime has possession of credit cards from the Emporium, Macy's, Joseph Magnins and Sears." She continued, "The robbery took place between the hours of 12 and 1 p.m.—our busiest hours."

When the women H&R employees checked their lockers they found the combinations all set at zero, their purses in the same position as they were left, and no clothing or garments taken.

She also stated, "I lost $150 and the other women lost a large amount of cash which isn't easy to replace." A total of $100 can be replaced by her homeowners insurance.

In the history of the H&R department it is the first time an incident of this nature has taken place, said Borrelli. There have been other types of criminal acts, but never with everything left perfectly intact.

• • •

Six million units (pints) of blood will be transfused in the U.S. this year.

Young Republicans Note Ideals And Aspirations

Ideals and aspirations of the Young Republicans were outlined by Frank Arcuri, temporary chairman, in a meeting held on April 4 during College Hour.

Arcuri discussed the organization and recruitment of added members to the Young Republicans.

Bettie Rulellan, vice president of the Northern College Federation of the Young Republicans, announced that a convention of the colleges of the Young Republicans will be held in San Mateo on April 26-28. The Villa Hotel will host the convention.

Lieutenant Governor Robert Finch will be a guest speaker at the meeting.

James Wyatt, dean of activities here at the college, commented on the affairs of the Young Republicans and stated that he would like to see them in action.

Library Receives Texts From Family Of Late Joan Nourse

Thirty-two books covering all aspects of journalism have recently been added to the City College library.

Donated in the memory of Miss Joan Nourse, founder of The Guardsman and long-time instructor and adviser here, the books will significantly increase the scope of the selection presently available.

The books were the private collection of Miss Nourse and are donated by her family.

Ranging in subject from the basics of news gathering through the place of mass media communication in today's world, the books reflect Miss Nourse's deep knowledge of, and vast interest in, the field of journalism.

Librarian Robert Begg states that the books have been completely processed and will be placed on the shelves as soon as a commemorative stamp is designed. The graphic arts department is working on the stamp.

Sex And Surrealism Theme Of Film To Be Shown Here Tomorrow Night

By Jerry D. Fink

Sex and surrealism will be the theme covered by French director Philippe de Broca's The Love Game, the film to be seen in the college theater tomorrow evening at 8 p.m.

Broca's film is of the New Wave movement, popular during the late 1950's and early 1960's. It is a satire, according to reviewers, which ridiculates numerous contemporary ideas, including the New Wave.

THE STORY TAKES place in a dilapidated antique shop owned by the heroine, Genevieve Cluny. She is a sincere young girl who desires the feminine bliss of pregnancy and marriage to make her life complete. However Jean-Pierre Cassel, the flighty hero living with her in the back of the curio shop, doesn't treasure the idea of giving up his precious freedom for divine fatherhood, thus the conflict of the comedy is revealed.

Miss Cluny endeavors to raise Jean-Pierre's jealousy by engaging the assistance of a third person, Jean-Louis Maury. But at best this ploy of a triangle is weak.

Flushing toilets permeates the air as the young fight constantly, except when they are making love. Come to think of it they make love constantly, except when they are fighting.

Since this is a comedy obviously the young man consents to the marriage in the end, still he fights the inevitable with remarkable gusto.

The bizzare antiques and insanities of youth are explored with emphasis placed upon their emotions: elated, jealous, suddenly depressed, and so on.

A subtle touch of irony may be found in the film. The shop where all of the 'immoral' events take place is directly across the street from a well known Left Bank landmark, the church of St.-Etienne-du-Mont.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• USA On Budget

Editor, The Guardsman:

The United Students For Action would like to take this opportunity to explain the regulation requiring an AS card for the Concert-Lecture Series and the Film Series. Increases in the budgets of cultural organizations on campus forced Student Council to cut some non-cultural budgets by as much as 50 percent last semester.

While Student Council was cutting some non-cultural budgets by as much as 50 percent, it was doubling some of the cultural budgets. A good example is the Concert-Lecture Series. Last year the Concert-Lecture Series asked for a budget of $2200; this semester they asked for and received a budget of over $4000.

Where is this extra money supposed to come from?

It was suggested that an admission fee be charged both at the Concert-Lecture Series and at the Film Series. This would certainly have solved City College's balance of payments. However it was found that an admission fee could not be collected during the day; thus charging an admission fee at the Concert-Lecture Series was out. It was also learned by Student Council that if an admission fee was charged at the Film Series, the prices of the films would double.

Student Council was in a quandry; the Associated Students needed more money but had no means of raising any more. In an effort to raise more money, Student Council has been experimenting by requiring an AS card for admittance to the Concert-Lecture Series and the Film Series, and thus raise AS card sales which in turn would raise the income of the Associated Students.

Unfortunately AS card sales have not increased to any great extent with the enactment of this regulation. Student Council is still open to suggestions that would alleviate our balance of payments problem.

Several suggestions have already been made including giving seating priority to students with AS cards or to students who donate 25 cents at the door. Another suggestion is to hold the Concert-Lecture Series at night so that an admission fee could be charged legally. It should be pointed out that most other junior colleges in our area raise their income by one of the two above mentioned suggestions.

Student Council will again be seeking an answer to the Associated Students balance of payments problem at its meeting on Monday, April 15, at 12:00 in the Associated Students Bungalow (B-5). All students are welcome to voice their suggestions at this meeting.

USA Party Members

San Jose Hands Golf Team First Conference Defeat

By Gavin L. Watt

Hot shooting by San Jose City College left the Rams' linkers with their first league loss this season. Burning up Harding Park, Forrest Fezler shot a six-under-par 66 to lead the way for the Jaguars April 1.

The Rams stand tied with San Jose, for first place in the Golden Gate Conference. Both have a 6-1 record. The Rams only chance for first place in conference play is to whip San Jose in the next confrontation.

San Jose's fantastically good team will be hard to beat. The only glimmer of hope seems to be in the fact that the Jaguars only loss came at the hands of Chabot, a team that the Rams have dropped twice this season.

SAN JOSE'S FEZLER took the six points easily from Donn Paulson, who had a 79. Stew Whitman, off his usual game, shot an 81, losing all six points to Ed Morris, who fired a one-over-par 73.

Gary Corvi, with a 76, took the six points from Lee Pettibon, who seems to be the Jaguars' weak spot.

Doug Boston split the points with Wayne Amon, both came in with a 75. Paul Rea lost five points to Bob Poen, after shooting a respectable 79. Poen finished with a 76.

THE RAMS PICKED up their sixth league win from Contra Costa at Richmond Country Club, March 29. Boston and Corvi led the way for the win with a pair of 74's, picking up six points each. Mark McLaughlin and Mark Roberts, both in the nineties, were easy victims.

Whitman, with a 79, won four points from Brent Salmi, who hacked with an 89. Paulson, with an 81, lost four points to Denny Garman, who shot an 80. Rea finished with an 89 and lost five points to Ronald Joost, who had 86.

The Rams as a team won five points for low total defeating Contra Costa 24½-10½.

This Friday the linkers will take on San Mateo College at Harding Park. Paulson will go in as number one man with a 76.5 average, followed by Rea with a 76.8. Whitman will start as number three with 77.4 average.

Vikings Swamp Ram Swimmers

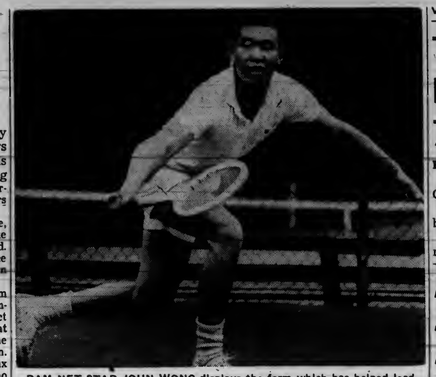
Ram swimmers were defeated again by Diablo Valley in a dual meet at Chabot on March 27. Ram Rich Glass pulled the only first place in the meet for City College in the 220-yard butterfly in a time of 2:19.5.

Jeff Tsu of City College gave the Ram team a second in the individual medley in 2:30.8. Dave Detert, diver, also gave the Rams a second in the one-meter diving event.

Friday and Saturday, the City College swimming team will go to Chabot again for the Golden Gate Conference meet. There are six colleges which will be entered in the conference meet this year: Chabot, Foothill, San Mateo, Diablo Valley, San Jose and City College.

Foothill, which has never lost a dual or championship meet to a two-year college and has won the Golden Gate Conference title every year since 1963, is favored to take the title again this year, with Chabot expected to come in second. Merritt is not entered this year as they dropped from the league at the beginning of the season.

Although City College has had a very tough season, the team must be given credit for their efforts and sportsmanship.



This years more swimmers have been disqualified from teams in all two-year colleges due to poor grades than ever before.—P. T.

Recreation Association Captures Six Awards In Sports Day Meet

The Recreation Association captured six first place awards in three competitive events at the College of San Mateo on March 30.

The Sports Day competition left the RA coeds with three first place awards in archery, two in tennis and one in volleyball according to Shirley Dang, volleyball manager for the RA.

The next Sports Day is scheduled for Saturday, May 4, when the RA meet at DeAnza College and compete with several other Bay Area colleges.

RAM NET STAR JOHN WONG displays the form which has helped lead City College to the top of the Golden Gate Conference.
—Guardsman photo by Robert Morris

Rams In First Place As Wong Paces Netters To Victory

By Ed Jimison

What happened at the Golden Gate Park courts Friday, March 27, has got to go down as one of the finest moments in two-year college tennis history. It was there that the City College netters rallied to an "impossible" victory, retaining their undefeated status, and in the process giving the Foothill Owls a brief look at a great team in action.

Not that the Owls didn't try. Coach Chivington's netters, who had been preparing for the meet ever since their initial loss to Merritt, certainly did everything in their power to beat the City College crew. The Owls' ace, Mark Elliot, starting off play, fought hard to win 6-3, 6-4 over Chuck White. Although the Rams' Paul Stafatos was able to beat John Newell, both Tony Lee and George Zoul were beaten by fired up Owls Bob Simpson and Greg Parker in straight sets.

MEANWHILE, JOHN WONG, realizing that to lose another match was to lose the meet, finally whipped Tom Sutton 7-5, 10-8.

When the doubles started the Rams were down 3-2. If we were to have a chance, Zoul and Lee would somehow have to upend Parker and Simpson. The confident Foothill pair got off to a fast start winning the first set 6-3.

At this point, in order for Coach Roy Diederichsen's Rams to win, not only would White and Wong have to defeat Elliot and Sutton, but Lee and Zoul would have to win at least three straight games and two straight sets against the same players that beat them in singles.

Many of the bystanders, seeing the situation hopeless, began to drift away. The rest of Foothill's squad, realizing they were on the threshhold of a big win, stood around waiting for the final victory.

IT NEVER CAME. Zoul and Lee pulled it out in a spectacular performance, stunning the Owls, 10-8, in the second set and 6-4 in the last.

On the other court, Wong and White did their part by beating Elliot and Sutton 6-4, 6-4.

Weekend Results

APRIL 2
BASEBALL

CCSF	000	000	020	—2
Contra Costa	000	000	22x	—4

APRIL 4
BASEBALL

CCSF	000	001	000	—1
Chabot	003	021	04x	—10

INTRAMURALS
Guardsman (3-1) 51—Phi Delta (4-0) 61

APRIL 5
TENNIS
CCSF 3—San Mateo 4
GOLF
CCSF 4½—San Jose 30½
TRACK
CCSF vs. San Jose, postponed, but will be made up at a later date, at CCSF.

APRIL 10
BASEBALL

Merritt	202	005	004	—13
CCSF	671	001	28x	—25

Unbeaten Mountaineers Lead Independent Loop

In the intramural competition Tuesday, April 2, the Newman Vandals behind Jim Chiulli's 20 points barely beat Filippino-Americans, 47-46, while Friendly Bears out-fought the Revisables, 40-30.

In the men's gym the Red Mountaineers of the Independent league continued their unbeaten ways by smashing the Blackstone Rangers 67-37. In the later match, H&R beat the Filippino-Americans 59-48.

Tomorrow's games will match the Newman Vandals against the Phi Delts at 7 and the H&R do battle with The Guardsman at 8 p.m. in the men's gym. In the women's gym the Blackstone Rangers take on the Can't Lasts and the Ceitics vs. Friendly Bears.

Tracksters Take On Merritt Here Friday After Suffering 78-58 Loss To Contra Costa

By Dave Albertson

The Rams lost a close meet to the league leading Contra Costa Comets, 78-58, at the City College track Friday, March 29.

City College will take on Merritt Friday at the Ram track, beginning at 3 p.m.

Greg Jackson came through with a pair of victories in the hurdle races. In the 120-yard high hurdles, he beat out Comet star Marion Anderson in the winning time of 15.3. Anderson finished in 15.6. In the 330-yard intermediate hurdles, Jackson nosed out teammate Floyd Banks for first in the time of 40.3 while Banks was timed in 40.4. Tryone Hanna ran a 41.8, finishing third, and giving the Rams a sweep of the event.

VIC CARY turned in a pair of fine performances. He won the mile in 4:30.7, edging the Comets' Paul Prazak, who clocked a 4:31.0. Cary placed second in the 880 in the time of 2:01 flat. Conference leader Howard Carter of the Comets won the 880 in 1:50.4, while his teammate Ray Finks finished behind Cary in third place with a 2:01.8.

Ernie Provost again won double victories in the sprints. He beat out the Comets' Ed Hart in the 100, with a winning time of 9.8. Hart was timed in 9.9. In the 220, Provost beat Hart with a time of 22.1, with the Comet star clocking a 22.2. Provost also ran a fast leg for the Ram 440 relay team.

Fast improving Vince Ansley placed third in two events, finishing the 220 in 22.8 and the 440 with a 50.3.

For the second meet in a row Forest Shute had to settle for third place in the pole vault on account of fewer misses. Shute cleared 13-0 which was also the winning height that awarded first place to the Comets' Jeff Buchanon.

JIM BALDOCCHI ended up in third place in the discus throw behind Contra Costa's Gaylord Courchesne and Keith Tice. Baldocchi's throw of 134-7½ pushed him up to seventh place among the league leader's best marks. Courchesne won the event with a toss of 148-2¼, while Tice threw 136-1.

David Jones barely missed upsetting Clarence Taylor, the Comets' league leader in the 440. Taylor won in 49.8, while Jones was only two tenths of a second behind in 50 flat. Jones also ran the opening leg on the Rams 440 relay. In that relay, the Rams came from behind to win in the time of 42.1. Contra Costa finished in 42.2. Only a poor handoff between Jackson and Larry Mosely prevented the Rams from challenging San Jose's league leading 41.0.

TOM CLYBURN placed third in the high jump with a leap of 6-6½, also falling victim to the ruling of fewer misses. Comet high jumper Jesse Reed was awarded first place although clearing the same height of 6-6½. Anderson also cleared 6-6½ for second place. Clyburn also placed third in the long jump with a leap of 20-5½.

The Rams' Bill Butier placed second in the long jump, and third in the triple jump. He jumped 22-10 in the long jump and 43-9 in the triple jump. Butler's 22-10 mark ranks him fourth in the league.

George Haza and Jose Garcia won first and second places for the Rams in the two-mile run. Haza finished in 10:07.6, while Garcia was timed in 10:09.1. The Comets' Prazak was third in 10:15.2.

The Comets easily won the mile relay in 3:26.3, while the Rams ran a 3:31.0.

Merritt features sprinter Nobert Payton, high jumper Don Crockett, half miler Claudell Terry, quarter miler Ray Turner and long jumper Dave Wolper in addition to returning decathlon star Sam Goldberg, who placed in six events last year against the Rams.

PAYTON IS EXPECTED to give Provost a battle in both sprint events. Payton ranks high in the league standings with a 9.9 100 and a 22.2 220.

A high jump duel between Crockett and Clyburn will be one of the highlights of the meet. Crockett has done 6-6 this season.

A close race in the 440 is expected between Turner and Jones. Turner ranks sixth in the league, while Jones is rated fifth.

Terry and Cary should prove to be a close race in the 880. Terry has the second fastest time in the conference of 1:56.3.

Wolper and Butler are evenly matched in the long jump. Wolper ranks third in the league at 23-6.

Ram Nine Edge Out San Jose, 7-6; Bulldogs Next Foe

The Ram baseball team split with San Jose and Contra Costa as they downed the San Jose club 7-6, and lost to the Contra Costa team, 10-5. San Mateo Bulldogs challenge the Rams here Friday at Sunburg field at 1 p.m. The Rams defeated the San Jose Jaguars on March 28, although collecting only eight hits.

In the third inning the Rams scored a run without the aid of a base hit. With one out Tim Callen walked, Rich Heintz hit into a fielder's choice, Andy Fracchia walked as did Chuck Gray, Tom Mayfield then sacrificed in the run giving the Rams the lead.

THE FOLLOWING inning saw the Rams score again, collecting three runs. Manny Berrios was beaned by a Jaguar pitch. After one man was out Jim Smith followed with a sharp single, Odel Williams walked, Callen's long sacrifice fly drove in Berrios. Fracchia walked, forcing in Smith from third, Gray followed with a single which drove Williams in.

The Rams added three more runs in the seventh inning as Fracchia led off grounding out, Gray smashed a single, Mayfield zipped a single to left and Chuck Gretton laced a line drive double, driving in Mayfield and Gray. Berrios singled, moving Gretton to third. Smith's single drove Gretton home and then Williams grounded into a double play ending the inning.

The Contra Costa Comets went to war with the Ram squad, sending them down to defeat by a final score of 10-5, March 30 at Balboa Park. Contra Costa collected 12 hits and seven walks. The Rams only collected five hits but managed to collect 13 walks, leaving 14 men stranded.

THE RAMS' HITTING for the first part of the season was sparked by the shortstop Tim Callen, who is batting .411 with six hits for 17 at-bats in seven games.

Six other Rams are hitting over .300: Jim Smith .380 average, Manny Berrios .370 average, Odel Williams .357 average, Tom Mayfield with a .343 average, Andy Fracchia .333 average, and Chuck Gretton who has a .317 average.

The Rams' top winning pitcher is Joe Dutto who has a 3-2 won-lost record. Dutto, for his wins beat San Jose twice and Merritt.—A. F. & J. B.

Reporter Writes Better Than He Runs

HENRY CARR, winner of two gold medals in the 1964 Olympics, former world record holder of the 220 and now a defensive halfback for the New York Giants, must certainly be regarded as one of the greatest sprinters ever.

Once, he challenged Bob Hayes (world record holder of 100-yard dash —9.1) to a 220 race, and won easily. In 1963, Adolph Plummer, then world record holder of the 440 (44.9) said that he could take Carr in the 220. The race resulted in a world record 20.2 for the winner, Carr.

A story comes directly from a Guardsman reporter about the day he got a chance to race Henry Carr. The year was 1961 and Carr was then a three-sport star at Northwestern High School in Detroit. That same year Carr tied the high school record for the 100, clocking a 9.4, a mark first set in 1933 by Jesse Owens. Also in his senior year Carr ran a wind-aided 220 straightaway in 20.0.

ON THIS PARTICULAR spring day Carr was to run anchor in the mile relay against Denby High School, also of Detroit. Set to anchor Denby was sophomore Dave Albertson (presently a Guardsman sports writer), who liked to think of himself then as a "high jumper rather than a quarter miler." Albertson got the baton a good 20 yards ahead of Carr. Dave gave his all, running his 440 in "about 55 seconds."

Carr passed Albertson on the first turn and breezed home with a 48-second anchor leg.

So ends The Guardsman's claim to fame on the American track scene, but this writer feels sure that Ram Coach Lou Vasquez feels safer having Albertson writing track for The Guardsman than he would having Albertson running anchor for the Rams' mile relay team.

• • •

RECORDS ARE made to be broken, as witnessed by the fact that Henry Carr's 220 world mark and Adolph Plummer's 440 standard are both now held by Tommie Smith. One year ago, San Jose State's Smith raced 440 yards in 44.8 and 400 meters in 44.5 to set two of his many world records.

It was 25 years ago that the world record for the 440 was set in 46.4 and for 400 meters in 46.0. The man who set these marks was Grover Klemmer.

Klemmer is presently City College's golf coach and during the fall spends his weekdays as backfield coach for the Rams and his weekends as a National Football League official.

Klemmer was head football coach here from 1947-1962 and compiled a 78-46-6 mark, best gridiron coaching record in the school's history. Included in this record is the 1948 squad, led by Ollie Matson and Burl Toler (also an NFL referee), which compiled a perfect 12-0 season.

After graduating from Galileo High School, Klemmer went to the University of California where in addition to the two world records mentioned above, he set a Cal school record in the 880 and was a member of both the world record holding mile and two-mile relay teams.

RAMBLINGS

By Mike Duggan

School, World Marks ... By Grover Klemmer

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 66 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, APRIL 24, 1968 NUMBER 8

Roaming Lensman, Inquirer On The Lurk

OUR ROAMING Guardsman lens-clicker is on the prowl once again, taking shots of photogenic mugs from tree tops, flagpole crests and, as in the case to the left, from the stenchy depths of garbage cans around campus.

Photographer Nathaniel Dodge turned the tables on him here as a generous student accurately flips a handful of refuse in the direction of our caped lensman.

The lens-clicker, accompanied by an inquisitive Guardsman reporter, has been lurking around campus for the past few weeks. See their creation, Contact Lens, on page 3 of this issue.

Critic Given $250 Extension

The Free Critic will continue to do its thing of "presenting dialog and raising a justifiable bitch" for awhile longer with a $250 appropriation from Student Council, the council decided at last Monday's meeting.

But whether or not the paper will continue with its present format until the end of the semester is dubious.

With many Free Critic supporters in attendance, a request for $250 for three issues was made after the council nixed a request for the paper's usual $680 the previous Monday.

DENNIS MUNDT, editor of the Free Critic, was asked how the weekly paper would be published with such an abbreviated budget, and why this had not been done before.

A spokesman for the Free Critic rose to answer that such a meager budget would force the publication to present a "worse looking" paper since they would have to type all copy on typewriters and reproduce that.

"THE COUNCIL is getting off easy with this request," said the speaker. "It seems that you have enough money for fashion shows and boat dances, but not enough money to pay for this project which provides a greater service to more students."

Representative Jim Dierke rose to protest both the request and the Free Critic.

"The Critic is always knocking AS cards, and other council actions. Then they always come in asking for money. They should not be granted this appropriation," he concluded.

The Critic appropriation was finally passed, 7-2-2.

ON OTHER COUNCIL ACTIONS, humanities instructor Merritt Beckerman suggested that more services be offered to AS card holders to make buying the cards more worthwhile. He suggested a discount at the AS bookstore for card bolders.

The Forensics Club was awarded money to enable their advisor to fly to a tournament in Bakersfield because his class schedule doesn't allow him time to take the Greyhound with the rest of the club.—D. D.

Dick Gregory, Comedian Speaks Here Tomorrow

By Doug Boston

Dick Gregory, black comedian and noted civil rights leader, is scheduled to speak here tomorrow at 11 a.m. in the football stadium.

The 35-year-old comedian will be traveling on a tight schedule. He will be at the University of California at Davis for a 9 a.m. appearance, here at 11 a.m., then on to Los Angeles for an afternoon engagement.

Gregory, who has changed his image from a comedian to a strong demonstrator and "statesman," has recently voiced his attitudes on the United States involvement in Vietnam, the "moral corruption of American society," and support of the peace and liberation movement.

CURRENTLY on a diet of vegetable and fruit juice until the day of the national elections, November 5, he is protesting the poor conditions in the ghettos of Chicago.

Gregory is an outspoken individual who, in his opinion, is "a statesman who can tell the truth because he is not tied to anyone."

On the night of President Johnson's "resignation" speech, Gregory called him "one of the slickest tyrants that has walked the face of the earth since Caesar."

Gregory is obviously upset over the progress of our nation. He tells his audiences across the country, "Brother, I'm gonna tell you straight and true, this nation is insane." "It's insane because it has been swallowed up by lies."

ON RACISM, Gregory says, "I don't believe in racism, but I sure do understand it. It's not a battle between black and white; the real battle is between right and wrong. I want to be your friend, brothers, not your black friend."

He hasn't made his political program specific, but he says his task is "to bring the country to its knees, and then rebuild it."

APPEARING on television on April 16, Gregory announced his withdrawal and abandonment of plans by dissenting groups to boycott and demonstrate against the Democratic party at the 1968 convention on that group in Chicago. He advised that the convention be held in another city.

Gregory is disappointed in the war efforts. He told an andience in Chicago, "Maybe you remember I smoked a lot, six or seven packs a day. About six weeks ago I got to thinking a lot of my money for cigarets is going to the government, and they're using that money to buy napalm, and I decided I was going to stop smoking and I did."

He continued, "Would you be willing to stop smoking until they end the war? Cause once you stop, maybe you won't start again, and we can get them cats in the cigaret business to start carrying signs to end the war before they go broke."

ON THE RECENT tragic assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King, Gregory expressed his shock but stated that the "assassination of Dr. King was not unpredictable in light of a direct pattern of fascism in the shooting of John Kennedy, Medgar Evers, Malcolm X and Dr. King."

Only City College students will be allowed to attend the performance. Registration cards will be required for admission.

Chinese Courses May Be Added To Fall Schedule

Booths around campus, manned by members of the Inter-Collegiate Students for Social Action (ISSA), have been petitioning students to sign up for courses in a new Chinese curriculum.

The ISSA, which formed this February, has as its purpose the promotion of cultural study and community service for the Chinese people. Johnson Kam, the president, stated that 90 per cent of the members of the club are Chinese.

The proposed courses are Mandarin Chinese I to IV, and Chinese Civilization 45, which will be an introduction to an understanding of Chinese literature, philosophy, art and music. These courses have been approved by the administration.

QUALIFIED INSTRUCTORS have been found for the courses, but the ISSA must come up with enough interested students.

Kam is very pleased with the turn out so far; on the first day 70 signed up for Chinese Civilization and 61 for Chinese I. He also emphasized that he "appreciated all the ISAA members who stood out in the cold getting the petitions signed."

Kam stated that, they have received help from Gordon Lew, publisher of the East-West (a Chinese-American newspaper). He is in charge of a Mandarin school here in the city.

AL R. WONG, vice president of the ISSA, said many have assisted in getting these courses, one of them is Dr. Hsu of San Francisco State College. Wong said he (Dr. Hsu) helped in getting the qualified instructors.

Both Kam and Wong feel very strongly about the need for these courses. As Kam stated, "We felt something was needed here at City College. There are no courses for the Chinese students interested in their culture." Both made the point that, these courses will be of interest to non-Chinese students, also.

The London Daily Mail reported recently that job opportunities in the Far East have brought a demand for Chinese classes which are scheduled to open soon in British schools.—P. B.

Choice '68

The National Collegiate Presidential Primary entitled Choice '68 will be held here today. For further information turn to page 2.

Krumm Continues Fight To Bring SF Opera House Here

Continued support by administration and faculty has encouraged Dr. Walter Krumm, head of the Drama Department, to continue efforts to obtain the South San Francisco Opera House for establishment at City College.

The opera house is located on Third Street in San Francisco, not in South San Francisco as the name implies. It was built in 1884, and used to accommodate traveling play companies.

In 1906, the opera house was used as City Hall headquarters following the earthquake and fire. The building has been boarded up for years, and the owner has been trying to get rid of it for some time, according to Krumm, since plans have been made for the land where it is presently situated.

Dr. Krumm has been meeting with the owner recently and has gained access to the building, if he can raise the funds necessary for transportation to City College, and obtain approval from the Board of Education.

He met with housemovers on Monday to discuss complications involved in moving the building. He reasoned that the opera house would be broken down so that it could be transported through the city streets.

He continued, "I see no reason why the Board of Education won't approve of the plan. The opera house is a landmark of San Francisco, and would provide another theater here on campus, as well as added classroom space."

Dr. Krumm has had encouragement from President Conlan and faculty members in regards to obtaining the building. The City Planning Commission and the San Francisco Landmark Preservation Committee also want to see the opera house remain intact.—D. B.

Thirteenth Annual Recruitment Day Drawing Near

Fifty employers from the five San Francisco Bay Area counties will participate in the 13th annual Engineering Business Recruitment Day, Wednesday, May 15, at City College.

The job fair will bring together City College graduates and prospective employers for a full day of personal interviews. The program was initiated by the college to better assist with potential job opportunities for graduating students.

Over 200 graduates from 20 separate occupational fields will be interviewed by any of 10 employers of their choosing. During the interview the graduate will present a comprehensive profile containing personal, occupational, and background information for consideration.

75 graduates from the engineering department constitute the largest of the groups. Secretarial science ranks second with 45.

SALARIES OFFERED this year will range from $500-$650 for engineering to $400-$525 for secretarial people.

Students graduating in June 1968 or February 1969 who desire positions following graduation may fill out recruitment forms at the City College Placement Center, room S188.

'Fairytales In Flowers'

Open House On Judson Ave.

By Lavine Lee

"Fairytales in Flowers," the theme for Retail Floristry's tenth annual open house, got underway last night at the Retail Floristry Center in the Ornamental-Horticulture Building, 373 Judson Avenue, and will continue today from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. for faculty members and students.

There will be twelve window displays from the "winged fairies" of Grimm and Anderson. Some include Peter Peter Pumpkin Eater, Winnie the Pooh, Humpty Dumpty, Little Old Lady Who Lived in a Shoe, and numerous other fairy tale characters.

The students who are participating in this event are given a budget with which to work on their display.

WORK ON the displays is begun six weeks before open house, and it is done mainly on the student's own time. According to Mrs. Maryhope Jacks, retail floristry instructor, the competition is "fierce." She also went on to explain that this type of activity is excellent for experience in management in floristry.

This event first started ten years ago. Its main purpose was to acquaint retail florists, and their suppliers, with the fact that there was a training program on this campus.

FAIRYTALE'S FIRST STONE. Retail floristry students make preparations for today's showing of "Fairytales In Flowers" show in the Horticulture Building on Joost Street. Such exhibits as fiddles running off with spoons, Dorothy and her cowardly lion on the golden brick road are some of the presentations.
—Guardsman photo by Samuel Woo

These displays are held mainly for industry. "It is not too great a concern for either the faculty or the students," stated Mrs. Jacks. "If it were held just for the campus, the result would be vastly different," she continued.

According to Mrs. Jacks, the performances of the students participating in this event equaled that of many professional florists. She is very enthusiastic and impressed by their work.

The window displays are judged for originality, design, theme, sales appeal, artistry, and the quality of the flowers. Trophies will be awarded to the first, second and third place winners. A fourth place award will be given to the display that is best in the abundance and effective use of flowers.

THESE AWARDS, which are presented through the courtesy of Zappettini Co., wholesale florists, were displayed last night at a dinner held in Statler Wing. Approximately 250 people attended, and they included representatives from numerous floristry shops throughout California.

Some of the judges were former City College of San Francisco students. They included Doug Guetsche, Warren Yee, Marjorie Koch, Richard Kraus (all florists), and Allen Leonard (a freelance designer).

THE 16 CONTESTANTS, who all work in flower shops, are Ruth Agnello, Helga Albright, Marie Anderson, Elaine Banchieri, Susan Ronaldes, Sayoko Shimaji, Danny Thomas, Thomas Burke, Joy Dallas, Artalynn Johnson, Katherine McKarthy, Virginia Maderos, Linda Mateos, Lois Otto, Sydney Ramm and Minako Saito.

'The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco
ED HOLMES, Editor

Vol. 66, No. 8 WEDNESDAY, APRIL 24, 1968 Page 2

A Chance To Be Heard

STUDENTS THROUGHOUT this country have demonstrated, protested and otherwise actively attempted to lend weight to their views and opinions on national issues. Today a nation-wide poll offers just that chance to be heard.

STAND UP AND BE COUNTED. Vote responsibly in Choice '68.

Sheep Without A Shepherd

Letters to the editor are not normally printed in this space. An exception has been made because the following seems to express so well the feelings of the several thousand students who gathered in Cloud Patio for memorial services for Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

WHAT A SAD DAY the morning has brought. What an awesome; what an undesired day the morning has brought. We the people; the Negro people, have lost our great leader, Dr. Martin Luther King.

Deep in our hearts we mourn the event of this day. Deep in our soul we feel the hurt, the crying-out hurt of our lost one. He was our friend, our leader, our great president. He was our Shepherd leaving his Sheep dependent upon themselves.

WE HAVE HAD LEADERS before, but none have we had so great, so peace-abiding as he. The non-violence of his assemblies; the non-violence of his sit-ins; the non-violence of his accomplishing and dignified marches. Who but a great leader, a minister of love, peace, and harmony could convey to the world the problems of his people, his Sheep.

We ask ourselves, What Now? Where will we go from here? What should we do next, for our leader is here to tell us no longer; our minister is here to preach the word of peace, of love, of harmony, and of God no longer. We are a pasture of Sheep without a Shepherd. Where shall we go, and what shall we do now?

MY PEOPLE, hold your heads up! Do not let all that our friend has taught us die with him! This was not his wish. He did not want us to live for him, or to die for him, but to live for God and to die for the sake of righteousness and equality for all men. He was not afraid to die, for he firmly believed that if a man never had a purpose to live for, then did he die when he was born.

So I say to you my people, my brother and sister Sheep, walk in the "Lighted Way!" Do not resort to the work of the devil, but continue to work and strive for the Lord, Jesus. Our Shepherd did, and now he is on his way to the Promised Land.

Beverly Madison

Labelled And Recorded

Roland Kirk Doing The Rock Thing

by Martin J. Arbunich

WHILE most eyes and ears were tuned in on UC's Jazz Festival last weekend, the usual ballroom programs here still managed to delight those that turned out.

Fillmore Auditorium presented a very diversified billing of jazz, gospel and rock put together by an all-star Negro cast: the Roland Kirk Ensemble, the Staple Singers and Love featuring Arthur Lee.

Kirk is an open-minded jazzman with a liking for young audiences—or at least gave that impression on stage. His music is unquestionably jazz, at times in a very progressive form, and his presentation goes so far as to extract bits of rock music techniques to communicate the progressive numbers.

He frequently utilized the audience's handclapping rhythms to generate a steady meter for his quartet to follow, a technique which is more common in rock and gospel music. He also does "the Grateful Dead thing," which the Dead derived from the Who, where frustrations are taken out on instruments by the musicians of the group.

Kirk's rendition, however, was more conservative than the raw instrumental annihilations performed by rock groups, and whatever effect he tried to achieve was sadly unsuccessful. It appeared to be only a pseudo application of rock music demolition which (to use Kirk as an example) doesn't produce the same end product in jazz.

The blind Kirk is a marvelous brass-woodwind player, particularly when he solos on tenor and alto sax simultaneously. He really doesn't need all the instruments he brings with him on stage (the two saxs and flute would be perfect) but nonetheless Kirk's sheer mastery of these instruments is remarkable.

Accompanied only with a single guitar, the four Staple Singers came on and did their gospel thing with the vivacity of an entire rhythm section. Their complex handclapping cadence supplied exquisite rhythm, the vocals had a unique artistic blend and their featured female singer came through with some nice solos to round out their performance.

Love, a group with some great stage potential, were rather disappointing. They led off with five or so LP numbers, including their new single, but there was hardly any variation from record. After a few overworked standards though, they finally got into a little variation with their improvised Revelations.

Vocalist Arthur Lee has a strong, peculiar voice that more or less holds the group together. It's disappointing to note that Love has no horn/flute players on stage, one of their delightful high points on record.

Over at the Avalon Ballroom, Steppenwolf, a group which has been around for a good deal of time as the Sparrow, performed their very tight sound highlighted by a magnificent lead guitarist. They have some fine material too—The Pusher, Born To Be Wild and Sookie Sookie come off very well.

The Indian Headband, also on the bill, is one of the nicest "undiscovered" local bands; they boast an outstanding drummer and some moving improvisation.

Blues man Charlie Musselwhite who rounded out the concert has an uninspiring band backing him up, particularly the almost unnoticeable organist. One can only do so much with a good harmonica and voice, and a brass section would certainly enhance Musselwhite's stage act.

Choice '68 Election Today

Students Across The U.S. Vote For Presidential Primary Candidates

City College of San Francisco is one of over 1000 colleges and universities across the nation that is participating in Choice '68.

The polls will be open today from 8 until 2 and are located at/In Smith Hall, the library, Arts Building and the flagpole area.

There were originally 13 candidates listed upon the ballot; unfortunately the death of Martin Luther King has narrowed the choice down to 12. Students should not feel compelled to vote for one of those 12, however, since write-in candidates will be accepted.

Hubert Humphrey, for instance, was not placed upon the ballot because the project was drawn up and completed prior to President Johnson's announced withdrawal from the race.

The candidates listed upon the Choice '68 ballot are not all actively running for office. They are a representative sample of the men that this country might like as their leader.

There are three referendum issues that will be covered in the election; two deal with the Vietnam war situation and one discusses the "urban crisis." The issues are self-explanatory.

To give the reader a better insight into the candidates that are listed in Choice '68, their previous experience and qualifications for office and their position on domestic and foreign affairs are listed below.

AS cards are not required to vote, registration cards are, however.

● Halstead

The Socialist Party's presidential candidate is Fred Halstead, who is running on a platform which calls for "immediate withdrawal of American military forces from Vietnam—and from every other country in the world."

His platform also supports the black people's struggle for freedom "by whatever means necessary." He has already chosen for his running mate Paul Boutelle, a youthful black.

Halstead, who stated, "The Vietnam war is one of the most unjust and brutal wars in world history," made a pledge that he would go to Saigon to let the GI's know that there is one presidential candidate in 1968 that wants to bring them home.

Halstead states, "It is the right of Afro-Americans to keep arms and to organize themselves for self-defense from authority from any quarter . . ."

● Hatfield

Mark O. Hatfield, 45-year-old Republican Governor of Oregon, looms as a possible darkhorse presidential candidate in case of a convention deadlock and is a definite possibility for the vice presidential post.

Hatfield has been one of the party regulars in the past; he was temporary chairman and keynoter in the 1964 Republican National Convention, and was the nominator of Nixon at the 1960 convention.

However, because he has been in the dove camp on the issue of military involvement in Vietnam, and because of his popularity with the youthful block of voters, he has often been talked of as a possible nominee.

Hatfield, who was previously an instructor at Willamette University, broke into politics in 1950 as a member of the Oregon legislature, and subsequently served as State Senator.

● Johnson

Lyndon Johnson has sacrificed his presidency for peace.

Now just before his term as president has come to an end Johnson has proclaimed to the world that he will not run for another term of office. He has decided to forfeit the office of president for the benefit of his party, national unity and world peace. He realized that with one less candidate there would be more unity in both his party and the nation. Also, he believes that he will be able to do better in matters that concern peace in Vietnam if he has no election pressures to hold him back.

Currently Johnson is planning peace talks with Hanoi. However, Johnson does not want the site of the negotiating to be in a Communist nation. He wants the prospective talks to be held on a "neutral" site.

● Kennedy

Senator Robert Kennedy is running for president because he believes that he can talk our enemies in North Vietnam into peace talks and a peace treaty.

Kennedy's platform deals not only with peace in Vietnam but with "the crisis of the cities, tensions among races and the complexities of a society at once so rich and so reprived." He believes that, "We must reach across the false barriers that divide us as brothers and fellow countrymen to seek and find peace abroad, reconciliation at home, and full participation in the life of our country."

Kennedy wants to change the course away from escalation of troops and bombings, and toward the negotiating table, without raising the white flag of surrender.

● Lindsay

Mayor of New York John Lindsay, former Congressman, has offered little comment on foreign affairs since he was elected to this office.

While campaigning for mayor, he ventured that escalation never does any good because the other side goes on to complementary escalation and you get nowhere.

Lindsay is quoted in criticism of President Johnson's conduct of the war: "There have been what one may call missed opportunities the administration has not made the most of its diplomatic cards and, at times, it has acted too brutally."

In favor of labor, a lawyer and politician, Lindsay believes that the problem of the cities is in many ways a Negro problem. He has made an attempt to provide Negroes with jobs, education, a decent life and some form of integration into urban society.

● McCarthy

A member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Eugene McCarthy feels that the Vietnam war is "draining off America's most valuable resource—our young men."

"I believe America should stop the bombing of North Vietnam," McCarthy stated, "and make a sincere attempt to begin negotiations for an honorable political settlement. We should begin a gradual reduction of our commitments, thereby forcing the Saigon regime to negotiate or take on greater military responsibilities."

In 1958, McCarthy introduced legislation to extend coverage and increase benefits of unemployment programs.

McCarthy is a long-time supporter of federal aid to education at all levels. He favors a GI bill to provide financial, housing and educational assistance to returned servicemen and their families and is devoted to helping the family farmer.

● Nixon

Former Republican Vice President Richard M. Nixon, a strong candidate for president in 1968, has definite views on the problems of today.

On Vietnam, Nixon stated that, "If the North Vietnamese continue the pressure we have to consider the other options. The U.S. has been tied down for four years in this war, we have power, immense power, but it must not be used unless necessary."

On the Middle East, Nixon had this to say, "Despite Israel's spectacular victory in the Middle East, the big winner turns out to be Russia."

Nixon has likewise commented on the monetary crisis. "It's not what the Americans spend abroad, but what the Administration is spending in Washington."

On urban unrest, Nixon says, "We must get to the causes of these problems—in the cities."

● Percy

United States Senator Charles Percy has said about Vietnam: "I think that our present course is leading nowhere; we need a change in the White House to insure an end to this war."

On the subject of negotiating in Vietnam, Percy stated, "I know that as far as they are concerned all this talk that we must prove that we are for peace—look, if they were for peace, they wouldn't have started this war."

As to who Percy will support for President in 1968, Percy stated that he would support any candidate to whom the Republican Governors gave their support.

Senator Percy was a well known business leader before entering the political arena. He ran for governor of Illinois once but was defeated.

● Reagan

Ronald Reagan, the present governor of California, has been referred to as the rags-to-riches politician, and Republican leaders have praised him.

In his short time in office, Reagan has been trying to get California out of debt with various budget cuts including tuition in state colleges and universities and lessening the funds for Medical. He has told audiences in South Carolina, Wisconsin, Texas and other states about his moves to reduce the cost of government in California.

Regan has raised $2,000,000 for the Republican party in six months and plans to make speeches in Colorado and Idaho on national problems in these next several weeks. In California, he will most likely be its "favorite son" candidate which will give him 86 votes toward the presidential nomination in which half of the 1333 possible votes are needed to win.

● Rockefeller

Nelson Rockefeller, the veteran governor from New York, has made it clear that he is again a Republican candidate for president.

Rockefeller began openly campaigning recently and his popularity has risen since re-entering the race. His campaign manager, Emmet John Hughes, has been a bitter critic of the Vietnam war.

The governor's method of nomination is a very unorthodox one. Although he is openly campaigning, Rockefeller is not actively doing so, and he hardly has enough of the popularity or broad political support which will quickly give him the presidential nomination.

Recently, President Johnson stated that of all the candidates running for president, Rockefeller is his second choice for the job.

● Stassen

Harold Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, was one of the predominant Republican candidates in the 1948 presidential election.

In Stassen's judgment, the three great tasks for American leadership are: to keep the American system of modern capitalism strong and stable so as to avoid any serious economic depression, and by making sure that free enterprise includes humanitarianism; to provide a firm, calm, and consistent conduct of foreign policy calculated to defeat totalitarian concepts in the world—without war; to face frankly the reality that if the spread of totalitarianism cannot be stopped without war, the nation must maintain its leadership through war.

In the past, he participated in the U.N. Conference in 1945 in San Francisco. Presently he is a lawyer.

● Wallace

George Wallace, a Democrat and former governor of Alabama, is running for the office of President in the November elections with a political reputation noted for his opposition to civil rights.

During his administration as governor in Alabama disagreements between his interpretation of the constitution arose but the federal government's opinion prevailed. He was waging a war in opposition to the civil rights bill passed by Congress, which gave the Negro the right to integrate public schools, according to a Post magazine article.

He has been quoted as saying, "I say segregation now, segration tomorrow, segregation forever!" Wallace at one time urged the Alabama Board of Education to adopt a resolution requiring every public school to open daily with readings from the Bible.

Guardsman Staff — Spring 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... ED HOLMES
Managing Editor ..... Martin J. Arbunich
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
News Editor ..... Doug Boston
Sports Editor ..... Mike Dorgan
Editorial Assistant ..... D. K. Dorn
Circulation Manager ..... Arthur Fanfalis

Reporters: John Bandrofth, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom.

Cub Reporters: David Albertson, Penny Blum, Garret Duncan, Willy Durkin, Lawrence Farrari, Jerry D. Fink, Randy Flynn, Michael J. Flynn, Wayne Hiroshima, Ed Jimison, Lavina Lee, Rita Quong, Leonard Ribeiro, Carol Roehl, Jerry W. Stikron, Pam Tomassello, Gavin L. Watt, James Daggett, James Bilbury, Robert Forsker, Lawrence Lee.

Photographers: Dawn Turner, Chief; Garth Ogle, Nathaniel Dodge, Carol Gillmore, Herbert Cong, Glenn Graham, Fred Harris, Jerry Jew, James McElery, Doug Mills, Robert Morris, Jens Pirotzi, Mike Reams, Larry Tiscornia, Melvin Walner and Samuel Woo.

Contact Lens:

What Do You Think About Girls Wearing Mini-Skirts On Campus?

BOLDS

ORTEZ

Charlie Bolds, Criminology major: Ah, come on, I don't want my picture taken, man OK, but don't make me laugh. Yea, I like mini-skirts. Ha ha, they're OK, if they have nice legs, that is.

Donald Ortez, Liberal Arts major: Do I like mini-skirts? Sure I like them as long as they're not micro-mini. I like nice legs. If a girl wants to wear them and she has nice legs then she should show them off. Girls should be a little conservative though and not go too 'far out.'

GEARHART

KAILEH

Larry Gearhart, Forestry major: Well, that depends. Some girls can wear them and others can't. I don't think they look good on girls who have bony knees or fat legs though. My wife could wear them well, but she prefers not to.

Hal Kaileh, Business major: Mini-skirts? Sure I like them. I think all girls should wear them, but not while in the classroom. They distract me too much in class. That's why I sit in the front of the class so I'm not distracted too much.

—Photos by Doug Mills

Copter, Not Chopper Causes Infield Crisis

Roy Diederichsen's Tuesday morning softball class was momentarily disrupted, April 16, when a small green Lowendick helicopter landed on the playing field at Balboa Park.

The ball players, who had just been ousted from their regular diamond by a league team, made threatening gestures with the ball but failed to ward off the intruder. Cries of "hit it" could be heard above the helicopter's din.

The 'copter pilot and his grinning companion, who claimed they had "just stopped in to see the game," got a hostile welcome from the park patrolman.

"You don't park here without permission, you know," he said. "This is a public park. We thought you were comin' in to gas up. Besides, it sounds like hell."

"I've got to see a man about a horse, anyway," retorted the pilot as he climbed back into his chopper and started it up.

Campus Lineup:

● COO Festival

The Council of Organization's Spring Festival will take place this Friday night, between the hours of 7:30 and 12 midnight in Smith Hall.

The purpose for this festival is to raise money for the Individual clubs on campus so that they will not be completely dependent upon the Associated Students financially.

● Black History

Two San Francisco Negro psychiatrists will unveil an educational program to accelerate the learning of Negro history today at 10:15 a.m. at the San Francisco Hilton.

Price Cobbs, M.D., and William H. Grier, M.D., assistant professors of psychiatry at the University of California Medical Center, will conduct the program and discuss "Black History" with its emphasis on recent developments.

Spectrum Goop In The Eye

by Barbara Hamann

MIRROR MIRROR on the wall . . .

Billions of dollars are spent on cosmetics each year. The object is to make one's self more beautiful and alluring.

That's a lot of money that, in most cases, is spent in vain.

I say in vain for a very obvious reason. Too many females wear much too much makeup; particularly young girls. Young faces should not be clogged with artificial beautifiers, but should breathe free and show off the youth they bear. There will be many years in which to hide the tell-tale lines of father time.

Too Much Will Spoil the Effect

Some girls think that slapping six inches of goop on their face is the key to beauty. An over made face not only looks ridiculous, but it's distasteful as well. Let this writer inform all you gooped-faced girls that true beauty doesn't come from a jar, tube or bottle, but from within that flesh and bone from called a body. One sincere heart, one hearty soul and an energetic mind is Phase I in the secret of beauty. Phase II is merely being courteous, even tempered, considerate, sincere, interested in others, unselfish, truthful and possessed of a pleasant sense of humor.

Beauty comes from within the individual. Without inner beauty no amount of money or surgical aids will ever surpass that. If you think it will —you'll soon be disillusioned.

A WELL MADE-UP face is done in moderate taste and should look as natural as nature intended it to look. You can still accentuate your finer features without overdoing it. Eyes are probably the most important and lovely feature of a woman's face. Yet, girls blacken them so heavily it looks like they've been socked in the eye the night before.

What man wants to kiss a pound of Max Factor, Hazel Bishop or Avon goodnight? If he does—he lacks good taste as well. Men may not say it, but most of them are not impressed with an over-powdered or over-rouged face.

Hollywood makeup experts constantly complain that most stars, who appear on television shows, are too madcup. Before appearing before the camera the star's face must be stripped and makeup is reapplied.

Dermatologists (skin specialists) fight an ever growing problem of women's skin disease. A good majority of women suffer from eye infection and skin irritation due only to the over use of cosmetics.

WHETHER YOU KNOW it or not, cosmetics contain some pretty harsh inredients that can play havoc to a delicate complexion. You may think it's smart to look older by applying a lot of artificial goop on your face, but in years to come you'll wish you'd been a little more moderate in your application.

An over-painted face, a tight dress and a wiggle when you walk does not produce a woman by any means. Only time and experience cultivate the makings of a woman.

This writer does not intend for you to abstain from the use of cosmetics, but hopes you will think twice before you hide the natural beauty that you already possess.

THE NEXT TIME you look in the mirror take a good look at that face and then decide what needs to be brought out. Just don't over do it that's all.

Blue-painted eyes and false eyelashes are ideal for an evening, but in the classroom it's just plain dumb.

It is a known fact that many women are masters in the art of cosmetics. If you are one of them—this column will not apply to you.

Ivy, Shrubs And Other Things Enhance Campus Grounds As Beautification Project Ends

By Randy Flynn

The last seeds of the eight-month-long campus beautification project will soon be sown and by the end of this month, the critical period of stabilization will begin which will determine whether or not the grass will be green and the ivy and shrubs abundant.

In an exclusive interview with David Screechfield, job superintendent of the campus beautification project, he discussed the various phases of the project and the all-important stabilization period.

"After we finish seeding the last few bare patches of soil around the main building (Science Hall)," Screechfield said, "our work will be completed. After that," he continued, "a vital stabilization period will begin during which time the newly-planted areas must be allowed to take root."

The stabilization period will last for approximately two weeks. During that time, it is important that students avoid those areas where seed is taking root. If these areas are walked over, the seeds will be destroyed and the result will be bare, rock-hard soil that will erode and endanger the surrounding ground cover.

"The reason behind planting so many trees in certain areas is to establish a natural barrier where the wind is strongest," Screechfield said.

FOR THIS PURPOSE, Monterey Pines, Cypress and Karo or street trees have been planted. These three species are known for their strength and rapid growth rate and as Screechfield explained, each species has been planted where it will be most practical and useful.

In order to supply a more effective wind break, most of the new trees will be topped (the crowns will be cut off). This will cause the trees to fill out more instead of growing only upward.

When asked when these trees would be large enough to offer such a wind break, Screechfield answered, "With good watering and fertilization the ground and trees should reach an ideal stage of maturity in approximately two years."

ANOTHER AND EVEN larger obstacle the project has faced is weather. Rain and wind have constantly barred progress. "Even now," Screechfield said, "all we have left to do is seed but we can't do that until the wind stops."

Altogether, the beautification project will cost the City and County of San Francisco over $200,000. The Shooter Landscaping Company, which did all of the grounds work with the exception of the electrical portion of the project, will no doubt be called back to City College next semester to do the landscaping for the new Administration Building now nearing completion.

Jesse Figueroa Abandons Head Of AMS, Block SF

Jesse Figueroa, Associated Men Students president, is taking a leave of absence for the remainder of the semester to accept a job offer.

Both the athletic department and administrator's rate him highly. He was the Most Outstanding Student for the 1967 fall semester.

FIGUEROA is a qualified soccer coach and is accredited by the California Soccer-Football Association.

Besides being the AMS President, Figueroa is also Block SF President. He also works as a lifeguard after school hours.

His accomplishments at City College of San Francisco include leading the junior varsity soccer team to an undefeated season.

His successor is undetermined, but candidates for this office are still being interviewed.

Figueroa plans to return to the college next term to further his education. He then plans to transfer to the University of California at Berkeley where he will major in physical education.

Young Republicans To Meet Here Tomorrow

The Young Republicans of City College will meet in A-215 tomorrow from 11 to 12 a.m.

The club is actively recruiting members, all interested students are invited to attend.

Last Thursday the club elected their officers and adopted a temporary constitution.

According to Frank J. Arcuri, president of the club, "The purpose of this club is to clarify the general understanding that we have of the Republican ideals through our club activities."

Women spend three years of their lives looking in a mirror. Men spend less than two years at it.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

● Big Brother

Editor, The Guardsman:

I dreamed that the people gave Big Brother full permission to pry in their private affairs in the name of decency and responsibility. They all exclaimed, "Big Brother has every right to pry in people's private affairs. Bravo, Big Brother, we all like to have our family affairs involving love, sex, health, marital, emotional, social and financial problems publicized to each and every man in the street. Aren't such things items of public information? Anyone who disagrees must have dark secrets, which have to be brought out in the open in the public interest. We all think that there is no such thing as 'privacy'; that words such as 'confidential' and 'discreet' have no meaning in human lives; that everybody should get all the details about our family's private business affairs; that we see no harm in spreading idle rumors.

"Big Brother is not malicious, not hateful. He keeps a close watch on your house, day and night, to help you —not to hurt you."

That's why Big Brother tries to avoid instigating a riot and setting up public officials against you by tape-recording your every word to squeeze out the remotest implication of incriminating evidence. On top of that, Big Brother breaks into your house—without the owner's permission—whenever it is vacated. We all like prowlers in our house, snooping, eavesdropping, don't we? Big Brother is not a lunatic; no, he just insists that a man is in pursuit of an "impossible dream" and that a normal life is not what a man wants if he is in his right mind.

You tacitly permitted Big Brother to persist in his crooked ways. Well, you might be Big Brother's next target and all people will stand idly by. How would you like that? And when you protest, Big Brother points his finger and exclaims, "Behold, the aggressor!" They investigate criminal and subversive affairs; prying into the private lives of innocent, peaceful, law-abiding citizens is the same thing, isn't it? Decent people shouldn't exclaim in indignant outrage, "That's going too far! I am an American! I won't permit it! We will do nothing to oppose such evil abuse; isn't it in the spirit of democratic principles of justice and equity and human rights to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness?" And the golden age of Big Brother was on earth. The slogan now is, "Big Brother is watching you! Big Brother has every right to watch you, 24 hours a day, everyday, for as long as you live! Hooray for Big Brother!" And decent people, with some concern for human rights, asked each other, "What did you do when it happened?" All I ask is "Do you know the answer?"

A United States Citizen

SHOOTIN' IT

by D. K. Dorn

TO SOOTHE THE SAVAGE: A series of good sound things are at San Francisco State today through Sunday night. The Seventh Annual Folk Music Festival featuring all kinds of music is on all over the campus. Featured are the Northern Arizona Hopi and Navajo Indian dancers and singers; Tim Hardin; Mike Bloomfield's American Music Band, The Electric Flag; Gordon Lightfoot, a Canadian folksinger of great note; Dino Valenti, who wrote Let's Get Together; Dan Hicks and His Hot Licks (he was formerly with the Charlatans—probably the city's first "hippie" band); and Curley Cook's Hurdy Gurdy Band will all be there.

Besides the aforementioned names, bodies and groups of bodies, many other people are on the bill including Merle Travis who wrote Sixteen Tons, Gale Garnet who wrote Sing In The Sunshine, Vern and Ray who are considered some of the finest Bluegrass musicians extant today, and Crome Syrus, not a person but a group of them who do electronic thingies in sound.

Tonight there's a concert at 8 p.m., with the Cleanliness and Godliness Skiffle Band in the Gallery Lounge, tomorrow different people are playing for free, and Friday some of the main people are doing the thing in the main gym for $2 a student. At 10:30 Friday night there's a free "cabaret" in the Gallery Lounge with folk and electric music people.

On Saturday afternoon, there's a series of workshops including guitar styles, banjo, country guitar, blues and ragtime guitar, mandolin and fiddle and some flicks about Indians.

At 8 p.m. that night, Tim Hardin, Crome Syrcus, Dino Valenti, and Vern and Ray with Herb Peterson will do a concert with $2 tab at the gate of the main gym. At 10:30 that very same p.m., the Indians, Crome Syrcus, Gordon Lightfoot and Curley Cook's Hurdy Gurdy Band do it to at a dance-concert in the Cafeteria (eafeteria) for $1.50 for "all students," the signs says.

The climax of the folk fete comes on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 when a psychedelic-pop-wow "Jubilee Concert" lifts off the top of the main gym with the Electric Flag, the Indians, and all the other headliners at the controls. The cost to students there is two bucks a throw.

Tickets are available at SF State's Associated Students box office in Hut T-1 or phone 469-2144. Can't help but wonder at how the student politicoes at State aren't demanding AS cards in events which help round out everybody's education.

• • •

FURTHER WONDERINGS: Why does this writer always have to end up at a school where the powers that be are trying to play like Ronnie-boy who is trying to play Calvin Coolidge? Wouldn't it be something else again if our own Ray Bietz could score doing the Death Valley thing and try for the future instead of the past?

• • •

BACK AT THE RANCH: The whole town is deluged in an ocean of filthy decency this week. The Board of Supervisors has seen it fit to declare all this week Decency Week. Fight filth! Burned any good dirty books lately? are the mottos. The whole shot is from Los Angeles where a supervisor there, Warren Dorn, has been pushing such cleanliness.

We gave my Uncle Warren a call the other day to check things out. "Clean your teeth and wash your brain, boy!" he said. "Got to get along to another meeting of the Citizens for Decent LIterature now, son! Can't talk now."

At CDL meetings everybody sits around and tsk-tsks all the pornography which is collected through the years. The only drawback is that a musky odor prevails at these meetings and that the protectors of decency cannot tear themselves away from the exhibits to get down to do much discussions of what they should permit our minds to see.

• • •

WHAT HALL? Spectrum columnist Barbara Hamann reports that she was shocked to see that somebody went to the trouble of transposing the "h" and the "m" in "Smith" down at Smith Hall. Only they drooped the "m." The brass letters on the side of the cafeteria building went unnotieed for a couple days, and that's a pretty crappy situation.

New Soccer Regs Lead To Merritt Withdrawal

A furor over soccer eligibility regulations reached a climax recently when the Merritt College soccer coach John Gallagher threw in the towel and withdrew his team from the Western Junior College Soccer Conference. Night school students can no longer participate in soccer but must be full time day students.

In a telegram sent to eacb of the other league coaches, Gallagher stated that the new rules, which had been agreed upon at an open meeting of team representatives, were "not in the best interest of the students of Merritt" and "we have no other choice than to withdraw . . ." For some reason, no one from Merritt attended.

The T-Bird coach, whose teams have been getting progressively better every year, felt the new rules would be discriminatory because, under them, a number of the foreign students that he relies heavily upon as players could not compete.

William Riley, president of the Associated Students of Merritt College, backed up the decision. "This move was made after deliberation . . . when it became apparent that repressive rules, directed at the foreign student population of Merritt . . . had been in effect passed . . ." Riley also charged that there had been little interest in changing the rules before Merritt really became contenders. (Last year they finished second only to the Rams.)

According to Ram soccer coach Roy Diederichsen the new policy brings soccer eligibility rules up to a par with the rules of other sports.

Merritt intends to continue competing against four-year colleges and universities.

San Mateo, Chabot Top League; Vikings Thump Rams, 12-3

After fumbling away the game to the Diablo Valley Vikings by a 12 to 3 count the Rams baseball record stands at 5 wins, 8 losses as over the Easter break City College won three and lost four.

Diablo Valley stunned the Rams by 12-3 on April 16, as Ernie Domecus' crew was held scoreless till the ninth inning when they scored all their runs.

The Ram batsmen were limited to four bits; three of which were collected in the ninth inning rally as Jim Smith tripled, Manny Berrios singled and Larry Brady bit a two bagger. Tom Mayfield had the only other hit, a fifth inning single.

While the Rams had their trouble the Vikings collected two runs in the first and third innings and three runs in the fourth and added five more in the sixth inning.

THE RAMS also added to the Viking total of 12 bits as they had nine errors, four of them by Chuck Grey.

On April 6, the Merritt Thunderbirds met City College's diamondmen in a 25-13 slugfest battle won by the Rams.

Andy Fracchia collected three hits to lead the batting parade.

Odel Williams, Chuck Gretton and Dave Kline each had two bits and Tim Callen bad the Rams' first bome run of the season.

Chabot was the opponent as on April 4 they defeated the Rams, 10-1.

The lone run came about in the sixth inning as Grey, Smith and Berrios all singled.

April 2 saw Contra Costa dump the Rams, 4-2. Again the Rams failed to score until the eighth inning when Gray and Gretton scored as Gretton's triple drove Gray across and Smith followed with a single.

Contra Costa collected two runs in the seventh and eighth.

The Rams also played three non-league games during the Easter layoff, including a double header.

THE FIRST GAME the Rams tipped Santa Rosa, 3-1, scoring all three runs in the first inning.

Williams collected two of the Rams' five hits, including a double, Smith opened the actionearly in the first as Fracchia was hit by a pitch. Gray followed with a sharp single. Smith then unloaded on a fast ball and homered to left field.

Brady held Santa Rosa at bay, giving up a solo run in the fifth while walking seven and striking out five.

The second contest saw a ten inning affair go to Santa Rosa 6-5.

At the end of the second round of the Golden Gate Conference baseball season, Chabot and San Mateo are tied for first place with 9-3 records.

Three other teams are tied for third place with 6-6 records; they are Contra Costa, Diablo Valley and Foothill.

Due to lack of hitting and insufficient pitching the Rams are tied for sixth place along with San Jose. Both have 5-8 records. Merritt is in the cellar with a 2-10 record.

Tomorrow the Rams will battle Contra Costa, who previously beat them by a 4-2 score. This time the Rams will have the advantage of playing on their home field, Balboa Park.

On Tuesday April 30, the Rams will seek revenge from Chabot who outscored them 10-1 at their last meeting. The game will be played at Sundberg Field, Balboa Park.—A. F. & J. B.

Phi Delts, Can't Lasts Pull Thru In Vital Clashes

The pre-Easter vacation intramural action was highlighted by the duel between the only remaining undefeated teams, The Guardsman staff and the Phi Delt fraternity won by the Delts, 61-51.

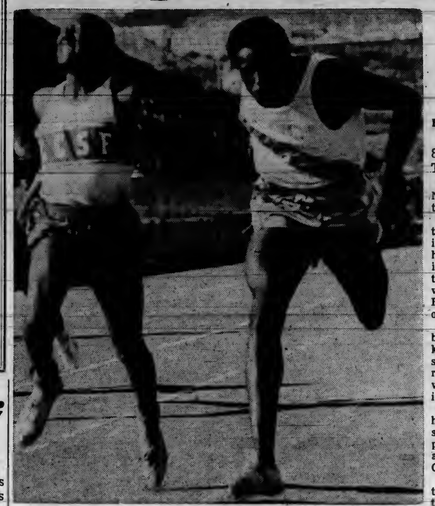
The game, played in the women's gym, was a rival to the Houston-UCLA clash of the regular NCAA season. But, unlike that 'Big Game' the underdog was not the victor here. The Phi Delts, led by their usual balanced attack, bad all five starters scoring in double figures.

IN OTHER ACTION H&R (4-1) beat the Epsilon fraternity (0-2) 44-39, with Simon, Jones and Williams contributing most of the winners' points.

Independent league competition had the Can't Lasts squeaking by the Celtics 47-46, while the following contest featured the Friendly Bears beating Blackstone Rangers, 54-44, behind Joe Ciarrso's 16 points.

A week ago Monday night three make-up games were played. The Red Mountaineers continued to be unbeaten by slipping by the Celtics 68-58 due to the excellent playmaking and 18 points of Bob Williams. The Can't Lasts beat the Friendly Bears (3-3) 51-41. The Guardsman won by default over the Chi Rho.

The 2-0 Guardsman victory over the absent Chi Rho team was scored on a tipoff play from referee Clifton Smith to tipper Mike Duggan to Easy Ed Holmes who in turn wheeled toward the basket and fed Eddie Murtha, who layed in the winning points.



LAST TUESDAY the Phi Delts (5-0) continued to lead their league with a win by default over the Chi Rho (0-6). It was the Chi Rho fraternity's fourth loss by default. The Guardsman (6-1) got back on its winning ways by trouncing the Filippino-Americans (1-6), 52-29 behind Tom Jones' 16 points and the torrid pivot play of Easy Ed.

Last Tuesday's Independent league competition had the Revisables (1-5) over the Celtics (1-5) 66-59, with two 12-point performances by Gary Wong and Norman Jung. In the other game the Can't Lasts (5-1) upset the previously unbeaten Red Mountaineers (5-1) 42-39.

This Thursday's games pit the Filipino-Americans against the Pbi Delts and the Red Mountaineers fight it out with the Friendly Bears in the women's gym. While in the men's gym the Can't Lasts are pitted against the Revisables and the H&R takes on the Chi Rho fraternity in the late contest.

Intramural soccer league, which consists of two teams, shows the Antillies bave beaten the Newman Club three straight times.—W. D.

Ram Spikers Route Chabot

IN AN EARLIER meet this season, Contra Costa's Clarence Taylor, top 440 man in the league, edges Rams' David Jones (left).
—Guardsman photo by Jens Protze

Provost Captures Sprint Double In 83-53 Victory

By Dave Albertson

Ram trackmen crushed Chabot, 83-53, in a dual meet at Chabot, Tuesday, April 16.

The Rams will participate in Northern California Relays at Foothill this Saturday, beginning at 10 a.m.

The Chabot meet was highlighted by the double victories of Ernie Provost in the sprint events. Provost equaled his fastest time of the season in taking the 100 with a 9.6. His other victory came in the 220, which he easily won in 22 flat. He also anchored the Ram 440 relay to victory in the time of 42.9.

Vince Ansley upset Charles Claiborne in the quarter mile. Ansley kicked out his best 440 time of the season in 49.9. Claiborne, who is ranked third in the league standings with a 440 best of 49.6, trailed Ansley in 50.1.

TOM CLYBURN easily won the high jump at 5-10 as Chabot proved short of high jumpers. Clyburn also placed second in the long jump with a jump of 21-11, while 880 man Vic Cary won his event handily.

Jim Baldocchi took bis first win of the season for the Rams in the discus throw. Baldocchi made a throw of 122-10.

Bill Butler came through for the Rams with dual victories in the long jump events. Butler made his best marks of the season in winning the triple jump with a 44-11¼ and the long jump in 22-10½. August Berry placed third for the Rams in the triple jump with a leap of 41-10.

Forrest Shute placed second in the pole vault with a vault of 13-6. Steve Witt of Chabot also vaulted 13-6, but was awarded first place on account of fewer misses. Shute has been plagued by the "fewer misses" ruling all season. Ron Auger of Chabot also vaulted 13-6, but was awarded third place because of more misses than Shute.

Chabot's distance star, Bill Seaver, edged Ram George Haza in the mile run. Seaver was clocked in 4:33.3 with Haza trailing by four tenths of a second. Haza reversed the situation in the two mile, winning in 9:47.4, while Seaver trailed by two tenths of a second.

Chabot swept the 330-yard intermediate hurdles led by Bill Walker in first place with a 41.1.

The Rams turned in their best mile relay time this season, winning in 3:26.5. Chabot ran a 3:27.7.

EASTER RELAYS

The Rams took part in the first Golden Gate Easter Relays Thursday, April 11 at Chabot.

The Ram 440 relay team of David Jones, Greg Johnson, Larry Mosely, and Ernie Provost staged an exciting duel with the San Jose Jaguars. The two top sprinters in the conference were matched against each other in the form of Jaguar Earl Harris and Ram Provost. The last leg of the 440 relay was started on an almost even basis, with Provost and Harris sprinting stride for stride to the wire in which appeared to be a dead heat. Both teams were clocked in 41.9. The judges awarded first place to San Jose. The Rams are looking forward to a rematch in the upcoming dual meet between San Jose and City College.

San Jose, San Mateo Hand Golfers Consecutive Defeats

By Gavin L. Watt

Folding under to San Jose April 5 at Almaden Country Club, and losing to College of San Mateo April 16 at Peninsula Country Club, left the Rams' linkers with a 6-3 record in league play.

The Rams were swamped under by San Jose for the second time this season. San Jose left no doubt about its superiority, winning 30½-4½.

Stew Whitman, with a 78, picked up four points from Lee, Pettibon, who was high man for the day with an 83. Doug Boston lost 5½ points to Forrest Fezler after shooting a fine 76. Fezler fired a 72.

DONN JAULSON, with an 80, Paul Rea, an 81, and Gary Corvi, an 82, lost six points each to Ed Morris, who shot a 73, Bob Poen, a 73, and Wayne Amon, with a 76.

San Mateo made short work of the Rams, handing the linkers their third straight loss, 30½-4½. Rea picked up two points after backing bis way around with a 92. Chuck Clancy had an 88, picking up the other four.

Boston saved 1½ points after shooting a low 81 for the Rams. Steve Mountain, with a 79, picked up the other 4½ points. Paulson, with an 83, lost 5 points to Mark Iverson.

Whitman blew his 78 average by skying to a 92, losing six points to Chris Bittlicks, who fired a 77. Gevertz, filling in for Gary Corvi, backed with a 93, dropping all six points to Mike Deal, who had an 85.

Conference Standings

San Jose CC	7	1
San Mateo	6	3
SAN FRANCISCO	6	3
Diablo Valley	5	3
Chabot	4	4
Merritt	3	6
Foothill	1	7
Contra Costa	0	7

Weekend Results

THURSDAY
BASEBALL

San Mateo ..... 001 100 140—7 15 3
CCSF ..... 000 111 000—3 5 0

FRIDAY
GOLF

CCSF 24—San Mateo 11
Medalist—Stew Whitman (SF), 74

TRACK

CCSF 73—Merritt 69
440 Relay—SF (Jordan, Jackson, Mosely, Provost), 42.1. 100—Provost, 9.7. 220—Provost, 21.8. 440—Mosely, 50.5. 880—Wilkens (M), 158.5. Mile—Wilkens, 4:34.2. 2 Mile—Sterdman (M), 9:58.1. 120 HH—Barnfield (M), 14.9. 330 IH—Barnfield, 40.7. LJ—Butler (SF), 22-5. TJ—Butler, 45-11. HJ—Crockett (M), 6-4. PV—Shute (SF), 13-10. SP—Trebotich (M), 46.9. D—Goldberg (M), 131-0. Mile Relay—SF (Cary, Provost, Mosely, Ansley), 3:35.6.

SATURDAY
BASEBALL

CCSF ..... 000 010 300—4 6 1
Foothill ..... 111 000 02x—5 7 2

Cabrillo Hosts NorCal Swim Championships

The City College swimmers will go to Cabrillo College in Santa Cruz Friday and Saturday for the Northern California Championship Meet.

Each team is limited to 18 contestants with a maximum limit of four contestants entered per team event. Each swimmer entered should have at least placed in his conference meet. A swimmer may enter five events of which only three may be individual.

Medals will be given for first place through sixth place. Team trophies will be given for first place through third place. Team scoring will be given from first place through 12th place.

The meet will be held in a 25-yard pool. There will be six 7-foot lanes, a one-meter and a three-meter dura-flex board. There are no judges available for the diving events, so volunteering coaches will judge.

Top scores from the Northern California Championship meet in 1967 are as follows: Foothill 508 1/6, Chabot 277, San Mateo 186 2/3, San Jose 162, Diablo Valley 141 1/3, Sequoia 125½, San Joaquin Delta 96 and City College of San Francisco 75½.

City College's entries will be determined after the Conference Meet.

Final Conference Standings

Foothill	5	0
Chabot	4	1
Diablo Valley	3	2
San Mateo	2	3
San Jose CC	1	4
SAN FRANCISCO	0	5

Bulldogs Deal Netters First Loss

The Ram netters ran into a stacked deck at windy San Mateo, Friday, April 5, and lost sole ownership of the league lead in a tough 4-3 scuffle.

Theoretically, when a team enters a match, it ranks its players in descending order of ability and, if it plays better tennis than the other team, it wins.

It didn't take long to see what was in the cards. John Wong, expecting a rough time with the Bulldogs, who'd lost close matches only to Foothill and Merritt, found himself pitted against "number two" man Gary Davis, who couldn't even return his serves. Wong beat Davis 6-0, 6-0 and Chuck White, likewise, had little trouble with "number one" Dan Scanlan.

The double dealing was exposed when "number three" Bulldog Larry Preston beat George Zoul 6-4, 14-12, "number four" Pat Huang beat Paul Stafatos 6-4, 6-3, and "number five" Dave Fong beat Tony Lee 6-1, 6-1.

Using roughly the same tactics in doubles, giving Wong and White no competition but putting their better players against our second doubles team, San Mateo got the win.

Asked about the match, Ram coach Roy Diederichsen declined to comment.

In spite of the 4-3 final score the Rams actually outscored the Bulldogs in games won, and if it were not for the many psychological factors involved, would probably have been the victors, stacked deck notwithstanding.

This Friday the Rams play host to Diablo Valley at Golden Gate Park.
—E. J.

Conference Standings

SAN FRANCISCO	4	1
Merritt	3	1
Chabot	3	2
San Mateo	3	2
Foothill	2	2
San Jose	1	3
Diablo Valley	1	3
Contra Costa	0	4

Gregory Assigns 'Big Job' To Students In C-H Talk

By D. K. Dorn

"You kids have a big job ahead of you," black comedian Dick Gregory told an audience of more than 1500 in the football field last Thursday during College Hour.

"You are the ones who have to make this insane nation stop spreading its insanity around the world. You'll also have to get this country to start inforcing the Constitution for all us niggers instead of just passing more civil rights acts," was Gregory's soulful message to the responsive audience.

He used his acid wit to explain why he thought tbis country was so corrupt and what he felt was necessary to straighten it out.

"THE MAIN PROBLEM with this country isn't air pollution, it's moral pollution. The politicians are passing civil rights acts for black people. All black people want is equal protection under tbe Constitution," said the bearded comedian.

In a self-styled lesson in American history, Gregory compared the American Revolution to the present revolution for minority rights.

"Some people in England got fed up with having to pay bomage to the king, so they struck out for a new land. Except that they stopped to pick us up to be slaves on their way to this 'Free Land'."

He punctuated his talk by summing up his points which were directed at both minority and white students.

"I'm not so sick as to excuse riots and violence. Yet black soldiers are sent to Vietnam to burn down schools and villages. And you think they're going to come back here, see unliberated areas and not do someting about it?

"WE ARE TIRED of the games that this country plays. We are tired of baving to be sent off to some other country to liberate other people while our mammy back here ain't got ber liberation yet."

As "just a non-violent nigger," he felt called upon to make an apology as he touched on Martin Luther King's assassination.

"I really must apologize for some of my nigger brothers and sisters for rioting after Dr. Martin Luther King was killed. First, he wasn't killed by a honkie cracker red neck. He was killed in America by an American. Second, I'm sorry that there was rioting out of 'riot season.' Everybody knows that riot season is between July and August.

"What you kids have to do is make this country more frightened of injustice than it is of communism," he said.

He concluded by reminding the audience that the Declaration of Independence states that when a country is corrupt, its citizens have a duty to change that country by any means possible.

A joint decision by criminology advisers Timothy Foley and Lawrence Lawson resulted in a conspicuous absence of Campus Police at Gregory's talk.

Two Million Dollars Riding On June Ballot

By Dave Albertson

City College has a two million dollar cash interest in a $65 million state-wide bond issue to appear on the June ballot.

Dr. Louis G. Conlan, college president, made this announcement to businessmen and faculty members who took part in the 49th anniversary on campus last Thursday.

Education-Business Day is a 20-year-old tradition in which the teachers visit various businesses, while the business representatives visit the local schools.

Mary Golding, dean of women, says that "teachers no longer visit the businesses, but the businessmen keep the tradition alive." Dr. Golding also said that "the emphasis this year is on the elementary level."

Louis G. Conlan, president of City College, welcomed the business representatives with an opening address stressing Education-Business Day as "one of the most important events at City College." Conlan noted the business representation usually reached well over the 100 mark in comparison to today's 21. Conlan also said, "the purpose of junior colleges in general and City College in particular is to reflect the educational needs of our community."

Conlan's topic was "Priorities for 1968." Conlan said of City College, "I've never seen so many groups with so many desires in my life." He also empbasized a new phase of curriculum development "for the minority or disadvantaged group." Another big priority pointed out by Conlan is "to maintain the present high level of our faculty."

Conlan also said that "there will be a $65 million state bond issue on the June ballot solely for junior colleges." He stated that "a million dollars of this money is promised to City College with matching funds from the local school board."

The representatives' day was highlighted by attending a speech given by civil rights leader, Dick Gregory, on the Ram football field.

The visitors were then hosted to a luncheon in the faculty dining room.

Traffic Control

